duplicating apparatus. Send postal card to A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, for descriptive circulars and samples of work.

THE GLUTEN Entire Wheat Flour the best and most economical flour made, the only cure for Dyspepsia. Recommended by Physicians. Kenosha Mills Co., 135 Lake St., Chicago.

HOTEL FREDONIA,
H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.
New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,
G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

AGENTS WANTED to sell a book highly commended by Miss Willard, Dr. Deems and many other celebrities. Liberal commissions. For circular send two-cent stamp to Rev. W. C. Black, Jackson, Miss.

LADIES' COMPLETE GUIDE
Cloth, $2.00 Mor., $2.75 TOKOLOGY Sample pp free.
in health and disease.
Best terms to AGENTS.
ALICE B. STOCKHAM & Co., Chicago, Ill

New VINEYARD. BICYCLES
All Steel, rubber tire
High grade,—cowhorn bars, spade handles Kirkpatrick saddle; Warranted one year
50-in. worth $55, for $32 | 44-in. worth $40, for $22
48-in. worth $50, for $27 | 42-in. worth $35, for $20
46-in. worth $45, for $25 | 38-in. worth $30, for $17
CATA. FREE. Tangent spokes $1 extra. Easy payments. Agts. wanted
ROUSE, HAZARD & CO., G Street, Peoria, Ill

TAKE AN AGENCY for the Best Utensil in the universe.
DAGGETT'S SELF-BASTING ROASTING PAN
Needed in every family.
SAVES 20 Per Cent. in Roasting, and Bakes the Best Bread in the world. Address for terms
W. A. DAGGETT & CO., Vineland, N. J.
or Western Office, 184 E. Indiana St., Chicago.

ASK your dealer for Water Pails Dairy Pails, Wash Basins, Cuspidors, Slop Jars, Table Mats, Slop Jar, Mats, Etc. made from FLAX FIBER. Practically indestructible. Manufact'd by the STANDARD FIBER-WARE CO. Nothing will please you like this Plain and Decorated Ware. In use everywhere. None genuine without "STANDARD" Trade Mark on bottom. If your dealer does not keep it, send his address and we will mail you picture cards.

FOR CHOICE
BONDS
Call or Write for Our
APRIL LIST.
Local and other securities bought and sold.

INTEREST on TIME DEPOSITS.
BANKING IN ALL BRANCHES.
S. A. KEAN & CO., BANKERS.
115 Broadway, New York. 100 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

THE DEAF HEAR SOUND DISCS are guaranteed to help a larger per cent. of cases than all similar devices combined. The same to the Ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively invisible. Worn months without removal. H. A. WALES, Bridgeport, Conn.

A Boon for the Afflicted.

HEALTH & VIGOR Restored by DR. ADAM MILLER'S New System of MUSCULAR FLEXION and HYGIENIC TREATMENT WITHOUT MEDICINE—Results of FORTY YEARS MEDICAL PRACTICE and careful observation of the laws of VITAL FORCES. For pamphlets and other information, address with 2c. stamp,
DR. ADAM MILLER, 172 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MAN WANTED SALARY $75 to $100, to locally represent a N. Y. Company incorporated to supply Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Jewelry, etc., to consumers at cost. Also a Lady of tact, Salary $40, to enroll members ($0,000 now enrolled, $100,000 paid in). References. Empire Co-operative Ass'n (well rated) Lock Box 1610, N. Y.

ALABASTINE.

Church's Improved Alabastine is now sold in the place of the original Alabastine so long and favorably known to the readers of THE UNION SIGNAL. The improved is like the original, is made by the same man and same company, the improvement consisting in more perfect proportions and general improvements in the same line as the original invention, adapting Alabastine to being stippled, combed or modeled on walls, and while it is made to form a harder cement, if anything, than the original, which sets in the form of a porous cement, the improved sets much slower, as well as hard.

It can not be kept mixed and left to set in the dish over night and used next day, but can be kept in liquid form all day while it is being used and will work even better when it is cool, and as with the original it forms a permanent coating, that is, one that hardens without change, admitting of recoating from time to time without the necessity of taking off old coats, i all old coats of calcimine, etc., are removed first, Fine or light stippling, as done with Church's Improved Alabastine, produces an effect similar to ingrain paper, though much nicer and more durable and being a smooth as well as pebbled surface, it will admit of cleaning with bread, as walls are sometimes cleaned. With our instructions this stippling can be done by any one.

We furnish cut stencil patterns at cost to alabastiners and some free to those the Alabastine dealers recommend as users and advocates of Alabastine.

Don't use calcimine or paper that it costs more to remove than to apply.

A movement is on foot to pass state laws making it an offense to put a coat of paper over an old coat of paper for a tenant. Kalsomine, with its decaying glue, and paper, with glue on its face and flour paste behind it, absorbs moisture from respiration and propagates germs of disease, causing much of the sickness the people attribute to climate. All parts of Alabastine combine on the wall to form a porous stone coat that will not decay. Don't let a dealer sell you calcimine, etc., (that he buys cheaper), by claiming it is the same or just as good as Alabastine; but one other article made is even similar to Alabastine and that one is Plastico, licensed under our patents, but not sold by the trade generally.

Send to us for a paper taken from the Michigan state board of health report, treating on wall coatings and their relation to health, telling why calcimined and papered walls are unsanitary and why the pure, porous Alabastine is sanitary.

Send for a treatise on Alabastine with colored room designs and full instructions for all kinds of Alabastine work, including instructions adapted for ladies to decorate bric-a-brac, and about making flowers in Alabastine relief solid tints.

Alabastine is for sale by all paint dealers. Address
ALABASTINE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 17.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, April 24, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: The Old Basis—The Concentration of Labor ... 8
WATCH-TOWER: ... 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, Open Furrows, by Joseph Cook—A Closet Skeleton From Alcohol, by T. D. Crothers, M. D.—Legislation on the Liquor traffic in the Colonies and United States of America, by Ada M. Bittenbender—The Pulpit and the Party, by Joel Swartz, D. D.—The Element of Time in the Ripening of Public Sentiment, by Rev. H. A. Delano 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: State Aid for Invalids and Others Needing Help—The Majesty of the Law—Excellencies and Defects of the Religious Press—Temperance Temple Items ... 4, 5
OUR BOOK TABLE: ... 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, The Fox and the Rabbit—Colonel Bain's "House that Jack Built"—The Point of Difference 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning May 4, 1890 ... 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, The White Ribbon—Words to the Wise—The Supreme Gift ... 7
NEWS FROM THE FIELD. Georgia, California, Ohio, Connecticut, Virginia, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Indiana, New York, Pennsylvania—News in a Nutshell—Announcements ... 10, 11, 12
OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS Press Department—Peace Department ... 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT ... 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: ... 16

NOTICE.

A special meeting of the directors of the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association for the purpose of perfecting organization under the new charter and transacting other important business will be held at 161 La Salle street, Chicago, Wednesday, April 30, 1890, commencing at eleven o'clock a. m. A full meeting is imperative.

MARY ALLEN WEST, Sec.

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

The British government will introduce a religious schedule into the census of 1891, for the purpose of ascertaining the numerical strength of the various denominations.

High license is a vague term for a variable quantity. A measure so named passed the Maryland legislature a few weeks ago which fixes the license fee of that state at $250.

The Prohibition convention at Lincoln, Neb., last week elected as permanent president, C. A. Atkinson, of Lincoln; Mrs. Jennie F. Holmes as first vice-president. The executive committee arranged for a thorough canvass through the state on a strictly non-partisan basis. The end to be attained, prohibition in the constitution.

Chancellor Von Caprivi's speech at the opening of the Prussian Diet last week was well received. It did not attempt to forecast definitely the policy of the incoming administration, was guarded in expression, but the entire tone was one of concession. The Chancellor invited "practical criticism," promising to adopt the good wherever found.

Stanley arrived in Brussels on April 19. He was met at the frontier by a special train and escort sent out by King Leopold. The royal carriage was waiting at the station, and a military band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," as he stepped upon the platform. It is said the king "received him literally with open arms," on his arrival at the palace.

ALDERMEN were elected in several Illinois towns last week, upon the issue between $1,000 and $5,000 as the license fee. The higher the license the more gilded the saloon. The more attractive and "respectable" the saloon, the more attractive and respectable will be the young men ruined by it. The best baited trap catches most game, and where it costs so much to set the snare the returns must be large.

THE Metropolitan Opera House, New York, has again been the scene of a remarkable gathering of women. It was the sixth annual meeting of the New York Association of Working Girls Societies, held in connection with the National convention of Associations. Three hundred delegates were present, representing an uncounted constituency of women wage-earners in every state of the Union and the Dominion of Canada. Commenting upon Miss Grace Dodge's gifts and graces as a presiding officer, the New York Tribune says: "Such straightforward, quick disposal of the topics under consideration is unknown to a convention of men." The faces are reported "pretty" as well as intelligent, and the new bonnets and spring costumes were approved. The treasurer, Miss Clara Potter, was commended as "fit for a bank president." We are glad of this generous and encouraging treatment from the city papers. Speeches were short and pithy, papers condensed and practical. Miss Edith Thomas, of Boston, defined the fortunate classes as those who have to work and are happy in their work. The topics covered a wide range. One venerable man was overheard to remark, "The next generation of husbands will be lucky fellows, for nothing is neglected, from astronomy to cooking a beefsteak." The New York Association comprises fifty societies. One branch has in charge the establishment of comfortable sanitary homes for working girls. Two houses at the sea-shore have already been secured having capacity for five hundred women. An endowment and sick fund is auxiliary to this scheme.

ENGLISH Solons are perplexed. They, too, have a surplus. The receipts from alcoholic beverages in Great Britain exceed the estimates, and surprise the House of Commons to the extent of $5,000,000. Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has been looking into the causes of this unusual state of affairs and finds that it is mainly due to increased consumption of spirits. The largest increase has been in rum, it being twelve per cent. Thirty million more drinks were taken in 1889 than in 1888. The total revenue from alcohol is $146,325,000. Following these statements Mr. Goschen recommends an increase in the liquor tax of six cents per gallon. He does not say how long he thinks it will be before this "wise and well-directed" effort will result in the promotion of temperance instead of the promotion of intemperance. Lord Randolph Churchill says, "Each generation of English people is becoming more and more alcoholized, yet the government does nothing to stop the traffic in drink."

IMPEDIMENTA have not been the order in the legislative strife of the present season. In other years Congress has been reminded of the existence of women and their rights as citizens by the memorials and petitions of the National Suffrage Associations. The enemies of woman suffrage have lately been its helpers, by making it prominent in the debate upon the admission of Wyoming. Facts, new and old, concerning franchise and citizenship, have been unearthed, from Thomas Jefferson's day unto our own. The constitution with which the young child desires to enter the Federation of states, provides that "the rights of citizens of the state of Wyoming to vote and hold office shall not be denied or abridged on account of sex," and "that both male and female citizens of this state shall equally enjoy all civil, political and religious rights and privileges." Furthermore, "no person shall have a right to vote who shall not be able to read the constitution of this state." This most complete and equitable franchise was the dragon's tooth in the discussion. Our women should know their friends in court, and we are pleased to present the more prominent of our champions, and let their own words prove them. Mr. Baker, of New York, who proposed the bill for admission, asked: "Shall it be said, then, that in organization Wyoming shall be denied the right to begin its career as a state by according to women the equal rights before the law granted and enjoyed by them during all their existence as a territory? Will any man dare to stand up here before the people of this country, talking as we do to sixty millions or more of our equals, and assert that a constitution containing such a principle is unrepublican in form? If yea, let him so declare, and then go hence and be no more forever, but politically of doubtful sanity." Mr. Kerr, of Iowa, wants to know "Who shall prescribe who shall be voters in Wyoming if not the citizens themselves, and that they have admitted the women to vote is to me a guaranty that a very greatly needed element to secure purity, humanity, and justice in government, as well as true republicanism, has been introduced and secured in the fundamental law." Mr. Kelly made public some inside facts not generally known, of the domestic affairs of the state of Kansas: "I want to say that the assistant attorney-general of the state of Kansas to-day is a woman, and she has entire control of the legal department of the state of Kansas, because the attorney-general of the state of Kansas, who, if present, would have that control, is absent from the state, and has been for some time, and in his absence the assistant attorney-general takes charge. Nobody ever complained that she, as a lawyer, did not conduct the legal part of that state properly. In fact, it is universally understood that the assistant attorney-general of the state of Kansas is a much better lawyer than the attorney-general himself. Women are occupying to-day, and have for years occupied public offices and have been eligible to office in that state. Many of them are county officers to-day—the county court clerks, registers of deeds, county superintendents of public instruction—and have been for years; and they make the best officers we have." In reply to Major Pickler's facetious question, "Has it unsexed them?" he said: "No sir! If such a thing were possible, I think it makes them better looking." The opposition came from men who referred to women as "females." The most irreligious of them expressed greatest fear for the consequences to the church should women be "forced into the political arena." One such valiantly defended St. Paul against what he called "the attack of one wing of this army." He saw, or thought he saw, an attack from the extreme radical side strike at the theories of eighteen centuries and hastened to interpose his shield. Another refused to yield his idealization of woman, and entered "a competitive combat to the death." The value of these sentiments is affected by the fact that the discussion ranged itself along strict party lines, yet it is true that good men are fearful for the consequences of universal suffrage at these very points. How shall we, its advocates, reassure them? By being most faithful to the faith, by being gentlest in judgment, tenderest in charity, readiest to recognize the good in men—by being the womanliest of women.

THE sessions of the remarkable Pan-American conference which came to an end in Washington last week were characterized by so little friction that their significance has hardly been realized. The representatives of independent nations have sat together for six months, for the avowed purpose of making wars and fightings to cease among them. Is not this the leaven of the mountain beatitude, working through the lump of two continents. Best of all, the call for this council of peace came from the strongest of them, a power so resourceful in men and money that it has been said no European nation could float a flag five years, should it attack an United States fort. This is the American magna charta, designed and we believe destined to abolish war, by substituting arbitration between the republics of the new world.

1. That the principle of conquest shall not, during the continuance of the treaty of arbitration, be recognized as admissible under American public law.

2. That all cessions of territory made during the continuance of the treaty of arbitration shall be void if made under threats of war or the presence of an armed force.

3. Any nation from which such cessions shall be exacted may demand that the validity of the cessions made shall be submitted to arbitration.

4. Any renunciation of the right of arbitration made under the conditions named in the second section shall be null and void. Those conditions are under threats of war or the presence of an armed force.

It received the approval of every delegation except that of Chili, which declined to vote. Mr. Whittier prophesies that it will prove one of the most important events in the history of the world. We say that Bismarck mapped the field of Soudan, and placed the German forces ten years before the battle was fought. History may accord higher statesmanship to the American Premier, who ten years ago laid plans for an International American Congress, and by persistent effort has brought it to pass. Whatever James G. Blaine has failed to do for prohibition, we gladly acknowledge this great and wise service in the cause of peace. Incidentally many other questions of common interest have been passed upon by this first conference of Celto-Saxon and Latin races. Uniformity in copyright laws, metric system, port dues, and customs and quarantine regulations were recommended; also the creation of an international bureau of statistics.

There was much enthusiasm for railroad connection between North and South America, and parties will at once set about the survey of the proposed continental road. An International bank will undoubtedly be established. It will be remembered that this Congress was not endowed with final authority to act upon the measures considered. It was an advisory council, authorized by the governments creating it, to consider, report upon, and make recommendations concerning certain mutually advantageous projects, which to be operative must be acted upon by the respective governments.

Contributed.

OPEN FURROWS.

BY JOSEPH COOK.

One field the wheeling world,
Vast furrows open lie;
Broadcast let seed be hurled
By us before we die.
Winds, East or West,
Let no tares fall;
Wide waft the best;
God winnow all.

Heaven hath a single sun,
All gates swing open wide;
All lands at last are one,
And seas no more divide.
In every zone,
Arise and shine;
Earth's only throne,
Our God, be thine.

In loyal bliss let earth
In God's face find its Sun;
Sole sovereignty in worth,
Delight in duty done;
God's pulses' beat,
Vast, loud, and long,
Constrains our feet,
As marching song.

On every desert, rain,
Make green earth's flintiest sands;
Above the land and main
Reveal Thy Piercéd Hands.
Thy Cross heaven wins:
Lift it on high;
And in his sins
Let no man die.

A CLOSET SKELETON FROM ALCOHOL.

BY T. D. CROTHERS, M. D.

Some years ago I was an expert witness in a noted murder trial. The prisoner was the son of a very prominent family, who had killed a companion while intoxicated, and made some blundering efforts to conceal the crime. The man who was murdered was a popular clerk, and had a large circle of friends; public sympathy was very pronounced against the murderer, and demanded his extreme punishment. Some of the ablest lawyers and medical experts were retained on both sides.

As the trial went on the medical witnesses became intensely interested, and grew more positive of the sanity and insanity of the prisoner. A very noted asylum superintendent led the party who believed the prisoner sane and responsible. On the other side an old-fashioned physician, and several young men were equally confident of the insanity and irresponsibility of the prisoner.

Their convictions deepened with each new turn of the testimony; what was called symptoms of disease and mental degeneration by one party, was called depravity and willfulness by the other. The disposition to drink spirits to excess in early life and violent temper displayed were considered a sign of mental disease by one side, and vice by the other. No one of a family of five, all younger, had ever shown such tastes or disposition, or had used spirits. Both parents were very temperate and very reputable people, and this, the eldest, had been the "Ishmaelite" of the family. The parents had treated him with great tenderness and forbearance. At times he had threatened them with violence when intoxicated, but they had overlooked it. He had been a terror to all his brothers and sisters, and to many in the neighborhood. He had gone about for days in the most sullen, savage mood, repelling every advance with violent language. Then he would become emotional and weep at every reference to his past conduct, and beg every one's forgiveness; the very next day he would be harsh and sullen again. These changing moods were associated with criminal cunning to take advantage of every circumstance to procure spirits and possess himself of anything that could minister to his diseased appetite and impulses. When the time came for the medical experts to go on the stand, a feeling of regret came over us that we should personally differ so widely; not that we had any doubts about our convictions, but that we were forced to come before the public, and be prevented by the opposing counsel from making our views and conclusions clear and rational. The unthinking public accepts this confusion of statements by opposing medical witnesses as evidence of venality, and giving evidence according to the fees paid. Scientific men always feel the injustice of misinterpretation of an honest difference of opinion.

We were seated in a private parlor at the hotel one evening, urging our various opinions with great earnestness, when the father of the prisoner was announced. He apologized for intruding, and with much emotion said that he wished to make a statement to us as physicians if he could have our full confidence and promise of secrecy. This was readily assented to. In a state of suppressed excitement, he said that he has been a hard drinker for some years before marriage. He became temperate up to the day of his wedding, when some friends gave a wine party, and both himself and wife became intoxicated, and continued so for two days. They went on a long journey and drank nearly every night for two weeks, when his wife became ill, and her life was despaired of. She finally recovered, and both of them solemnly pledged themselves never again to touch spirits. A few months later the first child was born, the prisoner. In infancy he was nursed by a professional nurse who drank beer freely. When a little child nothing would stop his irritability so quickly as a few drops of spirits. He grew up a drunkard from birth and had all the marks of half-intoxication at all times, whether drinking or not. His mind had failed steadily, and to them he only showed natural feelings when partially intoxicated; at other times he was without any sense of manhood. He appealed to us as physicians not to consider his son as responsible, no matter what the punishment might be. "I am more responsible and guilty than he is," he said in sobbing tones.

The father went away, and a long discussion followed. The medical experts for the state had received new light; the next day the counsel were astonished at the change and unanimous opinion of the state experts as to great doubt of the full sanity of the prisoner.

The witnesses for the defense went on the stand with such confidence, and testified so clearly, that no amount of cross-examination could destroy the good impression produced. The experts for the state could give no aid to counteract this view of disease and irresponsibility. The lawyers were astonished and finally concluded that the medical men had been influenced or bought up by the defense. The case ended in a verdict of manslaughter and the prisoner was sentenced to prison for life. A few months later the prisoner died, and his brain revealed extensive disease which had been going on for a long time.

Recently this old-fashioned physician and myself were associated in another case, and in conversation he related the following: "The man whom we defended had been from infancy an idiotic dement, with every symptom of partial intoxication. He reflected the exact state of his parents at the time he was given being; the intense sorrow and mortification led them to conceal this fact as far as possible. For over twenty years this young man was the terrible skeleton which haunted them continually. I early came into possession of this secret and helped the parents to conceal it. On the trial the testimony of the asylum physician was most to be dreaded. This physician was a man of firm theological convictions concerning vice, and dreaded all innovations or changes of theories. He also believed in heredity. The question was to put these facts of heredity in some form so they could be divested of all personality and in this way reach this physician. If his strong convictions of this prisoner's responsibility could be shaken the case would be won. So I arranged with the father to come in at the proper moment and make the statement of the origin of the prisoner's disorder, and plead that he could be sent to prison for life and not hung as a felon." Both parents are dead, and a family of great respectability bear their name, and the mystery of this criminal and the crime is buried. The skeleton which came into their home at the beginning remained to the very close of life. Many other homes are haunted in the same way by these poor alcoholic dements, who represent the sins of the parents, and whose passage through life is a night journey, dark and fitful.

LEGISLATION ON THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN THE COLONIES AND UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

BY ADA M. BITTENBENDER.

I.

The alcoholic liquor traffic was hoary with age before the birth of Christ. Its beginning is lost in antiquity, and with it the beginning of drunkenness and adoption of laws to enforce sobriety. Wine and malt liquors constituted the intoxicants of the nations until about the twelfth century, A. D., when the discovery of distillation added distilled spirits to the list. Judge Pitman says: "The first attempt of Government to deal with the traffic was as a matter of excise and of regulation. It was perceived that liquor afforded an easy object of taxation, and no one felt any scruple in subjecting it to such as would yield large revenue, while at the same time the most heedless saw that it was an exceptional traffic, liable to frightful results, and inviting the strictest surveillance." Before this, the traffic was as free as any other. This attempt of Government, many centuries ago, took the form of license.

The traffic, under written as well as unwritten law, had long been licensed in England at the time of the first successful English settlement in America, at Jamestown, in 1607. The license-system in the United States, from adoption of this law from the mother country, began with the beginning of the traffic here, which beginning, history indicates, closely followed if it were not contemporary with the settlement at Jamestown.

Two incongruous pieces of liquor legislation, but in harmony with both English statute law and ancient custom, one making a crime of that which is always the effect of the other, began at the beginning of colonial legislation and kept pace with each other throughout colonial life—namely, laws to punish drunkenness and those to promote and foster the domestic manufacture of intoxicating drinks. These incongruous parts made up the entire liquor legislation of the first legislative assembly ever convened by Anglo-Americans, that of Virginia in the summer of 1619. It is worthy of note that the first American Assembly, which convened more than a year before the arrival of the May-Flower with the Pilgrims, began legislation with prayer, of which record was made in these words: "Forasmuche as men's affairs doe little prosper where God's service is neglected, all the Burgesses tooke their places in the Quire (The sessions were held in a church.—Ed.) till a prayer was said by Mr. Bucke, the minister, that it would please God to guide and sanctifie all our proceedings to his own glory, and the good of this plantation." The enactments, being of especial historic value in the temperance movement now in progress, are given in full. The first against drunkenness, reads:

"Against drunkenness be it also decreed, that if any private person be found culpable thereof, for the first time he is to be reprooved privately by the minister; the second time publiquely; the thirde time to lye in boltes 12 howers in the House of the Provost Marshall, and to pay his fee; and if he still continue in that vice, to undergo suche severe punishment as the Governour and Counsell of Estate shall thinke fitt to be inflicted on him. But if any officer offende in this crime, the first time he shall receive a reproof from the Governour; the second time he shall openly be reprooved in the churche by the minister; and the thirde time he shall first be comitted and then degraded. Provided it be understood that the Gov'r hath always power to restore him, when he shall in his discretion thinke fitt."

The second of these enactments, making the planting of grape vines compulsory to encourage the wine industry—the London Company having sent in that year, "divers skilful viguerons with a store of vine plants of the best sort"—reads:

"Moreover, be it enacted by this present assembly, that every householder doe yearly plante and maintain ten vines, untill they have attained to the arte and experience of dressing a vineyard, either by their owne industry, or by the Instruction of some vigueron. And that upon what penalty the Governour and Counsell of Estate shall thinke fitt to impose upon the neglecters of this acte."

Hand in hand with the fostering of the wine industry went the fostering of malt and distilled liquors, one or more of these industries receiving special encouragement from the government in each of the several colonies.

The first license law enacted on American soil, so far as the old records extant show, was that of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, of July 2, 1633, which provided "That noe person shall sell either wine or stronge water, without leave of the Gov'r or Deputy Gov'r."

Its discrimination in favor of malt liquors, not requiring permission to sell beer, ale, etc., was probably due to the belief of their wholesome qualities which were not likely to be overcome by excessive use as were those of distilled liquors. This belief was very generally entertained during colonial days, and for fifty years after independence, notwithstanding the showing of history for centuries before directly to the contrary, especially the centuries preceding the discovery of distillation, when the drunkenness and crimes committed in drunken sprees, the recital of which fills so large a space in ancient records, were the results of the use of fermented drinks solely. Later laws of this colony included malt liquors in prohibiting sales without license, which was also the general rule in the other colonies. The second license law, that of New Plymouth Colony, enacted March 2, 1635, made similar discrimination, but, during the revision of laws the following year was amended to read,

"That none be suffered to retale wine, strong water or beere either within doores or without except in Inns or Victualling howses allowed. And that no beere be sold in any such place to exceed in price two pence the Winchester quart."

The provision regulating the price of beer was a common one in all of the colonies, and not only in regard to beer, but was often extended to other drinks, distilled as well as fermented, both of foreign and home make, the intent of law-makers, as shown in enactments, being to protect consumers against exorbitant charges through greediness of gain. Consumers were protected against adulterated liquors also. From a study of the laws one is led to believe that the daily use of alcoholic beverages was considered essential to happiness and good living by our colonial ancestors, excessive indulgence only being discountenanced. A law of Massachusetts, enacted in 1644, repealing one against selling to Indians, well illustrates this point. It reads:

"The court apprehending yt is not fit to deprive ye Indians of any lawfull comfort wch God aloweth to all men by ye use of wine, do ordr yt it shalbe lawfull for all such as are or shalbe alowed license to retaile wines to sell also to ye Indians so much as may be fit for their needfull use or refreshing."

But that the legal encouragement given to the supposed needful use often led to excessive indulgence—even to a high state of intoxication (defined by the New Plymouth Colony, in 1646, as "By drunkeness is understood a person that lispes or faulters in his speech by reason of overmuch drinke or that stagers in his goeing or that vomitts by reason of excessive drinking or cannot follow his calling"),—the colonial court records extant are witnesses, which furnish an instructive as well as interesting study. When penalties for drunkenness were left to the courts, the case in most of the colonies, the court records disclose what they were. For first offenses, a small fine was usually imposed. For second and subsequent offenses, a seat in the bilboes or stocks, or a whipping was frequently decreed, with or without fine, the severity of the punishment increasing with each repetition of the offense. Sometimes the offender was required to wear on his outside garment the letter "D" or the word Drunkard, and occasionally one was disfranchised. For the second recorded offense, a Massachusetts court, in 1634, "ordered that Robert Coles, for drunkenes by him committed att Rocksbury, shalbe disfranchised, weare aboute his necke, & soe to hange upon his outward garmt, a "D" made of redd cloath and sett upon white, to contynue this for a yeare." Soon following this case was that of Edward Seale, who, "for his beastly drunkennes was censured to bee set in the bilboes till the end of the court, & then to bee severely whiped." The fact that drunkenness continued to increase, notwithstanding the severity of penalties, which were expected to act as deterrents, is shown also in the preambles of laws passed from time to time to prevent the evil. One of the earliest, dated Nov. 20, 1637, only a little over four years after the enactment of the first license law, reads:

"WHEREAS, It hath appeared unto this court, upon many sad complaints, that much drunkenness, waste of the good creatures of God, mispence of precious time, and other disorders have frequently fallen out in the inns and common victualling houses within this jurisdiction, whereby God is much dishonored, the profession of religion reproached and the welfare of this commonwealth greatly impaired, and the true use of such houses (being the necessary relief of travellers) subverted."

The body of the law prohibited the sale in inns and victualling houses of intoxicants, light malt liquors excepted. In regard to this subversion, whereby these places were little more than "tipling houses," the complaint was common in the other colonies. Virginia, prefacing a law in 1676 with "WHEREAS, It is most apparently found that the many ordinaries in several parts of the country are very prejudiciall, and this assembly finde the same to be a generall grievance presented from most of the counties," enacted "that no ordinaries, ale houses, or other tipling houses whatsoever be kept in any part of the country except in James Citty, and at each side of York river at the two great ferries." The law was amended the next year to allow two ordinaries in each county. Merchants, public brewers, distillers, etc., beside victualers and innkeepers, were licensed to sell liquors, usually not to be drank on the premises where sold; but to Massachusetts, the home of the Pilgrims, belongs the credit of passing the first law for a liquor saloon, pure and simple, as well as the first license law, and that as early as 1639. The act reads:

"It is further ordered that every towne shall have liberty from time to time, to choose a fit man to sell wine, the same to be allowed by license. . . . . and that it shall be lawful for such person allowed to retaile wine, to let wine be drank in his house; provided, that if any person shall be made drunk in any such house, or any immoderate drinking suffered there, the master of the family shall pay for every such offense five pounds."

The penalty part was an admirable feature. The preamble of another law of the Pilgrims, helping to account for the growing evil of intemperance, well worthy of note, dated May 14, 1645, reads:

"WHEREAS, It is found, by too common & sad experience in all parts of ye colony, y't ye forcing of laborers & oth'r workman to take wine in pay for ye labor is a great nursery or preparative to drunkennes & unlawfull tipling, occasioning ye private meetings of profane persons, whereby youth is drawn aside to lewdnes, ye good creature of God notoriously abused, etc."

It was ordered that no one be "inforced or presed to take wine in pay for his labor." The practice of paying for labor in wine, and sometimes in other intoxicants, was common also in the other colonies.

The colonists early adopted the method of making the traffic a source of revenue through duty on liquors imported, excise on the domestic, and license fees. The duty was laid also to serve as protection for home products. Again using the colony of the Pilgrims to cite from in illustration, a law adopted May 14, 1645, "Ordered y't all wines wch shalbe brought into ye colony . . . . shall pay (by way of custome or imposition) ye four & twentieth part of ye true valewe of all such wine so brought. . . . . And it is further ordered y't all such as are or shalbe licensed to retaile wines (over & above ye imposition before mentioned to be paid on ye landing) shall pay for evry butt of wine, & so proportionable for every smaller vessell, ye twentieth part of ye valewe of such wine." Under a law enacted in 1638 to encourage distillation, distilled liquors made in the colony only were allowed to be sold, which accounts for this class of intoxicants not being included. Excise was soon after imposed on domestic liquors, and from time to time as the needs of government required, usually at less rates than those on imports to carry out the protective policy. The excise law of 1668 included ale, beer and cider. Cider, which was made by nearly every owner of an apple orchard, had been listed with intoxicants requiring license to sell, since about the middle of that century. A law exacting annual license fees, enacted in 1646, reads: "All licenst persons shall annually pay to ye common treasury, proportionably to ye place, where he lives, ye Gen'rall Corte running annually their licenses on such meete fines as they shall determine, etc." The act fixed the rates for the first year, requiring licensees of Boston, Charlestown and Salem to pay fifteen pounds per annum, of Cambridge, three pounds, etc. This method grew so rapidly in favor that ere the year 1700 had dawned, the traffic was furnishing the principal part of the revenue in most if not in all of the colonies; large consumption of these so-called "good creatures of God," being always a certainty. In fact, before the year 1700, the manufacture in the colonies of all kinds of intoxicants, under encouragement of government, had reached immense proportions. Those imported from colony to colony were subjected usually to the same tax as those hailing from transatlantic ports.

During the eighteenth century to the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, statutes relating to the liquor traffic continued to undergo frequent amendment, the desire being as hitherto to encourage and protect the domestic manufacture, guard consumers against exorbitant charges and adulterated liquors, curb drunkenness, prevent unlicensed sales and smuggling, and to secure revenue in accordance with the needs of government. The wording of the various laws shows that unlicensed sales and smuggling continued common practices, and that all attempts to curb drunkenness while nurturing its cause, were as unsuccessful then as now, as unsuccessful then as before during the centuries—always miserable failure.

Washington, D. C.

THE PULPIT AND THE PAR

JOEL SWARTZ, D.D.

It seems to be an unwritten law, yet as imperative and unalterable as if written in tables of stone, that the Christian pulpit is never to discuss partisan politics. This law has been enacted by the legislature of public opinion, and is as tacitly and obediently accepted by the minister of the Word as if affirmed by a "Thus saith the Lord." And yet a text of this import, with such high sanction, is nowhere to be found. What is the basis upon which this demand is so imperatively made and so unquestioningly accepted by the pulpit? These two are the postulates:

1. Partisan politics is not the gospel, and the minister must preach the gospel. "Thereunto he is sent."

2. The people are divided on partisan politics. The very term implies that. If he shall discuss their divisions he must expect to engender strifes, and "the servant of the Lord must not strive."

Additional to these two reasons another is given, not in the nature of a principle, but of pleasure, viz.: "We, the people, are vexed with politics all the week, and want Sunday for rest. We do not go to hear a sermon for agitation, but for quiet."

Is there not here a mixture of truth and error—a peace, peace, where there is no peace? The true part is, as assumed, (1) that the minister is a preacher of righteousness, of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and not a secular orator, discussing questions of mere temporal and material interest; (2) that the preacher is a messenger of peace and good-will to all men, and not a strife-engendering polemic, doting about questions which edify not. These things are well understood, and the law, written and unwritten, which defines and exacts them, is accepted and duly reverenced.

But this law has its limitations and like other law is good, "if a man use it lawfully." But suppose a law of God is made a party question, how then? Suppose on the question of Mormon polygamy the legalization of the Louisiana lottery, the observance of the civil Sabbath, the licensing of prostitution, of the saloon, men were to array themselves into two political parties, and staking their fortunes and lives on the success or failure of the issues thus raised, is the pulpit doomed to silence on these questions, because, forsooth, they have become partisan? Suppose, further, it were to become a party question as to whether the pulpit itself ought not to be suppressed. On the theory that the pulpit is to remain absolutely non-partisan, it would be denied the poor right of pleading, even for its own existence. Surely such a theory of non-partisanship must be absurd. If this extreme cannot be allowed, where is the limit?

During the amendment campaign in Pennsylvania we learned from a number of clergymen the doctrine that "the pulpit has nothing to do with questions of mere morality." This profound and original teaching was much insisted upon in a document circulated by the Liquor League as being the word of an eminent preacher, and thus put forth, it was promptly accepted by many clergymen, some of them in high repute for learning and eloquence. If this is so, then, of course, it follows that in the cases supposed above the pulpit must remain silent. Are we then to accept the inevitable conclusion that the gospel has nothing to do with morality, and that to believe and obey it men need have no concern for their morals? That is antinomianism with a vengeance. Society and the church could afford to let such pulpits remain silent on all questions.

It is all folly to suppose that the pulpit is to be bounded and fettered by such varying and artificial limitations as those of political partisanship. The true limit is fixed by the eternal principles of right and wrong, of sin and righteousness, of truth and falsehood. And he who does not know that sin is sin under a political cloak as well as in the devil himself, is not well versed in the ethics of the Word. And he who for prudential or personal reasons will not denounce it in the one case as in the other, is wanting in the highest moral courage. It is about time we were done with the namby-pamby sentimentalism that the pulpit must be non-partisan in every case and under all circumstances.

Non-sectarianism and non-partisanship are, at this time, popular catch-words, and are like charity only in one respect, that they cover a multitude of sins.

Gettysburg, Pa.

THE ELEMENT OF TIME IN THE RIPENING OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

BY REV. H. A. DELANO.

If I could look a thousand years ahead, nay, if I could project myself a thousand years onward, with the knowledge, experience and consciousness of the men who may then be living, could I better know, than now, what is right to do about the saloon question?

Thousands of years ago God said, "Woe unto him that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips, that maketh him drunken also."

God told men what is the final evolution of the curse of drink, working in the human system. At last it stingeth like an adder, biteth like a serpent." "Woe," "redness of eyes," "wounds," "sorrow," "contention," etc., were the inevitable sequence of "tarrying long at wine."

How is it to-day? The morning papers are full, crowded, even, with the riotous, demoralizing, murderous, deadly doings of drink.

Three thousand years, then, alcohol has been on trial. It has had uniformity of effect from the days of Noah, until the days of Daniel Webster, Edgar A. Poe, or the young men who were so recently made drunken by the liquors imbibed at the brilliant Shoreham Hotel in Washington.

But, "Public Sentiment!"—I put a capital there, because I must recognize that "Public Sentiment" is king; when "Public Sentiment" is ready, doubtless something, impersonable, imponderable—because the old parties have no scales upon which to weigh it; intangible—because they cannot (?) grasp it—that something will speak. Forsooth, when? "When ready." How is it to be gotten ready? By "license"? The "restrictive licensing" of woe, redness of eyes, wounds, Cronin murders, wife beating, shooting and stabbing, will "educate public sentiment;" will it? Oh, tempora! Public sentiment needs another thousand of years, does it?

Pliny could not have talked at all intelligently with Huxley about biology. But they could discuss the damnable effects of drink, and there would be not one note, or "lost chord" missing, in all the doleful music; they would understand each other perfectly. Cæsar and U. S. Grant, if living, would surprise each other greatly, as they might talk of military science; Grant would have such new and wonderful things to tell Cæsar! But as to the influence of strong drink upon the human system they could talk intelligently. Both would confess to having seen it.

There is nothing new along this line since the days of Noah, only a perpetual and continued revelation of badness, wide as misery and deep as hell. If I could be living and thinking in the year 2890, and the saloon, floated away down there with me, licensed or unlicensed, I should probably think of it as I do to-day. I see the effect of alcohol in the last 3,000 years, and that is enough for me. I have no desire to regulate it, but to prohibit it; the saloon will never be reformed. When it goes it will be dead.

Correspondence.

STATE AID FOR INVALIDS AND OTHERS NEEDING HELP.

To the Women of the World's W. C. T. U.:

The last word is never spoken. The wittiest invention has never been found out. The very best plan of work remains untried. When we think we have boxed the compass, behold we must set at work anew and on a broader scale. It is most refreshing to find how many women of many minds busy themselves in these days with methods for the amelioration of humanity, and how they all correlate more or less clearly with that mighty temperance reform, "whose leaves are for the healing of the nations," and the antidote for the Upas leaves of the liquor power that drip nothing but death. A letter has recently come to me from that distinguished woman scientist, Grace Anna Lewis, of Media, Pa. Her lines of study have led her to know much about forestry, and the specialists engaged in that most beneficent investigation out of which has grown intelligent planning to save the forests of the nation from vandalism and greed. The forests protect the water-courses and alone make them possible; the water-courses carry health to every shore. But what is the relation between forestry and homes for invalids, which latter are the institutions to the founding of which Miss Lewis is devoted. Let her straightforward pen rehearse the story:

In June of the year 1888 my cousin, Mrs. Esther J. K. Trimble Lippincott, entered the home "not made with hands." She had struggled long and arduously, had succeeded in publishing two highly approved works of literature, and left behind her unpublished manuscript of great value; but beyond her devotion to books, she was a most womanly woman, and felt herself consecrated to efforts which should bless mankind. In the temperance cause, in the work for social purity, and in every good endeavor, she lighted up the circle of her horizon with a self-luminous glow which did not pale with illness, and could not be extinguished when her sphere broadened to eternity. Through great poverty and toil she did her work, but much as she was restricted in her pecuniary means she never could bring herself to use a small sum left her by her dead mother, only twenty dollars in gold, that was saved from time to time by this fond mother for her only child. A short time before the departure of Mrs. Lippincott she told us of this treasured sum, and asked that it be devoted toward the founding of hospitals for invalids, more especially for those suffering from afflictions of the lungs. She desired that it might be offered to Mrs. E. S. Turner, founder of the Woman's Guild, an extraordinarily useful association of between eight and nine hundred working women of Philadelphia, and also of the noble charities of the children's week, and the children's aid societies of Philadelphia. My cousin appointed me her executrix, and I, of course, felt bound to carry forward her intentions, independently of my own interest in the matter. Mrs. Turner and myself both concluded that it would be better to allow the purpose to mature in our own minds, and to take practicable shape, before giving it any due publicity. Hence it has never been alluded to in any public paper in connection with my cousin. We have not, however, been idle. I have done all I could by private correspondence especially with the Forestry Commissioners of the different states, and at the meeting of the American Forestry Congress in Philadelphia, in October last, I expressed the hope that in every state in connection with lands reserved for forestry purposes homes for invalids might be established, both by the state and the nation. My paper was heard by representatives of the forestry movement from a number of the states and also from Canada, and was cordially welcomed, showing that the idea met a general want.

Government land, preserved for the sake of securing a permanent water supply, and forestry schools, experiment stations and public parks, should also include sanitariums for the healing of the nation. The value of pine forests in the near vicinity of homes for invalids would seem to be almost undisputed. In the course of my investigations I have learned a great many desirable situations for such homes. For the summer in the Northern states, and for the winter in the mountains of North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama, also along the central water-shed of Florida, and many portions of California, and sheltered regions of Colorado. The pine regions of New Jersey are also mentioned. In fact, I have come to believe that almost any place of moderately equable temperature, with pure air, pure water, good food, healthful and pleasant surroundings, would furnish a good locality for invalids. When I visited one of our lady physicians of Media and told her of the wish expressed by my cousin, she replied, "It is a crying shame! The home on Chestnut Hill is the only place near Philadelphia where consumptive patients without homes of their own can find a place to die in. Her thought was an inspiration, and it must be carried out." For myself, I recognize the fact that the Lord works through human agencies, and that we should be reasonably sure of our helpers.

However desirable it may be that homes for invalids should be provided in connection with lands set apart by the government for forestry purposes, we cannot expect them until the people demand them. The people will not ask for them until they are educated to do so. Intermediately, workers are needed, and these must come from the ranks of the missionary. Homes must be established to prove their value. Who shall do the work, who will be the builders, and who the promoters of the state and nation? Surely the World's W. C. T. U. could move the world in this direction. There are souls veiled from our sight, but potent for this great endeavor. Will not the President of the society act as the hand upon the rocking stone to set in motion this new form of Christian work?

The plan of Miss Lewis seems to me to be entirely practicable, and fits in well with plans of which I have often written and spoken, concerning industrial homes for all kinds of incapables. The point is that all the people are taxed, and immense funds accumulate in public treasuries, to become the temptation of spoilsmen, when, if the people knew their power, and would, through their representatives, demand the setting apart of public lands and public moneys for purposes helpful to themselves, this great change could be brought about within a generation. The W. C. T. U. is the only organization of women that is thoroughly planted in all English speaking nations. Three-fourths of disabled ones of all lands are the sedimentary deposit of the liquor power, its product, its inevitable outcome. Now while we would not suggest that our societies expend a great amount of force in this direction, we believe that in each state there should be a superintendent of efforts to secure appropriations along the line of industrial homes for invalids and for incapables of every kind, not as yet provided for. One consecrated, tactful, and enterprising woman in each state, going before the legislature, backed up by a petition not so voluminous as to require a great deal of work, could secure such an appropriation. The effort might not be successful at first, but the attack could be renewed in later years with the added force of successes elsewhere attained. New Hampshire has, through the efforts of Mrs. Knox, president of the W. C. T. U. and her coadjutors, secured from the legislature the money to build a "Home of Mercy" for degraded women, where they may be rehabilitated for a reputable life. This institution has already become a favorite with the people, who see how earnest and efficient is its work. Miss Lewis' idea of invalid homes in connection with the forestry reform (for it is nothing less than a true and vital reform), strikes me most favorably. Will not our women everywhere give careful heed to these suggestions? They may be fruitful seeds to which the quick and intent brain of the white-ribboner shall afford the open furrow. May this be so "for God and Home and Humanity" is the prayer of

Your sister and friend,

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—From the Atlantic to the Pacific the press has heralded the "unlawful proceedings" of the women crusaders in Missouri, and the unanimous decision is condemnation.

All the great dailies, all the little dailies—all the weeklies, Republican and Democratic, unite with one accord in shouting from valley and mountain top that the "majesty of the law must be upheld."

Below will be found a fair example of their comments:

LAW MUST BE UPHELD.

The crusaders of Spickardsville, Mo., who demolished a number of saloons because a boy was found drunk in one of them, were found guilty by a jury, and each woman fined $5 and costs in each case. It is an astonishing fact that ladies of the W. C. T. U. should openly and notoriously become law-breakers and violate an almost universal law of the rights of property. They call themselves Christians, as well as temperance advocates. All good citizens must approve the finding of the jury, unpleasant though the duty must have been, to thus convict respectable women of crime. Law must always be upheld.—Cincinnati Post.

"The law must be upheld," cry these virtuous journals. For months and years the most flagrant violations of the local option law have prevailed all over Missouri, yet who has heard a protest from these patriotic, law-abiding papers?

Liquor dealers must have protection for their property, even when they are in open, continued defiance of law, as in these Missouri towns, but where is the press that will cry aloud for the protection of woman's property in her own son—in her own flesh and blood?

In dozens of counties, in scores of towns under local option in Missouri, this violation of law has gone on with the knowledge and consent of the officers. Little boys of ten and upwards have been drunk on the streets, and not an official finger has been turned to ferret out these worse than cannibals, who would make profit from rosy-cheeked childhood. Why have not these journals demanded the maintenance of law? But now that a few women, grown desperate over the wrongs for which there was no redress from municipal officers, jury, judge or court, have destroyed the liquors which were sold contrary to law, the press has girded its loins to vindicate and maintain the majesty of the law.

Hesitates the father one moment to strike down the ravisher of his daughter? Does he withhold his hand from murder to protect his property from the skulking burglar? Yet neither of these crimes so justly punished is more absolutely criminal than the sale of liquors to boys in Lathrop and Spickardsville, Mo. A crime before which strong men stood cowed and helpless, waiting for woman, voiceless and ballotless, to strike the desperate blow for life—and that which is dearer to every mother heart than life—her child.

In colonial days, Great Britain had a legal right to send tea to our shores. What wanton destruction of property took place in the Boston harbor! There were plenty of journals then that cried out "The law must be upheld." What law? The law of truth and justice—or the law of tyrants? When Congress passed the Fugitive Slave Law which thousands disobeyed because of a "Higher Law," time-serving journals shouted for obedience to law, the same as now. Give woman a voice and vote in choosing the officers to uphold the law, and there could be no excuse—no justification for the Missouri crusades.

CLARA C. HOFFMAN.

EXCELLENCIES AND DEFECTS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—The above theme was selected, some months since, by the Religious Press Club of New York City (since enlarged into the Quill Club), as the theme for an after-dinner discussion. Very properly they called in a doctor of divinity from outside to diagnose their case and prescribe remedies. He spent his allotted time on their first topic, and merely remarked in closing that every editor knew his "defects," as if he was not still more familiar with his "excellencies," every editor being granted by the public "plenary indulgence" for publishing his own praises. It was as if a doctor, called in for an important consultation, had elaborately informed his patient wherein he was sound, and then told him that of course he knew all about his sicknesses and the remedies. The same subject is assigned for the next meeting of the Presbyterian Social Union of New York City, and as the patients themselves, in this case, are to be the doctors—the announced speakers being exclusively editors—the outcome is likely to be the same as before, "Here's to ourselves; who's like us?"

The subject is worthy of a wider discussion, to which the writer wishes, in this note, to contribute, by way of suggestion rather than criticism, a single point on which comparison of views might be useful.

Should not religious papers give a more sustained support to the great moral reforms that are the children of religion, fighting their battles as her own?

I do not here raise any question as to the space given to moral questions in religious papers, or the number of articles. Some religious papers could make a good showing on both these points. The question I raise for the consideration of religious editors is, whether they should not all wage as sustained a warfare against lotteries, for instance, now that the attention of the country is called to them by pending legislation at Washington, as some of them have recently waged against certain articles in the Westminster Confession. The New York Times dislodged the Tweed ring from their seeming Gibraltar, not by one editorial, but by a systematic warfare day after day until the surrender was secured. The New York Herald has recently entered upon a similar bombardment of the abuses in Ludlow Street Jail, the aristocratic prison of New York City. Such a persistent warfare has been waged by the News of Chicago, the News of Denver and the Times-Star of Cincinnati, against Sunday saloons. Why should not the great religious weeklies apply the same wise tactics of persistency and concentration to some great moral reform, and by a union of forces, if not singly, fight it through to victory? There are a dozen religious weeklies that could, if they would, exterminate the Louisiana national robber and prolific mother of robbers that is invading state after state of the fifteen whose constitutions do not bar him out.

Other reforms also need such sustained fighting by the religious papers, which should be their "old guard," not merely their supporting allies. The Sunday Rest Law for the capital and the larger one for all under the jurisdiction of Congress, could be carried to victory by the religious press, if, instead of random shots they should campaign on this line.

The fight with mighty evils in this country seems to many of us an unfinished Waterloo. Reinforcements from the religious press must come, or "night."

New York City. WILBUR F. CRAFTS.

Our Book Table.

THE LAW OF HUSBAND AND WIFE, by Lelia Josephine Robinson, L.L. B. Published by Lee & Shepard, Boston.

Miss Robinson is well known to our readers through her valuable treatise, "Law Made Easy." This smaller book will meet a warm welcome, as it gives in compact form, valuable information, which, outside its covers, must be searched for through hundreds of volumes. Its introductory chapters give the common law principles governing the mutual rights of husband and wife, the respective claims of each on the property of the other during the continuance of the marriage relation and after its termination by death or otherwise, the ability or disability of married women to make contracts, enter into business partnerships, either with their husbands or with other parties, the right of administration, the custody of children and other topics connected with the legal relations of husband and wife. The last half of the book is occupied with abstracts of statutes in all the states and territories, on the wife's legal status, the claims of the widow and widower on property and divorce. The book is appropriately dedicated to the Portia Club, of Boston.

INTERLINEAR GREEK-ENGLISH GOSPEL OF LUKE, with emphatic translation, copious notes and referenecs. Printed from the plates of the "Emphatic Diaglot," by B. Wilson. Published by Albert & Scott, Chicago. Price, paper, twenty-five cents.

This little book is designed especially as a help in studying the Sunday-school lessons of 1890, but all Bible students will find it opening up to them new lines of thought. Each page contains, in parallel columns, the Greek text and the English translation; under each Greek word—and this gives the title "Interlinear"—is its literal translation, which often throws a flood of light upon the passage. Copious notes and references are given at the bottom of each page, aiding greatly to elucidating the text. All these things make the book valuable to every careful student, giving as they do to those who read nothing but English, much of the advantage which a knowledge of Greek bestows in reading the New Testament.

George J. Manson, through Fowler & Wells, New York, sends us a very practical book for boys, "READY FOR BUSINESS, or, CHOOSING AN OCCUPATION." It disclaims any design of telling how to gain success in life, but does give such an inside view of various trades and professions as will help a lad to make his selection from them, or afford more light on the one he has, in his heart, already chosen. The occupations described are those of an electric engineer, an architect, a commercial traveler, a banker and broker, a house-builder, a retail dry goods merchant, a boat builder, a sea captain, a practical chemist, a journalist, a retail druggist and members of the learned professions. The book is well written, its style being such as cannot fail to interest an intelligent boy, and its information thoroughly reliable, the facts in regard to each calling having been obtained in personal interviews with prominent and trustworthy persons engaged in it. Most of the chapters appeared first as papers in St. Nicholas, which is a guarantee for their value.

DEAR OLD STORY TELLERS, by Oscar Fay Adams, is a "dear old book," though it has just issued from the teeming press of the Lothrop's, Boston. It is pervaded by the delicious aroma which makes the dear old stories so charming, and keeps their tellers alive in the children's hearts forever. Mr. Adams does not simply "introduce" us to these delightful authors, he brings them right into our hearts and makes us feel as though we had known them forever. As one critic has justly said: "For the children to read the book, is to sit by turns on each dear old story-teller's knee, to feel his fondling arms around them, to clinch their chubby hands behind his neck, to rest their curly heads upon his shoulder, with their upgazing eyes to see mirrored in his their own wondering, delighted selves. For the older people, it is to imagine themselves story-loving children again, at the same time that they cannot fail to catch what escapes the credulous child—sly twinkles in the story-teller's eyes, merry twitchings at the corners of his mouth, slight shruggings of his shoulders." Dear Mother Goose, immortalized by her son-in-law when he meant to stop her singing by holding up her songs for the world to ridicule. Æsop, the slave, who has made the world laugh, Charles Perrault, who wrote "Little Red Riding-hood," "Puss in Boots," and "Cinderella," though few of us knew it; La Fontaine "the Good," the brothers Grimm, whose three volumes of household tales, "Kinder und Hausmärchen," made them dear to the heart of every German child; Daniel Defoe and Hans Christian Andersen are among the dear old story tellers of this charming book. Price, $1.

COUNSEL TO PARENTS AND HOW TO SAVE THE BABY, by I. D. Johnson, M.D., Kennett Square, Philadelphia.

This book dwells much more on the first part of its title than on the last, being almost exclusively devoted to the duties of parents to themselves and each other, for the sake of the baby.

THE FOE OF THE HOUSEHOLD, OR SCENES IN TEMPERANCE SKETCHES, by Margaret J. Magennis, published by McDonald, Gill & Co., 36 Bromfield st., Boston. Price, 60 cents.

This volume is made up of incidents gathered from long experience of its author as a newspaper reporter, and, more recently, as the Suffolk County Superintendent of W. C. T. U. work in prisons and almshouses. Many of these sketches are of thrilling interest, and all bear the stamp of truth. In her introduction, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore says of the author of this book: "Throbbing with a love for all that is human, sympathizing with every form of suffering, and actively interested in the great reform which seeks the release of society from the thralldom of the drink traffic, the sealed book of struggling human life is open to her. She reads histories of which others have not the key. She watches the progress of real dramas in which not always does 'the right come uppermost,' and justice win the day. For a long time she has been in the habit of writing the results of her observations for the daily press, which have stirred the hearts of many a reader and have sometimes brought help to those sorely in need. As these sketches accumulated, her friends advised their collection and publication in book form." This is the origin of the book before us.

FOOTPRINTS OF CHRIST, by Rev. William M. Campbell. Published by Funk & Wagnalls, New York. Price $1.50.

This is a new and strikingly original treatise on the inexhaustible theme. The author says that his desire is to direct special attention to some of the imitable characteristics of Christ. In this he is certainly successful as he portrays Christ's boyhood, his honoring of God's ordinances, his promptness in doing good, his obedience, his zeal according to knowledge, his tact, his prayerfulness, his self-forgetfulness, his submission to the divine will. The book bears this characteristic dedication: "As the one to whom I am most indebted for a realistic view of the Christ character, I inscribe this volume to my wife."

THE LAMARKS, OR MARRIAGEABLE WOMEN. Published by Robert Clark & Co., Cincinnati. Paper, price fifty cents.

The outward appearance of this book, and its second name are against it, giving it the appearance of a third rate novel, but a delightful surprise awaits those who read it. It is one of the freshest, sweetest, purest stories imaginable. It is told in letters between three English sisters whose devoted and self-sacrificing love, each for the other, is the beautiful groundwork of the charming story. Lovers there are, but they are plainly secondary. The sweet, simple, vacillating Violet serves to throw out in bright relief the strong, symmetrical character of the Lamark sisters. The story ends with quadruple chimes of wedding bells and a halo of happiness encircling four new homes. The title page bears no author's name; a little bird whispers that a W. C. T. U. worker is its author; its whole spirit bespeaks her a Daughter of the King.

The Harpers send out a revised edition of DR. KELLOGG'S PHYSIOLOGY, which we have before noticed. Its author's name makes it safe to trust its temperance teaching. The multiplication of such books is not only strong testimony to the efficiency of work done by the department of Scientific Temperance Instruction, but an omen of good to all the children in the land.

"FRUITS AND HOW TO USE THEM," a practical manual for housekeepers, containing nearly seven hundred recipes for the wholesome preparation of foreign and domestic fruits, by Mrs. Hester M. Poole, published by Fowler & Wells, New York City. The readers of THE UNION SIGNAL are acquainted with the writings of Mrs. Poole, who is an acknowledged authority in hygiene. There is no more encouraging sign of progress for our people than the immensely increased circulation of fruit, and its low prices. An international treaty of peace could hardly do so much to bring about peace as the eating of less meat and more fruit; for "every man has lain on his trencher," as the Anglo-Saxons said, and as a man eateth so is he to a great degree. The mighty rivers and sluice-ways of the blood have in them purity or pollution largely according to the materials that come to them along the highway of the œsophagus. The power and potency of a calm, well-ordered life is largely in the food, and it is pitiable beyond all language, that people deliberately make themselves ill-natured as well as ill, dyspeptic in soul because they are so in body, when our Heavenly Father has put to our lips the sweet, nutritious cooling potion of a thousand varied fruits. In saying this there is no intention of giving away the question of character to the materialists, for we all believe that the grace of God can lift a man even above the effects of an evil diet, but that grace is mightily helped in its renovation of character when aided and abetted by a natural, might not one say with reverence, a Christian way of eating. Would that this book were in the hands of every housekeeper, and that the gracious bill of fare it indicates might replace pork, pastries, and gravies on every table.

Pundita Ramabai has sent to the Headquarters of the National W. C. T. U. the most cabalistic looking little book that has ever come under our notice. It has a plain, lavender colored cover of cloth, with not a word on the outside. It has a title page that looks very much like the tracings of Jack Frost on the window pane when he is in an extra orderly frame of mind, and in the midst of all that cabalistic material there is a magnificent wide-winged American eagle. Then follows a dedication, doubtless. We pass along over a wide area of what might be Greek, Hebrew or Sanscrit, according to the fancy of the reader, and come upon a magnificent American flag and another eagle. We luxuriate in this oasis for a season, then travel onward over one or two hundred pages of the aggregate symbols of the average druggist, at least it may as well be that for all we can testify to the contrary, and come upon a full-fledged antitype of the President of the National W. C. T. U., wherein is not only the white ribbon, but the water lily, the emblem of the World's White Ribbon society. We take it that her name figures beneath the picture. Going along over a hundred pages or so, we come upon a good plain English composition entitled, "Prohibition in Kansas," wherein it is proved that prohibition prohibits among the 1,700.000 people that rejoice in having that redeemed Commonwealth as their home. A couple of hundred pages, perhaps, follow, of which the less said by us the better, so far as illumination goes. We conclude that, take it by and large, this is that heroic young woman's Pundita Ramabai's, travels in America, and returning to the title page we see in her clear English hand, "To my beloved sisters with best love, and all good wishes for the New Year, from Ramabai, Bombay, December 25, 1889." We know that this book, which we are not wise enough to read, is saturated in every one of its crooked little types with righteousness, temperance and a judgment to come. We know that it will etch upon the intricate brains of those Hindoo people the revelation of a Republic wherein women and temperance are at the fore.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

Dear white-ribbon sister, brother, boy or girl: Have you a Temple mite-box on your table? If not, write to Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, 145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, inclosing a two-cent stamp, and it will be promptly sent you on condition that you will drop into it a cent a day, or its equivalent, during the next twelve months. Mite-boxes in quantities will also be sent to unions for the cost of transportation.

* * *

We wonder if the time will ever come when men generally will be willing to credit to woman (when it trenches upon what they consider their domain) what is honestly her due? A case in point has just come to light. It is in regard to the $600,000 subscribed by capitalists to build the Temperance Temple. A leading Chicago real estate paper in its issue of March 29, announces the speedy erection of the Temple, and says, "There is no farther doubt in regard to its success. The lease will run to a corporation composed of some of the strongest citizens of Chicago;" and adds, "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union does not now control the enterprise and may never control it." This is said in the face of the fact that the President of the corporation is the same woman that started the enterprise. The lease is made out to the W. C. T. U. and signed by her. The stock is subscribed according to the by-laws of the company when it was first formed three years ago, viz.: "For the purpose of erecting National Headquarters for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union." The stockholders are to receive five per cent per annum on their investment—the balance of profit is to go towards liquidating the stock, so that it may be entirely owned by the W. C. T. U. The stockholders cannot hold their stock longer than five years if the W. C. T. U. have sufficient money to buy it by that time. The by-laws, however, grant twelve years if necessary for this purpose. The whole enterprise has been managed by the President, all the stock has been placed by her, and the board of directors, with one exception, are men of her own choosing. If it is not managed by the W. C. T. U., we do not know what is. At present the W. C. T. U. are owners of stock only to the extent of $30,000. They might hold over $100,000 if the unions and friends of the enterprise could pay at once what they have pledged. We beg all friends to make a strenuous effort to do this.

* * *

Some of our unions deserve great credit for the manner in which they have taken up the work of the Temple. The Boston, Mass., W. C. T. U. through Mrs. L. E. Mackenzie sends a check for $50, and promises another $50 soon. Accompanying this was a list of one hundred and eleven names, the autographs of the members of the union, to be placed under the corner-stone of the Temple. This is the largest list that has yet been sent in. Mrs. I. W. Hayden sends $15 on behalf of the East Cleveland, Ohio, W. C. T. U. Mrs. C. E. Smith sends check for $16 from the Marengo, Ill., W. C. T. U. Mrs. Estelle Reeves of East Palmyra, N. Y., sends a check for $29.70, the proceeds, she says, of a mite-box social. These unions are all at work to raise $100 each. The Moline, Ill., W. C. T. U. are also striving to raise $100. They have sent a check for $17.50, the result of a mite-box opening. Mrs. I. A. Hollenshe of Adams, Ind., sends a check for $9.35, to be credited to Decatur county W. C. T. U. This county is determined to have its name engraved in Willard Hall; the above amount is the first installment on their $100 pledge. Mrs. H. writes: "We do not believe a grander idea has taken possession of the minds and hearts of the people since the days of Solomon than this one that has taken possession of the mother heart of our sisters to build this magnificent Temple to the honor and glory of God."

* * *

Mrs. Wm. Hagedon sends a check for $30.43 for the Meriden, Conn., W. C. T. U., the contents of mite-boxes. A check has been received for $25, as an Easter offering from a white-ribboner who does not desire her name to appear; she wants the money credited to the Cooptown, Md., W. C. T. U. Another gift of $13 has come from the Dansville, N. Y., W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Albert Pease is determined that this union shall raise its $100. Mrs. E. H. May sends $8.78 from a mite-box opening of the W. C. T. U. of Clio, Mich. She says: "We are glad to put in a little timber into the great Temple." The Jamestown, N. Y., W. C. T. U. sends $5, with names of members. Mrs. A. Oakes, superintendent Temple work for Worcester, Mass., W. C. T. U., sends $22.75, making $75 in all that has been sent by this union. Mrs. Oakes promises to send $25 more before the corner-stone of the Temple is laid.

* * *

I wish we had a few more unions like the Shabbona, Ill., W. C. T. U., and an army of such superintendents of Temple work as Mrs. I. D. Carman. How rapidly the money would roll in, and how quickly the W. C. T. U. would own the entire capital stock of the Temple! Shabbona is only a hamlet, but there is a loyal band of white-ribboners there. They began less than a year ago to raise $100 for the Temple; they have now sent in a check for $34; this with $66 formerly paid, completes their gift.

* * *

Our faithful friend, Jane E. Weeden, sends in $72.15, raised from Baby Bands and personal donations in Illinois and Wisconsin. Mrs. J. E. Sutton, Washington, D. C., is an invalid, not possessed of much of this world's goods; she is most anxious to give something to the Temple, and has forwarded for sale two pairs of knitted reins, 60 cents each; two knitted balls, 25 cents each; two tea-pot holders, exceedingly handsome, 85 cents and $1 each; in fact all she has sent is very choice and beautiful. Mrs. L. A. Nash, of Corvallis, Ore., sends two beautiful little paintings of Mount Hood, Ore., seen from the Columbia river in the pink glow of sunrise. She offers them for $5 each.

145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill

Our Children.

THE FOX AND THE RABBIT.

BY PHILIP BURROUGHS STRONG.

"I swear," said a Fox to a Rabbit one day
('Tis a story they often relate in the South),
"You shall be, Mr. Rabbit, ere sunset my prey!"
And he threatened him fiercely with wide-open mouth.

The Rabbit set off at the top of his speed,
Resolving by flight to get out of the scrape;
But, hotly pursued, soon discovered the need
Of adopting a trick to effect his escape.

So he ran to a well-curb which chanced to be nigh,
A windlass that two spacious buckets possessed,
And leaping in one (both were empty and dry)
Very quick at the bottom found safety and rest.

As one of the buckets thus suddenly fell
The other and lighter rose equally fast;
And when Reynard arrived at the top of the well
He thought to himself, "I have got you at last!"

"My friend, why didn't you take them both with you?"
Said the Fox, as he bowed to the one that now swung
So high and inviting; "this nonsense we'll end;"
And into the bucket exulting he sprung.

You see his mistake; for his heavier weight
To the surface the Rabbit full speedily drew,
Who said while ascending, "Life's changes are great;
Now up and now down! Mr. Reynard, adieu!"

Then off hopped the Rabbit, and lived, I suppose,
Esteemed by his friends, to a happy old age;
While the Fox, when the day came at last to a close,
Was caught by a farmer and put in a cage.

Now all of this proves what has often been said
Of the slips that occur 'twixt the lip and the cup;
So if up do not boast—there are hazards ahead;
If down—don't lose courage, you soon may be up.

—Exchange.

COLONEL BAIN'S "HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT."

What makes drunkards? Strong drink. Who sells the drink? The saloon keeper. What created the saloon? The law. Who makes the laws? The legislator. Who makes the legislator? The people. It is the house Jack built, only I do not say it now as when a boy. I say now:

Intemperance is the fire the Devil built.

Strong drink is the fuel,
That feeds the fire the Devil built.

Breweries and distilleries are the axes,
That cut the fuel,
That feeds the fire the Devil built.

Saloons and beer-gardens are the stones,
That whet the axes,
That cut the fuel,
That feeds the fire the Devil built.

License laws are the molds,
That cast the axes and shape the stones,
That whet the edges,
That cut the fuel,
That feeds the fire the Devil built.

Political parties are the patentees,
Who patented the molds,
Cast the axes and shaped the stones,
That whet the edges,
That cut the fuel,
That feeds the fire the Devil built.

And Prohibition party ballots are the sledge-hammers,
Destined to destroy the molds,
Break the axes,
Smash the stones,
That whet the edges,
That cut the fuel,
That feeds the fire the Devil built. —Phalanx.

THE POINT OF DIFFERENCE.

BY MARGARET EMMA DITTO.

Up among the Vermont hills live two children who do not like to get up early. So their mother said one day, "I will give you a cent apiece every morning you are down promptly to breakfast."

It was queer how that cent cleared the sticks out of the children's eyes, took the sleepy gapes out of their mouths, the stretchiness out of their limbs, so that, instead of turning over to go to sleep again, Ruby and Buzz would give one good jump out of bed into the middle of the floor, and then they were wide awake, and the day was fairly begun.

In this way the children had each earned six cents. Ruby went about rattling her pennies in her apron pocket, but Buzz, although he had a nice pocket in his new trousers, put his money in a box in a bureau drawer.

"To-morrow will be Sunday," said Buzz, Saturday night as they went to bed. "I don't think we ought to take a cent for getting up early on Sunday morning."

"Oh, I do," said Ruby. "And that will be seven cents I shall have then."

"But I do not think it would be right to earn a cent in such a way on Sunday," said Buzz.

"This is not doing real work and earning money on Sunday," Ruby said; "this is only getting up, and we have got to do it any way, and I mean to have a cent for it, and that will be seven cents in the morning," and Ruby took her money out of her pocket and piled it in a pile on the table.

"Getting up early for a cent on Sunday would be working to get the cent," said Buzz, stoutly, "and I am going to do it without any pay on Sunday, 'cause I think that is the way to do."

"Well, I think it is the way to get a cent for it if you can," said Ruby; "let us ask mother."

The children pleaded the case before their mother.

"Why do you think it is right to take a cent on Sunday, Ruby?" she asked.

"'Cause I want it, and I will have more if I do," said Ruby; "we are paid for getting up—and we do get up on Sunday just as we do on other mornings, and we ought to be paid for it just the same."

"Now, Buzz, why do you think it is not right?" asked the mother.

"'Cause getting up is work for us—it is not work for you or papa, but it is for us, and you pay us because it is, and I don't want to work for money on Sunday—and then—and then"—there Buzz hesitated.

"What is it, my boy?" asked the mother.

"And then," the little fellow went on, "there is something in me, down here"—and Buzz laid his brown, chubby hand over his heart—"that feels queer when I do what I think isn't right—not a pain, you know, but a queer feeling. I had 'most rather have a bee sting me."

"But if you do not take the money you will not have as many cents as Ruby has. Will you like to hear her counting them over—always having more than you?" asked the mother.

"No, I sha'n't like that. I don't like to hear her count her money anyway. Ruby needn't count it so much. But I shall not take a cent on Sunday."

"And I shall take a cent every Sunday—just as soon as mother will give it to me," said Ruby.

The mother said they should decide for themselves. So Ruby took her money each Sunday, and she had a quiet conscience, nor did any, even in their secret thoughts, accuse her of doing wrong.

Buzz went without the Sunday cent, and he, too, had a quiet conscience.

But it was at this point of difference that the children's natures began to diverge.

Ruby had more money, and more "good times," but Buzz had a more tender love for the right, because he had made a sacrifice for it, and this made his heart strong to do right things, even when they went a little against the grain.—Wide Awake.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING MAY 4, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 8: 41-56; I Samuel, 3-8.)

Sunday, 4; Luke 8: 41-56. Verse 42, It was a time of sore distress in this household. How many at such times have found their only comfort by looking to Jesus. He is the friend that can help the broken-hearted, and a refuge in every time of need. Verse 44, Faith reveals itself in different ways in different persons. Jairus comes courageously forward, but is secretly anxious, and appears stronger than he really is. The woman approaches timorously, but is secretly strong in faith.

Monday, 5; I Sam. 3. Verse 4, Parents should be careful not to discourage the religious impressions of their children. God may speak to them when they are very young, and give them convictions of duty and of service. Verse 9, There are many things in the life and experience of a child which are mysterious to it, but which parents understand. Sympathy, explanations, and counsel should not be withheld from the children. Verse 19, One should be diligent to advance in the acquirements of wisdom and piety as he advances in age and in physical stature. The course of Eli's sons or that of Samuel is open to the choice of every youth. No one should hesitate to choose a life like Samuel's.

Tuesday, 6; I Sam. 4. Verse 3, The people were far away from God by a general corruption of religion and morals. It is strange that they could not see that the way to get God's favor and help was by repentance and national reformation. Like many in these days they looked to God for His blessing only because they were in adversity, while they rejected Him in prosperity. Verse 13, Eli was a good man in spite of his weaknesses. The principal cause of all the evils that finally came upon him was his over-indulgence and neglect of his children. (Chapter 3:13.) All parents should take warning, and not make shipwreck on the same rock.

Wednesday, 7; I Sam. 5. Verse 2, There are many now who have their idols to which they give their interest and time, and alongside of these they set up the church, for which they show respect. Verse 3, The idols and the church cannot stand together. It is a mockery which God will ultimately overthrow, to mix up the idolatry of the world with membership in His church. Those who give their patronage to the church in order to be the more respectable and comfortable in their worldliness, have nothing but the prospect of the world before them. Gal. 6:7, 8.

Thursday, 8; I Sam. 6. Verse 1, Notwithstanding the calamities which the presence of the ark had brought upon the Philistines, they were unwilling to relinquish such a prize. So men lengthen out their misery by refusing to relinquish their sins. Verse 6, The memory of God's judgments against sin should be a sufficient warning to us that we cannot go on in sin and escape its punishment. Verse 19, Fifty out of a thousand, instead of fifty thousand, is probably the number.

Friday, 9; I Sam. 7. Verse 2, Samuel's influence was now felt, and the people were led to renounce idolatry and return to the worship of the true God. Verse 6, By this great assembly and the use of water, a public confession was made of their national corruption, the need of moral purification, and the pouring out of their hearts in repentance before God. Do we not need in our nation such a turning unto the Lord?

Saturday, 10; I Sam. 8. Verse 3, How sad it is where such a noble father is disgraced by unworthy sons! Verse 7, God does not exercise such a resistless control over us, as totally to disregard our choices. We have the warnings of His word against giving way to wrong desires. If we choose an unwise and evil course, we shall be visited with the evils that result from such a choice.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(The Debt we Owe to Home Missionaries. II Chron. 17:9.)

A great army of home missionaries are building up churches in destitute places all over this country. What do we owe to them?

1. Honor and gratitude. When churches become large and wealthy, and have fine buildings, and high-priced pastors, and everything else to correspond, they are apt to forget that they are indebted for their existence to the self-sacrificing preachers of the gospel, who at an earlier day laid their foundations. Faithful missionaries are now doing the work which will result in the great churches of the future, and in the Christian influences that will save our country.

2. Appreciation for the benefit of their services to the country. What was done in the work of teaching by the missionaries mentioned in the text, is being done now by our missionaries throughout the land. They do more than all others to Christianize the large foreign element coming into our country. They work continually to keep down vice and immorality. Their presence changes the character of new settlements, and promotes peace and good order.

3. Financial and moral support. They are poor, and the people are poor to whom they go. As Christians and patriots, because of the benefits of their services to the church and the nation, we ought to freely help along this work. The best thing we can do for our country is to give a pure gospel to every hamlet in the land.

JESUS never says all. He lets fall golden words, that provide no record, into the great deep where common words are lost; he touches the key-note of a truth with a single divine smiting, and leaves its circle of sound to spread; only calling down after it into the years, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." It is the secret of inspiration, the difference between that and common study and thinking.—Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

GOD has promised that a period shall be put to the reign of sorrow: "God shall wipe away tears from off all faces." (Isaiah 25: 8.) Can we not wipe away our own tears? Never. If any man dry his own tears, he shall weep again; but if God dry our tears, our eyes shall never lose their light.—Joseph Parker.

The Household.

THE WHITE RIBBON.

BY DART FAIRTHORNE.

Around the globe is a girdle of light,
Around the world a ribbon of white,
Around the earth a circle of prayer,
Around the hearth new cordings of care,
And God's love over all.

Then shall our faith and our patience fail
And prayer be counted of "none avail,"
Shall voices persuasive hold their peace,
And careful plan and endeavor cease?
With God's love over all?

No! earnestly weave the ribbon of white,
And guard, guard ever, the girdle of light;
And the end of all is in God's own hand,
And the answer to prayer He can command,
And His love is over all.

Sometimes, somehow, from the curse of rum,
By God's good grace shall deliv'rance come;
We look with faith to that time so dear,
Bands of white ribbon are drawing it near,
For God's love is over all.

WORDS TO THE WISE.

BY ABBY MORTON DIAZ.

The statement is continually put forth from press, platform and pulpit, that the training of children is the special vocation of woman. Those who make the statement seem to consider it the end of the whole matter. This is not so in regard to other vocations. For every profession, for every trade, for even the commonest kinds of labor, preparation is deemed essential. But the woman who would not dare undertake flower culture, or dressmaking, or breadmaking, or the care of chickens, of pigeons, of puppies, without some special knowledge, will assume the care of young human beings without even the recognition of her ignorance, and the wise ones who plan her "education" look on as if the matter were no concern of theirs, seemingly taking it for granted, if they think about it at all, that with mother love must come mother wisdom and mother skill. Well may Herbert Spencer ask: "Is the unfolding of a human being so simple a process that anyone may superintend and regulate it with no preparation whatever?" And Kingsley: "Is it too much to ask of mothers, sisters, aunts, nurses and governesses that they should study thrift of human health and human life?" Horace Mann, speaking of the depth and lastingness of early influences, says: "No unskillful hand should ever play upon a harp where the tones are left forever in the strings," and in the same connection speaks thus directly to the point: "If she is to prepare a refection of cakes she fails not to examine some cookery book, or some manuscript recipe, lest she should convert her rich ingredients into unpalatable compounds, but without ever having read one book upon the subject of education, without ever having sought one conversation with an intelligent person upon it, she undertakes so to mingle the earthly and celestial elements of instruction for that child's soul that he shall be fitted to discharge all duties below and enjoy all blessings above."

Really, when we come to think of it, how strange it is that young women should be left in the dark just where enlightenment is most needed. They are taught mathematics—low and high—any amount of statistics, minute descriptions of mountains, rivers, deserts, the farthest isles of the farthest sea; they know a good deal about the Milky Way, the fixed stars, the literature, opinions, habits and customs and experiences and languages of extinct races; they can write and speak in many tongues; they learn innumerable details of the battles of thousands of years ago; in fact, they are taught something about everything except what their acknowledged life-work will especially demand.

It is not to be supposed that such enlightenment can be given to the young women of the university in text-book fashion, but they can be set thinking on the subject, and be made to feel its importance. In some way or other, almost every woman has to deal with children. This fact should be recognized in what are called the finishing stages of her education. Various topics bearing on the matter might come up for discussion, or be made the subject of lectures. As for example: "How shall home or school training establish in the child that inward necessity for righteousness which will insure a noble life?" "What ideas shall be given as to the true meaning of the term—a successful life?" "How best to cause the development of the highest in a child, and to make this rule over the low?" "How to secure obedience by ways which will of themselves be a means of the 'higher education'?" "Does the infliction of blows upon the body really 'reach' the child, or merely secure an outward obedience?" "Is not this kind of punishment a confession of incapacity on the part of the punisher, that is, of inability to control the child by higher methods?" "Is a compelled goodness goodness at all?" The importance of working with rather than against a child, that is, of drawing out (educing) the good instead of constantly beating against the bad by means of accusations, harshness, disputing, angry words, constant nagging and maintaining an attitude of what might be called oppositiveness." Lectures might be given on various kinds of badness taught in the home directly or indirectly, as—deceitfulness, lying, prevarication, competition, rivalry, pride, vanity, contempt for labor, respect for wealth, also on "treating children as human beings with the human capacity to be wounded by injustice, by ridicule, by severity, by ill temper, and with the human likelihood to imitate all such exhibitions."

The above few suggestions are offered just by way of indicating how extensive and important is the ground for this kind of education. If some words to the wise among those who control our "system of education" would but cause them to perceive that if child-training does especially belong to woman her education should do something to especially fit her therefor. If "the woman of to-day is the queen of to-morrow," if "woman forms the citizen, guides the republic," let her be made to feel the responsibility, and prepared to meet it. This is a matter which affects all interests, public and private. It would be well if the wise women who gather in clubs and leagues would make it a subject of their deliberations, and thus help create an enlightened public opinion which would insure progress.

THE SUPREME GIFT.

BY PROF. HENRY DRUMMOND

Extract from an address delivered at Northfield Institute.

Every one has asked himself the great question of antiquity as of the modern world: What is the summum bonum—the supreme good? You have life before you. That is the burning question for you to face: What is the supreme object of desire—the supreme gift to covet? We have been accustomed to be told that the greatest thing in the religious world was faith. That has been the key-note for centuries of the evangelical religion; and we have learned to look upon that as the greatest thing in the world. Well, we are wrong. If we have been told that, we have been told wrong. Take I Corinthians 13, and you have Christianity at its source; and there we have read, "The greatest of these is love." It is not an oversight. Paul was speaking of faith just a moment before. He says: "If I have all faith, so that I can remove mountains, and have not love, I am nothing." It is not an oversight; and it is not prejudice. A man is apt to recommend to others his own strong point. Love was not Paul's strong point. There is a beautiful tenderness which the observing student can detect as Paul gets old—growing and ripening all through his character; but the hand that wrote, "The greatest of these is love," when we meet it first, is stained with blood. Nor is Paul singular in singling out love as the summum bonum. The three masters of Christianity are agreed about it. Peter says: "Above all things have fervent love among yourselves." And John goes farther: "God is love." And you remember what Christ Himself said about it: "Love is the fulfilling of the law." Did you ever think what He meant by that? In those days men were working their passage to heaven by keeping the Ten Commandments, and the hundred and ten other commandments which they had manufactured out of them. Christ came and said: "I will show you a more excellent way." If you do one thing, you will do these hundred aud ten things, without ever thinking about it—unconsciously. If you love, you will fulfill the whole law. And you can readily see for yourselves how that comes to be. Take any of the commandments. "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." If a man love God, you will not have to tell him that. Love is the fulfilling of the law. "Take not His name in vain." He would never dream of taking His name in vain if he loved Him. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." He would be too glad to have a day to meditate upon the object of his affection. Love would fulfill all these laws. And so, if he loved man, you would never require to tell him to honor his father and mother. He would do that without thinking about it. It would be preposterous to tell him not to kill. He would never dream of it. It would be absurd to tell him not to steal. He would never steal from those he loved. He would rather they possessed the goods than that he should possess it. It would be absurd to tell him not to bear false witness against his neighbor. If he loved him it would be the last thing he would do. And you would never have to tell him not to covet what his neighbor had. He would be rejoicing in his neighbor's possessions. So you see, "love is the fulfilling of the law."

Paul begins by contrasting love with other things that men in those days thought much of. After which he gives us an amazing analysis of what this supreme thing is. It is a compound thing, he tells us. It is like light. And as you have seen a natural philosopher take a beam of light and pass it through his crystal prism, and as you have seen it come out on the other side of the prism broken up into its component colors—red, and blue, and yellow, and violet, and orange, and all the colors of the rainbow—so Paul passes this thing, love, through the magnificent prism of his inspired intellect, and it comes out on the other side broken up into its elements, and in these words we have the spectrum of love—the analysis of love. Will you observe what these things are? Will you notice that they have common names—that they are virtues which we hear about every day, they are things which can be practiced by every man in every circumstance of life; and how by a multitude of small things and ordinary virtues the supreme thing, the summum bonum, is made up. The spectrum of love has nine elements—nine colors—nine ingredients: Patience—"love suffereth long." Kindness—"and is kind." Generosity—"love envieth not." Humility—"love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up." Courtesy—love "doth not behave itself unseemly." Unselfishness—love "seeketh not her own." Good temper—love "is not easily provoked," Guilelessness—"thinketh no evil." Sincerity—"rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth." Patience; kindness; generosity; humility; courtesy; unselfishness: good temper; guilelessness; sincerity—these make up the supreme gift—the stature of the perfect man.

So much for this analysis of love. Now, the business of our lives is to fit these things into our characters. That is the supreme thing to which we have to address ourselves: to learn love. And life is full of opportunities for learning love. Every man and woman every day has a thousand of them. The world is not a playground; it is a school-room, and its great lesson that we are always to learn is the lesson of love in all its parts. What makes a man a good football player? Practice. What makes a man a good artist—a good sculptor—a good musician? Practice. What makes a man a good athlete? Practice. What makes a man a good man? Practice. Nothing else. There is nothing capricious about religion. We do not get the soul in a different way—under different laws—from that in which we get the body. If a man doesn't exercise his arm, he gets no biceps muscle; and if a man doesn't exercise his soul, he has no muscle in his soul—no strength of character, no robustness. Love is not a thing of emotion and gush. It is a robust, strong, manly, vigorous expression of the whole character and nature in its fullest development. And these things are only to be acquired by daily and hourly practice. Don't quarrel, therefore, with your lot in life. Don't quarrel with the quality you have of life. Don't be angry that you have to go through a network of temptation—that you are haunted with it every day. That is your practice, which God appoints you. That is your practice; and it is having its work in making you patient, and humble, and sincere, and unselfish, and kind, and courteous, and guileless. Don't grudge the hand that is molding the shapeless image in you; it is growing more beautiful; and every touch is adding to its perfection. Keep in the midst of life. Don't isolate yourself. Be among men, and among things, and among troubles, and amongst difficulties and obstacles. You remember Goethe's words: "Talent develops itself in solitude; character in the stream of life." "Talent develops itself in solitude"—the talent of prayer, of faith. "Character in the stream of life." That is where you are to learn love.

Contemplate the love of Christ, and you will love Him. Stand before that, and you will be changed into the same image, from tenderness to tenderness. There is no other way. You cannot love to order. You can only look at the lovely object, and fall in love with it. You cannot command yourself to do it. And so look at the great sacrifice of Christ, as He laid down His life all through life, and at His death upon the Cross of Calvary; and you must love Him. Love begets love. It is a process of induction. You put a piece of iron in the mere presence of an electrified body, and that piece of iron for a time becomes electrified. It becomes a temporary magnet in the presence of a permanent magnet, and as long as you leave the two side by side, they are both magnets. Remain side by side with Him who loved us, and gave Himself for us, and you too will become a permanent magnet—a permanent attractive force; and like Him you will draw all men—be they white men or black men—unto you. That is the inevitable effect of love. Any man who fulfills that cause must have that effect produced in him. Gentlemen, give up the idea that religion comes to us by chance, or by mystery, or by caprice. It comes to us by natural law; or by supernatural law, for all law is divine.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST.
JULIA A. AMES. ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publication Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.—Gal. 5: 1

THE OLD BASIS.

A call has just been issued for a convention of the non-partisans (?) of Illinois, to be held in April in the city of Chicago. The convention is for the purpose, so the call reads, "of reorganizing on the old basis for Christian temperance work." [The italics are ours.]

This starts a three-fold inquiry: First, what was the old basis? Second, has the Woman's Christian Temperance Union departed from it? Third, how shall we account for the success of the organization? We have a right to suppose from this non-partisan call and from the statement of the leaders in that movement (not a name appears in this proclamation) that the W. C. T. U. has a basis unlike its former one, that it has departed from its original methods, and that defeat and not success has been the consequence. First, then, what was the "old basis"? Exactly what it is to-day, faith in God and His word.

The old crusaders testify, one and all, that being moved by the Holy Ghost, they took the Word of God as their guide, and in His name, "through faith in His name," went forth to the rescue of poor humanity from the power of strong drink. Fires were kindled on thousands of gospel temperance altars, not alone to warn men of the rocky, dangerous coast of sin near by, but to save those who were already wrecked, ready to perish. Thousands of men signed, in all honesty of purpose, pledges upon which were these solemn words: "God helping me I promise to abstain from all intoxicating liquors as a beverage," and these Christian women everywhere stood ready to help them keep that pledge, and to cheer the despondent ones with the promise that God would surely help them, if they would only trust Him.

Amid tears and strong cryings unto God, not a few were brought "out of darkness into light," out of danger into safety. Thank God for every man in this land who has been redeemed from the curse of the cup! But other thousands for whom we labored just as earnestly, and who seemed of themselves to struggle just as honestly, overcome by the awful appetite, gave up the contest at last, and went down with an agonized cry as the waters of death swept over them.

These unsaved ones and not the saved, riveted our souls to the solemn and unsolved problem! It grew intensely serious as we contemplated the folly of securing from a poor drunkard a promise not to drink, while the saloon door just over the way stood invitingly open. It dawned which cannot be broken, but also upon man's promises upon us that we were building not alone on God's promises, which, when coming from the confirmed inebriate, are like "chaff which the wind driveth away."

We came to see more and more clearly that we were making but very little headway, in fact not any, so far as the producing cause was concerned, and that the world has very little use for mere promises. There must be performance as well as promise. Promises come from the realm of feeling and emotion, performance emanates from the solid background of a power which is able to fulfill. That power lies in the realm of the will. But the confirmed drunkard has no will, hence no power, hence easily broken promises.

We discovered that the appetite of the drinker and the avarice of the drink seller were the chief factors in the distressing problem. With the appetite factor we were powerless to contend; with the other factor we grappled with an energy born of despair. We decided there must be a "performance" by some one which would loosen the grip of the alcohol fiend from the throats of these wretched victims, and without in the least disturbing the basis of our work, we began constructing pontoon bridges, over which we might march our forces into the enemy's country. Not until we began that work did we hear anything about "departure from the old basis."

Of course such a movement caused consternation in the camp of the liquor traffic; we meant it should, but why it should distress any good and true temperance man or woman, must ever remain a mystery. Only those took part in the building of the "pontoons" who had a "mind to work," and none were forced to cross over, after they were constructed. The fires on the gospel temperance altars have not gone out; we have never deserted our citadel nor forgotten our base of supplies.

The Illinois state superintendent of evangelistic work writes in a recent letter: "I was never so encouraged concerning our work as now. The Lord is wonderfully blessing our gospel work this winter. At several places the work has been attended with power—conversions marked and the churches built up." This shows that we still cling to the "old basis," although we adopt other lines. So the "old basis" is still the present basis, with the added growth of the experiences of the years which have come and gone since that blessed Crusade morning. There is no way to account for the steady growth and marvelous success of the W. C. T. U. except on the plain evidence of the fact that God has been with us. If He has been with us, then we do not need to prove that He has been pleased with our work.

What under His blessing have we accomplished? "Much every way," but chiefly, the building up of a public sentiment against the avarice of the government which is particeps criminis with the manufacturer and seller of strong drink. We say the building up of public sentiment. To build anything, unless it be children's cob-houses, requires time, care, and great patience; but in the dull drudgery there is much to cheer us.

The line-engraver has a secret charm as he toils at his slow and tedious task. The picture may have no beauty for the ordinary eye, but to him, in the exercise of his wonderful art, he entertains himself with feats of interpretative skill. The W. C. T. U. sits to-day with the hard, surface of public opinion before her, upon which to engrave. With interpretative skill we are bringing out the lines which are slowly taking on shape and beauty, and some day the world will stand and admire the wonderful picture of an American home with more of light and less of shadow than we now behold; and when the admiring and appreciative spectator shall ask for the artists' name, there shall be one name given, dear to all honest hearts, the name of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which hates nothing but sin, dreads nothing but stagnation, and fears nothing so much, as sweet Mary Lyon said, as a failure to discharge God-given duties. No greater duty can come to us than to keep abreast of the demands of the time, and march on in the glorious work of helping to save the world.

THE CONCENTRATION OF WEALTH.

The concentration of wealth in few hands implies the relative impoverishment of the many. We do not have to consult statisticians to learn that the great bulk of the wealth of the country is owned by a very small percentage of the people. We have palpable evidence of the fact in the existence of immense fortunes in the midst of surrounding poverty. A general acquaintance with the property of any community in which there is much wealth will show that most of it is owned by a few persons and that the great mass of the people are comparatively poor. So that, making due abatement for Mr. Thomas G. Shearman's somewhat sensational method of stating the case in his Forum articles on "Who owns the United States?" and setting aside his forebodings as to what may be the situation fifty years hence, the majority of readers are not unprepared to credit his statements: "Seventy estates own $2,700,000,000, or over one-sixteenth of the entire wealth of the country exclusive of church property and public buildings. Forty thousand families," representing 200,000 persons, "own one-half the wealth of the country;" which, estimating our present population at 65,000,000, would leave the other half to 64,800,000 people. "Two hundred and fifty thousand families," representing 1,250,000 persons, "own three-fourths of the wealth of the United States," leaving only one-fourth of that wealth to 63,750,000 people.

Nor have we sufficient reason to discredit the statement of the News of New York that "twenty-five estates and corporations own one-half of New York," meaning, doubtless, one-half of the land and buildings in that city; leaving the other half to about 1,400,000 people. We have no exact estimate of the present total wealth of the United States at hand, but Dr. Josiah Strong says: "Our national wealth in 1880 was estimated to be $43,642,000,000. It cannot, therefore, be less than $50,000,000,000 now. If 40,000 families own one-half of that, they have an average of $625,000 each; or estimating five persons to each family, each person has $125,000; while the 64,800,000 who own the other half, average less than $400 apiece. Again, if 250,000 families, or 1,250,000 persons, own three-fourths of the present wealth of the country, the average for each person is $30,000; while the average for each of the remaining 63,750,000 is less than $200. But many of these millions have nothing. Superfluity on the one hand means dire want on the other. In the richest country under the sun, capable of supporting in comfort 1,000,000,000 people, a majority of its present 65,000,000 inhabitants have a hard struggle to maintain existence. While the rich are growing richer and relatively fewer in number, the poor are becoming more numerous and relatively poorer every year."

This last statement by no means implies that the condition of the temperate and industrious poor is worse now than in former periods. That it is certainly better is demonstrated by every trustworthy comparison of the past and the present situation of the laboring classes. The statement, as commonly made, that "the rich are growing richer, and the poor, poorer," is only half true. But while the condition of the poor is actually better, relatively to that of the rich, it is worse. It is said that the average annual wages paid in the United States now are $400, as against an average of $200 paid in 1850. But the disparity between the earnings of the poor and the incomes of the rich in 1850, when men worth $100,000 were esteemed very rich, was much less than the disparity between average wages of $400 and the many millionaire fortunes of the present. In order to understand how great is the tendency to increase this disparity, it should be borne in mind that while all excess of the incomes of the rich over their expenditures for living goes to increase their accumulations, the advance in wages has not been sufficient to justify accumulations by wage-workers. It has necessarily gone to raise their standard of living, which before was too low for comfort or health. It should also be borne in mind that under a system of industry which gives combined capital a monopoly of the profits of trade, as well as of production, small tradesmen are barely able to make a living. Add the fact that a great majority of the men and women who are engaged in the professions have no margins for accumulation, after necessary expenditures for living, and we are forced to the startling conclusion that the present tendency is toward the absorption of the entire net product of the country, over and above what is consumed in living, by a very small percentage of the people.

The limits of a newspaper article do not permit a proper consideration of the causes of the concentration of wealth and relative impoverishment of the masses, but principal among them is the legalized liquor traffic. If not the greatest concentrator of wealth, it is certainly the greatest poverty producer in existence. It reduces its patrons to beggary, and imposes upon all the people the enormous burden of caring for the paupers, incompetents, idiots, insane and criminals which it makes. It is an economic robber which levies tribute upon all industries and all classes, and gives nothing in return, except more victims to care for. It creates no value. Its only functions are to waste the national wealth, debase the people morally and economically, and obstruct every righteous reform, in order that a few monopolists may fatten off the miseries of their fellow men. It is the most solid monopoly extant. Most of the saloon-keepers are the poorly paid tools of a small number of brewers, distillers and wholesale dealers, who own or rent the saloons and own all the fixtures and all the stock in trade, and reap all the profits. Our liquor revenue and license systems have made the traffic a monopoly, given it immense political power, entrenched it in our national, state and municipal politics and legislation, and made the American saloon system "the most elaborate, skillfully devised, comprehensive and effective machinery for ruining the bodies and souls of men the world has ever seen."

We never shall get rid of the other economic evils until the liquor traffic is abolished. The success of every economic reform depends upon the vote of the people. Legislation is controlled by the demands of the popular majority voiced at the ballot box. It is their power to control votes that enables monopolists to control legislation in their own interest. That which gives them this power is not their wealth alone. Vast as that wealth is, it could not deceive enlightened, sober voters for any great length of time, or induce them to vote against their own welfare. As Mr. Lincoln said: "You may fool some of the people all the time, and all the people some of the time; but you cannot fool all the people all the time." It is the existence of ignorant, purchasable electors in sufficient numbers to decide national elections, that gives concentrated wealth the power to control elections and legislation. The ignorant, venal vote of the country is mainly the product of the liquor traffic. The first thing, therefore, to be done, is to prohibit that traffic. Prohibition is the key to all other reforms, the only thing that can make their success possible.

THE American Home School for Girls in Berlin, Germany, founded four years ago by Mrs. Mary B. Willard, has proved so successful that a branch will be opened in Paris at the beginning of the next school year. It will be in charge of two experienced lady teachers who have been intimately connected with the Berlin institution—one a native French lady, and the other an American teacher of long experience. Mrs. Willard will visit the school frequently and endeavor to maintain the order and spirit of the institution in Berlin. Paris is, of all places, the one best adapted for acquiring the French language, and pupils will here have access to the finest art schools, the lectures of the Collége de France, in all its departments, and excellent advantages in music. The location of the school will be in the neighborhood of the Luxumbourg, in order to be near the college, as it is proposed to make the school one of special adaptation to those who wish to pursue advanced studies in French. German lessons will also be carried on under a native teacher, as well as Italian, also English studies according to the needs of pupils. Students desiring to enter the Paris school should enroll themselves before July 1, 1890. There are many parents who are unwilling to send their daughters into a foreign city without protection and chaperonage, and the young women of America owe Mrs. Willard a debt of gratitude that in the very centers of the treasures of art and literature of the old world, she has established American, Christian, Home Schools. We can wish no greater good to our wise young friends than that they may spend a year within the charmed circle of these institutions.

THE Massachusetts House has rejected the bill granting municipal suffrage to women. The reserve force which in Boston rescued the public schools cannot be trusted with such power in other emergencies, liable to arise in city government. Applied to the question of licensing saloons, for example, it might greatly embarrass both court and council. Suppose the women in Massachusetts' cities should unite with the good men—a measure they have never regarded unfavorably—and enter upon a temperance campaign to culminate at the polls, where all could make their preferences potent. The liquor dealers know what the result would be, know too well to allow the possibility of such a combination. The action of the House is consistent with the vote of a year ago. Let every state that desires to preserve the sacredness of the saloon beware of enfranchising the women, who still have a great source of influence in elections. They can express their political views in doughnuts, serving them at the polls to nerve the strong right arm of the male citizen to the strenuous effort of casting a prohibition ballot. Ah, if the doughnuts were counted, what no-license victories there would be!

GOOD men now demand equal suffrage, even more imperatively than the women themselves. They see in it the only means of controlling the rising tide of misrule in the great cities. A remarkable conference was lately held around a lunch table in Boston. The Republican members of the municipal suffrage committee were the host, and the guests were eighty Republican representatives. The topic for after-dinner treatment was the impending bill. There were speeches, radical as any ever made by Miss Anthony or Mrs. Stanton, and arguments axiomatic, as they must be, since "truth is eternal." The novelty lay in hearing such wisdom from the mouths of men addressing other men. The stock objections were well met. "The women don't want to vote; the majority of them won't vote." "Well, suppose that's so," said Collector Beard, "If a woman has just as much natural right to vote as a man, it is not a question of whether the majority want that right; it is a question of whether one woman demands it. It is said only the Irish women will vote. I have had a good deal to do with Irish people, and I have generally found the women the more intelligent and competent of the two. They make better use of what they earn. I am as willing to trust the Bridgets as the Patricks." Mr. Beard reminded the Republican party that it could not have come into power, but for the support of the women of the land thirty years ago; even in Democratic families the sympathies of the women were with the Republican party. He might have added that the party maintains its present supremacy because of the natural patience of women toward wayward sons. They remember when it was young and pure, and they look and wait to see it undertake for them and their homes what it did in its early days, for the black race. Mayor Hart, of Boston, had found this one argument all-sufficient: "Why should not women vote?" He has never met any one able to answer it. Ex-Governor Claflin urged the measure as giving mothers greater power over the surroundings of their children. State treasurer Marden wrestled with the long and oft-quoted inability of the fair sex to "bear arms." As 60,000 Massachusetts boys under voting age are in the militia, and 200,000 men vote who are past military age, he fails to make the connection between voting and fighting. Recent statements of high military and medical authorities show that among men of military age but one-third are physically capable of service. The other two-thirds are not disfranchised. In the new era of arbitration women ought to be the prevailing influence in government. Our fathers rebelled against taxation without representation; Massachusetts' daughters in the prime of their heritage stand upon the same principle to make their demands upon the King Georges of the Commonwealth. Ex-Governor Long, an equal suffragist, for many years has urged the indorsement of the bill as a matter of policy. He says:

"There is not a question I know of before you on which your responsibility can be brought before the people at the next election upon party lines. I believe, if you can introduce some question of this kind and go before the people of Massachusetts and say, 'Here is a measure that has long been before the people and is now up for settlement,' you will gain strength by it, and I believe you will appeal to some of those generous, humane elements which will infuse back into the Republican party something of that high spirit and moral tone with which it began, which gave it its prestige, and which is the most shining and illustrious thing in its history." The covert influences which defeated the prohibitory amendment again prevailed, and the measure was lost.

THE New York City Free Circulating Library, founded ten years ago, has its headquarters in Bond street, in a thickly-settled, busy neighborhood. A low saloon and dance garden was situated next the library, but it was removed in less than a year after the opening of the latter. The proprietor said the library ruined his business! In this one fact exists a latent volume of sermons. Here go the young men to study history and biography, now the two chief topics of interest to readers in the library. They frequented the saloon because they knew not what to do or where to go during long winter evenings. There they found companionship, and to the young, companionship means everything. Many of them have no homes, and with nothing to interest them at night, strolled about and entered the grog-shop simply to kill time. But with the library came a change. They drew out books, and books mean entertainment as well as instruction. They mean staying at home, decency, order, concentrated attention, and a certain discipline. They mean an outlook upon life of a far higher order than prevailed in the groggery. They mean instruction in an intelligent performance of social and political duty and the instruction comes in such a form as to be agreeable. It is not "preachy" and dull. It permeates and enlivens biographies, it runs like a thread of gold through histories. It is a healthy sign of improvement, that the reading of fiction in this free circulating library is decreasing. It amounts now to one-fourth the books taken out against nearly one-half at its establishment. And it is a singular fact that even now, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the favorite book. A volume written by a woman and in the line of a great reform takes the lead. This is a case where fiction is the noblest sermonizing. That which is true in New York will be true elsewhere. Beside the saloon, plant libraries, and, as the roots of the latter spread, those of the former will die out. Place before the young great truths told in an attractive way and make them welcome every day and every evening. At a meeting held a short time ago in Chickering Hall, in the interests of this library, the statement was made that Boston stands at the head of the list of taxed cities for free libraries, with an annual appropriation of $127,000, and New York at the foot, with $12,500. Yet with such poor support the library has been a boon to New Yorkers of limited means. It now has 49,000 books on its shelves, divided among four separate buildings in different parts of the city. The circulation of books last year amounted to 423,000, at a cost of $23,500. But the interesting fact about this library is that it was founded six years ago, by a number of women. But for their action New York might be even now a stranger to a free circulating library.

CANON BUTLER, the revered husband of Josephine Butler, has passed away after a long illness. Mrs. Butler has been with him on the Continent for months. This distinguished prelate was for years the Canon of Winchester Cathedral, and the warm supporter of his wife in all her thankless pioneer work for the promotion of woman, which after twenty years has culminated in the banishment of the C. D. Acts from the blue books of the British Parliament, in the raising of the age of protection to sixteen years, and in the magical expansion of the social purity movement throughout the civilized world. The hearts of all white-ribbon women are grateful, loving and loyal towards Mrs. Butler, and we unite in sending to her our Christian condolence which looks beyond the vail and sees the reunions of Heaven.

The Watch-Tower.

If life be a burden I will join to make it the burden of a song.

***

The most appreciative words speakable come from Pennsylvania concerning Mrs. Buell's recent work in that state. Large and appreciative audiences have greeted her wherever she has lectured.

***

Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge has been representing the department of peace and arbitration in Iowa where she found most hospitable welcome with the people.

***

The W. C. T. U. of Conneaut, Ohio, pays all the expenses of its headquarters and work by having a "Baking Day" on which nice home-made bread, cake, cookies, ginger-bread, puddings, pies, ice cream, etc., are for sale there. Committees take a turn about in managing this business enterprise. Orders are solicited, different families fill them, the same ones not being asked to do so in consecutive weeks, and thus without making a heavy task for any the union puts money in its purse and goes on its way rejoicing. "When found make a note on," said Captain Cuttle, so here is this nugget of a fact fresh from "the real work," which may inspire some other union to go and do likewise.

***

The latest "Union Labor Ticket" reported is in the form of a marriage certificate bearing the names of Mrs. Leonora Barry and Mr. O. R. Lake. May it be successful in every sense. The bride is well known in W. C. T. U. circles. Mr. Lake is master workman of the St. Louis District Assembly. Their home will be in St. Louis. Carpenters, miners, dock men—every one else may strike, but Cupid never!

***

Sho Nemoto, the distinguished Japanese who has been studying in America for several years, and has proved himself a loyal friend to the W. C. T. U., is now in his native country, having reached there January 12. He writes that hundreds of people were waiting at the station of his home-town, Mito, to welcome him. He is now assisting Count Itagaki in organizing a National Liberal Party, and says: "My life work is for the education of the people, but at this moment I cannot give my time to that department only, as I was so earnestly requested to assist in this work. I will make my best use of mind for the temperance work in which we have great hope."

***

George Kennan finds the greatest possible assistance in his wife. The couple have no children, and she is enabled to devote all her time to her husband's interests, which she does both willingly and successfully. Each day finds her at work recopying manuscript, reading proofs, translating some Russian piece, or going over the receipts from his work, and seeing to its investment or deposit. Mrs. Kennan is a thorough business woman of tact, and of a great deal of personal attractiveness.

***

The cigar manufacturers are now trying to use that magic legend "W. C. T. U." to advance their wares, taking these letters to mean "We claim them unequaled." That a brand of cigars should be thus named, simply shows that this ilk of people perceive the harm that is to come to their trade through our activities. But our name is being used in so many quarters that are unauthorized, we hardly know what to do about it, except to stand in our lot and place and attend to our own business to the best of our ability, not meddling with those who may feel called upon to meddle with us, acquiring by their own powers of appropriation our name and good-will.

***

Mrs. S. M. I. Henry, National evangelist of the W. C. T. U., has been designated by Bishop Vincent to have charge of the W. C. T. U. Chautauqua Conference during eight days of the Assembly. The meetings will be held in the Hall of Philosophy in August. Mrs. Henry outlines the program thus: First day, Prevention of Intemperance; second, Question Box; third, Education in Temperance; fourth, Question Box; fifth, Evangelistic Temperance; sixth, Question Box; seventh, Social Temperance; eighth, Question Box.

***

The territorial officers of Montana W. C. T. U. are anxious that all their unions shall have the benefit of Mr. George Woodford's valuable services during his limited stay in the territory. He lately held a ten-days' series of meetings in Miles City, the home of the corresponding secretary. The Bomb of that place says: "Never in the history of this place (say old timers) has any individual so completely taken the hearts of the people as did Colonel Woodford. Six months of such work in Montana just now would mean the saloon must go." Calls may be addressed in care of Mrs. Alma Kirkpatrick, Dillon.

ON DUTY.

News from the Field.

GEORGIA.

W. C. T. U. JOTTINGS AND THE HIGH LICENSE CONFLICT.

In accordance with the wishes of many of our women, I write you a brief sketch of some happenings among the Georgia unions during the last three months.

Early in January, at one of the meetings of the old Atlanta union, our hearts were stirred with sympathy and enthusiasm as we listened to Mrs. C. C. Tucker's report of the colored unions and their work. There are four of these, East Atlanta, West Atlanta, Summer Hill, and Third Ward. These all meet together once a month at the Lloyd street M. E. church. The previous week Mrs. Tucker had met with them. There were one hundred and twenty-five present, and she had lectured to them on social purity lines, taking the subject of marriage. Mrs. F. E. W. Harper's lectures were highly spoken of, and Rev. E. R. Carter, of Friendship Baptist church was commended for his coöperation with the work of the unions. Mrs. Tucker is a Massachusetts lady, but she and her husband are now connected with the Atlanta (colored) university, to which no student is admitted unless he signs the total abstinence pledge.

On another occasion not long after, we were gladdened and strengthened by the coming of Mrs. Mial Davis, of Fitchburg, state superintendent of evangelistic work in the Old Bay State. In response to a call for remarks, she told us of the struggle in Massachusetts for a prohibitory amendment, and of the sad defeat. So graphic was her description of the workings of high license in Fitchburg, that we of Atlanta felt that it was our own experience under the same horrors. During the remainder of her stay, Mrs. Davis was in constant demand; now to visit the jail with Mrs. Kilby, of the North side union; now to lecture for Mrs. Witter to a crowded house at Payne's chapel; then to speak for the "1890 Club;" and at all times to be a ready helper and wise counselor at our weekly meetings.

At a well-attended meeting of the W. C. T. U. at the First Methodist Church, Mrs. M. L. McLendon, of the South side union, read of Deborah and Barak, and of Sisera's tragic death by the hammer and nail of Jael. She followed this scriptural reading with an able paper in defense of woman's work and woman's vote for temperance, and a criticism of an editorial in the Atlanta Constitution, concerning the Missouri women's raid on the unlawful whisky shops. Mrs. McLendon wields a trenchant pen, and possesses a wonderful amount of vim and energy. She and her coadjutors have just given their fourth Demorest medal contest among the children of the Trinity Mission.

Mrs. Parks, of West Virginia, and Mrs. Saul, of Louisville, Ky., have recently become residents of Atlanta, and have been made very welcome by the white-ribboners. Mrs. Parks is doing a good work for the W. T. P. A.; and we trust Mrs. Saul will be as successful in the railroad work in Atlanta as she was in Louisville.

One of the very best workers I have ever met is Miss Frances Richmond, of Mamaroneck, New York, who, with her aged and saintly aunt, Miss Seaton, spent the winter in Atlanta, and endeared themselves to our people by their untiring and unselfish efforts for prohibition, showing as much interest as though natives of the city.

And this brings us to speak of the recent agitation of another local option election for Fulton county. The daily papers set themselves against it, asserting, with a strange disregard for the real facts that there were less drinking and fewer arrests under high license than during prohibition. We noticed that they were very careful never to give us the statistics in proof of their assertions. Even some of the ministers who did such valiant service in the campaigns of '85 and '87, said it was "not the right time for an election," and that "an election now meant certain defeat."

A committee from the various temperance organizations of the city,—not including the W. C. T. U.—met and formulated a set of resolutions which were ratified by a mass-meeting of Prohibitionists. The gist of the resolutions was that, "no further efforts be made this year for an election, but that the Prohibitionists of Fulton county unite their efforts for the passage of a law that will enable the people to abolish by vote the sale of alcoholic liquors as beverages, and, at the same time provide for public dispensaries of pure and unadulterated liquors for non-prohibited purposes under legal authority and regulations, not for public revenue or private gain." It was resolved "to favor the amendment of the registration law of the county so as to make it a crime to register illegally as well as to vote illegally." It was also resolved "that the notable increase of drunkenness and consequent crimes in this county, the growth and profits of the liquor traffic, the general commercial and industrial testimony to the losses of labor and wages by patronage of saloons, all go to demonstrate to us the utter failure of high license as a remedy for the evils of the liquor traffic, and to more clearly establish the fact that prohibition is the right and only rational treatment of this great individual and public curse." The concluding resolution boldly declared, "We are entitled to have these views represented in the General Assembly, not as political propositions, or by those whose interests are wholly political; and to secure this just representation we recommend to the people of Fulton county, Sam W. Small, as a proper, earnest and capable man to represent the above views and propositions, and we respectfully ask all moral and public-spirited citizens of this county to join us in securing his election to the next General Assembly." Of this meeting, Judge George Hillyer was chairman, and Mr. Thomas Corrigan, secretary, while Mr. William A. Haygood and Mr. A. A. Murphey spoke in favor of the resolutions.

In Augusta, the Ministers' Evangelical Alliance have petitioned the city council—not for prohibition, but for high license! Being apprised of what they intended to do, Mrs. Sibley addressed to them an appeal begging them not to compromise with the great sin and evil of the liquor traffic, whose guilt was not lessened by any amount of high license. But they disregarded her appeal, and all but two of their number signed a petition to the city council to raise the liquor license to not less than one thousand dollars. Rev. Dr. Wadsworth and Rev. Mr. Shaw, two of the Methodist ministers, refused to sign this compromise with iniquity. Then Mrs. Sibley wrote a solemn protest which was published in a recent number of the Augusta Chronicle, and throughout the W. C. T. U. ranks of Georgia there is rejoicing and thanksgiving that we have a president who is brave enough to stand uncompromisingly against bar-rooms, even though every preacher in the land should compromise with high license. It is a notable fact that while many men who were once declared Prohibitionists are deserting the cause, or bowing their necks to the high license yoke, our women are becoming more and more brave, and more and more determined never to give up the war against bar-rooms, even though the daily papers and the anti-Prohibitionists may call us "agitators."

We are now in the midst of preparations for the coming of Mrs. J. K. Barney, who is soon to visit Georgia.

MISSOURI STOKES,
Special Correspondent.

CALIFORNIA.

GLEANINGS OF INTEREST.

The Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union of California held their first state conference February 21 and 22, at Berkeley. Miss Gertrude Baker led most earnest devotional exercises. Mrs. H. V. Brownell, of Woodland, the untiring superintendent of young woman's work, was elected president; Miss Emily Grant, recording secretary, and Miss Lilla Fales, corresponding secretary. Committees on credentials, courtesies and resolutions were appointed. The address of welcome was charmingly given by Miss Leontine Ricard. She spoke specially of the closing of saloons—largely by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union within one mile of the State University and the manifest results in saving the students from drink.

Miss Emily Grant, an accomplished young journalist on Truth, San Francisco, delivered a bright response and urged all to greater action.

Mrs. Brownell then, with words of esteem, introduced the state president, Mrs. R. R. Johnston, who gave a fine address upon the great influence of the Y's and the need that they be marshaled for the temperance war.

The hospitable Berkeley Y's and their honorary members served a delicious lunch, which, if a sample of the cooking of these young ladies, forms a good reason why every young man in the state should wish a Y for a wife.

The afternoon session was opened with devotions led by Miss Winnie Morris, the associate editor of the California Voice, which has so long "held the fort for prohibition," edited by her father, Rev. George Morris, and Captain Wood. Mrs. S. G. Chamberlain of Oakland, mother of the young woman's work of the state, was royally received by the conference and many tributes of love were paid to her for her untiring labors.

Dr. Van Kirk, state organizer of the Y's, gave an able address on "The Education of Our Girls," which abounded in wise suggestions as to physical, mental and moral health. Her admonitions against the compressed waist were especially good, and she earnestly urged every Y. W. C. T. U. to take up the study of hygiene. She highly praised Mrs. Judge Chamberlain.

Reports from the unions of the state show a vast deal of temperance work being done by these fair young girls. Miss Winnie Morris, the gifted president of the Alameda Y, reported several socials, a Fourth of July prohibition picnic, Gospel temperance meetings every Sabbath, and lectures by Father Nunan, Colonel Woodford, Rollo Kirk Bryan, Mrs. D. J. Spencer, Mrs. Brownell, Dr. Van Kirk and Mrs. S. C. Borland. Miss Morse, the energetic president of Berkeley union, reported sixty active and ninety-six honorary members, mostly students from the State University, a Loyal Temperance Legion organized numbering one hundred and thirty-six members and a company of twenty-seven cadets, organized by Mrs. S. C. Borland. Miss Frances Ury reported seventy-two members, eleven socials and 2,100 pages of temperance literature distributed. She referred glowingly to the work of Mrs. Skelton. Miss May Mansfield of Columbia reported a bazar and temperance reading class similar to the C. L. S. C. Mrs. Brownell gave a glowing report of Frisno county so effectively organized by Mrs. Emily Pitt Stevens and Mrs. Emma R. Colwell. Miss Ella Wood gave a fine description of the Selma union, which although only a few months old supports a kindergarten, has bought one hundred dollars' worth of books for W. C. T. U. reading room and conducts gospel temperance meetings.

Miss Ida Wilkins told of the good work accomplished by the Oakland union under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Park, Mrs. Dr. Southard, and Miss Rosamond Johnston, who is her mother's daughter. The North Oakland union, represented by Miss Emma Sutherland, has thirty-four members, and by entertainments these girls have raised money enough to clothe thirteen orphan children.

The mission Y's of San Francisco, organized by Mrs. Carver, county president, was reported by Miss Fales. Their socials are popular, and their Bible readings, conducted by Miss Kerrell and her associates at the county hospital, have done much good. They take flowers, fruit and refreshments.

The San Francisco Willard Y is also reported by Miss Fales as having twenty members. Their principal work is aiding the sailors, and their socials among the tars are deeply effective for temperance work. Miss May Clifford wittily told of the work of the Santa Rosa union, which supports headquarters, a kindergarten, and conducts juvenile work. Miss Bunn, of San Rafael, reported sixty members, and all lines of work actively carried on. San Jose, reported by Miss Gaffney, has forty-five members, carries on a Loyal Temperance Legion of eighty children. Their receptions are very popular. Miss Belle Merchant, of Ione, represented the baby Y, only three weeks old, but reaching out to various lines of work.

The Chamberlain Y's of Woodland—named in honor of the former superintendent, Mrs. S. G. Chamberlain—is the banner union, numbering eighty-four active and sixty honorary members. Their entertainments are popular and their influence over young men so marked that the saloon-keepers curse them. Miss Carkeek reported a flourishing union at Stockton, though only a few weeks old.

Miss Fales then read an interesting paper on "Work Among the Sailors," and highly praised the efforts put forth by Mrs. Mary B. Eden, state superintendent, whom the Y's ably assist in socials to the seamen. Special requests that temperance and religious papers for outgoing ships be sent to Mrs. Eden. Mrs. Carver, Mrs. Weed, and Mrs. Spencer gave interesting talks on the subject.

One of the best speeches of the convention was on "National Notes," by Miss Eudora Garroutte, the Y delegate to the National Convention. Her descriptive powers are good, and she has a bright career before her as a public speaker. Her pen pictures of Miss Willard and the National superintendent of young woman's work, Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, were especially interesting. She outlined much work as recommended by Mrs. Barnes, as a course of reading, Demorest medal contests, country outing for working girls and children, Temperance Temple, gospel temperance meetings, and work for the Oak and Ivy Leaf, the Y's national organ. She paid a high tribute to Miss Willard, who said, "Tell all the Y's of California how much I love them."

Mr. Hubert Rowell, superintendent of the Western Star Band of Hope, San Francisco, read a most excellent paper on "Juvenile Work," outlining most practical methods. Miss Gaffney of San Jose followed on the same subject, which she treated most admirably. She made a remarkably fine plea for temperance instruction in the public schools, urging that the teachers should join the W. C. T. U.

The dinner was served by the young ladies and was a real banquet. Miss May Clifford led the evening devotions. The music by a quartette was beautifully rendered. Mr. F. L. Lipman, an honorary member of the Berkeley, read a most able paper on "Temperance, Total Abstinence." If every man was as well entrenched in argument the saloon would have no customers. Miss Nellie Morse sang a beautiful solo. Miss Baker, of the Chamberlain Y's, presented Mrs. Brownell with a life membership in the state union. Mrs. Brownell was completely overcome with surprise, but responded most gracefully.

Miss Ames, of Napa, reported the union of that city, and Miss Goss the Mission Y's of San Francisco. Mr. Harris sang a beautiful solo; Miss Holcomb gave a pleasing recitation, and Miss Eudora Garroutte read a thoughtful essay, "Gifts, and How to Use Them."

Saturday morning the devotions were conducted by Miss Sallie Goss, of San Francisco. Miss Garroutte read a beautiful poem, "The Fast of the Rechabites," written by Miss Annie Cowen, of San Francisco. Mrs. Brownell then read a finely-written paper, "Evangelistic Work," and followed it by a helpful talk. Mrs. Carver spoke well on the topic. Mrs. Emily Hoppin, of Woodland, and Mrs. Nellie B. Eyster, superintendent of juvenile work, were regretfully missed from the program.

Miss Rosamond Johnston, president of the Oakland Y, read a very practical and sensible paper on "Hygiene." Miss Virginia Patchette, of San Francisco, gave an admirable essay on "Socials." The question box was ably handled by Mrs. Brownell, who proved her fine adaptation to this young woman's work. She urged each union to give a generous donation to state work.

Mrs. Chamberlain invited the next Y convention to Oakland, and urged the Y's to get subscribers and advertisements for the Pharos, the state organ. Miss Garroutte presented the resolutions which pledged loyalty to the National Convention at Chicago, to Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Brownell, and gratitude to Mrs. Chamberlain, the Berkeley Y, and all who aided the convention, indorsed prohibition and woman suffrage, and denounced tobacco; also imposed a fine of five cents for appearing in public without the white ribbon. Mrs. Bentley, state superintendent of heredity, most ably presented the claims of her department.

The delegates then formed a circle, joined hands, and sang,

"God be with you till we meet again,"

Miss Winnie Morris made a heartfelt prayer, and the first Y convention adjourned.

M. G. C. EDHOLM.

OHIO.

NEWS AND NOTES.

The Forest City House, Cleveland, has no "bar," but its lack in that direction was no reason why the ladies of the Ohio W. C. T. U. executive committee should not hold their mid-year meeting—March 12 and 13—in one of its commodious parlors, or partake of the excellent dinner so politely and promptly served. We were cordially welcomed by "mine host" who spared no pains to insure our comfort and convenience, while our royal entertainers, the ladies of Cleveland Central union, paid our bills, and by numberless courtesies merited the gratitude they received. Mrs. H. L. Monroe presided at all the sessions. Anchored by her convictions to duty, her rulings characterized by kindness and ability, it is not strange that after years of trial, our state president continues to hold the love and confidence of the Ohio sisterhood.

The weather was unfavorable and the place of meeting quite on the northern boundary line of the state, yet a fair proportion of superintendents, and all the state officers, with one exception, were present. Much important business was transacted. Eleven departments were personally represented, all indicating the onward movement in spite of the tied hands and fettered feet of those who are laboriously carrying them forward. "Friends! money to help out and on!" is the cry of tireless workers all along the line. If we only could make bricks without straw or its equivalent! Will not some W. C. T. U. "Bellamy" dream a way out of the difficulty?

Petitions asking that the national postal law be amended so as to correspond with our state law in order that impure matter, the Police Gazette and kindred publications shall be excluded from the mails, were authorized. Mrs. Maria G. Frost, Oberlin, leader of the franchise department, with other vigorous champions of the cause, is making strong efforts to obtain equal suffrage in the constitution.

There is a marked change in the spirit of the Ohio press. More country newspapers give "space" for temperance matter than ever before. W. C. T. U. columns are no longer considered damaging to the circulation of a paper. There are two good reasons for this blessed change. The good seed we have been scattering broadcast during long weary years is beginning to grow! The masses are waking up and asking, "What about this Woman's Christian Temperance Union that is working for our betterment?" And our articles are eagerly read. Editors are bright enough to know it. Then local, county and district unions have selected just the right women for superintendents of press work.

The department of mercy, second to none in importance, is in charge of a noble, warm-hearted woman, Mrs. Lydia A. Irons, of Allen county, who is not only teaching the children the law of kindness, but is doing all in her power to open the eyes of the people to the cruelties practiced upon dumb animals in the name of scientific investigation, calling their attention to the "appalling fact that New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, Illinois and Pennsylvania have a score of chambers wherein the art of torture has been carried to a perfection which the devildoms of Spain in the old days of the Inquisition could not equal in ingenuity or pitilessness." More conscientious study and observance of the divine laws of health would render unnecessary that profundity of knowledge and surprising skill of the doctor which demands the inexpressible torture of God's creatures.

At the magic call of our wide-awake organizers, new unions are springing into life all over the state, while the increase of membership in the older organizations is a glad surprise even to the most hopeful. The five city unions and those of suburban towns have had large accessions since our seceding sisters' convention, notably Berea, Brooklyn, and Mayfield, the latter having nearly trebled within a few months. Reports from other localities are equally refreshing. This unusual growth is largely the result of enforced and repeated statements and explanations of the principles, aims, methods, and work of our beloved organization. Editorials and controversial articles have helped to awaken an interest. Intelligent women are now considering the temperance question as never before in relation to individual responsibility. They see the danger to their own homes, woman's need and woman's duty, and the result is they are reporting at headquarters.

What the House of the Interpreter was to Bunyan's Pilgrim, a place of instruction and refreshment, this mid-year meeting proved to the earnest Christian women who for two full days and evenings discussed questions of vital importance to the state work. It is not possible for even "our own" in all cases to see alike as to methods, but never was the "one mind" spirit regarding the great end sought, more clearly manifested. Individuals so diverse in temperaments and habitudes, yet standing side by side when the battle is on, their hearts thrilled with the same holy purpose and bound together with a little white ribbon! This miracle of grace has ceased to surprise us.

A pleasant break in the business of the first day was a visit to the Central W. C. T. U. headquarters, consisting of two fine rooms, well located and beautifully furnished. After a brief, but delightful social, we were called to order by the president, Mrs. T. K. Doty, and short speeches were made by Mrs. S. M. Perkins and others; a tender prayer was offered by Mrs. A. H. Clevenger. This little informal meeting was closed by singing:

" Sowing in the sunshine, sowing in the shadow,
Fearing neither clouds nor winter's chilling breeze;
By and by, the harvest and the labor ended,
We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves."

Surely it is sweet to work for the Lord of the harvest.

HANNAH A. FOSTER,
Special Correspondent.

BROWN COUNTY CONVENTION.

This was held at Higginsport, Thursday, March 20, and was one of the most interesting meetings we have ever held in the county. Five unions were represented, and the local attendance was unusually large. Mrs. D. V. Pearson, county president, presided in her usual happy manner. Miss Stella Drake acted as organist, furnishing very excellent music. Quite a number of papers were read; a most interesting one by Mrs. Bell, state superintendent of Sabbath observance, on her line of work, one by Miss Berry, county superintendent of scientific temperance instruction, as to the nature and progress of her work, and another by Miss Boyer, our district president, on "Franchise," which met with warm approval.

Much gratitude is expressed to the officers of the Christian church for their kindness in giving so freely the use of the building, and to their ministers, Revs. Burnett and Long, we feel especially grateful for the interest and sympathy they manifested in the work and for their words of encouragement. And to Rev. C. L. Singer, also, who was a most welcome visitor in company with the Feesburg union, which was organized at the last convention, and reported fourteen members and fourteen subscribers to THE UNION SIGNAL. A warm welcome was given by the Higginsport people, which was heartily appreciated. The next convention will be held in Georgetown on flower mission day.

R. A. O'HARA.

CONNECTICUT.

JOTTINGS.

From Meriden comes this interesting item: "During the past year our membership has greatly increased. We have moved into, furnished and fitted up rooms for our use. We have a hall named 'White Ribbon Hall,' a nice parlor, kitchen and pantry, ante-room, and two closets. A Y has been organized with a good membership, though they have not yet succeeded in finding a president. They gave 'Ye Hatchet Partie' the evening of February 21, and not only were the hall and parlor packed, but the outside halls and stairways. The admission was free, but cake and cream were sold after the entertainment. The young ladies performed their parts to such satisfaction of all good judges that they have requests to repeat it.

"The Loyal Temperance Legion started off finely when we had a place for it to meet, and the leader, Miss Josephine Lockrow, is full of enthusiasm in the work. The attendance is lessened very much by the present 'small-pox scare.' We hold gospel temperance meetings in our hall every Sunday afternoon, and hope some souls will be saved. Every Tuesday evening we open our rooms to all women and girls who please to come in and make themselves at home. We have books, magazines, and papers, games, writing materials and a fine piano. Sometimes we have a little entertainment or light refreshments, free to all. There have been classes formed in physical culture and elocution, which meet also in this 'open house' evenings, and it is expected that other classes will be formed later." The president of this union, Mrs. C. A. Holmes, was elected county president recently, and felt obliged to resign as president of the local union, Mrs. H. I. Smith being elected to take her place. Mrs. Holmes was well qualified to preside at her home union, and none the less to fill the position of president of her county.

From Newington comes the good news that "We are doing something," and it is evident that they are, for they distribute literature, hold Loyal Temperance Legion meetings, send temperance papers and books to families, and report that their W. C. T. U. meetings are the best attended women's meetings that are held in the town. They have had a large number of Demorest medal contests and have conducted an exercise, "A Temperance Picnic," which was a success.

South Norwalk is very much alive: "The W. C. T. U., the Y's, also the Reform and Prohibition Clubs are all uniting forces in one grand effort to raise funds to buy a lot on which to erect a temperance hall. Our place of meeting is not adequate for our needs, and we cannot do the good work that we are anxious to accomplish without a better place in which to work. Some think we are too ambitious, for we purpose to erect a two story brick building in the center of the city, the ground floor to be devoted to a hall and reading room, the upper floor to be a hall to rent. We have made a good beginning, and feel assured that although the work is hard and the workers few, we shall see our labors crowned with success."

South Norwalk Y has under its supervision a Band of Hope numbering about ninety members. A meeting for study is held once a week, and a public meeting on the first Friday evening in every month. The Y also conducts Sunday afternoon meetings, alternating with the W. C. T. U.

Goshen has a small union which is working faithfully to secure scientific temperance teaching in the school, having supplemented the text-books provided by the state by more desirable ones. This union has held three Demorest medal contests.

Windsor Locks union held its annual meeting January 30, and reported for the past eleven months. This union supports a library and reading room, and the treasurer's report showed a goodly sum of money received and expended and a small balance on hand.

A "hard times party" was held in Burnap's hall, February 26, for the benefit of the reading room. A farmer's supper, consisting of meats, baked beans, pumpkin pie, Indian pudding, etc., was served from six to eight o'clock, the price of supper for adults being nineteen cents and for children under ten years old nine cents. Hulled corn and milk were sold at nine cents a dish, besides home-made candy, pop-corn and useful household articles. There was also a variety of entertainments during the evening; the members of the W. C. T. U. and Loyal Temperance Legion appeared in hard times costume. Admission was nine cents and children half price. This party was a success; every person, so far as known, was satisfied, and those outside the union were as well pleased as those who belong to the organization.

The New London Y has opened rooms for working girls to occupy at noon time, and they will also have access to them two evenings in the week, when they will be open for reading and social recreation.

The Hartford Y held a reception January 24, which was an entire success; the exercises were very pleasant, and light refreshments were served. Some interesting exercises added to the pleasure of the evening and several names were secured to the pledge book.

At a regular meeting of Company J, Litchfield division Loyal Temperance Legion, the members of the W. C. T. U. presented Mr. F. H. Sawyer with a fine book as a token of their appreciation of his faithful service as secretary. During the two years since its organization he has not been absent. This Legion has added blackboard temperance outline lessons to their session. The artist having charge is one of their own members.

One of the oldest W. C. T. U. workers has passed away, Mrs. M. P. Bush of Niantic, aged seventy-five. Having been for many years president of the union, she resigned only when her health demanded it, and on January 16 presided at the tenth anniversary of the union with an ease quite remarkable for a woman of such advanced years. Soon the sad word went out that she had passed from earth, and at the day and hour for the next meeting her friends gathered around the casket that held her loved form, placing upon it some sweet flowers knotted with white ribbon. For more than sixty years she had lived in the town, always identified with and interested in every good cause. Her friends will long remember her with loving thoughts.

Another faithful worker was called to her reward January 8, Mrs. A. A. Smith, secretary of the Stratford union. She was a consecrated laborer, ever listening to the call for workers, never wearying in well-doing, always full of sympathy for sorrowing ones. She has entered into the joy of her Lord.

Mrs. Ella Rowe Dudley, former superintendent of Y work in this state, whose death is mourned by all the young women of the union to which she has ever been a true friend and kind leader, was a member of New Haven W. C. T. U. No. 2. The motherless daughter and son have the sympathy of a large circle of friends. From the very first of her illness she felt that the Master's call had come, and she responded with gladness. She has gone to her reward, and we are sure it is that which is promised to the faithful.

The union in Stepney within the past six months has held five Demorest medal contests. The members consider them a great educational force—as they are well attended and very popular. They are preparing for the sixth. They take sixty-four copies of The Young Crusader and find them invaluable in the Sunday-schools. Their gospel temperance meetings, which are held one Sunday evening in each month, are both interesting and helpful. Their most promising work is in the Loyal Temperance Legion, of which they have two companies. Co. D has recently taken up the Chautauqua Spare Minute Course in addition to its regular work.

Hope Ledyard has been holding a series of meetings under the auspices of the Hartford W. C. T. U., which were continued through the week commencing Monday, February 10. She spoke to girls Monday evening, to women Tuesday afternoon, and to boys Tuesday evening; Wednesday afternoon to women again, and in the evening to an audience of young men at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Rev. Graham Taylor and Rev. Mr. Tompkins indorsed and aided her in her work with boys and men.

M. BELLE SMITH,
Special Correspondent.

VIRGINIA.

MRS. BARNEY'S WORK.

Mrs. J. K. Barney, National superintendent of prison and jail work, W. C. T. U., left Richmond the first of April after a visit of about twenty-four hours. She went via Hampton and Norfolk to North Carolina. It is much regretted that previously made engagements prevented her remaining several days longer in our city. With such a short time between coming and going there was little time for her special work, and no time to meet W. C. T. U. workers, and the Y's who would so gladly have listened to the message she had for us. In company with the writer the president of the Richmond Y. W. C. T. U. and several young ladies belonging to the Y's, Mrs. Barney visited Station house No. 1, the state penitentiary, and the city jail.

The superintendent of the penitentiary gave her a cordial welcome and permission to see everything. We went through the shoe factory and visited other parts of the buildings and grounds. Mrs. Barney expressed herself as pleased with the cleanliness and order everywhere, and was especially gratified to learn of the religious privileges allowed the inmates.

The system of convict labor, which fully occupies the morning of every day, except Sundays and national holidays, prevented her from having an opportunity to speak to the convicts. This was unavoidable, as a stoppage of work without notice would have caused great loss to the institution. The superintendent expressed himself emphatically in favor of a prison matron, which we hope to get after awhile.

It is with pleasure we state that Mrs. Barney's traveling expenses and hack hire were paid by the Richmond Y's. This unexpected free-will offering was a pleasant surprise to Mrs. Barney, and a gratification to us all. We need not tell you who know this dear worker that our hearts follow her on her way, praying God always to help her in her work, prepare the ways for her, and keep her in the hollow of His hand, these perilous times of travel by land or by sea.

MRS. THOS. WHITEHEAD,
State Supt. Press Work.

WISCONSIN.

WORK AT BLACK RIVER FALLS.

In this city, on April 1, the question of license or no-license was voted upon, no-license carrying by a majority of seventy-seven. Taking into consideration the fact that we have been under rum rule for six continuous years, and that the boys from the woods on whom saloon-keepers have hitherto depended for their majority were in the city, this is a great victory. The happy result was due to a combination of causes, of which I desire to mention two.

Both enemies and friends of the cause give the ladies of the W. C. T. U. credit for swelling the majority. These ladies opened a coffee room two days preceding election, furnishing free lunch to all who desired to partake. The room was made a rallying place for all friends of temperance; there no-license literature was distributed, and many a doubtful one was strengthened in these interviews. The ladies, not satisfied with these narrow limits, went to the iron furnace and upon the streets, pleaded and reasoned with men, securing pledge after pledge from them to vote for no-license. With scarcely an exception they were treated respectfully, listened to courteously and attentively, in spite of the fact that the streets were lined with the boys from the woods, and that the saloon-keepers and their helpers were out in full force.

The ladies of a W. C. T. U. in a neighboring city met and prayed during the day of election; license carried there by a majority of one. We congratulate ourselves that we added efficient work to prayer. We hope our example may encourage other women to take a practical part in future conflicts with the saloon. The second factor to which I referred was the woodsmen. Some did noble work electioneering among their comrades, and many of these whose winter's earnings were already in the saloon-keepers' hands, worked and voted to help us gain the day. The sentiment expressed by the drinking boys was this: "If there is no saloon we won't drink so much. So long as it runs and we have a cent, in we'll go and spend it, and even if they do sell on the sly, we won't go in once then where we go a dozen times now." Many were brave enough to don the white ribbon, which seemed to be a no-license badge that day. One man who had more than smelled liquor, was twitted as to having no right to wear the ribbon. He cleared himself by saying that he voted no-license.

We are encouraged to do more and better work in the lumber camps, and if many who labor under the impression that this work is all thrown away, could only know how many brave hearts and true there are among them, and how intelligent the majority are, they would be convinced that there is some of the best soil to work upon.

In the depths of the forest, no saloon near to break the quiet of the Sabbath and dispense brain-clogging beverages, with very little literature of any kind with which to while away spare moments, there is nothing to hinder the boys from drinking in the thoughts our literature would put before them. The seed there sown upon fertile soil could be rendered still more productive of good by the boys if they were given as hearty a welcome by temperance friends when they come from the camps as they now receive at the hands of saloon-keepers. C. S. H.

LOUISIANA.

ORGANIZATION WORK.

For the past month I have been speaking on an average twice a day, and have been like poor Joe, "always moving on." I began at Morgan City and went across to the western borders of the state along the line of the Southern Pacific railroad. Then began work on the Texas and Pacific route, holding meetings in all places of any size. I have thus far organized, or re-organized, five unions, and have secured a large number of signers to the total abstinence pledge. In two or three places where I have spoken public work for woman was entirely unknown, and was considered an innovation upon old-time proprieties. In these conservative places I simply sowed the good seed, and we must wait for the harvest. In some parts of this state public opinion is very liberal, and I have twice this month been invited to fill pulpits at the eleven o'clock service on Sabbath morning. On a recent Saturday night I spoke in the St. James Episcopal church at Alexandria to a large audience. Our opening services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Duncan, the rector of the church, in truly Episcopal style. His introductory remarks showed his hearty appreciation of woman's work in Christian temperance.

I would love to give to your readers a pen picture of the beautiful country through which I have traveled, "the Teche where it flows through the green Opelousas," that land where Evangeline, "urged by a restless longing, the hunger and thirst of the spirit," sought for her lover Gabriel.

"Beautiful is the land, with its prairies and forests of fruit trees;
Under the feet a garden of flowers, and the bluest of heavens
Bending above and resting its dome on the walls of the forest;
They who dwell there have named it the Eden of Louisiana."

Natchitoches is one of the oldest towns in the United States, only two places older, I believe. I hope to send you in a few days very interesting statistics, comparing the parishes of Sabine and Natchitoches. They are adjoining parishes and are in the same judicial district. The first has had prohibition for some years, the latter is a license parish. These statistics are convincing proof of the good and desirable effects of prohibitory law. The judge of the district as well as the district attorney told me of the wonderful change wrought in Sabine by prohibitory law. Before the days of prohibition the criminal docket was more than full—awful cases of crime came before the courts, and most of the term was taken up with criminal cases brought about by liquor. Now the reverse is true; scarcely a criminal case; there is a surplus of money in the parish treasury; they have built a fine new court house; there is not a piece of mortgaged property in the parish, and the people, white and colored, enjoy the privileges of an enlightened, sober, prosperous parish.

If time and space permitted, there are many things of real historic and literary interest of which I could write. Near Chopin station, just above here, the spot is pointed out where once stood "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The Louisiana convention will be held at Ruston, La., April 18-20. I expect to attend, and then shall continue my work, going eastward. MARY READ GOODALE, Nat. Organizer.

INDIANA.

MADISON COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. met in convention at Pendleton, March 11. Opened at 10:30 a. m. with consecration meeting conducted by the county president, Mrs. M. V. Underhill.

The afternoon services opened at two o'clock. Mrs. A. A. Truitt conducted the exercises. Prayer by the state president, Mrs. Nichols. Committees on enrollment, finance and resolutions were appointed. Miss Mollie Hay presented the matter of state, county and local finance, speaking upon and defining the duties of the treasurer of each department. Mrs. Gee read a paper on "Evangelistic Work." The subject was opened for discussion by the convention, and Miss Hay, Mrs. Nichols, and a number of our county ladies took part in the discussion. Miss Hay then presented the claims of the Organizer, and opened a club for twenty, which was filled.

Evening services were opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. L. E. Cook; addresses of welcome by Rev. A. S. Rogers, of M. E. church; response by Mrs. Hunter, president of Elwood union. "Temperance Anthem" was rendered by the choir. Mrs. Nichols then gave us one of her grandest talks upon "Woman's Work in Temperance," the causes that promote the great evil, and the remedy for the disease. She concluded by arraigning the politicians, the press, the churches and the voters, for their conspiracy with the leaders of the rum power to hinder the tide of prohibition of the rum traffic.

At the Wednesday morning services, devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Behymer. Reports from local unions were called. Miss Hay reported the organization of two new unions during the first week of March, one at Summitville, with sixteen members, and one at Alexandria, with twenty members. Miss Clara Sink, secretary of Anderson union, reported favorably. Work in the union is growing in interest, new members coming at every meeting, and the society is deeply interested in all its branches of work. Mrs. Teague gave an excellent paper on "Social Purity," which called out talks from nearly every member of the convention. An earnest talk was made by Mrs. Truitt on "Impure Literature." Miss Hay gave a talk on "Young Women's Work in the Union." "A Mother's Duty to her Boys," was a subject that was given the largest latitude in discussion, and really proved to be the most earnest work of the session.

It was resolved that the county union be made an incorporated body with headquarters at Anderson. Anderson union reported herself an individual by virtue of incorporation.

Pendleton W. C. T. U. was then organized with Mrs. M. A. Teague, as president. The election of county officers followed, resulting as follows: Mrs. M. V. Underhill, of Anderson, president; Mrs. Lydia E. Cook, Anderson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ellen Rogers, Pendleton, recording secretary; Mrs. Hopkins, of Elwood, treasurer.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted declaring loyalty to the state and National W. C. T. U. and to Miss Willard as leader; urging press work, efforts on behalf of social purity, obtaining a law forbidding the manufacture and sale of cigarettes, also the transmission through the mails of impure literature, including the Police Gazette; opposing license high or low; tendering sincere thanks for all courtesies received during the convention, and expressing special appreciation of the presence and help of Mrs. J. R. Nichols, Mrs. A. A. Truitt and Miss Mollie Hay. After singing "God be with you till we meet again," the convention closed with the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Davis. GERTIE E. PATTON, Sec.

NEW YORK.

THE CIGARETTE BILL.

I am rejoiced to learn of the faithfulness of our white-ribboners in their efforts to aid in securing the amendment to the bill prohibiting the sale of tobacco and cigarettes to persons under sixteen years of age. It was a great mystery to our legislators what created such an uprising of the people on this question during the month of March, and there was much wondering in Albany why so many hundred letters should be written on that subject at that particular time. I am deeply grateful to all my sisters who so promptly and cheerfully responded to my call for help, but the battle is only half won, and we must continue our efforts for a time if we gain the victory.

The amendment is just what is needed to make the bill effective and save our boys. It has passed the Senate and gone to the Assembly. The senator who so kindly aided us, writes me that we shall need to write many letters urging the assemblymen to give it their immediate attention and influence. I fear if we allow it to remain in the Assembly long before its passage it may die in the hands of the Governor. Will you, dear sister, who read this, write to your Assemblyman and induce three or four others to do so? Should you desire to send the following "Opinions of Prominent Educators" (which I find have been very helpful), send me a postal at once telling me how many letters you can be instrumental in having written, and I will send you one copy for each letter immediately.

You doubtless understand that our trouble in enforcing our law has been that the boys would not tell where they purchased cigarettes, or would induce older boys to buy for them, and many parents do not understand the danger threatening their boys and are perfectly indifferent in regard to the matter. These fathers we can never arouse until we touch their pockets. Our amendment is to fine the boy under sixteen who is found smoking in any public place, street or resort. In Connecticut this clause has made the law effective, and with your earnest coöperation a little longer we may have a law which will save the boys of our own state. Believing you will surely help gain this victory, I am yours in the work for humanity. MRS. HELEN L. BULLOCK, Elmira, N. Y. State Supt. of Narcotics.

PENNSYLVANIA.

ACTIVITY IN CHESTER COUNTY.

The W. C. T. U. of Kennett Square is more wide-awake than it has ever been. It seems to hold a monopoly in meetings and public entertainments here. For the past year there has been scarcely any show for any one else. The union has kept up a steady fire since the opening of the amendment campaign a year ago. The defeat seems to have had no effect upon the ladies except to increase their energy. The three consecutive meetings held the first week in April, opening with a Demorest silver medal contest on Friday evening, April 4, were calculated to "tone up" the lassitude of any community. The competitors for the medal were eight youths and maidens from the ranks of the Loyal Temperance Legion. Miss Lottie Mabie secured the prize, and each of the other contestants was presented with a book. On the Saturday evening following, Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, of Michigan, one of the most stirring orators of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, delivered a powerful address on "Gospel in Politics," and on Sunday evening Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Quakers united in a public service in the Boro' Hall to consider the temperance and Sabbath questions. Again the principal speaker was Mrs. Lathrap. The house was packed, and she held the closest attention for about an hour.

"Fit words attended on her mighty sense
And mild persuasion flowed in eloquence."

The ministers present spoke also upon the Sabbath question, and arraigned severely the Sunday newspaper. The choirs of the churches furnished the music, and all the people joined in singing the familiar hymns. Mrs. Lathrap leaves behind her here those who have the warmest feeling for her, and much admiration for the wonderful gift that makes her such a successful platform speaker. A hearty welcome awaits her whenever she can return to us. She spoke in Oxford the next Monday; Tuesday in Christiana, Wednesday in Coatesville, and Friday in West Chester. LAURA E. JOHNSON, Press Supt. Chester Co.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

THE ladies of Guthrie, Indian Territory, met March 27, organized a W. C. T. U. and elected officers. They have twenty-one members, all intelligent Christian women devoted to temperance interests. Mrs. Maggie Rhodes was elected president. Guthrie is spoken of as the future capital of Oklahoma, that land of promise, and it is good to know that the temperance work has made so good a beginning there.

DR. JULIA PLUMMER, assistant superintendent of work for the promotion of social purity in the National W. C. T. U., is prominent in Christian work at Berkeley Temple, Boston. Talks to mothers and to young women have been given by her with large attendance and great encouragement, the past winter.

BEAUTIFUL resolutions were passed by the Lee Summit, Mo., W. C. T. U., concerning the death of Mrs. Minerva Orrick, who passed away to her eternal reward January 16, 1890. While they sorrow not as those who have no hope, yet her loss is deeply felt, and her noble life work testifies to her character as a loyal friend to temperance and a self-sacrificing Christian in all the walks of life.

ELIZABETH M. HAUGHTON, who is doing evangelistic work in Texas, has changed her residence from Odessa to Midland, and would be glad to hear from any one interested in this line of work.

A PENNSYLVANIA correspondent writes as follows: "The W. C. T. U. of Pennsylvania lives, moves and has a being; from all parts of the state come words of cheer. The unions are busy now with scientific temperance instruction, so that our good law may exist in the spirit as well as in the letter. At headquarters, 1305 Arch street, the click of two type-writers, the folding of literature for distribution, and the preparation of our state paper, The Bulletin, the answering of questions almost constantly, as well as calls from workers of our own and other states,—all these things fill up the days, and we find them, indeed, too short. We have not the time for the discussion of side issues; our department work demands and has all our time, instructing unions, new and old, as to what the superintendents of the different departments should do. We expect to make our state paper attractive and helpful, so that it may prove a blessing to every home which it enters. Our subscription list is gratifying, and each day grows larger."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The annual convention of the Michigan W. C. T. U. will be held in Jackson, May 20-23, in the First M. E. church. Send names of delegates to Mrs. D. P. Sagendorph, 701 First street, Jackson, chairman of committee of entertainment. There will be a meeting of the executive committee at Mrs. Lathrap's residence, 131 Stewart avenue, Monday, May 19, at 4 p. m. Miss Willard and Miss Gordon, Colonel Bain, and other speakers will be present, and a fine musical program is arranged.
MRS. MARY T. LATHRAP, Pres.
MRS. EMMA A. WHEELER, Sec.

The third convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of the Dominion of Canada, will be held at Montreal, May 28, 29 and 30. The sessions will be held in Erskine church until Friday evening, when Miss Willard (president of the World's and National W. C. T. U.) will give a lecture in St. James Methodist church; she will also speak in Erskine church on Wednesday evening. The entertainment of all officers and delegates will be provided for by the Montreal W. C. T. U., who also invite us to spend a social evening together before the convention opens, at the Evangelistic Hall, 2260 St. Catherine street, on Tuesday evening, May 27. The corresponding secretary will arrange with the railroad companies for reduced rates, and will give due notice to the provincial secretaries when the certificates are ready for distribution. ELLEN G. FOSTER, Pres.
Knowlton, P. Q.
JULIA TILLEY, Cor. Sec.
96 John St., Toronto.

The fifteenth annual convention of the sixth congressional district of Michigan will be held in Flushing, April 29–May 1. Reports of four county presidents, several district superintendents, papers and discussions, with a gold medal contest, and a lecture by Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, give promise of a delightful meeting.
MRS. D. M. GARNER, Pres.

The annual convention of the second district W. C. T. U., of Ohio, counties of Portage, Trumbull and Mahoning will be held at Kent, Portage county, May 6. Delegates from all local unions in the district, and all temperance workers most cordially invited to attend.
LUCINDA M. DAVIS, Pres.
F H BROWN, Cor. Sec.

Official Communications.

PRESS DEPARTMENT.

All editors of W. C. T. U., state or local papers are earnestly requested to send the name and address with a sample copy of their paper to Miss Mary Henry, national superintendent of press work, Evanston, Ill. I am very desirous of making a complete list of W. C. T. U papers and shall be glad to exchange the National Press Bulletin with any state organ. MARY HENRY,
Nat. Press Supt.

PEACE DEPARTMENT.

GENERAL PEACE DAY.

We respectfully desire that all local unions shall, where it is practicable, observe the first Sabbath in June as a "general peace day" by holding a public meeting in the interests of peace. Printed programs and suggestions can be obtained of the National superintendent of the department of peace and arbitration, Mrs. H. J. Bailey, Winthrop Center, Me., or of any state superintendent of this department. Please send stamp for postage.

If anything prevents holding the meeting on the Sabbath above named, we hope it will be held on a day or evening of the week following.
FRANCES E. WILLARD, Pres.
MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Rec. Sec.
HANNAH J. BAILEY, Supt. Dept. Peace.

'When Pain Ceases to be Tolerable, It Destroys."

But why wait until it becomes intolerable? Read what Compound Oxygen has accomplished in the most severe and obstinate cases. Lose no time, but send for our brochure of 200 pages, a Treatise on Compound Oxygen, with numerous testimonials. Here is a specimen:

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN:—"I began taking your Compound Oxygen Treatment on the 20th of last June for that most insidious and baffling of all diseases, neuralgia. My two months' Treatment lasted me nearly four months. Everyone thinks my cure is wonderful, in so short a time, after such long and terrible suffering." MRS. A. J. SHIRK, Fort Bidwell, Modoc county, Cal., October 6, 1888.

Brochure sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, California.

Publisher's Notes.

★ Star Offer Workers. ★

A Great Success!

The Star Offer plan. Below we give the names of recent recruits to the army. Come and join them. How does knowledge increase? What makes God's Word more powerful every year? How do missionaries do His work?

By One (You?) Speaking to One:

Just that. To build, bricks must be placed one above another, one at a time. To build against the saloon there must be contact; elbows must first touch, then minds and hearts. Elbows push away sometimes? Yes, but gently touch the one that pushes away THE UNION SIGNAL and give a good reason for the faith that is in you with pleasant persistence, and the victory will be yours. Try the personal contact plan? Start in by being a Star Worker?

Maggie F. Snider, Monroe City, Mo.
H. M. Gamble, Mt. Morris, N. Y
Mary A. Clark, Powell, Ohio.
Mrs. E. A. Parmalee, New Portage, Ohio.
Mrs. M. A. Merrick, Wrightstown, Pa.
Mrs. E. M. White, Putnam, Conn.
M. E. Hewett, Glen Elder, Kans.
Nellie C. Gibbs, Encinitas, Cal.
M. I. Frost, Carmel, Ind.
Louisa M. Newby, Kennard, Ind.
Mrs. E. A. Ferris, Burwell, Neb.
Mrs. E. L. Baker, Union Springs, N. Y.
E. S. Boyd, Laramie, Wyo.
Mattie Kirkpatrick, Lynnville, Ind.
Mrs. M. J. Stevenson, Logansport, Ind.
Miss Lucina Bass, Webster, N. Y.
Sarah A. Hilton, Anderson, Cal.
Mrs. D. Robertson, Coral, S. Dak.
Mrs. Dr. H. J. Stalker, Mauston, Wis.
Mrs. A. E. Cox, Rowenton, Ohio.
Mrs. C. G. Hall, Oxbow, Neb.
Mrs. Mary L. Clark, McKean, Pa.
Mrs. Hattie Bliss, Swan Creek, Ill.
Mrs. J. S. Baker, New Salem, Kan.
Mrs. H. F. Jencks, Havana, Ill.
Mrs. H. E. Reader, Marietta, Ohio.
Mrs. L. A. Baker, 1020 Lake St., Elmira, N. Y.
Sallie Phillips, Millsboro, Pa.
Mrs. Geo. B. Cleveland, Johnville, Quebec
Mrs. S. J. Dinsmore, Des Moines, Iowa.
Mrs. R. S. Waterton, So. Newbury, Ohio.
Mrs. Vina Richards, Carleton, Mich.
M. L. Hobbs, Ireland, Ind.

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

From Mrs. Lucy A. Scott, author of "Boys and Other Boys," etc.: "I wish to tell you how pleased I am with all the publications of the W. T. P. A. Not only the moral tone, but the mechanical part seems to me very fine. It is altogether a publishing enterprise of which every W. C. T. U. woman, and every Christian woman may well be proud. And I believe the time will come when it shall be numbered among the most popular and successful in our land. When you are weary and perplexed, remember that you are helping to lay the foundations of that 'public sentiment' so often mentioned, which shall utterly repudiate the corrupt in politics, in society, everywhere. Why, I feel proud that I have a few little cobblestones wedged into the niches!"

The New York Accident Insurance Co., of which Gen. Clinton B. Fisk is President, has secured admission into fourteen of the leading states, and is doing a handsome business. Experienced solicitors can make very desirable contracts with the company. Write at once to Charles T. Hopper, Sec'y, 96 Broadway, New York, for terms and territory.

MR. W. J. THORNTON, Macon, Ga., says: I consider Bradycrotine the best remedy for the Headache I have ever tried.

Plain Talk

is a handsome illustrated monthly paper for young people. Bright, clean, pure and interesting. A welcome visitor both for children and parents.

If you wish to see PLAIN TALK before subscribing for your boys or girls, send a 2c. stamp, and it will be sent you three months on trial; or, to any reader who will send us a list of 10 or more young people of her acquaintance, together with 10 cents in silver or stamps, we will send it one year free. This offer is worth accepting. PLAIN TALK PUBLISHING CO., 5 Beekman St., New York.

BEECHAM'S PILLS act like magic on a weak stomach

Van Houten's Cocoa Largest sale in the world.

A Scientific Wonder.

We would call especial attention to an advertisement in another column of our paper, of a new and safe wick for oil stoves and lamps. Being a non-conductor of heat generates no gas, hence no danger of explosion. Gives better light, needs no trimming, emits no unpleasant odors. We give one of the many testimonials received

Gents:—Your sample of patent wick was received. I have used it every night since. Am much pleased with it, as it gives a clear, bright light, is a great improvement, with which the people will be pleased. Forward my order at once, and oblige

D. D. CHITTENDEN.

Lady Agents wanted, also men in every state to sell our Rug Machine, Patterns, Yarn, etc. Write for catalogue and particulars at once. Gibbs Mfg. Co., 88 State St., Chicago.

BEECHAM'S PILLS
ACT LIKE MAGIC ON A WEAK STOMACH.
25cts. a Box
OF ALL DRUGGISTS.

AGENTS WANTED by an old reliable firm; large profits, quick sales, SAMPLE FREE. A rare opportunity. Geo. A. Scott, 842 Broadway, N. Y.

WOMEN WANTED Unexperienced to solicit orders for roses, vines shrubs, etc., at home or traveling. Light, healthful, interesting employment. Good pay weekly. Handsome outfit free. BROWN BROS., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

SEE ADVERTISEMENT OF STANDARD
FIBER-WARE
IN NEXT WEEK'S "UNION SIGNAL"

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

$12.50 Buys a $65 Improved Singer SEWING MACHINE 60 days' trial. Free Catalogue. Warranted five years. OXFORD MFG. CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

CATALOGUE FREE For Agents, Illustrating Useful Household articles & good selling Novelties. LAUBE COOKER CO., PARK RIDGE, ILL.

PURE GRAPE JUICE. EMMA M. TAYLOR 29 Bow St., WOBURN, MASS.

OPIUM Morphine or Whisky Habit cured in 11 to 21 days. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Address The Compound Oxygen Ass'n, Ft. Wayne, Ind

CURLING IRON mailed for 10cts. To make new customers. Wood handle; non-conducting thumb spring; polished steel. Worth 50c. Big catalogue free. A. T. Evans & Co., Chicago.

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND
Sent on receipt of price and waist measure.
Fitted band 75 cts. | Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367,
Plain band 30 cts. | Minneapolis, Minn.

WOULD YOU?
WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F" CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 79 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

LADY AGENTS WANTED—ALSO MEN. Two immense new specialties; 1 lady made $27 before dinner, another $16 the first hour; extraordinary opportunity; proof free. Ad., LITTLE & CO., 214 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

AYER'S COMPLEXION CREAM.
Unequaled for clearing, whitening and beautifying the complexion, removes wrinkles, pimples and facial blemishes. Recommended by leading physicians. Small size, 25; large size, 50c.
Ayer Mfg. Co., 69 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ills.

$50 OUTFIT ON 30 DAYS' TIME TO AGENTS Guarantee $150 profits in four weeks or no pay, to travel or work at home. No competition. C. JARVIS & CO., Racine, WIS.

NEW BOOK
WOMAN AND HEALTH.
By M. Augusta Fairchild, M. D. Price $2.50. More Agents wanted. Address Healthery, 537 Broadway, Quincy, Ill.
School of Vital Science, 1121 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. March 31, 1890.
We have examined "Woman and Health," by M. Augusta Fairchild, Quincy, Ill., and declare it A. 1. Practical Hygiene. VICTOR B. HALL, Principal.

Wholesale & Retail. Many long in use. Old Baths renewed. Agents wanted.
Send for Circulars. E. J. KNOWLTON, Ann Arbor, Mich.

TEACHERS Register NOW and secure positions in the Colleges, Seminaries and Schools of the South and South-west. Vacancies are occurring every day. Registration fee $2. Send stamp for blank. American Bureau of Education, Room 32, Cole Building, Nashville, Tenn.

STANLEY'S OWN STORY.
5,000 Agents Wanted. New Book. Only authorized volume. Fully illustrated. Over 800 large pages. Complete canvassing outfit and book mailed for only 50 cents. Be quick.
NATIONAL PUB. CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE COZY GRATE. CHARLES L. PAGE, Agent. Send for circulars. Sure remedy for smoky chimneys. 349 Wabash Av CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THERE ARE MANY USES FOR SAPOLIO.

To clean tombstones. To renew oil-cloth. To renovate paint. To brighten metals.
To polish knives. To scrub floors. To wash out sinks. To scour bath-tubs.
To clean dishes. To whiten marble. To remove rust. To scour kettles.

EVERYBODY USES IT.

Dentists to clean false teeth.
Surgeons to polish their instruments.
Confectioners to scour their pans.
Mechanics to brighten their tools.
Cooks to clean the kitchen sink.
Painters to clean off surfaces.
Engineers to clean parts of machines.
Ministers to renovate old chapels.
Sextons to clean the tombstones.
Hostlers on brasses and white horses.
Artists to clean their palattes.
Wheelman to clean bicycles.
Housemaids to scrub marble floors.
Chemists to remove some stains.
Carvers to sharpen their knives.
Shrewd ones to scour old straw hats
Soldiers to brighten their arms.
Renovators to clean carpets.

EVERY ONE FINDS A NEW USE.

Stock Holders' Excursion.

To Harriman, the Key City of the South,

On Monday, May 5th, an excursion party will leave Chicago for the new Prohibition city of the South. By applying to the undersigned a rate for ROUND TRIP can be secured of ONLY $19.65, Chicago to Harriman and return, good for thirty days. A RARE OPPORTUNITY to visit the NEW SOUTH in the BEAUTIFUL MONTH OF MAY.

Prohibition Progress

THE

EAST TENNESSEE LAND COMPANY

owns Three Hundred Thousand Acres of Land rich in valuable iron ores and coking coal, covered with valuable timber and fully FIVE-SIXTHS of it being WELL ADAPTED TO AGRICULTURE. A small portion of STOCK is still offered for sale at PAR. The Company's entire capital is but $3,000,000 while $750,000 has already been realized from the sale of lots in Harriman alone with several hundred times as much land yet to sell.

New City of Harriman

Only two months old, has now over two hundred buildings completed; a population of over 1,700 people, with Electric Lights, Saw Mills, Brick Kilns, Stone Quarries, two Banks, new stores of all kinds, post-office and telegraph station, new hotels, new churches and NO SALOONS. Many buildings and manufacturing plants in process of construction.

For FULL PARTICULARS relative to EXCURSION and STOCK call on or address

JAMES B. HOBBS,
Northwestern General Agent,
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

A. A. HOPKINS, Secretary,
Times Building, NEW YORK.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER.
Perpetual Lamp Wick for oil stoves and lamps. Received first premium from New York State Fair. Also medal from American Institute. No trimming, no gas, no explosion. Rare Inducements to agents. Sample 15c.; two for 25c. Address Electric Institute, 124 Union St., Newark, N. J.

WHY DO MOTHERS put stiff Corsets on growing girls? We beg of you, Don't do it. Try the "GOOD SENSE" Corset Waist—fit all ages

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

$60 SALARY $40 EXPENSES IN ADVANCE allowed each month. Steady employment at home or traveling. No soliciting. Duties delivering and making collections. No Postal Cards. Address with stamp, HAFER & CO., Piqua, O.

WE WANT 1,000 BRIGHT BOYS OR GIRLS. To whom we can give employment in a way that will be easy and pleasant. The preliminary work can be done after school hours—an hour a week after that will suffice to bring in a profit of from 20 cents to $2.00 a week.
SEND FOR PARTICULARS TO
The Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n
161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

The Ladies' Friend WASHER is not given away. To introduce it I will sell at cost where there are no Agents on ten days' trial. If it does not excel in quality and quantity of work, it will cost you nothing. Circulars free. WRINGERS AT COST. AGENTS make $5 to $10 per day. Address B. F. ARNOLD, M'f'r, DAYTON, OHIO.

WHOOPING COUGH REMEDY DELAVAU'S

Dispels whoop, allays cough and cuts short the disease. Its peculiar anti-spasmodic action insures sleep and is perfectly harmless. Especially effective in dry, Hacking Coughs. For the sudden dangerous CROUP it is infallible. 40 years established in Philadelphia. 50c. per bottle. Sold at druggists.

BUY THE WRINGER THAT SAVES THE CLOTHES.

OUR PURCHASE GEAR Saves half the labor of other wringers, and costs but little more.
EMPIRE Does not GREASE
Solid White Rubber Rolls. Warranted.
Also "Daisy" and "Volunteer" Wringers, Clothes Drying Bars, etc. Agents wanted everywhere. Empire Wringer Co., Auburn, N. Y.

Publisher's Notes.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy	$1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each	1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each	1.00
To ministers and reading rooms	1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS: Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE SALE OF SENATOR BLAIR'S
BOOK,
"THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT
OR THE CONFLICT OF MAN WITH ALCOHOL."
SELLS SPLENDIDLY TO ANY ONE, REPUBLICAN,
DEMOCRAT OR PROHIBITIONIST.
SEND $1.00 FOR OUTFIT.
YOU WILL MAKE MONEY.
NAME THE TERRITORY WANTED.

Scarcely Reasonable.

Suppose you pick up a paper that is the organ, we will say, of the civil engineers. How much interest could you be expected to have in the discussions that you would find therein? There may have been a day when you could

"Sing tangent, co-tangent, co-secant, co-sine," but that day has passed, and you sing a different song now. Suppose, now, you put a UNION SIGNAL in the hands of some people that you want should become regular readers of it, how much will they understand of it without having had an introduction? Don't you see that the cases are exactly parallel? If you want THE UNION SIGNAL to win its way intelligently, you will have to be at some pains to tell why* the paper is printed, what* it aims to do, who* are the leading spirits in its management, and—particularly—why you* like it, and what it does for you. Yes, that's so, it is asking a good deal, but it is the way to get the women of the land into the ranks of the W. C. T. U. And after you have told the story once and it is not heeded, you will have to tell it again and perhaps again, and then it will be heeded. That's the history of the taking of Vicksburg, for instance. And a few other things! Hard work? Not if your heart is in it. Somebody once said, "Too much fuss about Shakespeare; I could write a play like Hamlet if I had a mind to." "Ah, I see," was the answer, "all that is lacking is the mind!"

All that is lacking in getting the circulation of THE UNION SIGNAL up to 100,000 is the heart. There! That moral was dished up before you knew it was coming!

A. G. U. A. G. policy means heart: "get up and go" means just what it says. The former is the will of it, the latter the application.

So given, a possible Victim { Why / Who / What / Why, you. } RESULT—Success!

MORAL—G. U. A. G. Policy Adopted?

Our German Paper For Nebraska.

We will send copies there at the low rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, less number at the same rate. We will provide the names of farmers, to whom the paper will be sent if so desired. We have published this paper now for more than three years, and ask you to help it do some effective work in Nebraska. The liquor papers will have the state flooded with literature of all kinds, and among the Germans there will be nothing distributed to show the falseness of the arguments put forth by the brewers and distillers. Lend us more than a finger tip, Won't You?

FACSIMILE OF BOTTLE WITH BUFF WRAPPER

POND'S EXTRACT IS THE CHILDREN'S MEDICINE CHEST

HAVE IT IN READINESS AND ALWAYS USE IT FOR Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Scratches, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Earache Inflamed Eyes and all Pain.
BE SURE TO GET THE GENUINE. Manufactured only by POND'S EXTRACT CO., 76 Fifth Avenue, N. Y.

LADIES do you want a perfectly made handsome Black Silk Dress that will not fade, crack or become shabby, then buy direct from our factory. Our BRAND NEW SILKS for SEASON of 1890 are far superior to any ever made. The goods are woven in our own factory, which is the best equipped in the U. S.

OUR SILK DRESS GOODS

will give you perfect satisfaction. All of our goods are sold at less than half the price of many of the adulterated, so-called cheap silk dress goods (many of them imported).

☞ We guarantee the CHAFFEE DRESS SILKS for richness of color, superior finish and wearing qualities, to be unexcelled by any make of Black Silks in the World. We offer these Dress Silks in Gros Grains, Satins, Surahs, Faille Francaise and Aida Cloths, in blacks only.

Send your name on a postal card and we will forward you without charge samples of all our styles with prices, and you can see for yourselves.

1000 YARDS Sewing Silk & enough BRAID to Bind bottom of Dress FREE

BESIDES WE PAY COST OF DELIVERING THE GOODS.

O. S. CHAFFEE & SON, Mansfield Centre, Connecticut.

☞ Refer by permission to First National Bank, Windham National Bank, Dime Savings Bank, Willimantic Savings Institute. of Willimantic, Conn.

The Kabo corset that brings a woman to perfect form if she only laces it tight enough—for it never stretches or breaks its "bones" or rolls up—has soft eyelets that do not cut the laces.

Soft eyelets are loops of corset lace instead of metal eyelets.

If the Kabo corset fails in a year in any part but the steels—no way has yet been invented to make unbreakable steels—you get your money back from the store where you bought it.

You wear the Kabo corset two or three weeks; and, if not satisfactory, take it back and get your money again.

CHICAGO CORSET CO., Chicago and New York.

LADIES! Use only Brown's / French / Dressing on your Boots and Shoes.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS
Beware of imitations Notice autograph of STEWART HARTSHORN on label and get the genuine Hartshorn.

AGENTS wanted. Household invention. Sells rapidly. Terms free. Low & Rewell Manufacturing Co., 135 Public Square, Cleveland, O

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!
Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

Better than Tea and Coffee for the Nerves.
VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA
Appetizing--Easily Digested.
Ask your Grocer for it, take no other. [66

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.
Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free

HAVE YOU SEEN LIDA CLARKSON'S COLORED STUDIES?
We will send you Four Beautiful Studies by Lida Clarkson, in Colors, and a Sample Copy of INGALLS' HOME MAGAZINE, all for 12 2-cent stamps (24 cents). Address J. F. INGALLS, Pub., Lynn, Mass.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.
Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep.....$3.00
Crown Fountain Pen.....$2.00
Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

UNITY. A weekly journal of a Religion that is Rational, and a Rationalism that is Religious. 10 weeks 10 cents. CHICAGO.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINSTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City

Be your own tailor.

Send for samples and rules for self-measuring.

Men's Suits, $12.00 to $30.00.
Men's Overcoats, $6.00 to $45.00.
Men's Pantaloons, $3.00 to $10.
Big Boys, Ages 12 to 18, Suits, $5.00 to $20.00.
Big Boys, Ages 12 to 18, Overcoats, $5.00 to $20.00.

Be sure and send for samples of our Combination Suits for boys, ages 4 to 14.

This means suit, extra pants and hat, all for the price of a suit alone, $5.00 & $6.00.

Goods sent C. O. D., with privilege of examining before paying.

PUTNAM CLOTHING HOUSE,
131 & 133 Clark St.,
113 & 117 Madison St.,
N. E. Cor. Clark & Madison.

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY,
181 Monroe St., CHICAGO,
Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper

7 NEW MUSIC BOOKS. 7

CLASSIC FOUR-HAND COLLECTION ($1.) nineteen superior duets for Piano, by Godard, Bohm, Hofmann, Brahms, and other first-class composers.

YOUNG PLAYER'S POPULAR COLLECTION ($1.) 51 of the very best, and very easiest pieces for beginners, filling 143 pages. Heartily commended to Piano Teachers as the first book of pieces (or recreations) to use.

WHITNEY'S ORGAN ALBUM ($2) 33 good pieces for Manual and Pedal, by 20 good composers.

OPERATIC PIANO COLLECTION ($1.) 19 of the best operas are represented, and their melodies form the themes for as many pieces, by the best modern composers, furnishing the very best entertainment for the lovers of favorite operatic airs.

CHOICE SACRED SOLOS For Soprano, Mezzo Soprano or Tenor. ($1.) 35 of the most lovely sacred songs, suitable for solos in church or for enjoyment at home.

PIANO CLASSICS Vol. 2. ($1.) Contains 31 pieces of medium difficulty, and of the best quality.

POPULAR DANCE MUSIC COLLECTION ($1.) Is as bright and merry as a book can be, and is quite full of the best new Dance Music.

Any Book Mailed Promptly for Retail Price.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston.

NOW READY.

GEMS AND JEWELS

A new Sunday School Music Book, by J. H. FILLMORE, and J. H. ROSECRANS.

Full of fresh, new songs that will captivate the lovers of Sunday School singing.

Price 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen, not prepaid; $30 per 100, not prepaid. A sample copy sent for 25 cents.

Reader, call the attention of your Superintendent or Music Leader to this new book.

FILLMORE BROS., 185 Race St., Cincinnati, O.

SWEETEST AND BEST TONED PIANO MADE
BRADBURY
ESTABLISHED 1854
PIANOS
OVER 22,000 NOW IN USE.

Used and endorsed by Presidents Grant, Hayes, Arthur and Harrison, also numerous members of foreign legations, and has not only attained a pre-eminent national, but also a world-renowned reputation.

Moderate prices. Cash or easy payments. Write for catalogue and price-list.

J. M. Hawxhurst, Mgr. Western Branch,
210 State Street, Chicago.

PIANOS $150 to $1500 UNIVERSITY
ESTAB. 1859. INCOR. 1877

They Lead the World!
Sent for trial in your own home.
Guaranteed Six Years.
ABSOLUTELY PERFECT
Sold Direct to families. No Middlemen.
DON'T BUY A POOR PIANO!
$35
Cat. Free.
MARCHAL & SMITH PIANO CO.
235 E. 21st St., N.Y.
ORGANS $35 to $500

CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL FOR KINDERGARTNERS.
Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,
Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to
Miss Alice McRoy,
2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE
Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V. Farwell & Co., Chicago.

THE PATHFINDER PHYSIOLOGY.
ENDORSED BY W. C. T. U.
A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR MY STORY OF THE WAR
By Mary A. Livermore
Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure, and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos. it sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. ☞ No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in twenty colors. 61st thousand. ☞ 5,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to
A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

Publisher's Dep't.

Mnemonics—Don't Forget!

Mnemonics No. 1. Miss West's new "School of Methods Manual" costs but twenty-five cents, and is a W. C. T. U. help that everyone who loves the work should have.

Mnemonics No. 2. Miss Anna Gordon's "Songs for the Y. W. C. T. U." is—well read what Miss Ida Schoch, Y organizer for Pennsylvania says about it: "'Our Song Book' is received everywhere in Pennsylvania with rejoicing; the book is perfectly adapted to our needs. I write thus strongly because I had been waiting so long for what I knew to be a pressing necessity for our unions, and am correspondingly delighted now."

Mnemonics No. 3. The fight is on in Nebraska. They need our "Timely Talks," "Signal Lights," "Agitation Leaflets," "Protection Posters," etc. Send us your gifts; we will send the supplies to the local W. C. T. U.'s in the state at the lowest possible prices.

Mnemonics No. 4. The life of the W. C. T. U. rests in a policy that will do and dare, in willing to will. To-day a paper came from Pennsylvania with six or eight circulars wrapped in it. The paper and the circulars were all aimed at Miss Willard and the enormity of her crime in saying the W. C. T. U. is partisan—no, non-partisan—no, partisan—well, there, suit yourself as to what the circulars say, but Note This!

That Miss Willard does say in effect, "There must be a grand advance all along the line; new members must be sought out; new unions must be organized. Each present member get one new one and let all take THE UNION SIGNAL!" Let the circulars be emptied out by the bushel on the parti-non-san (pronounce that right and you'll get nonsense) position if they want to! But put on the armor that means upright, downright work, and the result will be—as it always is—that enthusiasm for the right will win.

What Agents Say About "Glimpses of Fifty Years."

"Send me twenty-seven more 'Glimpses of Fifty Years' to-day if possible. This order makes fifty-three within the last three weeks. I had hoped to do better but sickness has prevented my working full time." The same agent says: "I told you I should sell seventy-five copies of 'Glimpses of Fifty Years' in——but I shall make it one hundred. The people are interested and are anxious that I should remain longer with them. What towns in the —— district have not been thoroughly worked on this book?"

Another agent says: "My commissions on 'Glimpses of Fifty Years' amounted to thirty-seven dollars last week. I shall go on and canvass the following towns (naming nine) if you are willing."

Another says, "I am writing you, seated at a bookcase and secretary bought with money earned by canvassing for your books, but of more value than the money are some of the lessons I learned in patient effort and in overcoming difficulties, for which I thank you."

The general agents, Messrs. H. J. Smith & Co., not only treat all agents and applicants with the greatest courtesy but take great pains to tell all just how to work their territory; wherein others have made success possible; what dangers to avoid, etc. If you are at all desirous of making a living for yourself, apply at once for an agency in selling Miss Willard's book. You need not be afraid that the territory is covered; the book will sell steadily for years. In many cases the original territory has been recanvassed with signal success. Senator Blair's book can be taken in conjunction with Miss Willard's and the two will be sure to bring rich reward for your earnest efforts. Send your name to us at once.

A Beautiful Gift.

We refer to "The Year's Bright Chain." The book of quotations from Miss Willard's writing with twelve full page month illustrations and a fine steel plate portrait of Miss Willard. Price 50 cents postpaid, or sent free as a premium for two new subscribers at $1 each or one renewal at $1.50. Can you not prevail on two friends to try the paper a year? Take them sample copies. Call their attention to certain articles; get them interested, then make the attack and you'll be successful.

The Cod That Helps to Cure The Cold.

The disagreeable taste of the COD LIVER OIL is dissipated in

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Of Pure Cod Liver Oil with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

The patient suffering from CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, COUGH, COLD, OR WASTING DISEASES, may take the remedy with as much satisfaction as he would take milk. Physicians are prescribing it everywhere. It is a perfect emulsion. and a wonderful flesh producer. Take no other

Temperance Tea Tonic.

Nature's Great Remedy, Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine, made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases, female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache. Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE LADY'S SYRINGE,

is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

HOLMAN'S PADS.

Holman's Liver Pads cure Malaria,
Holman's Liver Pads cure Biliousness,
Holman's Liver Pads cure Dyspepsia.

All druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. HOLMAN LIVER PAD CO., 81 John St., N. Y.

(Mention this paper.)

Best Truss Ever Used.

Improved Elastic Truss. Worn night and day. Positively cures rupture. Sent by mail everywhere. Write for full descriptive circulars to DR. HOUSE, N. Y., ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 744 Broadway. N. Y.

DEAFNESS CURED And NOISES IN HEAD entirely overcome by Peck's Pat. Imprv'd TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS Whispers, Conversation and Music heard. Comfortable; Self-Adjusting and Unseen. Successful when all other Remedies FAIL. SOLD ONLY by F. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, Cor. 14th, New York. CALL or WRITE for ILLUST'D BOOK of PROOFS, FREE. NO AGENTS

WIVES Should know how child bearing can be effected without PAIN or DANGER and cure their ills. Send for sealed information. A wonderful discovery. DR. J. H. DYE, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOTHERHOOD with Little Pain. Stamp to Dr Stainback Wilson, Atlanta, Ga

EVERYBODY SATISFIED

that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

LADIES,

do not overlook this. The PERFECTION Flour Bin and Sieve is a household necessity. No home is complete without it. Dispense with barrels, sacks, pans, scoops, sieves, etc. No scattering of flour; no apron or rolling up of sleeves needed. A few turns of the handle and you have enough sifted for a baking. It pleases everybody. No housekeeper will be without it after once using. Where we have no representative we will send the bin on receipt of price. To hold 100 lbs. $3.25; 50 lbs. $2.50; 25 lbs. $2.00. Freight pre-paid not to exceed 75c. No goods sent C. O. D. Agents wanted. Sherman, Tangenberg & Co., 160 W. Lake St., Chicago.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue. CHAS. RAISER, Mf'r. 62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Delivered Free of Charge

CALLUSTRO TRADE MARK SOAPS AND POLISHES

Contain no acids or injurious chemicals, prevent chapped hands, leaving the skin a delicate softness. A limited number of shares of stock for sale by the Callustro Company of Chicago, 154 Washington Street.

GREAT OFFER!

PIANOS! $35. ORGANS!

Direct from the Factory at Manufacturer's Prices. No such offer ever made before. Every man his own agent. Examine in your home before paying. Write for particulars. Address

THE T. Swoger & Son Pianos & Organs
BEAVER FALLS, PENNSYLVANIA.

From Rev. Jas. H. Potts, D.D., editor of Michigan "Christian Advocate," Detroit Mich: "To say that we are delighted with the Piano does not express the fact. We are jubilant If all your instruments are as fine in appearance and as pleasing in tone as this one, your patrons will rise by the hundred."

THE EDISON

MIMEOGRAPH

Patented by THOS. A. EDISON.

Makes 3,000 copies of one original writing, Drawing, Music, etc. 1,500 copies of one original Typewriter Letter. Recommended by over 40,000 users. Send for circular and sample of work.

A. B. DICK COMPANY,
152-154 Lake Street, CHICAGO. 32 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

Dr. B. A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St., Chicago, Ill.

REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. CATARRH.
REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O.

PILES Cured at home. New treatment never fails when instructions are correctly followed. Read article in THE UNION SIGNAL, March 13, p. 15. The GLOBE MEDICINE Co., Box 711, Cincinnati, O.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY,"

Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard, Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

A-CORN SALVE.

Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time.
NO PAIN! NO POISON!

"After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.

THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad different from all others, is cup shape, with Self-adjusting all in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person does with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free. EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Chicago, Ill.

OVERMAN'S SPECIFIC OXYGEN.

Specific Oxygen is a special medicated Oxygen treatment for diseases of the nose, throat and lungs. The inhalations contain Germicides and Disinfectants, in addition to the best known specifics for these diseases making it a positive cure. Separate Specifics used in Catarrh and Hay-Fever. Not a patent medicine. Physicians prescribe it in their practice.

Ask your druggist for it; if he hasn't it write for our manual of information, inclosing 2 cent stamp.
SPECIFIC OXYGEN CO., Nashville, Tenn.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.

IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKIND!

Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.

The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

BABY CARRIAGES Direct from Factory SENT C. O. D. G. L. Spencer's Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world.

25c PRINTING OUTFIT.

A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL. Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions. "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Sets up any name, prints cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersoll & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

For Gas BAILEY'S For Oil

COMPOUND light-spreading Silver-plated Corrugated Glass REFLECTORS, A wonderful invention for lighting CHURCHES, Halls, etc. Handsome designs. Satisfaction guaranteed. Catalogue and price list free. BAILEY REFLECTOR CO. 118 Wood st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

$16 FREE TRADE PRICES

No Protection! No Monopolies!
$45 SEWING MACHINES | NOW ONLY $16

We are now selling our Western Improved Singer Sewing Machine—same as cut—complete with all attachments and warranted for five years for only $16. Send for circular and see full description of this and other styles to

M. A. SCULLIN & CO. 762 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

The "Little Beauty" A $5.00 Scale for $1.00

Capacity 1-4 oz. to 4 lbs. Steel Bearings, Brass Scoop and Beam. For Housekeepers, Offices or Stores. Weight packed, 8 lbs. Sent by express

A $65.00 Sewing Machine $18.00
A 900-lb. Platform Scale... 15.00
A $125.00 Top Buggy 65.00
A 2-Ton Wagon Scale.... 40.00
A 5-Ton Scale and Stock Rack 75.00
A $50 Feed Mill 30.00
A $40.00 Road Cart..... 15.00
A $15.00 Single Harness... 7.50
A 240-lb. Platform Scale... 3.00

Price List Free. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods. 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

THE "FREEMAN"

SELF-WRINGING MOP!

"It leads all others" is the verdict of all who see it. A ratchet on this mop helps the hand by retaining the cloth at any stage of the work. Don't touch the water with your hands. Boiling water can be used, also potash, lye etc. if desired. If you desire to wash windows, corners up high, in fact anywhere, the mop by the means of the ratchet, can be held without the aid of the hand, thus removing the strain. Write for circulars. Sold exclusively through agents throughout the United States. Agents wanted. Write at once for territory—The Racine Malleable & Wrought Iron Co., Racine Wis.

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

MURRAY $55.95 BUGGIES AND $5.95 HARNESS Are Acknowledged to be THE BEST!

THEY ARE SOLD DIRECT TO CONSUMERS. WRITE FOR CATALOGUE.
ONE PRICE. NO DEVIATION.

WILBER H. MURRAY MANUFACTURING CO., Cincinnati, O.

Signal Notes.

ALL truth gets crucifixion before coronation.—The Issue.

THE Junior Prohibition Club at Quincy, Ill., has an interesting feature in an "objection box." Each member reports all the objections to prohibition which he has heard during the week, and then they are discussed and answered by the members of the club.

DR. EMMA BRAINERD RYDER, formerly of New York City, has recently organized a "Bombay Sorosis," the first literary society for women in India.

MRS. HELEN CAMPBELL will give a series of lectures at Chautauqua this summer on "Social Economics and Women."

NINETY-SIX out of one hundred and thirty-seven members that constitute the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales have declared in favor of local option, and fifty-four of these are against all compensation to the liquor dealers. Scotland shows of her parliamentary representation forty-seven out of seventy-two in favor of the direct veto.

MISS AMELIA GIVEN, of Carlisle, Pa., has built a handsome library building, furnished it, filled the shelves with hundreds of volumes, and presented it to the town of Mt. Holly for the benefit of the working people employed in two large paper mills which were established there by her father fifty years ago.

THE high license law of Missouri requires that petitions for dram-shops be signed by a majority of the resident tax-paying citizens of the town or block. The W. C. T. U. of Glasgow, Howard county, made a test of the word "citizen" before the supreme court of the state, the liquor men violently contending that women were not citizens before the law and could not be counted, even though tax-payers. The supreme court, however, decided that the women were citizens, and the saloons of Howard county have taken their departure even without an election, there being enough tax-paying women citizens to turn the majority scale against them by simple petition.

SIXTY-FOUR women, residents of New York, Brooklyn, Staten Island, Newburgh and Oswego in New York and Philadelphia, in Pa., have organized the "Woman's Branch of the American Leprosy Society" to assist the lepers of Molokai under the directions of Miss Amy Fowler, the young Englishwoman who has gone as nurse to the leper colony. The Society will be non-sectarian, and hold meetings every two months. Its members will make garments for the lepers, and two or three times a year these and other useful articles will be sent to the outcasts.

IT is estimated that there are 120,000 total abstainers in Norway, and 200,000 more who are friendly to the cause, which is making gratifying progress in that country.

THE first annual meeting of the Christian League for social purity was recently held in New York City, at the residence of Mrs. E. B. Grannis. The society has obtained a charter from the State Legislature. Its purpose is to do a work in the furtherance of social purity among women and girls similar to that done by the White Cross Society among men. The first meeting was on the anniversary of the fiftieth birthday of Mrs. Grannis, who is the proprietor of the Church Union and has spent much of her life in the alleviation of the condition of fallen women.

A TEMPERANCE refreshment bar has been opened at the main entrance to the Police Court Building, Liverpool, for the convenience of all persons attending the court, and it is already a great success.

THE Women's Exchange of San Francisco, Cal., have created a building fund of $10,000 by which they propose to erect a building for the work of the Exchange, and for a reading, lecture and waiting room for women and their interests.

A BIG victory for "no license" was gained recently at Pittsfield, Ill. The license ticket was beaten by a large majority. Mrs. Helen Gougar and the Pittsfield W. C. T. U., aided by the votes of many honest men, accomplished this. The following unique handbill has been sent to headquarters; it was distributed in quantities through the village:

DIED!

LICENSED LIQUOR TRAFFIC,

Aged five years, at the Court House, Pittsfield, Ill., Tuesday, April 15, 1890, for want of votes. Concluding services in connection with the same will be held in the Congregational church, to-night, Wednesday, April 16. Friends of the deceased respectfully invited to attend.

GIVEN AWAY WITH DR. SCOTT'S ELECTRIC CORSET

To introduce Dr. Scott's beautiful new Electric High Hip, Dress Form and Summer Corsets to the readers of this paper, The Pall Mall Electric Association of London and New York will, until further notice, make the following inducements: If you cannot get these Corsets at your nearest stores, remit at once for one of our High Hip Corsets at $1.25, or a Dress Form or Summer Corset at $1.50, accompanied by 15cts. for postage, mentioning this paper, and we will send you FREE with the Corset, postpaid, a Set of our Patent Gored Belt Hose Supporters retailing at 50cts., and a copy of that eminently interesting work, "The Doctor's Story," price 25cts., or a choice of Dr. Scott's 50ct. Electric Hair Curler or two of Dr. Scott's Electric Plasters instead of the Supporters. This special offer to run for limited period only, so that all feeling inclined to accept it should do so at once and not delay. Address DR. SCOTT, 842 Broadway, N. Y.

DRESS FORM CORSET $1.50.

18 to 30 in. white and dove.

This Dress Form Corset is made with shoulder-straps, detachable in sizes from 18 to 30 inches, dove and white. It is fitted with our patent combination spinal supporting back, invaluable to all Ladies. A beautiful silver-plated compass accompanies each corset, with which to test its power. Price, $1.50, and 15c. for postage, with free premium.

HIGH HIP CORSET, $1.25.

It is made of fine Alexandria cloth, dove and white, in size 18 to 30 inches; it is unusually strong and durable; a perfect fit; it possesses strong Electro-Magnetic curative qualities, and as such is cheap at $5.00. It has our patent combination spinal supporting back, invaluable to all ladies. Price, $1.25, with 15c. for postage, and the premium free.

THESE HOSE SUPPORTERS FREE to every Lady remitting price of either of these three new and beautiful Electric Corsets, with 15 cents extra for postage.

These Supporters are the most convenient and useful kind made and sell at 50cts.

State whether Lady's or Children's is wanted, and size of waist.

Any person not desiring Hose Supporters can select Dr. SCOTT'S Electric Hair CURLER, or two of Dr. Scott's Electric PLASTERS instead, value of each, 50cts.

We want a good agent in every town.

☞ Send for terms. FREE catalogue illustrating all our goods.

SUMMER CORSET, $1.50.

18 to 30 INCHES WHITE.

This is a beautiful Electric Summer Corset, made of extra strong and fine quality Nottingham net out of double thickness. It has a girdle-shaped waistband which firmly secures the material preventing stretching and getting out of shape. It is made in white only, 18 to 30 inches. Has our patent spinal back invaluable to ladies. Price, $1.50, and 15c. for postage with free premium.

If you cannot obtain them at your Dry Goods or Fancy Stores, or Druggists, we will mail any Corset including either premium, postpaid on receipt of price with 15cts. for postage added. You thus obtain $2.25 value for $1.65 only. Agents Wanted. Remit by post-office money order, draft, check, currency or stamps in registered letter payable to GEO. A. SCOTT, 842 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Mention this paper.

ENDORSED BY ANNIE JENNESS-MILLER.

THE BEST CORSET SUBSTITUTES.

COMPROMISE BODICE JENNESS MILLER MODEL BODICE EQUIPOISE WAIST

ILLUSTRATED CATALOUGE MAILED FREE TO ANY ADDRESS.

GEORGE FROST & CO., 51 BEDFORD ST., BOSTON, MASS.

LADY AGENTS WANTED for the VAN ORDEN CORSETS. Every lady wishing good health and a beautiful figure buys them. Quick sales. Good pay. Send for terms and circular.
VAN ORDEN CORSET CO., 22 Clinton Place, N.Y.

LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y.

LADY AGENTS.

There is nothing that sells better than MME. M'CABE'S sanative CORSET and WAISTS, BIG MONEY for live agents. Send for particulars.
ST. LOUIS CORSET CO., St. Louis, Mo.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Samples mailed on receipt of 6c. Lowest prices and best goods. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Chicago Silk Dress Goods Co., 154 La. Salle St., Chicago Ill.

'DELSARTE' Corset Waists and Braces. Send for Price List. Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

MY CATALOGUE of DRESS reform goods sent free to any address on receipt of stamp for postage. Mrs. S. W. Pike, 75 Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED $30.00 to $50.00 a week U. S. Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

GRANULA

The most nutritious and digestible of Foods. Send for pamphlet. Trial box by mail 36c. Address Our Home Granula Co., Dansville, N. Y.

BEFORE BUYING GRATES get Circular and Testimonials. Sent Free. Economical, Sanitary, Cleanly and Artistic. ALDINE FIRE PLACE, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. W. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill. We do not sell liquors in any shape.

HARPER BROS. & CO., Grocers.

Established 1873, 90 State Street, Chicago. Opposite Marshall Field's. Send for Price List. NO LIQUORS SOLD.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA

furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage. Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED. S. A. KEAN & CO. BANKERS, CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

OREGON THE LAND OF BIG RED APPLES. The famous Willamette Valley. The best climate in the United States. Write for circulars to the Western Oregon Land Co., Monmouth, Polk Co., Oregon. J. G. CROUCH, Sec'y.

ALL ABOUT NEW STATE OF Send stamp for Catechism. ESHELMAN, LLEWELLYN & CO., Seattle. WASHINGTON

SHORT-HAND SELF TAUGHT Send for Catalog of Books and helps for self-instruction by BENN PITMAN and JEROME B. HOWARD, to THE PHONOGRAPHIC INSTITUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

HOTEL FREDONIA,

H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C. New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike, G. H. La Fetra, - Prop.

SEEDS 6 pkts of my choicest Flower Seeds, 10c. Beautiful catalogue free. F. B. MILLS, Thorn Hill, N. Y.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

RIDGE'S FOOD The MOST RELIABLE FOOD For Infants & Invalids. Not a medicine, but a specially prepared Food, adapted to the weakest stomach. 4 sizes cans. Pamphlet free. Woolrich & Co. (on every label). Palmer, Mass.

THE GLUTEN Entire Wheat Flour the best and most economical flour made, the only cure for Dyspepsia. Recommended by Physicians. Kenosha Mills Co., 135 Lake St., Chicago.

TO CONSUMERS of Tea, Coffee, Spices and Extracts and Cash buyers of Dinner and Tea Sets, Silver Ware, Lamps, etc. We are Importers and sell direct to Consumers at the lowest possible cash prices. Send for our large illustrated Price and Premium List. It will interest you. Notice our large advertisement in former and coming issues. The London Tea Co., 803 Washington St., Boston

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

WOULD NOT TAKE IT AS A GIFT.

DR. WILFORD HALL'S Health Pamphlet.

Rev. J. Kern, Detroit, Mich., 310 16th St., writes, Feb. 4th.:

"DEAR DR. HALL: On Saturday last I received your Health Pamphlet as per your generous New Year's offer to ministers, and last night I made its first application. The effect was marvelous, and as a token of my gratitude and confidence in the treatment, I herewith inclose $12 for pamphlets, $4 of which are for my own, as I do not feel justified in accepting so valuable a discovery as a gift. The other pamphlets are for members of my congregation, who desire me to send for them. I stand ready to help you spread the news of this remedy among the afflicted. Very truly yours, J. KERN."

For further information regarding this medicineless treatment call upon or send a 2-cent stamp to A. T. BATES, Room 46, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO., ARCHITECTS, Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill. "Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

"SUPERIOR NUTRITION THE LIFE"

IMPERIAL GRANUM REG'ST'D JUNE 5'77

THE GREAT MEDICINAL FOOD

THIS ORIGINAL AND WORLD-RENOWNED DIETETIC PREPARATION IS A SUBSTANCE OF UNRIVALLED purity and medicinal worth—potent for good and powerless to harm. A solid extract, derived by a new process from very superior growths of wheat—nothing more, and as a FOOD, it would be difficult to conceive of anything more wholesome and delicious. It has justly acquired the reputation of being the salvator FOR INVALIDS AND THE AGED, an incomparable aliment for the growth and protection of INFANTS AND CHILDREN, a superior nutritive in continued fevers, the most nourishing and strengthening food for NURSING MOTHERS & CONVALESCENTS, and a reliable remedial agent in all diseases of the stomach and intestines.

John Carle & Sons, New York.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 18.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, May 1, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: The New Constitution of Brazil—The Right of Petition ... 8, 9
SPECIAL DIFFICULTIES: A Variety of Information—Pertinent Queries ... 8
WATCH-TOWER: ... 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, Re-Awakening, by Frank Dempster Sherman—Mollie's Story, by Earnest—As Others See Us, by Rev. John Bascom, D. D.—Legislation on the Liquor Traffic in the Colonies and United States of America, by Ada M. Bittenbender ... 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: Temperance and the International Lessons—Mrs. Leavitt in Africa—The Power of the Badge—Nebraska Campaign Fund—A Temperance Victory in the Mechanic's Fair—Temperance Temple Items ... 4, 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, Fair Flora's Favors—What Can We Do?—Trixy's Prize Poem ... 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning May 4, 1890 ... 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, Healed—A Word to Overworked Workers—Don'ts For the Sick Room ... 7
QUEEN'S GARDENS: So Shine ... 10
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: District of Columbia, Michigan, New York, Mississippi, Washington, Minnesota, Illinois—News in a Nutshell—Notices ... 10, 11, 12
OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS: Hygiene and Heredity ... 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT: ... 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: ... 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

There are seven inebriate asylums in Scotland, all bearing witness to the efficacy of "pure old Scotch whisky."

Mrs. Charlotte Emerson Brown was elected president of the general federation of women's clubs at its convention in New York, April 25.

It is predicted that fully 100,000 workmen in Chicago will be out of work by May 1, as a consequence of the labor strike among the carpenters.

President Harrison sent his first veto to the House on Saturday, refusing to approve the bill authorizing the city of Ogden, Utah, to assume increased indebtedness.

The police commissioners of Boston have determined to abolish bars from that city, and have so notified license holders. Hereafter liquors will have to be sold at tables in modern Athens.

JOHN W. ATHERTON, of Kentucky, is the president of the National Liquor League. At one of the conventions of that society, an editor whose name we have, went to him in the capacity of a reporter and said, "Mr. Atherton, is not high license a concession to the temperance people, a step towards prohibition?" The answer of this clerical-looking, kind-faced, astute chief of the whisky clans, was as follows, and might with great propriety be pinned into the hats of all true Christians who worship at the shrine of high license: "Well, my boy, theoretically it is, but practically it is not." This is in line with the revelations recently made in the New York Voice concerning the method by which Pennsylvania was carried for license, and Nebraska is likely to be.

CONGRESS gave quick response to Governor Nichols' appeal for aid on behalf of the sufferers in the flooded districts of Louisiana, appropriating $150,000 to be used by the Secretary of War for their relief. Government steamers have undertaken the repair of the Lake Concordia crevasse. The Louisiana lottery has taken advantage of the desperate necessity of the people to make a show of humanity and a bid for their support in its own approaching extremity. It can well afford to disgorge at this time a little of its fraudulently gotten gain, to fit up the "Dacotah," and with the false colors of benevolence at her mast, go to the relief of the people they have fleeced. The Texas and Pacific railroad has run a relief train supplemented with a boat where the train could not go. The Mississippi Levee Board calls upon the Governor of that state to summon the legislature to a special session for the purpose of making appropriations to rebuild the levees.

Two thousand five hundred native Christians of Canton have addressed an open letter to the Christian churches of England, imploring them to be active in securing the overthrow of the opium traffic. This year the time fixed for the revision of the commercial treaty in reference to opium expires, and the Christians of India, to the number of several thousand, have petitioned the executive council and the Emperor of China to abolish the traffic. Canton makes its plea to Christian England, basing it upon the baneful effects of the drug. "Our people originally are comparatively strong and healthy, but when once they acquire the opium habit they become mere weak skeletons and can neither eat nor sleep with comfort. This physical deterioration is transmitted to their children and grandchildren, and the curse of opium is seen in the injury it inflicts upon the very life of the people." It also appeals to the boasted missionary spirit of the English churches, telling them that though they found missions, open free schools and establish hospitals, the people say, "Opium and missionaries are alike English productions." It commends English Christians as zealous in many good works, but declares that while opium remains, they are as water poured out. With force and searching interrogation the letter goes on: "The New Testament says: 'Have no fellowship with evil.' Now when your government plants and sells opium to minister to the evil propensities of the Chinese, you are partakers with them, and what can you say in excuse thereof?" How long will "Christians" suffer the taunts of all heathendom for their worse than heathenish complicity with the opium and rum traffic? How long resist the appeals coming from the twilight of Asia and the darkness of Africa for deliverance from the double-headed curse? Let them take hold all together to move out of the way and utterly destroy these great stumbling blocks, and the "millions for missions" will multiply, and God's blessing will come with them. The first step toward "conquering the world for Christ" is to stop making the world drunk for Satan.

ONE of the curious facts connected with the history of the Conference just ended at Berlin, was the indifference of the press as a whole. The briefest of telegraphic messages recorded its sittings from day to day, but it was almost impossible to gain any idea of its real work, nor, indeed, can this be done effectually until the published report appears. By many it seemed to be considered that it was simply the freak of an experimental and very youthful potentate, and that it had no vital bearing on any real question of the day. "A purely class matter," was the verdict of one daily paper which stands for reform in many ways, and this verdict may be counted that of the majority. How is it that it seems so impossible for even thinking men and women to consider this question as anything more than one of class? Women especially interested in many forms of work for social betterment admit that there is a social problem, but regard agitation in the worker's behalf as no real part of it. Dr. Ely in the Century for April puts the matter with his usual clearness and simplicity. "The labor problem is only a fractional part of the entire problem of industrial society, and the entire problem of industrial society is only one part of the whole social problem, which includes art, religion, literature, and the various other departments of social life." To truly advance the interests of wage-earners will equally advance the interests of society as a whole, is his statement at another point, and who can question it that has watched the course of thought on this and other social difficulties? The progress of reform in the methods of women workers, and of their general advance in intelligence may seem a matter far apart from the lives of their millionaire sisters, yet by laws as irresistible and inevitable as those that rule the motion of every star, they rise and fall together. Realize this and a change in popular apprehension is certain, and when this begins, the press will furnish more data than they do at present toward the settling of all questions bearing upon labor, whether for men or women. Till such material is made more accessible, the working woman herself must make careful note of all essential points, and remember that each step forward is part of the history that must in time shape itself, and become an integral part of the story of the nineteenth century.

MRS. FANNY H. RASTALL, president of Kansas W. C. T. U., is pioneering grandly in Oklahoma and Indian Territories. A union of thirty-three members has been organized at Guthrie, the metropolis of that country. The great effort now being made by all friends of temperance in that region is to influence legislation to prevent the introduction of the traffic in alcoholic liquors in Oklahoma Territory. To that end a delegated convention was held in Guthrie, April 15 and 16, and the following address was prepared. It is eloquently urged that all papers friendly to temperance laws and all advocates of the cause give heed to this pathetic plea by spreading the petition and responding to the call for money. This beautiful virgin land must be saved from the destruction that follows the ruinous occupancy of the demon alcohol. The subjoined petition should find a response in every heart and pocket-book:

Oklahoma is very peculiarly, but most favorably situated to make a small effort go a great way in saving her people from the fell destroyer, rum. Located in the center of the great Indian Territory, and protected by the National law as applied to the Indians, which has largely prevented the introduction of liquors into the territory, and has entirely prevented any attempt to manufacture them here, we have only to effectually continue this prevention and we are free. How much easier to do this now than to wait until we shall be submerged in the flood of ruin which is sure to come the moment these legal restrictions are removed, unless they shall first be supplanted by equally stringent territorial legislation. This we must have, and to secure it, the most thorough and effective organization is imperatively demanded. A great state has been born in a day; yes, in half a day. There arose in an hour more problems involving property rights, more questions, intricate and difficult to answer, than had ever arisen in a century before, without law, without courts, with no recognized means of adjustment; and yet, with all these appalling indications there was no trouble, and why? Simply because everybody was in his right mind. Is it not desirable to maintain this condition of sobriety? Does not this grand achievement which could have been made alone by a sober people appeal in silent eloquence to that people to remain sober? And does it not appeal to them and to all the country to see to it that the means which kept them sober shall remain in force, and that the demon, alcohol, be forever kept out of this fair land? And shall we not appeal to our friends, and to the friends of temperance everywhere, to come to our aid financially, and to come quickly, that we may have the means to effectually organize, and thus to shut out this monster, and to keep him out? A little prevention is worth tons of cure. Come up, then, to the help of God and the people, with whatever you may be willing to give to aid in this most important work, and be assured that money could never be better spent than this will be, nor placed in safer hands. We need but little, but we need that little much. Shall we not have it? Societies or friends who may wish to help us can send directly to Charles W. Smith, president of Guthrie Temperance Alliance, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

A CLOUD somewhat bigger than a man's hand has appeared upon the political sky in the west. It is a coalition of the Prohibitionists, Knights of Labor, and farmers of Oregon, called the Union Party. The state convention lately held in Oregon City represented, it is claimed, five-sixths of the voting strength of the state. The platform contains no adjustable planks. The first calls for a national monetary system, which shall issue the circulating medium direct to the people, and make all moneys issued full legal tender. The present tariff system is credited with being one of the great causes of monopoly, robbing the poor man to build the fortunes of the rich, and a revision is called for which will equalize its burdens. A graduated income tax is recommended as the most equitable means of raising public revenues. A change in the government land system is pointed out, by which unearned land grants will be restored to the public domain to be reserved for actual settlers, and under which no alien can acquire any land in the United States. Foreigners should give definite proof of knowledge of our institutions, "as a condition of citizenship," before receiving the franchise. "Good citizenship, character and intelligence, and these only, shall be the qualifications of the voter." These broad, inclusive statements nowhere hint at sex as a condition of citizenship. Ballot reform is urgently advocated. The non-taxable bond is branded as a criminal device. Government is requested to provide a scheme of arbitration which will do away with strikes, and eight hours is recommended as a legal day for laborers in factories, shops and mines. Best of all is the anti-saloon resolution. The one and only "wise measure" of dealing with the infamous institution is clearly defined: "The saloon system is both a cause and effect of poverty, and is the chief instrument by which monopolies corrupt our politics and perpetuate themselves, and we stand committed to the abolition of the liquor traffic as a moral and economic evil and a barrier to all social and political reform." "Abolition!" That is the best word ever applied to the liquor traffic. Prohibit, Webster defines, "to hinder; to prevent." Abolish, "to destroy; to put an end to." These specialists may have gone beyond our depth in matters of finance, tariff, and taxation, but men who see so clearly what to do with the liquor traffic, can hardly be blind to other issues affecting the welfare of the people. On the whole, the platform seems built in the interest of the entire commonwealth.

Contributed.

RE-AWAKENING.

FRANK DEMPSTER SHERMAN.

Within a spot where slept the silent dead,
I wandered once when spring had kissed the earth,
And set around its breast an emerald girth
Of grass, entangling roses white and red;
Among the leafy branches overhead
The mating robins twittered in their mirth;
All Nature seemed rejoicing in new birth
Beneath the canopy the blue skies spread:
And as I sat beside one mossy stone
Kissed by a hundred suns of summer skies,
A sudden joy came to my heart, alone
Among those graves, to think the dead shall rise
In God's eternal spring when sounds are blown
On angel's instruments in Paradise!

MOLLIE'S STORY.

BY EARNEST.

Sister Ella is spending a few months with us here in the dear old home, and oh, what talks we have through the long, quiet hours. We tell her of the many things that have come and gone in the years since she said "good-by" so bravely and went with her husband to the "great West," and she tells us of their life and work there, in many ways so different from ours in the East.

For several years her husband was a keeper in the county jail, and to-day, while the rain kept us all indoors, she told us of some of her experiences in that time. The "o'er true story" which interested us most deeply I will let her tell the reader in her own words:

"It was the second year we were there," she said, "and a cold December night, when the sheriff brought in a 'fallen woman' from an adjoining town; she had had her trial, and was sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment.

"'I know you are quite famous as a reformer, Mrs. Kendall,' he said, as he sat by our fire a little later, 'but I'm afraid you have a hardened case here, and cannot hope to make much change in her.' But someway, perhaps because 'tis so natural for me to look on the 'bright side,' I could not feel hopeless.

"There's a spring which, once touched, unlocks even the most hardened heart, and I was determined I would yet find it in her. But the days went by and there was no apparent change. I was so deeply interested in her that I took most of the care of her upon myself and spent some part of every day in the little room where she was imprisoned, and May, then a little girl of ten years, was often there with me. After a time I thought she looked less defiant, and though she still kept strangely silent, I felt there was a difference in her and my hope strengthened.

"One day, when her time was half out, May and I were with her. May had broken some bright blossoms from our window garden and taken them in for 'the poor woman.' As she held them out, with such a look of pity in her sweet child face, all the depth of mother-love stirred within me, and forgetting where I was I caught the child in my arms and kissed her again and again. As I did so I heard a low cry and looking up saw that Mollie had thrown herself across her hard bed and was crying as if her heart would break. Bidding May go up stairs, I sat down by the weeping woman, drew her head into my lap and said, 'Tell me all, Mollie; let me help you if I can.'

"'Oh, Mrs. Kendall!' she sobbed, 'you are so kind and good, but it is too late; nobody can help me now.'

"'It is never too late for love to help you,' I told her, and after a little she stopped crying, and with her head still in my lap she told me all her story—the old, sad story, which, with slight variations, so many could tell to-day. I cannot tell it as she did, I cannot give the pathos of her voice and manner as she told me of her mother and her happy girlhood.

"She was the only child of wealthy parents, petted and indulged in every way, but, when she was twelve years old, her mother died and she was left much alone. Her father still petted her when he had time, but he was much absorbed in business, and there was no one to guide or counsel her. She never knew what it was to be opposed in any way until she was sixteen and had promised to marry a man but little older than herself. Her father would not consent to such a step and his opposition but added 'fuel to the flame.' Young, wayward and undisciplined, realizing nothing of the importance or sacredness of the marriage tie, they felt only that they were misused, and, in childish folly, planned an elopement, and were married without the father's knowledge. This so incensed him that he refused to receive them again in his home, or to do anything for them, so they were thrown wholly upon their own resources.

"They went to another city, and for three years they struggled on as best they could; then the husband died and Mollie was left destitute with two helpless little ones to support, and she nearly as helpless as they.

"Oh, it was pitiful to hear her tell how she tried for days and days to get work and failed, as how could she help but do when she had never been taught to do any kind of work, and there was nothing she could do well? As I listened to her, I could but feel how wicked a thing it is for parents, whether rich or poor, to let a child come to maturity without learning to do something by which he (or she) could earn an honest living. If the time ever comes when our daughters are given a business education and fitted for practical life with the same earnestness as our sons are, there will be fewer such stories as this.

"At last, in despair, Mollie wrote to her father, telling him of her need and helplessness, and humbly begging for mercy and forgiveness, but no reply ever came to her letter. Her children grew sick and her own strength failed, and they were finally all taken to a hospital. While she was too sick to know anything about it, her baby died, but she said that when she knew, she could only thank God that he had taken the little one away from all pain and suffering.

"As soon as she could walk she began again the weary search for work, but with no better success than before. And then, when weak and despairing, temptation came. Here was money, why not take it? No one cared for her, why should she care for herself? This would keep her boy from starving, and he need never know of his mother's shame, so she fell.

"That was three years before she came to us. In all that time no loving hand had been stretched out to save her, and she had gone down, down. At times she had tried to live differently; when she looked into her boy's innocent face, she could hardly endure the thought of her sin, and then she would try so hard to break away from it all; but she was weak and hungry, and would soon give up and go back to the old way. She knew nothing of the Homes and Missions organized to protect and save such as she, and so life went on growing darker and darker, until her arrest and trial came, and she was brought to us; and then she could not believe that I really wanted to help her, but thought if I knew all, I would turn from her, just as others had done; so she shut her heart to all tender influences. 'But, oh, Mrs. Kendall,' she said, 'when you caught your little girl in your arms, it all rushed over me so! Once I was pure as she is, and my mother loved me just as tenderly, and little Willie loves me now, and does not know. Oh, what shall I do? What shall I do?'

"I talked with her for a long time and gradually a little hope grew up in her heart, and she was so different from what she had been. I let May go often to see her. I knew she would not harm my child, and it seemed to me the healing she needed would come best through the companionship of a sinless little child; besides, I wanted her to see that I trusted her and believed in the promises she had given me.

"Her little boy was taken to an orphan asylum when she was brought to us, but as soon as the sixty days expired we sent for him, and kept them both with us for six months. She became a good housekeeper, and was so grateful for all we did for her. She was sincerely repentant, and I felt that at last she had fast hold on the Father-hand of God, and would do what she could to redeem her past by living purely in the future. Willie was a bright little boy, and clung lovingly to her.

"We would gladly have kept them longer, but Mollie felt it would be better for them both to go away where her old life was unknown. I succeeded in finding her a place as housekeeper in the family of a friend of ours in Denver, and there they are yet, both well and happy, respected and loved for their faithfulness and the purity of their lives.

"Willie is almost a man now, and has a position in the store of his mother's employer and is bound to rise in the world. We hear often from them, and just before I came from home I had a letter from Mrs. Wheaton in which she told me much of Mollie. She is, indeed, a 'good Samaritan,' and her hand is ever outstretched to help someone over the rough places of life. No one appeals to her in vain, and many a poor girl has found a mother in her and been kept from evil by the true words she speaks and the help she gives in the hour of need and danger. Remembering her own experience, she knows just what to do and how to do it, and truly she is led by the Spirit and richly blessed in her ministry."

. . . . . .

"And you, too, my daughter, are 'led by the Spirit and blessed in your ministry,'" said the dear old mother as Ella ceased speaking.

"It was you who first taught me the joy of going 'about the Father's business,' dear mother," and Ella kissed the wrinkled forehead with tender reverence. Then we all sat silently thinking, while, without, the rain drops pattered ceaselessly.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

BY REV. JOHN BASCOM, D.D.

It may be fairly doubted whether our real need is to see ourselves as others see us. Certainly to Prohibitionists just now, the view so obtained would be anything but stimulating. If it is possible for a man to regard himself too favorably, it is equally possible for others to look upon him too disparagingly. Whenever a man or a party come under heavy moral pressure, half their power of endurance is shown in refusing to accept the averted face of friends, and the violent detraction of enemies. A favoring view has in it courage and persistence; a submissive one, weakness, indecision and failure.

A short time since, an article appeared in the Independent, written by Dr. Wayland of the National Baptist, entitled, "A Man Without a Party." The writer, evidently interested in temperance, having given reasons why he could not sustain the Republican nor the Democratic party, turned his attention, in conclusion, to the Prohibition Party. He says of it: "The tone of its leaders and of its organs is prescriptive, abusive, unjust and unchristian." These are hard words, and unless the gun shotted with them delivers freely at the muzzle, it must deliver disastrously at the breech. I have no doubt the writer thought they went straight to the mark. My opinion is that the recoil in them is far more dangerous than the discharge. I have had wide opportunities of observation, and the tone of the leaders and organs of the Prohibition Party—always bearing in mind that from the nature of the case, their duty is one of attack and exposure of halting measures and inadequate means—seems to me, in justness, forbearance, and good temper, commendable—not perfect, but commendable. Yet the opposite opinion prevails with exceedingly good men, and delays them in uniting with the Third Party. What is the reason of this decided difference in judgment as to the spirit and methods of Prohibitionists?

One reason is, I think, that those temperance men who find so much repulsion and irritation in the opinions of Prohibitionists do not give the question of temperance the relative importance and urgency that attach to it in the purpose and measures of the Third Party. That party regards the overthrow of the liquor traffic as an instant and supreme object. They are in dead earnest to do this one thing. Those who ought to affiliate with them, and are yet repelled by them, have by no means the same cogency of conviction.

This is plainly shown in the farther statements of Dr. Wayland, that the Third Party puts up its own candidates when perfectly unexceptional men are in the field; that its leaders denounce local option; that they denounce restrictive measures; that they regard the closing of two-thirds of the saloons as no advantage. I cannot think these statements, just as they stand, quite true, and yet there is a color of truth in all of them. The reason why a Prohibitionist is not jubilant over the closing of two-thirds of the saloons—a statement very extravagant as applied to high license—is because the other third sell all, or more than all the liquor of the original number. The apparent gain is an illusion, and, therefore, the man who is planning, night and day, how to do it, not how not to do it, is profoundly offended by another and most wretched make-shift.

The Prohibitionist is not displeased with local option in and of itself. He dislikes it because it has been found and will unceasingly be found wholly inadequate for the end in view. It is healing the hurt of the daughters of my people slightly. For my own part I have put myself to much inconvenience in supporting local and restraining laws, and have usually found those who are ready to aid the work, Third Party Prohibitionists. I have learned the entire insufficiency and feebleness of these restrictive measures in an active support of them. That is the accusation we bring against them. They are fitted to satisfy easy-going temperance men, and to postpone all stringent, adequate law. The difference between the two wings of the temperance army is one of stringency.

This is especially seen in the sincere objection so often made, and made with such supreme confidence in its goodness, that Prohibitionists will not support temperance Republicans. Waiving the question whether this action on their part is wise or unwise, certainly there is nothing strange or obscure about it. As the Prohibitionist views the case, the old parties have been tried again and again. The measures they propose are deceptive, or deceptively enforced. This was the ground on which the members of the Third Party—hopeless of all reform within the old parties—were driven to separate themselves from them, and to form a new organization. Having in their own minds settled the need of a new political organization, and taken the decisive step towards its realization, surely no thoughtful man can fail to see that they are bound to faithfully pursue the policy they have entered on. Is it not even childish to ask them to do otherwise?

The election of this or that Republican does not alter the general bearing of the question. The permanence of the Third Party alters all things. A temperance man and a temperance measure have been the bait by which the party hook has been covered for years and years. Are we to be reproached for not greedily snapping at it once more? The huntsman might as well say, "Why, I have prepared my trap just as I have prepared it for twenty years; what a perverse old fool of a fox this is, that he won't be caught by it!" Such objections urged against Prohibitionists show that those who make them have not fathomed the earnest temper of the men they so readily weigh and condemn. Here is an important bridge that has given occasion to many accidents, it is thoroughly unsafe, and ought to be immediately rebuilt. It has been patched and patched again. The question is once more before the town, What shall be done with it? A citizen refuses to vote an appropriation for the dangerous policy of further repairs. One steps forward with well-feigned indignation and exclaims, "Here is a man who says that bridge is dangerous and yet he will not vote a dollar to make it safe." Has not the time come in which such chaff as this should no longer be in the air?

The same lack of penetration is shown in charging the Third Party, as is so constantly done, with a partisan temper. A partisan temper consists in adhering to a party as a matter of interest and feeling aside from the pursuit of sound political principles. The older parties, more or less forgetful of their public duties, often in the possession of power, with a strong appeal to the feelings, able to reward their friends and punish their enemies, are in that stage of development which especially exposes their adherents to a partisan temper; to maintaining political relations no longer consistent with the public welfare. On the other hand, it is almost impossible for one engaged in supporting a newly-made, abused and feeble organization to be a partisan. He may be a fanatic, but not a partisan. Nothing but principle can prompt his action. He carries on the war at his own charges, and heavy ones, too, as far as expense, reputation and personal ease are concerned. The party has no office, no honor, no support to confer upon him. Yet, strange enough, those who are receiving an instant reward in honor, office, and money, will term these devotees, these drudgers of principle, partisan, and themselves, non-partisan. This is a sin against common sense. No man, no woman, could make it who was looking simply at facts and the real relation of things. The adjective, fanatic, has adhesion in it; but nothing except the vigor with which it is thrown, and the constancy with which the effort is renewed, can make the epithet "partisan" stick to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, or to the Third Party in their present self-denying stage of labor.

I draw much consolation from acrimonious and absurd attacks. There is in them a safe, double inference. Our work is telling; our force is felt; it must be met. On the other hand, sound reasons are not at hand. There is safety only in misapprehending and misrendering the facts. It seems to me that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the friends of temperance who are bearing the heat and burden of the day are entitled to the beatitude of Christ: "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven; for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you."

LEGISLATION ON THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN THE COLONIES AND UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

BY ADA M. BITTENBENDER.

II.

The Revolutionary soldiers were supplied with liquor rations daily as a matter of course. The provisions ordered by the General Assembly in May, 1775, to be issued to the Connecticut troops included "three pints of beer per diem, or spruce sufficient . . . . . and one gill of rum per man on fatigue days only." Massachusetts, by resolution of her Provincial Congress, June 10, 1775, provided "That each soldier in the Massachusetts army shall have the following allowance per day, viz.: . . . . . Article 4. One quart of good spruce or malt beer." In addition, liquors could be obtained of the sutlers, except a few hours during the night time. Rule 64 of the "Rules and Regulations of the Continental Army," adopted by the Continental Congress of the United Colonies, June 30, 1775, provided that "No sutler shall be permitted to sell any kind of liquors or victuals, or to keep their houses or shops open for the entertainment of soldiers, after nine at night, or before the beating of reveilles." The Continental Congress, November 4, 1775, in ordering provisions for the new army to lie before Boston, made a ration contain "one quart of spruce beer or cyder per man per day;" and November 28, 1775, made a navy ration contain "half a pint of rum per man every day, and discretionary allowance on extra duty, and in time of engagement."

In consequence of liquor so furnished, "the diseased appetite was not only fostered where it already existed, but was also awakened in many who had not hitherto experienced its insatiable longings." (Boys over sixteen years of age were enlisted.) On being discharged, this appetite followed the soldiers to their homes and continued to grow upon them, and attached itself to other members of their communities, before quite free from its thralldom, until the whole country seemed stricken with intemperance, which continued its ravages with increasing power until about the year 1825 when its greatest virulence, known in American history, was reached.

This appetite existing, the fact of its existence was taken into consideration, as before, in planning for revenue to run the government and pay off the enormous war debt, which, with a depleted treasury, confronted the first Congress under the Federal Constitution. Moral considerations were not permitted to have weight. On being presented, while considering the rate of duty to be laid on rum, Lawrence, of New York, expressed what then was, and since evidently has been, the majority view of Congress. He said:

"If we are to reason and act as moralists on this point, I am certain it is the wish of every member to prevent the use of ardent spirits altogether, for their influence on the morals of the people is of the most pernicious kind. Nor does the mischief terminate here, as I apprehend it is equally destructive to the health; but we are not to deliberate and determine on this subject as moralists, but as politicians, and endeavor to draw (if I may use the expression) from the vices of mankind that revenue which our citizens must, in one form or other, contribute."

The policy of encouraging and protecting the manufacture of intoxicants was continued under the new form of government from its beginning, and since has been continued without interruption. The preamble of its first revenue law, heavy duty being laid on both distilled and fermented liquors, reads:

"WHEREAS, It is necessary for the support of government, for the discharge of the debts of the United States, and the encouragement and protection of manufactures, that duties be laid on goods, wares and merchandise imported." (Passed July 4, 1789.)

While the people were "drinking down the national debt," as one Congressman aptly put it in favoring excise tax on domestic spirits, which, during the third session of the First Congress was added to meet the need for more revenue (causing the whisky insurrection of Western Pennsylvania), the several state Legislatures, appalled at the increase of intemperance and resulting evils, were vainly striving to stem the tide by making the license system more stringent. Provision after provision was added from 1780 to 1820 (the war of 1812 created another national debt, the drinking down of which greatly augmented the bad state of affairs), until, as Rev. Dr. Dorchester says, "It reached a degree of vigor not found in our more recent laws.' Still was it ineffective, however perfect as a system—on, on went the disease like a whirlwind before a mole-hill in its way.

Then came an awakening all over the land of temperance people to its inefficiency; and not only to this, but to the moral badness of the system as well. Hitherto their attention had been chiefly directed to the evils resulting from the liquor traffic, and not to the sanctioning of laws as being wrong in principle. "Down with the license system," became the cry.

Among the earliest results of the new movement was the amendment of laws so as either to make the licensing authority elective, instead of appointive, or to authorize direct vote on the question of license or no-license. Within a few years no-license prevailed in a large part of the country.

The next step was to effect repeal of the odious license laws, substituting therefor prohibitory laws. Partial concessions were made at first, such as prohibiting retail sales in less than specified amounts and in any amount to be drank on or about the premises where sold, and empowering towns and counties to "suppress the retail traffic on a petition signed by a majority of the adult male inhabitants." Then came the enactment of general statutes, Maine leading off in 1846 with a law prohibiting the sale of wines and distilled spirits, which she amended in 1848 by extending its provisions to all intoxicating liquors, and further amended in 1851 so as to include the manufacture, thereby making the demand complete, and her Maine Law* famous the world over as the signal light of the reform.

Laws similar to that of Maine, within four years after its passage, had been placed upon the statute books of six other states and two territories, viz.: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, Connecticut, Iowa, Indiana, and the territories of Minnesota* and Nebraska.† Foreign liquors in the hands of the importer and in unsealed casks or packages, which were imported under authority of the laws of the United States, were excluded from the operation of these several laws. Within the same time, three other states adopted statutes prohibiting the sale but not the manufacture, viz.: New York,* New Hampshire, and Delaware. New York exempted cider, New Hampshire exempted domestic wine and cider, and Delaware exempted liquors manufactured by the seller from fruit or grain grown in the state. In each case, the exemption did not apply to the liquors when drank on the premises where sold. Michigan, in her constitution adopted in 1850, provided that the "Legislature shall not pass any act authorizing the grant of license for the sale of ardent spirits or other intoxicating liquors." Her Legislature in 1855 prohibited both manufacture and sale "except cider, beer, and wine of domestic manufacture." Her constitutional restriction was repealed in 1876. Ohio, in her constitution adopted in 1851, provided that "no license to traffic in intoxicating liquors shall hereafter be granted in this state; but the general assembly may, by law, provide against evils resulting therefrom." The Ohio constitutional restriction still exists. The state Legislature in 1851 prohibited sales of "any spirituous liquors of any kind whatever to be drank in the place where sold," which law was amended in 1855 so as to cover all intoxicating liquors. The Legislature of Illinois, in 1851, prohibited retailing liquors "by a less quantity than one quart," or "by any quantity, and suffer them to be drank in any house, tavern, store, etc."‡ And in 1855, the Illinois Legislature submitted to the voters of the state for ratification a law prohibiting both manufacture and sale, excepting cider and wine, of state grown fruit, and the manufacture of malt liquors for exportation. It failed of ratification by a very few votes In 1854, the Pennsylvania Legislature submitted the question whether a prohibitory law, completely outlawing the nefarious traffic, should be enacted in that state or not. The question was decided adversely by a small majority. The next year the Legislature prohibited Sunday selling and also week day selling except by persons licensed to sell in quantities over one quart, keepers of "places of entertainment, amusement or refreshment" not to be licensed. The Legislature of Texas, in 1854, prohibited the licensing of persons "to sell spirituous or vinous liquors in less quantity than one quart unless a majority of the qualified electors . . . . cast their votes in favor of the granting of such license." Considerable additional prohibitory ground was gained in the states not mentioned, through carrying elections for no-license and other ways, from 1851-55.

In speaking of the effect of this legislation—of the wonderful change in drinking habits, improvement in health, and the great moral and spiritual uplifting of the people, which had been accomplished within twenty-five years, Rev. Dr. Dorchester says: "Probably in no country, in so short a period, was there ever so radical a transformation. . . . . Social life everywhere wore new aspects; the domestic economy of society was changed; materia medica felt the influence; the number, frequency, and fatality of diseases were reduced, and the moral and spiritual forces of the nation were greatly augmented."

But, unhappily, this period was succeeded by one unfavorable in the extreme for the temperance movement. For the six years before the firing on Fort Sumter, the four years of Civil War, and the reconstructive years, "violent agitations, heart-rending anxieties, new political problems of far-reaching influence, involving the profoundest thought in their solution, engrossed the attention."

During the Rebellion, the liquor ration—supplied daily to the Union navy by act of Congress, and frequently, often daily, to the Union army under regulations of the War Department—again did its deadly work, helped cruelly on by the licensed saloon, as opportunity was given it. In the Confederate states, the liquor traffic was continued and heavily taxed for revenue. Hon. Samuel C. Pomeroy, United States Senator from Kansas, in addressing the American Temperance Union, in May, 1863, in regard to the Union army, said:

"The vice of intemperance has followed the army, has visited the quarters of both officer and private, has taken down some of the bravest and truest of the land, who, before, had always stood erect in their manhood and their pride. It has made disorderly and riotous the loyal camp of the soldier, has made disgraceful the tent of the officer, and, on more than one occasion, defeated and demoralized an army on the field of battle. Of the thirty thousand victims of disease and death attending on the Peninsular campaign the last year, at least ten thousand may be set down as chargeable to the daily ration of whisky and quinine. Intemperance and its fruits made such sad havoc in the Mexican war, that it was feared

*Amended in 1853 so as to except "the manufacture of cider, and the sale thereof by the manufacturer." A new prohibitory law was enacted in 1855, and the famous one repealed. This was replaced by a license law with a few prohibitory reservations in 1856; and in 1858 another prohibitory law was passed, submitted for ratification, and ratified by a large majority. This last prohibitory law did not include "the manufacture of cider or of wine made from fruit grown within this state, and the sale thereof by the manufacturer." Since 1848, prohibition has been continuous in Maine. The constitution and present statutes exclude cider.

*Declared unconstitutional by the courts. Replaced by license laws.
†Not re-enacted on gaining statehood.
‡Repealed in 1853 and old license laws re-enacted.

that the dead would more than outnumber the living. General Scott said that in his Mexican campaign, fifty per cent of all he lost in his army, who are left in unmonumental graves, are there from this source, rather than from the bullets of the enemy. He therefore pleads with us to speak out and act effectively."

Effective speaking out and acting had to do mainly with Congress. The policy of Congress in regard to the liquor business was not to be changed in the face of another war debt of unprecedented magnitude, and the need of an enormous amount of revenue from day to day which the consumption of taxed liquors would largely and readily supply.

The unpatriotic forces of King Alcohol, love of money instead of country being the actuating power, were quick to see and take advantage of the auspicious time for them—auspicious especially in creating this necessity for an immense revenue, and that for many years to come. Willingly this time was the business subjected to excise in addition to impost. Why willingly? Because it meant another long lease of life for the business, it in turn being made to appear a necessity to be licensed and fostered as of old instead of prohibited. Besides, the tax money paid out would be returned in profits a hundred fold through increased sales and profits which the war would bring about.

And not only was it auspicious for them, this need of more revenue to run the general government, but also in the need of more revenue for state purposes. Under the pressure of this need, the old system of licensing the liquor traffic was again resorted to, at least for a season, in all but four of the states where, prior to the war, it had been discarded wholly or in part. Maine, Vermont, Iowa and New Hampshire alone have held steadfast. Ohio people license the traffic under the name of "tax," a method employed to get around the anti-license provision of their constitution. This method is in effect the same as the old license system. In several states the two systems have fluctuated, those of prohibition and license, the success of either depending upon whether moral sentiment or greed was in the ascendency at the time. In the same way we may account for the changes witnessed in the counties, cities and towns throughout the country, which, since the Rebellion, have adopted prohibition and then fluctuated between the two systems.

Washington, D. C.

Correspondence.

TEMPERANCE AND THE INTERNATIONAL LESSONS.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—At the meeting of the International Sunday-school Convention to be held in Pittsburgh in June, a new International Lesson Committee is to be appointed to select the lessons for another seven years. There is widespread dissatisfaction with the place given the temperance lesson in the present system. Under it, individual teachers, here and there, use the lesson, but the schools which choose it are the exception and not the rule.

The authorized Sunday-school periodicals of the Southern Presbyterian Church, published by Whittet and Shepperson, Richmond, Va., edited by the Rev. James K. Hazen, Secretary of Publication, have never had an optional lesson for the thirteenth Sunday, neither missionary nor temperance. As a body, the superintendents and teachers of that denomination do not know where in the Bible to find such lessons as are designated by the committee.

Presumably this is because the Rev. Mr. Hazen thinks the review of more importance than any single lesson on missionary or temperance topics. I do not say he is not right. He may be of the same opinion as the editor of The Pilgrim Teacher, whose editorial, copied into The Sunday-School Times of February 22, stated that, "The lessons as they naturally come are continually offering all the opportunity needed for direct and side lights on temperance." I agree that they do offer opportunity for temperance teaching, but not "all the opportunity needed," for the fundamental reason that, at present, teachers are blind to the opportunities. However willing to so use them, they do not see their chance. They are following more or less closely their denominational annotators, who seldom mention the subject of intemperance, who often fail to draw an apt illustration from it, or utter a warning against it. Why should one expect the teacher to be wise beyond what is written? If the learned men who prepare the notes on the regular lessons think it unimportant, will not the average teacher coincide? Teachers do not, as a rule, consider that important or necessary which is ignored by the authorities.

Who are the teachers in the typical church Sunday-school? First, there are the wife and daughters, and mayhap, sisters of the pastor; second, Christian women from sheltered Christian homes; and third, a few male members of the ninety and nine who never went astray and who cannot enter into the feelings of a tempted child who must pass ten open beer saloons in going to Sunday-school.

Are these the teachers who can bring "direct and side lights" from the temperance question to illuminate the lesson and supplement the meager comments of a college president, or a doctor of divinity, out of their own experience? Not unless they have voluntarily gone down into the deeps for the love of humanity and of Him who was tempted in all points like as we are.

How long will the church be satisfied with such a degree of inefficiency in the Sunday-school as makes it possible for three-fourths of the convicts in the Ohio State Prison to have been, at some time in their lives, members of a Sunday-school, of whom the major part are confessedly there directly through intemperance? Somebody is responsible for this state of things, and the Sunday-school, from the International Committee all the way down to the teacher, cannot shift its share of the responsibility on to the home, or on to the mother, or on to anyone or anything. May not the indifference to the present struggle for a sober manhood, which seems to characterize some of the scholars who prepare lesson-notes, be accounted for by the fact that they dwell apart from suffering, sinning humanity in the serene atmosphere of the study, and are not in touch with those who live amid temptations and surrounded by the thoughtless and reckless?

Therefore, I conclude, we need a temperance lesson with as ample annotations as any of the twelve until such time as the teachers will have learned the truth about the great evil which is an incubus upon the nation's prosperity, a threat to the nation's life and the arch foe of Christianity, as well as the Bible doctrine concerning strong drink, and God's remedy for the wrong. Afterward we may safely leave them to draw temperance teachings out of unlabeled lessons; for, once awake to the duty of the hour, and feeling that they are touching shoulders in this onset upon Satan's stronghold, millions of teachers will teach con amore with effectual heartiness.

There is no power adequate to the task of rousing apathetic—apathetic because ignorant—teachers, save the literature which is now instructing and guiding them. The guides themselves can all be won to this great service for humanity by a lesson which has no alternative and which requires fresh study from living sources.

And now I offer what seems to me to be a solution of the question, "How to have a temperance lesson which shall be on the same footing as the other lessons of the quarter, and not interfere with their continuity?" Make it number one of each quarter, and let the thirteenth Sunday be, as now, a review of the twelve lessons, that is, of the temperance lesson and of the following consecutive eleven; and when, as in the case of the first quarter of the present year, number one is admirably adapted to the purpose, let us not go to Proverbs or Galatians to find a theme, but make the most of the one at hand. More or less of a break (and always a pause) occurs at the end of the quarter in any event, and in view of the vital importance of this question to good citizenship and to the salvation of immortal souls, let this gap be filled with a temperance lesson. ALICE CORNER BROWN.

Fort Reed, Fla.

MRS. LEAVITT IN AFRICA.

DEAR SISTERS OF THE W. C. T. U.:—After one day's delay at Banana where I landed, I took passage on the Herod, up the river to Bona. The distance has been variously stated at fifty, and as high as ninety miles. A death-like stillness reigns over the mighty torrent for many miles. No beast or bird gives life to the scene. The very power, I may say truthfully, virulence of vegetable life, blots out all other. But presently rising ground appears. Grass lands begin to assert themselves. Grassy swells and valleys dotted with trees intermingle with forest, looking like the most cultivated parts of England, even, except that there are no dwellings. One constantly expects to see them appear as we round a point. The hills are more and more frequent, the river takes sharper and sharper turns, becomes more and more turbulent as we approach the foot of the cataracts at Vivi and Matadi.

A boat puts out from the landing station of the English and American Baptist mission station at Tundua, and Mr. Claflin of the latter society receives me, and escorts me to the guest house of the English Baptist Mission, his own quarters being far too small to receive a visitor. Mrs. Claflin was absent but Mrs. Weeks of the English Mission gave me all the best things that hospitality means, and Mr. Claflin started me off in a hammock the next morning for Mpallaballa. The hammock was of sail cloth, strung to a pole, and was carried by two men. I found it less disagreeable than I supposed it would be. With a thick shawl hung over the pole, at my head, and also my umbrella with its white cotton cover, I did not feel the heat much though we arrived at one o'clock. There was one swift river to cross. My small tin trunk was placed in the dug-out canoe, and I sat upon it, with knees up to my chin to keep out of the water in the canoe. We paddled up stream, gradually getting out into the current, and then floated down to the opposite shore, much below where we started. The path had been up and down steep hills, a mere foot path, and the greater part of the way composed of broken fragments of quartz. This stone lay in fragments of all sizes from an egg to an elephant.

A messenger had been sent on earlier in the morning, so Mrs. Claflin was ready to welcome me. Mpallaballa is a station of the A. B. M. M., formerly known as the "Livingstone Mission." Mr. and Mrs. Clark were away on a trip up the river, and Mrs. Claflin was "holding the fort" till their return. Mr. Hall was at home, Mr. Harvey there for a few weeks, and Mr. Hyde away at Banana on business; Miss Flemming and Miss Gordon live in their own little house, not more than half a mile away.

A fine garden belongs to the place, cultivated by the boys and girls at the mission. Mangoes, manioc, yams, sweet potatoes, bananas, corn and beans are among the articles raised. There is seldom a day the year round when the table is not indebted largely to the garden for its supplies.

I had overlooked my stay of three days at Bona on my way up, during which Christmas occurred. I have never passed one where I felt so far from home. But Miss Flemming and Miss Gordon invited us all to their house for New Year's Day. We sat down to table, English, American and African, North and South, white, black and brown, and felt that we were all one in Christ. Home was very near on that occasion.

At Mpallaballa the number of converts is not large, and the question of removing inland, away from this caravan route, has been agitated in the mission. The schools, the printing house, the daily service for the mission, and any caravan that may be there are, however, doing much good. At Banzamanteka, only three or four years old, a church of over three hundred members has been gathered. I wished very much to visit that station, but it was considered too arduous and exposing for me, so I gave it up.

It is a very strange fact, that whereas a few years ago the caravan route along the south bank of the Congo was studded with villages, they have all but two disappeared now, throughout the cataract region from Matadi to Stanley Pool, a distance of nearly two hundred miles. It would be difficult to fathom all the causes.

On the Sabbath morning I spoke, through Inkana, an interpreter, to about sixty people, about one-third of whom were heathen. In the afternoon to the Sabbath school children. The next Sabbath I spoke again, and during the talk took occasion to show the superiority of our God as an ever-present help, and to denounce the medicine men and their fetiches. During the week as Mrs. Claflin and I were going to see the source of their water supply, we heard the sound of the drum. Following it we came to a little village, where all the women and children, and some of the men were assembled, dancing in a circle around a medicine man, who was doing his best to work himself into a frenzy, staring with fixed eye-balls, open mouth, and darting here and there with rigid, contorted muscles. But it was quite evident that he was not in the least out of his head. He was not pleased at our appearance upon the scene; nor with our scanning every movement carefully. Soon he gave the signal and led the way to a retired valley, down a dark ravine, and the whole company followed him, except the poor sick woman, on whose account he had been called in. Before the establishment of the government, in all probability some person would have been pointed out as having bewitched the sick woman, and would have been put to death. Now this is rarely done, and always with the utmost secrecy. Mr. Weeks looks very carefully after this matter, so that now probably very few fatal decisions are reached. The combined influence of the state and the missionaries is widely felt, but were they removed, did the witch doctors feel secure, no doubt they would go on as boldly as ever. Their calling brings them much wealth. The poor sick woman was worse when I went to her hut two days later, and must in all probability die.

It is difficult to conceive of a village on the lower Congo. The buildings are so low, and the corn growing around so high that they are almost as effectually concealed as hen-coops would be in a cornfield at home. The houses are dotted about anywhere. A foot-path leads to, or passes by each one. All are square, or are intended to be. Ordinarily they consist of only one room, and the majority are from ten to fourteen feet square. Some are not more than seven by eight feet, and barely high enough to stand up in in the center. The king's houses are larger, and generally surrounded by a fence six or seven feet high, and sometimes entrance is had through a passage fenced on both sides, which doubles several times upon itself. The supports to walls and roof are light wooden poles and sticks, largely bamboo and palm, while the covering is grass and rushes. The thatching of the roofs is admirable in many instances. The reeds of the walls are tied in place by fine fibers, and in the better houses this is done with much skill in regular and even beautiful designs, and executed with great precision. There is in all villages an open space, kept hard and well swept, but in all I saw it is very small, not more than thirty feet in any direction, and of an irregular form. I think a dozen or fifteen houses is a fair-sized village in this part of the country.

One great difficulty with which all mission schools have to contend is the indifference, or rather opposition of parents to the education of their children. They say: "If our children go to school, they won't stay here with us, but go to some town to live, and we shall be obliged to work for ourselves, but if we do not let them learn, they will stay at home, take care of us, marry here, and their children will make the village larger."

All the girls at this station, and I think at the others, are "redeemed girls," that is, those who have been rescued from slavery. When years pass and Christians have families about them, it will be different. The dawning of the change already appears.

Sierra Leone. MARY CLEMENT LEAVITT.

(To be Continued.)

THE POWER OF THE BADGE.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—At a regular meeting of the Boston union, not long since, our president requested that any member who within the week previous had felt she had special cause to praise God for opportunities in connection with temperance work, to report such.

Many and varied were the responses, and out of them the following incident, testifying to the talismanic power of our unpretending little badge, impressed me as worthy of being passed along for the benefit of others:

Our sister, Mrs. S. was passing along one of the much-traveled thoroughfares of our crowded city, wearing in the buttonhole of her cloak a bit of white ribbon, when a man, rough in exterior with a troubled and haunted expression upon his face, and an earnest longing in his voice that was startling in its intensity, stepped up in front of her and pointing to the badge she wore said: "You wear the white ribbon?" "Yes," was the reply, "and what can I do for you?" the tears falling thick and fast from her eyes as she looked into his face. "Pray for me," he said, "pray that I may be kept from drink; my business takes me into place after place where liquor is sold, and I must have help to enable me to keep my pledge.'

It is hardly necessary to add that when this pathetic story was ended and our sister said, "And now I want your prayers too in this man's behalf," that with one accord we united in a cry to God to stretch forth His hand and deliver this our brother from the power of appetite.

The simple little knot of white ribbon took on new beauty as we realized what its message was to that burdened, storm-tossed soul. Surely it spoke to him of a ready ear, a heart filled with tender compassion for those who like himself were struggling with the temptations which come from a legalized liquor traffic; and of a prevailing power in prayer, from which was to come new strength and courage for his time of need.

Such a testimony as this to the potent influence of our badge should tend to encourage every white-ribboner in the constant wearing of it, for who knows what poor wayfaring man, heart-sick woman, tempted girl or suffering child may not be looking for this little token of pity and love towards that humanity of which they are a part, and for whom Christ gave His life. M. E. CHENEY.

NEBRASKA CAMPAIGN FUND.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—I made an appeal for help to send tracts in the foreign languages to Nebraska. The following day a lady called and said she had not been able to sleep the night before thinking how she could get some money for that purpose. They had no money, but she had some nice apples, and if I would buy a half bushel, she would be so glad to give the money that way. I did so, and five hundred pages went out to the Swedes and Germans of Nebraska, showing them why they ought to vote against high license and for prohibition.

Recently I spoke at Baker University, a Methodist College where many of the students are striving for an education on very limited means. The collection for the work was secondary to the fact of getting the important need of an educating influence for our vast foreign population before the four hundred students who were to scatter to all parts of the country and have a voice and influence in our government.

After the meeting closed, a young man came and handed me a dollar "for the work." A gentleman standing by said, "That young man saws wood to get the means to educate himself." "Oh," I exclaimed, "I cannot take his money under those circumstances!" "Yes, take it," said the boy; "it will please my mother so much. She would be so interested in your work, I know, if she could hear you, and I hope God will bless you." I replied, "I know God will bless you for such a spirit as that."

The next morning a young minister came to me, who is still studying, though licensed to preach. He has had to stop his studies for a time, and is selling books to get means to go on. He was enthusiastic about the work, and said, "I have no money, but I must help Nebraska some way," and, taking off his cuff buttons, he said, "Take these, and perhaps you can sell them, and get some money for the work there." I said I could not take them; that I made no such sacrifices myself and I was not willing to accept them from others. But he begged me to take them, and pleaded that he wanted a share in that fight. He said they had cost him one dollar and seventy-five cents, and if I could sell them for anything, to please use it. Who will buy those precious cuff buttons that mark a heroic spirit? They are very good looking, and I wait for a purchaser, to let that young minister feel that he is contributing to the work for prohibition in Nebraska, which the Kansas people know so well how to appreciate.

Contributions for work among foreigners in the Nebraska campaign are as follows:

Mrs. H. Hughes, Medina, Ohio, $1; Forestville, New York, W. C. T. U., $1; Mrs. E. J. Gray, Medina, Ohio, $1; Mrs. M. C. Lord, Pasadena, Cal., $1; Mrs. Mary B. Miller, Andover, N. Y., $3; Mrs. Phillips, Lawrence, Kan., 50 cts; Central W. C. T. U., Denver, Col., $3; Mrs. Wenrick, Lecompton, Kan., $1.25; Mrs. G. H. Smith, Freeport, Ill., $1; Mrs. A. D. Miller, Portland, Oregon, $5; Mr. Robbins, Baldwin, Kan., $1; collections, $10. Total, $28. SOPHIA F. GRUBB.

Lawrence, Kan.

A TEMPERANCE VICTORY IN THE MECHANIC'S FAIR.

EDITOR UNION SIGNAL:—The Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association was organized in 1795, incorporated in 1806. Preparations are in progress for the seventeenth triennial exhibition which opens in Boston, October 1, 1890. Applications for space are coming in rapidly and there is great competition for location, but the management, composed of sterling business men, have determined to accept only the finest and most attractive lines of industrial and mechanical art, and they guard the interest and safety of the public at every point, in order that the moral influence of the exhibition shall be equal to the financial and industrial excellence. At a recent meeting of the directors, the Cordelia Wine Company applied for space, offering as a special reason why they should be prominently located the fact that they intended to present to every visitor a tiny glass of wine as a sample of their goods, and as they were to act in this hospitable spirit they deserved the most commanding of locations. The board of directors to whom this offer was made refused absolutely to allow any such exhibition, and after a short consultation determined that alcoholic liquors in bottles or barrels were as bad in one sense as the proposed offer of a glass of wine, so a very sweeping and strong vote was passed to exclude alcoholic liquors in every form from the coming exhibition. This action is in line with the policy of our leading business men, who have kept the old Bay State in the front rank since the battle of Lexington whose anniversary falls on this date.

Mrs. A. J. Gordon, President of the Boston W. C. T. U., will work with me in securing some action relative to the G. A. R. encampment to be held here in August. The Woman's Relief Corps, 90,000 strong in the United States, is 9,000 strong in Massachusetts, and we shall confer with them as to the best method of work. We shall aim to put the arm of the law strongly against the rising tide of liquor dealers who consider such occasions their harvest time, and we shall put a long, strong band of white ribbon about the country's defenders and the ribbon will be held by the officers and members of the state and city W. C. T. U. Ten thousand men will be encamped in the building of the Massachusett's Charitable Mechanic Association. The Woman's Relief Corps will be entertained in the parlors of the Woman's Charity Club Hospital whose president is also president of a local W. C. T. U., and we are magnificently located to do much good. We shall not forget this project. Home Protection calls for purity of life, mental, moral and physical, if the perpetual safety of the state and nation are considered.

MARION A. MCBRIDE,
Fair Dept. N. W. C. T. U.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

I am in daily receipt of letters from new subscribers to THE UNION SIGNAL, asking the following questions in regard to the Temple: "For what purpose is it being built?" "What is it to cost?" "How is the money to be raised?" "Who is the projector?" etc. In answer to these questions I give the following extract from my annual report on the Temple, which I gave before the National W. C. T. U. Convention held in Chicago last November, and which has not before appeared in THE UNION SIGNAL:

"Seven years has the Temperance Temple been my thought by day, my dream by night. No matter what other work absorbed me, it was but for a time: true as the needle to the pole, my mind would revert back to that which I felt was one of the crying needs of the W. C. T. U. A great National building, in which would be located the National Headquarters, and a hall that would commemorate to all time the struggle which the Christian womanhood of the land had made to save their homes and loved ones from the widespread evil of intemperance, a hall in which the incense of prayer shall daily ascend for the extermination of the liquor traffic. Above, and beyond all this, was the desire that a large income might be at the disposal of the National and state officers, with which they could push on to success the numerous lines of work adopted by our society, which in many departments are now languishing and almost entirely inoperative, because there is no money either in the state or National treasury with which to prosecute them.

"Thus in the vision which God has given me of this great enterprise, the beneficent uses to which the income from the building may be applied has been one of its most important features. Then, to have such a commanding building erected in the central metropolis of this great country as a mighty object lesson to the multitudes from North and South, East and West, which are constantly passing through it, shows that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has come to stay until the viper which is poisoning the life blood of the nation shall be exterminated.

* * *

"Two years ago the plan of the Temple was made public and laid before you at the Nashville Convention when you kindly gave it your indorsement, and again at the Convention held in New York last year Slowly but surely the plan has been developing, the outline of which I will give you, so as to refresh your memory. The money to erect the building in the first place is to be raised by stock and bonds subscribed by capitalists friendly to the cause; as much as possible of this stock is subscribed by myself as trustee on behalf of the National W. C. T. U.

"This stock is redeemable within five years by the payment on it of five per cent for the time it has been in use, or it can run longer if we so desire. The bonds will also be redeemable from five to fifteen years, and will be a five per cent bearing bond. It is my hope and expectation that in five years from the time the building is commenced, the members of the W. C. T. U. and the friends of temperance will have given so generously to the enterprise that the stock and bonds will be entirely absorbed by their gifts.

"The lot which we now have the refusal of as the site of the Temple is larger than the one we first contemplated building on, and will, consequently, cost more. The estimate of building, with all expenses of interest on bonds, insurance, etc., is $1,100,000. It will be twelve stories high, entirely fire-proof, and built with the solidity and finish of the best business blocks in the city. We have decided to increase the capital stock to $600,000; of this amount, I am happy to say, $542,000 is already secured. When the capital stock is all subscribed, it insures the placing of $500,000 in bonds; $1,100,000 seems an immense sum of money, and so it is, but our organization is an immense one, so that a little from each would secure the entire amount without any one feeling it.

* * *

"Any union of thirty members can easily raise $100 (the amount we ask each union to give) by the mite-box system alone. Then we have Baby Bands, Cherub Bands which, in a small way, are easy and simple methods to raise money for the Temple. Besides this, we have started a Thousand Dollar Band. This consists of a hundred men and women who pledge to give or raise $1,000 for the building fund. We have $6,000 pledged on this band—only one of its members is a woman. We have a Hundred Dollar Band. This consists of a thousand white-ribboners who pledge within two years to give $100 to the building fund. Eighty-five women have either given or pledged to this fund. We have a men's Hundred Dollar Band; twenty-one men have either given or pledged to this band. When these three bands are completed, they will bring in $300,000. Surely there can be found in this nation Christian people sufficiently interested to pledge these amounts, so the W. C. T. U. can have National headquarters of its own, and a sufficient income to wage an aggressive war on the stronghold of the liquor traffic.

"It is only lately we have begun to keep a record of the unions that have promised to give $100 to the building fund. We have so far sixty-eight who have given and pledged $100 each; if only 5,000 unions out of the whole number we claim would give a $100 apiece we would have a fund of $500,000.

* * *

"We have 10,026 mite-boxes out; when the returns come in from them, estimating each one to contain $3.65, it will amount to $36,594.90. A great many of these boxes have been ordered by parents for their children. We wish each individual white-ribboner and the members of the Loyal Temperance Legion would send for a box and pledge themselves to put into it a penny a day, and if too poor to do this, let them ask their friends and neighbors to help make it up to the required amount. Some who are opposed to the building of the Temple say that giving towards it will impoverish poor women. Surely no woman could be impoverished, no matter how poor she may be, by undertaking to fill a mite-box in this way—this is all we ask our sisters in moderate circumstances to do. If between the children and the W. C. T. U. women only 200,000 boxes were taken, it would in one year aggregate the enormous sum of $730,000. These mite-boxes could easily be distributed among the W. C. T. U. and Loyal Temperance Legion if our state presidents would only be at a little trouble to bring the matter before the local unions. We trust this is not too much to ask, when every state will reap a rich return from the amount they give towards the building fund."

145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Our Children.

FAIR FLORA'S FAVORS.

BY HARRIET NEWELL SWANWICK.

Climbing wild-roses; violets, white and blue;
Bright morning-glories, in their modest place;
Pale, shy spring beauties, freshly kissed with dew;
Grasses and ferns, to lend their touch of grace.

Her hands are full, e'en to her finger-tips;
One fades, another blooms, a beauteous train;
Lilies, with fragrant hearts and creamy lips,
And sweetbrier, ever sweetest after rain.

The year moves on and brings the golden-rod,
The ox-eyed daisy and the trumpet-flower;
Gold-hearted asters by the way-side nod,
Then comes October, with her royal dower.

In each and all the hand divine we trace,
Nor can we say of one "'tis fairest, best;"
Yet well we love the snowdrop's pure, brave face,
She early comes, to promise all the rest.
Chicago.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

Oh, what can little children do to make the great world glad?
For pain and sin are everywhere, and many a life is sad.
Our hearts must bloom with charity wherever sorrow lowers,
For how could summer days be sweet without the little flowers?
Oh, what can little children do to make the dark world bright?
For many a soul in shadow sits, and longs to see the light.
Oh, we must lift our lamps of love, and let them gleam afar;
For how should night be beautiful without each little star?
Oh, what can little children do to bring some comfort sweet,
For weary roads where men must climb with toiling, way-worn feet?
Our lives must ripple clear and fresh, that thirsty souls may sing;
Could Robin pipe so merrily without the little spring?
All this may little children do, the saddened world to bless,
For God sends forth all loving souls to deeds of tenderness,
That this poor earth may bloom and sing like His dear home above;
But all the work would fail and cease without the children's love. —Sel.

TRIXY'S PRIZE POEM.

BY JULIA MILLS DUNN.

When Miss Fairlie, the teacher in the A room, requested the pupils to remain after school was dismissed, all the children in the class wondered what it could possibly mean. Had some one done wrong, and was he to be exposed to his fellow classmates? Each of the younger boys, with one accord, began to review his record mentally, to see if it could be he. Tom De Peyster, who had pulled the wings off a poor little fly that day, and the boys who sat near him and had laughed at the antics of the tortured insect as it plunged wildly over the desk, began to look sober.

Flossy Marx, who sat near the open window and had spent a good deal of time scraping up the white cherry blossoms that drifted in with every breath of south wind, and made believe it was a little doll's bed on which she laid a doll fashioned from her tiny lace-trimmed handkerchief, looked very serious, and wondered if Miss Fairlie had seen her playing after all.

But the expression on Miss Fairlie's face was not one of reproof. "Members of the Loyal Temperance Legion will please rise to their feet," commanded the teacher.

Forty bobbing heads, black, brown, white and yellow, were up in a twinkling, and forty pairs of eyes, black, blue, brown and gray, began to sparkle. When Miss Fairlie planned anything for the Loyal Temperance Legion, it was sure to be something good.

"We were going to have one of our children's dime sociables for the benefit of the Loyal Temperance Legion," said Miss Fairlie, "but I have thought it best to have something new by way of variety. We will have a rhyming contest, and the boy or girl who composes the best poem of not less than eight lines on the subject of temperance will receive five dollars in gold for a prize. All can compete who wish to do so, and the prize will be awarded by a committee of three, chosen from the audience by the children themselves. You have just a week in which to prepare your lines, and all who are willing to compete may raise their hands."

Up flew the hands in every direction, though when they came to be counted, only twenty-five had the courage to pledge themselves.

"If there isn't Trixy Winslow," whispered Fanny Brayton, the largest girl in school, to her little cousin, Flossy Marx. "Wonder if she is really going to try for the prize," and she looked severely on poor little Trixy as she spoke.

But Trixy, bright and jolly, spite of her rags and patches, and quite unconscious of any intentional offense, returned Fanny's severe glance with a gay smile that showed all her white teeth, and stood, her hands clasped in a sort of rapture.

Rhyming was Trixy's one gift. The children at home, ragged and noisy, might clamber about her, with clamorous appeals for this or that, for Trixy was general nurse to the rollicking brood that filled the house all day long with turmoil and confusion, but Trixy, with a stubby lead pencil, would pursue her beloved pastime of scribbling rhymes all over everything in the most prodigal fashion, on margins of newspapers, on the blank leaves of books, even on bits of clean shingles when nothing better offered itself.

Only one thing could rob Trixy of all enjoyment in her rhymes, and that was to see her father come reeling down the lane, his hat askew on his tumbled, frowsy hair, his eyes bleared and red, and his words wild and incoherent. Then she would put down the fat, heavy baby on the floor and hide away in the orchard behind the house, or the kitchen garret, anywhere, to escape the sight that filled her with a deadly terror that she could not conquer, and only increased as the days went by, and the repulsive spectacle grew more and more frequent.

Her mother, toiling at the sewing machine day after day to earn the scanty sum that barely kept them from starvation, knew nothing of Trixy's scribbling. She was a sad, abstracted woman, weighed down by the weight of her grief and care, a loving mother, but so absorbed in providing for the physical needs of her family that she had little thought for anything else. So down in the orchard where the grass grew thick and tall amid the nodding crimson clover blossoms, or sitting beside the creek in the maple woods just beyond the orchard, with bare feet hanging in the gurgling stream, Trixy dreamed her childish dreams, and wove them full of her own bright fancies.

"If I could only get the prize for mother," she thought to herself, "then the baby could have a pair of new shoes, and mother the shawl she needs so much, and—oh, ever so many things, for five dollars is such a lot of money!"

From the day of its announcement, the prize became the all-absorbing topic of conversation among the pupils in Miss Fairlie's room. Notwithstanding her request that no time or thought should be given to the subject in school hours, many a bright head was bent low over the desk after recitations were over, while the owner slyly pored over a slate crossed and re-crossed with many lines, or scanned suspicious looking bits of paper.

Trixy became careless of the baby, and even ran away from the other children once or twice, to hide in the orchard and rack her poor little brain with thoughts that had no rightful place in the mind of a child. She forgot to whistle an answer to the oriole that was building its nest on the swinging branch of a tall elm in Mr. Brayton's meadow across the road, and his loud, mellow whistle passed unheeded, so intent was she on the verses that she hoped would win the prize.

* * * * * *

The contest was to be held in the town hall, and the larger members of the class had taken great pains to decorate it for the occasion in a becoming manner. Great jars, the sides hidden by trailing vines, were filled with ferns and branches of wild hawthorn blossoms. Apple blossoms were everywhere, in vases, pitchers, bowls, on table, floor, window sills, wherever there was room, till the dingy, dusty hall was like a bower of bloom and fragrance. Mrs. Brayton had sent her fur rugs and a few chairs for the platform, and a piano lamp with a rose-colored shade lent a soft light to the stage that gave it quite a home-like effect.

News of the novel contest had spread abroad, and when the hour came for commencing, the room was well filled. Dr. Snow, Lawyer Dexter, and the Rev. Mr. Carter were chosen as the awarding committee, and the exercises began. The competitors for the prize came forward one by one, Fanny Brayton, Harry Dexter, Tom De-Peyster, and others, until only Trixy remained.

"Miss Beatrice Winslow," called Miss Fairlie, and a queer little figure stepped on the platform, arrayed in a manner that caused an irresistible smile in the audience. A faded pink dress, patched with goods of another color, her hair standing out like a Circassian girl's from the braiding she had given it over night, a white apron, like her dress scrupulously clean, but long enough for one twice her years, a bunch of wild violets pinned on the bosom of her shabby gown, were some of the most startling features of Trixy's toilet. She did not notice the smile that ran around the room. Unmindful of self, but deeply anxious for success for her mother's sake, she knit her small forehead into a decided frown as she unfolded the coarse bit of paper, and with a funny little bow began:

"Who knows the curse of a drunkard's life?
The drunkard's children, the drunkard's wife;
The birds have a home in the forest tree
But the drunkard's child has no place to flee;
Pity not the animals wild,
But pity, oh, pity the drunkard's child!"

Her forlorn appearance, the touching sincerity of her tones, her artless appeal to the crowd before her, touched every heart. A round of applause followed, and Mr. Carter leaned over to whisper to his neighbor:

"She's a bright little creature for a nine year old, eh, doctor?"

There was a whispered conference among the committee, and then the minister rose.

"The prize has been awarded to Beatrice Winslow," he said, and then more applause followed, louder than ever.

Some one rose and came out into the open space in front of the rostrum, and at the first sound of his voice, those who knew him recognized it as the voice of Trixy's father.

"Friends," he began, and the applause ceased as by magic. "I'm not a man of many words, as you know, but I want to say that I am ready to take the pledge to-night for the sake of my little Trixy there, God bless her, and I do it praying that I may live to become a pride instead of a disgrace to her, and that I may have God's help to keep the solemn promise I enter into here and now."

All pressed round him with congratulations, and when Trixy, her arms round his neck, sobbed out with smiles that were half tears, "Oh, papa! how glad dear mamma will be!" there was not a dry eye in the house.

Trixy is a woman now, but she has never seen her father drunk since that day, and though she is a well-known writer for leading magazines and papers, she treasures as her choicest composition her prize poem.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING MAY 4, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 9: 1-27; I Samuel, 9-14.)

Sunday, 11; Luke 9; 1-27. Verse 6, The Apostles did not go as strangers among enemies, but as friends unto a region where the Saviour Himself had already prepared a way for them. They were to reap no personal advantage, but were to give unselfishly what they had so freely received from their Lord. In the same spirit, we ought to go forth and do good, wherever the door of opportunity is opened. Verse 17, It seemed impossible to the disciples that the multitude could be fed in the desert; but nothing is impossible with God. When our ability fails and still there is need, our Lord is able to do for us until we have more than enough to satisfy. Verse 25, A human soul's true, everlasting salvation is of more worth than the whole world.

Monday, 12; I Sam. 9. Verse 2, A gigantic stature and an athletic frame were once a man's highest recommendation. We should look more to moral qualities. Verse 14, Samuel was the chief man in Israel; but such was the simplicity of his manners that on his way to preside at a high festival, he could not be distinguished by his dress, or in any other way, from an ordinary citizen. Truly great men and women have always been noted for their simplicity. Verse 21, Saul belonged to one of the most important families. (Verse 1.) It was a great advantage that he belonged to a tribe that was nearly extinct (Judges 20), for that would keep down jealousy among the other tribes. One may have great advantages and be lofty in stature, and at the same time be a dwarf in character.

Tuesday, 13; I Sam. 10. Verse 25, It was against Samuel's desire and judgment that the nation should have a king; but when it was evident that nothing else would satisfy the people, how noble he was to lay aside all selfish considerations and preferences and do his utmost to give the kingdom a good start and make it successful! Verse 27, There were much wisdom and prudence in Saul's kind and forbearing treatment of his enemies in the beginning of his government. His patience under insult shows that he was not wanting in some noble qualities.

Wednesday, 14; I Sam. 11. Verse 5, There seemed to be no public duties requiring his attention immediately after his election, and Saul modestly returned to the duties of his farm. It is right that we should keep ourselves occupied with whatever duties come to hand. Verse 6, The circumstances by God's leading transformed the young farmer into a military leader. We should hold ourselves ready for the developments of providence, and pray for wisdom that we may be able to meet whatever new duties may arise.

Thursday, 15; I Sam. 12. Verse 3, The justice and integrity of Samuel's public administration, and the honor and purity of his personal character, make him a noble example for all to follow. Verse 14, It is right that we should ever keep before us the consequences of obedience and disobedience to the divine law.

Friday, 16; I Sam. 13. Verse 6, The times of trial are the times that test men. We shall fail in the battles of life if we have not zeal and energy and courage. Verse 12, Saul's great fault was want of full and confiding faith in God. Verse 13, No amount of attention to religious forms will bring us into favor with God, if we do not keep His commandments. If we are wanting in faith and are disobedient, disappointment and defeat in due time will overtake us.

Saturday, 17; I Sam. 14. Verse 6, We may have faith in God so as to aim at objects that are not in our own power. It is not because of our own strength or our own merit that we expect success in the great conflicts which will turn the world to righteousness. Verse 10, If the spirit of God inspires us to an enterprise, He will also suggest and lead to the means of its execution.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(The Exaltation of Jesus Christ. Philippians 2: 9.)

The whole plan relating to the work of our Lord Jesus Christ in the salvation of men proceeds according to the wise purpose of God to exalt Him and give Him a name above every name.

1. The preparation for Christ's coming by the working out of a long line of providential events, and making Him the subject of many prophecies, no one of which was ever forgotten or remained unfulfilled, exalts our Lord to the greatest importance in the thought of God and in the events of this world. Religions, philosophies and governments had run their course, and were made ready for the work and kingdom of the Prince of Peace.

2. From Moses to John the Baptist, the life work of great souls was directed to prepare the way for the coming Lord. And not only did He engage the interest of earth, but the angels of heaven looked forward to His advent into the world, and exalted Him by their presence and praise.

3. Our Lord as the author of life —giving life to the world and triumphing over death—is forever exalted. He brought life and immortality to light, opened up a way of redemption, and will be exalted and glorified throughout eternity for the salvation of men.

Moral reformation may turn out the devils; it will never bring in God. And in the emptiness of the swept and garnished heart there is an invitation to the seven to come back again and fill it.—Dr. Maclaren.

Covetousness is an inordinate desire, with a suitable endeavor, after the enjoyment of more riches than we have, or than God is pleased to give unto us, proceeding from an undue valuation of them.—Howe.

Life is the single theme of Christ—life and its fullness. —Munger.

The Household.

HEALED.

BY SARAH E. KELLER.

(St. John 5: 8, 9.)

I.

One passing by says, "Rise and walk,"
'Tis plain he cannot know my case,
How, for long years, I helpless lie,
Unaided cannot leave my place.

Alas! alas! how many years
Sowing and harvest have gone by,
While other sufferers have been healed,
And yet uncured, unhelped, I lie!

But this man hath a kindly face,
Authority seems in His tone
Which half impels me to my feet,
But I'm too weak to rise alone.

He pauses; will He stretch a hand
To aid me? On His helpful arm
Methinks, though crippled, I might lean
In whole security from harm!

There is compassion in His eyes,
Deep, they seem searching to my thought;
Had I but strength! how quick would I,
In glad obedience, "rise and walk!"

But what new energy is this
Which thrills and vibrates through my limbs?
A strong, insistent, urgent wish
Their power to try in me upbrims.

He is so near! if I should fail,
One with such kindly watching eyes
Would save me from a harmful fall;
Heart, doubt no more! I rise! I rise!

II.

Healed! healed! with but a look and word!
Would that all suff'ring ones might find
This great Physician, in whose voice
Dwells healing! He is strong and kind.

So let us heed His "rise and walk."
Our chains He can transform to wings!
Transfigure grief to holy joy
Life's drudgeries to sacred things!

The slavery to some strong sin,
Tyrant of souls that faint and bleed,
He can dispel though close its hold
Upon our daily thought and deed.

Doubt not, O impotent! Obey
When "rise and walk," the Master says!
We lie such useless, sluggish clods!
Rise up, to better, gladder ways!

Rise up, unfearing, for He waits
So close, so close! and "knows our frame;"
"Remembers" we are dust, and so
Keeps near to hearten, lead, sustain!

O "rise and walk!" nor dread to fail,
Nor halt, nor hesitate, nor fear!
A myriad hands, invisible,
Are stretched to aid, and Christ is near!

A WORD TO OVERWORKED WORKERS.

BY MARY WHITALL COSTELLOE.

One of the dangers of the present age, as most women workers know to their cost, is the breakdown of a large proportion of those who work with their brains. Cases of nervous prostration meet us on every hand, and it is the common argument of those who are opposed to the work of women, that women are nearly sure to break down because of their nervous temperaments.

A late experience of my own has led to a discovery of the cause of many of these apparent nervous breakdowns, and in the hope that other women may profit by it, I will put my experience at the service of those whom it may concern.

My nervousness, due as everyone supposed to overwork, manifested itself at first in the extreme difficulty I found in sleeping, and in an abnormal sensitiveness to noises at night or when trying to study. Within the last year other distressing symptoms, which will be only too well recognized by hundreds of women, began to show themselves, and seemed to point toward my being on the rapid road to a severe case of nervous prostration. These symptoms were an increasing sleeplessness, depression, physical weakness, an overwhelming sense of unmet responsibilities, irritability of temper, discouragement before obstacles, nervous fright at noises, powerlessness for any continued intellectual effort, and finally severe attacks of headache.

For six months I suffered increasingly from these things, and no medical or hygienic treatment seemed to afford me any relief. I gave up all work and went into the country, and even went to bed, thinking to try the rest cure, and amused myself by reading books requiring no thought or mental exertion. But instead of improving I only became steadily worse, and finally I was ordered to leave home and go to the continent for a complete change, and my mother and I wandered about on the Riviera and into Switzerland for nearly a month, but with no apparent benefit.

At last one day at Andermatt in Switzerland, when we were feeling very much discouraged, my mother suddenly turned to me and said, "Daughter, I believe it is thy eyes." It had flashed into her mind at that moment that five or six years before she had heard Dr. Dunton, of Germantown, Philadelphia, in the United States say that when people seemed to have nervous prostration, they ought always to go first and have their eyes examined by a skillful oculist, as there were certain mechanical defects in the eye that often produced all the symptoms of nervous prostration, even where the eyes themselves seemed to cause no conscious inconvenience. I considered my eyes to be unimpeachable, but to test the suggestion, I stopped reading and writing for a few days. To my delight I began to sleep at once, and all my other nervous symptoms quickly disappeared. We very soon began to feel convinced that we had hit upon the right solution of all the trouble, and started for home. Passing through Paris we stayed over a day, and I consulted the best oculist I knew, to wit, Dr. George Bull, of 4 Rue de la Paix, who is preëminent in his profession for the diagnosis and treatment of all such affections of the eye. I found him a scientific enthusiast, willing to devote any amount of time to the perfect appreciation of a single case. He examined my eyes first in their natural state, and, a few hours later, under the effect of a form of atropine, with sundry novel instruments, some of which had been invented by himself, and checked his delicate measurements next day by further tests. In the result, he confirmed our guess by explaining that I had been suffering from a double form of optical error, such that, although consistent with apparently perfect vision, it nevertheless involved a constant strain quite sufficient to account for all my nervous troubles. He prescribed accordingly, as my sufficient remedy, the use for reading or writing, of spectacles, adjusted by exact measurement to rectify the various errors. His spectacles have not only ensured to me a complete immunity from the sleeplessness and nervousness of my former state, but they have enabled me to do any amount of reading and writing without any of the old nervous fatigue. In short, I was completely cured, and that, not by mountains, but by spectacles. My long inability to sleep has given place to the most delicious capacity for slumber, as sound and undisturbed as a little child's, and I feel full of life and vigor, and moreover I feel like recommending spectacles to every nervous or sleepless person I meet.

My experience naturally led me to make some inquiry on the subject. The first result, of course, was the discovery of an extraordinary number of cases like my own. Some of them, however, had baffled oculists of good standing, the reason being doubtless the extreme delicacy of the measurements, and the lack of the ingenious instruments required. The most usual forms of visual anomaly which are responsible for nervous disorders are astigmatism and hypermetropia. Both of these require much more accurate observation and adjustment of glasses than the common myopic or short-sighted condition, which last also involves less constitutional danger. As my own case was an instance of both astigmatism and hypermetropia I had an opportunity of finding out by the kindness of Dr. Bull the meaning of these mystic terms. Hypermetropia is the converse of short-sightedness. In the latter the retina is a little too far away from the curved surface of the cornea, so that the curve would require to be flattened or corrected by a concave glass, in order that the focus of the rays entering the eye might fall exactly on the retina. In hypermetropia the retina is, on the contrary, too near the cornea. It so happens that a person who is in this condition can in most cases unconsciously correct it without the aid of glasses, because the variation is not generally too great for an accommodation by the internal muscles of the eye. The way in which this is done is that the so-called ciliary muscle, which is possessed of very delicate powers of adjustment, causes the crystalline lens to become more convex by contracting the edges so that it bulges out in the center. The result is to make the focus of the rays coming from objects fall not behind the retina, as they would do without adjustment, but on it. For vision this physiological maneuver works well enough so that hypermetropic subjects are not, except in extreme cases, conscious that they see differently from others. The normal eye makes such accommodations only for objects that are close to it. The hypermetropic has to make a greater adjustment in that case, and also to make an adjustment even when it looks at the most distant objects. It is never at rest except in sleep, and this constant muscular effort, as will be seen, is the cause of the nervous distress.

It may seem strange that so slight a cause should produce such widespread results. But it has long been known in medical science that even a very slight pressure on any one point of the peripheral nerves, if long continued, may lead to a complete upset of the whole nervous system. For example, the pressure of a splinter of bone, or of a small tumor, or other unnatural growth, will often result in a thorough disturbance of the nervous machinery throughout the body. And in the same way the constant slight strain of the nerves controlling the muscular adjustment of defective eyes does not end with the particular set of nerves involved, but goes on until it disorganizes the highest nerve centers.

Astigmatism is even a more frequent occasion of this nerve disturbance than hypermetropia. Astigmatism is the common term for a lack of symmetry between the different curves in the refracting machinery of the eye. It often happens, for instance, that the curvature of the cornea is uneven, so that meridians drawn upon its surface give different degrees of curvature. In the normal eye, every diameter of the surface of the cornea should be curved alike. In the astigmatic eye the cornea is shaped more or less like the bowl of a spoon. It may also happen that the crystalline lens may be slightly oblique or out of place, and though this inaccuracy may sometimes correct the other, it may also make it worse. It is also commonly the case that the astigmatism is different in the two eyes, so that the necessary muscular adjustment is curiously complex. Astigmatism, unhappily, is far less known than the other errors of vision. It was only discovered in 1800 by Thomas Young. After him, nothing was done till 1852, when a French topographer noted it as a cause of error in the manipulation of instruments. It is only recently that it has been accurately investigated, and the necessary optometers and other instruments devised, and the connection between these eye difficulties and apparent nervous prostration does not yet seem to be generally recognized.

What is the moral? I do not suggest that the optometer is a "Morrison's pill," nor do I deny that the high nervous tension of our complex life tends to develop that more or less sensitive or neusotic condition in which all forms of overstrain are doubly dangerous. But I am convinced that much of what our pessimists call the inevitable breakdown of busy women is in the nature of preventable disease; and I suggest to the victims of insomnia and nervous exhaustion that they may find it well worth their while to go to some expert in astigmatism for accurate examination. It cannot hurt them, and it may be their salvation. At least it is an experiment worth trying before we conclude that all women of nervous constitution must renounce their hope of higher education and their interest in public work.

40 Grosvenor Road, London, S. W.

DON'TS FOR THE SICK ROOM.

Medical Classics says: Don't light a sick room at night by means of a jet of gas burning low; nothing impoverishes the air sooner. Use sperm candles or tapers which burn in sperm oil.

Don't allow offensive matters to remain; in cases of emergency where these cannot be at once removed, wring a heavy cloth, for instance, like Turkish toweling, out of cold water, use it as a cover, placing over this ordinary paper. Such means prevent the escape of odor or infection.

Don't have the temperature of a sick room much over sixty degrees; seventy degrees are allowable, but not advisable.

Don't permit currents of air to blow upon the patient. An open fireplace is an excellent means of ventilation. The current may be tested by burning a piece of paper in front.

Don't give the patient a full glass of water to drink from, unless he is allowed all he desires. If he can drain the glass he will be satisfied; so regulate the quantity before handing it to him.

Don't neglect during the day to attend to necessaries for the night, that the rest of the patient and the family may not be disturbed.

Don't ask a convalescent if he would like this or that to eat or drink, but prepare the delicacies and present them in a tempting way.

Don't throw coal upon the fire; place it in brown paper bags and lay them on the fire, thus avoiding the noise which is shocking to the sick and sensitive.

Don't let stale flowers remain in a sick chamber.

Don't be unmindful of yourself if you are in the responsible position of nurse. To do faithful work you must have proper food and stated hours of rest.

Don't appear anxious, however great your anxiety.

Don't forget that kindness and tenderness are needful to successful nursing. Human nature longs to be soothed and comforted on all occasions when it is out of tune.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A. AMES, ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publication Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

Take counsel; execute judgment; make thy shadow as the night in the midst of the noonday; . . . judging and seeking judgment, and hastening righteousness.—Isa. 16: 3-5.

Let us contemplate, then, this connection which binds the prosperity of others to our own; and let us manfully discharge all the duties it imposes. If we cherish the virtues and principles of our fathers, Heaven will assist us to carry on the work of human liberty and human happiness.—Daniel Webster.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION OF BRAZIL.

Revolution has heretofore been the mother of republics, tyranny the grandmother; but the closing year of the last decade was marked by an event without precedence in the past, and full of significance for the future. A republic came forth from monarchy as naturally as a butterfly from its chrysalis. There was no bloodshed, no uprising on the part of the people, and no resistance on the part of the sovereign. On the contrary, the king declared himself a republican, saying he wished to reign no longer than his people desired. Such peaceful collapse of a throne could not now occur outside of America, where thrones are exotic, and perhaps not outside Brazil.

A glance at history shows that in that country kings have not, as a rule, been very far out of reach of the people. Discovered and claimed by Portugal in A. D. 1500, for more than three hundred years it shared the fortunes of that adventurer among nations. Once the mark of French ambition, then under the power of Spain, and again the prey of the Dutch republic, it maintained through all, the character of a Portuguese dependency. The invasion of Portugal by France in 1808, led the royal family to take refuge in Brazil, and virtually to transfer the government there. The ports were opened to foreigners and commerce sprang up.

King John remained thirteen years. In the meantime Brazil, having outgrown the condition of "dependency" upon the enfeebled European country, declared itself a coördinate kingdom, of which King John was Prince Regent. This change was effected by a proclamation, emanating from a council of prominent citizens, and ratified among the people with applause and illuminations. After three years, affairs in Europe, together with the increased pressure of demand in Brazil for independence, led King John to return to Portugal, leaving his son, Dom Pedro, in the regency. In parting, he gave this fatherly advice: "Pedro, Brazil will, I fear, ere long separate herself from Portugal. If so, place the crown on thine own head, rather than allow it to fall into the hands of an adventurer." The following year, while in the interior of the country, Dom Pedro received advices from Europe which led him to declare at once the independence of Brazil. Hastening to Rio Janeiro, he found the people rejoicing, and he was immediately proclaimed constitutional Emperor, under title of Dom Pedro I. It was unquestionably the only thing to be done. To have continued an ally of Portugal would have been to invite attack from her enemies. The people saw the situation, and in America the wise ruler is guided by the ruled. Dom Pedro wrote his father: "I am not a rebel; the fault is with circumstances." He was a statesman and a valiant soldier, but nine years later, when a popular assemblage on the streets of Rio sent him a message by three justices of the peace, requesting a change of administration, he replied the following morning, abdicating in favor of his son, then six years old. At fifteen the boy's majority was declared by popular vote.

A man of letters, a trained, scientific investigator, a traveler, a patriot, Gladstone has said history will pronounce Dom Pedro II the greatest sovereign of his time. He was abreast the moral reforms, as well as the scientific and industrial advancement of his age. While at the Centennial Exposition he gave one of the most elaborate banquets of that festive season. Everything that epicurean taste could crave was on the tables. Especially notable was the variety of luscious fruits, and scarcely less notable was the entire absence of wine.

The nobility never really took root in Brazil, as titles, except of the royal executive, were not hereditary. The news of the advent of the republic was received with consternation in the court circles of Europe. It meant the accession to republican territory of over three and a quarter million square miles of unrivaled richness. The population is only 15,000,000, but the world has seen the ratio at which the populations of republics increase. There was some comfort in saying it would not hold out long, but those best acquainted with Brazilian history and politics had faith in its stability. The Rothschilds continued their financial support on condition that the union be preserved and order maintained. The provisional government so manifestly intends to be provisional that it has won recognition and respect. The constitution just offered to the public for discussion will finally be submitted to the direct vote of the people. It is to be regretted that a recent decision of the Minister of the Interior debars women from having a voice in its adoption. By this constitution the "republic of Brazil is composed of states, federal districts, provinces and territories." Provinces will have political organization, but require pecuniary aid from the federal government. Territories are unorganized, or uninhabited districts. Each state is to make its own laws, but the federal government guarantees to all a republican form of government. There is no uncertainty about the latter point, which is also flanked by this iron clad provision against secession:

"The federal government shall interfere in the government of the states only for the purpose of guaranteeing a republican form of government, the sanction of sentences of federal courts and in case of rebellion. In the last-named contingency a state of siege may be proclaimed and the federal power will assume the government until the cause of the trouble be removed."

The treaty of limits just completed with Buenos Ayres, settles a question which has been in dispute for a hundred years, often threatening war.

The new Republic is beset with many difficulties, and with some dangers. The readjustment of the banking system is now taxing to the utmost the wisdom of her financiers and statesmen, and putting to test the confidence of creditors at home and abroad.

Not the smallest factor in social problems is the freedman in their midst. We are asked out of our twenty-five years' experience to advise as to his treatment. The exodus of the blacks from the plantations has already begun, and as with us, the cities are thronged. Nature is on our side, saying to black and white alike: "He that will not work shall not eat." At the tropics all is different. There the indolent may find both bed and breakfast under a tree. The African slave is proving the most expensive luxury ever indulged by any people, and he is yet far from being paid for.

The Jesuit yoke is apparently broken, the Provisional Assembly having decreed the separation of church from state, liberty of worship, and secularization of the public cemeteries. There is danger that unbelief instead of evangelical faith will come in to take the place of the cast-off superstitions of Jesuitism. North American missionaries should be swift to occupy the fields opened by this proclamation of liberty of worship.

The Bourbons and the Hapsburgs find American soil a sandy foundation upon which to build their houses. The Brazilian flood swept away in a night the last appearance of monarchy from the western hemisphere. Emilio Castelar believes the sway of autocracy nearly over on the old continent, and that before fifty years pass Europe, too, will be republican from end to end. The change is sure to come, whenever the masses attain their majority, and put away the childish things of royal pomp. A crowned doll ceases to amuse, when men enter the lists for the highest prize—their own best manhood.

THE RIGHT OF PETITION.

This is one of the rights of citizenship which the W. C. T. U. has persistently claimed and exercised. Esther Pugh tells us that in Crusade days the call of God to cease praying in the saloon and advance on the legislature was as distinct and imperative as had been the call to go to the saloons in the beginning. This advance was made by the way of petitions, and that pathway has been trodden by thousands of weary feet during the intervening years. Probably no other form of work has enlisted so many people as has this; men and women who could never speak in public have carried around petitions, and by persuasive words quietly spoken, have convinced many whom the most eloquent orator failed to influence. Boys and girls have joined in this work, their sweet confidence, not only in the justness of the thing they asked, but in the intention of those of whom they asked it to uphold the right, winning many who could not bring themselves to disappoint this childlike trust. While doing this work, these boys and girls were forming characters pure and strong, making them the hope of the future in the great reform.

"Few boys ever traveled more miles in circulating temperance petitions than Clarence," said one of our grandest workers, as she bent over the coffin of her son; on his coat was fastened the white ribbon with a white rose pin, emblem of what his faith was and his vote would have been had he lived to cast it. All over the land are young men and maidens whose faith in prohibition is stronger, and whose courage is higher because of the petition work they did when children.

For what did these petitioners ask? Every good thing connected with the temperance movement. Reviewing the list one cannot help wondering why, in a Christian nation, such appeals should be necessary; it would seem that law-makers should forestall such requests by enacting the laws they urged before the asking, so just and necessary are they. A century hence antiquarians digging out these petitions and reading the record which is written on so many of them, "Rejected," will think, "Those nineteenth century law-makers were less enlightened than we had supposed."

These petitions have asked for the prohibition of the liquor traffic in city, county, state and nation; for the closing of dram-shops near schools where the children go, and near churches where they and their parents worship; for preserving the sacredness of the Sabbath, and the right of every man to the God-appointed weekly rest; for protection to the girlhood of the land against the lust of villains; against the sale of liquor and tobacco to minors; for temperance teaching in public schools as a preparation for citizenship; in short, for the protection of the home against its arch enemy, the saloon.

When there came to Frances E. Willard, on her knees before the open Bible, this message from God, "Set over against the appetite of the drinker and the avarice of the seller the mother-love of the home," it was a trumpet call to the women of her state to engage in one of the most noted petition campaigns of history. It resulted in a petition asking for women the veto power against placing saloons near their homes, signed by 175,000 men and women, and presented to the Illinois Legislature. The scene is historic—that immense roll, "borne of four" to the Speaker's desk; the puzzled, defiant or admiring look on the faces of those legislators; the eager, pleading faces of the state's best women in the gallery, all are stamped on Memory's page forever. That night Representative Hall presented a scene never before witnessed: festooned all around it was the mammoth petition, encircling it again and again and again, the audience packed every square foot of space, while Miss Willard, Mrs. Foster, Prof. Foster and others, pleaded the cause of the Home against the Saloon. Did they win their case? "The petition was laid on the table." To-day it rests in the archives of the Historical Library of Chicago, placed there by that true friend of woman and of temperance, Albert D. Hagar. Some time it will be brought out, to the astonishment of our children who will find it hard to believe that such an appeal could have been disregarded.

The campaigns for Scientific Temperance Instruction were largely campaigns of petitioning, and their success is recorded on the statute books of twenty-seven states and that of the Federal government. This took hard, patient, well-planned work, often extending over years; one state superintendent went to her legislature backed by thousands of petitions, at six biennial sessions, before the victory was won.

Each prohibitory campaign in the various states has its own story of heroic work done in this direction; Iowa, Kansas, the Dakotas owe their success largely to the patient, persistent tramp of many feet circulating petitions. Even more heroic seems this work as done in the states where prohibition has been slaughtered. Oh! how weary, weary were the feet that had tramped through rain and sun with petitions which were only scoffed at by the legislators!

There has been much petitioning of other bodies than legislatures; for years Mrs. Ellen M. Watson worked indefatigably in securing signatures to petitions to the Evangelical Alliance to devote one day in the Week of Prayer to prayer for the removal of drunkenness and of drunkard making. William E. Dodge, of blessed memory, was the first to sign this petition whose influence is felt in increased attention being paid to temperance by Christian assemblies, and in the action of the British Branch of the Alliance, which last year included in its topics for prayer "the base traffic which corrupts and destroys native races by the introduction of spirituous drink." Perhaps ten years more of petitioning will bring us to the point of praying for "the base traffic which corrupts and destroys" the home folk.

Miss Kimball's Sunday-school hosts secured recognition by the International Sunday-school Committee through persistent petitioning, and nearly all of the leading ecclesiastical bodies have been induced to take a stand against the use of alcoholic wine at the sacrament, by the same means.

The National department having this work in charge is the dual one of legislation and petition, for petitions are usually for the purpose of influencing legislation, and right legislation is their golden fruitage. Its first superintendent was Mrs. Judith Ellen Foster, who organized it and did good work until she resigned in 1884; its present head is Mrs. Ada Bittenbender, the third lady admitted to practice law before the Federal Supreme Court. She spends most of her time when Congress is in session, in Washington, representing the W. C. T. U., and directing the work of this department. She is the efficient aid of every superintendent in petition and legislative work, especially in preparing and presenting petitions to Congress. In this she is ably seconded by the W. C. T. U. of the District of Columbia. Some idea of the work accomplished in this direction is gained by looking over the reports of different superintendents.

Mrs. J. C. Bateham tells of ten million signatures to the petition to Congress for Sunday rest; the heart of Mrs. Ingalls, superintendent of narcotics, is made glad by the fact that nineteen states have, in answer to petitions of the W. C. T. U., passed laws prohibiting the sale of tobacco to minors. The department of White Cross and White Shield reports better laws for the protection of girlhood passed by Congress for the District of Columbia, and petitions in scores of states for similar laws, though to their shame be it spoken, most of the legislatures refused to grant these petitions; requests that the "all-conquering ballot" might "execute a freewoman's will" as well as a freeman's, have been as largely circulated, and alas! as generally disregarded. Indeed, there is scarcely a department of National work that has not, at times, exercised its right of petition.

In 1888, petitioning Congress for national prohibition was made an especial line of work, and has been vigorously carried on by Mrs. Bittenbender. Over 50,000 signatures to the petition to Congress to adopt Senator Blair's prohibitory amendment to the Federal Constitution have been secured and presented to Congress; Mrs. Bittenbender has prepared a "Guide to National Constitutional Prohibition," which ought to set every union at work along this line until the million signatures pledged by the National Convention be secured.

Most outreaching in its sweep is the World's Petition which Mrs. Leavitt is carrying to all nations. It is a supplication to the governments of the world asking each to prohibit the traffic in alcoholics, opium and other narcotics in its own dominions. It has been circulated in Australia, New Zealand, Burmah, Rangoon, India, Japan, China, Siam; indeed, everywhere that the feet of W. C. T. U. women have trod. It excites more interest in Oriental countries than here; Burmah alone secured 32,073 signatures, thus for its membership and conditions, far outstripping all other countries. This petition will continue to be circulated outside the United States until July 31, 1890, and in this country till the last of August, by which time it ought to have at least a million signatures.

In India, Dr. Ryder, who accompanied Ramabai home, has started the circulation of a Centennial Temperance Petition; 1890 is the hundredth anniversary of the Excise regulation by the English Government in Bombay, and "regulation" has wrought the same dreadful results it works in America; this Petition asks Parliament to substitute prohibition for regulation. At the close of the year it is to be sent to the British Woman's Temperance Association, to be presented by them to Parliament.

If good men who uphold the use of liquors in any form could know into what company it brings them, we believe they would be more careful about expressing themselves. A Texas friend sends us a pamphlet issued by the leading liquor firm of a city in that state which is a curiosity in its way. Besides setting forth in glowing colors the beauties of their own particular business, it devotes much space to attempts to prove the eminent respectability of liquor selling in general. Here are specimen paragraphs:

While the Bible clearly recognizes and commends the use of intoxicants, it also clearly condemns their abuse, and if the so-called temperance people would accept the principles and precepts laid down in it for their rule of action, we would have much more true temperance and much less fanaticism. Why not be as rational on the temperance subject as any other? We recognize in an intoxicant an article that may be a great blessing, or a great curse, just owing to how used.

As one engaged in the liquor business, I am more interested in the encouragement of temperance, such as the Bible teaches, than any who are not in the business can be, because I consider the drunkard the greatest enemy to our trade; and I would like to assure my Northern Presbyterian friends that, if they will teach what the Bible does about the proper use and abuse of intoxicants, they will be able to do infinitely more for true temperance than they can do by traducing all engaged in the sale of alcoholic stimulants.

Following come several pages to prove the virtues of alcohol as a food and a beverage; quotations are made from Oliver Wendell Holmes, Baron Liebig, and others. But the way religion is brought into this liquor dealer's advertisement is the strangest thing; it gives, apropos to nothing, as we can discover, a page of statistics of the various religious denominations. It then quotes from the Christian Union, Henry Watterson, Jeff Davis, Cardinal Gibbon, gives the forged testimony of Abraham Lincoln used to gain colored voters in the Atlanta campaign, and a statement of Henry Ward Beecher, which is probably just as far from being what he did say, all to prove that the moderate use of liquor is a good thing. One needs to be very careful what he says on the alcohol question, now while liquor dealers are making such frantic efforts to prove the respectability of their calling.

Miss Amelia B. Edwards, the famous Egyptologist, was interrogated at the termination of her recent visit as to what impressed her most in American life. Miss Edwards replied: "That which most surprises and impresses me is the number, size and importance of women's colleges, the enormous forward movement for education for everybody, and the universality and activity of women's clubs."

A Swedish paper has just been secured to temperance. It is published in Jamestown, N. Y., by C. A. Sherlin & Co. It is in its seventeenth year, and has a circulation of 5,000. Our New York friends will do well to get it into the hands of the 150,000 Swedes in the East.

Special Difficulties.

Pledge.—"I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including Wine and Cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same."

A VARIETY OF INFORMATION.

Query.—Is it correct for a local, county, district, or state union to send delegates to meetings of a political party?

Answer.—This has only been done in exceptional cases, and in the earlier years of the movement when women knew less than they have since learned about the correct method of representation in a political convention. If any white-ribboner desires to go to a party convention she should be selected at a meeting of the men and women interested in the party, but she should not go as a delegate from the W. C. T. U.

Query.—What is the most interesting feature of a county or district convention, or a neighborhood meeting of several local unions?

Answer.—The question-box; because it gives each member, even the most silent and timid, an equal chance with all the rest to be a felt force and to free her mind.

Query.—In the returns sent by our local unions to the question, "Have you saloons in your town?" come answers like these: "We are supposed to have three or four secret saloons as the town authorities are in sympathy with the traffic." "We have no license, and five saloons." What is to be done with the lugubrious sound of replies like this?

Answer.—It is all a question of the officer behind the ordinance; the law-enforcer back of the law. You must have prohibition with boots on, in short, and you will never get that until this question goes into the ballot, backed by the party behind it, which will police your town with voters to whose interest it is to select men who will enforce and who will do this because it is for their interest, since they desire either reëlection or promotion. That is the whole situation in a nutshell. Or, to put the matter negatively, no community will ever secure real prohibition by voting against it.

PERTINENT QUERIES.

Query.—Why did the white-ribboners in the Chicago W. C. T. U. convention applaud when Judge Moulton's telegram from Washington certified that Vice-president Morton's Shoreham hotel had a bar-room license?

Answer.—Not because they did not deplore that fact, but because their president, Miss Willard, had been fiercely attacked by the Republican press as having stated concerning the vice-president what was false, and they were glad to have her vindicated. A fac simile of the Shoreham license and a specimen of its wine (and whisky) list can be seen any day at the Headquarters of the W. C. T. U.

Query.—Why did the convention laugh and applaud when the Iowa delegates withdrew?

Answer.—The convention did not do so; after the Iowa delegates had gone there was much applause when loyal Iowa women were invited forward to occupy their vacant seats and about forty came—more than could be seated, as but thirteen had left.

'The Watch-Tower.

I will make my principles my politics.—Helen M. Gougar.

***

Our white-ribboners are accustomed, in their local meetings when they lunch together, also in their conventions under similar circumstances, to sing the blessing. Mrs. Fanny Rastall gives the following which we might add to our collection:

We thank thee, Lord, for this our food,
But more because of Jesus' blood;
Let manna to our souls be given,
The Bread of Life sent down from heaven.

***

Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, president Maine W. C. T. U., has been appointed by the Governor to represent her state in the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, to be held in Baltimore, Md., May 14-21.

***

Unwatchful trust is a delusion, and untrustful watching is in vain.—Frances Ridley Havergal.

***

It should be known and remembered by women that Elizabeth Heyrick, a Quaker lady, instructed Clarkson and Wilberforce as to their duty in the great abolition movement. Her watchword was, "Emancipation, unconditional and immediate." The voices of thoughtful women have never given an uncertain sound or counseled half-way measures.

***

Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, ex-president of Wellesley College will deliver the annual address next August at Chautauqua, before those who have completed a four years' course of reading in the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle. As a majority of the members of this great organization are women, it is only fair that the orator should be a woman.

***

People always like to hear of a new fact, so I will give this one suggested by a white-ribboner,—a Souvenir Garden, by which is meant the transplanting of flowers, shrubs, etc., from the gardens of those dear to us into our own. One of our W. C. T. U. women had a home well-nigh covered with ivy from a sprig gathered at a famous castle in England; another from the grave of a great poet; the third from the home of a beloved philanthropist. When the National Union met in Washington the delegates made an excursion to Mount Vernon, planting a small oak tree beside the tomb of Washington, and when they met in Philadelphia they placed a young elm beside the grave of Benjamin Rush, the earliest pioneer of the temperance movement in America. Few souvenirs are so satisfactory as those given us from the fresh mint of Nature.

***

The following verses by Henry Septimus Sutton, an unknown poet, but who surely had a right to be known, are full of inspiration:

How beautiful it is to be alive,
To wake each morn as if the Maker's grace
Did us afresh from nothingness derive,
That we might sing, "How happy is our case,
How beautiful it is to be alive."

Thus ever toward man's height of nobleness,
Striving some new perfection to derive,
Till, just as any other friend's, we press
Death's hand, and having died feel none the less
How beautiful it is to be alive.

***

The Misses Stewart, of Cincinnati, three Scotch ladies of excellent family and education, have had for two years a temperance restaurant in the elegant Chamber of Commerce building. Having been for years engaged in city mission work, they selected young women waiters from among their pupils in Sunday-school. When the question came up as to furnishing beer they announced that they would do nothing of the kind and took the risks, though their rent alone was $3,000 per year. But theirs was home cooking, toothsome and tastefully served; the heavenly powers were on their side, and they are clearing from eight to ten thousand a year, while the best of the bargain is their loyalty to a sacred cause.

***

The wives of four of the officers massacred at the Little Big Horn are close, personal friends; all were left to depend upon their own efforts for support, and each has achieved success in her way. Mrs. Custer won her way to literary fame by her book, "Boots and Saddles," and continues to support herself by her pen; Mrs. Calhoun, sister of General Custer, studied elocution and is a successful elocutionist; Mrs. Yates supports and educates her three children by teaching dancing, and Mrs. Smith is a skilled worker in embroidery.

On Duty.

Queen's Gardens.

SO SHINE.

BY MRS. A. S. K. BURTON.

And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever.—Dan. 12:3.

Although quite an old woman, I am not about to tell you "how much better girls used to be when I was young" than they are now, for I think the reverse of that is true. I cannot even think of that word "girls" without a sensation akin to that produced by being suddenly set down in the midst of a June day in the woods, where delights rush in upon one's soul through every sense. The beauty of trees, and flowers, and grass, and brook, and sky; the music of bird-song, and breeze-rustled leaves, and rippling stream; the delicious touch of the air on cheek and brow; the draught of pure water from the brook, and the flavor of ripe strawberries. "Girls!" a word so full of the fresh eagerness of youthful hearts. So suggestive of the present joy and pride of the dear ones of the home circle, and of possibilities of good or evil for the future.

Girls, haven't you delighted to "rummage" in some chest up stairs to see what you could find among those smoothly folded and closely packed piles of things that have been "put away" and forgotten? So have I. But you "have outgrown that childish folly?" Well, I have not; and I have a "chest" of my own that I carry with me as I go drifting about, and it is packed full of treasures, that though "centuries old," are ever new. This morning the fingers of my mind touched one of these treasures that I had not seen for a long time, and I will give it to you to keep. It is the text that stands at the head of this letter.

I cannot help thinking it belongs to our girls who are wise (Y's), and have determined that with God's help they will live to some good purpose, will study to know what is the right and the true; how to win other girls to the best life, and how to be an influence that will draw heavenward their brothers. These, I said, are "stars" that shall "shine forever and ever." In the "firmament" of God's kingdom on earth they are shining now, but the conditions of this life sometimes make "a dimness," thick clouds of difficulty, tempests of grief, and heavy rain of tears. I thought of these things as I read the blessed text over and over, and then I remembered the story of the little boy who mourned because his "pretty stars" that he so loved to watch every evening, were dimmed by the haze, then hidden by clouds, which finally emptied themselves in a pouring rain that washed the dust from trees and plants and grass and buildings, making everything look bright and fresh, and when night came and the sky was bluer and brighter, and the stars shone to his thought as never before, he said: "Mamma, now I know why my pretty stars were hidden; they were all dusty and the angels took them away to wash them in the rain." Girls whose hands are now on the lever of opportunity to turn many of the young men and women of to-day to righteousness, and through them many of those who shall by and by be to them and to yourselves what you now are to your parents, "the light of their homes," it is by what you are so much more than by what you do or say with a direct purpose to influence some persons in some special direction, that you will affect others for good.

I do not say by your "example," because much that I have seen has led me to think it a mistake to set any person to thinking perpetually about her "example," which is one way of thinking about one's self continually. A bad habit, but not so bad as to be always thinking, "What are others thinking about me?" I have known a very excellent and conscientious person to become perfectly artificial by continually dwelling upon the thought, "I must be an example." I can sympathize, too, with the minister's child who "wished papa was a grocer—or anything but a minister," he was "so tired of being an example, and wanted to be just a boy like other boys." Now are you saying, "How can we make ourselves a power for good, and 'stars to shine' if we are not to think about ourselves at all?"

I answer, by what you live on, and in. You know that food, drink, air, light, baths, raiment, rest and exercise determine the health and symmetry of our bodies. In this city are many hundreds of foreigners of one nationality, of which there are two distinct classes physically; one, well-proportioned, noble looking; the other dwarfed in height, but broad to deformity, coarse and stolid in expression. The latter class were, in their own country, the very poor who lived in cabins dark and foul, fed on food scarcely fit for swine for generations past, and were compelled to toil early and late for a bare subsistence.

These have shown the divine within them by seeking in this country the conditions to make their children better than themselves. The same law of cause and effect rules in the growth of character. It is made up of what the mind is fed upon, and is bright and vigorous according to the proportion of pure air and clear light given it. It is sweet and wholesome according to the frequency and thoroughness of "washing" in pure thoughts. It acquires skill, which is power, by exercise of "gifts," faculties. She who would be one of God's "star," need not strive to shine, nor consult the mirror of other people's opinions to know if she "shines," and if she is "a star." She needs rather to look to her daily mental and spiritual food, habits and atmosphere; for a star will shine because it is a "star."

Minds fed upon fictions, fancies, excitements, develop characters that though they may glow briefly like meteors, never shine like stars. Facts are true mind food. There are the sad facts of the sin and suffering and sorrow of the world. But though we may not shun these, we may soften and diminish the woe of the knowledge of them, by feeding our minds much upon that grandest of all facts, that God, who "so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life," was "in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself," and this blessed truth which grows out of the other, that God "worketh in us to will and to do of His own good pleasure." And so, feeling within us the stirrings of strong desire to help lessen the world's sin and sorrow, yet also feeling our insufficiency, we may become strong for the effort by the word of Jesus, "He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also." He sought to help humanity Godward; and so may we. He loved the unworthy; so may we. He toiled, wept, prayed; so may we. He met with opposition; so shall we. But He triumphed; and so also shall we, for we have the promise, "Your labor is not in vain in the Lord." He had the inspiration of the future results of His work, which were all present to Him; we have the inspiration of the knowledge of the achievements of His kingdom in the past, and the wonderful panorama of Christlike philanthropies and enterprises for the betterment of humanity that is constantly passing before our eyes.

Girls, the Bible and THE UNION SIGNAL—with the views given by the latter of the growth of the Kingdom—furnish abundant material for the building of "stars," and to make the "stars" rejoice, even while to mortal vision, dimmed by the haze of misrepresentation, covered by clouds of affliction, or dipped in a rain of sorrow's tears; and after the dimness, clouds and rain, how glorious to "shine as the stars forever and ever"!

News from the Field.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

NEWS AND NOTES.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the District of Columbia has established attractive headquarters in the very heart of Washington, at 1425 New York avenue. The situation is admirable, being on one of the thoroughfares of the city, not far from the White House, the treasury, state, war, and navy departments, and the Hotel Fredonia, where leading temperance and Christian workers of the land, visiting Washington, find a congenial stopping place.

The headquarters consist of a daintily furnished reception room, about twenty-six by thirty-six feet in size, fronting on the avenue, beyond which and separated by a portiere is a smaller room. The latter will doubtless be the scene of many important private consultations of the workers. The ladies have spent about $300 in furnishings, which have been selected with excellent taste. The walls are ornamented with numerous pictures, among which are portraits of Miss Willard and Mrs. Lucy Hayes, a copy of the Angelus, the proposed beautiful Temperance Temple in Chicago, and a number of banners and mottoes. On the center table is the Bible given to the W. C. T. U. twelve years ago and presented to the headquarters by Mrs. Margaret Foster. Various temperance papers are on file here, among which is the beloved UNION SIGNAL.

The headquarters will be used for executive board meetings, weekly consecration services and meetings of the various departments of work, including legislation and petitions. The rooms are open every week day from nine o'clock in the morning until four in the evening, and all the friends of temperance are invited to call there.

A delightful meeting was held at headquarters April 16, at which Mrs. Moffat, secretary of the Southeast union presided. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Cohen, president of the Chapin auxiliary, said to me, "We never had so many additional members," and added that so many people were making inquiries concerning the work and showing an interest in it. The work of the various unions of the district is progressing admirably.

Two auxiliary societies have been organized recently in Washington. The Frances Willard union was organized in the north-eastern section of the city, last February. Miss Willard acknowledged the honor with thanks, in a kind letter addressed to Mrs. LaFetra.

The other union was named the Harper Auxiliary of the Metropolitan A. M. E. church. This was organized in March, and is doing a much needed work among the colored people.

There has been a succession of interesting meetings and entertainments held by the various unions of the District. On Monday evening, April 14, the Y. W. C. T. U. of Anacostia gave a character social at the home of Nathaniel Roberts. It was a decided success and very enjoyable to the large gathering of old and young. There were music and recitations by the young ladies; refreshments were served, and the evening passed in a merry, social way, till eleven o'clock. There has been a number of accessions to the Y, and the young ladies are doing a beautiful work for temperance, and exerting a telling influence in the social circles of Anacostia.

The W. C. T. U. of Washington gave a delightful entertainment at Grace Church on Friday evening, April 11, An excellent program was prepared, which was carried out entirely by the young ladies of the union, assisted by a number of young gentlemen.

On Friday, April 4, the young ladies of the Hopewell union, of South Washington, gave a Japanese tea.

The Ryland Chapel union held an interesting meeting at the Sixth Presbyterian Church April 16.

Preparations are being made by the Band of Hope and Loyal Temperance Legion for a Demorest medal contest to take place May 2.

Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender, the National superintendent of legislation and petition, who has been spending the winter at the Hotel Fredonia, and working industriously to further temperance legislation in Congress, informs me that she expects that the great campaign for national constitutional prohibition will be started simultaneously throughout the country this coming June under the plan laid down in the "National Prohibitory Amendment Guide," of which she is the author. A large number of petitions have been presented to Congress by this department, praying for the passage of a law for prohibition in the District of Columbia. Two bills have been introduced into this Congress, one providing for the direct prohibition of the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors, and the other for the submission of the question to a vote of the people of the District. The passage of either would be hailed with joy by the W. C. T. U. A memorial has recently been presented to the Senate by the District union, in which the following statements are made:

The people have not asked for high license but prohibition. Although but a small portion of the District was canvassed, still petitions with over ten thousand signatures from resident citizens were presented during the last session of Congress. These petitions are signed by persons representing every profession, avocation and position, all feeling and deeply deploring the curse of the liquor traffic in this city and calling on Congress for its prohibition.

"It is shown by the statistics of the major of police," the memorial says, "that during the fiscal year ending June, 1889, there were 291 boys and girls under twenty-one years of age arrested for drunkenness, and of the 4,490 arrests of persons under twenty-one years of age, there is no doubt but that seventy-five per cent was attributable, either directly or indirectly, to alcohol. The same statistics show that there were arrested during the same period for habitual drunkenness and intoxication, 4,001 persons over twenty-one years of age. It is estimated that in five years the increase of population has been fifteen per cent, while the number of saloons has been forty per cent, and that it requires $90,000 every week to support the liquor traffic in the District of Columbia, or $5,475,000 per year, which is a direct tax upon the people. It has been shown by official statements, that if the income from licenses were compared with the estimates for the expenses of the almshouse, the insane and poor, the reform school, the criminal court, prisons and charity, there would be a balance against rum of over half a million dollars. Prohibition will better the finances of the District; less money will be required for the police court, almshouse, work-house and jail; there would be more money available for the poor man and his family to be distributed among the merchants and tradesmen, the duties of the honorable commissioners will be lessened, and the city at large greatly benefited."

The memorial is signed by Mrs. Margaret A. Weaver, superintendent legislation and petitions; Sarah D. LaFetra, president, and Mary E. Cohen, recording secretary of the District W. C. T. U.

A social entertainment was given by the various temperance organizations of the city at the Hotel Fredonia Friday evening, April 18. This popular temperance hotel has been the scene of numerous gatherings. The delightful receptions held here, when the handsome parlors, library and reading room have been thronged with guests, have demonstrated that ruby wine and sparkling champagne are not essential to a successful social entertainment, even at the National Capital. Doctor and Mrs. LaFetra deserve the thanks of true prohibitionists, for establishing this needed temperance light-house in the heart of the city of Washington.

IDA HINMAN, Special Correspondent.

MICHIGAN.

ITEMS.

The month of April brings gentle showers that will by and by bring the beautiful flowers. Much seed-sowing of truth through the frosty months is now coming out in dots of brightness all over the state. I think this letter will need to be called items. The first from Port Huron. Under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Rev. S. A. Beeman gave a fine address to the railroad men at the rink Sunday afternoon. He is an earnest speaker, thoroughly awake to the wants of the people.

The anniversary of the Michigan branch of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Interior, Mrs. James B. Angell, president, has just been held at Flint. We regretted the absence of so valuable a worker as Mrs. Moses Smith, yet were glad she had been chosen to serve on the committee to petition Congress that the exportation of intoxicating liquors to foreign countries be prohibited.

The county convention at Holly, sixth district, was a good one. The last evening an unusually fine gold medal contest was held, thanks to the untiring labor of the district president.

Monroe county convention, as reported by the district president was "glorious; the spirit was so good." A new Y formed at Lambertville; a W. C. T. U. at Dundee.

Van Buren county convention was held at Paw Paw. Miss Clara Wheeler, state superintendent of kindergarten, was present and gave a very instructive lecture. Two Y's organized in the ninth district by Mrs. Law.

Mrs. Waldron, of Perry, eighth district, has held a successful silver medal contest at Lake View, giving a morning talk upon "The Effects of Alcoholism," illustrated by chart; she also organized a Loyal Temperance Legion with fifty-seven members.

Our state organizer and lecturer on physical culture, writes me from Iron Mountain in twelfth district: "Busy, helpful, and engaged to the middle of May."

The second, fifth, sixth and seventh districts hold annual meetings this month.

Then in May we go up to Jackson to the "Feast of Ingatherings" with faces of thankfulness uplifted to God for our great prosperity in this trial year. The call for convention by our beloved secretary, Mrs. Wheeler, is out, and closes with this sweet poem by the state president, which I give you in closing:

"If we knew life's little journey
Narrowed to a day,
If we knew our task were finished
Ere the flower of May,
Is there any work neglected?
Is there duty half rejected?
Do it quickly, pray.
Near us swing the unseen portals;
We may pass that way.

"Not in gloom but still in gladness
Let our work be done;
Whether here or over yonder—
Life in Christ is one;
Dark or bright the pathway endeth
In unclouded sun."

MRS. C. H. JOHNSON, Special Cor.

NEW YORK.

TIOGA COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. held its eighth convention in the beautiful new M. E. Church of Berkshire, March 26. The church seemed filled with sunlight, which must have been stored within, as there was none outside. A drill in parliamentary law preceded all other business, and was very helpful. Cordial welcome was given by Mrs. Buffington, and met a pleasant response from Miss Hemstreet.

Excellent papers were read on "The Fallacy of High License," by Mrs. Seacord, "Social Purity" by Mrs. Howland, county superintendent of that department, and Mrs. Corey read a paper which was filled with earnest thoughts, but which she said should belong to the "No Name Series." Reports of local unions showed activity and good work done. The superintendent of jail work reported one conversion as the result of one of the prayer-meetings held by the ladies in our county jail.

The convention was most highly favored in having the presence of Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, of Chicago, whose valuable instruction, in reply to questions given in the question box, will be long remembered. Her soul-stirring address, given to a large audience in the evening, will surely give new impetus to the work in Tioga county.

The following were among the resolutions adopted by the convention unanimously:

WHEREAS, We, as members of the Tioga county W. C. T. U., constantly come face to face with the question of license, therefore,

Resolved, That we firmly believe that any form of license of the liquor traffic is sin.

Resolved, That we declare ourselves to be heartily in sympathy with the National W. C. T. U., and indorse all its movements.

M. A. BROWN, Rec. Sec.

ERIE COUNTY CONVENTION.

This was opened at Evans by our county president, Mrs. C. M. Hawthorne. The church had been tastefully decorated, and the artistic welcome was inspiring. All as they entered began to feel the uplifting influence, and joined heartily in the special efforts that brought us together. Devotional services, spiritual songs and various reports preceded our noontide prayer. At lunch time all were served by willing hands.

The afternoon executive meeting was followed by Scripture, prayer and songs. Mrs. M. S. Williamson, president of the local union, gave us a most gracious and exquisite welcome "in His name." Mrs. J. W. Vining, president of Angola union, also welcomed us, because we left the cars at Angola, and the sisters of that union joined their hospitalities and kindnesses to us together with their near neighbors at Evans. Pastors Neal and Williamson were earnest and hearty in their greetings, and proved themselves consecrated preachers of the whole gospel. Mr. George Hull gave us encouraging words of hope and counsel. Miss Mary F. Baker, president of Orchard Park, responded for the convention with deep, thoughtful words, in reference to our work and needs. Fraternal delegates spoke stirring words. Mrs. Taylor, an aged mother of eighty-four years, was introduced, and in a clear voice gave us words of counsel and experience, which all felt it a precious privilege to receive. Mrs. J. L. Mason, our enthusiastic superintendent of county Y work, gave us an admirable paper on her department interests, and reported Y conferences in state and National Conventions of last autumn, which she attended, with graphic pen pictures, and we regretted that she could not have had even more time to arouse enthusiasm for our young women, and emphasize their call into our work.

The evening opened with delightful music. A wonderfully unique and lovely children's greeting of song and tableaux, arranged and composed for the occasion by a talented member of the union, Mrs. Judson O. Bennett, was managed by her. Her aged mother, Mrs. Taylor, then groups of lisping children with their dolls, bright boys and fair young misses sang their various words of welcome, and after each a rousing chorus to the tune, "Hold the Fort."

After this our beloved Miss L. R. Kellogg came before us and read from the blessed Word, and bore our hearts up to the very throne of God, while she besought His consecration and benediction; a hush and awe fell on all as the Holy Spirit filled us with fresh desires for lives hid in Christ, and when she ended we knew, that like Moses, she "had talked with God."

The Demorest medal contest followed. Six bright misses and two brave young men gave us their grand recitations. The judges had a difficult task, but assigned the medal to Miss Blanche Fisher, of Brant. A packed church applauded the rich treat offered them.

The second day was crowded with work and interest. The semi-annual report of the corresponding secretary, verbal reports of unions and reports of superintendents filled the morning. "Consecration Hour," led by our superintendent of evangelistic work, Mrs. Staley, was one long to be remembered by all present. In the afternoon Mrs. Bennett gave a wonderful exposition of the Lord's Prayer, and her mother made the opening prayer. A variety of business and a paper on "Health," by Mrs. Kerr. The "White-Ribboners' Round Table," presided over by our gifted superintendent of mothers' meetings, Mrs. A. A. Shaw, proved a new departure in the right direction, and most enjoyable and useful. A parliamentary drill gave instruction of importance. Much lovely music was interspersed through the exercises of the convention. Young misses served as pages. Many thanks were given Mr. Weller for his elaborate decorations, and to men, women and children for their efforts in our behalf.

A marked incident of the last afternoon was the appearance of Mrs. A. B. Wilson, of Buffalo, upon the platform, where in a lovely and complimentary speech, she presented the corresponding secretary with an exquisite gold watch and chain, as a token of the loving appreciation of all her county sisterhood. The surprise was great, but after a moment she gained sufficient self-control to frame a few of her heart's feelings into words.

W. E. YURANN, Cor. Sec.

SENECA COUNTY CONVENTION.

The semi-annual convention of the W. C. T. U. was held at Seneca Falls, March 21. The attendance for our small county was wonderful. Mrs. Alex. Baldridge presided with her usual tact and grace. Mrs. Mary J. Weaver was with us, and by her help and words of loving cheer, made the day rich to us all.

Superintendents in their reports gave definite plans of work for their departments, to be carried out in each local union during the next six months. The Y of Seneca Falls has taken up Loyal Temperance Legion work, and a special feature of the evening program was the exercises of Company A, Seneca division. Over one hundred boys and girls, of whom eighty-eight had signed the triple pledge, marched into the church, bearing a beautiful banner with their state motto, "All New York for Temperance." Their singing and recitations were much enjoyed. Mrs. Weaver addressed us in her usual helpful manner.

A Republican organ, after reporting the convention winds up with the following: "The impression made by Mrs. Weaver was a pleasant close to the work of the convention, and if the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be guided by her sentiments and not permit itself to be the tool of the designing, or the prey of the fanatic, its power for good in Seneca county may be almost unmeasured."

LIZZIE S. MARGETTS, Co. Cor. Sec.

SCHENECTADY COUNTY CONVENTION.

This met in Quaker Street Village, March 6. Although the coldest day of the season, and one of the stormiest, the three sessions were well attended. The ladies under the leadership of our county president, Mrs. Clowe, who is an aggressive worker, were enthusiastic. Every union was represented. Duanesburg has the banner union in point of numbers, although the county has over seventy members. The reports of superintendents of departments were encouraging. The Sunday-school work is somewhat in advance of the others, the superintendent having been appointed before any unions were organized in the county. Juvenile work is also promising. It is expected that this coming summer every union in the county may have a temperance school. Social purity is taken up in some of the unions by readings at the monthly meetings, but mostly by distributing literature, "Boys and Other Boys," and "Girls of To-day," and the leaflets of the social purity and White Cross series. Work is also taken up in the department of narcotics; one union reported six hundred pages of literature distributed. The superintendent of non-alcoholics in medicine reports progress. In addition to these departments, we also have superintendents of temperance literature, scientific temperance instruction and unfermented wine. At the afternoon session instructive and entertaining papers on "Scientific Temperance Instruction," "Narcotics," "Unfinished Work," and "What can we do for our Boys?" were read. The question box, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Crawford, proved a valuable feature in the helpful hints received. The stirring address of the evening, by the same gentleman, was full of instruction on the important subject of the fallacies of high license. The delegates were entertained with generous hospitality.

JENNIE D. GROOT, Cor. Sec.

ULSTER COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. met in semi-annual convention at Rondout, in the Wurts St. M. E. Church, March 11 and 12. The inclement weather and absence of sunshine was more than made up for by the warm welcome received and the brightness within. The platform was tastefully decorated with blooming plants and handsome banners, among which was Rondout's lovely new one with the motto, "Seeking to Save." The president, Mrs. E. U. Burgess, was in the chair. The convention was opened by a devotional meeting led by Mrs. Lamont, wife of the pastor of the church, and the delegates, who represented nearly every union in the county, were then seated. Among the many good things furnished for the occasion was a report of the state convention given by Mrs. Mary Donaldson, the question box opened by Mrs. Buckmaster, the address of welcome by Mrs. Stowe, and the lovely response by Mrs. Willis. The children's meeting furnished some interesting exercises, and was rewarded by a talk by Miss Elizabeth Greenwood, of Brooklyn, National superintendent of evangelistic work, which was listened to with equal interest by children and grown people. Her evening address was greatly appreciated by a large and attentive audience. On Wednesday the convention was treated to an able report of the National convention by the president, Mrs. Burgess, who was the Ulster county delegate. It was much enjoyed, and she was warmly applauded. The remainder of the session was taken up by a superintendents' conference, closing with a service of praise. All returned to their homes feeling that they had received fresh inspiration for the work before them, and thanking those who had so hospitably entertained them.

J. A. BUCKMASTER, Cor. Sec.

WORK IN WATERTOWN.

The white-ribboners in Northern New York are active and earnest. The union here holds semi-monthly meetings, and carries on several departments of work. The work nearest the hearts of the people is our evening school for young women who have had no opportunities for study and improvement; three evenings a week our faithful superintendent meets a large class of pupils. How much they appreciate these opportunities is shown by their patient endeavors and attention. Our superintendent of narcotics reports good work done; also superintendent of mothers' meetings is active and efficient. We have been infused with new life and vigor by Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, who lectured for us March 10 and 11, in the Opera House to large audiences. She received most earnest attention and the people were charmed by her eloquence as well as by her logical and convincing statements, which are unanswerable. We are now arranging for a Demorest medal contest, and hope to push all lines of our work as never before! Our question box brings out many interesting discussions, and THE UNION SIGNAL is read in our meetings. We are fully in sympathy with the National society, and know it never was better prepared to do efficient, telling reform work than to-day.

ANNA C. B. DEVENDORF, Rec. Sec. W. C. T. U.

MISSISSIPPI.

A WORD FROM CARROLLTON.

Our county has been "dry" four years under local option. Our ladies work nobly during campaigns, but it is difficult to manufacture and keep up public sentiment afterwards.

We have been trying to do something for a few months past in the way of Demorest medal contest work. I formed a class of young men in November, and held a contest, then a little later a class of young ladies, and then a class of young men. The contests have since been kept up every two or three weeks, until at this time I have awarded ten silver medals, eight to young men and two to young ladies. On Friday, April 11, we have another silver medal contest, and on May 2 we shall have our first gold medal contest. All of these contests, from the first, have attracted attention and have been full of interest. The enthusiasm has never flagged, notwithstanding the weather has sometimes been bitterly cold. Many persons will attend these contests who are opponents of prohibition, and who would not attend a general prohibition meeting. The young orators have thus an opportunity of firing into them red-hot prohibition speeches. Great good is also done in inspiring young people with prohibition ideas and facts. These young men and women are the persons who are to achieve the final prohibition victory for our country, and these contests train and prepare them for the fray.

Mrs. C. F. Woodbury, the general superintendent, has recently appointed the undersigned superintendent of medal contest work in Mississippi, and the work will be pushed with all possible vigor and earnestness.

REV. L. S. FOSTER.

WASHINGTON.

SPOKANE COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. held its annual session at Spokane Falls, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 8 and 9. Rev. Jonathan Edwards, pastor Congregational Church, kindly threw open his church for the use of the convention during its entire session. The Easter decorations remained, and on the wall hung Miss Willard's picture, the W. C. T. U. banner, the Y banner, and the silk flag that represented Washington in the W. C. T. U. department at the Paris World's Fair.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Switzer, state president. Mrs. White, president of Leavitt union, of Spokane Falls, made the address of welcome, to which Mrs. Thayer, of Latah, responded in behalf of the delegates. Mrs. Schorr, county president, presided over the meetings, and so well conducted was the convention that there was not the slightest jar throughout the entire session. Miss DeVelling and Miss Moore were with us, and spoke hearty words of hope and cheer. Lunch was served in the church by the ladies of Leavitt union. During the afternoon session Rev. Mr. Edwards made a short address in regard to the immense amount of money which the saloons control. Mrs. Winstead, of Dakota, told how glad she was to see a white ribbon on a poor, old squaw. The Indian woman told her, "Pale face give me that; me no drink fire water." In the evening Miss I. C. DeVelling spoke from the text, "Watchman, what of the night?" Her words were helpful and encouraging. At the close, Miss Henrietta Moore asked for $100, and got it in addition to a general collection. Nearly twenty packages of temperance literature were sold to the audience.

Wednesday morning the convention opened with devotional exercise and then proceeded to the election of county officers. Names of officers as follows: President, Mrs. Jennie F. White, Spokane Falls; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Louisa Gillette, Spokane Falls; recording secretary, Mrs. Charlotte Hamblin, Spokane Falls; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Jennie B. White, Latah; treasurer, Mrs. Mattie J. Belt, Spokane Falls. After the election of superintendents of departments, Mrs. Jennie F. White opened a discussion on the best means of raising money for local and county work. Mrs. Switzer followed, and earnest and helpful words were spoken by Miss DeVelling and Miss Moore. The former urged us to consider our work worth something in dollars and cents. Mrs. Crystal, president of Crystal union, and many of the delegates joined in the discussion, and many helpful hints were brought out. Discussion ended with a motion to elect a financial agent to canvass the field and raise money. Mrs. J. F. White of Spokane was elected at a salary of $500 per year with an additional per cent of profits.

After lunch convention opened with memorial services conducted by Mrs. Mary Abernethy, in memory of Mrs. May Weymouth. Mr. Charles B. Hamblin, honorary member, Mrs. Nellie Barbon and Mr. H. B. Middaugh, honorary member.

Mrs. Switzer made remarks and requested prayer for the widows and orphans of deceased members. Miss De Velling conducted a question box, and the help her answers gave was very welcome. This closed the afternoon session.

At noon two ladies started with tacks, hammer and posters, and walked for over an hour tacking posters on sidewalks, lamp-posts, electric-light poles and other conspicuous places.

After the session the ladies scattered dodgers as they went to their homes, to announce Miss Henrietta Moore's evening lecture. As the result, a very good audience greeted her. After music Miss DeVelling conducted devotional exercises. Miss Moore's lecture was eloquent and powerful, convincing and amusing, and dealt with the question of prohibition. The audience applauded several times, and a temperance dog barked his sentiments. At the close of the lecture Miss Moore asked for $250, the amount paid Kate Field by the liquor men. She worked for it and got the $250, selling the temperance dog for a part of it, but she said she would have preferred selling him before the lecture.

Thus closed a good convention. Of course we do not want to flatter ourselves, but Miss De Velling declared it was one of the very best county conventions she ever attended, and said it reminded her more of a state than a county convention. The temperance current is the underflow here, but in God's good time this is going to be changed.

MINNIE BEARD O'NEILL,
Press Reporter.

MINNESOTA.

WORK IN DULUTH.

When we talked of engaging Mr. P. A. Burdick to come here, we felt that there were two disadvantages to be overcome. We have in Duluth no large audience room outside of the churches, excepting the opera house, and as we were trying to reach a class of people who do not enter a church, we knew that in justice to Mr. Burdick we must engage the opera house. This was objectionable because it is so divided into galleries and boxes that it is difficult to take up a collection or pass the pledges; but principally because of the expense, which was $70 a night. To incur this expense, besides the $150 a week we must give Mr. Burdick and his traveling expenses from New York and back, when we had only $47 in our treasury, seemed almost wrong. But we had faith enough in God to engage him for one week. Now let me state the results. Mr. Burdick stayed three weeks, and we would have kept him longer if we could have done so. He lectured twenty-four times to packed houses, not always in the opera house, as it was engaged by others, but eleven times there, and thirteen times in three of the largest churches in the city. Twenty-seven hundred people signed the pledge. One hundred and seventy names were sent in of those wishing to join the W. C. T. U. A Reform Club has been organized by the pledge signers; it is incorporated and ready for aggressive work. The W. C. T. U., after paying all expenses, has $270 in the treasury, which is to be used in starting a Coffee House or Friendly Inn; this is something we have been considering for two years, but have never before felt sufficiently encouraged to begin. During the course of the lectures, after Mr. Burdick had been here two weeks, the city election took place, and a mayor was chosen who enforces the laws. This is felt to have been greatly owing to the educating effect of his labors. All these are the direct results already perceptible, but who can estimate the amount of good done by this Christian worker? He has done a great work in Duluth, and if the Lord wills we shall have him here again.

FRANCES A. WOODBRIDGE,
Cor. Sec. W. C. T. U.

ILLINOIS.

CHRISMAN—FIFTEENTH DISTRICT.

Our union was organized November 15, 1889, by Miss Clara Parrish, district organizer, with only eight active and two honorary members. On the first of January we decided to hold our meetings every week, which we have done. Have held sixteen regular and three called meetings and three sociables. We now number thirty regular and seventeen honorary members.

We began holding gospel temperance meetings, and found the interest growing. A committee was appointed to solicit money for our work. They went out in faith, "nothing doubting," and met with a hearty response from the people. As soon as the citizens saw that we were in earnest, they were ready to stand by us.

The spring election drawing near, we decided to enter the field against the saloon. Mrs. R. A. Emmons was secured, who gave us good help. On April 15 God gave us a great victory at the polls, and by a majority of fifty, the community said the saloons must go—and we will see to it that they go. On the evening of the election the victory was celebrated at the house of Mrs. John S. Hartley, by the serving of coffee and doughnuts to an immense crowd, the Good Templars coming in a body, by invitation. They were received by the ladies as they reached the veranda, with hearty greetings, all joining in the singing of the temperance doxology. The evening's rejoicings were brought to a close by prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Wilkin the Methodist pastor.

Time and space forbid the mention of the names of all the earnest workers, but the ministers, and many who do not belong to the union, joined heartily in the work, and helped to celebrate the victory. It was a day long to be remembered. Some of the ladies worked faithfully all day at the polls.

Wall pockets have been placed in the depots, barber shops and post-offices, temperance literature freely distributed, and we have secured entrance eleven times to the columns of our local paper.

Our treasurer reports collections and dues as follows since our organization: Receipts, $39; disbursements, $32, leaving us a balance of $6.80 with which to go on with our work. Scarcely had we closed the page of the spring campaign work before we entered upon the new page a call for our beloved state president, Mrs. Rounds, who met with our union April 21 in a delightful afternoon meeting, and gave us in the evening one of her inspiring lectures. We are glad to be admitted to the sisterhood of the loyal unions of Illinois, and we come willing to do our full share of work, and to bear our full share of responsibility.

MRS. JOHN S. HARTLEY, Pres.

ILLINOIS NOTES.

October 7-10 are the dates set for the next state convention which is to be held in Rockford.

Miss Clara Parrish, the active organizer of the fifteenth district, reports twenty-five new organizations since the last state convention.

Rockford has been selected as the next place of meeting for the state convention. Miss Willard will be present at one of the day's sessions.

Correspondents will take notice that Miss Lina McCollough has been elected corresponding secretary of Hanna City union, in the place of Miss Sarah N. Clark, resigned. Miss Clark will spend the summer in Linn county, Oregon.

Mrs. W. P. Kuhl, the tireless president of the twelfth district, has been almost constantly in the field during the winter. The results of her work are seen in the organization of a number of new unions, and a great many souls converted in the meetings held by her.

Mrs. F. C. Hathaway, superintendent of evangelistic work, though confined for some weeks to her home through illness, has still been able to do some valiant service for the cause. She reports many conversions as having taken place in the towns where our W. C. T. U. workers have been holding meetings.

The W. C. T. U. of Flora gave the Kirmess march and drill March 25, which was a very enjoyable affair. They had a good audience and cleared thirty dollars. They thank the young folks and the ministers for their assistance. Ice-cream, confectioneries, fruits and supper were served, and ten and fifteen cents admission charged.

The W. C. T. U. at Tennessee has held two Demorest silver medal contests at the M. E. Church in that place. At the first one, April 8, there were nine contestants, and the medal was presented to Miss Claudia Webb, by Rev. Mr. Malcolm. Fred Walker stood No. 2, and Cornie Gilchrist No. 3. The second one was held April 12. The judges decided that Miss Grace Nash should have the medal. Professor Meyer presented it with a short address. Inez Waddell was No. 2 and Cellie Sweeney No. 3. The contestants all acquitted themselves well and large audiences were present at each meeting. License was defeated this year by a larger majority than was ever known before and it is thought that this was partly due to the influence of the contests.

The W. C. T. U. of Lawrenceville did valiant service at the polls on last election day. Early in the morning a large number of white-ribboners proceeded to the voting place and stood in line, so that every voter would be compelled to pass the line on his way to deposit his ballot. An excellent lunch of coffee and sandwiches had been provided by the ladies, and appropriate mottoes were hung over the entrances to the hall where lunch was being served. The workers remained at their post until the last ballot was deposited, then repaired to the church, where a large number of citizens were assembled to await the returns. Soon the good news came that a "no-license" ticket had been elected, and great was the rejoicing. Mrs. Huffman, county president, with all the members of the Lawrenceville union worked unceasingly to clear their village of the saloon curse, and they succeeded.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

THE ladies of the W. C. T. U. of Byron Center, Mich., furnished dinner and supper at the town hall on election day, which proved a grand success financially and otherwise. The ladies were treated with great respect and courtesy by all present. It was said by old-time voters that it was the quietest and most orderly election ever held in the town.

A DEMOREST silver medal contest was held at Milton, Pa., April 21. It is pleasant to hear that Ivah E. Emmons, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mrs. R. A. Emmons, secretary of the Woman's Lecture Bureau, won the medal.

ON Friday evening, April 4, a Demorest medal contest was held in the Opera House at Canton, Ill. There were eight contestants, only two of whom were boys. Each did his best, and that was remarkably well, and all were heartily applauded, as was also the decision of the judges, when the Rev. Dr. Whiting, with a few well-chosen words, presented the medal to little ten-year-old Winifred Grim. In behalf of the W. C. T. U. the president presented a basket of flowers to each of the remaining contestants.

THE Lawtonville, South Carolina, W. C. T. U. has lost a promising young worker in the death of Miss Martha Morrison, an enthusiast in temperance reform, and a brilliant student. She was carefully educated by her father, the Rev. J. T. Morrison, and was the successful competitor for the Winthrop scholarship in Columbia College, and died there in holy triumph. The Charleston W. C. T. U. is engaged in active work. Weekly visits are paid to the jail, hospital and almshouse; literature is distributed and other thoughtful attentions are paid to the inmates of all these places according to their need. Many of the prisoners have signed the pledge. The Y's of the same city are also doing good work; a temperance school with about sixty boys and girls as pupils being one of their earnest undertakings. An interesting gospel temperance meeting is held weekly, the exercises consisting of a Bible reading, singing, prayer, and reports of work done.

NOTICES.

Since the call for the Michigan State Convention was printed, the railroad association of Michigan has restored the rule whereby ten persons going by same train to convention can secure round trip for one and one-third of regular fare, provided they return together within five days.

EMMA A. WHEELER, Sec.

THE W. C. T. U. AT LAKESIDE, OHIO.

The beautiful and commodious headquarters of our union will be ready July 17, as an active center for temperance effort. We hope this notice will reach devoted workers who may plan for a summer's outing with us, at least during the sessions of the Sunday-school Assembly and the encampment. A limited number of persons can be accommodated with rooms and the best of beds at special rates; meals, also, will be similarly afforded. Come and help us. We need furnishing for our parlor and a few easy chairs, besides, for tired workers who ought to rest. Donations are always in order for the temperance cause.

MARY B. INGHAM, Supt. School of Methods.

Official Communications.

HYGIENE AND HEREDITY.

A TALK TO THE WORKERS.

What is your union doing for this department? Perhaps I can bring this work a little nearer to you by asking, "What are you doing for it?" Dear sisters, we must give more intelligent and persistent attention to this work if we hope to have health to do our part in pushing the other departments of work which our organization has adopted. I have recently had many letters asking for suggestions as to methods. This work is so broad and has so many subdivisions that every one can find something to do. I want to ask every union to hold two public meetings in the interests of this department before October.

"Helps for Health Meetings" will aid you in preparing for these meetings. "Dress and Vice," "Bad Hygiene vs. Virtue," "Early Perverting Influences," "Aids to Impurity in Both Sexes," and "Pitfalls for Our Boys" are excellent leaflets, and could appropriately be distributed at the close of the meeting. "Heredity" by Dr. Harriet B. Jones, contains many good thoughts. You can obtain all of this literature from the W. T. P. A. Do not send to me for it.

Undoubtedly your physician or your pastor would help you by giving a short talk on some appropriate subject. Have a question-box, stipulating that only questions relating to the department shall receive answers. Perhaps your physician would consent to answer these questions. Good Health, published in Battle Creek, Mich., and The Annals of Hygiene, which is the official organ of the State Board of Health of Pennsylvania, come monthly, loaded with good things for our well-being.

"Bible Hygiene," a little book which has been prepared by a physician, is as "good as gold." It can be obtained of Presley Blakiston, 1012 Walnut street, Philadelphia. For home reading, I might mention "The Man Wonderful in the House Beautiful," "Hygienic Cookery," "Physical Culture for Home and School," "Tokology," "Boys and other Boys," and "The Science of a New Life."

In our efforts to make men and women better, there is one thing that we must always seek, one thing that we need never fear—the truth.

> "Truth is the mightiest force in the universe,
> For the production of good to man."

If we ignorantly violate the civil laws, and it so appears in the evidence upon trial, it is usually considered a mitigating circumstance, and frequently the offense is forgiven. But if we violate nature's laws, sooner or later the punishment is sure to follow.

We employ teachers to expound the moral law, so that people may not perish ignorantly, yet we see daily the brightest and dearest of our loved ones destroyed for want of that knowledge which can only be revealed to them through the study of themselves. It is unfortunate that physical education has been so long separated from mental and moral instruction.

Now that we are coming to a realizing sense of our mistakes, more attention is being given to the laws of hygiene and the study of heredity. The earnest teachers in our public schools are giving thoughtful, necessary lessons to the children. Physicians are becoming more interested in spreading these vital truths. Pastors make frequent reference to the laws of hygiene and heredity, awaking their more thoughtful hearers to renewed interest in these important questions. Fathers and mothers are beginning to inquire after the truth, that they may teach it to their children.

And yet we cannot hope for great results in this work, until the fathers, mothers, teachers and guardians of the children not only ascertain the truth regarding the laws of health, but are willing to regulate their habits in harmony with it.

It is very difficult for a child to understand that narcotics are injurious to him, and not harmful to you. We must be consistent if we hope to have the right influence with the children. Not long since I was appealed to by a mother who was greatly grieved because her son occasionally smoked a cigar. This was his only fault. Having promised to have a private talk with the young man, I sought an early opportunity to confer with him. He acknowledged his fault, said he knew it was not good for him, but hardly thought it was as injurious as I regarded it, yet promised to give it up for he really cared very little for it. "And now," said he, "won't you have a talk with mother about her tea? She uses it three times a day, and I am quite sure that that is the cause of her sick-headaches, which she has nearly every week." I then went to the mother asking her to give up her tea for her own sake as well as for the good of her boy. I talked earnestly for an hour or more, trying to convince her that the tea was injurious to her, and citing cases that had come under my own observation, but all to no purpose. She simply said, "I cannot live without my tea." I am afraid that this is the case in far too many homes. The parents are unwilling to give up any of their pleasures—I ought to have said vices—but expect their children to obey carefully every rule of hygiene. Whenever the fathers and mothers are willing conscientiously to follow these laws, we may confidently look for grand results.

ORPHA D. BALDWIN,
Nat. Supt. Hygiene and Heredity, Nat. W. C. T. U.

"Don't Give Up the Ship."

"Many that did ill under physician's hands have happily escaped, when they have been given over by them, left to God and Nature and themselves." "More danger there is from the physician than the disease." "Their art is wholly conjectural, if it is an art." All this was written long ago, before the "Elixir of Life" was discovered and applied by the "regular faculty;" and the writer frankly adds: "I honor the doctors, as I am enjoined to honor the physicians, for necessity's sake. Though the doctors of the present day are, no doubt, very different from those referred to above, and in spite of the great progress in medical science, we are obliged to admit, that many, very many cases are still given over by them as hopeless. To such patients we say: Compound Oxygen is neither a drug nor a medicine, but a vitalizer, assisting nature.

You will find our treatise on Compound Oxygen an interesting work, carefully and thoughtfully written. It contains records of many cures, with the patients' grateful testimonials. Send for it and see for yourself. Sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, California.

Publisher's Dep't.

Photographs.

Our good prohibition photographers—the Veeders, of Albany, N. Y.—have brought out a fine set of "Crusade" pictures, namely:

	Prices.
The Hillsboro "Crusade" Church,	$ .50
The Crusade Bible, opened at the 146th Psalm (words can be read easily)	.30
The Bible closed, with case by it,	.25
Mother Thompson, an admirable likeness from a recent sitting	.25
Cabinet of the above group (reduced)	.25
Large group of the four pictures for framing	1.30

Offer No. 1.

We will send the last-named picture ($1.30) for a club of four new subscribers (with $4) to THE UNION SIGNAL.

Offer No. 2.

We will send any one of the 25 cent or the 30 cent photograph as a premium for one new subscriber to THE UNION SIGNAL with $1.00. The 50 cent photo will be sent for two new names with $2.00. Surely there are thousands of our subscribers who want the inspiration to be had in this grouping of the beautiful, benignant face, the historical church and the revered pages of God's Word. As you look, you cannot but dwell on the words photographed before you:

"All Thy works shall praise thee, O Lord, and Thy saints shall bless Thee,
They shall speak of the glory of Thy Kingdom and talk of Thy power."

Outfits.

We put up a number at reduced rates, for instance:

The W. C. T. U. Organizing Outfit	$ .40
Social Purity Outfit	.50
Loyal Temperance Legion Outfit	.60
Economic Temperance Package	.05
Scientific Temperance Package	.05
Teachers' Package	.75
Narcotics Package	.25

We have no space to tell the contents; if you want to know more about the matter, write for a free bulletin.

"SPLENDID!" All say, using Willcox Cuff Holder. Every reader of this paper can have a pair by sending 10 cents to S. P. and S. H. Willcox, Fairhaven, Mass. Lady Agents Wanted.

DR. C. T. STOVALL, Vienna, Ga., says: Having seen Bradycrotine tried on several cases of Headache, and one a chronic case, I recommend it to all who suffer from Headache.

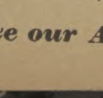
Treasurer's Outfits.

For collecting money by the envelope system. The surest method, giving the largest returns and with the least labor. Adapted for churches, W. C. T. Unions or any similar organization. Complete for fifty collectors sent, carriage free, on receipt of five dollars. Address Miss Pugh, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Read Carefully.

Our readers should not fail to read every word of the large advertisement of the "Murray" buggies and harness which appears in this issue. The prices at which the "Murray" people offer their goods direct to consumers seems almost incredible, but we will say right here, that we know the "Murray" people and their goods, and that their buggies and harness are everything that they claim for them, and more, too, and when any of our subscribers send them an order, they can rest assured that they will save their money and be more than pleased with what they buy. The "Murray" people appreciate the large circulation of THE UNION SIGNAL and the high class of its subscribers which is the reason they use its columns so liberally. If you have not received one of their fine new catalogues, don't fail to get one at once. In writing them, say you saw their advertisement in THE UNION SIGNAL and address them plainly The Wilber H. Murray Manufacturing Co., Murray Building, 139 W. Front St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

PERSONAL After trying NOSTRUMS, doctors and drugs, only to grow older and worse, cut this out and send to me, with a promise to report results, I will send you a package of Vita-Ore. Its unequaled Antiseptic Tonic Power will remove the Nidus of any ill. Proof at my expense. I am no Quack Doctor with a nostrum, but a public benefactor with a God-made Remedy; nothing man makes equals. None but knaves will scoff. It challenges a comparison. It is the Original that all Imitate. It is a discovery Never Downed by Quacks, who thrive on man's ills being protracted. Like Gold, it cannot be Analyzed nor Synthetized. It is a puzzle to the scientist, an enigma to the medical student, a boon for the afflicted. It is a Specific for Diphtheria, all Membranous Diseases, Kidney, General Debility, Female Complaints, Loss of Vitality, Incurable Ills. Try it at my expense. Quacks hate it like the devil does holy water.



THEO. NOEL, Chicago, Ill.

Van Houten's Cocoa, delicious, made instantly.

"Oread" free tells of Mt. Carroll (Ill.) Seminary.

Hose Supporters Free.

Each of our lady readers can obtain an unique and useful set of hose supporters free by complying with the offer in Dr. Scott's corset advertisement which appeared in last week's issue. Dr. Scott promises to send a set of these hose supporters free to every reader remitting to him price for one of his beautiful Electric Corsets, adding 15c for postage. These supporters are the most convenient and useful kind made and sell regularly at 50c. per set. Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets are so well known that they need no further recommendation here. Many of our lady readers have already tried them.

Dr. Scott also offers inducements to good agents, and you are invited to write to him for terms. In addressing him, always mention this paper.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS
Beware of Imitations.
NOTICE AUTOGRAPH OF Stewart Hartshorn ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

Alabastine Only Permanent Wall Coating. Never scales, like calcimines. Never generates disease like wall paper. No washing or scraping walls. Can renew coats indefinitely. Easily applied. Alabastine Co., Grand Rapids, Mich. See THE UNION SIGNAL April 17.

There must be some reason for it

We never have compelled anyone to use Pearline. We'd like to, but it isn't feasible. Besides, it isn't necessary. Millions use Pearline, and have tested and proved it. It's too old to be unknown, if it were a fraud, but where is the thing as popular and yet so young? If you know Pearline, you know the reason. In all washing and cleaning, there's nothing that saves as much labor and does as much work. It hurts nothing, saves wear on everything, costs no more than common soap and is more economical. Reasons enough for most women; think, are they not good enough for you?

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 176 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Summer Beginning with The May Number.

·CENTURY·

During the summer months THE CENTURY MAGAZINE will publish a great variety of seasonable articles, devoting unusual space to fiction, travel and adventure. In addition to its serials there will be a profusion of SHORT ILLUSTRATED STORIES, presenting a most attractive programme for vacation reading.

The Anglomaniacs,—a brief novel of New York society, written by an anonymous author and illustrated by Dana Gibson,—will begin in an early number, and continue during four months.

Adventures of War Prisoners,—a number of papers by Union and Confederate soldiers, descriptive of their prison experiences. These are in the strictest sense stories of adventure. No articles of wider or more intense interest have ever appeared in THE CENTURY.

Other Notable Features will be an article on "Track Athletics," by Walter Camp, illustrated from instantaneous photographs; "Little Venice," a vacation novelette; "A Provençal Pilgrimage," illustrated by Pennell; "London Polytechnics and People's Palaces"; English Cathedrals (St. Paul's, Westminster, etc.); "American Cliff Dwellings"; "The Single Tax," by Henry George and Edward Atkinson; the conclusion of Jefferson's Autobiography and "Friend Olivia"; and much else of more than ordinary interest.

THE MAY CENTURY. This number, beginning a new volume, will be issued May 1st. It contains "Was Either the Better Soldier?" and "Which was the Better Army?" two articles of the greatest interest to Union and Confederate soldiers as well as to civilians. There are also a number of martial articles, stories and poems appropriate to Memorial Day; among the contributors being Walt Whitman, Brander Matthews and others. "The Women of the French Salons" begins in this number, the illustrations accompanying this highly interesting series being among the most striking features of THE CENTURY'S summer months. George Kennan contributes "Blacked Out," a paper describing the methods of the Russian Press Censor. Other contents of the May CENTURY include two papers on Marie Bashkirtseff, with new portraits, and engravings of several of her pictures; a profusely illustrated article on poultry raising; several articles on Washington, illustrated by hitherto unpublished portraits and relics; Cole's Engravings; Joseph Jefferson in Australia; brief papers on Consciousness, Theodore O'Hara, and the Arid Lands; three short stories; poems by Thomas Bailey Aldrich and others; and the usual departments. The MAY CENTURY is for sale by dealers everywhere. Price, 35 cents.

THE SUMMER CENTURY—May to November (six months)—will be sent by the publishers, post-paid, to any address, upon receipt of $2.00.

THE CENTURY CO. 33 East 17th Street, New York.

ASTONISHING CURES!

What ROYAL GERMETUER Has Done.

The remarkable cures with "Royal Germetuer" are astonishing the world. Thousands of certificates attest its virtues and sound its praise. If you are sick do not despair. Dr. King's Royal Germetuer will cure you. It is as pleasant to take as lemonade without sugar; it is a scientific discovery, and cures disease by removing the cause. It builds up from the first dose.

Mrs. Ella R. Tennent, editress of Tennent's Home Magazine, says: "Its fame has spread like a prairie fire. It is so pleasant to use I look forward to the time for taking it with pleasure. The verdict of all I know, who have taken it, is that it is a great remedy."

Price $1.50 per concentrated bottle, which will make, as per accompanying directions, one gallon of medicine. Send stamp for full particulars.

For sale by druggists and by the Atlantic Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND

Sent on receipt of price and waist measure.
Fitted band 75 cts. } Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367,
Plain band 30 cts. } Minneapolis, Minn.

WOULD YOU?

WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F." CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 79 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

$29 Saved. A $45.00 Sewing Machine for $16.00. Call on or write to M. A. Scullin & Co., 762 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., for particulars. Mentioning this paper and get full information.

WOMEN: WORK FOR YOU. Experience unnecessary. No collecting. No heavy samples. No security required. Our goods sell easy. All want them. Good pay weekly. (Special inducements to all having sold books.) BROWN BROS., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

COMPOUND OXYGEN Price reduced. For information address Dr. A. H. Hiatt, Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Lady Agents wanted, also men in every state to sell our Rug Machine, Patterns, Yarn, etc. Write for catalogue and particulars at once. Gibbs Mfg. Co., 88 State St., Chicago.

DR. WILFORD HALL'S HEALTH PAMPHLET.
IN AMERICA.

Dr. W. B. Forden, M. D., St. Louis, Mo., 706 Pine St., writes, March 2:

"Dr. A. Wilford Hall: I have just finished reading your health brochure. To say that I am amazed does not express it—to think of the stupidity of our profession to have overlooked this factor in the physical economy for so long, and at last leave it to a layman to make the discovery! I had already an experience with a partial application of the remedy, but your pamphlet has convinced me that I did not know it all by half, and yet I thought I was in the van. I am fully convinced, however, that my partial application of the treatment has saved my life, and I now as fully believe that your advance application of the same will prolong it. Although a graduate of medicine and regarded as a successful practitioner, I have a supreme contempt for drugs, and for some time had contemplated changing my business, etc., etc. . . . Very truly yours,
W. B. FORDEN, M. D."

Dr. John Kaufman, M.D., of Hazleton, Pa., writes, March 16:

"Dear Dr. Hall: I received your Health-Pamphlet yesterday, and have examined it sufficiently to grasp the rationale of your treatment. Please accept my thanks for the valuable little work. Your reasoning is logical and your conclusions are strictly physiological. I believe your discovery, as elaborated in your treatise, has more intrinsic value than all other pathological theories. Very truly yours,
JOHN KAUFMAN, M. D."

We have received hundreds of similar indorsements of the Health-Pamphlet from physicians.

Business people, as well as professional people who have tested the treatment, are universal in its praise.

For further information regarding this medicineless treatment call upon or send 2-cent stamp to A. T. Bates, Room 46, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago.

SENSIBLE WOMEN all want FERRIS' GOOD SENSE CORSET WAISTS.
THOUSANDS NOW IN USE.
Best for Health, Economy and Beauty.
BUTTONS at front instead of CLASPS. RING BUCKLE at hip for Hose supporters. Tape-fastened Buttons—won't pull off. Cord-Edge Button Holes—wont wear out. FIT ALL AGES—Infants to Adults. Sold by Leading RETAILERS everywhere. Send for Circular,
FERRIS BROS., Manufacturers,
341 BROADWAY, New York.
MARSHALL FIELD & CO., CHICAGO, WHOLESALE WESTERN AGENTS.

A $5 Book For $1.00. How To Build A House.

If you are thinking of building a house you ought to buy the new book, Palliser's American Architecture, or every man a complete builder, prepared by Palliser, Palliser & Co., the well known architects.

There is not a Builder or any one intending to Build or otherwise interested that can afford to be without it. It is a practical work and everybody buys it. The best, cheapest and most popular work ever issued on Building. Nearly four hundred drawings. A $5 book in size and style, but we have determined to make it meet the popular demand, to suit the times, so that it can be easily reached by all.

This book contains 104 pages 11 x 14 inches in size, and consists of large 9 x 13 plate pages giving plans, elevations, perspective views, descriptions, owners' names, actual cost of construction, no guess work, and instructions How to Build 70 Cottages, Villas, Double Houses, Brick Block Houses, suitable for city suburbs, town and country, houses for the farm and workingmen's homes for all sections of the country, and costing from $300 to $6,500; also Barns, Stables, School House, Town Hall, Churches, and other public buildings, together with specifications, form of contract, and a large amount of information on the erection of buildings, selection of site, employment of Architects. It is worth $5.00 to any one, but I will send it in paper cover by mail postpaid on receipt of $1.00; bound in cloth, $2.00. Address all orders to J. S. OGILVIE, PUBLISHER, P. O. Box 2767. 57 Rose St., New York.

PIANOS—$35—ORGANS
Examine in your HOME before PAYING. Manufacturer's Prices. No Agents. Write for particulars. Address, THE T. S WOGER & SON PIANOS & ORGANS BEAVER FALLS, PA.

$12.50 Buys a $65 Improved Singer 60 days' trial. Free Catalogue. Warranted five years. SEWING MACHINE OXFORD MFG. CO., CHICAGO. ILL.

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

CATALOGUE FREE For Agents, Illustrating Useful Household articles & good selling Novelties. LAUBE COOKER CO., PARK RIDGE, ILL.

PURE GRAPE JUICE. EMMA M. TAYLOR 29 Bow St., WOBURN, MASS.

$75 to $250 A MONTH can be made working for us. Persons preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1009 Main St. Richmond, Va.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO.,
ARCHITECTS,
Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
"Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY,
181 Monroe St., CHICAGO,
Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper

Publisher's Dep't.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy	$1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each	1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each	1.00
To ministers and reading rooms	1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS: Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

Worthy?

AGENTS WANTED

For the two best temperance books ever published, viz.,

GLIMPSES OF FIFTY YEARS,

by Frances E. Willard, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT,

or "The Conflict of Man with Alcohol," by Henry W. Blair, United States Senator.

Of the first book, 50,000 have been printed since May, 1889. Of the second, three editions have been issued. Agents make money selling these books. Good territory can be had. Apply at once to

Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n,
161 La Salle St., Chicago.

The Alabastine

Company's advertisement appearing in our issue of April 17, deserves a special notice from the publisher. We have never tried what they advertise but any company that will, unasked, send $100 to a state W. C. T. U. as this company did to the Michigan treasurer when it was learned that the bank in which its money was deposited had failed, such a company, we say, cannot be anything but trustworthy. This is only one of many kindnesses shown by them to the W. C. T. U. of Michigan, of which we have learned through general officers. The company knows nothing of this notice and we give it freely, wishing there were more companies like the "Alabastine Co." of Grand Rapids, Mich. Send for their circulars.

Words Fitly Spoken.

"It is beautiful, fascinating, interesting beyond description (Glimpses of Fifty Years). I wish every mother and daughter would read it. I am going out to show it to several of my acquaintances, and to read Mrs. Willard's 'Training of Children' to some mothers this afternoon. I don't know how they can resist investing in such a book." L. E. T.

GODFREY, ILL.

Of nine weeklies, six monthlies, two dailies and a quarterly, none, I assure you, come nearer to my heart than just this pure, brave, spicy, meek, and ever-fresh UNION SIGNAL. Will see if I can find a youth to act as agent on the 3-cent a week plan. REV. O. C. DICKERSON.

"We have just given a most successful entertainment, using the 'Prohibition Program,' which is delightful. The children carried it through beautifully, doing the dialogue, 'Town Council,' in a very spirited manner. Have you any more such entertainments? This one is particularly bright. It was really thrilling when the children came marching in singing at the top of their voices, and with banners flying."

Nothing we publish will more thoroughly entertain, and at the same time deeply impress an audience than this same little "Pro. Pro." You would do well to send us ten cents. Look the book over and be convinced we are right.

"In one of the families that I sent The Young Crusader to, are four voters, and in a few years will be seven—who were all strong anti-Prohibitionists, but The Young Crusader converted them. One half-dollar well spent!" MRS. F. G. M.

For muscular soreness use Pond's Extract

LADY AGENTS CLEAR $10 DAILY selling "Victoria Protector" and rubber goods for Ladies & Children. Sample "Victoria" by mail $1. Mrs. L. E. Singleton, Box 665, Chicago, Ill.

A VERY SATISFACTORY GARMENT.

WHY? Because it Supports Stockings and Underclothes from the SHOULDERS, and has no stiff cords, fits with perfect ease and freedom. For sale by leading dealers.

Send for illustrated price list.

FOY, HARMON & CHADWICK, New Haven, Conn.

VanHouten's Cocoa

"BEST & GOES FARTHEST."

The purest, most soluble—the original cocoa. Invented, patented and made in Holland. Delicate, stimulating, nutritious, much better for the nerves than tea and coffee. Ask for VAN HOUTEN'S, take no other. [61

ASK your dealer for Water Pails, Dairy Pails, Wash Basins, Cuspidors, Slop Jars, Table Mats, Slop Jar Mats, Etc. made from FLAX FIBER. Practically indestructible. Manufact'd by the STANDARD FIBER-WARE CO. Nothing will please you like this Plain and Decorated Ware. In use everywhere. None genuine without "STANDARD" Trade Mark on bottom. If your dealer does not keep it, send his address and we will mail you picture cards.

LADIES! Use only Brown's French Dressing on your Boots and Shoes.

AGENTS wanted. Household invention. Sells rapidly. Terms free. Low & Rewell Manufacturing Co., 135 Public Square, Cleveland, O

WALL PAPER makes attractive homes. Our low prices, enormous assortment of styles and honorable treatment induce customers in all parts U.S. to recommend us. Lustres 6c. a roll. Handsome Golds 12c. Felts 20c. Iridescent Embossed Golds 35c. For 8c. postage will send to any address samples with borders to match. A. L. DIAMENT & CO., 1306 Market St., PHILADELPHIA, PA

AGENTS. Something new in Family Bibles, which makes our Bibles sell where Bibles never sold before. Where other Bibles have been sold, there ours will sell the more. For particulars, address the Historical Pub. Co., Dayton, O.

HARPER BROS. & CO., Grocers.

Established 1873, 90 State Street, Chicago. Opposite Marshall Field's. Send for Price List.

NO LIQUORS SOLD.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. R. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill.

We do not sell liquors in any shape.

THE Perfection Flour Bin and Sieve. The housekeeper's best friend. Look for our card in this paper next week. Agents wanted.

SHERMAN, TANGENBERG & CO., 160 West Lake St., Chicago.

HOTEL FREDONIA,

H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.

New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,

G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

$60 SALARY $40 EXPENSES IN ADVANCE allowed each month. Steady employment at home or traveling. No soliciting. Duties delivering and making collections. No Postal Cards. Address with stamp, HAFER & CO., Piqua, O.

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS
A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

S. A. KEAN & CO. BANKERS,

CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt., 97 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE
LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA

furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.

Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES
FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.

Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free.

"Some lives are like Horse shoes the more worn the brighter." Busy wives who use SAPOLIO never seem to grow old. Try a cake···

COPYRIGHT

A complete wreck of domestic happiness has often resulted from badly washed dishes, from an unclean kitchen, or from trifles which seemed light as air. But by these things a man often judges of his wife's devotion to her family, and charges her with general neglect when he finds her careless in these particulars. Many a home owes a large part of its thrifty neatness and its consequent happiness to SAPOLIO.

☞Grocers often substitute cheaper goods for SAPOLIO, to make a better profit. Send back such articles, and insist on having just what you ordered.☜

"Aches and Pains I'll fear no More!!"
is what a lady said after using an EMPIRE WRINGER!

"It works so easy I do my work in half the time it took with my old wringer, SAVES MY CLOTHES, and doesn't tire me out." IT WRINGS DRYER, WEARS LONGER AND IS THE ONLY WRINGER WHICH DOES NOT HAVE THE CRANK ATTACHED TO EITHER ROLL, it is constructed in this way to save labor. It is warranted against defects, requires no oil and never rusts. ☞ Agents Wanted Everywhere.

EMPIRE WRINGER CO., Auburn, N. Y.

WEBSTER'S
UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.

Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep.....$3.00
Crown Fountain Pen.....$2.00

Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by

CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

A FULL LINE OF DRESS REFORM GOODS, including the Equipoise Waist, and all the Jennes-Miller specialties. Send stamp for Catalogue.

Mrs. S. W. Pike, 75 Madison St., Chicago.

MAN WANTED SALARY $75 to $100, to locally represent a N. Y. Company incorporated to supply Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Jewelry, etc., to consumers at cost. Also a Lady of tact, Salary $40, to enroll members ($50,000 now enrolled, $100,000 paid in). References. Empire Co-operative Ass'n (well rated) Lock Box 1610, N. Y.

DEAFNESS CURED by Peck's Pat. INVISIBLE TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS Whispers heard distinctly. Comfortable. Successful where all Remedies FAIL. Illustrated book & proofs FREE. Address or call on F. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, N. Y.

THE EDISON MIMEOGRAPH

duplicating apparatus. Send postal card to A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, for descriptive circulars and samples of work.

THE DEAF HEAR

SOUND DISCS are guaranteed to help a larger per cent. of cases than all similar devices combined. The same to the Ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively invisible. Worn months without removal. H. A. WALES, Bridgeport, Conn.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time. Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINSTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED

that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER.

Perpetual Lamp Wick for oil stoves and lamps. Received first premium from New York State Fair. Also medal from American Institute. No trimming, no gas, no explosion. Rare Inducements to agents. Sample 15c.; two for 25c. Address Electric Institute, 124 Union St., Newark, N. J.

WE WANT 1,000 BRIGHT BOYS OR GIRLS.

To whom we can give employment in a way that will be easy and pleasant. The preliminary work can be done after school hours—an hour a week after that will suffice to bring in a profit of from 20 cents to $2.00 a week.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS TO

The Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n

161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

MAY FLOWERS
OF SONG
For Schools:

Children's School Songs, (35 cts.: $3.60 dozen.) 8 pages of simple explanations, and 138 new and selected songs for general singing. This little book is being received with much favor.

Kindergarten Chimes. ($1.25.) Kate Douglas Wiggin. Good manual, and fine collection.
Kindergarten and Primary School Songs. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Menard.
Songs and Games for Little Ones. ($2.00.) Walker and Jenks.
Gems for Little Singers. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Emerson and Swayne.
Rhymes and Tunes. ($1.00.) Mrs. Osgood.
Motion Songs. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Mrs. Boardman. Get them all! They are most delightful books! Also try the sweet little Cantatas:
Kingdom of Mother Goose. (25 cts., $2.28 doz.) Mrs. Boardman.
Rainbow Festival. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Lewis.
Who Killed Cock Robin? (40 cts.; $3.60 doz.) Ford.

Song Manual { Book 1, Primary. 30c.: $3 doz. Book 2, Medium. 40c.; $4.20 doz Book 3, High. 50c.; $4.80 doz.

By Emerson. These are the newest and best books for teaching note reading in schools.

Send for lists and descriptions.

Any book mailed for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston

PIANOS $150 to $1500 UNIVERSITY ESTAB. 1859. INCOR. 1877

They Lead the World!

Sent for trial in your own home.

Guaranteed Six Years.

Sold Direct to families. No Middlemen.

ABSOLUTELY PERFECT

DON'T BUY A POOR PIANO!

Cat. Free.

MARCHAL & SMITH PIANO CO. 235 E. 21st St., N.Y.

ORGANS $35 to $500

CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL
FOR
KINDERGARTNERS.

Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,

Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to Miss Alice McRoy, 2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE

Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V. Farwell & Co., Chicago.

TEACHERS Register NOW and secure positions in the Colleges, Seminaries and Schools of the South and South-west. Vacancies are occurring every day. Registration fee $2. Send stamp for blank. American Bureau of Education, Room 32, Cole Building, Nashville, Tenn.

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!
Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

THE PATHFINDER PHYSIOLOGY.
ENDORSED BY W. C. T. U.
A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR
MY STORY OF THE WAR
By Mary A. Livermore

Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure, and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos, it sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. ☞ No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in twenty colors. 61st thousand. ☜5,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

ALARMED!

Yes, actually scared to death are all the Buggy and Harness men throughout the country. They are howling themselves hoarse for us to stop and give them a show. The immense sale of our "Murray" Buggies and Harness is SOUR GRAPES for them, but we still keep on selling our WORLD RENOWNED "MURRAY" $55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS direct to consumers; in fact we have gained such a high reputation on our "Murray" Goods, that the people must have them, and no others, so we have to keep on making them regardless of the squealing of our would-be competitors. We will, however, say here that we feel sorry for them. In fact

They have our DEEPEST SYMPATHY WHILE We have the LARGEST BUSINESS on EARTH and will have to again enlarge our capacity and to accommodate our marvelous growth of trade. HAVE YOU A "MURRAY" BUGGY or HARNESS? If not, you are one of the few who are behind the times, and the rear of the "Procession of Advancement." If you have not the money to spare to buy a "Murray" Buggy or Harness, the next best thing to do is to write to us for our large illustrated catalogue of these marvelous turnouts, and drown your sorrow by digesting the healthy contents and making the vow, "That the next Buggy or Harness I purchase, Providence willing, will be a 'Murray,'" which is the peer of all others, and don't you forget it.

WATCH OUR IMITATORS!

We have knocked them all out on our straight forward way of doing business, and now many of these disgruntled would-be competitors are trying to copy us; they even go so far as to copy to a great extent our catalogues, etc., thinking that they can dupe the unsuspecting public into their snare by representing to do business like us, (but are selling goods that are dear at any price). We are letting them alone for awhile, just to see how long it will take them to work their own ruin.

WATCH OUR IMITATORS.—(Continued.)

But lest some of our friends might be enticed into their web, we make these remarks, and while "a word to the wise is sufficient," we will say, study our catalogue well, and if you should have any others look at them, and if you see the similarity, you will know what's up. Many of these same imitators are making claims to sell cheaper than "Murray," but are making a flat failure of it; for everybody knows we make and sell more of our celebrated "Murray" Buggies and Harness than all of them combined; consequently undersell them so far that it makes their heads swim and their business sink.

DON'T FORGET THAT

We sell Direct to the Consumer. That we do not belong to either the Buggy or Harness "Pool" or "Trust," and that we sell our Celebrated "MURRAY" $55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS solely on their world renowned merits and unapproachable low prices. Write for Catalogue, containing full Description and Net Cash Prices.

WILBER H. MURRAY MANUFACTUR'G COMPANY.

"MURRAY BUILDING," 139 West Front Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Publisher's Notes.

Rest Cottage.

"There is nothing I so much desire as that THE UNION SIGNAL should reach 100,000 subscribers. It seems to me I could then say, 'Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace.' Do crowd all sail for this port..... Wherever I find white-ribboners who read THE UNION SIGNAL, I find wide-awakes! Wherever I find those who do not, I find fast-asleeps! Whatever you don't do, push the circulation of our paper. It is woman's grandest educational venture since there was a planet earth." FRANCES E. WILLARD.

Words for the Juvenile Paper.

"I am impatient for the Young Crusader to get back to a weekly edition," says the president of an Illinois district. "The children ask so anxiously on the 'off week,' 'Isn't there any paper to-day?' I have known several instances where the carrying home of the Young Crusader by children has resulted in the reform of the drinking father." Is such a paper worth your thought and attention? or shall complete indifference reign?

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

"I am delighted with Senior Grade of Lessons in The Young Crusader Supplement. It just fills in a long-felt want. Have had more applications for a grade of lessons beyond the Lesson Manuals this spring than ever before. Send me a number of samples to send out to Loyal Temperance Legion superintendents."

MRS. H. A. PERRIGO,
Supt. Juvenile Dept., N. Y.

A woman who once puts on Ball's corset will wear that make as long as she lives.

That is why the makers do as they do.

What do they do?

They tell every store in the United States to take Ball's corset back and return the money paid for it any time within three weeks, if the woman that buys it don't like it.

Do the stores do that?

They do if they have Ball's corset. They are glad to; it costs them nothing.

Your store has a primer on Corsets for you.

CHICAGO CORSET CO., Chicago and New York.

AGENTS WANTED by an old reliable firm; large profits, quick sales, SAMPLE FREE. A rare opportunity. Geo. A. Scott, 842 Broadway, N. Y

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dr. B. A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St., Chicago, Ill.

REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O. CATARRH.

PILES Cured at home. New treatment never fails when instructions are correctly followed. Read article in THE UNION SIGNAL, March 13, p. 15. The GLOBE MEDICINE Co., Box 711, Cincinnati, O.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY,"
Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard, Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

A-CORN SALVE.
Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time.
NO PAIN! NO POISON!
"After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW BOOK.
WOMAN AND HEALTH.
By M. Augusta Fairchild, M. D. Price $2.50. More Agents wanted. Address Healthery, 537 Broadway, Quincy, Ill.
School of Vital Science, 1121 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. March 31, 1890.
We have examined "Woman and Health," by M. Augusta Fairchild, Quincy, Ill., and declare it A. 1. Practical Hygiene. VICTOR B. HALL, Principal.

THE LADY'S SYRINGE,
is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz. Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Of Pure Cod Liver Oil and HYPOPHOSPHITES of Lime and Soda

is endorsed and prescribed by leading physicians because both the Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites are the recognized agents in the cure of Consumption. It is as palatable as milk.

Scott's Emulsion is a perfect Emulsion. It is a wonderful Flesh Producer. It is the Best Remedy for CONSUMPTION, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Wasting Diseases, Chronic Coughs and Colds. Ask for Scott's Emulsion and take no other.

FOR ONLY 10 CENTS We will send the MAYFLOWER, 4 months on TRIAL, and a Packet of Mixed Flower Seeds containing 50 of the newest and rarest kinds. Sown this Spring they will give you all Summer a bed of rare flowers such as you never dreamed of. THE MAYFLOWER is a 12-page illustrated monthly journal devoted entirely to flowers and gardening in all its branches. It is the finest publication of the kind in the country. Edited by JOHN LEWIS CHILDS assisted by MR. A. BLANC and C. L. ALLEN, and a score of other well-known writers and cultivators. REGULAR SUBSCRIPTION PRICE 50 cents per year. This offer to send it four months and the packet of rare new seeds is made expressly to get every lover of flowers in the land to become acquainted with the merits of our paper. It is so good they will always want it. GET 4 OF YOUR FRIENDS TO ACCEPT THIS OFFER WITH YOU AND WE WILL SEND YOU THE FOR ONLY 10 CENTS WONDROUS WEATHER PLANT FREE. Get 19 to send with you and we will send you postpaid 5 of the most beautiful and rare plants you ever saw, such as will astonish you with their beauty. Send at once. This offer will not appear again.

Address THE MAYFLOWER, FLORAL PARK, N. Y.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.

IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKIND!

Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.

The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages Delivered Free of Charge to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.
CHAS. RAISER, Mfr.
62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The "Little Beauty" A $5.00 Scale for $1.00
Capacity 1-4 oz. to 4 lbs. Steel Bearings, Brass Scoop and Beam. For Housekeepers, Offices or Stores. Weight packed, 8 lbs. Sent by express

A $65.00 Sewing Machine	$18.00
A 900-lb. Platform Scale...	15.00
A $125.00 Top Buggy	65.00
A 2-Ton Wagon Scale.....	40.00
A 5-Ton Scale and Stock Rack	75.00
A $50 Feed Mill	30.00
A $40.00 Road Cart.....	15.00
A $15.00 Single Harness...	7.50
A 240-lb. Platform Scale...	8.00

Price List Free. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods. 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

Temperance Tea Tonic.
Nature's Great Remedy, Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine, made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases, female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache. Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

HOLMAN'S PADS.
Holman's Liver Pads cure Malaria,
Holman's Liver Pads cure Biliousness,
Holman's Liver Pads cure Dyspepsia.
All druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of $2.00.
HOLMAN LIVER PAD CO.,
81 John St., N. Y.

BABY CARRRIAGES Direct from Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world.

CUT SHOWS BLOWER ATTACHMENT OF THE COSY GRATE
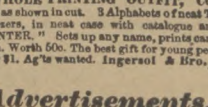
PATENT APPLIED FOR
CHAS. L. PAGE, AGT.
349 WABASH AVE. CHICAGO.
MANTELS, MARBLE AND TILE WORK

OPIUM Morphine or Whisky Habi cured in 11 to 21 days. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Address The Compound Oxygen Ass'n, Ft. Wayne, Ind

25c PRINTING OUTFIT.



A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL, Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Sets up any name, prints cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersol & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

Signal Notes.

THEY tell us this grand old country of ours is going down in the scale of nations. I don't believe it; but, if ever she does, it will not be the hand of the aggressor from without, nor the competition of the workshops of the world, that will lay her low, but her own drunkenness and vice that will paralyze her right arm, and putrefaction within which will work her ruin.—George Kemp, Temperance Chronicle.

A RECENT parliamentary return shows that in 1889 there were 168,385 liquor licenses issued in Great Britain.

THE Epworth League, the young people's society of the Methodist Episcopal church, has 1,910 chapters and 100,000 members.

THE Nebraska State Horticultural Society heartily indorses prohibition, and favors its adoption in the state constitution.

THE best indorsement of Christian people comes from Elizabeth and Sycamore, Ill., regarding the work of Messrs. Wolfenbergar and Huckins. At the former place over three hundred signed the pledge. Crowded houses greeted them and grand work was done.

THE annual report of the Iowa State Labor Statistician includes returns from 2,140 workingmen who were asked among other questions, "Is prohibition a good thing for the wage workers?" One thousand three hundred and twenty-eight answer "yes," and three hundred and seventy-six answer "no."

A YEAR ago in Lake City, Minn., under the labors of John G. Woolley, seventy-two drinking men signed the pledge "in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth," and trusting in His strength to keep them true to their vows. Mr. Woolley writes at the close of the year: "Seventy stand strong and fast to-day! Salvation does the work!"

A HOPEFUL sign of the times is the formation of a temperance society among the students of the Connecticut Normal Training School at Willimantic. Scientific temperance study is to be their chief line of work, that they may be prepared to teach the principles of total abstinence in the best possible way when they receive their diplomas and enter on their life work.

A CORRESPONDENT from Elmira, N. Y., writes that "a new feature in prison discipline" has been inaugurated in the Reformatory of that place in the shape of a large gymnasium with Russian and Turkish baths, and all the best approved apparatus for physical culture. The writer says this new feature marks a stage in "the evolution of Superintendent Brockway's idea that to develop the mind one must develop the body."

REV. WILBUR F. CRAFTS has resigned his position as publication secretary of the American Sabbath Union, which he found would confine him to New York and vicinity, in order to be free to make a transcontinental trip in the interest of Sabbath Reform. His trip takes him in April to Ohio, Illinois, Kansas and Colorado; in May to Southern California; in June to Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, the Dakotas and Minnesota. In the autumn he expects to return to the pastorate.

AT a monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Germantown, held March 19, 1890, the subject of increased appropriation for the navy and for coast defenses being considered, it was the sense of the meeting that "our country stands in no need of such extraordinary provisions either for protection or attack, and that the proposed expenditures would be as unwise as they are uncalled for, and, if carried out, would be far more likely to provoke aggression and war, than to avoid them." It was "resolved that we write to our senator and representative at Washington urging them to oppose this unnecessary appropriation of our government funds, and calling to their attention how many internal improvements are needed, such as bridges, good roads, etc."

THE Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church recently in session at Carlisle, appointed a special committee to consider a protest against the present popular clamor for applying the surplus to war preparations, who reported that "We declare in favor of a peace policy in our civil government, and against enlarging our coast defenses and building more warships." The unions in various parts of the country are signifying their disunity with the scheme, among the foremost being those of South Dakota, whose alert president, Helen M. Barker, announces that they "are awake to the step toward barbarism" which the proposed unrighteous expenditures would involve.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest, and most Healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime, or Alum. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.
NEW YORK. CHICAGO. ST. LOUIS.

GRANULA
The most nutritious and digestible of Foods. Send for pamphlet. Trial box by mail 36c. Address Our Home Granula Co., Dansville, N. Y.

PURE TEA
GET ORDERS FOR TEAS, BAKING POWDER AND PURE SPICES.
We are the only Tea firm who give Premiums to Club Raisers and, at the same time, Presents to Consumers. We give Gold Watches, Silver Ware, Tea, Dinner and Toilet Sets, Hanging and Stand Lamps, and hundreds of other useful articles. 3½ lbs. any kind of Tea by mail, $2.00. Agent wanted in each town. Big Pay. For terms address YAMASHIRO TEA CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.
List of 500 Presents for Consumers.
Please address P. O. Lock Box No. 10,471.

THE GLUTEN Flour Entire Wheat the best and most economical flour made, the only cure for Dyspepsia. Recommended by Physicians. Kenosha Mills Co., 135 Lake St., Chicago.

STEEL EDGE ~LAST A LIFE TIME

EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT
SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.
By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the
STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,
89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

PANSY PLANTS 12 very choice Pansy Plants, all colors, 20c. or 24 for 30c., nicely packed, postpaid Catalogue FREE, F. B. MILLS, Thorn Hill, N. Y.

125 colonies pure Italian Bees for sale. Prices to suit purchaser. Catalogue free. A. F. Bright, Mazeppa, Minn.

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia. Pa.

This is the Picture of
Baby Barendse,

Three months old when cured by the use of Steketee's Worm Destroyer.
Read what its mother says:
"The undersigned has a child only three months old. It became sick with pains in its bowels and stomach when scarcely two months old. It cried and whined nearly all the time, and was completely run down in flesh. We gave it everything that we thought would relieve the child, but it grew worse all the time. We made twenty powders from a teaspoonful of Steketee's Worm Destroyer, gave it one powder three times daily. To our astonishment it was relieved of thousands of worms. We have given the child but twenty powders. It is entirely cured. I shall always recommend Steketee's Worm Destroyer. MRS. B. BARENDSE, Oakdale Park, Kent Co., Mich.
For Sale by all Druggists, and by mail, 25 Cents. Send U. S. Stamp. Address:
GEO. G. STEKETEE,
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
The proprietor of this paper knows that this medicine is no humbug, and perfectly safe to send money to Mr. Steketee. Mention Union Signal.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
FOR BEAUTY OF POLISH, SAVING LABOR, CLEANLINESS, DURABILITY & CHEAPNESS, UNEQUALLED. NO ODOR WHEN HEATED.
Do not take any chances of being poisoned or burned to death with Liquid Stove Polish, paints, and enamels in bottles. The "Rising Sun Stove Polish" is safe, odorless, brilliant, the cheapest and best stove polish made, and the consumer pays for no expensive tin or glass with every purchase.

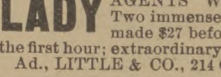
The Business

WOMAN'S JOURNAL For APRIL
CONTAINS FINE
Portraits of the Women Suffrage Leaders,
ELIZABETH CADY STANTON, SUSAN B. ANTHONY, LUCY STONE, ISABELLA BEECHER HOOKER, JANE H. SPOFFORD and RACHEL FOSTER AVERY.
Copies of this number will be sold to Woman Suffrage Associations and members of the W. C. T. U. at the rate of $6 per hundred, and $50 per thousand.
Subscription price, 55 cents per year, Single Copies, 10 cents.
The Mary F. Seymour Publishing Co.,
New York City Offices, 38 Park Row.

OREGON THE LAND OF BIG RED APPLES. The famous Willamette Valley. The best climate in the United States. Write for circulars to the Western Oregon Land Co., Monmouth, Polk Co., Oregon. J. G. CROUCH, Sec'y.

RIDGE'S FOOD The Most Reliable Food For Infants & Invalids. Not a medicine, but a specially prepared Food, adapted to the weakest stomach. 4 sizes cans. Pamphlet free. Woolrich & Co. (on every label). Palmer, Mass.

CURLING IRON mailed for 10cts. To make new customers. Wood handle; non-conducting thumb spring; polished steel. Worth 50c. Big catalogue free. A. T. Evans & Co., Chicago.



LADY AGENTS WANTED—ALSO MEN. Two immense new specialties; 1 lady made $27 before dinner, another $16 the first hour; extraordinary opportunity; proof free. Ad., LITTLE & CO., 214 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

"SUPERIOR NUTRITION THE LIFE"
IMPERIAL GRANUM
REG'ST'D JUNE 5'77
THE GREAT MEDICINAL FOOD
THIS ORIGINAL AND WORLD-RENOWNED DIETETIC PREPARATION IS A SUBSTANCE OF
UNRIVALLED purity and medicinal worth—potent for good and powerless to harm. A solid extract, derived by a new process from very superior growths of wheat—nothing more, and as a FOOD, it would be difficult to conceive of anything more wholesome and delicious. It has justly acquired the reputation of being the salvator
FOR INVALIDS AND THE AGED; an incomparable aliment for the growth and protection of INFANTS AND CHILDREN; a superior nutritive in continued fevers, the most nourishing and strengthening food for NURSING MOTHERS & CONVALESCENTS; and a reliable remedial agent in all diseases of the stomach and intestines.
John Carle & Sons, New York.

LADY AGENTS WANTED for the VAN ORDEN CORSETS. Every lady wishing good health and a beautiful figure buys them. Quick sales. Good pay. Send for terms and circular.
VAN ORDEN CORSET CO., 22 Clinton Place, N.Y.

LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y

LADY AGENTS.

There is nothing that sells better than MME. M'CABE'S sanative CORSET and WAISTS, BIG MONEY for live agents. Send for particulars
ST. LOUIS CORSET CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

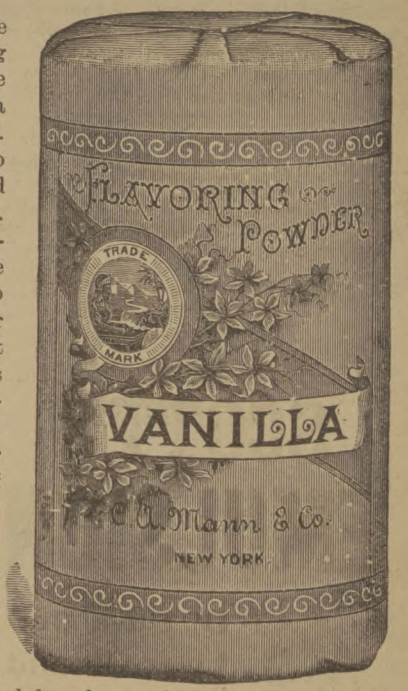
ACME SET & DRS PROTECTOR
A complete garment worn under the corset or flannels, protecting the clothing from perspiration. Cheaper than dress shields, one pair doing the work of six.
Misses' bust measure, 28-33, $ .80
Ladies' " " 34-39, 1.00
H. DEWEY, Mnfr., 1397 W. Monroe St., Chicago. AGENTS WANTED.
Send Money by P. O. Order. Catalogue free.

PLAYS Dialogues, Tableaux, Speakers, for School, Club & Parlor. Best out. Catalogue free. T. S. DENISON, Chicago, Ill.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

"DELSARTE" Corset Waists and Braces are the best selling goods made. Sold by Agents only. Exclusive territory Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

Flavoring Powders.



Tastes for flavors differ greatly. Some people never use Vanilla, while others have a strong prejudice against Lemon, and these are the most popular flavorings. Other flavors stand a much smaller chance of pleasing generally. They are not so well known, people are apt to expect too much of them, and are disappointed when they are not up to what was anticipated. Besides, we seldom enjoy the taste of an unfamiliar kind of seasoning. For instance, the residents of hot countries cannot be induced to like Wintergreen. It is not a product of their soil, and they do not know what it is. But stronger than unfamiliarity or inherent taste is the prejudice caused by poor stuff constantly being put upon the market and sold as good goods. The high price of alcohol is responsible for much of this, for 90 per cent of the cost of liquid extracts is represented by alcohol; this makes liquid flavorings very expensive, and unnecessarily so, for alcohol can be easily dispensed with in the manufacture of flavors. It is an excellent vehicle for adulterations of every kind, is extremely volatile, and apt to destroy lightness if too much is used. Nature sets us a perfect example. There is much to be learned from her teaching, if we would but follow her. We get pure, strong and sweet fragrance from her countless blossoms. Concentrated coloring in all her woods and lakes, and the most delicate aroma from flower and stalk and leaf; active principle in everything, adulteration in nothing. Nature powders her flavors, and we have taken the hint. We have dispensed with alcohol in the manufacture of our Flavoring Powders, and we find them far superior to alcoholic extracts. So does everybody. Ask your grocer for them, and if he does not and will not keep them, send us 50 cents, and we will mail you a 1-ounce bottle each of the Lemon and Vanilla Powders to try. Remember that the Powders are measured by weight and not by fluid measure, so that an ounce of the Powders will fill a 2-ounce liquid extract bottle.
Satin Packets Powdered Perfume, sent by mail on receipt of 30 cents.
C. A. MANN & CO., 48 Murray St., NEW YORK

Advertisers want to know what paper pays best. Mention The Union Signal.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 19.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, May 8, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: The Hand of God in the Iowa Saloon Decision—Presidency of the World's W. C. T. U.—National Temperance Hospital—Meeting of W. T. P. A. Directors—The Tenth National Temperance Convention 8, 9
SPECIAL DIFFICULTIES: One Way to Do it 9
WATCH-TOWER: 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, The Marred Calendar. by E. Harriet Howe—Gretchen—A Hospital Story, by Emma F. Searles—Legislation on the Liquor Traffic in the Colonies and United States of America, by Ada M. Bittenbender—International Temperance Studies, by Felix L. Oswald, M. D.—The True Elixir, by Hester M. Poole 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: Mrs. Leavitt in Africa—Miss Willard in Cleveland—Ramabai's School—Temperance Temple Items 4, 5
OUR BOOK TABLE: 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, A Prophecy—I Meant To—Waiting for the Grist—"Do They Understand It?" 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning May 18, 1890 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, Only a Woman—Noted English Women—Words to the Wise—"The Story is Old"—God's Newspaper 7
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: Rhode Island, Tennessee, New Jersey, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York—News in a Nutshell—Notice—Announcements—World's W. C. T. U 10, 11, 12
OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS: Scientific Instruction—Receipts for Temperance Temple 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT: 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

Bishop Taylor, of Africa, spent Sunday in Chicago, preaching in the evening.

Lyman J. Gage is elected president of the World's Fair directors, Thomas B. Bryan and Potter Palmer, vice-presidents.

A bill abolishing capital punishment passed the New York House of Representatives by a vote of seventy-five to twenty-nine.

A strong movement led by Miss Mary Garrett is being made to secure the admission of women to Johns Hopkins University.

The Christians on the island of Crete are rejoicing over the raising of the siege and the abolition of martial law in the island.

The Mexican Chamber of Deputies has approved a bill granting an indefinite number of terms to Presidents; it now goes to the Senate.

Last week Miss Willard addressed an audience which packed Old's Opera House, Muscatine, Iowa, on "The White Cross and the White Shield."

The Federal Supreme Court has reversed the decision of the Michigan Supreme Court in the case of Henry Lyng, agent of a Wisconsin brewery.

May 3, Senator Beck, of Kentucky, dropped dead in the Baltimore & Potomac depot, Washington, within a few feet of the spot where Garfield was shot.

The "untimely May snow" of Sunday did incalculable good to the northwest by putting out forest fires and by supplying needed moisture to wheat fields.

At the Interstate Oratorical contest at Lincoln, Neb., W. S. Naylor, of Washburn College, Kansas, took first prize, and A. C. Douglass, of Monmouth College, Illinois, second.

The ladies of Springfield, Ill., propose leasing the Ninian Edwards homestead to inaugurate coöperative housekeeping on the plan so successfully in operation in Decatur.

From March 4, 1889, to March 4, 1890, 34,600 postmasters were removed; the largest number in any year since the government adopted the policy, "To the victors belong the spoils."

Dr. William Moon, of Brighton, England, the originator of books for the blind, printed on embossed type, was presented with valuable testimonials on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the commencement of his beneficent work.

Chicago, which has a larger Bohemian population than any other city in the world, except Vienna and Prague, dedicated its first Bohemian Protestant Church, Sunday. It is built by the City Mission Society of Congregational Churches.

One good result of Bismarck's retirement promises to be the banishment of blackletter from German school books. Oculists have almost unanimously attributed the extraordinary prevalence of defects of vision among Germans to this cause, but Bismarck resolutely stood against any change from the ancient ways.

THE convention of Working Girls' Societies lately held in New York was one of very great significance and interest. Its printed report is therefore of great value; copies can be obtained by sending ten cents to Miss Virginia Potter, general secretary, 262 Madison avenue, New York City.

CALIFORNIA Prohibitionists head their ticket with the name of Gen. John Bidwell. Several years ago Gen. Bidwell became so impressed with the evils of intemperance and so thoroughly convinced of the relation of wine drinking to the appetite for stronger liquors, that he cut down and rooted out the vines belonging to his great winery, and converted that part of his ranch into school-house and grounds for the Indian children of that region.

COMMISSIONER HELGESEN, State Relief Agent for North Dakota, asks us to correct the erroneous impression that he receives contributions to be divided between the two Dakotas. It causes confusion, as Mr. Helgesen has no authority to disburse anything beyond his own state, while the drouth and frost stricken sufferers of South Dakota are appealing to him. Aid for the South state will be wisely bestowed if sent to Gov. A. C. Mellette, Pierre, S. D.

THE first week in May has witnessed the largest labor demonstrations the world has ever seen, the one in London, May 4, calling into line nearly a million men. The movement literally encircled the world, and it is a sign of promise that with some few exceptions, as at Paris, there was no violence. In many places these demonstrations have been followed by peaceable strikes for eight hours a day. This simultaneous movement throughout the world has great significance.

THE admirable articles of Dr. Livermore that lately appeared in THE UNION SIGNAL, entitled "Incapacity of Business Women," have been put in tract form by him, to be sown broadcast as a reply to Marion Harland's article of the same title in the North American Review. As a clear setting forth of the truth taught by experience, concerning the business capacity of women, it deserves the widest circulation. Dr. Livermore has kindly placed a number of these tracts in our hands for gratuitous circulation. We will gladly send one or more copies to any one sending us address and stamp for their postage.

THE Supreme Court of Michigan pronounces the Damon law of 1889, void, because the act approved by the Governor is not the same act as that passed by the Legislature. This law provided for the payment of a uniform fee of $500 for the license to sell either malt or distilled liquors. The law remaining in force requires a $500 fee for permit to sell spirits, but only $300 for "beer license." The one thousand saloon keepers of Detroit are jubilant over the "mistake" in the report of the conference committee. A prominent daily says: "It is a loss to the city of $200,000." That sounds as if Detroit had calculated upon an increase of profits in the "business" during the coming year, and is disappointed. The partnership existing between the state and the saloon has been patent to us for years, but has not been so frankly acknowledged by the secular press before.

THE Seventeenth National Conferences of Charities and Correction holds its sessions in Baltimore, commencing Wednesday evening, May 14, and closing Wednesday evening, May 21. Each morning and evening are devoted to papers and discussions of vital topics, and the afternoons are given to visiting the charitable, correctional and educational institutions of Baltimore. Among the topics discussed are "Prison Discipline," "Industries for Reform Schools," "Relief Work," "Hospital Management," "The Science of Nursing and the Training of Nurses," "Family Life for Dependent Children," "Indoor and Outdoor Relief." Dr. Henry M. Hurd, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, discusses the relation of public hospitals to the medical profession; Miss Elizabeth Putnam speaks on methods of caring for dependent children; Hon. F. B. Sanborn shows the fallacy of outdoor relief; Dr. Charlotte Brown, of San Francisco, Mrs. Hannah M. Todd, of Lynn, Mass., Mrs. C. R. Lowell, of New York, are among the lady speakers before the Conference.

A CHICAGO school-teacher saw a group of boys counting the number of holes in some cards. He called one of them to the desk and insisted on knowing what the cards were for. The boy hesitated but finally said that a saloon keeper who had his vile den near the school building had given them the cards, and every time they took a drink he punched them, one hole for beer, two for straight drinks and three for mixed drinks. Every month he gave prizes. The boy who had the most holes punched in his card got a revolver, the second a life of Jesse James, and the third a meerschaum pipe. Does this recital of outrageous infamy need to have its moral "pointed"? Does not every father and mother and every human being, with even one of his five senses intact, know that his Satanic Majesty could not devise a more villainous scheme for perpetuating the horrible traffic in intoxicating liquors? "How long, oh Lord, how long" are we to give our boys as fuel to this devouring gin-mill, and how long wilt Thou permit this soul-destroying traffic to curse our "Christian civilization"?

THE case of Gus Leidy & Co., brewers of Peoria, vs. A. J. Hardin, of Iowa, came to the Federal Supreme Court, on appeal from Iowa. The plaintiffs had shipped $500 worth of liquors into Iowa, in violation of her prohibitory law. The liquor was seized in accordance with a provision of the Iowa law, and the Iowa court held that the seizure was legal. The case was appealed to the Federal Court, which reversed the decision of the lower court, holding that the "plaintiffs in error, citizens of the state of Illinois, had the right to import this beer into Iowa, and they had the right to sell it, by which act alone it would become mingled in the common mass of property within the state. Up to that point of time . . . the state had no power to injure by seizure, or by any other action to prevent the importation of and sale by a foreigner or non-resident importer." That is to say, until the liquor is sold and on its way to somebody's mouth, the state has no right to prohibit its importation, and then it cannot do it. Yet both the states named have the undisputed right to veto the importation of suspected cattle; verily a two year old steer is, in the eyes of Chief Justice Fuller, more worthy of protection than is a twenty year old boy.

IN speaking of the late decision of the Federal Supreme Court which condemns as illegal the seizure of liquor in original packages shipped into prohibition Iowa from high license Illinois, the Chicago Daily News declares that by it the Supreme Court has affirmed the view of the Prohibitionists, that the suppression of the liquor traffic is a national question. It thinks that unless Congress comes promptly to the rescue, the Prohibition Party will profit largely by this decision. It says:

"Democrats and Republicans who declare that 'there is no room for a third party' will be readily refuted by the words of the highest tribunal in the land. Both old parties in self-defense should labor to secure from Congress a law touching this matter of interstate liquor traffic.

"The national government cannot afford to become a party to violations of wholesome state laws. Therefore the interstate commerce regulations should be so amended by Congress at its present session as to prevent the carrying of liquor into prohibition states. Failure to do this would be a very disgraceful omission of duty and also would add greatly to the strength of the National Prohibition Party."

The Chicago Herald, democratic, has this to say concerning the matter:

"This decision is only another proof that the prohibition movement, instead of being out of place in national politics, can never be effective without federal coöperation. Ever since the war the general government has been the real saloonkeeper. It has been the great dispenser of liquor licenses, and has continued to issue them even in states that have enacted prohibition laws. The federal courts in these states have held that these licenses cannot be offered in state courts in proof that the licensees are selling liquor. The government has even opened beer saloons of its own at several of the soldiers' homes. Now, the Supreme Court decides that any state has a right to ship liquor into a prohibition state without molestation or seizure. Evidently no state can hope to execute any prohibitory law until all the states and the general government unite in the movement."

Contributed.

THE MARRED CALENDAR.

BY E. HARRIET HOWE.

Shall the harvest return to the field that is reapt?
Or the chaff to the floor lying open, wind-swept?
Or the down to the thistle when soft winds go by?
Or the clouds that at even melt out of the sky?
Or the glow to the leaf, lying withered and sere?
Or the roses of June to the fast-ebbing year?
Or the on-coming days bring the visions of yore?
Or again to our hearts our lost loved ones restore?

Other Summers shall come with the gleaners a-field,
Again the full earth all her treasures shall yield;
And in a fair country where age shall be blest
With the glory of youth, we with loved ones may rest;
But the word that's unspoken, the deed that's undone,
The field in life's battle that might have been won,
Though the fast-rolling cycles may hasten away
They can never bring back the lost chance of a day.

Franklin, Pa.

GRETCHEN—A HOSPITAL STORY.

BY EMMA F. SEARLES.

The day was very bright. The yellow sunshine for once had bravely struggled through the black veil of dust and smoke that hung ever above the great city. It glinted into dingy nooks and corners here and there, making them for the moment bright and gay. It flooded the broad thoroughfares and peeped coyly into the eyes of shy maidens as they hurried along; it shone upon the palace of the rich and the cottage of the poor with an equal smile of gladness. It lay, too, in golden squares all down the long hospital wards, and fell upon the narrow white cots and athwart the spotless floor, adding here and there a gleam of warmth and color to the blank white walls, which were quite devoid of picture or ornament.

There were many wards in this great hospital, many narrow cots, many weary sufferers, many trim, soft-voiced nurses flitting in and out all the day long. Presently came the heavy roll of an ambulance along the paved court below. But no one started; none turned pale; the sound was a familiar one, heard every day, sometimes many times a day. Only the house surgeon rose leisurely from his chair and sauntered toward the door. Two white-capped nurses came softly from a little room at the side and stood behind him.

"What is it?" asked the surgeon.

"Only a German laborer knocked down by a passing engine," came the careless response.

"Oh," said the surgeon.

They lifted him out. His coarse clothes were soiled and torn, one arm hung limp and nerveless at his side. The blood streamed from a deep gash and trickled over the forehead. The eyes were closed, the features strong, rough-hewed.

"Fifth floor—Ward Four, B—Nurse fourteen," ordered the surgeon, after a hasty glance at the green record on the table.

They bore him in through the wide hallway, up the long aisle where the golden sunshine lay, and placed him upon the narrow white bed, so like its many neighbors to the right and left.

"Call fourteen," ordered the surgeon as he bent to examine the wounds.

She came swiftly forward; her fair Saxon hair was coiled under a sunny muslin cap, but glinting out here and there was a stray, rebellious ringlet, which turned to gold in the sunlight, as she came. Her pale blue dress was covered by an apron as spotless as the snow, and the blue of her garments seemed reflected in the great sad eyes. There were deep, patient lines, too, about the mouth, which told their own story of suffering.

She stood for an instant attentive beside the surgeon, and then her gaze fell upon the still, white face before her. As she looked, a flush rose on neck and cheek and brow, but died away as suddenly, leaving a whiteness as ashy as that of the face before her.

"Och, mein Gott!" she murmured, while a tremor seized her strong frame.

"What?" said the gruff surgeon, with a careless upward glance. "Oh, here, fourteen, towels, bandages, water! Come, be quick!"

She uttered not a word, but with a tender glance at the white face upon the pillow hurried away.

"Och, Gott! mein Hans, mein Hans!" she murmured when alone, pausing but for an instant to clasp her hands above her heart, as she sorted the snowy bandages and towels and filled the shining basin. All was finished by and by.

"He will live?" she tremblingly asked, as the surgeon walked away.

"Perhaps," was the cold reply.

When all was quiet, she bent low over the unconscious sufferer and kissed the white forehead again and again, murmuring softly through her sobs, "Och, mein Hans, mein Hans." Then a sudden glow of joy and brightness overspread her patient face. "He has come to his Gretchen! He will live! He will live! Gott im Himmel ist gut! Hans, mein Hans," with tender entreaty, but he did not hear.

The hours lengthened into days, the days into weeks, and still the sick man lay upon the narrow cot, and still the patient, loving nurse watched beside him. Often in his delirium would he talk of the blue Rhine, and of the peaceful villages which slept beside its waters; of the old German mother spinning in the yellow sunshine without the door; of Carl and Lena, whom he had left in the humble cottage home, but most of all of Gretchen. "Mein liebes Gretchen! Och, mein liebes Gretchen! todt, todt, todt!" he would moan, while the great tears slowly crept from beneath the closed white lids. "Margarete ist gut, sehr gut; but och, mein Gretchen, mein liebes Gretchen!"

Gretchen, too, when the night came on, sat by the little table in her tiny room, and turned the worn leaves of her German Bible, reading here and there a comforting promise. Then kneeling she would pour the story of her joy and sadness into the ear that slumbers not. "Gott im Himmel ist gut," she would murmur as she fell asleep, and dreamed that she walked once more with Hans under the flickering shadows of the lindens in the far-away Rhineland.

It troubled her sometimes, that he talked so oft of Margarete and Fritz. She knew not who they could be. "But why be sad? Had not she, too, found some friends in this new, strange land? They were but friends, for did not he talk of her, 'his liebes Gretchen'?" And thus self-reproved she would smile again. By and by the roses began to tint her cheeks, as the wounds healed and the surgeon said Hans would surely live. "Only a few more days of watching and he would know her, his Gretchen. Only a few more months of waiting—and then!" and a rosy flush bathed cheek and brow. All the dreary years behind faded away. The awful voyage when scores had died of the plague, and her own name had been numbered among the silent forms lying white under the waves; the agonizing weeks of search, when at last she grew better, only to find that her Hans had come to claim his bride, and gone away heart-broken and alone, believing her dead, and fathoms deep at sea. She had looked for him here and there. She had wandered from city to city, but they only smiled, the strangers, when she asked in her broken tongue for her Hans, and shook their heads. But now they were all past, these weary years. He had come to her at last. There would be the wedding in the ttle German chapel close by. The blue dress with its white ribbons, the gay bonnet, were all planned, and so, too, was the cozy home, which should be all snug and bright when Hans came home to her after his toil.

One day she sat beside the little cot, rendered as fresh and clean as loving hands could make it. On the white stand at the head she had placed a tiny bunch of forget-me-nots, as blue as the sky in June. Hans was better to-day, and she hoped before this sun went down he would open his long-closed eyes and smile upon her; then when he saw the sweet flowers he would know that she had been true, his Gretchen, through all the years.

With the smile still upon her lips and the tender light lingering in her blue eyes, she looked down the long, quiet ward and saw coming toward her a frail little woman, whose cheek had been kissed by the Southern sun. Her eyes were as black as night, and so, too, was the glossy hair which hung in tiny rings about the temples. By her side walked a little child, with yellow curls and laughing eyes, who prattled gaily as he came.

The mother heeded him not, but paused for an instant beside each white cot gazing eagerly at the upturned face of its occupant; then sadly shaking her head, moved on to the next. She was seeking for some loved one, and Gretchen looked upon her kindly while a great pity welled up in her heart. Had she, too, not known what it was to look and wait?

Suddenly the little one sprang forward, and cried, "Papa, papa," standing close beside Gretchen. Then the sunshine of a great joy lighted the dusky face of the stranger, as she knelt beside the low cot murmuring, "Oh, Hans! my husband, my husband!"

The tiny vase holding the slender spray of forget-me-nots trembled and fell to the floor with a sudden crash. Gretchen stood for an instant as one petrified. She saw him slowly open his closed eyes and smile, but not upon her, his Gretchen; not upon the blue forget-me-nots which she had guarded with tenderest care, but upon this dark-eyed Italian woman and her fair-haired child. Only an instant she lingered, but long enough to hear Hans whisper softly, "Margarete and little Fritz."

Stooping, she quickly gathered the broken forget-me-nots, and pressing them to her breast hurried away, though she staggered as she went, and the noonday brightness turned to midnight about her. She groped as one blind, but they had not seen her anguish in their own great joy; for this she was glad. He had not looked upon her, his Gretchen; he had not known she was so near, and the black-eyed Margarete knew her not.

She sank upon the couch in her little chamber, clasping the withered flowers close to her aching heart. She could not think, all was strange and confused. She heard a murmur of voices now and then, but they seemed faint and far away. Dark forms flitted here and there, but they were only as phantom shadows floating between her dim eyes and the sunlight. She was drifting away and away. It must be the Rhine beneath her, for the waters were blue, and the sky, too, was blue, blue as the forget-me-nots. The dip of the oar was soft, as soft as the music of the old blind harper who sat in the prow, while they drifted away and away.

She wakened slowly one day, as one wakens from a dream, half painful, half sweet, fearing to break the dreamy sadness, lest a real sorrow be suddenly recalled. "She had been very sick," the nurse who sat beside her said. "For many days and weeks quite forgetful of all about her." What did it all mean? There had been something, what she could not quite recall. Oh, now she knew, for her pale lips quivered with pain, and the quick tears rushed to the patient eyes, as she saw upon the little table a withered bunch of forget-me-nots tied with a narrow band of white.

By and by she took up the great burden of her life again, quietly, patiently, and no one knew her pain, though the sad lines about her lips had grown deeper, and a few threads of silver hid themselves among her fair tresses.

"Gott im Himmel ist gut," she would murmur brokenly. "It must be right," though her lips trembled and the great tears would flow.

She found the little home nook where they lived, Hans and Margarete, and sometimes when the twilight deepened and the weary tasks were over, she would steal softly by in the darkness, catching now and then a glimpse of the brightness within. There was the dainty table, all laid with its snowy cloth and shining dishes, just as she had pictured for her Hans. There was the black-eyed Margarete flitting here and there, and yonder in the corner were Hans and tiny, flaxen-haired Fritz, romping gaily in the firelight. She could see no more, and drawing her veil close about her white face she would hurry away, murmuring brokenly still through her sobs, "Gott ist gut, He knows. They may need me by and by, then will I go."

The summer had gone with its sunshine and flowers, the mellow autumn days had followed swiftly, and now the gray mists of winter hovered coldly above the great city. It was a dark, sad winter; many had sickness; many died. Long, silent processions wound day after day through the broad streets, resting not till the silent city, far out on the hill-side, was reached.

The snow lay white about the cottage home that night; the wind, too, moaned drearily about the corners. Gretchen paused suddenly. There was crape upon the door! Who could it be? They were carrying something in, too, through the low doorway. Ah, a coffin—another coffin! Were they gone, Hans and black-eyed Margarete? It could be no others. It must be they, for little Fritz still played softly in the firelight, while only strangers flitted in and out.

Poor baby, he did not know. He was too young to sorrow or to weep. He only looked up into the gentle face of the woman who bent above him and smiled confidingly. "Yes, he would go to live with her, the pretty lady. He was not afraid, if only he might take his little sled and toys, and the rocking horse with flossy mane and tail."

"Gott im Himmel ist gut," sobbed Gretchen, as she knelt once more in her little room, and read over and over the sweet story of the beautiful home where they marry not nor are given in marriage. All would be right over there. She could wait and work—work for baby Fritz. She lay down, then, to rest in the solemn stillness, with the little one clasped close to her lonely heart; and who may say that the freed spirits of Hans and Margarete hovered not lovingly above the quiet sleepers; "For do not their angels always behold the face of our Father which is in Heaven?"

LEGISLATION ON THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN THE COLONIES AND UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

BY ADA M. BITTENBENDER.

III.

Since the close of the reactionary period, notwithstanding the pressure for revenue, there has been much stable advance along the line of state prohibition. To-day six states, viz.: Maine, Vermont, Kansas, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota have general prohibitory statutes, outlawing both manufacture and sale as a beverage of intoxicating liquors, the principle being embedded in the constitutions of all but two, those of Vermont and Iowa.* Vermont is the only state which has not weakened her original prohibitory law. Her numerous amendments have all been of a strengthening character. The statutes of Iowa prohibit the manufacture of intoxicants for all purposes. New Hampshire has not worked up to a prohibition of the manufacture. Besides, through local option, special statutes, or both, the sale, as a beverage, of most or all intoxicating liquors is prohibited in a large part of several other states, viz.: Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee. And in every other state through local option, special statutes, or the exercise of discretion on the part of the licensing power, more or less territory has been carried for prohibition which still prevails. Through act of Congress, prohibition covers also the Indian territory and Indian Reservations. The large favorable vote in election contests on proposals of constitutional amendments, or recently under local option provisions, where prohibition has failed to carry, show other parts of the country almost ready to adopt the prohibitory regime. On suggestion of The Voice, where public sentiment is not ready for complete prohibition, restriction without license is again being adopted by temperance workers, called "the prohibitive restrictive policy." (The early statutes of Michigan and Ohio, under the anti-license provisions of their constitutions, noted above, are good examples of this class of legislation.) But, irrespective of the educational methods of pulpit, platform and press work, which are being so vigorously prosecuted, the needed public sentiment for complete prohibition is within counting distance, thanks to the "Temperance Education Laws," state and National, under which, except in a very few states where, probably, the exception will not long exist, the future voters and legislators of the country are being trained. To increase the scope of this latest educational method, the passage of the "Bill to aid in the establishment and temporary support of common schools," is needed. This bill has been urged in Congress since 1881, and has three times passed the Senate. Of the other temperance measures pending in Congress, the most important are: First, the "Bill to provide for a commission on the subject of the alcoholic liquor traffic." This has passed the Senate seven times. Second, a bill subjecting transported liquors, of both foreign and domestic manufacture, to the provisions of the laws of the several states. The passage of such a bill would bring immediate relief. Several have been introduced, and one favorably reported in the House of Representatives during the present session. Third, a bill to prohibit officers and agents of the government from receiving the payment of special taxes under the internal revenue laws of the United States, except from such persons as are entitled to sell intoxicating liquors under the laws of the state or territory in which the liquors sold are to be used. Fourth, the joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States to prohibit "the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation, and sale of all alcoholic liquors as a beverage." This was first introduced in the 44th Congress, on December 12, 1876, by Hon. Henry W. Blair, and by him in every Congress since. It was reported favorably by the Senate committee in the 49th and 50th Congresses. The Committee of the House of Representatives returned a favorable minority report in the 50th Congress.

The changing of the policy of government in regard to the liquor traffic, first attempted about 1825, at the time of the awakening of temperance people to a consciousness that the sanctioning laws were wrong in principle; a policy whose birth was early or quite synonomous with that of English settlement in America, which had continued up to that time with its propriety unquestioned; a policy which has wonderfully succeeded in its encouraging and protective bents until the business has grown to the immense proportions assumed to-day, and to the immense power, as well as proportions, which is everywhere being felt,—the changing of this policy of government, so far as it has been accomplished, has been no easy task. The Father of all, He alone knows the full burdens in toil and sacrifices nobly undertaken and patiently endured for the sake of humanity and redemption of our loved country, and finally that of the world, from alcohol's base rule and the many-sided evils of intemperance.

The liquor power, now thoroughly organized to better effect its purposes, the leading ones for many, many years, long before Christopher Columbus conceived the idea of his memorable voyage of discovery, being to secure friendly legislation, and to prevent or subvert that which is unfriendly,—this power is ever felt in legislative halls, whenever and wherever prohibitory legislation against the traffic is sought, and is still often, very often, enabled to thwart the wishes of the people. When not so enabled, prohibitory legislation being inevitable, this power continues, as a rule, in controlling the wording of the laws so as to leave the nefarious business little hampered. Thus the many weak places in most prohibitory laws may be accounted for, requiring amendment after amendment to make them effective; that is, those which have not been declared unconstitutional, as several have been, made so by the crafty manipulations of legislators elected to represent the liquor interests.

The need, the imperative need of the hour, is for more, many more, clear-headed as well as incorruptible legislators through whose hands, uncontrolled by the liquor power, shall come the sought-for legislation, bringing soon the complete victory of state and national prohibition, constitutional and statutory.

*The constitutional amendment of Iowa has been declared unconstitutional.

INTERNATIONAL TEMPERANCE STUDIES.

BY FELIX L. OSWALD, M. D.
Author of "Physical Education," "The Poison Problem," etc.

IV.—ITALY.

About twenty years ago the business of grape-culture in the United States began to assume the proportion of a large industry. An ever-increasing amount of capital has since been invested in vineyards and wine-cellars, and incidentally in the propaganda of wine worship.

The true cure of intemperance, we were told by eloquent and well-paid lecturers, is not prohibition, but the introduction of "good, cheap, country wine." Rum, we were assured, was the only alternative of the milder alcoholics, and unless our poor fellow-citizens were supplied with an abundance of vinous stimulants in their most wholesome form, they would find, or make a way to satisfy their craving for stimulation with more deleterious substances. Wine-drinkers, as a class, we were informed, could claim to be more vigorous, more long-lived, and more capable of enduring fatigues and famine, than beer-drinkers or rum-drinkers, and more even, than total abstainers.

The apostles of that doctrine should compare their theory with the results of its practice as seen among the natives of modern Italy—especially in the southern half of the peninsula, where the very "best country wine" (from a wine-worshiper's point of view) has been both cheap and abundant for the last fifteen hundred years. In the territories of the late kingdom of Naples, wine, exceptionally free from adulterations has for more than a thousand years been the habitual drink of rich and poor, and yet no other nation has, in the same period, sunk to a lower depth of physical degradation.

It would be sophistry to ascribe that decadence to "climatic influences." In a warmer climate than that of Southern Italy the temperate Arabs have preserved the vigor of their early ancestors. In an equally low latitude, the Turks, though politically ruined by exhausting wars and chronic despotism, are physically still a stout and manful race. It would be equally untenable to explain the degeneration of the modern Italians by the influence of the three hundred years' pandemonium of vice during the riots and decadence of pagan Rome. Long after the effectual suppression of paganism, the aboriginal population of Italy was subjugated by an athletic race of foreign conquerors: the Ostrogoths, the Visigoths and the warlike Longobardes—the picked warrior tribes of the stalwart North. From the Alps to the straits of Messina the soil of ancient Italy was thus subjected to new masters; the worst vices of imperial Rome were vigorously suppressed; poverty restrained the luxurious habits of the cities, and the effeminate patricians gave way to an aristocracy of iron-clad giants; the strong-fisted nobles of the Tancred and Bohemond type. Bacchus-worship was the only tenet of classic antiquity professed by those valiant descendants of the Norman conquerors, and it so happens that the wine-drinking nobility and the wine-drinking city dwellers of modern Italy are the most degenerate bipeds of the Caucasian continent, while a trace of old Roman manliness may still be found here and there among the wretchedly poor, and consequently abstemious natives of the Apennine highlands. In the seaport towns of the eastern Mediterranean it can tempt a foreign visitor to deny his creed to compare the puny, fussy, and quarrelsome Italians with the broad-shouldered, dignified followers of Mohammed, and yet the ugliest types of the modern Italians cannot be found among the (comparatively) enterprising mercantile class, but among the alcoholized population of the small vineyard towns in the neighborhood of Naples and Palermo. Grosser ignorance and more brutal passions may, perhaps, be found among the opium-fuddled natives of the Malay archipelago, but certainly no other branch of the Caucasian race has deviated in a more repulsive way from its original type of manhood. Not superstition and the self-mistrust of weakness only, but vice, meanness and incurable stupidity impressed on thousands of faces flushed every night with the glow of "good, cheap, country wine," alcohol-distilled tears gathering in maudlin eyes which daily behold the glories of nature and the monuments of classic art; tap-room fumes and rank obscenities polluting the lips that breathe the air of the loveliest climate on earth.

"In regard to temperance," says Mr. Hillard ("Six Months in Italy"), "I am inclined to think that the inhabitants of Southern Italy and the wine-drinking countries generally enjoy a reputation somewhat beyond their deserts. If the proportion of cases of stabbing brought to the Roman hospitals, which occur in or near wine-shops, could be known, I have no doubt that it would furnish a strong fact wherewith to point the exhortations of a temperance lecturer." The reckless use of the knife in Southern Italy is, indeed, by no means confined to the members of the Camorra (a sort of Sicilian Thug association, which for years defied the representatives of law and order) nor to the professional brigands of the Romagna. Drunken brawls are a chronic nuisance in the wine-reeking slums of every larger city, and the high license of wine-shops has not perceptibly diminished the evil.

Nor has the improved hygiene of those cities decreased the high rate of average mortality. "The startling prevalence of consumption," writes the correspondent of a medical monthly, "was thus far ascribed to the increase in the number of factories (indoor work in dust and coal fumes, etc.), but the sanitary statistics of the southern, non-industrial towns, incline me to connect the cause of pulmonary disorders with the influence of alcoholic beverages. Wine, to be sure, was the favorite drink of our ancestors in the Middle Ages, when consumption was far less frequent and fatal. But the evil effects of strong drink were then offset by hard work, the system of military training alone secured a robust constitution to nearly all the male adults of our species. Coats of mail have since gone out of fashion and the arrows of the poison-demon (des gift-teufel's) strike a less invulnerable generation of topers. The influence of our factory dust has been more than compensated by the superior sanitary regulations of our factory towns; but street-sweeping brooms and pure water cannot efface the stains of the wine-shop, pure air is no match for a daily dose of blood-poisoning fluids, and the lungs of our artisans are corroded by alcohol in a way that makes tuberculosis a practically incurable disorder."

The wine passion of the modern Italians is fostered by their love of pungent spices. Pepper, onions and garlic are considered indispensable conjuncts of every dish of meat; powdered cheese of the rankest sort is strewn by handsful over a mess of macaroni, and the tobacco habit has become a national vice; priests smoke on the public streets and government officials in public buildings; the atmosphere of the military barracks is thick with perpetual clouds of cigar smoke.

Yet, after centuries of superstition and vice, the leaven of the Pythagorean philosophy is still at work here and there among the educated classes. Southern Italy, once the chosen home of a sect of total abstainers, has never ceased to produce occasional champions of temperance. In the Middle Ages when drunkenness had assumed the form of an international epidemic, Campanella, Fabio Colonna, and Louis Cornaro preached a gospel of dietetic reform, and the private habits of many modern Italian scholars and statesmen demonstrate their recognition of the truth that abstinence is easier than temperance.

THE TRUE ELIXIR.

BY HESTER M. POOLE

Almost all persons who have reached maturity are subject to depression of spirits. Tides of melancholy, restlessness and languor overwhelm the nervous system. No matter why they come, come they will. But for some fault of the victim or of his environment they could not be. But this is not a faultless world.

The use of stimulants in some form has been thought necessary, in order to counteract vital depression. "My system needs toning up," is the plea made to himself by the tippler. The mind, like a balloon, wants to be loosened from the trammels that tie it down to the sodden earth.

"This is the reason," says Emerson, "why lords love wine, mead, narcotics, coffee, tea, opium, the fumes of sandal-wood and tobacco or whatever other procurers of animal exhilaration. To that end," he continues, "men avail themselves of different means to add this extraordinary power to their normal powers. To this end they prize conversation, music, pictures, dancing, theaters, traveling, war, fires, gaming, politics or animal intoxication which are coarser substitutes for the true nectar. For these are auxiliaries to the centrifugal tendency of a man, to his passage out into free space, and they help him to escape the custody of that body in which he is pent up, and of that jail yard of individual relations in which he is enclosed."

For this reason the philosopher declares a great number of the professional expressors of beauty, such as painters, poets and musicians, have been given to lives of pleasure and indulgence, "all but the few who have received the true nectar."

But such manner of escape from bondage to earthly conditions is not liberty, only license or emancipation into the freedom, not of the heavens, but of viler places than those which they left behind. It followed that "they were punished for the advantage they had won by a dissipation and deterioration. For never can any advantage be taken of nature by a trick. The spirit of the world, the great, calm presence of the Creator comes not forth to the sorceries of opium or of wines. The sublime vision," that is, the intuition or insight which clearly sees truth, "comes to the pure and simple soul in a clean and chaste body." These are words to be set like "apples of gold in pictures of silver." Would that every youth in our country could learn to know and to love them!

That is not a true inspiration but a counterfeit excitement which is induced by narcotics. A high order of mind, not one low and ignorant, is often made victim of the drink habit through just the desire to escape the tedium and monotony of "the custody of that body in which he is pent up." He has a joyful sense of freedom, followed in due course by corresponding depression. Like he who drinks the salt water of the sea instead of the fresh fountains upon its bank, his thirst is not slacked but intensified, and any succeeding draught only produces bewilderment.

Once let the tippler feel that there is an inner fountain of spiritual refreshment open to him as to all, one which uplifts his soul into an atmosphere of buoyancy and strength, and that this soul power is translatable into physical force, and he will seek only the higher elixir. He can no more crave alcohol.

Correspondence.

MRS. LEAVITT IN AFRICA.

I was much disappointed when I found I could go no farther up the river. But the liability to tornadoes at this season, and the necessary exposure in camping out, threatened to be too much for my health. Again, I could not be allowed to go without a gentleman as escort. "The State" would have considered that the mission had not taken suitable precautions had disaster occurred. At the beginning of the year there is always a pinch about carriers. They are engaged for the year. Many of them are Loango men, generally great thieves. Those from the North Accra, Kru and Sierra Leone men are much better. Few of the Congo men are willing to engage for the year, but as it is much better for them to be regularly employed, the missionaries use all means to induce them to make these engagements. The A. B. M. U. people are now making a strenuous effort to secure all Congo men for the present year. This lack of carriers was a third hinderance to my plan for going farther up the river. I, therefore, reluctantly yielded to the inevitable and prepared to turn back. On the last Sabbath afternoon I stepped across from house to chapel for Sabbath-school. The sky was a uniform gray light, pleasant, and the first gentle drops of what appeared to me to be a passing shower fell. As service progressed within, the rain increased but did not become furious, nor was there any wind. But just as the service was drawing to a close, there came all at once a gust of wind, terrific thunder and lightning, and the rain came down in torrents. Temperature fell in a few minutes from eighty degrees to fifty-eight degrees. The storm raged on for nearly an hour longer. The printing house and a store-house were unroofed, some smaller out-buildings overturned, the heads of several palm trees broken off, a large number of banana trees broken, half the head of a paw-paw tree carried away and many flowering shrubs uprooted. Much paper and many new hymn books were soaked in the printing house.

This and other tornadoes within a circuit of twenty or thirty miles had filled the Uposo so that it had become dangerous. Formerly the natives had managed the ferry very well, but had charged a small fee. The state took it, made it free, but has managed it so badly that many lives have been lost, especially of natives from inland or rather off river districts, who cannot swim. On Tuesday a canoe with ten persons was upset and seven were drowned. Three were able to catch upon a tree growing in the water. Two of these fell off into the river again and were drowned. The third was rescued by a native and, as is the custom under such circumstances, if not claimed by a master within a short time, he becomes the slave of the rescuer. Happily in this case the poor man was under the yearly engagement of service to a mission, so that one of the missionaries could claim him, and he was thus rescued from life-long servitude at a long distance from home and among strangers.

Everything had been arranged for me to go down on Wednesday. The men had been ordered to be ready at eight o'clock, but they had not been informed that I was to go. Supposing they had all the errands they started off at six o'clock without me. I felt rather vexed, and so did the friends, but before nine o'clock another tornado was upon us. At night some of the men returned, others had camped on the banks of the Uposo. What could I have done with only my waterproof and umbrella, and no roof, not even a tent the whole distance. So again a little providential hinderance proved a great mercy. To God be all the praise. I went down safely two days later.

At Tundua or Underhill, I was again kindly received. The usual company, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Pinnock and Mr. Claflin, was increased by three new arrivals from England for San Salvador. To these in the evening, during a hard storm, I explained our society, its principles and aims. Most of the little company, but not all, are on total abstinence grounds. All American missionaries on the Congo, and as far as I have seen in Africa, are strict abstainers. There was no other opportunity for work here, as this is only a receiving station for two missions. Every Sunday Mr. Pinnock, and, I think, the other gentlemen, go to the trading stations and villages in the neighborhood and preach. At some trading stations where formerly a good audience of from seventy to a hundred persons used to gather, frequently of late, everybody, men, women and children, are drunk, so drunk as to forbid the thought even of a meeting.

On Monday I went down the river to Bona. I was attacked by fever on the way. The steamer went on again to Banana on Thursday. The interval I passed in the Dutch House at Bona. The physician of the place had just died, so I did the best I could for myself. On arrival at Banana, Consular Agent, Lieutenant Taunt came on board, and seeing my condition sent for a hammock, and I was soon on my bed in the hotel and in charge of a physician. His verdict was, "Simple fever, (that is neither bilious nor haematuric, the two worst forms) and not severe, but the patient perilously weak. Chicken broth and medicine to be taken in wine." When I refused that, as I did at once, it was put in a sort of syrup. The fever was soon gone. The steamer did not come till the twelfth day, so that I had time to gather a little strength. The Ambriz, when it arrived, had to go up to Bona, and would be away a week, probably. But I went on board. My room had become like a prison cell, and I like one in solitary confinement. I thought the steamer's deck would be much better, and so it proved, although to lie at a little wharf discharging and receiving cargo for six days, was not intensely interesting, when one was too weak to really employ one's self.

At the end of that time the Ambriz came down the river, paused at Banana over night, and steamed away north in the morning. I had an opportunity to go ashore at Duke Town, Old Calabar, where I was received most cordially by Mr. and Mrs. Beedie and Miss Edgerly. A mothers' meeting was to take place in the afternoon. This proved a good opportunity for me and the result was a W. C. T. U. of fourteen members. Mrs. Beedie is much interested in temperance work; she organized a Band of Hope some three or four years since, and takes the presidency of the W. C. T. U.

Miss Edgerly has worked there thirty-five years, and hopes for many years more of service. A brother has been in the field twenty-seven years, and her father, in Jamaica and Africa together, nearly fifty years.

In speaking of native character, Miss Edgerly mentioned two who were received at the mission when young boys, twelve years old, or about that, who have passed all the years up to middle life without reproach of any kind, their word to be depended upon always, the presence of either equaling a lock to all property, as incorruptible as Joseph. These men were converted, and are now leading men in the mission. But the opposite of the three virtues mentioned are almost universal, and line upon line is necessary, from childhood up, to train the people to the right standard and practice.

Old Calabar is about being erected into a British colony. The alternative was a German government or that of a trading company, and the people prefer the English. I am very glad of this.

The remainder of the voyage to Sierra Leone was without incident worthy of note, except that for the first time I saw the nautilus sailing its pink, gauzy, soap-bubbly little balloon-like craft. One day just before sunset there were scores in sight, and some so near that the ribs in the balloon could easily be counted with the naked eye.

I landed at Sierra Leone Monday, February 24, 1890.

Lovingly your sister,

MARY CLEMENT LEAVITT.

MISS WILLARD IN CLEVELAND.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—Miss Willard spoke to an immense audience at the First M. E. Church, of Cleveland, last Sunday morning, April 26, on the subject of social purity. Though one of the largest in the city, the church proved too small to accommodate the number eager to hear our beloved leader, and many went away unable to even get a foothold inside the vestibule. The large number of business and professional men present marked the occasion as one of great interest, and the audible "amens" and expressions of approval showed that the public heart was in perfect accord with the speaker's. In the evening a mass-meeting in the interest of the "Deaconesses' Home," but recently established here, was held, at which Miss Willard spoke by invitation of the Methodist pastors.

On Monday afternoon an informal reception was held at the headquarters of the central W. C. T. U. of the city, and many availed themselves of the opportunity to grasp Miss Willard's hand, after an interval of several years. As her Monday evening lecture, which was upon the subject, "The W. C. T. U., Its Principles and Methods," was to be held in the Euclid avenue M. E. Church, situated in the East End, some four miles from the center of the city, fears were entertained that a good attendance would not be had; but the tide of interest was not to be checked by so trivial a matter. Before eight o'clock the church was so crowded that the aisles had to be filled with chairs, and finally standing-room was not to be found, the entire body of the church being one solid mass of humanity through which no passage could be had. "This manner of filling a building is against the law," remarked a genteel East Ender, "but I believe I would run a greater risk to hear Miss Willard," and that expresses the general feeling regarding Miss Willard's visit.

H. L. ADAMS.

RAMABAI'S SCHOOL.

SHARADA SADAN, BOMBAY, B. I.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—The first year in the history of this school closed a few days ago. It was celebrated by these girls—many of whom had never been in school before—with true Hindu rejoicing;—with flowers and songs and games and an address intended to show their gratitude to the American people for what is being done for them, and to their beloved teacher, Ramabai, especially, for her loving and untiring efforts in their behalf.

It will rejoice you to be assured that the Sharada Sadan is a success. It is not to be measured, however, by American institutions, which grow almost like Jonah's gourd, but in the light of the fact that any attempt in India for the amelioration of the condition of widows is an innovation upon prejudices and creeds of thousands of years and held by a tenaciously religious people. Reluctant as the Hindus are to allow their little daughters to attend school before the marriageable age of eight or ten years, they are a thousand times more unwilling in case of a widow, however young she be. The reason is found, when we remember that the happiness of the departed husband depends upon the self-abnegation of a devoted wife, her prayers, pilgrimages, fastings and grief. Education might bring her some solace, and thus render her husband angry or unhappy, so all education is denied her, and she is taught and encouraged and required to be as wretched as possible.

It is not an unusual experience when talking with parents about their daughters to be told that they are about to set out "on a pilgrimage," but when they return the matter of coming to the Sharada shall be taken into consideration, which means that all influence possible will be brought to prevent the accomplishment of our design. The poor little widows, ignorant and timid, and unable to think for themselves, do not dare disobey the "laws of God and man," and although they may have little affection for their dead husbands, they do not dare to endanger their own eternal happiness nor expose themselves to the certainty of a re-birth into another miserable condition of widowhood. The trials of this life are too much for many to endure; some commit suicide, many enter upon lives of shame. It is the prevalent notion among Orientals that woman is naturally a depraved creature, with the basest animal passions; therefore, as the widow cannot re-marry, every possible safeguard is thrown around her, as they think, to make her chaste. She is made, as a means to this end, as wretched and unattractive as possible, and they forget that human nature will rebel. To prevent any revolt they present the certainty of another existence under the same sad circumstances, and so the child submits.

Education will greatly change this view of things, showing the justice and loving mercy of God, and Christianity will completely overthrow it. Thus far, however, the missionaries have been successful only with the lower castes, being of the "common people who heard Him gladly," with individual exceptions among the higher castes. The laws of enforced widowhood prevail only among the higher castes, and there the misery is extreme.

Ramabai has felt that her mission was to them, and advanced though she be in all lines of thought, choosing many of her friends from Christians of the low castes, yet she is obliged to limit her work to the higher castes so much in need of it. Conservators of the Hindu religion as these higher castes are, she is obliged to be very cautious in her work, and make her chief aim that of education and enlightenment. In this respect Ramabai has been greatly misunderstood, for so many feel that we must make Christians of these Hindus before we enlighten them, forgetting that those of the higher castes are blindly jealous of Christian influence, and that the cases are rare where they are converted. Many boys attend the mission schools from these castes; they go for the sake of the secular education, and fortify themselves against the Bible lessons in a manner that would be ludicrous, if it were not sad. The mission schools are most excellent, and the missionaries a consecrated band of men and women, but they do not reach the great mass of people in this country, nor the most intelligent and intellectual. Our "God is no respecter of persons," our religion recognizes no castes, but working in a country and with a people whose social and religious customs have been fixed for thousands of years we must first prove to them the weakness and the wickedness of their system before they will change it, and they must appreciate the better qualities of our system before they will accept it. To them Christian civilization and Christianity are, I am sorry to say, synonymous terms, and under our Christian civilization they find so many heinous vices, such as intemperance, gluttony, licentiousness, disregard for the marriage tie, irreligion, profanity, etc., and these, too, in high places, that they have little respect for it. Men of high Christian character, missionaries of rich and varied experience, of ripe culture and wisdom, looking into Ramabai's work, her plan and method, understanding the prejudices of this people and the difficulties in her way are bidding her "Godspeed." And truly God is with her or she could not endure the detractions and discouragements she has to meet.

There have been in the school during the year about sixteen widows, of whom twelve are now with us. These twelve are very interesting and studious girls, their chief ambition being to "grow wise" and establish a school as Ramabai has done. Many of these girls knew absolutely nothing when they came here, but by close attention, by constant appeals to others to aid them, have been making rapid progress; one widow of twenty-two having actually studied through three government standards, whose average time is a year for each. The house system is admirable, all the cooking being done by the Brahmin girls, an important consideration, since no Brahmin may eat food prepared by one of another caste without losing her own caste. This rule does not apply, however, to other castes. The food is entirely vegetable with the exception of milk, and its variety and deliciousness of preparation are surprising. SARAH DIX HAMLIN.

(To be Continued.)

Our Book Table.

A new sensation in literature is a good thing and this is afforded by Miss Douglass's new work, OSBORNE OF ARROCHAR. Through the book, as through life, it is the unexpected that happens. Perhaps this is what gives the curious life-likeness to the characters. There are many of them, more than a less skillful hand could manage without confusion, but Miss Douglass endues each with a distinct personality which is well sustained to the end. Clyde, the heroine, or rather one of them—for there are four—is very finely drawn, a pure, high-spirited, lovable girl, too proud to accept one penny to which she is not entitled, and brave enough to earn her own living and that of her mother and sisters, even at the expense of shocking their old Virginia pride by so doing. The whole story hinges on the contest between Osborne's love and Clyde's pride, a contest long continued and admirably depicted, with love at last victorious. Published by Lee & Shepard, Boston. Price, $1.50.

WOMAN AND HEALTH, by M. Augusta Fairchild, M.D. Published by the author, 537 Broadway, Quincy. John Hart, the great educator, used to say that the educated people of America did not accomplish one half they ought to accomplish, because of their lack of good health. This book, well studied and practiced, would remove women out of the category of those who thus fail of fulfilling their mission. It treats the whole question of health for women from a most common-sense, temperance, Christian standpoint. Instead of leading its reader, as so many "doctor books" do, to feel that she is suffering from all the ills that flesh is heir to, it inspires her with hope of speedy victory over those she is sure afflict her. It teaches her how to aid nature in her efforts to make well and keep well all of her children. We have never anywhere seen the necessity and the philosophy of deep breathing, and its relation to the health of every organ of the body, so clearly brought out.

Here are some of her common sense directions to the inheritors of consumptive constitutions: "Fortify the system by supplying good food, abundant facility for its assimilation, by employing passive exercise, mechanical massage, allowing freedom to every muscle, cultivating deep, abdominal breathing; never allow stomach or chest encroached upon by improper stooping position. Say NO to appetite. Poor, craving dyspeptic stomach, gnawing, sinking, grinding, begging for something to eat—for a poultice of victuals—give it only a drink of pure hot water. That will relieve the discomfort. Eat enough, but not too much, not an ounce too much. Work out of doors, in the earth; let the sun shine upon you and about you; in the house the sun must have access to your room and bed. . . . Learn of the healing power, of the God-power within, of life, which is not generated or discoverable in the good food you eat or in the good treatment you may take, but ever flows from the All-life. These things you do because so commanded by the laws that rightly relate your organism and food and treatment to each other. Through these acts of obedience and faith the immortal sap of a divine life is invited to 'circulate through the minutest twig and leaf of your tree of life.'

"This life is pressing to enter every avenue you unclose. Do nothing in thought or act to shut out life; but rather give it free access to all departments of your being. This is recognized as the vis medicatrix naturae of the medical schools, which, succeeding all the hindrances imposed by anti-vital agents, is depended upon to restore the patient. How much more certain is restoration under circumstances which favor every expression of this life force and act in unison with it! Be cheerful, ailing one. Climb up into the higher rooms; think higher thoughts; do from higher motives, and the blessings of the Highest are securely yours."

Dr. Fairchild joins issue sharply with many favorite theories concerning the need and efficacy of local treatments, various medicines and other things. She may be too radical, but the thought of some of our best workers, restored to health and the work which needs them so sorely, through her ministrations, makes us pause before pronouncing against her in this connection. We feel disposed to trust the judgment of a lady physician who deals with woman's ailments scientifically and successfully, as Dr. Fairchild assuredly does.

MAGAZINES.

THE ARENA, of Boston, the first number of which appeared in December, has already won an enviable place among the leading magazines of the country. It numbers in its list of contributors many well known writers of ability. It adopts for its motto this noble sentiment of the poet, Heine:

"We do not take possession of our ideas but are possessed by them.
They master us and force us into the arena,
Where like gladiators, we must fight for them."

May it continue to be, as now, an arena for free and judicious discussion of living questions, social, political and religious.

The whole country is arousing to the necessity of inculcating patriotism in the minds of school children. A new proof of this is found in an illustrated magazine of patriotism started in January by the American Society of Patriotic Knowledge of Chicago. Its title is THE HOME, SCHOOL, AND NATION, its motto,

"The star spangled banner in triumph shall wave, O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave,"

the title and motto entwined with the National flag on the cover. Its editors are Bishop Fallows and Rev. M. L. Williston, whose names are guarantee for excellence in its literary management. It has also a school department, edited by Mary E. Burt, a department of elocution, by Professor Lyman; one of physical culture, by Edward H. Fallows, and a kindergarten department in charge of Mrs. Alice H. Putnam. Its plan seems to be to take up each month, noted Americans whose birthdays occur in that month; January, its first issue, gave Webster Franklin, Putnam, Anthony Wayne, Hamilton, Charles Sumner and Governor Gordon, of Georgia. Its contributors number, among others, Sir Samuel W. Baker, Dr. Thomas, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Dr. Lorimer, Hezekiah Butterworth and others. Its illustrations are fine; its pages broad and fair, with clear type that makes reading a pleasure. We wish this magazine could be a monthly visitor in every home and school in the land. Published by the Clarendon Publishing Company, 183 Monroe street, Chicago. Price $1.50 per annum.

LEND A HAND comes each month with its varied contents, all telling of noble work done. No one can read it without feeling that "the brotherhood" of man is each year becoming more and more not simply a pleasant sounding phrase, but a grand reality. For example: the number before us reports, besides the work of the Lend a Hands, the Look Up and the Look Out Clubs, the King's Daughters and other Ten Times One organizations, the work of fourteen other societies which have kindred objects. This work not only covers our own land, but reaches out to Italy, England, India, to the far Northwest, and to the lonely island where Father Diamen heroically wrought and died. Beside this record of work, it contains most valuable, because most practical, papers on the various phases of philanthropic work. As we read its records, we wonder what infidelity can show to offset this evidence of the power of the gospel of Christ in making real that brotherhood which is only an empty boast of infidels. Published by J. Stillman Smith & Co., Boston. $2.

Mrs. Housh's WOMAN'S MAGAZINE takes an added name with the new year, and is now the YOUNG WOMAN'S MAGAZINE. But it does not change its character, unless to make it even more bright and helpful than ever. It adds articles especially adapted for our girls, like "A Young Woman's Position," by Clara B. Miller, and "Girls of To-day," and keeps up its usual variety of pleasing and useful miscellania. Frank E. Housh & Co., publishers, Brattleboro, Vermont. $1 per year.

The ANTI-TOBACCO GEM, published by C. H. Shepherd, Melvin Village, N. H., has just entered upon its seventh year with a hopeful outlook. It is issued in the interests of health and cleanliness vs. tobacco and dirt, and should receive the encouragement of all clean people. It is a small, four page monthly with a subscription price of twenty cents a year, but is offered to readers of THE UNION SIGNAL at the rate of twelve copies for only $1 per year. Send this little paper to your boy friends and try to stem the tide of nicotine poisoning which so frightfully threatens the youth of to-day.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

In answer to scores of letters which are constantly coming to me, asking, among other questions, when the corner-stone of the Temple is to be laid, I desire to state in reply: The leasehold title was signed April 25, by Marshall Field, lessor, and on behalf of the Woman's Temperance Building Association (for the National W. C. T. U.) by its President, Matilda B. Carse, and its Secretary, Helen L. Hood. Burnham & Root, architects, have been engaged for several weeks upon the new plan for the building, which has been approved and accepted by the Board of Directors. Every detail for the mammoth building has to be drawn before it can be submitted to contractors for bids; it will require at least three weeks more to complete these plans. Work cannot be commenced on the building, except in getting the foundation ready, before June first at the very earliest. With the utmost expedition we will not be able to lay the corner-stone before the first of July. We are planning now to have it take place the Fourth of July if the building has progressed far enough. We think it would be a fitting occasion for such a ceremony. What could be more appropriate than that upon the day which commemorates the independence of this fair land from the tyranny of a monarchical government, the Christian womanhood of America should come together to lay the foundation stone of their great Temple to temperance, which shall declare to all the world that they have commenced an aggressive warfare against strong drink, and they will never lay down the arms of their rebellion until the abominable traffic which enslaves tens of thousands of our citizens, and is a menace to every home in the land, shall be destroyed?

* * *

We hope our sisters will be patient with these delays. Such a great undertaking even in Chicago is forced by the importance of the work to move slow. The capital stock has been increased from $500,000 to $600,000, and has all been subscribed for. The $500,000 in bonds will not be required until next year. With our fine leasehold title of the ground, which the Chicago Tribune pronounces one of the best and cheapest in the city, and with a paid-up capital stock of $600,000 there will not be the slightest trouble in securing the sale of the bonds—in fact, capitalists will be only too glad to get such a good investment. All these delays but give our W. C. T. U. women more time to gather in their gifts. The more rapidly this is done the more quickly will we come into entire possession of our great temple.

* * *

If all could be made to feel and work as some unions and individuals do, capitalists would have no chance to invest in our bonds as we would have money enough of our own to complete the building. If all our white-ribboners would deny themselves to give to the Temple as one noble woman in Florida who has just sent us $50, and pledges another $50 soon, has done, the money would come in rapidly. She says: "I enclose you a draft for $50. I wish you would not publish my name. I am sorry to make such a request, but by way of explanation can only say, there are those who think everything should be spent on the home work and are displeased if others do not coincide. I sacrifice to give; I have all that is necessary but do not spend my money for luxuries as many do who desire to dictate to me how I should spend my money." Mrs. H. C. Lamb, of Denison, Iowa, sends $50 on a pledge of $100, which she says she will complete within a year. Mrs. Cordelia Kennicott of Illinois sends a check for $100, which she pledged about a year ago. Mrs. Eliza J. Thomas, of Evelyn, Mo., sends $20 on her pledge of $100. Mr. S. A. Kean, widely known as "Chicago's Christian banker," sends a check for $50, and promises another $50 July first. Mr. S. A. Haines, of Netherwood, N. J., sends a check for $50; this almost completes his pledge of $100; the balance, $28, he says he will remit soon. He writes, "I only wish I could build the Temple myself, but I will have some of the stones marked with my good wishes, prayers and help." This noble man, beside giving this gift of $100, lectures without charge, in any town where his business calls him, for all W. C. T. Unions who desire to give the money to the Temple fund. Mr. Haines is a most eloquent speaker.

* * *

Willard Hall will, indeed, be a place of sacred memories. It will be sanctified especially by the memory of our dear departed ones; precious names of the loved and lost will not only appear upon its marble walls, but in its great record books. Miss Sarah H. Leet, Racine, Wis., sends $50 on a pledge of $100—in memory of a beloved mother; Mrs. Margaret A. Brown, Brighton, Ill., $10, in memory of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Hackney, who died ten years ago. The Edgewood, Iowa, W. C. T. U. sends $1 in memory of one of their best beloved members, Mrs. Laura Minkler, who died March 18. Mrs. Mary Ludvigson sends $1 in memory of her young brother, George E. Whitney, who died six years ago; $2.80 is sent in memory of Mrs. Hattie Thompson, of Idana, Kansas, by her husband. Mrs. Eliza A. Lake, of Muskegon, Mich., writes: "My husband died leaving the enclosed $1 in his pocket where he had carried it for many months. The dollar seems very dear to me, but as my husband was a stanch prohibitionist I will send it to the Temple fund in memory of him, L. Frank Lake, aged sixty-three years." Mrs. Ellen I. Waite sends $1.25 in memory of her little son Robert; he was a member of the Loyal Temperance Legion. The money sent was found after his death in his savings bank. Mrs. J. T. Hulet, Berea, Ohio, sends $1 and writes in the following pathetic manner: "We have tearfully counted the pennies in his little bank, not quite one hundred, but so precious because they belonged to him, our only child, our darling Wesley Eddie. Though the dimpled hands that would have wrought for God and humanity are early folded, yet let him by this much help to build your beautiful Temple and have a living place in your records."

145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Our Children.

A PROPHECY.

BY ELLEN A. LUTZ.

I see them marching on their way,
The coming man and woman,
Whose chant rings with an undertone
Of something more than human;
We hear the voice of prophecy
In the words that rise and flow:
"The saloon—the saloon—
The saloon—must go."

A monster lurks in every street,
And waits on either hand;
They are marching down the fateful years
To drive it from the land;
Marching into the marts of trade,
They will rout the wily foe:
"The saloon—the saloon—
The saloon—must go."

Up from the West there comes a cry,
Out of the East a moan;
From North and South the echoes rise,
Of sob, and sigh, and groan,
From bleeding hearts now breaking
Under their weight of woe:
"The saloon—the saloon—
The saloon—must go."

How long, we cry, oh, Lord, how long,
Shall we pave our streets with blood?
How long shall rum and ruin wild
Rage around us, like a flood?
How shall we save the coming men
From the reeling drunkard's woe?
"The saloon—the saloon—
The saloon—must go."

Death potions flow from vat and still,
The foe is fierce and strong;
Stern judgments smite on every side,
And right delays so long;
Yet the hands of God's diurnal clock
Are turning sure, but slow:
"The saloon—the saloon—
The saloon—must go."

Our nation still strikes hands with sin,
And takes the price of shame;
But the star of hope is shining now,
Fair Freedom's oriflamme;
It goes before the children's band,
That will march to victory so:
"The saloon—the saloon—
The saloon—must go."

I MEANT TO.

"I did not rise at the breakfast bell,
But was so sleepy—I can't tell—
I meant to.

"The wood's not carried in, I know;
But there's the school bell, I must go
I meant to

"My lesson I forgot to write,
But nuts and apples were so nice.
I meant to.

"I forgot to walk on tiptoe;
O how the baby cries! O! O!
I meant to.

"There! I forgot to shut the gate,
And put away my book and slate.
I meant to.

"The cattle trampled down the corn,
My slate is broken, my book is torn.
I meant to."

Thus drawls poor idle Jimmy Hite,
From morn till noon, from noon till night:
"I meant to."

And when he grows to be a man,
He heedlessly mars every plan
With that poor plea, "I meant to."

—Home and School Visitor

WAITING FOR THE GRIST.

BY MINNIE B. FENWICK.

"It is strange," said a gentleman who sat next to me in the car, and with whom I had struck up quite an acquaintance, "what an influence a look, a word, or the little act of a perfect stranger will sometimes have upon a person."

"Yes," said I, "more than any of us realize."

"It was the simple act of a stranger that changed the whole course of my life."

"Indeed! How was that?"

"When I was a boy my father moved to Ohio. It was before the days of steam, and no great mills thundered on her river banks, but occasionally there was a little grist mill by the side of some small stream, and thither, whenever the water was up, the whole neighborhood flocked with their sacks of corn. 'First come, first served.' Sometimes we had to wait two or three days for our turn. I was the one usually sent from our house, for, while I was too small to be of much use on the farm, I was as good as a man to carry a grist to mill. So I was not at all surprised one morning when my father said, 'Henry, you can get up old Roan and go to mill to-day.' Saunders' mill was ten miles away, but I had made the trip so often that it did not seem far. I believe one becomes more attached to an old mill than to any other building. I can see just how it looked as it stood there under the sycamores, with its huge wheel and clapboard sides.

"When I arrived, I found the North Branch and the Rocky Fork folks there ahead of me, and I knew there was no hope of getting home that day; but I was not at all sorry, for my basket was well filled with provisions, and Mr. Saunders always opened his big barn for us to sleep in; so it was no unpleasant time we had while waiting for the grist. This time there was an addition to the number who had been from time to time in the habit of gathering in the old barn, a young fellow of about my own age, probably a little older. His name was Charley Allen, and his father had bought a farm over on the Brush Creek road. He was sociable and friendly, but I instinctively felt that he had more 'manners' than the rest of us. The evening was spent as usual in relating coarse jokes and playing cards. Although I was not accustomed to such things at home, I had become so used to it at the mill that it had long since ceased to shock me, and indeed, I was fast becoming a very interested spectator.

"'Well, boys, it is time for us fellers to go to roost,' said Jim Finley, one of the greatest roughs on the Rocky Fork, as he threw down his pack of cards and began to undress. We all followed his example, although it was not much undressing we did to sleep on the haymow; but we were so busy with our own affairs that we did not notice Charley Allen until Jim exclaimed, 'Hey-dey! we've got a parson here, we hev!' Charley was kneeling by the oats bin, praying. Jim Finley's jest met with no response. The silence was only broken by the drowsy cattle below, and the twittering of the swallows overhead. More than one rough man wiped a tear from his eye as he went silently to his bed on the hay. I had always been in the habit of praying at home, but I never thought of such a thing at Saunders' mill.

"As I lay awake that night in the old barn, thinking of Charley's courage, and what effect it had upon the men I firmly resolved that in the future I would do right. I little thought how soon my courage would be tested. Just after dinner I got my grist and started for home. When I arrived at Albright's gate, where I turned off to go home, I found the old 'Squire waiting for me. I saw in a moment that something had gone wrong. I always stood in the greatest awe of the old gentleman because he was the richest man in the neighborhood, and now I felt my heart beginning to beat very fast.

"As soon as I came near he said, 'Did you go through this gate yesterday.' I could have easily denied it, as it was before daylight when I went through, and I quite as often went the other way. Charley Allen kneeling in the barn came to my mind like a flash, and before I had time to listen to the tempter I said, 'Yes, sir, I did.'

"'Are you sure you shut and pinned the gate?' he asked.

"The question staggered me. I remembered distinctly that I did not. I could pull the pin out without getting off my horse but I could not put it back again; so I carelessly rode away, and left it open.

"'I—I—I—'

"'Out with it, just tell what you did!'

"'I left it open,' I said, abruptly.

"'Well, you let the cattle in and they have destroyed all my early potatoes—a terrible piece of business.'

"'I'm sorry, I'd —

"'Talking won't help matters now; but remember, boy, sorrow doesn't make potatoes, sorrow doesn't make potatoes.'

"I felt very badly about the matter, for I was really sorry the old gentleman had lost his potatoes, and then I expected to be severely reprimanded at home; but I soon found that they knew nothing about the matter, and after several days had passed I began to rest quite easy. Alas for human hopes! One rainy afternoon I saw the 'Squire riding down the lane. I ran off to the barn, ashamed to face him and afraid to meet my father. They sat and talked for a long time. At last my curiosity overcame my fear, and I stole back to the house and went into mother's room to see if I could hear what they were talking about.

"'Why, the boy could be spared well enough, but he don't know anything about the business,' said my father.

"'There's one thing he does know,' said the 'Squire, 'he knows how to tell the truth.'

"He then told the story which I had so much dreaded to have my father hear. After he had gone my father called me to him and told me that the 'Squire was going to open a store in the village and wanted a boy to help, and that I could go if I wanted to do so. I went, and remained until the village store blossomed into a city store; and people say I got my start in life when I entered Albright's store; but I will always maintain that I got it while I was waiting for the grist."

"DO THEY UNDERSTAND IT?"

An old schoolmaster said one day to a clergyman who came to examine his school: "I believe the children know their catechism word for word."

"But do they understand it?—that is the question," said the clergyman.

The schoolmaster only bowed respectfully, and the examination began. A little boy had repeated the fifth commandment: "Honor thy father and thy mother," and he was desired to explain it. Instead of trying to do so, the little boy, with his face covered with blushes, said almost in a whisper:

"Yesterday I showed some gentlemen over the mountain. The sharp stones cut my feet, and the gentlemen saw they were bleeding, and they gave me some money in order that I might buy a pair of shoes. I gave it to my mother, for she had no shoes, either, and I thought I could go barefoot better than she could."—Times of Refreshing.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING MAY 18, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 9: 28-62; I Samuel, 15-20.)

Sunday, 18; Luke 9: 28–62. Verse 30, The saints who have left this earth are known in the heavenly world as the same persons still. We shall know each other when we meet over there. Verse 38, The greatest grief of heart that parents can feel is on account of their children; a thoughtful child will remember this, and never do anything to add to his parents' trials and sorrows. Verse 49, Sectarianism in religion awakens a zeal which is entirely un-Christian. If we really follow Christ, we will love and approve the good, no matter who does it or where it is found. Verse 60, Jesus demands much of us; but He also promises much, and there is no danger that we shall lose our reward.

Monday, 19; I Sam. 15. Verse 9, Saul's own view of what was the proper and expedient course to follow was his rule, not the command of God. Are there not many now who do exactly the same thing? Verse 11, When the Bible speaks of God as repenting, it means simply that He changes His method of procedure toward men; so that, as bad men, they are not treated as they were when they were good men. Verse 28, If we do not repent of our sins and live obedient Christian lives, there will come a time when there will be no place for repentance, and we will have to meet the reward of our doing.

Tuesday, 20; I Sam. 16. Verse 1, Samuel's grief was at variance with his public duty as a prophet. The early anointing of David was a comfort to the people; for then, whatever contingency might happen, Israel would have a king. Verse 3, If we are truly following our Lord, as His faithful servants, our duty will be revealed to us as we need to know it. Verse 11, Those who have risen into the higher places of usefulness have always been prepared by their former faithfulness in performing cheerfully the duties of every day.

Wednesday, 21; I Sam. 17. Verse 4, In these times, we have God's battles to fight against gigantic evils. What a monster to be overcome is the liquor traffic! When we lose sight of God, the devil's warriors look large, and it seems as if ultimately they will have the whole nation under their control. Verse 32, It is very short-sighted in the Christian to become discouraged. God is not dead; and there is an unseen power back of every righteous cause that will, in the Lord's good time, give to it the victory. Verse 38, God's battles never can be fought in the armor of the world; and it would be well if the churches everywhere would give up their worldliness, and go on with their true work, trusting in the God of the armies of Israel.

Thursday, 22; I Sam. 18. Verse 1, Jonathan was a young man of about David's age, and of noble character. When he saw the modesty, manly bearing, piety and heroism of David, his congenial mind loved him sincerely. If the young make themselves noble and worthy, they are certain to win the respect of all those whose respect is worth having. Verse 10, Saul was reaping the consequences of his own doing, by God's unalterable law,—that if we sow to the wind we shall reap the whirlwind, and at times his rankling thought threw him into the frenzy of a maniac.

Friday, 23; I Sam. 19. Verse 2, Most of us in the conflicts of life have to learn what David learned in one experience, the bitterness of human hate and the value of true friendship. Verse 20, God's plans in some way shall be worked out; the servants of the Lord shall be trained to do their work, as David was all this time being trained, and the ways of the wicked shall be turned upside down.

Saturday, 24; I Sam. 20. Verse 1, When one is pursued by the wicked, there is great comfort in knowing that his life is a record of innocence which will bear examination. Verse 42, The beautiful relation of David and Jonathan shows us that the friendship that is lasting is founded on mutual worth, and is cemented by a mutual love to God.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(Temptation—"Bible Reading Leaflet," January, 1889—James 1:12.)

1. We are not dreadful sinners because we are tempted. Temptation is not a sin; there is no sin unless we yield to the temptation.

2. It is not our usual way of looking at the matter, but the text tells us that it is a blessed thing to endure temptation.

3. We should be very shallow spiritually if it were not for the discipline of temptation. It tries our faith and develops our spiritual virtues, all of which is essential to our growth.

4. Our Lord, who was tempted in all points like as we are yet without sin, knows how to deliver us out of temptation. We should apply to Him for help, and not try to fight our temptations in our own strength.

5. Our Lord's experience in temptation shows that He met them with the Word of God. Luke 4:1-13. This "sword of the Spirit" (Eph. 6:17) is also our effectual weapon against temptation.

6. Do not give way to discouragement, but meet temptation with a cheerful confidence that you shall overcome.

That peace is an evil peace that doth shut truth out of doors. If peace and truth cannot go together, truth is to be preferred, and rather to be chosen for a companion than peace.—J. Tillinghast.

He is not yet a master-workman in the craft of soul winners who has not learned the art of making his hearers speak to themselves.—Sunday-School Times.

Selfishness is that detestable vice which no one will forgive in others, and no one is without himself.—Beecher.

The Household.

ONLY A WOMAN.

BY EVA EMERY DYE.

Only a woman, no power hath she
To grasp the law's deep mystery.
Only a woman, she cannot feel
The public pulse of woe or weal.
Only a woman, devoid of mind,
Weak, feeble, senseless, halting, blind,
Mothers and teachers, pride of our schools,
Rank them with aliens, criminals, fools;
Send them back to the harem's veil—
The land's too free when votes prevail.
Only a woman, she holds no land,
She pays no tax, she takes no stand
For schools and bonds; she cannot wake
To mighty matters now at stake.
Hers it is to sweetly trust
That only man is wise and just;
Her own God-given right to think
Is but a snare on ruin's brink;
Casting ballots is dangerous sport;
The ship of state might fail of port
If wives and mothers had a say
On schools and bonds election day.
Those working women? who should heed
The tiresome call of squalid need?
Let them work or let them wed,
Let them look to men for bread.
Wages? A pretty pass when women try
To join the laborer's hue and cry.
Why, let them stay at home and wait
Till men can settle this debate.
Schools? Our schools are well enough;
These women-boards are bosh and stuff.
What right have they to have a say
About a teacher and his pay?
Saloons? Why, they bring trade to town,
And women folks would vote it down.
They're awful narrow in their views
And bound the ballot to abuse.
Only a woman, tired and faint,
Be she beggar or be she saint,
Let her go home and scrub and sew,
And ask her lord what she would know.
Make way for men, good, bad, black, white,
But keep the women out of sight!

Madison, S. D.

NOTED ENGLISH WOMEN.

BY FRANCES E. WILLARD.

Now that we are joined in the World's W. C. T. U. in a sort of "ring-round-rosy" reaching around the globe, it behooves us to know more than we have done concerning the leaders among English women. In a recent conversation with one admirably prepared to answer questions, I made notes which I will furnish as a sort of outline for white-ribboners.

Lady Henry Somerset lives in East Norcastle, England. She is a great lady and an aristocrat, having thirty to forty servants, and all that heart could wish of the blessings of this life; but, best of all she is not simply an average, but a really devoted Christian, ready to spend and be spent in the showing forth of a Christ-like life. Withal she is a white-ribboner, earnestly committed to the World's W. C. T. U., and desirous in the largest way to put at the service of the temperance reform her clear, bright brain, motherly heart, and spiritual illumination. It is thought that she will become president of the British Woman's Temperance Association as successor to our loved and lost Margaret Bright Lucas. Lady Somerset is a fine speaker, and does not hesitate to use her gifts. She is her own chaplain, reads prayers and plays the organ at family worship before breakfast. She and her friend, Miss Morgan, are the first ladies who were chiefs among the Good Templars.

Miss Gwenillian Morgan, of Buckingham Place, Wales, is the coadjutor of Lady Somerset in her good work.

Lady Seabright, of London, is a zealous white-ribboner.

Miss Balgarnie is secretary of the Woman's Suffrage Association in England, is a temperance orator, and sound on all the great questions of modern reform.

Lady Rothchild, of Buckinghamshire, has well-nigh half a score of servants, and lives in the grandest state, but never offers wine. Her daughter, Mrs. Cyril Flower, edits Quarterly Notes, in which she brings out all the latest words and works of women for the right.

The Hon. Mrs. Eliot Yorke, of Southampton, is another accomplished leader.

Mrs. Josephine Butler, of Winchester, is well-known to us already as the first woman who ever spoke in public for the promotion of the cause of social purity, and dared to do this twenty years ago, before the coming woman had really come. Mrs. Butler is as much that woman as anybody living.

Miss Ellice Hopkins, of Brighton, is the chief figure in the White Cross movement, having done much to furnish its pure and helpful literature.

Helen B. Temple, Argyle Chambers, 86 Strand, edits the Woman's Penny Paper, Illustrated, which ought to be in the hands of every white-ribboner.

Miss Jessie Fowler is the corresponding secretary of the Woman's Temperance Association, is an American woman, and well up with the times in all that constitutes progress for women and temperance.

Mrs. Gladstone heads the Liberal League, an organization of women to stand by the great Commoner and Charles Parnell in their efforts to secure home rule for Ireland. The Primrose League opposes this measure, and is led by Randolph Churchill. It is aristocratic and wears a primrose as its badge

Frances Power Cobbe is the greatest ethical writer among women, the granddaughter of Archbishop Whately. She is a noted magazinist, and has given her keen, logical pen for years to work up an interest in the protection of animals, and an organized opposition to the barbarity of vivisection.

Miss Olive Schriener is the daughter of an African missionary. Her mother has become a Catholic, and Miss Olive is an intellectual recoil from the Calvinistic severities of old time orthodoxy. She is the author of "The Story of an African Farm," a book of remarkable originality, written before she was twenty years of age. Her sister, the elder Miss Schriener was a delegate from Africa to the World's Good Templars Lodge in Chicago two years ago.

Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Whitall Costelloe, are almost acclimated English women now, and leaders in every good word and work, who are too well known to American women to need any introduction.

Mrs. Priscilla Bright McLaren, Edinburgh, sister of John Bright, has no superior among the English leaders of women. She is progressive to the last degree, has the courage of her convictions, but combines her radical views on moral and social reform with the rarest urbanity and culture.

WORDS TO THE WISE.

BY ABBY MORTON DIAZ.

There is complaint of a prevalent badness variously manifested as corruption in politics, overreaching in business, adulteration of every kind of merchandise, and in very frequent cases of the theft known as defaulting.

Suppose that instead of mourning over this state of things, we search out a cause of it, step by step. Much of the demoralization we deplore comes from greed of wealth. (One step). Greed of wealth is due largely to the respect and social position accorded to wealth. (Two steps.) That respect and social position are accorded to wealth is owing to the prevailing false ideas of values. (Three steps). Whence come these false ideas of values? When and where and how do men and women get them? They get them in childhood, in homes, and homes are largely what women make them. (Four steps.) What, in the average family, does a child find most prominent? Where is the emphasis placed? What do mothers and aunties most talk about? By what standards do they judge? In many families the child would get false ideas of the values of time and of money. It would learn that time spent in fancy sewing and cooking is considered well spent, while time given to reading, walking or to philanthropic work is considered as time turned aside from its legitimate uses. It would find that "cannot afford" means cannot afford after buying everything self can need or desire.

The child does not, as a general thing, hear the same anxiety expressed with regard to the truth of an idea as to the stylishness of an outfit, nor does it hear the wonders of scientific discovery spoken of as enthusiastically as are the wonders of a display of millinery. In the common conversation it is likely to hear eager discussions over fashion plates; a great deal about dress, style, appearance; a great deal of gossip and of unfriendly criticism. It will see far greater leniency shown to a neglect of the Golden Rule than to a neglect of the observances of society, far greater leniency shown to a gossipy defamation of character than to the wearing of a dress, or gloves, different from what society prescribes for the occasion. It will observe that the thoughts of the family are centered chiefly, perhaps wholly, upon its own interests. In regard to outward distinctions the child will see that persons placed by social position above its own family, are on account of that position held in respect; that their example is copied; their notice desired and courted, and boasted of; their opinions quoted. This would be particularly noticeable in cases of relatives who had attained to such position, while relatives in correspondingly inferior position would be regarded with indifference. Is its own family in genteel circumstances, the child learns to look down upon "working people," and to consider labor as in a measure disgraceful.

Beginning at the top of the social scale and proceeding downward we see that a child is likely to learn, in the family, that appearing is more than being, that money-worth is more than character-worth, that wealth and social position are the objects chiefly to be striven for, and that success in life means success in gaining these. The emphasis is put in the wrong place, in a great many wrong places, as if in reading an important paragraph the small words were emphasized,—the ofs and ands and thes and tos. What, then, can we expect other than that the child's mature life will be based on these unworthy ideas of values which are causing blight and ruin, and which are inbreathed, as we may say, from the home atmosphere?

This home atmosphere is what the young and forming character feeds upon and grows from. Every expression of opinion, every chance remark upon people, every subject talked about, every motive appealed to, refinement or its opposite as expressed in speech and manner, every one of these, as well as each word, look and tone, does its work on character.

This is a matter affecting home interests, social interests, business interests, and, in the way of "politics," the welfare and reputation of the nation. Thus a grave responsibility is placed upon mothers, fathers, and every person whose influence is felt in the family.

"Humanity sweeps onward! Where to-day the martyr stands,
On the morrow crouches Judas, with the silver in his hands,
Far in front the cross stands ready, and the crackling fagots burn,
While the hooting mob of yesterday in silent awe return
To gather up the scattered ashes into history's golden [illegible] time"

"THE STORY IS OLD."

BY W. B. MERCHANT.

"All that can be said on the temperance question has been said a million times over. There is no need to take a temperance paper."

The woman who made the above statement is a wife and a mother. How one's thoughts will circle round and spread out, like ripples from a center of agitation, from that old adage, "There is nothing new under the sun."

Do politicians ever tire of those magical words, "tariff vs. free-trade." Every four years, or oftener, the changes are rung, the old ground plowed, the seed sown, the harvest often depending upon the amount of cultivation. Does any one say the story has lost its grip?

There is a theme much older than this. The preacher tells of creation, of the fall, and of redemption. Thousands listen, think, and shudder at the thought of the world without Christianity; O, pity the few who say, "The story is old,—let it die!"

Almost as long ago as creation the story of human love was told; did this woman say to her would-be husband, "That story has been told a million times; don't tell it to me"?

The circle widens and comprehends all nature. Every season brings forth the earth's products, fruits, grains, etc., and all flesh; every day the appetite reiterates the ancient demand. Nevertheless, we must not say anything upon the temperance question, because it may have been said before. Will the tempter hold his peace the while? An old picture comes to mind of a church, "Closed while the pastor takes a vacation." The arch fiend says, "I never take a vacation!"

Don't say anything about temperance to that woman's boy! He may learn to tipple of his father, what matter if he tipple harder? Don't say anything if he join the midnight carousal; bad blood is sometimes engendered there; he may reach a felon's cell, but keep your lips closed; unchecked temptation sometimes ends on the gallows, and the victim! But let us go back. This woman has daughters, too; they may be beautiful, genteel, educated (although these things are old and ought not to be repeated). Don't tell them of wine-bibbing husbands, it's too frivolous. Can you follow the wave and tell who the victim might be, aye has been? Oh, the story is old, but now is the time to thunder it into that mother's ears.

Too late? It would not save her boy, it would not save her girl from a life of double anguish? They are not worth saving? It would only be another form of old story. Poor mother! But, thank God, the sun will continue to melt the ice and thaw the frozen ground, the seed will sprout and grow, the dripping water will still wear the rock.

GOD'S NEWSPAPER.

"Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

EDITORIAL.
Hebrews I.
OBSERVATIONS FROM ABROAD.
I Kings V.
Nehemiah 2:11–20 and Chapt. IV.
CONTRIBUTED.
Poem:—Judges V.
Serial:—Book of Esther.
HOME CIRCLE.
Psalms 127. Proverbs 31:10-31.
CHILDREN'S CORNER.
I Samuel 3:1–10 and Mark 10:13–16
CHRISTIAN LIFE.
Psalm 91 and 121.
GEMS OF THOUGHT.
Proverbs 22:1. Psalms 72:16. Isaiah 54:17.
PERSONALS.
Romans XVI.
LAW.
Exodus 20:1–17.
HEALTH.
I Cor. 6:19, 20. Psalm 103:1–5.
TEMPERANCE.
Proverbs 23:29, 35 and I Cor. 10:31.
FASHION NOTES.
I Peter 3:3, 4. I Timothy 2:9, 10.
WEATHER INDICATIONS.
Matthew 16:2, 3.
QUESTION BOX.
Job 9:2 and Matthew 16:26.
MARRIAGES.
Genesis 2:21–24.
BIRTHS.
Luke 2:10, 11.
DEATHS.
Genesis 5:5, 27.
RECIPES.
Prosperity:—Proverbs 3:9, 10.
Long life:—Psalm 34:12, 13.
Rest:—Matthew 11: 28, 30.
Peace:—Philippians 3:6, 9.
ADVERTISEMENTS.
Wisdom:—Proverbs 3:13, 18.
Charity:—I Cor. XIII.

Not alone in olden story,
What his mighty hosts await,
Coming with a rush of glory
Through the sweep of heaven's gate
God can marshal yet His legions
To decide a nation's fate.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A. AMES. ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publication Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

He that walketh righteously and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions, that shaketh his hand from holding of bribes, that stoppeth his ears from hearing of blood and shutteth his eyes from seeing evil; he shall dwell on high; his place of defence shall be the munitions of rocks.—Isaiah 33: 15, 16.

THE HAND OF GOD IN THE IOWA SALOON DECISION.

In all the vast work of preparing the world for the abolition of the drink-curse, the guiding hand of God has never been more plainly visible than it is in current events. The decision of the National Supreme Court in the Kansas Liquor Cases, sustaining the power of the several states over the liquor traffic within their bounds, will ever stand as one of the noblest and best utterances of that great tribunal. And now, at the very moment when the supreme need of the hour is a new and startling historic event of adequate importance, to bring about a union of all the friends of temperance, law and order, throughout the United States, in a national party, on a national platform, the same Supreme Court supplies the need by a decision in an Iowa saloon case, that the fearful evils of the liquor traffic cannot be suppressed even in prohibition states, without the aid of an act of Congress under the great power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states, prohibiting, or authorizing the states to prohibit the transportation of intoxicants from any state or nation, into any state whose laws are intended to prevent the traffic in such commodities.

By that decision, what is known as the Temperance Question becomes at once a national question, and a political question of the first magnitude. For congressional legislation of such a character involves, in the highest degree, the public policy of the nation, and the political action of senators and representatives in Congress. Till such an act of Congress shall have been passed, approved by a friendly president, and put in execution, the temperance question can no more be kept out of state and national politics than could the question of slavery while Congress had power to legislate in relation to it. And it may be added that the American people will no more tolerate the nullification of their will by the liquor traffic than by the institution of slavery. The astonishing character of the present manifest interposition of Divine Providence in human affairs may be seen in the fact that the majority opinion of the Supreme Court does not, like the Dred Scott case, attempt to uphold and establish a wrong, but merely to refer to the nation, the suppression of importations of intoxicating liquors into states that desire their exclusion; and in the further and more noteworthy fact that the question decided by the court is one on which great lawyers and great judges may fairly differ, and that might have been decided the other way by a slight change of view on the part of only two members of the court. But if the minority opinion could now be made to prevail, it would not advance, but, on the contrary, would retard the temperance movement. For if the American people so will, the drink traffic may be practically suppressed by congressional legislation under the gigantic power to regulate inter-state and international commerce; and to take away the present occasion for such legislation, might delay for a long time the exercise of the national power over commerce in intoxicating drinks.

According to the press report of the decision in the Iowa case of Leidy v. Hardin, decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, April 28, 1890, a citizen of any of the United States, or any foreign country has the right to import beer or rum into any of the several states, and the right to sell it, by which act alone it would become mingled with the common mass of property within the state. Up to that time, say the majority of the court, "the state has no power to prevent the importation and sale, by a foreigner or non-resident importer."

But as long ago as 1824, the same Supreme Court, by the greatest judge who ever sat in that or any other judicial tribunal, Chief Justice Marshall, said: "Commerce is undoubtedly traffic, but it is something more. It is intercourse, and includes navigation. Commerce among the states cannot stop at the external boundary line of each state, but may be introduced into the interior. The power to regulate commerce is the power to prescribe the rules by which it is to be governed; to limit and restrain it at pleasure. Commerce, in its simplest signification, means an exchange of goods, but in the advancement of society, labor, transportation, intelligence, care, and various mediums of exchange, become commodities, and enter into commerce; the subject, the vehicle, the agent, and their various operations, become the objects of commercial regulation." [Gibbons v. Ogden, 1 Wheaton R.I.]

In 1848, the same court, by Mr. Justice Grier, of Pennsylvania, declared that it had long since decided that the constitutional power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes, is exclusively vested in Congress, and that no part of it can be exercised by a state. [Smith v. Turner, and Norris v. Boston, 7 Howard R. 283.]

In 1875, the court, by Mr. Justice Field, of California, said: "The power to regulate commerce, conferred upon Congress, is one without limitation; and to regulate commerce is to prescribe rules by which it shall be governed; that is, the conditions upon which it shall be conducted; TO DETERMINE HOW FAR IT SHALL BE FREE AND UNTRAMMELED, HOW FAR IT SHALL BE BURDENED BY DUTIES AND IMPOSTS, AND HOW FAR IT SHALL BE PROHIBITED. Commerce is a term of the largest import. It comprehends intercourse for the purposes of trade in any and all its forms, including the transportation, purchase, sale and exchange of commodities between the citizens of our country, and the citizens or subjects of other countries, and between the citizens of different states." [Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. R. 278.]

"The National power of regulation does not extend to such commerce in the several states, as is completely internal, and which does not extend to or affect other states." [State Tonnage Tax Cases, 12 Wallace R. 204.]

As to the general commerce of the country, the inhabitants of the United States constitute one people, under one government, that of the nation. To that government, with its supreme authority, the friends of temperance must now appeal.

Equally visible is the hand of God in the arrangements for the Union Temperance Convention in New York City, June 11 and 12, 1890. This last decision of the National Supreme Court must necessarily be discussed and considered in that convention, and steps will be taken, as matters of course, to organize a national movement to secure the needed act of Congress. From this time forth, representatives and senators in Congress, and candidates for those offices, will have a new question to answer or evade, and voters a new reason to determine their choice and control their ballots.

The world has not been standing still on this great question of temperance, law and order, but it has been moving forward like the globe in its orbit, with incredible swiftness. There are many signs of the times which indicate that if the Woman's Christian Temperance Union should make a house-to-house canvass of the voters of the United States, they would find a vast number, probably a majority of them, already prepared to take the new pledge of progress, required by the present emergency; a pledge to unite with all classes of temperance people for the abolition of the saloon system and its attendant evils, by the best attainable means, and without unnecessary delay. With a zealous coöperation for the accomplishment of primary measures, on which all can agree, differences of opinion on other points will be removed in the course of progress, and harmony of views be secured as a result of experience, which could never be attained by abstract discussion.

It is of immense importance that in framing such a pledge the vital issue be kept paramount; that questions on which the friends of that issue would be seriously divided, be omitted; and that sympathy with other reforms demanded by enlightened public opinion be expressed. With this view, the following form of pledge and basis of union is suggested: We severally agree to use, with fidelity and zeal, our personal influence, votes and official power, if any, to secure at the earliest practicable date, by all lawful means, the abolition of the liquor-saloon system, with all its attendant evils of intemperance, pauperism, insanity, disorder, political corruption, moral degradation and crime; more particularly to encourage and assist in the efficient enforcement of all existing laws relating to the liquor traffic; to procure such additional legislation, municipal, state, or national, as may seem to be calculated to promote such abolition; and still more particularly to procure the largest exercise of the power of Congress to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states, for the purpose of bringing about such abolition.

And while we will heartily coöperate with all good citizens for the speediest attainable achievement of all other deserving reforms, such as honest and equal elections, with what is known as the Australian ballot; such civil service reform as will secure for the people the best service of the highest ability and character; an actual reform and re-adjustment of the tariff; government regulation and control of the transportation of persons, property, and intelligence; and the summary settlement of all conflicts of labor and capital by the sovereign power of the people, exercised by proper agents and tribunals, we believe that the adequate accomplishment of such reforms is impossible without the absolute and unconditional expulsion of the liquor saloon from politics, government and commerce, and we therefore agree that the abolition of the drink traffic and its attendant evils is the greatest moral issue and the greatest economic and political issue of the age, and that all other deserving measures can best be advanced by the effectual settlement, for all time, of that paramount issue.

Of existing political parties, it seems sufficient to say that either some present political organization will see and seize the great opportunity, and speedily advance to the actual abolition of the saloon traffic and all its appalling evils, or that a new organization will arise, great enough in numbers, and powerful enough in organization and leadership to execute the will of God and of the people. The time has come when it must be said of the drink-curse, as Mr. Lincoln said of slavery, that "the public mind must rest in the belief that it is in the process of extinction." The friends of temperance may differ about the tariff, and the money question, and woman suffrage, if they will, but on the supreme issue of the abolition of the drink-curse they must be united alike in purpose and in action.

Let the leaders of the temperance movement ponder this great subject and prepare themselves for action, for the day approaches when a great temperance army, under leaders prepared for their work by the Divine Commander, will go forth to victory.

PRESIDENCY OF THE WORLD'S W. C. T. U.

The general officers of the W. C. T. U. of the United States desire to recognize officially the graceful and generous action of Mrs. Judge Foster, of Quebec, president of Dominion W. C. T. U., of Canada, and her associates in executive committee, who have expressed the wish that Miss Frances E. Willard, the present president of the World's W. C. T. U., should continue to fill the office instead of Mrs Judge Foster, to whom it would fall by the prescribed order in May, 1890, she being president of the National W. C. T. U. next in order. Thus Miss Willard is called to serve two terms as World's president. The action of Mrs. Foster had never occurred either to our president or ourselves. We cannot fail to appreciate the courtesy, and as American committee for World's W. C. T. U. to accept for Miss Willard the honor and the labor which our Canadian sisters had the undoubted right to tender, knowing she will kindly add this to her already more than onerous duties. May this gracious act unite more closely the lands of the maple leaf and the golden rod.

CAROLINE B. BUELL,
MARY A. WOODBRIDGE,
L. M. N. STEVENS,
ESTHER PUGH,
American Com. World's W. C. T. U. with Miss Willard.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE HOSPITAL.

The monthly meeting of its directors brought favorable reports from various officers. Dr. Ousley, the house physician, reported twelve patients treated within the hospital during the month, eight of them surgical cases, and a number of outside patients. Eight applications for admission to the Clara Barton Training School for Nurses were received, three applicants were admitted on probation. One nurse has done outside duty during the month, and a number of massage treatments have been given to outside patients.

The landlord having promised needed repairs, the board voted to retain No. 3411 Cottage Grove avenue for another year. The repairs were commenced, but stopped by the carpenters' strike; they will be completed as soon as that is over, and will add greatly to the pleasantness and comfort of the house.

The proposed amendments to the charter and by-laws were thoroughly discussed, and laid over till the May meeting for final action. The main things sought to be secured are a larger board of directors and a constituency to elect them, instead of having the board a self-perpetuating body.

Much incidental good is being done by the hospital; for example, two gentlemen patients who went there slave to tobacco, went out free men. The rules forbid the use of tobacco while there; these gentlemen both objected very strongly to being deprived of their favorite weed, but after going without it during their stay there, found themselves so much better that, on going out, they voluntarily foreswore its use in the future.

MEETING OF W. T. P. A. DIRECTORS.

A very important meeting was held last week Wednesday, it being the dissolution of the old board and the organization of the new. The tedious legal formalities necessary to carry out the changes ordered by the stockholders at their annual meeting are at last completed and the new organization perfected. There were presen Mrs. Carse, presiding; Mesdames Plumb, Hagans and Carhart, Misses Pugh and West. All the property of the old association was turned over to the new Woman's Temperance Publishing Association, and it is now in complete working order. Until this transfer was perfected no certificates could be issued for the new stock; these certificates will now be issued at once. About eleven thousand dollars' worth of the new stock has been already applied for, proof that it stands well in the confidence of our women; "none others need apply," for this is an association whose stock can be owned only by W. C. T. U. women. All certificates of stock in the old association will now be called in and exchanged share for share for certificates in the new W. T. P. A.

The work of the Association is in prosperous condition. Our advertising and subscription list are growing in a satisfactory way and so much job work is being brought in that frequent night work is necessary to keep up with the demands in this department.

THE TENTH NATIONAL TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

Fifty-seven years ago was commenced the series of National conventions of which the tenth is to be held in New York, June 11 and 12, 1890. The first was held in Philadelphia in 1833, with 400 delegates. The second in Saratoga Springs in 1836, with 348 delegates. The third in Saratoga Springs in 1841, with 560 delegates. The fourth in Saratoga Springs in 1851, with 300 delegates. The fifth in 1865 in Saratoga Springs, with 325 delegates from twenty-five states; it was this convention that originated the National Temperance Society. The sixth convention was held in Cleveland in 1868, with about 300 delegates. The seventh in Saratoga Springs in 1873, 320 delegates. The eighth in Chicago in 1875, 300 delegates; and the ninth in Saratoga Springs in 1881, with 367 delegates.

The National Temperance Society was empowered to call the tenth convention, and in doing so announces that the aim of the congress shall be the discussion of all subjects bearing on the moral, religious and legislative aspects of temperance reform, and shall include the following subjects:

1. Religious: The duty of churches in regard to temperance work, especially among the young; personal rescue work; the religious basis of the total abstinence.

2. Moral: The coffee tavern as a counteractive to the saloon; improved dwellings in the cities.

3. Legislative: Enforcement of law against sale to minors, intoxicated persons and on Sundays; local option and high license; prohibition, National and state; should there be a political party whose dominant idea is the prohibition of the liquor traffic?

All temperance organizations, all churches, all Sunday-schools, and all Farmers' Alliances and other labor clubs, or other organizations that are opposed to the saloon are invited to send representatives. The sessions of the congress will open at 10 a. m., June 11, in the Broadway Tabernacle (Dr. Wm. M. Taylor, pastor), New York. For further particulars, address Jos. A. Bogardus, president American Temperance Union, 177 West street, New York

CHARLES F. DEEMS,
ALBERT GRIFFIN,
I. K. FUNK,
T. B. WAKEMAN,
J. A. BOGARDUS,
MARY T. BURT,
ALEX. S. BACON, } Committee.

In addition to the committee, the call is signed by Dr. Cuyler, Miss Willard, Mrs. Livermore, Governor St. John, Neal Dow, Joseph Cook, Benjamin J. Lossing, Bishop Mallalieu and a large number of other leading men and women. Every shade of temperance sentiment will be represented in this convention, and much good must result from its deliberations.

We have arranged to give our readers vivid pen pictures of it, that the many who cannot go may enjoy it with the favored ones who do.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the National Temperance Society will be celebrated at Broadway Tabernacle, New York, May 13, and will be an occasion of great interest.

MISS JULIA AMES, who has so ably filled the editorial chair in this office, sailed for Europe Wednesday in the City of Chester, for a much needed vacation. She goes with Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, both accredited delegates from the World's and the National W. C. T. U. to the meeting of the British Woman's Temperance Association in London, and will bear to our sisters across the water most cordial greetings, not only from the organizations named, but also from THE UNION SIGNAL and the W. T. P. A. They will spend a few weeks in London, going thence to the Lake country, and perhaps make the tour of the cathedral cities of England before going to the continent. Before she left, a few of her most intimate friends and associates in work gathered at the invitation of Miss Pugh and Miss Hood, in the National Headquarters, for loving good-bys and Godspeed to her. At the close of the happy evening, standing with clasped hands we sang, "God be with you till we meet again," and every heart breathed a prayer for her safe voyage and happy return. She will remain abroad three or four months; THE UNION SIGNAL hopes to hear from her frequently, and to have her return rested and full of inspiration for her work.

Special Difficulties.

PLEDGE.—"I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including Wine and Cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same."

ONE WAY TO DO IT.

QUERY:—"How can we begin work in a town that is dead?"

ANSWER:—This question comes to me not infrequently, and I will tell how one brave girl answered it. Miss Elizabeth P. Gordon, of Auburndale, Mass., was in a western village that had never heard the word temperance, its population being largely foreign, where saloons had everything their own way, and the children were growing up quite under the dominion of nicotine and alcohol, which was a condition of things that if they had had reasoning powers and faculties developed might well have caused them to wish they had never been born. But without any sentimentalism or philosophizing, Miss B. Gordon filled the pockets of her cloak with nuts, candies and fruits of various kinds, and began making a daily promenade through the town, giving out these attractive little cards of invitation to every boy and girl she met under sixteen years of age, telling them that on the next Saturday at three o'clock she was going to be at a certain school-house, and that she would have with her a copy of "Marching Songs," from which she would teach them some songs that they would like beyond telling, and she would relate some stories that would make them both laugh and cry. It is needless to say, the young people gathered in, packing doors and windows. They liked Miss Bessie, they learned the songs, they enjoyed the stories, they took home pretty leaflets and copies of The Young Crusader, and came again the next Saturday, only more so as to numbers, and kept right on. She organized them into a Loyal Temperance Legion out of which grew, through the interest elicited among the women, a W. C. T. U. which had life enough to invite the state convention to be its guest before a year had passed. "The way to resume is just to resume." The way to cause things to come to pass is to cause them.

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

QUERY:—A good worker from Oregon writes: "Please tell us in THE UNION SIGNAL, at as early a date as possible, the circumstance of a child being sprinkled at one of our National conventions. Why I so request is this: We have lost from our local union one of our best working members, and you have lost her as a subscriber, and I have just learned through letter from her why. She read of that sprinkling (though she hasn't the account now and can not give me the dates) and has studied much over it, and feels that in that act the National showed sectarianism, and she, being a Baptist, does not believe in sprinkling," and so withdraws.

ANSWER:—We cannot "give the circumstance of a child being sprinkled" at a National convention, for no such a thing ever occurred. The only thing which could have given rise to such a story is the fact that at one of our conventions Mrs. Ella Boole's baby was introduced and Miss Willard tied the white ribbon on her. "This fable teaches," as Æsop would say, that we should find out whether our grievances are real before we withdraw from the union and "stop my paper" because of them. This absurd story is a fair sample of the many charges made against the W. C. T. U. by which even good women and men are deceived. "Try the spirits" is a timely injunction.

The Watch-Tower.

This good word comes from a district president in Illinois: "The number of unions in our district has increased from seventeen to forty-two since September; Does that look like failure? We have just held four county conventions; there was no disloyalty, but all seemed exceedingly harmonious."

***

Headquarters were brightened last week by the presence of Mrs. J. R. Nichols, looking wonderfully refreshed and invigorated by her European trip. She came to superintend the publishing of her report of the World's W. C. T. U. work at the Paris Exposition, a pamphlet of great interest, from which THE UNION SIGNAL will give large extracts as soon as it is issued.

***

The following is a principle admirably stated by Hon. Carroll D. Wright of the National Bureau of Labor, himself an ideal Christian gentleman: "I believe that in the adoption of the philosophy of the religion of Jesus Christ as a practical creed for the conduct of business, lies the surest and safest solution of those industrial difficulties which are exciting the minds of men to-day, and leading many to think that the crisis of government is at hand."

***

"Being dead she yet speaketh," has been beautifully exemplified lately in the case of "Mother Kinney" as all who knew her delighted to call the saintly woman whom our Narcissa White won as a second mother. Her interest in temperance was always intense, and her gifts to the cause most generous. A few weeks before her death she sent an hundred dollars to her son, Dr. Augustus Kinney, to be used for Nebraska. He sent twenty-five dollars of it to Mrs. Hitchcock, president of the state W. C. T. U., and with the remainder added to a donation from himself and wife, sent Mr. Hector and his singer into the field to raise funds for Nebraska's prohibition fight. In two weeks they raised twelve hundred dollars. During this time the dear mother passed "through the gates into the city," but her work goes on for the redemption of a state on which her foot never trod, but which, we trust, she, looking down from the heavenly heights, shall see purified from the rum curse. She works also through her sons, especially Dr. Augustus Kinney, one of the leading Prohibitionists of Oregon. He is now in Chicago, whither he brought his wife for medical treatment; and even here is not idle, being the prime mover in bringing Gov. St. John here Tuesday night.

***

Letters have recently been received at Headquarters from John W. Lyon, the English sailor whose story has been told by our speakers upon so many platforms. He is at Rico, Col., and doing admirably in heart and life, also financially. He says: "Often here in my humble log cabin up among the mountains, I wonder how God has preserved me as he has done in battle on land and sea, shipwrecked and cast away at sea, in the Zulu army, and in numerous accidents where I have barely escaped with my life, the last one being this winter when the terrible snow slide almost took me. However, God's hands have been with me in all my daily walks. Please tell all my old Christian friends that Jack is still firm and true to God and temperance, although alone up here among the mountains; and he does not forget to pray, and every day in his prayers he asks God's blessing on those kind Christian ladies who got him to look to God for life everlasting. I hope they pray for me. My life is a happy one though I have endured hardships and sickness; but faith in God lightens my load. Remember me most gratefully to Mrs. Cummings, that good lady who induced me to sign the pledge and first planted in my heart the seed of a better life, telling me to look to God for remission of the countless sins I had committed."

***

The prize of fifty dollars, offered by Mrs. George S. Hunt for the best essay by an undergraduate, on the "Relation of Temperance to Political Economy," ought to arouse much interest in colleges throughout the land. The plan meets with great favor among college men. In response to Mrs. Hunt's request, to act as judge, Professor Ely, of Johns Hopkins University, writes her: "It will give me much pleasure to comply with your request to act in the capacity of judge of the prize essays." As the date when the essays must be handed in, June 1, gives short time for the writing, all interested should make the offer known to their college friends as soon as possible.

***

Mrs. Ormiston Chant has been the guest of the Chicago Woman's Club for the past week. She lectured in Central Music Hall under the auspices of the Club, in behalf of the Industrial School for boys at Norwood Park. Wednesday afternoon the Club gave her a reception at its rooms in the Art Institute.

ON DUTY.

News from the Field.

RHODE ISLAND.

NEWS AND NOTES.

The broad and comprehensive nature of the work of the W. C. T. U. is perhaps more apparent in our state at the present time than during any previous year since its organization. We have been working in many ways during the past, but chiefly for state prohibition; first, as a position to be taken, and then as a strong fortress to be held against heavy odds, not only from foes without but from traitors within. For surely those who take the oath of office and then refuse or neglect to enforce the law, are traitors to all our free institutions. They have taught lessons of lawlessness that will not readily be unlearned. But all that is over. The fortress has been taken, but the war is not over, for "Defeat is not failure when spirits are brave."

We may liken our work to the current of a river: Obstructed in its way, without a pause it spreads out on either side, and, making new channels for itself, continues its course steadily on toward the great ocean of prohibition which shall yet lave all shores and become the highway of blessings to every land.

One of the new channels is in the direction of Working Girls' Clubs. Several of these have been formed in different parts of the state and are in successful operation. They adopt a constitution, pay a very small initiation fee and monthly dues. The object of these societies is mutual improvement and enjoyment, and to help the development of whatever possibilities lie in each. One at Westerly organized last October by Mrs. Harris (Hope Ledyard) under W. C. T. U. auspices, with forty members, now numbers over one hundred. The girls are taught how to cut by pattern, and how to baste and fit. Crocheting, embroidery, knitting and Kensington painting are also taught. They are given a short practical talk upon some topic of importance, and those in charge plan to increase the scope of usefulness by subscriptions for the leading periodicals, a public library, a cooking school and "all attainable things." The girls are mostly of Irish descent and enter into the work with interest and good-will.

At another place a club was organized a few weeks ago with five members. It now numbers more than thirty, and includes American, French and Irish girls.

The Y's of Pawtucket have a Girls' Club on another basis. They meet together for mutual helpfulness. Each brings her own work and one member is appointed to read aloud for an hour or two. They have twenty-five members.

Miss Allie E. Parker has found an attractive way of raising funds for the state and local W. C. T. Unions. It is an entertainment called the Mechanical Jubilee and Trades Procession. It has been given with great success in several places. When the products of the saloon keeper's business are placed side by side with those of legitimate industries, the contrast teaches it own lessons.

Birthday offerings presented to the state union represent in cents the age of the giver, or if this is too exact, a dollar is as readily accepted. Earnest efforts are being made to secure a publication fund large enough to place the Outlook, our state organ, on a firm financial basis. It is a valiant little paper, carrying sound temperance arguments and doctrines into many places that could not otherwise be reached. It was of inestimable value during our campaign work, and we still need it perhaps more than ever. If any in our state are questioning what they can do for temperance at this time they may be sure that practical results will follow any assistance given to this dauntless advocate of our principles.

Our president and corresponding secretary are here, there and everywhere, carrying instruction, encouragement and inspiration to all parts of the state. Washington county held a successful and profitable convention at Carolina. Eight of the eleven unions in the county were represented. The reports from these unions gave accounts of work accomplished on different lines, the growing evils of the saloons, and also the growth of public sentiment against them. The "children's hour" was an enjoyable feature. Large numbers of school children were ushered in, and after some well rendered songs, were addressed by Mrs. Helen G. Rice, of Boston, Mass., who kept their undivided attention. Mrs. Rice also gave the principal address of the evening.

Providence county met in convention at Woonsocket. Ten unions were represented by delegates and two by letter. Temperance instruction in schools, work among foreigners and press work were presented by their superintendents. The question box furnished material for animated discussion on many subjects. The Loyal Temperance Legion in goodly numbers attended the evening session. The addresses by our state president, the county vice-president, Mrs. G. F. Martins, and others were earnest and practical. After all expenses were paid over twenty-seven dollars were given into the state treasury.

The annual meeting of the Providence union showed good work done during the past year, and was made especially interesting by the presence of our honorary president, Mrs. J. K. Barney, and our ex-state organizer, Mrs. H. D. Walker. Mrs. Barney gave sketches of her work in Pennsylvania, which has been so wonderfully blessed. We rejoice that our little state has sent forth so consecrated a worker. Mrs. Walker, who also has a warm place in the hearts of Rhode Island women, has recently returned from Missouri, and gave graphic pictures of the work of the Crusaders.

Outside of convention work, parlor meetings, kitchen meetings, mothers' meetings, teachers' meetings, and meetings with school boards have been held; and one so-called "political meeting," as it came just before election. We think, however, our brothers would be slow to recognize it as such, for our politics are all of principle, and only touch parties as these ignore or sustain the great principles of prohibition. Four parties were in the field at this election, the Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and Union parties, the last being composed of those who have come out from the old parties on the temperance issue. The voting was close, and resulted in a Democratic majority. The Australian ballot system which was unjustly postponed last June, now came into operation for the first time.

And now how fares the license system? Three things were claimed for it. First, it would enrich the state; second, from its nature it was capable of regulation, and consequently would be rigidly enforced; and third, it would lessen crime. One item will show how it works in the first case. The General Assembly has been called upon to furnish fifty thousand dollars to provide adequate accommodations at the state farm to take care of the results of the liquor business. Two examples of enforcement (?) are as follows: A saloon keeper not far from Providence saw some children playing ball in an adjoining lot. In open violation of the law he went out and called them into his den and treated them to some kind of drink. Yet no penalty was attached. The reason he gave was that the temperance women were educating the children so that his business would be ruined if the taste were not formed in some way. Whose boy is safe? At another place, upon hearing that a saloon was to be opened, a protest was circulated and signed by every land owner but one—a saloon keeper—within the required limits, yet when the man went before the town council to receive his license it was granted.

A few statistics of arrests will decide the third point.

First, commitments to the State Work-house and House of Correction, reported by James H. Eastman, superintendent, show a decrease from 308 during the last six months of low license in 1885 to 141 during the first six months of prohibition, with 291 commitments for the six months from July 1 to December 30, 1889, under high license.

The commitments to the state almshouse during the first six months of prohibition were 114. During the first six months of high license, 151. Figures from Washington county jail show just double the number of commitments during the first six months of high license over those of prohibition. Newport police records show 171 under prohibition to 333 under license; Woonsocket, 258 to 480; and Pawtucket 105 to 121.

While reading these figures, we want to remember that prohibition made these gains with no political power back of it, while license is in the hands of its friends. And it will not be out of place just here to remark that "they have their hands full."

If this were simply a political issue, if these were only figures, we might look upon them calmly; but when we realize that every figure stands for a human soul, we shudder and turn cold. What a responsibility is ours!

"Let none then be idly saying
There is nothing I can do,
While the souls of men are dying,
And the Master calls for you."

MIRIAM EARLE, Special Correspondent.

TENNESSEE.

JOTTINGS.

The president of Maryville union writes that they have not missed a meeting throughout the winter, though there was much sickness among the members. They are getting up a new UNION SIGNAL club and supplying all the new ministers with copies, the old ones having them already. They keep up the Demorest medal contests, the ninth one being nearly ready, then they will begin to contest for the gold medal. These have been a great blessing to that community, having been carried on throughout the whole county, and kindled a blaze of temperance sentiment wherever held. From Tullahoma, where we held our last state convention, I have good reports. The secretary writes that they hold weekly meetings, with good attendance and increasing interest. They held union prayer meetings every day last week, and have been holding them every Sabbath afternoon throughout the winter, with good success. They circulated petitions for the Sunday Rest bill and are now circulating the World's Petition. They have a local superintendent for Sunday-school work and Sabbath observance, and on a recent Sunday had temperance sermons from all the pulpits with distribution of literature. They have also superintendents for hygiene and heredity, and social purity, and are reading, studying, and circulating literature. The secretary says: "The superintendent of franchise has also sent us literature, which we are reading in our meetings, and to which all of us say, amen." The president also writes: "I asked the ladies at the last meeting if they thought your suffrage lecture here had hurt the work, as some had feared it might, and they all said no, it had done good."

The president of Dayton, one of our new unions, is Mrs. Sarah A. Chace, a white-ribboner from Pennsylvania. She writes me that she is "one of the irrepressibles," and I can well believe it, and wish we had an army of them in the state. She writes that she had called meetings and addressed the women two or three times before she succeeded in organizing. And now she writes: "Our union is quite small, but we are doing just the best we can. I have the Sunday-school work, and have addressed all except two in Dayton and suburbs. Am trying to organize a Loyal Temperance Legion, but the work is slow. Have organized in two of the colored churches, and last Sabbath made a beginning in the M. E. church, of which I am a member. I have a set of Sewall's stomach plates, and after I have spoken in all the Sunday-schools, I expect to speak in as many of the churches as possible, and I think they will all be open to me, in and out of Dayton. I make my own appointments, take charge of my own meetings, circulate the pledge myself, and often go back and answer questions from the platform. We have secured half a column in each of our county papers, and fill them, and we keep literature at the depot. A revival is now going on in our church, and the pastor has asked me to take charge of the afternoon prayer meetings. I do hope I may be able to win some of the women to the work before they close." Now, dear sisters, I know the locality where this woman is at work. The people are poor, and money is hard to get. Won't some of you who have literature that you do not need send some to Mrs. Sarah A. Chace, Dayton, Rhea county, Tennessee?

The president of Morristown writes that they have just held their fifth medal contest inside of two months, and that each one has added a new impetus to the work. She says they have held weekly meetings during the winter with some new members. And speaking of medal contests, I neglected to say in the report of work in Tullahoma that they have a large class wearing the silver medal, and ere this, some boy or girl in that town is also wearing a gold medal.

From Athens the secretary writes of a new Loyal Temperance Legion organized in North Athens, and adds: "The old people attend the meetings also, and some of the mothers have given up snuff dipping, and some of the fathers have given up drinking."

Our superintendent of juvenile work has been very sick nearly all winter. A few days ago I received a short letter from her saying she was now able to sit up an hour at a time, and would soon call her little union together for work, and also send out the literature that was all ready to send when she was taken sick. So you see we have another irrepressible.

Of some of the good work of the Nashville unions their secretaries have kindly sent you accounts. The secretary of East Nashville union writes me that Mrs. Clara Hoffman was with them March 30 and 31, giving them "two grand lectures which resulted in much good in increased public sentiment, and also gave us eight regular and sixteen honorary members, and a cash collection of $8.20 the last night."

Mrs. Baxter writes of a late county convention, and gives items from its reports: "East Nashville showed many new members, and great interest in mothers' meetings, a colored school, and much literature circulated, also very successful parlor meetings. Oak View is a lovely union of young women and men, who meet weekly in their different homes; their exercises are reading, music and declamations. Mrs. Turnbull's Loyal Temperance Legion had a fine medal contest, a promising girl of twelve winning the medal. The North Nashville Mission is reported as doing well, and about self-sustaining. Central union reports much literature distributed, wall pockets at different places, committees for jail and hospital work and some new members. The Rev. Dr. Villars is also engaged by this union for a Sunday afternoon course of lectures, to be delivered in Watkins Hall." McKenzie Union is also working away, as it has never failed to do in the past six years. They have an excellent Loyal Temperance Legion, and have held quarterly public meetings, the children being the attraction, and they have had several medal contests.

Memphis union has had interesting meetings within the past month, with growing interest and some new members. Jail and hospital work, social purity, juvenile, and franchise work have been our principal objects; prohibition, social purity and suffrage literature has been regularly circulated. In February we had dear Mother Wallace with us. She gave the first lecture in the Christian church. It was largely attended and highly appreciated. The second was a parlor lecture given at my house. Although it rained that evening, we had a good audience, and I had a most enjoyable evening. Knoxville and Maryville also wanted her, but she was engaged. We hope to make up a trip for her during the summer.

Our superintendent of franchise, Mrs. E. J. Roach, of McKenzie, is scattering literature liberally among the unions and it is being read and discussed with much interest. May I be allowed to make a short statement, explaining the position of the Southern W. C. T. U., and correcting a mistake made by Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, in "Truth in the Case." A committee was appointed to review her statements, which they are doing in an unanswerable manner, but while I would not desire to intrude upon their province, I desire to say that I have been present at many conventions in southern states, have been made a member of these conventions, and have assisted in committee work, and hence am an eye and ear witness to the fact that in her statements regarding the non-committal amiability and non-partisan ignorance of the southern women on the questions of political prohibition and woman's ballot, Mrs. Foster is mistaken. Her idea, as expressed in many places within these pages, seems to be that the general officers have advised leaders of states not to encourage discussion of these subjects by their local unions. During the five years that I have been president of Tennessee I have never received a word of such advice from any of them, and I believe that every Southern president would give the same testimony if asked. On the contrary I have always been advised to bring up these subjects for discussion, to urge the women to read carefully, and then decide for themselves. I will make but two quotations. On page 125 Mrs. Foster says, "The southern ladies are among the choicest of W. C. T. U. women, and to their praise be it said, they have kept their work practically free from the distresses of partisanship. They vote for the partisan resolution at the National Convention, but they guard well their local work from its distracting influence." On page 140, Mrs. Florence Miller says: "The same is true of the suffrage question. The southern states do not indorse the position of the National union in relation to it; but under the declaration of 'freedom of states,' they hug the delusion that they have no part nor lot in this, to them, obnoxious indorsement."

I wonder if these ladies think that the National Minutes are never read, and that THE UNION SIGNAL is an unheard of publication throughout the rank and file of southern white-ribboners? Now let us see for ourselves what is "the truth in the case."

At the thirteenth annual convention of the Maryland W. C. T. U., a resolution favoring the ballot for women was adopted. At the fourteenth annual convention held in 1888, this resolution was discussed at length by the delegates, and after reaching a full understanding of the subject, the following amendment by Mrs. Thomas was adopted:

Resolved*, That we do all in our power, in the present crisis, toward placing this whole cause on the solid basis of prohibition, by giving our influence to the Prohibition Party, and by heartily indorsing the ballot in the hands of woman. But we wish it understood that this is not binding upon any local union.

And Maryland has not gone back upon this resolution.

The Arkansas W. C. T. U. held its sixth annual convention in Forrest City, May, 1884. On page 23 of the minutes of that convention, I find the following:

The committee on resolutions, through their chairman, Mrs. Chace, made the following report, which, after much spirited discussion, relating to the first resolution, was finally adopted:

Resolved, That the Woman's Christian Temperance Union approve the sentiment expressed by the Liquor Dealers' Association, viz.: That "the ballot in the hands of woman will be the death-blow to the liquor traffic," and that we will pray and labor to this end, that our Legislature may give us the right to help protect our homes against this terrible foe.

I was there and can testify to the "spirit" displayed in that discussion, also that the women engaged in it knew what they were talking about. I was also at the Little Rock convention in May, 1885, when, after full discussion, the following was adopted:

WHEREAS, The question of universal suffrage, in its relation to the final triumph of prohibition, is one on which some are unsettled, and others hold widely divergent views; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend that this important matter be carefully and prayerfully considered by all temperance women in the state of Arkansas, each for herself. As an association we stand by the resolution adopted at the state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held at Forrest City, May, 1884.

At Hagan, in 1886, we see the effect of that careful and prayerful consideration, in the unanimous adoption of the following:

Resolved, That as faithful followers of Divine openings, we confidently await the unfolding of God's good time when suffrage, regardless of sex, shall hasten the full triumph of National Prohibition.

The convention of 1887 met at Hope. I have not a copy of the minutes by me, but I was there, and I know they passed a ringing suffrage resolution, and one equally stanch in favor of the Prohibition Party; that Major J. L. Palmer was present and was called on for a speech, and at its close they elected delegates to the Indianapolis convention. So you see there was no suppression in that state, but the women educated themselves up to these positions.

The sixth annual convention of Mississippi met at Crystal Springs in April, 1889. Among their resolutions I read:

Resolved, That we as Christian women cannot lend our influence to any party which refuses to place a prohibition plank in its platform.

Resolved, That we believe women should be given the liberty of franchise in elections for superintendents of education and school trustees, but that to this franchise an educational test should be attached.

Resolved, That we petition the next Legislature to make women eligible for office as superintendents of education and members of school boards.

The Texas W. C. T. U. declared for woman's ballot two years ago, and took up the department of franchise work. At the last annual convention, held in Denison, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That we urge upon our sisters the home study of constitutional and statutory law, and request them to form neighborhood clubs for the study of political economy.

Resolved, That we believe there is no method of release from the bondage of the ignorant vote, except by placing an educational restriction on the ballot, irrespective of race or sex, and that with such a qualification, prohibition can be universally secured, and (which is far more important), universally enforced.

Resolved, That in the carrying out of these two reforms, which are really one and the same (their fittest emblem being the two sides of the same shield), we have become convinced that a political party dedicated to the proposition, "the saloon must go," is an absolute necessity, and we therefore pledge to the party that makes the issue our good word and good will.

Resolved, That we believe the name, "Home Protection Party," is far more desirable than that of Prohibition Party, and we hope our Texas brothers will adopt the same.

Lastly, We re-affirm our loyalty and devotion to our National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The Kentucky W. C. T. U. has always been loyal to the Prohibition Party, and her best workers and deepest thinkers are strong advocates of woman's ballot.

Tennessee has a department of franchise, with one of the oldest and best workers, the vice-president, as its superintendent. The following are among the resolutions passed at our last annual convention:

Resolved, That as prohibition women, we pledge our influence and efforts to that party which has given us, in its platform, an embodiment of prohibition principles, by which alone we can protect our homes.

Resolved, Believing (as a committee) that the right to political representation should not rest upon sex, or social condition; we therefore urge upon our workers the diligent, careful and conscientious study of all questions pertaining to the social, industrial, ecclesiastical and political advancement of woman.

There has been neither suppression, repression, nor oppression exercised by the general officers or the state leaders. Mrs. Snell was right, when she said, at our last National convention, "The southern woman is a born politician." And why not? Does not the blood of the fathers flow in the daughters' veins? And being so, they gravitate naturally to the study of these questions. Our women have always coöperated with the Prohibition Party as soon as a state party was organized. They did not wait to be converted to political prohibition by the men; they were there already, and only waited as a matter of courtesy for the brothers to catch up. The southern white-ribboner does not kneel at the altar of expediency, but at that of principle, and to her thought the proposition is so plain that "the way-faring man, though a fool, need not err therein;" that to be a Prohibitionist means to stand by the party that advocates prohibition.

LIDE MERIWETHER,
Special Correspondent.

NEW JERSEY.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. held its semi-annual Workers' Conference in the M. E. Church in Mauricetown, April 2. The county president, Miss A. F. Leavitt, conducted the exercises, assisted by Mrs. Anna M. Hammer, National superintendent of parlor work. The usual devotional exercises commenced the business of the day, after which the president invited all presidents of local unions to the front seats, preparatory to hearing their reports. There are twenty unions in the county, and from nineteen of these were received written or verbal reports. Although "la grippe" has visited severely every part of the county and somewhat retarded the work during the winter, yet now these dear sisters have come forth from the fire unscathed, with their watchword, "Onward and upward." Their departments of work were well represented, and they are ready to go forward fearlessly "to do and to dare." The question box, our special means of grace, for those too timid to "speak out in meeting," was well filled with pertinent questions and queries, which elicited pleasant discussion and clear, concise answers, giving much useful information concerning our work.

Our pleasure was saddened by the absence of two beloved presidents, always at their posts, who are now suffering with illness. Tenderly were they remembered in our prayers, and loving hands were commissioned to bear them messages of sympathy and sweet, bright flowers from our convention. The ladies of Mauricetown decorated their church beautifully with lovely plants and flowers, and in the lecture room of the church spread a sumptuous collation which was most thoroughly patronized by the one hundred guests present. For all these Christian hospitalities a hearty vote of thanks was tendered by the audience. In every respect we felt that this meeting—a departure somewhat from our former semi-annual meetings—was one of the most interesting, profitable and in every way enjoyable ever held in the county. In the evening Mrs. A. M. Hammer lectured in the M. E. Church and with her clear-cut truths, her earnestness and original eloquence held the deepest interest of a large audience the entire evening.

The W. C. T. U. of Vineland recently celebrated the birthday of their former president, Miss A. F. Leavitt, now county president of Cumberland county, by giving a W. C. T. U. "Calendar Tea" in temperance hall for the benefit of their reading room. The result was wholly satisfactory, both socially and financially, being the first social ever held by this union. During the evening Miss Leavitt was agreeably surprised by the presentation of a lovely basket of flowers from the union, presented with a neat speech by the president, Mrs. M. Keighley.

C. M. BURGE, Cor. Sec.

NEBRASKA.

SALINE COUNTY CONVENTION.

Our annual W. C. T. U. county convention was held in Tobias, April 9 and 10. The exercises on the first day were a consecration meeting conducted by Mrs. Troyer, and an able address by our worthy and estimable county president, Mrs. S. L. Corey. The response was given by "our veteran soldier" in the ranks of temperance, Mrs. M. Putnam; an interesting speech followed by Rev. Mr. Bennett, and one by the Rev. Mr. Orr; they were both highly appreciated and applauded.

In the evening Mrs. Jones gave the address of welcome, and it was so quietly and modestly given it gained her many friends and admirers; this was responded to by Mrs. Ellen Maynard in behalf of Miss Ballard, absent on account of illness; the speech was highly spoken of; she knows just what she is talking about, and talks right to the point. The choir interspersed the exercises with many beautiful temperance songs and won laurels of praise.

There were nine contestants for the Demorest gold medal, and every one without an exception spoke with culture, grace, and expression, and plainly showed training of the highest order. The honor was given to Miss Dann, of DeWitt, and she was worthy of it in every respect.

Several unions were represented at the convention and the delegates were all enthusiastic workers in the cause. The second day Mrs. Putnam, the district president, gave a very interesting and instructive address, and the remainder of the time was devoted exclusively to business. It was then decided to have an amendment convention at Western sometime in October, the date to be left to the central committee. The next annual convention will be held at DeWitt. The Rev. Mr. Shephend gave a fine lecture on the amendment in the evening; it was listened to with great interest. The welcome and entertainment given us by the ladies of Tobias were so cordial and kind that we shall always remember them with grateful love.

MRS. ELLEN M. MAYNARD.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LACKAWANNA COUNTY W. C. T. U. MID-YEAR CONVENTION AND SCHOOL OF METHODS.

This was held at Moosic March 20. Mrs. Olive Pond Annis, our newly-elected president, who is also state recording secretary presided at the three sessions. We are justly proud of her, and she of her able corps of active, earnest temperance workers. There was a large attendance, nearly every union in the county sending its delegates. The topics of the eleven papers read were along the line of work marked out for the present year. All of these were carefully prepared and full of earnest practical thoughts; in fact they were so good that The People, our county temperance paper, is giving them weekly to its readers. We were hospitably entertained by the Moosic union, and the workers present were bright, happy and hopeful.

Lackawanna county entertains the Pennsylvania state convention next fall, at Scranton. A most prosperous and successful convention is anticipated. We do not find ourselves suffering from any collapse because of the amendment campaign of last June, but are steadily pressing on to the goal of our aspiration, the suppression of the liquor traffic.

MRS. PIERCE BUTLER, Rec. Sec.

MCKEAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The largest W. C. T. U. convention ever held in this county was the one at Rixford, April 10 and 11. The president, Mrs. Andrews, had sent out word, "We are ready for one hundred delegates." We had more than that number, there being one hundred and twelve visitors and delegates, and yet the hospitality of the citizens was not exhausted. The cry was, "There are more places than guests." There were the greatest enthusiasm and harmony. Rixford is a little oil town, with remarkably intelligent and moral citizens. I was struck with their fine stores, which had a very prosperous look for so small a place. At length the reason dawned upon me. It was that they have had no saloons for two or three years. So in place of these, with their red-nosed loafers, I saw business places for the sale of carpets, fine groceries and dry-goods, all with a thrifty look. It was a treat to us who went from Bradford with her twenty high-licensed, well-protected saloons, to be for two days without seeing a drunken man. The unions have all kept up their numbers and interest in spite of the terrible roads and unusual sickness. There is no thought of going backward. A resolution was passed to work for one thousand members by the time of our annual convention in the fall. There is no dissension, and if any are dissatisfied we do not know it.

We had Mrs. Caroline B. Buell with us during the entire time. The school of methods conducted by her was a success. The eager questions from the sisters who are so anxious to improve in their work were answered by her most satisfactorily, and her addresses were enjoyed by all who heard her. The spiritual, the physical and the legal sides of our work received close attention. The charts which she used in illustrating the effect of alcohol and nicotine upon the body, made a deep impression. I hope we may have her again. Mrs. Buell will spend about ten days lecturing in the county. Her lesson on "Evangelistic Work" gave the key-note of spirituality to the entire session. One minister, Rev. Mr. Pickett, M. E. pastor of Duke Center, said he never knew what consecration meant until he came to see the spirit of the W. C. T. U. Several subscriptions for THE UNION SIGNAL were secured by that tireless worker, Mrs. Stewart.

MRS. E. M. FRITTS, Cor. Sec.

CRAWFORD COUNTY CONVENTION.

This met in Linesville April 22-24. The first session was Y evening, and was very entertaining, some of the "honoraries" coming to the front with recitations and songs.

At the regular morning session business was taken up; after delegates were seated and committees appointed, reports were read from local unions. These reports were very encouraging, showing an increase in numbers all over the county.

During the convention papers were read on the following subjects: "Unfermented Wine," "The Needs of a New Union" and "Scientific Temperance Instruction." Interesting discussions were held after each paper. Mrs. M. B. Ross, our county president, was appointed to visit the school directors of the county, in the interest of the department of scientific temperance instruction, to urge them to adopt better text books in the schools. This seems to be the special work for us at present. At Y conference juvenile work and literature were discussed. The Y's seem to be especially interested in juvenile work, and report several Demorest medal contests held.

Miss Vandelia Varnum lectured Wednesday on the subject, "Who Cares?" and on Thursday evening on "License High or Low." The lectures were well attended, the hall being filled to overflowing each evening. Miss Varnum has been in Crawford county several months and the good she has accomplished can not be estimated. New unions have been organized, old ones strengthened, and all filled with zeal. Our convention was the most successful one we have ever held in this county. Harmony prevailed throughout all the sessions. Resolutions were adopted as follows:

We would re-affirm that intemperance, as commonly understood, is both in its immediate and remote results the greatest of physical, social, and moral evils. Therefore be it

Resolved, That as members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, we still declare our uncompromising hostility to any system of license in alcoholic drinks as a beverage, be that license high or low.

Resolved, That we will use our best efforts to educate the children and instruct them on the effects of stimulants, especially alcohol and tobacco.

Resolved, That it is the belief of this convention that the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union is, and always has been, non-sectarian and non-partisan in the true sense of the words, therefore we continue to pledge our allegiance to the National organization.

Resolved, That we desire full franchise for woman, believing that thereby temperance reform, the social purity reform, and all other moral questions will be greatly advanced.

Resolved, That we urge upon the unions a more careful study of the laws of health in regard to food being properly prepared, and when opportunity offers, take up this work in their unions.

Resolved, That we extend our most hearty thanks to the railroad companies for the liberal rates furnished, and to the good people of Linesville, who at so much expense furnished us this beautiful hall in which to hold our meetings, and the bountiful hospitality of their homes, also to the Tribune reporter who has so patiently endeavored to gather the best of our convention work to give to the public for the benefit of the temperance cause.

MERTIE HASELTINE, Rec. Sec.

MICHIGAN.

WORK AT DETROIT.

The Willard W. C. T. U. of this city, on Tuesday, April 8, indorsed the action of the Germantown, Pa., W. C. T. U. relating to the "increased appropriations for the navy, and for coast defenses," and asked their president to inform you of the fact and also to call your attention to the opportunity now open for the National W. C. T. U. or the local unions en masse to bring to bear all the moral force at their command on this subject and aim to hit. It is a notable fact that public opinion expressed by the masses, has in the past had more influence on Congress and the Legislatures than any other methods or action that can be brought to bear upon them. The following extract explains the action of the Germantown union:

Resolved, That our county stands in no need of such extraordinary provisions either for protection or attack, and that the proposed expenditures would be as unwise as they are uncalled for, and if carried out, would be far more likely to provoke aggression and war, than to avoid them. Also

Resolved, That we write to our Senator and Representative at Washington, urging them to oppose this unnecessary appropriation of our government funds, and calling to their attention the fact that many internal improvements are needed, such as bridges, good roads, etc.,—and, I would add, free schools for the illiterate, and compulsory education, if possible, by National laws.

MRS. H. N. P. BLODGET.

KALAMAZOO COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. held its second annual convention at the Cooper Congregational Church, beginning Tuesday evening April 1, with an entertainment by the local organizations of the Loyal Temperance Legion, Y's and Temperance Cadets, and closing Thursday evening, April 3, with a Demorest medal contest, the intervening days and evening being given to convention work, each session being full of interest to those in attendance. Papers were given on Sunday-school work, social purity, heredity and franchises, also "Who is most concerned in the Liquor Traffic?" and "Why not?" The number and quality evinced the earnestness of the workers in the cause.

Wednesday evening the address of welcome was given by Rev. S. A. Long, pastor of the Congregational Church, and the response by Mrs. L. C. Webber of Vicksburg. The address of the president, Mrs. F. L. Brown, followed, which was heartily indorsed. Mrs. Pengelly conducted a conversation on tobacco. A fine recitation, "A Dream," by John B. Gough, was given by Miss Sophia Dunham. A recitation, "The Speckled Hen," by our president's little daughter, Miss Eleanor Brown, was heartily encored; then the reading by the president of an original poem by Mrs. M. E. Shout of Corunna written for the convention, entitled "The Crusades," closed the evening.

Thursday evening the Demorest medal contest was given, there being seven contestants, all of whom acquitted themselves creditably, the successful one being Miss Melora Beardsley, The presentation of the medal and the benediction, by Rev. S. A. Long, closed the convention which all pronounced a success.

The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. F. L. Brown, Kalamazoo; vice-president, Mrs. E. H. Beardsley, Schoolcraft; recording secretary, Mrs. Ida Newton, Cooper; treasurer, Mrs. L. C. Webber, Vicksburg.

The following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, The W. C. T. U., since its last convention has been unwarrantably criticised by the secular press on account of its strong annunciation for political prohibition, and

WHEREAS, A few of the members of the organization thought it wise to leave and organize what they were pleased to call a non-partisan W. C. T. U., therefore

Resolved, That as Kalamazoo county W. C. T. U. in convention assembled, we declare ourselves in all things loyal to the National society and pledge ourselves at all times and places to stand faithfully by the officers and carry out as far as possible their every instruction.

MRS. IDA NEWTON, Rec. Sec.

NEW YORK.

WORK AT DUNDEE.

Two years ago the W. C. T. U. resolved that if it was in their power to prevent, no liquor should be sold on the Dundee fair ground that year, where, for so many years, drunkenness and gambling had held full sway. Accordingly they purchased the right to sell refreshments and all drinks served on the grounds, and the officers of the fair pledged themselves to allow no drinking of liquors or gambling on the grounds that year. So the white-ribbon women stood at their post all through the three days' fair furnishing tempting lunches and such drinks as coffee, chocolate, lemonade, milk, buttermilk, and plenty of pure cold water to the hungry, thirsty crowd, and at the same time distributing temperance literature. Of course the next year our law in regard to state and county fairs was passed, and there was no need of the same kind of labor; but, the seed sown during that first temperance fair has fallen upon good ground, and borne fruit abundantly. Assisted by the two faithful pastors mentioned below, who have helped them in every possible way, the W. C. T. U. now rejoice in a great victory for no license.

One year ago the town of Starkey was carried by a majority of one hundred and seventy-two for no-license. Two commissioners were elected and this gave the anti-license men control of the board. No licenses were granted.

The village of Dundee is in the town of Starkey and has had four saloons and hotels. These liquor-dealers refused to comply with the will of the majority and bade defiance to the law. They continued to sell more or less openly until October, when W. Martin Jones was employed by the Rev. Stanley B. Roberts, of the Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Jesse A. Hungate, of the Dundee Baptist church, to prosecute the offenders. He came and the liquor-dealers were soon confronted by such an overwhelming mass of testimony that they pleaded guilty, and nominal fines, amounting in all to $185, were imposed by Justice Abel Ward. This appeared to be an easy way for the saloon-keepers to carry on their nefarious business, and so they continued. About the middle of December the even tenor of their way was again disturbed by W. Martin Jones, backed by the above-named clergymen. A supreme court writ was served upon the four liquor-dealers, setting forth forty counts, under the statute of 1857, claiming damages in the name of the town for $2,000 and costs in each case. This action brought consternation into the camp of the liquorites and threats were made in every direction. Prophecies that the town would go heavily for license were heard from every side.

The campaign opened; both sides worked all their forces; a paper was published by the temperance people; the Rev. H. J. Whalen spent a week with grand results following, and meetings were held in every part of the town. February 25 the vote was cast, resulting in an overwhelming triumph for temperance—185 majority for no-license. The vote stood 445 no, and 260 yes. The no-license infection spread through the county, and seven of the nine towns of Yates recorded their verdict against the saloon.

What we want is agitation from pulpit, press, home, school and street, and by and by the victory will be for right, for the truth, and for God. COR. SEC.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

IF any one has a second-hand baby carriage to give to a lame little one, who without it will be confined continually to the hot, close room of a tenement house, she will confer a very great favor by notifying the Talcott Day Nursery, 169 Adams street, of the fact.

MISS PUGH sends the following: " 'A friend of Nebraska' sends two dollars for that fund with request that it be acknowledged in THE UNION SIGNAL; as there is no clue to the sender, we do so, but cannot thus acknowledge money. A considerable sum has been received and the total amount will be given at the close of the campaign."

THE union at Bement, Ill., expects soon to hold its eighth silver medal contest. There are now no saloons in this town nor in Piatt county. The W. C. T. U. has recently presented a beautiful flag to the public school.

To avoid delay, any one ordering Mrs. E. S. Moffat's "Soldiers' Shield and Buckler" for the Bible text folio for memorial day should be careful to note Mrs. Moffat's change in address from Port Huron, Mich., to Tacoma, Wash.

THE unions at Fayette, Strawberry and Clarinda, Iowa, have all passed strong resolutions of loyalty to the National W. C. T. U., and disapproval of the action of the seceders in withdrawing from the National society.

MRS. GRUBB writes as follows: "I notice in THE UNION SIGNAL a letter from the Nebraska state superintendent of foreign work in which she says, 'Mrs. Grubb has sent into the state, free, nearly two thousand pages of foreign tracts.' I presume she meant to say 'nearly twenty thousand pages,' which I had sent at the time she was writing; now the number is about thirty-five thousand and packages still going. If my foreigners don't vote for prohibition in Nebraska next November, it shall not be for lack of knowledge."

THE Christian temperance women of Fredonia, N. Y., knowing that the politicians were determined to impose licensed liquor selling upon their beautiful village again, determined to make a strong effort to defeat this. Armed with coffee-pots and lunch baskets, more than seventy devoted women repaired to the village hall on election day. They had the cordial coöperation of many true-hearted brothers in their undertaking. A correspondent thus tells the result: "The influence of their presence and kind words, the social cheer they brought, and more than all, the blessing of the Hearer of prayer, changed the vote, and a large majority was secured for no license."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The seventh annual convention of the fourth district of Missouri will be held in Hopkins, May 8 and 9. Mrs. Hoffman, the state president, will be with us, and a Demorest medal contest will be a feature of this annual gathering. Local unions are urged to send delegates, and all temperance workers most cordially invited to attend.

LILLIAN WOOD, Pres.
JULIA GLAZIER, Sec.

The eighth annual convention of the Missouri W. C. T. U. will be held in Pickwick Theater, St. Louis, May 21–23. Miss Willard will speak Tuesday evening, May 20, Mrs. L. S. Rounds, of Illinois, on Wednesday evening, May 21, and there will be a Demorest gold medal contest on the evening of the 22. Reserved seats for Miss Willard's lecture can be secured by sending name and fifty cents to Mrs. F. H. Ingalls, 4119 Westminster Place, St. Louis; reserved seats for entire convention can be secured by visitors for one dollar each, by addressing same. Send names of delegates to Mrs. J. H. Irwin, 3670 Finney avenue, St. Louis, chairman of reception committee.

CLARA C. HOFFMAN, Pres.
ELLEN D. MORRIS, Cor. Sec.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Arkansas W. C. T. U. will be held at Van Buren, May 10-13, in the Methodist Church. Executive committee, standing committee on finance and headquarters and superintendents of departments will meet at the same place Friday, May 9. Mrs. J. K. Barney, National superintendent of prison and jail work will be with us during part of the time. She is on a tour in the south in the interest of her department. Reduced fare, one and one-third for round trip has been granted to all members of the convention and visitors attending.

LYDIA M. CHACE, Pres.
SARA K. HART, Cor. Sec.

The third annual convention of the seventh district, Kentucky W. C. T U., will be held in the Opera House, Cynthiana, May 22, 23. It should be the fervent prayer, as it is the earnest desire of every white-ribboner in the district, that our state president be restored to health, after so long and serious an illness, and be with us to add to the pleasure and profit of the meeting.

MRS. WARREN CLAYTON, Pres.
MRS. G. H. GIVENS, Cor. Sec.

WORLD'S W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Emma C. Packe, of Christ Church, is now World's W. C. T. U. secretary for New Zealand, and Mrs. Catharine Fulton, of Dunedin, president of the local union there, is president of New Zealand W. C. T. U. Mrs. Packe writes of her as follows: "She is a good and holy woman, has great interest in temperance work, and has now gained five years experience; she has attended all our annual meetings, and I doubt not she is God's choice as well as New Zealand's." The New Zealand W. C. T. U. is arranging for a depository of the W. T. P. A.; this is practical, as temperance literature must be always our best weapon.

From recent information concerning the movements of Mrs. E. H. Bradley, of England, it becomes necessary for the American committee of the World's W. C. T. U., consisting of Miss Willard, Mrs. Buell, Mrs. Woodbridge, Mrs. Stevens and Miss Pugh, to state that she represents neither the World's nor the National W. C. T. U. The W. C. T. Unions the world over are requested to note this action.

Official Communications.

SCIENTIFIC INSTRUCTION.

THE PRIZE ESSAY.

So many inquiries come to me about the prize essay on "The Relation of the Temperance Question to Political Economy," that I send the enclosed:

The prize offered is $50.

The competitors must be undergraduates now in college.

The essay must not exceed eight thousand words.

A committee may be appointed in each college to decide upon the relative merits of the essays. The essay considered the most meritorious in each college must be sent by June 1 to Prof. Richard T. Ely, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., for final judgment.

Essays which fail to win the prize may be returned to the writer, provided an addressed, stamped envelope be sent with the essay.

MRS. G. S. HUNT,
Asso. Supt. Scientific Instruction.

RECEIPTS FOR TEMPERANCE TEMPLE.

Arkansas—Per Mrs. Chace, Little Rock, $4; Eureka Springs W. C. T. U. and Baby Band, $5.45.

California—Washington Colony Baby Band, $4.40; Fresno, Mrs. L. S. Hale, $3.

South Carolina—Laurens C. H., Dudley and Stevo Young, $3.65.

Connecticut—Meriden W. C. T. U., $30.43.

South Dakota—Hurley W. C. T. U., $3.

District of Columbia—Washington, Vivian Church, $1.

Florida— ———$50.

Idaho—Eagle Rock W. C. T. U., $5.50.

Illinois—Chester W. C. T. U., $6.50; Rock Falls, Baby Band, $1; E. L. Galt, $5; E. A. Emmons, Mrs. Florence Stanley, $1 each; others $1; Sterling, Baby Band, $1; Dr. Jane Reid, $1; Franklin Grove, Baby Band, $1; Mrs. Dr. Grim, $2; E. E. Hussey, $1; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Brown, $2; Mrs. R. A. Canterberry, $1; cash 50 cents; F. D. Lahman, J. D. Lahman, Mrs. E. C. Crawford, C. Durkee, Chas. Hansen, J. D. Sitts, one dollar each. Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lahman, $3; cash $1.10; Freeport Baby Band, 50 cents; others $2; Dixon, Baby Band, $2; Mrs. Bunker, Mrs. Utley, T. J. Miller, F. G. Chapman, Albert Johnson, Elias Bovey, J. H. Thompson, Mrs. R. Trowbridge, E. Camp, Mrs. W. N. Johnson, Mrs. Jos. Crawford, Steinman & Murch, one dollar each. Mrs. Wm. Dysart, $2; others $5; Chicago W. C. T. U., Wicker Park, $5.25; St. Charles, Emma Hammond, $1; Brighton, in memoriam, per Mrs. Margaret Hackney, $10; Ridgefield W. C. T. U., $1; Dixon Loyal Temperance Legion, $3.30; Chicago, Mrs. Mott, $7.75; Marengo, per Mrs. Colver, $2.50; Shabbona W. C. T. U., $34; Rock Falls W. C. T. U., $5; Chicago, J. L. Forrest, $75; Mrs. D. Fuller, $10; Highland Park, Baby Band, $6.30; Mrs. Cordelia Kennicott, $100.

Indiana—Indianapolis, Mrs. Prettyman, $1.53; Westfield, $2; (sent August 10, 1888.)

Iowa—Denison, Mrs. H. C. Laub, $50.35; Edgewood W. C. T. U., $5; Burt, Mrs. L. M. Stow, $5; Springdale, Jane H. Miles, 60 cents.

Kansas—Idana, per Mote Foster, $5; Denison, Maggie Mulligan, 63 cents.

Kentucky—W. C. T. U., Lexington, $5.

Maryland—Buckeystown W. C. T. U., $21.90; Pocomoke City, Mrs. I. D. Love, $1; others, $2.40; Coopstown W. C. T. U., $25.

Massachusetts—Roxbury, Emily P. Whitten, $5; Provincetown, W. P. Smith, 10 cents; W. C. T. U., $13.65; N. Egremont W. C. T. U., $1; Westport Loyal Temperance Legion, $1; West Newton, in memoriam Robt. N. Waite, $1.25; Worcester W. C. T. U. No. 2, $22.75; Westfield W. C. T. U., $8; Bedford Y. W. C. T. U., $5; Shelburne Falls W. C. T. U., $1.45; E. Saugus Y. W. C. T. U., $10.

Michigan—W. C. T. U., Clio, $8.78; Carleton, Mrs. E. Newcomb, $3.66; Muskegon, in memoriam L. Frank Lake, $1; Morenci W. C. T. U., $5; Allendale Baby Band, $2.20; Carleton, Mrs. Watson, $3.65; Mrs. Gee, 50c.; Fenton Baby Band, $3.40; Mrs. A. J. Phillips, $3.65; Pittsford Y. W. C. T. U., $1.

Minnesota—Spring Valley W. C. T. U., $3; Beaver Creek Baby Band, $1; Mrs. C. O. Crawford, $1; Fisher Baby Band, $3.

Missouri—Osceola, Mrs. E. L. Landes, $2.25; Mexico, W. C. T. U., $2.50.

Nebraska—Loyal Temperance Legion, Palmyra, $5; South Omaha children, $1.30.

New Hampshire—New Hampton, Mrs. M. E. Scribner, $3.65; Belmont Baby Band, $2.

New Jersey—Rosenhayn Veteran Band, $10; Elmer, Mrs. Harriet Elwell, Lizzie Hitchin, $1 each; New Brunswick, E. G. Whitman, 30c.

New York—Lansingburgh Baby Band, $1.60; W. C. T. U. Madison avenue, Baby Band, $10.20; W. C. T. U. $13.50; Rathboneville, per Mrs. B. F. Whitmon, 25c.; Buffalo, J. W. Grosvenor, $2.50.

Ohio—Bissell's W. C. T. U., $6.75; Baby Band, $1; North Ridgeville W. C. T. U., $2; Lockland, Mrs. Sarah Shephard, $10; Berea, Mrs. J. F. Hulet, $1; Cadiz, Mrs. Rachel Greer, $1; Mt. Sterling W. C. T. U., $5; Atwater Station Baby Band, $2; Norwalk, Mrs. James Buck, $3.65.

Oregon—Stayton, L. A. Osborne, $4, New Era W. C. T. U., $2.25; Mrs. Hannah Brown, $1; The Dalles Y. W. C. T. U., $10.

Pennsylvania—Wampum, Nellie Morrow, 10 cents; Laurel Hill W. C. T. U., $5; Dunbar Baby Band, $2; Lake Como, Mrs. Anna Lakin, $3.65; Colegrove Baby Band, $2.50; Independence W. C. T. U., $5.

Rhode Island—Providence Baby Band, $5.

Washington, West—Mrs. Brewster, Port Angeles, 20c.

Washington, East—Walla Walla, Claude Bagley, $2.

Wisconsin—Madison, Baby Band, $1.10; Mrs. Raynur, Mr. Mills, Mrs. Brand, Mrs. Lamberson, Mrs. Hudson, Mr. Vernon, Mr. Thompson, H. L. Gordon, Mrs. Fisher, Mr. Wright, $1 each; others, 90 cents; Baraboo Baby Band, $2.50; Mrs. Dr. English, Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Stanley, R. M. Strong, $1 each; others $1.50; Madison, Loyal Temperance Legion, $1.50; Eau Claire, Baby Band, $4; Loyal Temperance Legion, $4.50; Eureka W. C. T. U., $5; Racine, Miss S. H. Leet, $50; Elk Mound, in memoriam, Geo. E. Whitney, $1.

Tennessee—W. C. T. U. and Loyal Temperance Legion, North Nashville, $1.40.

Texas—Mrs. G. F. Marchbank, Waxahackie, 50 cents; Sales of articles, $8.05; interest received, $119.37.

April 26, 1890. ESTHER PUGH.
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Money credited in last list to Goldendale, Washington, should be East Washington. Also the credit to Eureka W. C. T. U., Wisconsin, should be Fox River W. C. T. U.

Publisher's Dep't.

ONE MORE PULL.

Did you ever row a boat? Do you remember how you may have tugged and tugged against the current, now and then glancing over your shoulder to see how near the landing may have been? And how, with two or three great efforts, you could unship the oars and let your boat glide smoothly and easily to the desired haven? For five years we have tugged against adverse currents, which have steadily murmured as they passed, "Too many other papers now; can't afford it; no time to read it," etc., etc., but in spite of those many-times repeated words, our UNION SIGNAL boat has crept along up and up, always up, until now it stems the current at 85,000. Will you take a hand at the oars? It is easy work for some, hard for others, but worth doing. Worth doing? It is the Master's work. Is that worth doing? Now we are so near that 100,000 mark, and shall our efforts cease? Out of our 85,000 subscribers can we not find 15,000 who will each get one subscriber at $1.00

BEFORE JULY 1st?

Let us take May and June for that grand final tug and reach the 100,000 mark with a splendid rush of victory! If successful, and we must be, we promise to set no more goals till '91 at least! We would expect, of course, to do all possible to induce work for new subscribers, but this particular success must be attained. The quiet, steady work can come afterward. We want to give you an incentive worth your attention.

WHAT SHALL IT BE?

How would you like a first-class picture of Miss Willard in oil colors? A picture from the brush of a first-class artist? By modern processes of reproduction we can send you a fac simile of the work full life size, and we will do it. That is, will send such a picture to all who will get us one or more new subscribers, the 15,000 are gained by July 1st. There never has been a really good, large, picture of Miss Willard sent out. We have not yet asked her consent but feel sure that, for the sake of the 15,000 new friends to be gained, Miss Willard will give the special sittings, so that the best picture of her ever made shall be sent out. Suppose we settle on that, and if by July 1st the 100,000 mark shall be reached, all who have sent in one or more new names and have said it is with the expectation of getting this new and elegant life-size portrait of Miss Willard in colors shall have it? Not at once—it will take some months to get such a picture ready, but it will come along in good season for a lovely holiday gift.

PROVIDING

This picture is only for those who go to the trouble of getting us new subscribers. It is not for the new subscriber.

THIS IS IMPORTANT!

It is not to be for sale. We will hold it strictly as a reward for getting us new subscribers.

Now for the Goal!
Lend a hand!
Do NOT wait a moment!

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Pastors and S. S. Supts. Send name and address on postal card, and receive free copies of S. S. supplies. Add. Rev. P. W. Raidabaugh, Cleveland, O.

Count Tolstoi in the preface to the Russian translation of TOKOLOGY, a book for every woman, says: "This book is not one of those which one reads that it may be said he has read the book, but is one which induces one to change his life, to correct its wrongs. One learns that there is no need of living as absurdly as our grandparents have done. Women will find in this book many precious teachings which will lighten their own lives as well as those of their husbands and children;" 150,000 have already been sold and agents recanvass towns even more successfully than the first introduction. Sample pages and terms to agents free. Sent prepaid, cloth, $2; morocco, $2.75. Address
ALICE B. STOCKHAM & Co.,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

MR. JERE HOLLIS, Macon, Ga., says: For twenty-one years I have been afflicted with severe Headaches caused by pressure of blood on the optic nerve, and could not get relief from anything until I tried Bradycrotine.

In these days when there are so many unreliable remedies on the market, it is no more than right that our readers should know more about the Temperance Tea Tonic Company of Atlanta, Ga., who are advertising in our columns. These remedies are prepared by Dr. J. F.V. Saul, who is the husband of Mrs. Saul, the white-ribboner who has done such faithful work among the railroad men of Kentucky. The company is composed of Col. H. C. Johnson, Dr. J. O. Perkins, Dr. J. F. V. Saul and Mr. R. E. Saul, gentlemen whose position as business men in Atlanta would not admit of their connection with anything that savored of fraud or humbug, and as Christian gentlemen they would not if they could. We hope our readers will take pains to ascertain the merits of their remedies as advertised in THE UNION SIGNAL.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS
Beware of imitations Notice autograph of
STEWART HARTSHORN
on label and get the genuine Hartshorn.

CHILDREN'S DAY HORAL Nos. 1 and 2. Two superior complete Programs of 16 pages each. With additional pages of choice Recitations. For Children's Day, or Flower Sunday. Sample copies, 12 cents for the two, or 6 cents each. R. R. McCABE & CO., 68 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Lady Agents wanted, also men in every state to sell our Rug Machine, Patterns, Yarn, etc. Write for catalogue and particulars at once. Gibbs Mfg. Co., 88 State St., Chicago.

Send 6c. for sample Silk Dress Goods Chicago Silk Dress Goods Co., 154 La Salle St., Chicago.

TWELVE
samples of our Black Silk Dress Patterns
FREE
to any lady who will mail her address on a postal card to
O. S. CHAFFEE & SON,
Mansfield Centre, Conn.

O. S. Chaffee & Son are manufacturers of the finest and best Black Silk Dress Goods made, and they ship direct from their mills to individuals hence in buying from them you get all the profits usually made by the store. Buy of them and get a perfect dress.

"Thrift is a good revenue. Great Saving results from cleanliness and SAPOLIO: It is a solid cake of scouring soap. Try it in your next house-cleaning and be happy.

Looking out over the many homes of this country, we see thousands of women wearing away their lives in household drudgery that might be materially lessened by the use of a few cakes of SAPOLIO. If an hour is saved each time a cake is used, if one less wrinkle gathers upon the face because the toil is lightened, she must be a foolish woman who would hesitate to make the experiment, and he a churlish husband who would grudge the few cents which it costs.

The Superiority of the Insurance Furnished to its Members by is aptly illustrated by the fact that notwithstanding the general prevalence of the influenza last winter our death-rate for the months of January, February and March, 1890, is no greater than for the same months of 1889.

The Total Abstinence Life Association of America

In other Associations which admit drinking men and in the old line Companies the death-rate in 1890 for the months named is greatly increased over that of 1889, in some instances being more than doubled.

Our death-rate in 1889 was five per thousand per annum, and the prospect now is, that it will not exceed that very low rate for 1889.

The average death-rate in the old line Companies for 1889 exceeded fourteen per thousand per annum, and the average of Associations which have not the Total Abstinence requirement was fully as great.

Our Total Abstinence requirement is an exceedingly important factor, which makes our co-operative insurance both cheaper and more reliable than can be had elsewhere.

Cheaper because we pay for only the actual death losses, and a low death-rate means small cost to the insured.

More reliable because of the moral worth and intelligence of our members who are all Total Abstainers, and who appreciate the fact that our plan is founded in equity and based upon correct business principles. Liberal terms to agents.

For circulars and particulars address

WM. F. SINGLETON, President.
Royal Insurance Building, Chicago, Ill.

Alabastine Only Permanent Wall Coating. Never scales, like calcimines. Never generates disease like wall paper. No washing or scraping walls. Can renew coats indefinitely. Easily applied. Alabastine Co., Grand Rapids, Mich. See THE UNION SIGNAL April 17.

Homeseekers' and Harvest Excursions South, at One-Half Rates, via Illinois Central R. R

On April 22d, May 20th, September 9th and 23d, and October 14th, 1890, the Illinois Central Railroad will sell Excursion Tickets at one fare for the round trip to all stations on its line in Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, excepting Memphis and New Orleans.

Tickets are limited to return within thirty days, and are good for stop-over privileges south of Cairo, both going and returning. The following are the principal points where northern people are settling:

Jackson, Tenn.	Brookhaven, Miss.
Holly Springs, Miss.	McComb City, Miss.
Durant, Miss.	Kentwood, La.
Aberdeen, Miss.	Roseland, La.
Canton, Miss.	Amite, La.
Jackson, Miss.	Hammond, La.
Terry, Miss.	Jeannerette, La.
Crystal Springs, Miss.	Jennings, La.
Wesson, Miss.	Lake Charles, La.

For through tickets, rates, etc., apply to nearest Ticket Agent. For further information and copies of the "Southern Homeseekers' Guide" and "Farmers' and Fruit Growers' Guide to McComb City," apply to F. B. BOWES,
Gen'l Northern Pass. Agent,
194 Clark St., CHICAGO

A $5 Book For $1.00. How To Build A House.

If you are thinking of building a house you ought to buy the new book, Palliser's American Architecture, or every man a complete builder, prepared by Palliser, Palliser & Co., the well known architects.

There is not a Builder or any one intending to Build or otherwise interested that can afford to be without it. It is a practical work and everybody buys it. The best, cheapest and most popular work ever issued on Building. Nearly four hundred drawings. A $5 book in size and style, but we have determined to make it meet the popular demand, to suit the times, so that it can be easily reached by all.

This book contains 104 pages 11 x 14 inches in size, and consists of large 9 x 12 plate pages giving plans, elevations, perspective views, descriptions, owners' names, actual cost of construction, no guess work, and instructions How to Build 70 Cottages, Villas, Double Houses, Brick Block Houses, suitable for city suburbs, town and country, houses for the farm and workingmen's homes for all sections of the country, and costing from $300 to $6,500; also Barns, Stables, School House, Town Hall, Churches, and other public buildings, together with specifications, form of contract, and a large amount of information on the erection of buildings, selection of site, employment of Architects. It is worth $5.00 to any one, but I will send it in paper cover by mail postpaid on receipt of $1.00; bound in cloth, $2.00. Address all orders to J. S. OGILVIE, PUBLISHER, P. O. Box 2767. 57 Rose St., New York.

PIANOS—$35—ORGANS
Examine in your HOME before PAYING. Manufacturer's Prices. No Agents. Write for particulars. Address, THE T. SWOGER & SON PIANOS & ORGANS BEAVER FALLS, PA.

WEBSTER'S
UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.
Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep.....$3.00
Crown Fountain Pen.....$2.00
Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED
that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

Mary A. Livermore's Great Book.
Book Agents are coining money with it, and lady agents are enthusiastic in their praise of it. The publishers are A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn., and they will be pleased to send our friends full information. They pay the freight charges on all their shipments, no matter how far away their agents are.

REV. GEORGE F. MAGOUN, D.D., President Iowa College, Grinnell, Iowa, recently said:

"My experience as secretary of the Iowa Sanitary Commission had so prepared me to appreciate this rare story that after opening it I found it difficult to lay it down, even for a moment. Every word of the 700 handsome pages had to be read. It was largely done with swelling of heart and not a few tears. Did ever a gifted and eloquent woman have such a tale to tell before? Did ever a tender-hearted, patriotic, and right-loving woman of any land do such a work as is here recorded? Were there ever such memoirs of courage, sacrifice, great-heartedness, and love 'stronger than death' to be gathered up and enshrined by the heart and mind of one who was so largely a part of it all? Until sensibility to what is most affecting in real life and real woe is dead in men, Mrs. Livermore's book will be a noble one, a moving one."

PAINLESS BEECHAM'S PILLS EFFECTUAL
THE GREAT ENGLISH MEDICINE WORTH A GUINEA A BOX
For Weak Stomach—Impaired Digestion—Disordered Liver.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.
Prepared only by THOS. BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lancashire, England.
B. F. ALLEN & CO., Sole Agents
FOR UNITED STATES, 365 & 367 CANAL ST., NEW YORK,
Who (if your druggist does not keep them) will mail Beecham's Pills on receipt of price—but inquire first. (Please mention this paper.)

Advertisers want to know what paper pays best. Mention The Union Signal.

Publisher's Dep't.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy	$1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each	1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each	1.00
To ministers and reading rooms	1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS: Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

Words Fitly Spoken.

Mrs. Jennie Best of Washington, Pa., sends Hannah Whitall Smith's Bible Readings to all of the local evangelists in her county. If every county superintendent would do the same there would be a mighty waking up all along the line in the evangelistic department, for these Bible Readings can be used by our workers to excellent advantage in their meetings.

IOWA.

"I am the principal of the high school in this place. As such I cannot help but be interested in that which shall help make better men and women for the future. I have read to my girls the little book, "Girls of To-day," by Lucy A. Scott. We have all enjoyed it very much and it has helped us Have you anything more like it, for girls or boys, either? Such books are a wonderful help to a teacher in impressing young people."

A prominent worker in Minnesota has been using "Boys and Other Boys," and "Girls of To-day," as prizes to the successful contestants in Demorest medal contests. She has sent for at least ten books inclusive, and pronounces them "splendid" for that purpose.

Among the many good things constantly sent out from the W. T. P. A., I find two with which I am specially pleased. The senior Grade Lesson Manuals, and Mary Allen West's Manual for Schools of Methods. It has been said that ignorance is our greatest enemy, and this is true within our ranks as well as without. If every local and county union would follow the suggestions given in this manual what a flood of light would pour in to dissipate this darkness. I wish the book might reach every county president in the land, and no conductor of a School of Methods can afford to be without it. As state superintendent of juvenile work I have been at a loss to know what to recommend for senior classes. Now I know. Such a course of study as that outlined in the new manuals cannot fail to influence those who will so soon come to manhood and womanhood.

LYDIA J. NEWCOMB,
State Organizer Mich. W. C. T. U.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.

"I was quite successful with those (trial subscriptions) that I obtained in the fall of 1888. There were twenty-seven, twenty-five of them subscribed for the year 1889, one left the city, and the other was not a resident. She may have sent on her subscription." MRS. M. A. WILEY.

Worthy?

AGENTS WANTED

For the two best temperance books ever published, viz.,

GLIMPSES OF FIFTY YEARS,

by Frances E. Willard, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT,

or "The Conflict of Man with Alcohol," by Henry W. Blair, United States Senator.

Of the first book. 50,000 have been printed since May, 1889. Of the second, three editions have been issued. Agents make money selling these books. Good territory can be had. Apply at once to

Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n,
161 La Salle St., Chicago.

Rub a lame back with Pond's Extract.

Kabo never works up or down or breaks. If it does in a year, you shall have your money back from the store where you bought your corset.

The steels may break—the best of steels have their limits of strength. But Kabo has no breaking-limit; it doesn't break at all.

And the Kabo corset is perfect in form.

The store has a primer on Corsets for you.

CHICAGO CORSET CO., Chicago and New York.

Better than Tea and Coffee for the Nerves.

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

"Largest Sale in the World"

Ask your Grocer for it, take no other. [62

LADIES, do not overlook this. The PERFECTION Flour Bin and Sieve is a household necessity. No home is complete without it. Dispense with barrels, sacks, pans, scoops, sieves, etc. No scattering of flour; no apron or rolling up of sleeves needed. A few turns of the handle and you have enough sifted for a baking. It pleases everybody. No housekeeper will be without it after once using. Where we have no representative we will send the bin on receipt of price. To hold 100 lbs. $3.25; 50 lbs. $2.50; 25 lbs. $2.00. Freight pre-paid not to exceed 75c. No goods sent C. O. D. Agents wanted. Sherman, Tangenberg & Co., 160 W. Lake St., Chicago.

STEEL EDGE DUST PANS

STEEL EDGE—LAST A LIFE TIME—EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT

SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.

By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the

STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,
89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

HARPER BROS. & CO., Grocers.

Established 1873. 90 State Street, Chicago. Opposite Marshall Field's. Send for Price List.
NO LIQUORS SOLD.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. B. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill.
We do not sell liquors in any shape.

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!
Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

THE PATHFINDER PHYSIOLOGY.
ENDORSED BY W. C. T. U.
A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

HOTEL FREDONIA,
H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.
New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,
G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS
A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.
S. A. KEAN & CO, BANKERS,
CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

OREGON THE LAND OF BIG RED APPLES. The famous Willamette Valley. The best climate in the United States. Write for circulars to the Western Oregon Land Co., Monmouth, Polk Co., Oregon. J. G. CROUCH, Sec'y.

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES
FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.
Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free

UNITY. A weekly journal of a Religion that is Rational, and a Rationalism that is Religious. 10 weeks 10 cents. CHICAGO.

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

$12.50 Buys a $65 Improved Singer SEWING MACHINE 60 days' trial. Free Catalogue. Warranted five years. OXFORD MFG. CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

CATALOGUE FREE
For Agents, Illustrating Useful Household articles & good selling Novelties.
LAUBE COOKER CO., PARK RIDGE, ILL.

PURE GRAPE JUICE. EMMA M. TAYLOR
29 Bow St., WOBURN, MASS.

$60 SALARY $40 EXPENSES IN ADVANCE allowed each month. Steady employment at home or traveling. No soliciting. Duties delivering and making collections. No Postal Cards. Address with stamp, HAFER & CO., Piqua, O.

LADY AGENTS WANTED—ALSO MEN. Two immense new specialties; 1 lady made $27 before dinner, another $16 the first hour; extraordinary opportunity; proof free. Ad., LITTLE & CO., 214 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." ☞Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia. Pa.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND
Sent on receipt of price and waist measure.
Fitted band 75 cts. } Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367,
Plain band 30 cts. } Minneapolis, Minn.

WOULD YOU?
WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F." CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 79 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

SEE ADVERTISEMENT OF STANDARD FIBER-WARE
IN NEXT WEEK'S "UNION SIGNAL."

$50 OUTFIT ON 30 DAYS' TIME TO AGENTS Guarantee $150 profits in four weeks or no pay, to travel or work at home. No competition. C. JARVIS & CO., Racine, WIS.

"MURRAY"
$55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS
are the best and cheapest. Write for catalogue and prices. Wilber H. Murray M'f'g Co., Cincinnati, O.

MY CATALOGUE of DRESS reform goods sent free to any address on receipt of stamp for postage. Mrs. S. W. Pike, 75 Madison St., Chicago.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD PICTURE Agents wanted. Terms extra liberal. Address C. P. CORY & CO., 325 State St., Chicago.

OPIUM Morphine or Whisky Habit cured in 11 to 21 days. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Address The Compound Oxygen Ass'n, Ft. Wayne, Ind

THE GLUTEN Entire Wheat Flour the best and most economical flour made, the only cure for Dyspepsia. Recommended by Physicians. Kenosha Mills Co., 135 Lake St., Chicago.

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt., 97 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE
LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA
furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.
Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

WE WANT 1,000 BRIGHT BOYS OR GIRLS.

To whom we can give employment in a way that will be easy and pleasant. The preliminary work can be done after school hours—an hour a week after that will suffice to bring in a profit of from 20 cents to $2.00 a week.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS TO
The Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n
161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

'DELSARTE'
Corset Waists and Braces. Send for Price List.
Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO., ARCHITECTS,
Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
"Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

MAY FLOWERS OF SONG

For Schools:

Children's School Songs, (35 cts.: $3.60 dozen. 8 pages of simple explanations, and 138 new and selected songs for general singing. This little book is being received with much favor.

Kindergarten Chimes. ($1.25.) Kate Douglas Wiggin. Good manual, and fine collection.
Kindergarten and Primary School Songs. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Menard.
Songs and Games for Little Ones. ($2.00.) Walker and Jenks.
Gems for Little Singers. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Emerson and Swayne.
Rhymes and Tunes. ($1.00.) Mrs. Osgood.
Motion Songs. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Mrs. Boardman. Get them all! They are most delightful books! Also try the sweet little Cantatas:
Kingdom of Mother Goose. (25 cts., $2.28 doz.) Mrs. Boardman.
Rainbow Festival. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Lewis.
Who Killed Cock Robin? (40 cts.; $3.60 doz.) Ford.

Song Manual { Book 1, Primary. 30c.: $3 doz. Book 2, Medium. 40c.; $4.20 doz Book 3, High. 50c.; $4.80 doz.

By Emerson. These are the newest and best books for teaching note reading in schools.

Send for lists and descriptions.
Any book mailed for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston.

NOW READY.

GEMS AND JEWELS

A new Sunday School Music Book, by J. H. FILLMORE, and J. H. ROSECRANS.

Full of fresh, new songs that will captivate the lovers of Sunday School singing.

Price 35 cents; $3.60 per dozen, not prepaid; $30 per 100, not prepaid. A sample copy sent for 25 cents.

Reader, call the attention of your Superintendent or Music Leader to this new book.

FILLMORE BROS., 185 Race St., Cincinnati, O.

PIANOS $150 to $1500 | UNIVERSITY ESTAB. 1859. INCOR. 1877

They Lead the World!
Sent for trial in your own home.
Guaranteed Six Years.
ABSOLUTELY PERFECT
Sold Direct to families. No Middlemen.
DON'T BUY A POOR PIANO!
Cat. Free.
MARCHAL & SMITH PIANO CO.
235 E. 21st St., N.Y.
ORGANS $35 to $500

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

SWEETEST AND BEST — PIANO MADE TONED

BRADBURY
ESTABLISHED 1854
PIANOS
OVER 22,000 NOW IN USE.

Used and endorsed by Presidents Grant, Hayes, Arthur and Harrison. also numerous members of foreign legations, and has not only attained a pre-eminent national, but also a world-renowned reputation.

Moderate prices. Cash or easy payments. Write for catalogue and price-list.

J. M. Hawxhurst, Mgr. Western Branch.
210 State Street, Chicago.

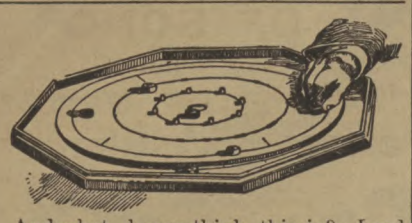
CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL FOR KINDERGARTNERS.
Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,
Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to
Miss Alice McRoy,
2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE
Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V. Farwell & Co., Chicago.

TEACHERS Register NOW and secure positions in the Colleges, Seminaries and Schools of the South and South-west. Vacancies are occurring every day. Registration fee $2. Send stamp for blank. American Bureau of Education, Room 32, Cole Building, Nashville, Tenn.

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY,
181 Monroe St., CHICAGO,
Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper

Publisher's Notes.



And what do you think this is? Lend us your eyes a bit and we'll tell you how the publisher who weekly writes these notes was led to buy a "Crokinole" board, of which the above is a picture; and how since then it has been an unfailing source of lively chattering amusement in his family; and how the young people who congregate in the aforesaid home weekly also think it is "first class fun." "So," says the publisher to himself, "if this game is such a happy device for interesting young people, we will tell our one hundred thousand readers about it so that it can be adopted in homes where the boys need something to keep them from straying out nights. Or it can be most successfully used for Loyal Temperance Legions as a means of unfailing amusement." Therefore we made the picture and offer you the Crokinole board $1 cheaper than we had to pay for the one bought at retail here—viz:

Price—by express at your expense, $3.50.

FREE

Sent free as a premium for twelve new names (with $12) for THE UNION SIGNAL.

Why, yes,

That is so, haven't told you what the game is! It consists in your snapping or pushing your discs or men so that the other fellow's discs or men have to leave. There are eight rubber posts in the center which serve to make things lively. But the book of instructions must tell the rest. The game is easily learned but not easily left!

Better, better try it?

"Hinc Illæ—"Tears? Oh, No!

A letter from Miss Willard telling young folk how to get the courage to speak—how to make a start—how to gain strength: a poem by Mrs. O. W. Scott, illustrated, pitiful—true—alas, how true, with a lesson for parents therein needed, infinitely needed; a little talk about Dancing—mostly a Children's Day Exercise entitled "Children of the Ages." Special music, short, lively talks from boys and girls telling of child life in Bible times—bright, instructive, novel. All this in the June Sunday-school Crusader. Nay, more—for this number has, as a supplement, Mrs. Rice's admirable S. S. Temperance Lesson—Worth trying? Worth sending samples for? Surely—Surely—How ever will you know how good this paper is if you don't get an idea fastened in somehow that you really ought to examine the paper and then show it to your S. S. Supt. Count such papers as by the cost thereof? Oh, no, no. Weigh such a paper against the adventure—marvelous tales—blood and thunder—and that kind of story papers? No, no—that is, if you would send for samples and examine!

But

Eh?

Not "No Quarter" but "A Q."

Few know as yet the real value and merit there is in the new Y song book. This was forcibly brought to mind by a recent experience of the publisher. There is a meeting each week at his suburban home of the young people of the church to study the Sunday-school lesson—Y. P. S. C. E. topic and have a good time socially. At a recent meeting the book named was used and the result was—great pleasure to all present. One piece after another was voted "first rate,"—"good"—"inspiring," etc. The college tunes set to good temperance words were especially liked—also the fine selection of extra good old tunes, such as trios from Mendelssohn, Woodbury's "Speed Away," and numerous others. The hymns given are of the very best, and, take it altogether, it's the best general utility book in the temperance line that has yet been published. You'll agree with us when you give it a critical examination, but you can't do that, "you know," till you have one to examine. The expenditure of 25cts. will bring you the book. Why, why, how you will like it, to be sure!

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Van Houten's Cocoa. The original, most soluble.

FOR A DISORDERED LIVER try BEECHAM'S PILLS

The Vestibuled Pullman Car Line.

The Monon Route is the finest equipped line on the continent and affords choice of four daily trains from Chicago to the South via Indianapolis and Cincinnati, or Louisville and Burgin. For full information call on any ticket agent of the Monon Route or address W. H. McDoel, Traffic Manager, or James Barker, Gen'l Pass. Agent, 185 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

BURLINGTON ROUTE.

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell from principal stations on its lines, on Tuesdays, April 22d and May 20th, Home Seekers' Excursion Tickets at Half Rates to points in the Farming Regions of the West, Southwest and Northwest. For tickets and further information concerning these excursions call on your nearest C., B. & Q. ticket agent, or address P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

The Marchal & Smith Piano Co., of 235 East 21st St., New York City, have issued one of the neatest catalogues we have seen for many a day. We are sure that any of our readers who wish their goods will secure the best of treatment from this firm. Be sure and secure one of their catalogues before they are gone.

If you have a COLD or COUGH, acute or leading to CONSUMPTION,
SCOTT'S EMULSION
OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA IS SURE CURE FOR IT.

This preparation contains the stimulating properties of the Hypophosphites and fine Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. Used by physicians all the world over. It is as palatable as milk. Three times as efficacious as plain Cod Liver Oil. A perfect Emulsion, better than all others made. For all forms of Wasting Diseases, Bronchitis,

CONSUMPTION,

Scrofula, and as a Flesh Producer there is nothing like SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is sold by all Druggists. Let no one by profuse explanation or impudent entreaty induce you to accept a substitute.

Temperance Tea Tonic.

Nature's Great Remedy. Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine, made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases, female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache. Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE
LADY'S SYRINGE,

is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz. Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

ASTONISHING CURES!

What ROYAL GERMETUER Has Done.

The remarkable cures with "Royal Germetuer" are astonishing the world. Thousands of certificates attest its virtues and sound its praise. If you are sick do not despair. Dr. King's Royal Germetuer will cure you. It is as pleasant to take as lemonade without sugar; it is a scientific discovery, and cures disease by removing the cause. It builds up from the first dose.

Mrs. Ella R. Tennent, editress of Tennent's Home Magazine, says: "Its fame has spread like a prairie fire. It is so pleasant to use I look forward to the time for taking it with pleasure. The verdict of all I know, who have taken it, is that it is a great remedy."

Price $1.50 per concentrated bottle, which will make, as per accompanying directions, one gallon of medicine. Send stamp for full particulars.

For sale by druggists and by the Atlantic Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga.

For Gas BAILEY'S For Oil
COMPOUND light-spreading Silver-plated Corrugated Glass
REFLECTORS,
A wonderful invention for lighting CHURCHES, Halls, etc. Handsome design. Satisfaction guaranteed. Catalogue and price list free. BAILEY REFLECTOR CO. 118 Wood st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MOTHERHOOD with Little Pain. Stamp to Dr Stainback Wilson, Atlanta, Ga

WIVES Should know how child bearing can be effected without PAIN or DANGER and cure their ills. Send for sealed information. A wonderful discovery. DR. J. H. DYE, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE "PEARL"

A marvel of beauty & usefulness. FULLY WARRANTED FOR 5 YEARS. Plush-lined case of Attachments free. Buy direct and save $20 to $50 Agents' commissions.

Send for Circular and see full description of this and other styles to

M. A. SCULLIN & CO.
762 W. Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

IN THE HEALTHY HIGHLANDS.

No Malaria, no Mosquitoes, no Saloons. Best climate in the United States for all-the-year-round residence.

SPLENDID PROGRESS.

Started late in 1889 with no population or improvements, the development already made is surprising. Five factories are building, and several companies organized to build others. No booms, but steady, substantial progress. A knitting factory company is organized, the stock to be all owned, and entire business managed by women. It will pay large profits. Those who want homes in a "clean city," where the rumshop, brothel and gambling den are perpetually excluded, should buy soon, as prices are rapidly advancing.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Stock in the Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Company, will pay large profits. There are also good opportunities to make paying investments in several manufacturing enterprises. For full information address

The Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Co., Demorest, Ga.

GREAT OFFER!

PIANOS! ✣ $35. ✣ ORGANS!

Direct from the Factory at Manufacturer's Prices. No such offer ever made before. Every man his own agent. Examine in your home before paying. Write for particulars. Address

THE T. Swoger & Son Pianos & Organs
BEAVER FALLS, PENNSYLVANIA.

From Rev. Jas. H. Potts, D.D., editor of Michigan "Christian Advocate," Detroit Mich.: "To say that we are delighted with the Piano does not express the fact. We are jubilant If all our instruments are as fine in appearance and as pleasing in tone as this one, your patrons will rise by the hundred."

THE EDISON

MIMEOGRAPH

Patented by THOS. A. EDISON.

Makes 3,000 copies of one original writing, Drawing, Music, etc. 1,500 copies of one original Typewriter Letter. Recommended by over 40,000 users. Send for circular and sample of work.

A. B. DICK COMPANY,
152-154 Lake Street, CHICAGO. 32 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

RHEUMATISM NOT TEMPORARILY RELIEVED BUT PERMANENTLY CURED

Each case treated separately. Send your address for Treatise on Rheumatism sent FREE. with full information regarding its CURE. YELLOW PINE EXTRACT CO., Box 246 Pittsburgh, Pa.

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dr. B. A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St., Chicago, Ill.

REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. CATARRH.
REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O.

PILES Cured at home. New treatment never fails when instructions are correctly followed. Read article in THE UNION SIGNAL, March 13, p. 15.
The GLOBE MEDICINE Co., Box 711, Cincinnati, O.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY,"
Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard,
Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

A-CORN SALVE.

Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time.
NO PAIN! NO POISON!
"After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

DEAFNESS CURED And NOISES IN HEAD entirely overcome by Peck's Pat. Imprv'd TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS Whispers, Conversation and Music heard. Comfortable; Self-Adjusting and Unseen. Successful when all other Remedies FAIL. SOLD ONLY by F. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, Cor. 14th, New York. CALL or WRITE for ILLUST'D BOOK of PROOFS, FREE. NO AGENTS

WHOOPING COUGH DELAVAU'S REMEDY

Dispels whoop, allays cough, and cuts short the disease. Its peculiar anti-spasmodic action insures sleep and is perfectly harmless. Especially effective in dry, Hacking Coughs. For the sudden, dangerous CROUP it is infallible. 40 years established in Philadelphia. 50c. per bottle. Sold at druggists.

OVERMAN'S
SPECIFIC OXYGEN.

Is Medicated Oxygen.
Is a Germicide.
Is a Disinfectant for the lungs.
Is different from any other treatment for these diseases.
Is not a Patent Medicine.
Send stamp for Book telling why it is different and better than other remedies.

SPECIFIC OXYGEN COMPANY, Nashville, Tenn.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.

IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKINDI

Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.

The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages

Delivered Free of Charge

to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

CHAS. RAISER, Mfr.
62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The "Little Beauty" A $5.00 Scale for $1.00

Capacity 1-4 oz. to 4 lbs. Steel Bearings, Brass Scoop and Beam. For Housekeepers, Offices or Stores. Weight packed, 8 lbs. Sent by express

A $65.00 Sewing Machine	$18.00
A 900-lb. Platform Scale	15.00
A $125.00 Top Buggy	65.00
A 2-Ton Wagon Scale	40.00
A 5-Ton Scale and Stock Rack	75.00
A $50 Feed Mill	30.00
A $40.00 Road Cart	15.00
A $15.00 Single Harness	7.50
A 240-lb. Platform Scale	3.00

Price List Free. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods. 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

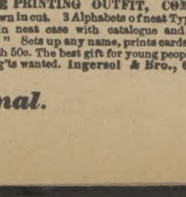
Best Truss Ever Used.

Improved Elastic Truss. Worn night and day. Positively cures rupture. Sent by mail everywhere. Write for full descriptive circulars to DR. HOUSE, N. Y., ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 744 Broadway, N. Y.

(Mention this paper.)

BABY CARRRIAGES Direct from Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world. SENT C. O. D. G. L. Spencer's

25c PRINTING OUTFIT.



A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL, Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Set up any name, print cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersoll & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

Advertisers want to know what paper pays best. Mention The Union Signal.

Signal Notes.

THE state prohibition convention of Illinois will be held at Bloomington May 27 and 28. The Cook county prohibition convention will meet at Weber Hall, Chicago, at 2 p. m. May 21. Much important business is to be transacted at the latter meeting, especially the appointment of one hundred and five delegates and alternates to the state convention, and the nomination of county officers.

MAJOR AND MRS. E. T. SCOTT held sixty-seven meetings in Nebraska between February 4 and April 2. They have almost invariably been greeted with crowded houses, and on several occasions an overflow meeting has been held. Without a solitary exception they have been invited to return at each appointment. Word comes that they are vote-makers for the amendment at every place they labor, and new members added to the unions.

THE state prohibition convention of Kentucky will be held in Lexington, May 15, at 1 p. m. All local unions are cordially invited to be present.

ACCORDING to the statistics of the last educational year, there were 36,000 women and 41,000 men in our regular colleges; the charge cannot be made that women are indifferent to opportunities of higher education, and the prospect is that in a few years collegiate women will outnumber college-bred men.

GOOD words from Kansas:—"Col. Geo W. Bain addressed an audience of one thousand men on a recent Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. meeting in Wichita, his topic being anti-resubmission. At the close, the gifted orator made an eloquent appeal for the Central W. C. T. U., which resulted in a cash collection of $107.50. This came at a most opportune moment, for the interest on our eligible property directly across from the new government building was due. This goes to prove there is some prohibition sentiment in Wichita, though the daily newspapers of the city would lead their readers to think otherwise."

GREAT success has attended the missionary work of the American Sunday-school Union. During the last three years the number of missionaries has increased from sixty to ninety-five. In the year closing in March 1, 1890, they organized 1,685 new Sunday-schools in thirty-one states and territories, in places hitherto destitute of religious privileges. They also gave aid to needy schools in 1,852 instances, besides aiding schools previously reported in 4,461 cases; frequently these schools have developed into churches of different denominations. The missionaries have also made 42,222 visits to families, in addition to distributing a large amount of religious literature, besides 6,779 Bibles and 9,337 Testaments. During the winter they held evangelistic services, and many hundred souls were converted. It has been a wonderful year.

THE W. C. T. U. of Georgetown, Ohio, secured the services of Maj. Geo. A. Hilton for a series of meetings beginning on April 1 and continuing six days, Bible readings being held every afternoon and a mass-meeting at night in the court house. Great interest was manifested from the first and continued to increase until the final meeting on Sunday night, when the house would not hold all the people. The union was increased by the addition of twenty-three active and twenty-one honorary members, and the collections were very generous. Major Hilton is to visit Brooklyn, Binghampton, Pawling and Cornwall, N. Y., during the month of May.

A NEW YORK correspondent writes: "Chicago's extension of her boundaries and recent display of enterprise in snatching the World's Fair from her big neighbor, have made New York look to her laurels. Accordingly she once more turns with covetous eyes toward Brooklyn, for whom she has felt a maternal solicitude for half a century. A bill introduced in the New York Assembly names a Commission to inquire into the expediency of consolidating the various municipalities in the state occupying islands in New York Harbor, the Commission to report to the Legislature such a bill as they may deem necessary to perfect the scheme. By this simple process of the creation of 'the greater New York,' with a population of some three millions, it is hoped that all rivals would be distanced for many years to come. But Brooklyn has persistently shown a determination and the requisite ability to mind her own business. The recent revelations of New York's boodle methods of city government will hardly convince the City of Churches of the necessity of consolidation—except it be for the salvation of New York."

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest, and most Healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime, or Alum. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.
NEW YORK. CHICAGO. ST. LOUIS.

GRANULA
An INCOMPARABLE Food Ready for IMMEDIATE USE. Unsurpassed for Children, Invalids, and persons of SEDENTARY HABITS.
MOTHERS write for circulars
Trial box, prepaid 36cts. Address
OUR HOME GRANULA CO., Dansville, N. Y.
Mention this publication

BROWN'S FRENCH DRESSING
—FOR—
LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S BOOTS AND SHOES.
Awarded highest honors at
Phila., 1876 | Melbourne, 1880
Berlin, 1877 | Frankfort, 1881
Paris, 1878 | Amsterdam, 1883
New Orleans, 1884-85.
Paris Medal on every bottle.
Beware of Imitations.

Our Circular gives information how to get 1000 Yards Sewing Silk FREE.
It is sent with twelve samples of Black Silk Dress Patterns to any lady who will mail us their name and post office address. Use a postal card and state name of paper in which you saw this advertisement.
O. S. CHAFFEE & SON,
Mansfield Centre, Conn.

WOMEN Can find pleasant and paying employment by corresponding with BROWN BROS., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

ALL ABOUT NEW STATE OF WASHINGTON
Send stamp for Catechism. ESHELMAN, LLEWELLYN & CO., Seattle.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
FOR BEAUTY OF POLISH, SAVING LABOR, CLEANLINESS, DURABILITY & CHEAPNESS. UNEQUALLED. NO ODOR WHEN HEATED.
Do not take any chances of being poisoned or burned to death with Liquid Stove Polish, paints, and enamels in bottles. The "Rising Sun Stove Polish" is safe, odorless, brilliant, the cheapest and best stove polish made, and the consumer pays for no expensive tin or glass with every purchase.

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR MY STORY OF THE WAR
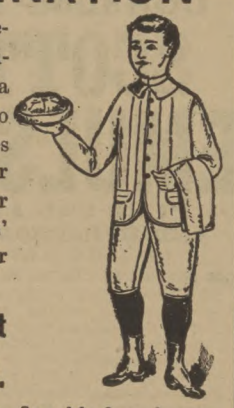
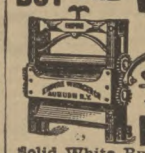
By Mary A. Livermore
Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure, and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos, it sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. ☞ No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in twenty colors. 61st thousand. ☞ 5,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to
A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

"COMBINATION"
This cut represents our "Combination" suit, extra pants and hat to match for boys, ages four to fourteen, for $5. Best value ever offered for boys' wear. Send for samples.


Prince Albert Suits, $15.00.
Nicely made from fine black corkscrew, a suit equal in appearance to a $40.00 custom made suit for $15.00.
Send for samples and rules for measuring. Goods sent C. O. D., with privilege of examining before paying.
PUTNAM CLOTHING HOUSE,
131 & 133 Clark St.,
113 & 117 Madison St.
CHICAGO.

MARRIED WOMEN WANTED As Local Agents | SOME LADY IN YOUR VICINITY Will Make Money
For CALIFORNIA WAX MYRTLE. With it
THE BEST WOMANS REMEDY IN EXISTENCE. WHY NOT —YOU— Write for Particulars
WESTERN CHEMICAL Co GILROY, CALIFORNIA.

BUY THE WRINGER THAT SAVES


THE MOST LABOR
OUR PURCHASE GEAR
Saves half the labor of other wringers, and costs but little more.
EMPIRE Does not GREASE The CLOTHES.
Solid White Rubber Rolls. Warranted.
Also "Daisy" and "Volunteer" Wringers, Clothes Drying Bars, etc. Agents wanted everywhere. Empire Wringer Co., Auburn, N. Y.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time. Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINSTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City.

ENDORSED BY ANNIE JENNESS-MILLER.
THE BEST CORSET SUBSTITUTES.

COMPROMISE BODICE JENNESS MILLER MODEL BODICE EQUIPOISE WAIST
ILLUSTRATED CATALOUGE MAILED FREE TO ANY ADDRESS.
GEORGE FROST & CO., 51 BEDFORD ST., BOSTON, MASS.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

Wholesale & Retail. Many long in use. Old Baths renewed.
Send for Circulars. E. J. KNOWLTON, Ann Arbor, Mich.

VAN ORDEN CORSETS
Agents Wanted.
Perfect Shape

Van Orden Corset Co., 22 Clinton Pl., N. Y.
LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y.

LADY AGENTS.

There is nothing that sells better than MME. M'CABE'S sanative CORSET and WAISTS,
BIG MONEY for live agents. Send for particulars.
ST. LOUIS CORSET CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Silk Satin & Plush Remnants for Crazy Patch. a large pkg. pretty pieces, assorted col. & our ill. story paper 3 mos. 10c. The Little Giant, St. Louis

Holmes & Co.
JERSEY BATHING SUITS

Ladies' Full Tights
FOR BATHING.
Ladies will see the advantage in using Jersey Fitting Full Tights, as they cover from waist to feet. Bathers who wear Jersey Fitting garments will find when they are out of the water there is not a drop of water in the garments, and while they stand warm and comfortable with comparatively dry clothes, the bathers next to them with loose garments are chilled through with wet clothes. Whether you float, swim or dive, you will not have a surplus of clothing full of water dragging you under.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED ANCIENT EDITION.
A so-called "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary" is being offered to the public at a very low price. The body of the book, from A to Z, is a cheap reprint, page for page, of the edition of 1847, which was in its day, a valuable book, but in the progress of language for over FORTY YEARS, has been completely superseded. It is now reproduced, broken type, errors and all, by photo-lithograph process, is printed on cheap paper and flimsily bound. A brief comparison, page by page, between the reprint and the latest and enlarged edition, will show the great superiority of the latter. These reprints are as out of date as a last year's almanac. No honorable dealer will allow the buyer of such to suppose that he is getting the Webster which to-day is accepted as the Standard and THE BEST,—every copy of which bears our imprint as given below.
☞ If persons who have been induced to purchase the "Ancient Edition" by any misrepresentations will advise us of the facts, we will undertake to see that the seller is punished as he deserves.
G. & C. MERRIAM & CO.
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 20.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, May 15, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: The Police Power and the Iowa Saloon Decision—A Round-the-World Outlook..... 8, 9
WATCH-TOWER: 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, Somebody's Praying, by Ella G. Ives—The Serpent in the Wall, by Mrs. Annie A. Preston—Legislation Needed for the Better Protection and Civilization of the Native Children of Alaska, by A Missionary—Parable of the Friend at Midnight, or Out of Communion, by Elizabeth W. Greenwood 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: The Iowa Liquor in "Original Package" Case—A Worker on the Pacific Coast..... 4
WORLD'S W. C. T. U.: Miss Ackerman in China—Ramabai's School—Temperance Temple Items..... 4, 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, How to be Happy—A Sermon in Cross-Stitch—Polly Percy's Prize—Determination..... 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning May 25, 1890..... 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, The Bird's Invitation—Mothers' Meetings—The Age of Understanding—Homes and Help... 7
DIRECTORY: 10
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: Southern California, Two Weeks in Oklahoma, Michigan, Kansas, Nebraska—Notices—News in a Nutshell—Woman's Lecture Bureau..... 10, 11, 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT:..... 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

The M. E. Church South is holding its eleventh quadrennial conference in St. Louis.

The annual National Conference of the Y. M. C. Associations was held in Nashville last week.

Gladstone has surprised both his friends and his enemies by coming out for disestablishment in Scotland.

The Delaware Prohibitionists met in convention at Wilmington, May 8, and nominated William T. Kellum, of Dover, for Governor.

Dr. Joseph Cummings, president of the Northwestern University died of heart disease last Wednesday. In him the Prohibition cause loses a strong tower.

Reports of the five years' work in Pasteur's Institute shows the number of persons bitten by mad dogs treated there was 7,893, of whom only fifty-three died.

Miss Willard has, during the past fortnight, held meetings in eighteen towns, mostly in Iowa, with splendid audiences and a good spirit manifested all around.

Dr. Amelia B. Edwards had a hard return journey to England; her broken arm was injured in her berth by rolling of the steamer, and hurt by a fall soon after landing.

Hon. Henry H. Faxon, with his accustomed generosity, sent a check for $500 to the Worcester (Mass.) Times, a prohibition daily, to assist it in fighting the libel suits of saloon-keepers.

The Australian ballot system used in the late election in St. Paul is said to have resulted in an election which "was a closer approach to a decent man's idea of what an election ought to be than any other ever held in St. Paul."

May 11, a meeting of Roman Catholics was held in Pittsburg to perfect an organization of all Catholic Societies in America. Among its purposes as announced is, "the vindication of common manhood against any and all ignoble encroachments."

The Inter-Ocean, Chicago, has just moved into its own magnificent new building. In a recent issue it says, "Conscience in journalism has not always been popular with the men who edit and publish newspapers, but of late years the idea has gained strength. The people are much more disposed to hold editors to a strict accountability for the part they take in public affairs, and there is consequently a higher tone in the leading journals." May the good work go on.

Chicago women are working in earnest to secure better school advantages and protection for its children, and the appointment of more women on the school board. The Illinois Woman's Alliance lately invited representatives of one hundred and twenty societies of men and women to meet and discuss these questions. An enthusiastic meeting resulted, addressed by leading ladies and gentlemen. Ten Judges of the city united in a petition which eight of them presented in person to the Mayor, asking the appointment of more ladies on the school board. He gave them no answer.

GEORGE MAY POWELL, known to our readers as a writer on Social Science, is also noted as an oriental writer and lecturer. He has been engaged to accompany a party of ladies and gentlemen that leave New York September 17, on a tour through Europe, Egypt and the Holy Land. The Palestine section of the trip will be under the management of Rollo Floyd known as the "Prince of Syrian Dragomen."

THE Lever of last week gives as a supplement, Mrs. Helen M. Gougar's masterly address on "Prohibition vs. License: A Battle of Ballots." We commend it to the careful attention of all Christian men who feel called upon to vote the license ticket.

THE Mills-Griffin debates are going on apace this month; up to May 14 they were held in Indiana; the rest of the month will be devoted to Illinois, commencing at Oak Park, May 17, taking in about a dozen leading cities of the state and closing with Chicago May 31.

THE Temperance Education Bulletin issued several months ago by Mrs. Frances W. Leiter, Mansfield, O., is soon to be revised and changed in form to half its present size, with twice the number of pages. This Bulletin has done excellent service in securing the enforcement of the Ohio temperance education law. It is not intended to take the place of text-books, but to supplement them; it aims to place before teachers and mothers the results of research in the smallest possible compass, with ample information regarding scientific authorities and exhaustive treatises. For further information address the author.

A SUIT brought by Moore and Linnott, liquor-dealers of Philadelphia, to recover $22,800 from the State Brewers' Association, fully confirms the charge that leading newspapers in Pennsylvania were hired by the liquor men to oppose prohibition. This money was advanced by Moore & Linnott, acting as agents of the Distillers and Liquor-dealers' Association on condition that sixty per cent of it should be paid back by the Brewers' Association. An itemized account was brought into court showing that this money had been paid to newspapers, for campaign services rendered. The Philadelphia Times received the largest slice, $3,516.30 paid June 27, 1889. The North American received $2,942 the same day, and so on down to $150 paid the Catholic Standard.

MISS WILLARD'S and Miss Gordon's work for the weeks to come will include, after their Iowa trip, visits to the state conventions of Missouri at St. Louis, and Michigan, at Jackson, addresses at Ypsilanti, Mich., Hamilton and Kingston, Ontario, en route to the Dominion W. C. T. U. convention at Montreal, May 28 to 30. Then for three weeks they will be in the Maritime Provinces. July 2, Beatrice, Neb., Sunday-school Assembly; July 3, Crete, Neb., Assembly; July 8, address before National Teachers' Association, at St. Paul, Minn.; July 12-13, Lake Bluff, Ill., School of Methods; July 16-19, state convention of North Carolina, at Concord; July 21-28, Asheville, N. C., W. C. T. U. School of Methods; August 1 and 2, Lakeside, Ohio.

THE Nebraska campaign is evidently waxing hot, as it has aroused the same spirit which shot Haddock and Gambrell. The brutal attack on Editor Thomas, of Elwood, is now followed by an attempt to destroy A. C. Rankin's temperance tent at Crete. It was cut down and badly damaged by a band of whisky roughs and its watchman fired upon. Fortunately the hands holding the gun were too unsteady to take good aim, and no damage was done by the shot. The W. C. T. U. of Nebraska wish to buy or rent a good second-hand tent which will seat 1,000 or more. We hope some generous friend will be moved to give them one, as nothing would do more to advance the cause in Nebraska than the possession of such a tent and its use as the W. C. T. U. would be sure to use it. Any one having such a tent to give, rent or sell, will please communicate the fact at once to Mrs. Jennie F. Holmes, Tecumseh, Nebraska.

THE sixth International Sunday-school Convention will be held in Pittsburg, June 24-27, 1890. This promises to be one of the most important and interesting sessions of this body ever held. Seventeen hundred delegates are entitled to seats, and the topics to be discussed are of vital importance. Among them are: "A Uniform Course of Normal Lessons;" "The Improvement of Work done Under Direction of its Executive Committee;" "Plans for Coöperation in Sunday-school Work throughout the World;" "The World's Sunday-school Convention to be held in the United States in 1892 or '93." A new lesson committee is also to be elected. Reduced railroad ates will be obtained; for furthering this, three points in the West are designated where delegates may unite—Louisville, St. Louis, and Chicago. All delegates who prefer to go by the way of Louisville and unite with the delegates there, will address Miss Mamie F. Huber, 652 E. Broadway, Louisville, Ky., for rates. Those who wish to go by the way of St. Louis will address Mr. D. R. Wolfe, Laclede Building, St. Louis, Mo., and those by the way of Chicago, will address Mr. L. B. Hibbard, room 6, 99 Washington street, Chicago, Ill.

GOVERNOR ST. JOHN made one of his grand speeches in Farwell Hall, last week, closing with an earnest appeal for money to carry on the Nebraska campaign. The response was generous, considering the size of the audience and the fact that probably every one present had previously given to this object; that Mrs. Carse was one of the collectors may have had something to do with the size of the collection, as all recognize her power in this line. While the collection was being taken a young man arose, saying that his home was in Wichita, Kansas, that he had no money to give, but so greatly did he desire that Nebraska might share with Kansas in the blessings of prohibition, he would give his watch to be sold for this fund. It was a nice gold watch, engraved with his name; as he is a student in the Congregational Theological Seminary here, this giving up his watch is a real sacrifice, both because of his need of it and because he probably cannot purchase another one soon. Another young gentleman gave his silver watch to the same cause. Such young men will be heard from yet, doing grand work on the world's broad field of battle.

THE delegation from New Mexico, headed by Governor Prince, is prepared to ask great things of Congress. The confusion of titles to land has kept cautious capitalists out of the territory. The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, by which New Mexico became a part of the United States, was signed forty-two years ago, but the government neglected to settle the question of land ownership under Mexican grants; the consequence is that the men who could have straightened out the matter are dead, and a multitude of forged titles are extant, claiming to date back to Mexican or Spanish authority. Congress is asked to break up this manufacture of bogus grants, and to decide upon genuine claims. It will be a knotty problem, and without doubt the innocent will suffer with the guilty in many instances, but in the long run a settlement will redound to the prosperity of all, and the sooner it is accomplished the better for New Mexico. The committee will ask that the school lands be given the territory at once, instead of being withheld until statehood. This will be a doubtful blessing, unless protected by limitations forbidding the sale of such lands, until by the development of the country their value is increased. The income from them might very properly be devoted to the support of schools, which are greatly needed there. The situation is unlike that in the other territories. A large percentage of the population is Mexican and Jesuit. It is wholly un-American, lacking the enterprise of an immigrant population. Consequently, the intelligent and educated citizens are not desirous of statehood. A good school system, flanked by a compulsory education law, must be in operation for a generation before the mass of voters will be able to comprehend and support the American idea of self-government. A university, agricultural college and school of mines is needed for the development of the natural resources of the territory and for the education at home of their youth. The wealthier families send their children at an early age to schools in Eastern states. It is a choice of evils which parents are compelled to make between educating their children without home influence, at the age when such influence is most necessary and most effective in molding character, and rearing their children at home without the advantage of schools. In many instances limited means decide the question. The federal government, in its patriarchal capacity, can well afford to do something to alleviate these conditions. Upon the same principle by which Congress has given many states their swamp lands because they were valueless until drained, the delegation will request a grant to the territory of the arid lands within its limits, which are without value until wet. The plan is to dispose of them and expend the proceeds in irrigation. The Rio Grande can supply waters for irrigating canals extending two hundred miles upon either side.

Contributed.

SOMEBODY'S PRAYING.

BY ELLA G. IVES.

Deepen life's shadows, the daylight is fading,
Darkness is brooding o'er land and o'er sea;
Star-like a promise gleams out in the midnight—
Somebody's praying, yes, praying for me.

Heavy life's burden, o'erborne by its pressure,
Fainting and falling, my eyes turn to thee,
Jesus, my helper! the burden is lifted,—
Somebody's praying, yes, praying for me.

Fiery the darts with which Satan assails me;
Almost I'm vanquished, when, bending the knee,
Lo! I am strong, in God's panoply armèd—
Somebody's praying, yes, praying for me.

Dorchester, Mass.

THE SERPENT IN THE WALL.

BY MRS. ANNIE A. PRESTON.

"Old Speckle has stolen her nest again; I just found it under the currant bushes," said Farmer Beech, reaching in at the open window of the cozy sewing room and depositing both hands full of cream-white eggs in his wife's wicker work-basket. "The sheep are out, and I must go down to the pasture. I wish you would come with me," he added.

"I will be ready in a moment," replied Mrs. Beech, in a cheerful tone, and she straightway presented herself at his side in hat, gloves and stout walking boots. She was tired, for housework had kept her on her feet all the morning, and she had been at the sewing machine ever since the after dinner work was done up, but she made a point of never refusing when her husband asked for her company.

The summer afternoon was cool and fine. Their way led along a smooth, turfed farm road, down through a hillside orchard where the trees were already bending with their load of growing fruit. They stopped when half-way down the hill, and, leaning against the bars that let them into the lower mowing, took a survey of the farm spread out upon the incline before them.

"How beautiful!" she exclaimed, with a deep breath of enjoyment. "I feel like singing a hymn of thanksgiving," and he replied:

"Yes, it is beautiful, but how much hard, persistent work the snug, trim, thrifty appearance of everything represents."

"Not work alone, but good management, and it is a satisfaction to have something to show for all the odd minutes of the past few years in the carefully pruned fruit trees, the clean corners of all your fields and the neat, evenly laid stone fences."

She glanced down as she spoke, and gave a little cry, for just below her hand that rested on the bar post, a checkered adder had thrust his head out from between the stones of the fence, and with open mouth and forked tongue extended, seemed about to make a strike at her white wrist that showed between her sleeve and glove.

At her start and cry the reptile drew back out of sight, and her husband said sharply, to cover his own impulse of repugnance, "Just like a woman to shriek at a snake instead of killing it!" and he strode some twenty steps to the assistance of the shepherd dog that began barking just then at a woodchuck entrenched among the stones of the fence.

She followed shortly, and stooping to peer through the stones at the poor, chattering, wild creature, she reached down and drew out from between two large boulders a quart bottle of clear, white glass, half full of a dark, amber liquid. At sight of it her husband gave a cry as sharp as her own had been a few moments before. As he sprang to take the bottle from her hand she drew back, exclaiming: "This is a more dangerous serpent than the one that startled me just now. I hoped that I might never see this one again," and she dashed the bottle against the stones.

Every particle of color dropped out of the strong man's face, for immediately the fumes of the long pent up whisky filled and defiled all the fragrant summer air. The woman turned faint and sick, not alone at the strong fumes, but at the expression of her husband's face. She had seen that look often enough before to her sorrow, and when he spoke it was in a tense voice, well remembered also:

"We will not go to the sheep pasture now. We will return to the house, harness up and drive to the city; some whisky I must and will have. I will make you suffer for destroying that."

"You blamed me just now for shrieking at a serpent instead of killing it," she said gently.

"That is a woman's comparison," he replied roughly. "Come, I am going to town; you can go with me or not, just as you choose, but I warn you that you had better go. I will get my jug filled and come straight home. I will not touch a drop there. Come!"

"You shall not go," she replied resolutely, placing herself in his path.

"You cannot help yourself!"

"I can and shall help myself if you go to drinking liquor again. But I will not fear, God will not let you do it. When you look back at the past six happy years of abstinence you will not let yourself do it."

The farmer turned once more toward the sheep pasture, and quickened his pace until he reached the shelter of a strip of dense oak woodland, there he threw himself upon the close mossy turf, and buried his face in his hands. A brown thrush near by was singing a part of one of his early summer medleys, and the deep blue of the sky, as the anxious wife lifted her eyes, was intensified by yellowish masses of hurrying clouds seen through the tossing branches of the tall trees, whose shadows reached almost across the adjacent sheep pasture.

Although greatly disturbed, she sat quietly down by her husband's side and waited for him to speak. Presently he began: "How well I remember that flask and the day I lost it. It was in haying time six years ago. I began cutting the grass in the lower field by hand. It was too stony then to cut by machine, and I had no machine of my own, as I have now; I took a pull at the flask every time I came around, for I began mowing on the outside of the field. At length I saw you, my good angel, then, as ever, coming with a pail of coffee for me and a lunch. For fear that you would see the flask I tucked it in the wall, and when I looked for it again was not able to find it. In my anger I followed you to the house and accused you of taking it, and when you denied my charges, I refused to believe you. What an intolerable thirst took possession of me! I harnessed my horses and started for town in spite of your entreaties. Once there I made a day of it. On my way home at midnight, crazed with drink, I drove off a bridge, my horses were killed and I nearly so. In the days of suffering that followed, I swore never to touch liquor again, and so far I have been enabled to keep my word."

"And you shall keep your word still," interrupted his wife. "What happy, prosperous years these six have been."

"Yes, my dear, but it has been a constant warfare with me. Our stone fence yonder is not the only wall in which a serpent lies concealed. The serpent of temptation lies coiled in every place where liquor is sold, in the contaminated breath of every person who drinks liquor, and yet the men, some of them calling themselves Christians who vote for license say that no one is obliged to enter a saloon. There is no one so hard on the drunkard as such men. They put liquor in the way, and then curse and scorn its victims. If it was not for you, my poor, brave little wife, I would not try to go without it another day. I would drink myself to death and so end the battle."

"And so lose the battle. He who endures to the end the same shall be saved."

"But who knows or cares?"

"All your real friends, and God who is an ever-present help."

"You have helped me by keeping with me so constantly. I have been exacting, I know, but I have not felt safe without you. Supposing I had been alone just now and had found that bottle?"

"God would have kept you."

"I should not have turned to Him. The sight of that old flask would have been sufficient to have sent me straight into the dominion of Satan."

"But God knows what a battle you are fighting, and even I have never had an idea of it before. This experience will help me to be more tender of you; more willing to keep by your side step by step, if need be. I believe if the victims of this temptation would confess to the appetite people would have more sympathy for them."

"You are mistaken, my dear," and the man stood up and threw back his shoulders as if nerving himself for a fresh combat. "The liquor traffic is a money-making business. Men who are considered good citizens take stock in it; good men advocate 'high license,' and every saloon, every hotel, every traveling bar in palace car or steamer, every drug store is a wall with a lurking serpent. I cannot go anywhere outside this village without meeting the temptation. There are thousands like me, and yet people will wonder that men drink and get drunk. What are the saloons for if they are not for men to get drunk in?"

He hurled the question at her as if she was alone responsible for the curse that everywhere defiles our land, and as she sprang to her feet startled by his vehemence, he laughed bitterly and went on: "It came over me all at once that Jerry Withrew, without a doubt, will be allowed to open a dram-shop down on the corner where I shall have to pass it every time I leave the farm. I have been to the county commissioners and begged them not to license him, and have given them my reasons. They laughed in my face, and said, 'Oh, you prohibition fellows are altogether too ridiculous.'"

"I will go to them," said his wife, taking his arm and walking him forward, thus reminding him of present duty.

The business of the farm went on as usual next day, but Mrs. Beech, although her husband built no hope upon such a proceeding, found time for her call upon the county commissioners, and in earnest, modest terms laid her case before them. They listened to her plea, but what was the happiness of one woman or the salvation of one man to the financial affairs over which they held sway. Within the week Jerry Withrew, whose vote counted as much as the vote of any man, opened his grog-shop a few rods from Farmer Beech's boundary fence.

For many weeks Mr. Beech withstood the temptation presented hourly in his path. By tacit consent the danger was not referred to in the little household, but the outward quietude in which they lived covered in the hearts of both a wearing anxiety that was akin to a sickening suspense.

One chilly autumn night, when the fallen leaves lay thick upon the mossy turf of the path through the woodland strip, Mrs. Beech fell violently ill. She had been back and forth twice to the city and exposure to the frosty air had brought on a chill.

In great alarm her husband started for a physician. "I will be back in no time at all," he said, answering the mute entreaty in his wife's soft eyes.

He hastened down the street. As he neared the dram-shop, the one who was on the lookout—for it came out later that a regular watch was kept for him every evening—ran down the steps with a glass of flip. He dashed the glass one side and hurried on. While the fumes of the spilled liquor were still on his face another foaming glass was handed him. It was the serpent in the wall once more, and before he was fairly aware of his danger, he was in its coils.

When the physician reached the bedside of the sick wife, sometime the next morning, she was past all mortal help, and two days later the light in her soft eyes went out forever.

Farmer Beech now drank to drown trouble. He drank up his farm; he became a public expense; he is now a mere wreck. He told me this story himself, and ended by saying: "Madam, I am a Prohibitionist, and do you wonder?"

LEGISLATION NEEDED FOR THE BETTER PROTECTION AND CIVILIZATION OF THE NATIVE CHILDREN OF ALASKA.

BY A MISSIONARY.

Compulsory education is first in importance as affecting the whole population. Government day schools are supplied with good teachers; books and charts are furnished free; rooms are warm and inviting, and the seats are—vacant, while the natives for whom these things are provided get their old-time instruction in shamanism and witchcraft, with the "higher education" to be found about saloons and in the dance houses, making employment for several deputy marshals and interesting work for the courts.

We ask protection for children,

(1.) Whose parents endeavor to dispose of them for immoral purposes.

(2.) Who are given in marriage against their own will.

(3.) Who are given by parents to relatives or others as prospective husbands or wives or as plural wives.

(4.) Who are left orphans, or who from any other cause have fallen into the place of slaves.

An incident under each of these heads will suffice, perhaps, to illustrate the necessity of legal protection in such cases, and may prove suggestive as to what would be most efficient. Such numbers of instances we have personally met with, in our eight years of work among the people, showing under each of the above heads such abuse and suffering among children, and the ever-increasing greed of native parents for the gains which their daughters, especially, can bring them, that it is difficult to select one only as an example.

1. A little girl ten or eleven years old came to me pleading for a place in the Mission Home. I told her that without her parents' consent we could not take her in; when convinced of this she went away in tears, only to return again and again on the same errand. She was a bright and pretty child and I knew her danger; but there was no help for it. At last she told me her parents were willing she should come into the Home, but her mother was sick and unable to come and talk about it. Though incredulous, we allowed her to stay. As soon as her parents discovered her whereabouts they came at once and demanded her. After every persuasion and argument had failed to change their determination, I was obliged to give up to them the shrinking, sobbing child, and they dragged her away, while she vainly pleaded to be left with us, and not be sold, "married," to "that white man." The mother had been sick, but she had dragged herself out of her bed to come for her child. She and her husband told me that they were poor, they had lost all their other children by death; that this one was "too precious" to part with, they needed the money she would bring them; that already they had kept her for some time for a white man who had promised to give them two hundred and fifty dollars if they would keep her safe for him until she was a little older. Could this child have been taken from her parents and made the ward of an industrial school she would have been saved a life of misery or debauch, and Alaska might have had an additional citizen of intelligence instead of a "drunken, howling squaw."

2. This is a case very similar to the foregoing but with a differen. termination. The girl was twelve years old and her family took her from the Home for the same purpose and with the same sad resistance from the child. About a year afterward they brought her back to us saying we might as well keep her in the school as they could make nothing out of her, "she cried too much, white man not like it," they said. I took her in and she was one of the most tractable and sweet-tempered of our children, learning well in both books and housekeeping. In the spring they wanted to take her out again; I would not consent and she would not go unless I sent her. Then began for the girl a series of persecutions. Her father had two wives,—my little girl's mother, an old, decrepit, almost blind woman, and her daughter by a former husband. This younger woman and her husband were the tormentors and after many other things had failed to move the girl, they brought the helpless old woman to our door where she lay for hours prone upon her face, crying and beseeching her young daughter to save her as she was to be left alone to starve to death unless she would come out and "work" for her. In this way they triumphed over the girl's more tender heart; she went away with them. They afterwards married her by native custom and against her will, to a notorious native (who already had had a number of wives) for thirty dollars and ten blankets. After several days of terror and resistance the girl escaped and fled to us, haggard, and almost immediately pursued by her people. She begged to be sent to Sitka Training School where she would be held for a number of years. I took her to the Judge (United States Commissioner) and told her story, asking to have her sent to Sitka. The Judge replied that her parents were her natural (!) guardians, and as long as they lived their consent would be necessary for such a proceeding with a minor. He did, however, go with me to their native house and himself ask their consent, which of course they refused. He told them also they could not compel the girl to marry a man she did not want and that the girl should stay at our school for awhile. They laughed at such formidable opposition to their plans, and though the girl walked home with us unmolested, they soon had her again among them, broken in health and spirit.

3. Very young children are often given to old people, whose places they are eventually to occupy. I have seen a boy of sixteen in this way become the husband of an old woman, gray-haired, blind and so crippled that she could only crawl about the floor. The boy had been taken as a prospective husband when a little child and his duties as head of the family began at once when the old man became helpless. Many boys of from fifteen or eighteen years have been forced into the most hateful relations in this way, and called upon to take the place of father—slave—to a family left by an old man. In the course of time the young man has his turn, a future wife for himself is taken to assist the old one and in such cases possession of the new is not often deferred till the death of the old wife. Child girls are forced into these relations and as their children always belong to the old woman she assists her husband in overcoming all difficulties. These child wives are often mothers at twelve and thirteen years of age. I know quite a young woman who has borne eight children to her step-father, who is now a palsied, helpless old man. This girl's mother died leaving her ten year old daughter as her husband's wife.

Only a short time ago, a bright school-girl of fourteen years came running to me from her father's house asking me to hide her. A great feast had been made to celebrate the giving of this girl by her parents to her aunt's husband, as a plural wife. While the people were drinking and dancing she had slipped out and come to us. I had only time to assure the child that though I would not hide her, I would not allow her friends to use force in taking her away. If she could stay in spite of their talk and threats she would be safe. When some of her relatives came in, having discovered her absence, they exhausted their forces without moving her, although their reproaches, ridicule, threats and execrations were terrible. Then her half-intoxicated father with another delegation of friends came to carry her off. Finding that he would not be allowed to use violence and failing in every other argument, he swore he would have his revenge, he would kill himself before her tribe as a declaration of the shame she had given him, for their tribal honor they would kill her, then with curses on her body and soul and cries for revenge, he commanded her to walk out before him. With a cry and bound she dashed out and sped toward the village. She was duly installed, without further resistance, in her master's house. In this case (and it is by no means an isolated one) our United States Commissioner would no doubt have been able to declare the marriage unlawful and the girl free, but what then? Where could she have gone? Who could have held and protected her against the daily torture she would have had to undergo? From the day of her release she would have been the object of tribal curses and in the end probably (had she been able to hold out so long) would have suffered as a witch.

4. Orphan children among the Kling-gets are virtually slaves, and this is as true to-day as it was ten years ago. About a year ago one of our more civilized native women was with her family at Hoonah. While there she found a boy running wild as an animal, except for the labor he was obliged to perform for his master, hungry, neglected, abused and with but a rag to cover him. Upon inquiry she learned that he was the son of her former dear friend, who had died some years before. At the mother's death the child became the property of her family. This discovery touched the heart of the woman; she had little sons of her own. She succeeded in getting the loan of the little slave for awhile. She shaved his head, washed and dressed and fed him, put him into her canoe and brought him home with her, where she asked for him a place in the Mission Home. Soon after he had gotten fairly into his school life, some of his relative owners came over, and, finding work, concluded to have wages for Jacob also. Coming to the house they demanded the boy. They were told that Jacob was not a slave now, that if he chose to go with them he was free to go, but if he wished to remain in the school they should not take him away. The boy did not wish to go, and from time to time they have given us much trouble. One evening when my husband was out of town these persons went into the Home and dragged out the boy, taking him along the street. I called to them to let the boy go; they only shouted defiance. I then ran after them, and quickly throwing myself across the woman's arms, her hold on the struggling boy was loosed and he slipped away. The infuriated woman then took me by the throat, choked and shook me, struggling also to get at her knife, until her husband, fearing the consequences of killing me, held her hands until I was released. We still hold the boy, though our troubles from his friends have not altogether ceased, but he is in fear for his life and begs to be sent to Sitka. We cannot make him safe even there until a term of court can be held, and then, by proving him to have been a slave, have him made a ward of the Sitka Training School.

Proper local authority would in all these cases prevent months of distress and interrupted progress.

PARABLE OF THE FRIEND AT MIDNIGHT, OR OUT OF COMMUNION

BY ELIZABETH W. GREENWOOD.

And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth.

Give us day by day our daily bread

And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him?

And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not; the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee.

I say unto you, Though he will not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity, he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.

And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.—Luke 11: 1-10.

"As He was praying in a certain place." Christ was a man of prayer, secret as well as public. Although one with the Father, He knew the only source of strength, and when so pressed with his Father's business, or thronged by the multitude that no time could be found for secret communion, again and again, "He rose a great while before day," or retired to the mountain late at night, and often spent the whole night in prayer. He knew that a soul must be much alone with God, for growth or power.

He taught by precept and example. Just before this parable of "The Friend at Midnight" was spoken, Jesus had been praying. His disciples observed with amazement how much prayer meant to Him—His nearness to the Father; sweetness of communion; simple faith and power. Conscious of their own need they cry out, "Lord, teach us to pray." Having given the example, He now gives a model of prayer, in the Lord's prayer—then an illustration in this parable.

The ordinary exposition of the parable by Trench, Arnot and others, finds here only an encouragement to persevering prayer. While it teaches importunity in prayer, it teaches much more. This exposition falls far short of the full meaning, and makes the midnight traveler a useless appendage.

Let us analyze the parable and seek a deeper meaning. Three persons are brought prominently into view.

1. A midnight traveler, out of the way, coming for food, shelter, assistance.

2. The friend to whom he came, who had nothing to set before him.

3. The friend to whom this one goes, who refuses at first, makes excuses, but because of his importunity yields.

The lesson as a whole is this: Christ is showing His disciples that if not constantly in prayer they will be out of communion with Himself, and thus cannot have power with the sinning souls around them.

The midnight traveler is a type of the unsaved sinner. Notice the points of resemblance:

1. He comes in darkness. This is the condition of every soul without Christ. Christ said of Himself, "I am the light of the world."

2. This midnight traveler was hungry. He had reached the place of the Prodigal Son; a place every sinner reaches sooner or later, where "there was a mighty famine, and he cries: 'I perish with hunger!' " Men try wealth, fame, pleasure, all the world can give, but without Christ they are hungry. St. Augustine was right when he said: "Thou hast made us for Thyself, and the soul is restless until it resteth in Thee."

3. This traveler was lost; as the original renders it, "out of the way." So was the whole human race out of the way, and hence Christ came to say: "I am the way." Men do not always realize this condition. Because they have the physical and intellectual sight, and the enjoyments of life, they forget the soul, with its darkness and hunger. Yet there are moments when nearly all can be led to confess their restlessness and craving for that which is nobler and higher.

But the parable gives us a lesson for the Christian also. This midnight traveler, hungry, lost, comes to one who has nothing to set before him. This second person in the parable is a type of the Christian out of communion, through neglect of prayer and the Word, and who hence has no power nor spiritual food for the sinning and sorrowing around him. What a sad confession! I have nothing to set before him. This man should have had food. All the rules of Eastern hospitality required it, and the midnight hour should not have found him unprepared for the need of to-morrow, or the present necessity.

Have we ever been obliged to make this confession when brought into contact with souls? Christ is the bread they need, the light for the unsaved. It is our privilege and duty to live in such intimacy of communion with our Lord, that we may always have spiritual food for the hungry. Yet how powerless many Christians feel when thus appealed to for help—how they shrink from this close contact with the wandering. Mr. Moody's experience proves how difficult it is to find Christians who are willing to enter the inquiry room and converse with the unsaved. Only when in daily communion with God have we power.

But returning to the parable, what did this man do that he might supply his guest with the food he lacked? He went to the Friend who could supply, and after long knocking and repeated entreaties received the three loaves, not because he was his friend but because of his importunity. This word rendered importunity is found nowhere else-in the New Testament. It literally means impudence or persistence in one's purpose without regard to proprieties of time or place. Think you that if this supplicant at the locked door had been an intimate friend, in love and communion, familiar in this household, he would have been obliged to thus beg, knock, wait? It is, indeed, shameless, impudent for us as Christians, to live worldly, half-hearted Christian lives, neglecting prayer, until we are out of communion with our Father and then when necessity comes, expect to receive of Him whatsoever we need. Yet such is the loving patience of our Friend who "sticketh closer than a brother," that He overlooks our impudence and wandering, in joy at our return. Here is our only safety, if we lack power; food for our own souls and for others; if we are out of communion we must not go farther away, but return to the only one who can help. But the deepest teaching of the parable is just here; when thus out of communion we have not ready access to God—not because he is unwilling. He says ask, seek, knock, but we are distant, faith is slow, we have no power in prayer. We must wait, continue knocking for our own good, to make us willing to receive. When intimate with the Father—abiding in Him, we need not long plead; faith quickly claims an answer or receives the promise of one to come.

(Concluded next week.)

Correspondence.

THE IOWA LIQUOR IN "ORIGINAL PACKAGE" CASE.

NECESSARY CONGRESSIONAL LEGISLATION—HOW TO SECURE IT.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Iowa liquor in "original package" case, Leisy et al. v. Hardin, delivered the 28th of April, was just what Prohibitionists have been expecting ever since March 19, 1888, when this court, in its decision in the case of Bowman v. Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company, while disclaiming the expression of an opinion on the "original package" point, because it did not arise in the case, took occasion to interlard as follows:

It is easier to think that the right of importation from abroad and of transportation from one state to another includes, by necessary implication, the right of the importer to sell in unbroken packages at the place where the transit terminates; for the very purpose and motive of that branch of commerce which consists in transportation, is that other and consequent act of commerce which consists in the sale and exchange of the commodities transported. Such, indeed, was the point decided in the case of Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, as to foreign commerce, with the express statement in the opinion of Chief Justice Marshall, that the conclusion would be the same in a case of commerce among the states.

Therefore, the recent decision simply converted an expectation into a certainty. This will be of benefit to the Prohibition cause, for it will urge workers on to greater exertion in securing the necessary Congressional legislation to make constitutional state legislation which has been declared unconstitutional in these Iowa cases.

The case of Leisy et al. v. Hardin was an action of replevin and involved the right to the possession of 122 quarter barrels and 11 sealed cases of beer. The plaintiffs were citizens of Peoria, Illinois, and manufacturers of the beer in controversy. The beer was shipped by plaintiffs by railway from Peoria to Keokuk, Iowa, to an agent of the plaintiffs, and placed in a building owned by one of them. It was offered for sale in the kegs and cases unbroken. There was no controversy as to the facts. The case was first tried by the Superior Court of Keokuk, which found that this business had been carried on for several years; that the agent of plaintiffs made sales to any and all persons who desired to purchase the beer, excepting to minors and persons in the habit of becoming intoxicated; and that no kegs or cases sold were broken or opened on the premises when sold, but they were removed from the building in the same condition in which they were shipped from the state of Illinois. The defendant was a constable, who seized the beer by virtue of a search-warrant issued by a justice of the peace upon the ground that said beer in question was kept for sale in violation of the laws of the state. The court also found as a fact that "the beer in question was kept for sale by the plaintiffs for the purpose of being sold in violation of the laws of Iowa, but that said laws are unconstitutional and void as applied to the facts of this case." The judgment, therefore, was for the plaintiffs. The defendant appealed the case to the Supreme Court of the state. The state Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the Superior Court, the syllabus heading the decision being in these words:

Where liquor purchased at a point outside of the state of Iowa is put up in bottles, securely sealed and packed in cases, or in kegs and barrels likewise sealed, and so transported to a point within the state, the prohibition of the sale of such liquor in the original packages is within the police power of the state, and is not in violation of the constitution of the United States vesting in Congress the right to regulate commerce between the states.

Thereupon the case was carried by the plaintiffs to the Supreme Court of the United States, which court reversed the judgment of the Supreme Court of Iowa and remanded the cause for further proceedings not inconsistent with its opinion. The opinion was delivered by Chief Justice Fuller.

Justices Gray, Harlan and Brewer dissented from the opinion and judgment of the majority of the court. In their dissenting opinion they say:

The Iowa prohibitory laws were enacted by the Legislature in the exercise of its undoubted power to protect its inhabitants against the evils, physical, moral and social, attending the free use of intoxicating liquors. They are not aimed at interstate commerce, have no relation to the movement of goods from one state to another, but operate only on intoxicating liquors within the limits of the state; they include all such liquors, without discrimination, and do not even mention from where they come.

They affect commerce much more remotely than laws of a state, the validity of which is unquestioned, authorizing the construction of bridges and dams across navigable waters within its limits, which wholly obstruct the course of commerce and navigation, or than quarantine laws, which operate directly upon all ships and merchandise coming into the ports of the state.

If the statutes of a state restricting or prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within its territory are to be held inoperative and void as applied to liquors sent or brought from another state and sold by the importers in original packages, the consequence must be that an inhabitant of any state may, under the pretext of interstate commerce, and without license or supervision of any public authority, carry or send liquors into, and sell it, any or all of the other states, despite any legislation of those states on the subject, and although his own state should be the only one which had not enacted similar laws.

The court, the same day, also rendered an opinion in the case of Henry Lyng v. State of Michigan, declaring unconstitutional the law of that state which taxes beer manufactured in Wisconsin and sold in Michigan in original packages. It decided that a state has no right to exclude directly or indirectly the subjects of interstate commerce by imposing burdens thereon. Justices Gray, Harlan and Brewer dissented from this opinion on the same grounds as in the Leisy-Hardin case.

Two bills for the necessary Congressional legislation are pending in Congress with a favorable report on each. One, introduced in the Senate by Hon. James F. Wilson, of Iowa, and favorably reported the 9th of April by the committee on interstate commerce, provides:

That any article of commerce, the manufacture or sale of which is prohibited within any state by the laws thereof, in the exercise of its police powers, shall not be transported or conveyed into such state from any other State, Territory, District of Columbia, or foreign country, by any railroad company, express company, or other common carrier; but this shall not be held to prohibit the transportation of such article of commerce as aforesaid to persons in such state authorized by the laws thereof to receive the same, or through such state as aforesaid prohibiting the sale or manufacture thereof to any other state or territory in which such manufacture or sale is not prohibited.

The other bill, introduced in the House of Representatives by Hon. I. S. Struble, of Iowa, and favorably reported the 24th of April by the Select Committee on the Alcoholic Liquor Traffic, provides:

That from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, corporation, or association of persons, to convey, carry, ship, or transport intoxicating liquors of any kind from any State, Territory of the United States, or District of Columbia, to or into any other State or Territory of the United States, contrary to and in violation of the laws thereof.

Let there, then, be a general rally of prohibition workers to the support of these bills, until one, or a substitute, has been enacted into law. Let every reader of this article, who favors such a law, at once write to both of the Senators from his or her state, and to the member of the House of Representatives from his or her Congressional District, requesting their influence in favor of the passage of these bills until one, or a substitute, has been enacted. More than this, each reader should secure the writing of similar letters by several influential people of the same political faith as that of the Congressmen addressed. Temperance and Christian Endeavor societies, conventions of clergymen, Sabbath schools, teachers, etc., should pass resolutions asking for such a law. Editorials and contributed articles in advocacy of the law should appear frequently in religious and temperance newspapers. Refer to the bills by their titles. The title of the Wilson Bill is, "A bill to protect the states in the exercise of their police powers;" and that of the Struble Bill is "A bill prohibiting the transportation of intoxicating liquors from any State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, into any other state or territory, contrary to and in violation of the laws thereof." These suggestions followed, and Congress, before the fourth of March, will pass the Wilson or Struble Bill.

ADA M. BITTENBENDER.

A WORKER ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—Another week will complete my work in Southern California. Of the four months spent here, the first was in conflict with La Grippe, and in the last three I have given over ninety lectures, reaching most towns of much size thus far on the coast. I have everywhere received abounding hospitality and the heartiest coöperation.

I have found nearly all the unions in good heart and courage, and pushing their work. Full houses and great interest in the work for the Sabbath have greeted me, both as the civil rest day and the world's holy day. With the faithful efforts of our W. C. T. U., and the organizing work of Dr. Thompson for the American Sabbath Union, it certainly looks as though Southern California, at least, was ready to redeem itself and enact a state law to protect the workingman's rest day.

I think nearly every union will report a Sabbath observance superintendent, and good work done during the World's Sabbath Observance Prayer week—the first week of April—by sermons, Sabbath school, literature and prayer. The Ventura county convention which I attended that week made that a specialty. The convention was of marked interest, the papers being of exceptional value, and attendance good. I go from here into Northern California, planning to reach San Francisco in time to assist in the School of Methods, June 17-24. Cordially,

J. C. BATEHAM.

World's W. C. T. U.

MISS ACKERMAN IN CHINA.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—After two weeks' rest, that came to my life as a sort of "children's hour," I took passage for Hong-Kong. The steamer was a small one; I was the only passenger, and the journey was eleven days. As usual I dreaded it, for the "monsoons" blew and I knew well what that meant on the China sea. The passage was stormy and the gale was the nearest approach to a typhoon that I have experienced.

One needs a brush instead of a pen to paint the scene presented by an angry sea. The great swells rolled their dark folds against the ship, tossing it from side to side, and the bleakness of the pallid heavens and dark waters was cheerless enough. I looked from my cabin window and a more melancholy, gloomy picture could not be conceived than the first breaking of day over a wild and troubled sea. The dark, somber hues of departing night seemed reflected on the bosom of the angry waves, and the gray dawn of the early morning lent a strangeness to the wild and weird scene. The only noise heard above the moan of the winds through the rigging and the dash of the heavy sea against the ship was the footfall of the mate, keeping lonely watch. Seven days of storm kept me in my cabin, and I reached terra firma almost prostrated.

After one night in Hong-Kong I took the early steamer for Canton, the largest city in China. Here I was the guest of one of our W. C. T. U. women, Miss Lillian Sheffener of Pennsylvania, who was for some time lecturer for the W. C. T. U. in that state. Miss Sheffener is a young and beautiful woman, and as I thought of the great work she could have done for our cause and how one less gifted could fill her place in China, I almost felt a pang of regret that she had found a new field of usefulness, but it is all the Master's work, and what is our loss is the mission's gain. I believe she will do a grand work there, both as a missionary and in the cause of temperance. My time in Canton was brief, as I was expected north on the next mail steamer, so the work was left to be taken up at a later date. A drawing-room meeting was held at which a number of ladies gave their names for membership, and on my return I hope to perfect the organization. One evening meeting was held; this was largely attended and the audience was the most delightful one I ever addressed. I felt fairly lifted up by the sympathy that filled the room.

The river steamers are well fitted up, and a sail on the smooth waters of the river, after the many days of tossing on the sea, was most refreshing. The river flows through one of the most beautiful sections of China. Long, fertile valleys lie on either hand hemmed in by foot-hills and lofty mountain ranges, all lending great beauty to the country that passes like a panorama before us. Six hours' sail over this winding stream brings us face to face with a scene of bustle and noise never equaled in New York or Chicago. One hundred and sixty thousand natives live on this river. They have no abiding place save a miserable little craft, where they eat, sleep and live, sometimes three and four generations in one boat. How they exist one fails to understand.

The sight is quite confusing; the river is alive with every kind of a boat, from a canoe dug out of a tree to a man-of-war, all filled with human beings. The river presented an unusual scene, for everything was decked in holiday attire, it being the great event of the year, the Chinese new year. The festivities continue a week or ten days, business is suspended and the people of all ranks and conditions are wholly given up to pleasure and worship combined. We made our way one day through the principal thoroughfare of the city and such sights I never saw in my life. Mandarins, paupers and lepers jostled against each other and we were carried with the crowd, for to have turned about and gone in another direction would have been an absolute impossibility. We were thus borne on with the throng till we reached the great temple, where already some thousands had gathered to worship and offer sacrifices to their gods, and burn incense before them. There seemed to be no special form to the services. Some brought offerings, others burned tapers, while still others burned paper money, all this to bring good luck for the new year. Millions of dollars were spent in Canton in offerings to the idols. When we see the excessive poverty of this people, and think how the very poorest of all spend the last "cash" they have in offerings to their heathen gods, our hearts are melted to pity, and we exclaim, "How long, oh, Lord, how long?"

The great curse of China is not whisky but opium, and the results of this awful habit are scarcely less appalling than the evils of intemperance, and while this habit cannot be said to cause the crime of this country as intemperance does in America, still much of the poverty is due to the use of opium. As we see the evil wrought by this curse, as we look into the faces of the hundreds who bear the marks of this habit—for it brands its victims—then remember how the traffic in this fatal drug was forced upon this people at the point of the bayonet, and that, too, by a Christian nation, we mourn over the selfishness of a nation that for gain could thrust a vice upon a great Empire that is bringing countless thousands to early graves. Standing on the steamer the captain pointed out a spot and said, "The first opium brought to this country was burned there by the natives, and the ashes scattered on the water," and when some of the officers of the government plead revenue to the Emperor he said, "I'd rather see this Empire perish than to know that it was supported by a revenue derived from the vices of my people." Would that some of the sentiment of this heathen Emperor could have been imported to Christian nations.

Leaving Canton, I reached Hong-Kong to find the French mail steamer about to leave for Shanghai. I took passage, and about eight o'clock in the evening we sailed out of the harbor; the light of the full moon streamed down upon us as the great vessel steamed out, without rolling or pitching, into the open sea. The vessel was manned with Frenchmen. Among the first-class passengers were two Chinese and three Japanese, all of whom spoke English fluently. They had been to Paris to the Exposition, and were just returning. The Chinese were both mandarins belonging to the very upper class, as their dress indicated. The climate of Northern China being very cold at this season, they were dressed for cold weather, and went in and out among us with much grace and dignity. In fact, good clothes were becoming to them.

On learning that they were connected with the government, I tried to draw them out on the question of excluding the Chinese from America, but they would not give an expression of opinion. The Japanese were well-dressed in American style, and spoke both French and English well. They were most interesting and talked freely of their country, the progress they had made and the effect of Christianity on the nation. One of them was a Christian, and connected with the great temperance league of Japan; all of these men, both the Chinese and Japanese, except the Christian, took wine; liquors are served on the French vessels with all meals, without extra expense. They all drank freely, and the Japanese took brandy in their coffee. I went into the second-class saloon, and found a large number of Japanese. They were gambling, and as they spoke English, I said to them, "Where did you learn that?" One of them replied, "Of the Americans." And I thought, It is no use to look for a spot free from civilized vices; I do not think it could be found.

On reaching Shanghai, I was driven to the home of the president of the work for China, where I was to spend part of my time. The work planted by Mrs. Leavitt in Shanghai still lives, though it has never spread, this being the only union in China. A meeting was held in the drawing-room of Mrs. Morat, where a large number of ladies of Shanghai gathered, and I had an opportunity of bringing before them the aims and objects of our society. Meetings were held every day and evening during the week. On Sunday, by invitation, I took the service at the Union Church, and Monday gave a lecture on Alaska.

I wish the National Union could see its way clear to send a W. C. T. U. missionary to China and Japan to remain here. Such a missionary must be supported, as there is no possible way to make the work self-supporting. Japan needs help, and this vast Empire is too large to think of going over unless one intends to make a life-work of it. Just now is the time, before our habit of drunkenness shall be added to their vice of opium smoking. If I am spared to reach Pekin, I shall hope for an audience with the Emperor, and shall learn if anything can be done to stay the tide of sin and vice being poured in upon this people. From here I go to Japan; navigation of Northern China being closed, I must go to Pekin on my return from Japan. Address Melbourne, Australia, care Mrs. M. M. Love. JESSIE A. ACKERMAN.

RAMABAI'S SCHOOL.

(Concluded.)

Some widows who were once with us are here no longer. Two have died, being "out of health" when they entered, but the parents of one claim that the "spirit of her husband rested upon her, angry that she came to the Sharada Sadan, and had summoned her away." Another was placed here by her brother and we supposed he was her natural guardian; but her father appeared, was unwilling she should remain, and we had no right to detain her She left with great sorrow, but with a covert promise to return if it were ever possible. Two are now absent because of sickness at home, and we are not sure that this is not an excuse to remove them from our influence.

One father said to me, "I want my daughter to become a useful woman and to help other women. She cannot do this, nor can she come back to us, if you make a Christian lady of her."

"But there is Ramabai, a Christian; see what she is doing!" I said. His reply was that Ramabai was an exception. Her great genius aided her.

Very successful has Ramabai been during the winter, lecturing in the Central Provinces and in the Deccare. Her name is well known throughout India, and people are drawn to hear her through curiosity. She never fails to enlighten them in some way, and they are generally charmed and enthusiastic in her praise. I believe that a portion of each winter should be given to lecturing: that an immense field of good is thus open to her. She is as anxious to speak for temperance as for education, and has already formed one branch of the W. C. T. U. in Bombay with a most lovely native lady as president.

Besides the widows in the school there are a few "other girls," one or two of whom are married. One is the sad case of little Luxmi, who was married at a very early age, and has been so cruelly treated by her parents-at-law, being sometimes suspended in the air with a rope around her waist and then whipped, that her father rescued her, brought the case into court, secured the guardianship of her until she is sixteen, and has placed her with us. Then there are the Purbhu girls, belonging to the third high caste, who cannot marry because they have not sufficient dowry, and who, if they can be brought to study, promise to become excellent workers in the future. We have in the school seven or eight girls of the above description, who add greatly, as we believe, to the efficiency of the school, by giving form to the classes. They do not add to the expense and we have felt justified in receiving them as long as they do not crowd upon the widows, for whom our money was obtained.

Some of the latter were really starving when they came to us. Although of the high caste they were very poor, but they hesitated long before taking a step which might be displeasing to the god whom they worshiped and tried to obey. One of our most promising widows came at first but two or three days at a time, and her mother constantly visited her, exercising the utmost solicitude for her daughter who was very eager to learn. She was a silent, morose girl, with the expression of a hunted, weary, but patient animal, and carefully kept herself away from other girls. Now she is as happy and cheerful as the others, and seems to trust us implicitly. There is no girl here who does not appeal to one's tenderest sympathies. One child of twelve or thirteen had lost her husband a few months previous. She had been so cruelly treated and taunted with being the murderess of her boy-husband that she was a cowering, shrinking little animal, and literally nothing but skin and bone. The transformation has been complete, and she nearly worships Ramabai as the cause of her new happiness.

In this country as elsewhere, our strongest opposition comes from the women themselves, to whom so many promises are given, even that in the next birth they may be men, if they are faithful; and upon whom so many curses are pronounced if they are unfaithful to the commands of their religion. With the men it is different, once a Brahmin always a Brahmin and a man, if he keeps his caste. In spite of this, and with many of the most excellent moral and intellectual qualities, Hindus are exceedingly timid, in fact, cowardly in enduring the social obloquy that may fall upon them if they depart from the rules of their caste sufficiently even to allow their daughters to attend this school. How fearful this is may be inferred from the fact that many have been driven to commit suicide rather than endure social shame.

But I return to Ramabai. She is trying to fulfill the hopes and wishes of her American friends, if not in exactly the line that all would prefer, in the best line possible. Be assured of that! Bear her in your prayers to God's throne; do not forget her in her work, and do not, I pray you, "grow weary of well-doing" for her and hers. I fear that as the years go on, many will lose interest in this grand work, and changes come for which no one is responsible. Then, too, the calls upon our interest and purses are near and many and varied. But let us be true to our pledges, oh, women of the W. C. T. U., for this is the beginning of a mighty work for a mighty people, best and most fittingly done by one of them, as is Ramabai. Very sincerely yours,

SARAH DIX HAMLIN.

Choupati Road, Bombay, British India.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

No place is so remote in our country but hearts are interested in the building of the Temple. A good temperance brother, John Chandler Allen, of Olympia, Washington, has lately died. When his last will was opened it was found to contain a bequest of $100 for the Temple. A check for this amount has just been received from his family. By this deed this good man has helped a noble cause; beside, it will place his name in a historic spot before the eyes of the coming generations, where his posterity can view it with pride long after the place where his remains are laid will become obscure and forgotten.

A check for $100 with the following letter has been received from one of our devoted white-ribboners, Mrs. Maria L. Stratton, of Wheaton, Ill. She says: "This is the tenth anniversary of the arrival in the 'Better Land' of Mrs. Elizabeth Newton Norwood. Her daughters, Mrs. Rev. L. N. Stratton, of Wheaton, Ill., and Mrs. Rev. K. M. Bissell, missionary to La Barca, Mexico, wish to perpetuate the memory of the beautiful Christian life of their mother on a memorial tablet in the Temperance Temple by sending $100. Her continued protest against the liquor traffic is monumental in her children and grandchildren who, as they become of age, vote the straight Prohibition ticket."

Another earnest white-ribboner, Mrs. S. S. Sickles, of Minneapolis, Minn., sends a check for $50; this amount completes her gift of $100. She writes: "I have the great satisfaction to complete the payment of the memorial to my husband, Geo. E. Sickles. I would not have believed that this little bit of help could have drawn my heart out so to the Temple. From the first, three years ago, when I sent my first mite I gloried in the Temple to be, but now my whole heart goes out to it. God bless you, and keep you well and strong to complete the glorious work!"

Mrs. Annie E. Pearce, of Danville, Ky., sends a check for $50, which completes her gift of $100, pledged a year ago. Mrs. Hannah A. Plummer, of Chicago, sends a check for $10; she says: "I must have a finger in thy big pie, if it is a very little one." We wish every white-ribboner would feel with our Quaker sister, that they must have a finger, whether big or little, in the "big pie." One of Ohio's brave crusaders, now in her eighty-fourth year, Mrs. Sarah Shepherd, of Gano, Ohio, sends a check for $10; her daughter, Mrs. Bates, writes that her mother's heart is in the work of building the Woman's Temple.

* * *

Mrs. A. E. A. Livesly, president of Cottage City, Mass., W. C. T. U., sends $1 from her union to record in the veteran list the name of Mrs. F. D. Holbrook, who is ninety years old. Mrs Livesly writes: "She is as fresh and vigorous as a woman much younger; she reads with avidity THE UNION SIGNAL and is deeply interested in W. C. T. U. work." Mrs. E. A. Thrush sends $1 for her mother who is seventy-five years old. The dear old lady earned the money by quilting in order that her name might be put on the veteran list. Another veteran, eighty-six years old, Mrs. C. F. Rand, Malden, Mass., writes for mite-boxes; she desires to distribute them among her grandchildren; she says her birthday is in July and then she will send us her mite for the Temple. She adds that she signed the temperance pledge over fifty years ago, and is a constant reader of THE UNION SIGNAL which she greatly enjoys. Mrs. Sarah A. Wyckoff, Morrisonville, Ill., sends 75 cents on her seventy-fifth birthday. Mrs. L. M. Stone, Burt, Iowa, a widow seventy-four years old, not rich in this world's goods, sends a gift of $5 to the Temple fund. A faithful friend of the Temple, Mrs. Mattie E. Phillips, Cadiz, Ohio, sends $1 to record the name of a friend, Mrs. Rachel Greer—who has suffered much from intemperance in her family. She is not, we are sorry to say, remarkable on account of this, but because she is the mother of twenty children, twelve of whom are still living. Mrs. Lucy Arard, Hamburg, N. Y., sends $1 from her mite-box. She is trying to fill two mite-boxes; she writes: "I am trying to save for them by being stingy with myself. I am most seventy-six years old, not able to work hard, and have not much of this world's goods."

* * *

The above shows what some of the aged saints are doing for the Temple. Let us now take a glance at the children's work. Little Ida Akins, Belmont, N. H., twelve years old, sends $2, with a Baby Band of twenty names. Two little temperance girls, Leona and Ina Snyder, Polo, Ill., send $3.65, the contents of their mite-box for a year. The following letter is from one of our youngest correspondents. It is easy to read, as it is printed in capital letters at least half an inch in length. He says, "Please send my brother and me a mite-box. I am nearly six years old, and my brother is eleven years old. Julian Patterson, and my brother's name is Paul Patterson, Rushville, Ill." Here is a nice letter from a little girl, Effie Atkinson, Paterson, N. J.: "I would like a mite-box very much to help build the Temple. I am eight years old. My mamma belongs to the W. C. T. U. and takes THE UNION SIGNAL, and reads to me the Temperance Temple little letters the children write. I had my picture taken when I was six years old with my white ribbon on. Please send me a box, and I will put in a penny every day. I have a little sister three months old; every other day a penny will be for her." Gracie Liddell, Hitchcock, S. D., writes: "My mamma has been reading to me from THE UNION SIGNAL about the Temple and mite-boxes. I thought I would like to have one on our table, and I will promise to put a penny in most every day. I am a little girl eight years old. I don't write very well, but I hope you can understand it. I want to do all I can for temperance."

All money orders and checks for the Temple should be made out in the name of Miss Esther Pugh, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago, National treasurer, and treasurer of the Temple fund. All information in regard to the Temperance Temple should be addressed to Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, Pres. Woman's Temperance Building Association.

145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Our Children.

HOW TO BE HAPPY.

Are you almost disgusted with life, little man?
I will tell you a wonderful trick
That will bring you contentment, if anything can—
Do something for somebody, quick;
Do something for somebody, quick!

Are you awfully tired with play, little girl?
Weary, discouraged, and sick?
I'll tell you the loveliest game in the world—
Do something for somebody, quick;
Do something for somebody, quick!

Though it rains like the rain of the flood, little man,
And the clouds are forbidding and thick,
You can make the sun shine in your soul, little man—
Do something for somebody, quick;
Do something for somebody, quick!

Though the skies are like brass overhead, little girl,
And the walk like a well-heated brick,
And all earthly affairs in a terrible whirl,
Do something for somebody, quick;
Do something for somebody, quick!

—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

A SERMON IN CROSS-STITCH.

BY ANNA F. BURNHAM.

The mission circle was at its merriest. It was held in the little parlor of the little minister's wife in—well, in "'way,' way out West;" so you needn't think I mean any of the mission circles in your church, if it does sound like it!

"Hand that basting cotton over here, Sallie Bryan!" cried Lilly Saunders, gaily, giving her end of the quilt a shake that nearly took it out of its frame. "Going to the fair to-night? Oh! we'll have lovely times, and there's a five hundred dollar prize for somebody. I've got twenty-five tickets already. Don't you want one?"

"My mother won't let me!" said the Sallie addressed, tossing over the spool of cotton petulantly.

"Well, I should like to know why?"

"Oh! she says it isn't proper anyway for little girls like us to be out late and sitting up nights, and, besides, she says it isn't Christian or decent to countenance these lottery things."

"I'm not a Christian!"

Lilly made the solemn statement pertly, with a little perk of the head and shake of her shoulders, as if she thereby shook off all responsibility of Christian behavior. "Oh! well, your mother is a B. B.—that explains it!" she added scornfully.

"What's a 'B. B.'?" asked Sallie, flushing a little as the girls giggled, and wondering if it had anything to do with her grandfather's being a D. D.

"'B. B.' is Born in Boston! They're the strait-lacedest set ever I got hold of—can't dance, can't play cards, can't look at a grab-bag! I hope I'll live to go to Boston sometime, and see if they ever do anything besides singing psalm tunes through their noses!"

Spite was so evidently the animus of Lilly's speech that even the girls laughed at her comical exaggeration. Sallie meekly accepted the imputation of being born in Boston (though, as it happened, she had never been nearer the State House than the little corner of Cape Ann whose "ancient fishy smell" she often longed for), and answered softly, with her head bent a little lower over the quilt corner:

"Well, Lilly, I'm a Christian, you know, and I'm sure I don't want to go if it isn't—nice!"

Sallie meant fit, proper, becoming—"becoming the Gospel of Christ." At the same time she wondered silently if her mother wasn't a little too strait-laced, and if "Boston" hadn't had a pernicious influence on her, and if the same moral laws were really binding on church members in the territories as in the states. But she loyally kept her thoughts to herself. Nella Mills spoke up sharply. Nella was a Christian. Christians do sometimes speak sharply, more's the pity.

"I don't think there's any need of setting yourself up above everybody because you're a Christian! I never pretended to be better than all the deacons and old church members. I know they go to lottery fairs, and Deacon Wiley lets his children play whist or any other game they want to. As for dancing, you won't find a girl in this church that doesn't do it. I guess if we do as near right as other folks it will be near enough."

The minister's little wife looked up from the basket of fancy work she was busily allotting to the older girls, and gazed at the group around the album quilt nervously. Sallie was looking perplexed and troubled. There was a soul in danger.

"Who wants to do some fancy work?" she cried eagerly, gathering all the bright worsted and canvas into her work-apron. "The little girls can do that. I want somebody on these sofa cushions!"

The girls jumped up joyfully. They had envied the senior girls in their Berlin work for a long time. The prudent directress had always been afraid these younger ones would spoil it.

"But I'd rather spoil cross-stitch than some other things," said the minister's wife to herself, earnestly.

"Oh, aren't these pansies just sweet?"

"Oh, look at my lilies!"

"Do let's have some needles and wool and get to work," cried half a dozen at once.

"You haven't given me any pattern," said Lilly Saunders, presently, while the rest threaded needles expectantly.

"Nor me," said Sallie, stepping up.

"Never mind about the pattern," said Mrs. Bell, carelessly. "I don't seem to see it just this minute. Here is one that Carrie Myers did. You can look at that for a pattern."

"But, Mrs. Bell," cried the three girls in perplexity, "there are mistakes in hers!"

"Oh, yes! some mistakes, probably. But it will be near enough."

"We don't want to copy mistakes!" cried Nella Mills. She spoke sharply—very sharply for a Christian.

"No-o?"

Mrs. Bell drawled out the word sweetly with a rising inflection. There was meaning in the steady brows she bent on Nella, but she said nothing beyond that exasperating little monosyllable.

"Why, of course not!" they cried in chorus. "What's a pattern for but to follow? What makes you talk so funny—when you're always so strict about doing things exactly?"

"Oh, well," said Mrs. Bell, mildly, "maybe I've been a little too strict. I don't suppose it's well to be too strait laced about anything. Aim to do about as near right as others folks—that will do well enough."

"Nice looking sofa cushions we'd have on that principle!" cried the girls, in amazement. "We shouldn't get any too near if we looked at the real, right pattern, but when it comes to following Carrie Myers's work, or anybody else's, I don't care whose it is, why, Mrs. Bell, you know yourself we shouldn't get it half as near right as theirs was."

"Well, I always thought so, too, girls, till to-day," said Mrs. Bell, frankly, folding her hands and looking at them in an earnest little way she had. "But when I heard you talking over there in the corner this afternoon—"

"Oh!" cried Lilly, with dawning intelligence, "about lotteries—" "Mrs. Bell!" said Carrie explosively, "and dancing."

"We didn't think," said all the girls together.

"I didn't know but you thought being a Christian was easier than doing fancy work?"

"You can't get along without looking at the pattern in cross stitch!" said Nella thoughtfully.

"Nor cross-bearing either, Nella," said Mrs. Bell, softly, drawing the flushed cheek down to hers.

"Nor cross-bearing either!" repeated Nella, slowly.

Mrs. Bell went back to her work and the girls to theirs. This thing was done in a corner, and the mission circle was no wiser for the little object lesson.

But Nella and Sallie will be better Christians all their days for learning to look at Jesus, the true Pattern, instead of his imperfect followers.—The Advance.

Worcester, Mass.

POLLY PERCY'S PRIZE.

BY BERTHA H. BURNHAM.

"If I were not trying to be a Christian," soliloquized little Miss Polly Percy, "I could try for that prize. Oh, dear! I 'most wish I wasn't—N-no; I don't mean that, not exactly, but—well, it would be lovely if I could get the prize. I guess—yes, I think I will try for it. Any way, don't papa and mamma expect me to be the very best scholar? If they were at home, they'd tell me to, I know, and of course I ought to obey. And that watch is the loveliest thing! I've wanted one for ages, and now—I declare I 'most wish that there wasn't any Kitty Lowe; for then I could try for that pr— Why! I didn't see you before, grandma."

"You do not use your eyes to as good advantage as I do my ears," smiled Mrs. Percy. "But what is the trouble, my dear? Perhaps I can tell you what to do, as mother is not here to advise. Well, Polly."

"It's a prize," began Polly, eagerly. "Mr. Roberts, one of the committee, has offered it, and he said—it's the very dearest little watch, grandma,—he said that if there were two best scholars the rest of the term, he would divide the money that the watch is worth between them, and if there was only one best scholar, he would give her either the money or the watch. I'd take the watch, grandma,—wouldn't you?"

"I see no reason why you should not try to win the watch, darling," said grandma; "that is, provided you are honest in your endeavors."

"I didn't tell you the reason," explained Polly. "I—you see, Kitty and I are both best scholars; she is No. 1 one week, and I'm No. 1 the next. But she's dreadfully poor, grandma, and so I lend her my books, and we study together—and—you see—if—we—study together any more, we shall both have the prize—and I don't want fifteen dollars, I want the watch—and it will be selfish if I don't study with her, and—"

Grandma smiled sympathetically as Polly paused.

"You know what you ought to do, Polly," she said; "now tell me what you will do."

"I don't know," Polly confessed, shaking her head mournfully. "I don't want to be selfish, for it is horrid; and besides, it doesn't please Jesus—and I do want to please Him. But O, grandma! you don't know how much I want that watch! It's any quantity prettier than Caddy Hollandson's ever thought of being. Grandma, don't you suppose our Lord was ever selfish—just the least bit, you know—when he was a little boy?"

"'Even Christ pleased not Himself,'" quoted Mrs. Percy softly.

"Well," sighed Polly, after a long silence,—"well, I rather guess, grandma, that I shall try to be willing for Kitty to win the prize. I know she will if I don't, because the other girls don't care about having good lessons; and I wish you'd pray that I may be willing that she should have the whole prize, instead of only half."

"That's my brave girl!" said grandma, approvingly.

Ever so many weeks after, Mr. Roberts handed scarlet-cheeked Kitty three bright gold eagles as the reward for her patient study. Then Miss Kidder, the teacher, said: "Polly Percy deserves honorable mention; had it not been for an unlucky spelling-lesson, in which she misspelled one word, she would be entitled to half the prize."

And Kitty, her arms thrown about Polly's neck, whispered, "You are the loveliest girl! I know you missed 'elocution' on purpose that day, and I wish you hadn't, —only now I can buy lots of medicine for mamma, and shoes for Baby Rob."

After all, grandma's praise was best: "Darling, yours is the 'prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.'" —Sunday School Times.

DETERMINATION.

"I tell you the future can hold no terrors
For any sad soul while the stars revolve,
If he will but stand firm on a grave of his errors,
And instead of regretting, resolve, resolve!
It is never too late to begin rebuilding,
Though all into ruins your life seems hurled,
For look! how the light of the spring-time is gilding
The worn, wan face of the bruised old world!"

—Exchange.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING MAY 25, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 10: 1-24; I Samuel, 21-26.)

Sunday, 25; Luke 10:1-24. Verse 2, It is probable that our Lord at this time called into active service all who had sufficient consecration to meet the demands. It is surprising that there were as many as seventy who were ready to bear such trials, and to practice such self-denial. Are we ready to give ourselves to the Lord's work, with anything like such unreserved consecration as is evident in the missionary work of these seventy disciples? Verse 15, The doom pronounced against these places which had been favored by Christ's presence in them so much, shows what awaits us who have the gospel, if we neglect and despise our privileges.

Monday, 26; I Sam. 21. Verse 2, What David said to Ahimelech was a falsehood. His fear led him into the sin. Verse 8, One lie leads on to another. When one starts downward, there are always plenty of excuses and allurements to lead him on to ruin. It is no falsehood for Christians to say, our "King hath commanded me a business" and "it requires haste." Verse 13, If David had trusted God, he might have been spared this degradation of playing the fool. It is better to rely upon the Lord than upon tricks and falsehood.

Tuesday, 27; I Sam. 22. Verse 2, It was anything else than a choice lot of men that gathered about David; but in time he developed among them some noble soldiers (I Chron. 11.) Some of the poorest and most unpromising people, who have become the loyal followers of Christ, have developed into great usefulness and worth of character. Verse 19, The wicked try to establish themselves by their wickedness, but what they do makes more certain their final downfall. Saul's attempts to terrify every one from showing friendship to David alienated and disgusted all good men in the kingdom.

Wednesday, 28; I Sam. 23. Verse 2, It was a humane and benevolent service for David to take sides with an unoffending people who were engaged in their harvest operations. We ought to give our help to the oppressed and wronged. Verse 14, God is the great deliverer of His people when they are in distress and danger. While God was his refuge and fortress, it was in vain that Saul sought to take the life of David. Verse 16, There is no example in history or fiction of a friendship purer, nobler, and more self-denying than Jonathan's. Are we doing the best we can to strengthen our friends' confidence in God? The next opportunity we have to do so may be our last. Jonathan never met David again.

Thursday, 29; I Sam. 24. Verse 4, God had promised the kingdom to David, but He had made no promise to deliver Saul into his hands. It is so easy to pervert the Scriptures to accommodate self-interest or prejudice. There are many who read into the Bible a meaning of their own, instead of honestly and carefully reading from it the Word of God. Verse 17, In the heart of a bad man there is something that may be touched. The confession of wrong and reform by the force of impetuous emotion is no certain sign of repentance and a change of heart.

Friday, 30; I Sam. 25. Verse 1, The young, who are considering how to make the most of life, should mark these traits in Samuel: Devotional habits from his childhood, holiness, energy, activity in his work, and consistency of principles and conduct. Verse 21, David's men had undoubtedly been of much assistance to Nabal's servants, and it was proper that they should be kindly treated; but David's vow to destroy Nabal's house was a great sin, and he had reason to thank Nabal's wife for keeping him from such a shameful act. No one should ever give way to passion, and a desire for revenge.

Saturday, 31; I Sam. 26. Verse 2, Saul's goodness passed away (chapter 24:16) as soon as the circumstances which excited his feelings changed. Some in our times "get religion," and lose it in the same way. Verse 21, Every one should diligently avoid the sins and mistakes in life which are certain to lead him to cry out in bitterness of soul at last: "I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly."

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(A good soldier of Jesus Christ. II Timothy, 2: 3.)

1. When we are called upon to be the soldiers of our Lord Jesus Christ, it is not a mere figure of speech, but it means something. It meant something to be a Roman soldier, and the apostle used the language with all the force that those times put into the words.

2. With such a good commander as we have, the Prince of Peace, we ought to be good soldiers. By not entangling ourselves with the affairs of this life, we should please Him who has chosen us to be soldiers. II Tim. 2: 4. No one can be a good soldier without strict obedience to his commander. Acts 5: 29.

3. We should put on the whole of the armor that our Commander has provided, and not play the part of cowards when we ought to be in the fight. Eph. 6: 11-18; II Tim. 4: 7.

The Household.

THE BIRD'S INVITATION.

BY MRS. S. M. I. HENRY.

Up in the top of a maple tree,
A little bird sits and sings to me
A sacred song, this Sabbath day,
Worshiping God in his own sweet way.

And he looks at me with two pure eyes,
Like one who is sent to evangelize,
And seems to say: "Come, sing with me!
Just listen, and try to catch the key."

And I have been trying to learn his words,
And follow the play of his wondrous chords,
And to tune my voice to the joyous note
That swells and ruffles his gold-brown throat.

But he is beyond me! no more can I sing
That song, than fly with his dainty wing;
And so I sit still, and let him do
Alone, the singing service for two.

But it seems not right; I feel in me,
That I ought to sing as sweetly as he;
That the woman's soul and the mother's heart
Should give me in even his song a part.

But if I am silent to-day, while he
Is splitting his throat in ecstacy,
I know that, to me, some day shall bring
A gift of song and a song to sing,

Which the little heart in his vest of gold,
Is altogether too small to hold;
A song unwritten for evermore;
No seraph, even, hath seen its score.

Sometimes I have felt the delicious thrill
Of the songful tide that then shall fill
My soul; but at best it has only been,
As yet, a dream of what shall be then.

So, beautiful bird in the maple tree,
You may swing and sing and laugh at me
As I try to mimic your song, but I
Can afford to wait for my by and by.

MOTHERS' MEETINGS.

BY HOPE LEDYARD.

I often feel when about to address a mothers' meeting, "Is there anything new to be said? Have we not exhausted the subject?" But the question is answered most emphatically if I depend upon the Spirit and speak as He directs. There is a Bible story that gives us a hint as to this matter. When Elisha wanted to help the widow, he told her to bring empty vessels, and, as they were brought, he poured from the widow's pot of oil enough to fill them all. It was only when "there was not a vessel more" that the oil was stayed. So it is in our work among mothers. You have a little knowledge, some experience, one or two ideas as to the training of children; use them, bring empty vessels, and ask our great Prophet to fill them from your little store, and I promise you that your supply shall not fail. But I find, in too many cases, that our unions are not bringing in the empty vessels. Are there no poor, uneducated women in your community? If there are, you must try to reach them. Reach them by personal effort if they will not attend the meetings, for they are mothers, ignorant mothers! Oh, what a fearful coupling of words! Their boys, and it may be their girls, are to be voters, are to make or mar the land we love—we must educate these women.

Be very practical in your meetings. If, on assembling, you find there are four elderly married women, four or five unmarried women and one or two mothers with half grown children, even though you have prepared a paper on "Pre-Natal Influences," throw it aside, and, with a great cry to God, speak as He directs. I should, in such a case, discuss just what young mothers we could reach, and get each elderly woman to pledge herself to try to be accompanied or represented by a young married woman at the next meeting. Or, you might discuss what childless women can do for the children in the community. Think what a power there would be in faithful prayer and effort in this direction.

The leader of the meeting should visit among the mothers and find what are their difficulties. Do not harp on difficult subjects. A very helpful meeting would be one at which games were discussed, not as to whether this or that is wrong, but at which several would bring accounts of amusements which have been found of benefit at home. The headings of the chapters in "Plain Talks for Young Home Makers" will give you topics, and Mrs. S. M. I. Henry's book, "Unanswered Prayer" is replete with suggestions.

There is one subject that I wish would be carefully discussed in every mothers' meeting; that is, the education of our children in the first principles of politics. We should impress our boys with the solemnity of the voting power. Teach them that they become a part of the government as soon as they vote. Show them what our country does for us, as to education, protection, etc., and above all teach them what the government might do, if it would! We must train our boys to value each vote, to consider it a duty to vote. Teach them to despise above everything selling one's vote or one's principles. Let us teach our boys that "politics, as a trade, finds most, and leaves nearly all, dishonest;" that every one should give a portion of his strength, time and money to his country. Teach the danger of one-sided opinions; that we must look at both sides; that vituperation is not argument. There is a movement on foot to provide flags for every school-house. I am glad of it; we need to educate our children to be patriots; put a flag over your boy's bureau, mother, and talk with him of his country's needs.

Another suggestion is for weekly meetings, and applies especially for those held in mission places. Have a special subject for each week of the month. Let the first week be a missionary subject. Take a country—China, Alaska, etc.—and tell all about the women of that country. Tell how they dress and live. The heathen will give us Christians hints sometimes as to training our children! At this meeting let each give something, be it ever so little, for the missions in the country discussed. The second week you can take temperance for a subject, and take great pains to be fully prepared. Get the stomach chart (borrow or hire one if you can't buy), and show what alcohol does. Get Julia Colman's illustrated lessons, and teach the mothers actual facts; give statistics. Show what tobacco costs in the aggregate. The third week have a special meeting as to personal religion. Don't talk creed or church, but present Christ; tell what He can do, has done in the home.

The fourth week discuss such obligations as these:* "1. To pray for the children once every day, and if possible with them once a week. 2. Never to allow coarse jests, bad words or low talk among the children. 3. To try to get the children early to bed and not allow them to keep late hours on the street. 4 To try to train the children in purity and self-respect. 5. Never to blame God for trouble our own sin brings on us. 6. To try never to send the children to saloons and to discourage the use of intoxicating drinks in every possible way." The fifth week occurring but once in three months might be a social affair with a cup of tea and sandwiches. Each member might be asked to bring a promise from God's word, and encouraged to tell how it has been fulfilled in her case. Dear friends, try to do this work among the poor and careless as well as among the rich and careless. May every mothers' meeting be blessed, and may we be stirred to fresh effort and, above all, to fresh consecration and union with Christ.

*These are from the Pledge Card of the Mothers' Unions and cannot be used as a pledge except by joining the union. Office 44 Bible House, N. Y.

THE AGE OF UNDERSTANDING.

BY KATHIE MOORE.

"I am anxious to have my boy sign a temperance pledge, but I do not think it right to let him do so until he understands the nature of a vow," said a fond mother.

"At what age do you think he will understand it?"

"At eight or nine, I should think," she replied.

"And in the meanwhile the little fellow may learn to like the taste of wine or cider. Children are never safe away from home, and some kind neighbor, in mistaken kindness, of course, may lead this little one's feet into paths of evil by giving him a taste of wine or cider."

"That is true," answered the mother; and the next Sunday her four-year-old boy signed the pledge in the Sabbath school.

Some weeks later, when I was again visiting the mother, her little boy came in from his play. He had been spending an hour with a neighbor.

"Mamma," he said, in his sweet, baby way, "it isn't beer dat Mrs. Martin dinks out of her beer bottle; it is cidie."

"How do you know that?" asked his mamma.

"She told me so. I said, 'Mrs Martin, is dat beer you are dinking out of the beer bottle?' and she said, 'No, Tommy, dat is cidie;' and den after awhile she said, 'Will you have some cidie, Tommy?' and I said, 'No, 'ank you, Mrs. Martin, I don't dink cidie.'"

The mother smiled. She knew, now, that her boy could understand, and that with the pleasant fumes of cider about him he could keep his pledge.

As soon as children can understand what drunkenness is and what truth is, they can understand and keep a pledge. Let the little children sign the pledge; the earlier the better, so that the taste for these tempting drinks may never be a stumbling-block in the walk of life.

HOMES AND HELP.

BY FRANCES J. DECKER.

In thousands of homes, found in all parts of our country, there is a demand for suitable and competent help. On the other hand there are thousands of girls and women, dependent upon their own exertions for a livelihood, who are homeless and destitute of the comfort which home alone can bring. Many others find it necessary to go out from the parental roof and seek support in the various avenues of service. Of these there are many occupations open to women. But it is not our purpose to discuss different lines of work; we propose to confine ourselves to the subject of homes and help, and to give some practical thoughts gathered from experience and observation.

The problem to be solved is how to bring the two together—how best to make the supply meet the demand. Public opinion is the first obstacle in the way, and we find that here reform is needed. A radical change of feeling is demanded—something which will go to the root of the matter, overturn false theories, and thus undermine premises upon which erroneous opinions are based. Why is it that the American girl, thrown upon her own resources, scarcely ever thinks of doing housework for a living? Is it not because of the stubborn fact that it is looked upon as degrading, and the one who engages in it, for wages, deemed inferior in ability? How many will dare to meet the opprobrium that lurks in the term, "hired girl"? One may stand behind the counter of a store and retain her respectability, but the moment she enters a kitchen the line is drawn, and few are brave enough to face the inevitable fate. Is there any justice in this way of looking at things? If not, where lies the blame, and what can be done to remedy the evil?

The first thing is to get people to think upon this subject. It is worthy of thought and careful consideration. All reforms begin in thought and end in action. Only as true ideas are developed and carried into practical operation are they of use in benefiting humanity. The first thing arresting our attention as we seek to bring homes and help together, is the want of adaptation. Somehow, with few exceptions, they are not what they should be to each other.

Much has been said and written about what constitutes a true home, its sacredness, power for good, and the influence exerted in that domain by a true woman. We have come to base our estimate of woman upon her character as wife and mother, and the tangible walls of home as those of the parlor and nursery. In our idealistic view we have almost ignored the kitchen, and been in danger of forgetting that it needed a keeper. Every woman at the head of a household should understand her own work and be able to guide all the departments of home life.

If she cannot do this in a competent manner she loses half her dignity, and is at the mercy of the help employed. Men learn to understand the details of any business in which they hope to prove successful, and may we not expect as much of woman? In her home life there are a thousand interests that need watchful care, hence we urge upon every woman the necessity of an intelligent knowledge of housework as a part of the proper fitting for her sphere.

That the kitchen should take a more prominent position in the home is a fact that cannot be disputed. We are apt to look to the parlor for the test of refinement, but somehow there creeps into our consciousness a vague idea that the kitchen is a truer index. If order and cleanliness reign here, it has much to do with the moral atmosphere, and we may expect to see a higher rate of intellectual culture developed in that home where the physical wants are best provided for. Therefore, we look to the kitchen and the work done there as an important factor. The room itself should be bright and cheery, furnished with all conveniences to lighten labor and conduce to the best possible results. Work done here should be of the highest order and, as a rule, nothing less should be tolerated, for upon this the physical well-being of the family largely depends. We would emphasize the thought that the ability to do kitchen work creditably is one of the real tests of usefulness in life, and calls for a degree of talent not inferior to that demanded in the so-called higher spheres. Again we are confronted by the problem, how is this talent to be obtained? The light of truth must be turned upon this subject until the darkness of prejudice shall vanish away; homes must be made really such to those in their employ, so that housework shall become a desirable vocation.

What can be done to make housework desirable, and to induce those who are competent, or may become so, to enter upon its duties?

First, we are to consider that many of those who apply for work have had no experience nor opportunities to learn, yet many a raw hand, by careful training may become efficient help. A lack of knowledge may not always be unpromising, if it be accompanied by a willingness to learn, so that in many cases instead of discharging help for incompetency, with patience and painstaking labor we should seek to transform the novice into experienced help. In this relation, as in all others, there is great need of forbearance. There is a certain kind of fault-finding which is always hurtful in its influence. One must not expect everything to be done perfectly at the first trial, and a word of encouragement as to the effort will do far more toward bringing about a desired result, than many words of condemnation.

In teaching others to do and to become accustomed to our ways of doing, not only a guiding but a helping hand is necessary. Some need, not only plain and definite orders, but careful supervision until they are perfectly instructed and able to depend upon their own efforts. Others may come into the employ of the home who feel themselves sufficiently competent to do anything, and often ready to resent any interference with their ways. This class should be at once taught, by the quiet dignity and bearing of the mistress, that she is the supreme authority in her own home. While she is careful and thoughtful in regard to the rights of others, yet no true woman will allow her own rights to be infringed or trampled upon. It requires much wisdom and skillful tact to so guide the affairs of home work that all shall move harmoniously. Happy the woman who can do this—her home will be a desirable place for help, and she will be able to accomplish a vast amount of good.

No labor which girls may undertake is more conducive to health than household work, when rightly performed. It should be dignified and exalted to the highest degree of excellence by those who engage in it. Let them feel that best results are to be sought after and obtained, for a two-fold reason, viz., the influence upon others and the discipline wrought in themselves.

A few words as to the spirit and manner of service. If the apostolic injunction were always heeded it would create a reform as to the spirit in which labor is performed. "With good will doing service as unto the Lord and not unto man." The essence of this precept carried out into practical life would transform many an act of mere drudgery into a joyful task. It would smooth the rough places and make endurance far more easy. There are trials to be met in all the walks of life, and some which are specially incident to work done for others in the home. One must learn to be patient under reproof, remembering, "this is acceptable with God." Let the spirit of "good-will" be constantly manifest, and like leaven it will have its effect.

The manner of work is scarcely less important. The thought of "doing service" should be emphasized—by this we mean that such service should be rendered as shall be most valuable. To this end carefulness should be exercised in all things, indeed, it is one of the most essential qualities in good help. Neatness is another prime requisite—this, together with the habit of doing things quickly, should be constantly cultivated. In short, aim to do well, and be "faithful in that which is least."

When this subject of homes and help in all its varied relations and possibilities shall demand and receive the attention which is due to it, we may hope for the dawn of a new era—a day of better things which shall bring joy to the heart of many a weary worker.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A AMES, ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

Teach me, O Lord, the way of thy statutes; and I shall keep it unto the end. Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law; yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart.—Psalms 119: 33, 34.

THE POLICE POWER AND THE IOWA SALOON DECISION.

The exact question in the Iowa saloon case was whether, notwithstanding the delegation to the general government of the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, the several states still had the right to regulate, restrict or prohibit such commerce in intoxicating liquors, under their police power, for the protection of the peace, good order, morals, health and safety of their inhabitants. That they have such right as to their internal commerce, is not questioned. Six of the judges, Chief Justice Fuller, and Justices Miller, Field, Bradley, Blatchford and Lamar, said No! the states have no such power. The other three members of the court, Justices Harlan, Gray and Brewer, said Yes! the police power of the states does extend to such a case.

Now what is the Police Power? Judge Cooley defines it, in his Constitutional Limitations, Chapter 16, Page 572, as follows:

"The police power of a state, in a comprehensive sense, embraces its system of internal regulation, by which it is sought, not only to preserve the public order, and to prevent offences against the state, but also to establish, for the intercourse of citizen with citizen, those rules of good manners and good neighborhood which are calculated to prevent a conflict of rights and to insure to each the enjoyment of his own, so far as is reasonably consistent with a like enjoyment by others."

Judge Cooley also says, Ibid, 586, that "the line of distinction between that which constitutes an interference with commerce, and that which is a mere police regulation, is sometimes exceedingly dim and shadowy, and it is not to be wondered at that learned jurists differ when endeavoring to classify the cases which arise. It is not doubted, he adds, that Congress has the power to go beyond the general regulations of commerce which it is accustomed to establish, and to descend to the most minute directions, if it shall be deemed advisable. . . . Congress may establish police regulations, as well as the states, confining their operation to subjects over which it is given control by the constitution."

The real cause of the difference of opinion among the members of the Supreme Court seems to be the habit of speaking of the Police Power, and the Power to Regulate Commerce, as though they were separate and independent, if not hostile and antagonistic powers, whereas, in truth they are "one and the same." ALL REGULATIONS OF COMMERCE ARE MADE UNDER THE POLICE POWER whether by the law of the state, or by the law of the nation. In discussing the subject in Henderson v. New York, 92 U. S. R. 259, the Supreme Court, by Mr. Justice Miller, said in 1875, "We are of opinion that this whole subject has been confided to Congress by the constitution; and that Congress can more appropriately, and with more acceptance exercise it than any other body known to our law, state or national."

There is no controversy among the judges about the propriety, justice or legality of regulating, restricting or suppressing the liquor traffic; they differed only on the question whether the states or the nation should deal as may be thought best with that traffic with foreign nations, and among the several states, and it seems clear that the weight, both of reason and authority, is with the majority of the court. Let us be thankful that under their decision the temperance question has become, and until its final settlement must remain, the foremost national issue of our time.

In another form, the question was whether, admitting the paramount power of Congress over interstate commerce, the states could, nevertheless, in the absence of Congressional regulations, make and enforce regulations of their own, until such time as Congress should be pleased to intervene, and supersede the local regulations by others under the national authority.

But in this form, the question was not new. In Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. R. 278, the Supreme Court said in 1875, "the fact that Congress has not seen fit to prescribe any specific rules to govern interstate commerce does not affect the question. Its inaction on the subject, when considered with reference to its legislation with regard to foreign commerce, is equivalent to a declaration that interstate commerce shall be free and untrammeled."

And as long before as 1849, in the case of the United States v. Marigold, 9 Howard R. 560, the same court said: "Since the passage of the embargo and non-intercourse laws, and the repeated judicial sanctions those statutes have received, it can scarcely at this day be open to doubt, that every subject falling within the legitimate sphere of commercial regulation may be partially or wholly excluded, when either measure shall be demanded by the safety, or by important interests of the entire nation. Such exclusion cannot be limited to particular classes or descriptions of commercial subjects, but may embrace manufactures, bullion, coin or any other thing. The power once conceded, it may operate on any and every subject of commerce, to which the legislative discretion may apply."

Thus there is express authority in Congress, under the national constitution, as expounded by the court of last resort, to enact any regulations, restrictions or prohibitions of the liquor traffic, that, in the judgment of Congress, the general welfare of the country may demand.

The proposal to amend the interstate commerce act, by adding a declaration that nothing contained in it shall be construed to authorize the importation of intoxicants into any state, in contravention of its laws, excites surprise. Such importations are made, not by virtue of the interstate commerce act, but under the national constitution; and the remedy required is not some mild negation, but A COMPLETE CODE OF REGULATIONS, covering the entire subject and providing adequate penalties for all violations. Acting under that fundamental maxim of free government—"The welfare of the people is the supreme law," the people of the United States will now enlarge the scope of their moral movements, and will, in due time, make the whole domain of production, transportation and trade, subject to all such regulations, restrictions and prohibitions, as "the peace and good order of society" may seem to require.

Let there be no confusion of ideas about the states and the nation. The same people who are sovereign in the several states, are also sovereign when united in the general government. And whether in the states or in the nation, they exercise their peculiar sovereignty by the same inherent, inalienable, august and irresistible authority, the POLICE POWER.

Through decades that have seemed like centuries, the friends of temperance, law and order, have "fought the good fight, and kept the faith," and now they may thank God, and take new courage, for with the Iowa saloon decision, the beginning of the end has come.

A ROUND-THE-WORLD OUTLOOK.

Exchanges come to our table from almost all countries; we propose to give our readers an occasional outlook through their eyes.

A quotation in the North China Daily News from the Shen Pao, a native paper, gives a striking picture of the increase of opium using in China. After giving the figures representing the cost of imported opium, it adds that great as this sum is, it represents only a small part of the whole amount devoted to this vice. The cultivation of the poppy and the production of native opium have increased enormously.

"The Chinese have ceased almost entirely to make any effort to check the planting of the poppy or the consumption of the opium. Why should they when they are compelled by a so-called Christian government to admit the foreign article? Indeed, if the people must be allowed to purchase the poison, better let them spend their millions at home rather than send them abroad. There are statutes against the cultivation of the poppy, but they have become a dead letter. There is, probably, not a province where it is not grown more or less, and in some, a large part of the very best lands is given to this crop. A heavy tax is levied in some districts, but there is no uniformity in this respect."

Shanghai charges a very high license for the sale of opium, but under it the vile dens thrive as do saloons in this country. strong effort has lately been made to do away with the licensing power of the municipal council, but it has resulted as such efforts are apt to do in America and England, in defeat.

A stirring appeal from Chinese Christians has just gone to the churches of Great Britain, for assistance in staying the traffic in opium. Missionaries and native Christians in India are coöperating in this work; a petition bearing the names of seven hundred and fifty foreign missionaries resident in India, twelve hundred native pastors and five thousand other Indian Christians was recently presented to the court at Pekin; a similar memorial containing seven thousand names has been sent from Scotland. The reason for unusual activity along this line lies in the fact that there is now a probability that the Tien-Tsin Treaty will be revised, and the petitioners ask that it may be so revised as to prohibit the importation of opium into China.

From Africa comes the sad news of the death of A. M. Mackay, for the past thirteen years the leader among the missionaries of equatorial Africa. His was an intrepid soul, a brain-power which made him a leader among men, and a heart all aflame with love to the Master. He was only forty years old, yet is said to have done almost as much toward opening Africa to civilization and Christianity as Livingstone or Stanley. It is said that acquaintance with Mr. Mackay was the immediate cause of Stanley's writing his strong tribute to the character of missionaries.

The shipment of rum and other liquors from Boston to Africa has fallen off from 803,437 gallons in 1885 to 297,008 gallons in 1889; for the nine months of the present fiscal year, up to April 1, the shipments were 167,302 gallons. This falling off would be cause for rejoicing if it were not for the fact learned from African sources, that the shrewd natives are themselves making an intoxicating liquor which, at much less cost than Boston rum, does the same deadly work.

James Stuart has introduced into the English House of Commons, and the Earl of Meath has introduced into the House of Lords a bill making it lawful for women to be elected and act as county councillors. At Bath two ladies were elected as Poor Law Guardians, one receiving the highest number of votes cast at the election.

Hon. W. S. Caine, M. P., has given the London Temperance Hospital £300, received by him in settlement of a lawsuit. Belief in non-alcoholic medication is gaining ground in England. Reports from one hundred and sixty-four hospitals throughout the United Kingdoms show that the use of alcoholics therein has been reduced about sixty per cent since the establishment of the London Temperance Hospital.

In Paris a meeting of the Anti-Vivisection League, which was to have been addressed by Madame Marie Huot, was broken up by a mob of incorrigible students.

The McAll Mission, in Paris, originated eighteen years ago by Mr. McAll and his devoted wife, has grown to be a mighty agency. It has extended beyond the limits of Paris and now comprises one hundred and twenty-nine stations in sixty-four cities and towns of France. Last year 21,600 meetings were held, attended by over a million people; 11,000 children are gathered into its Sabbath schools. As its venerable founder finds the supervision of this great work beyond his strength, Rev. Prof. Loba has been appointed superintendent. Prof. Loba is a Swiss by birth, but coming to America in boyhood received his education here, was for a time professor in Knox College, and later has been a very successful pastor in the Congregational Church.

The Indian Witness gives notes of the recent lecturing tours of Rev. Thomas Evans through Bombay in the interest of temperance. Much good seems to have been accomplished; the people were aroused to a sense of the danger from the spread of the drink habit; and many misconceptions were corrected. The natives thought that all Christians drank; when they learned that 14,000 British soldiers in India are total abstainers, that most missionaries and ministers never drink intoxicants, that there are millions of people in England and America who do not, and that the blue ribbon is worn as a badge of honor by members of the Houses of Parliament, they said, "Well, after all there are Christians who do not drink sharab."

Another misconception that had stood in the way of getting high caste natives to sign the pledge was the belief that if they signed it they would be ranked as drunkards, was corrected when they learned that thousands of Christians who had never drank took the pledge for the sake of example to others who did drink. A witty native remarked in one of the meetings: "Now we see that those who do not drink are willing to take the pledge, and we may assume that those who do drink have no wish to pledge themselves against that which they like." This was at Poona, which is the stronghold of Brahminism and caste in Bombay, and strange to say, of liquor drinking also. At one meeting there two hundred and sixty signed the pledge, most of them Brahmins.

Many educated natives are falling into the drink habit, mostly drinking on the sly because it is against their religion. One of the most potent reasons for their thus falling is that they consider it a "sign of culture," that it stimulates thought and promotes talent. This, of course, comes from the example of foreign gentlemen to whom the natives look as leaders. While English gentlemen in high position are thus fastening the drink curse upon India, Hira Singh Puri, from the Punjab, has been giving temperance addresses in different parts of London. He deals mainly with the iniquities of the "Abkari" or excise system by which the English government in India sells to the highest bidder its license to sell strong drink, and plants drink-shops in any locality it pleases, irrespective of the wishes of its inhabitants. The drink-shops thus established do their inevitable work of educating drunkards. Hira Singh Puri is striving to arouse public sentiment in England against this debauchery of his people by the British government for the sake of gain.

The Christian League for the Promotion of Social Purity, New York, of which Mrs. Elizabeth B. Grannis is president, and Mrs. Frances J. Barnes one of the vice-presidents, is doing a grand work. It is composed of both men and women, though only women take part in its business sessions. Senator McNaughton, at Albany, introduced a bill to lower the "age of consent" from sixteen to fourteen years, and it was reported favorably to the Senate from its committee. Aaron M. Powell at once sent word to Mrs. Grannis, who called a meeting of the League, from which went a strong protest to the Legislature. A similar protest was sent by Dr. De Costa in the name of the White Cross Society.

Mrs. Grannis is editor of The Church Union, through which she strikes stalwart blows for purity and temperance.

The Glasgow Branch of the British Woman's Temperance Association, prepared a memorial to the magistrates asking "a very large reduction of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors," but the magistrates refused to receive it. Accompanying it was a most pathetic memorial from four hundred and twenty-four women, victims of the drink traffic, in the Rescue Homes and police stations, or discharged prisoners. They say:

We appeal to you on behalf of ourselves and our children to lessen the temptations all around our dwellings and lodging-houses by a very large reduction of the licensed houses. Whereas some of us might have the moral courage to pass one of these houses, the temptations are very much increased, as the number reaches ten to twenty in a distance of a quarter or half a mile. We would also beg of you to remember the inconsistency of putting so many places of temptation in our way, and then sending us to prison for making use of them.

VERY lately a reporter upon a New York daily had occasion to interview a gentleman in a popular café of that city. During the course of an hour he saw that the proprietor was asked to drink by at least a dozen men. Being a "good fellow" and very popular, he never refused. But the reporter observed that the manager never took the same kind of liquor that his customers imbibed. If it were whisky then he took gin, and if the customer drank gin, then the manager took whisky. The reporter also noticed that the proprietor poured his own tipple out of a different bottle from that which he had set before his customers. Taxed with these facts the man confessed his subterfuge. He had a clear eye, healthy looking skin and the appearance of a sober man. And he averred that he was not only perfectly sober, but almost, if not entirely, an abstainer, and this is how he managed it: On the shelf behind him stood his own particular bottles of liquor, one of cold tea, another of cold water. When invited to take whisky he declined and avowed a preference for gin. After serving his "friend" he turned and helped himself from the water in the bottle labeled "gin" on the convenient shelf behind him. When invited to join in a drink of gin, he declined in favor of whisky, ostensibly. In reality he took "two fingers" of cold tea. In this manner he took at least "ten horns" in the course of an hour. "You see for yourself," said he to the reporter, "how hard it is for a popular liquor seller to keep from becoming a tank, a mere sot. Now you see how I manage, my boy. I drink and drink and yet keep a clear head and a steady pulse. But keep it quiet; it would not do to let people know that the man who sells as much liquor over his bar as anybody in this ward is very nearly an abstainer!" So far as the man's own habits go he is wise in his day and generation. But what an occupation!

THERE is a movement on foot to secure a portrait bust of Susan B. Anthony, as a testimonial of the gratitude of American women toward that earnest and devoted champion of the equality of women. It is intended to have this ready in time for the World's Fair in Chicago, where it is expected there will be a gallery of the portraits and statues of distinguished women. An American woman sculptor, either Miss Harriet Hosmer, now in Chicago, or Miss Anne Whitney of Boston, will be asked to execute the statue of Miss Anthony. Men and women who believe that it is wiser to give some token of our appreciation of work that we approve while the worker is yet in this world, are invited to send their financial tokens of regard to Mrs. Mary E. Holmes, Galva, Henry County, Illinois, who is one of the leaders of the woman suffrage movement in that state. All sums will be acknowledged through the leading women's papers of the country. It is hoped that working women will send the small amount they can afford, and wealthy women five, ten, twenty-five and fifty dollars. This movement was started by Miss Willard, who is responsible for the satisfactory use of the funds, as well as the acknowledgment of the same.

A CORRESPONDENT known from ocean to ocean writes as follows: "I read with intense interest the New Crusade article in THE UNION SIGNAL. The W. C. T. U. has had many grand and noble inspirations, but I doubt if any one of them equals this in practical value. What wonderful results would follow a membership of double our numbers; five hundred thousand temperance women for 1890, all banded together for the overthrow of the brewers, distillers, and saloon-keepers, and in 1892 one million standing firm 'For God, Home and Humanity.' If the women will introduce a house-to-house canvass, these numbers ought to be and can be had by 1892. Let each woman who belongs get one more to join as a working member, to stand side by side with her, and let each member induce some good man to join the society as an honorary member; for the latter are of equal if not greater good to the society. If you can get good men and youths to join, they will add greatly to the numbers, give force and power to the organization, and after a brief tuition in W. C. T. U. ranks they will have the right kind of conscience. Then the home forces can storm the fort of intemperance and impurity. I hope you will not think this picture visionary, for I have taken into my soul the meaning of the membership crusade. You have struck the keynote for progressive work, and if it were echoed all over the country, even if almost to the exclusion of everything else, the membership crusade would mean victory. Send out the word to organizers, superintendents, presidents and state and local unions."

THE expedition now en route to Alaska, at the expense of Frank Leslie's Weekly, has chosen a field of exploration almost as fertile in mystery as the Dark Continent itself. There are hundreds of thousands of miles of this vast and vastly unknown portion of our country, which never felt the white man's foot. Lieutenant Schwatka and other northern travelers believe it is a huge desert of ice, yet they concede the probability of a great water-shed in the interior and of high volcanic peaks. There is a tradition among the natives of a mountain of copper somewhere inland, which is "justified by the arms, utensils and ornaments of certain tribes." These indicate a native ore of quality superior to that even of Calumet or Hecla. The expedition is well equipped. The United States coast survey furnishes the necessary scientific instruments. E. H. Wells, the chief correspondent, has traveled in the British northwest, and visited Alaska before. E. J. Glan, the artist, was six years with Mr. Stanley in Africa. An astronomer, and half a dozen other men were selected for their special qualifications. A retinue of Chilkat Indians will be added upon reaching Alaska. The party expect to return sometime in 1891.

IT having come to his ears that Jennie Smith was to be in the city one day last week, Mr. Hall arranged to have her address the employes of the W. T. P. A. at noon time. Illinois Headquarters were put at our disposal, and were crowded with over an hundred men and women, boys and girls, whose busy hands help to prepare the myriad leaves for the healing of the nation which constantly go forth from this office. There were the type-setters, the pressmen, the electrotypers, men and women from the bindery and the business office, and all listened with earnest attention as Miss Jennie spoke to them the words of life, closing with a fervent prayer. Mr. Hall followed in a few touching words of brotherly interest and sympathy, and Mrs. Carse closed with a fervent appeal to all to choose the better way. The meeting was one of deep interest and will doubtless be followed by similar ones.

THE Non-Partisan Prohibitory Amendment league of Nebraska earnestly requests all churches, W. C. T. U., I. O. G. T., Y. M. C. A. organizations, red, blue and yellow ribbon clubs, temperance societies and Prohibition clubs throughout the United States to set apart Sunday, May 18, 1890, as "Nebraska Prohibitory Amendment day," and that the same be observed with appropriate services, and that collections be then taken and forwarded to J. M. Stewart, treasurer of the Nebraska Non-Partisan Prohibitory Amendment league, Lincoln, Neb., to be used under the direction of the league in the pending campaign.

The Watch-Tower.

A beautiful silk flag was at the front in Miss Willard's recent meeting in Conneaut, Ohio. It belonged to the W. C. T. U. of North East, near Erie, and was made and embroidered with our National motto by Mrs. Leonora Campbell, a devoted white-ribboner over eighty years of age and recently deceased. Here is a new way for blessed, aged hands to help on the cause of "God and Home and Native Land."

***

This extract from a private letter shows how National organizers work: "I held a meeting in a place called ———, a few days ago. It had but two houses. In order to get there I was obliged to leave ——— at daylight. My meeting was in a school-house; by twelve o'clock the house was crowded, every one coming from a distance; the minister who helped me came twelve miles. After the morning meeting we had dinner out doors, cold chicken, cakes, ham, pies, and coffee—a delightful repast. When the meal was over, after a little social chat, I spoke again; organized a union of thirty members, and the best of it was every one paid dues at once. We elected delegates to ——— convention, and put the union in good working order. I returned at night, reaching my destination at eleven o'clock. Left next morning at five."

***

Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, the World's and National W. C. T. U. superintendent of the department of peace and arbitration, has written a letter to Alexander III, Czar of Russia, "praying him in the name of mercy and philanthropy, to appoint humane officers to investigate the charges of cruel treatment of prisoners in Siberia, and for the sake of the honor of Russia, to let it be known if they are false; but if true, to let mercy enter into judgment, and a spirit of kindness, worthy of a noble monarch, be shown to those who are in his power." All state and National superintendents of the department of peace have been requested to supplement this letter by similar ones.

***

Mrs. Mary A. Leavitt writes: "At sea, steamer Ambriz, off Cape Coast Castle, Africa:—I am at the ends of the earth so far as mails and times and time are concerned. I have not heard a breath yet about the great convention, nor from home, since the 2d of February. Please put in THE UNION SIGNAL that all petitions must be sent in July, 1891. That will not give us too much time. I am sure that the five years' term of office for President of the World's W. C. T. U. is right, and that the convention ought to be at the close. I make this proposition officially to the officers of the W. C. T. U., and ask them to make it effective, as other changes and nominations in the World's W. C. T. U. have been made; and I desire to state that in my judgment the president of the National W. C. T. U. should continue to be president of the World's W. C. T. U. during the term of five years."

***

Miss Willard has received a letter from Titiana Tolstoi, daughter of the great writer, in which she says that her father has just finished a book which deals with the subject of woman's advancement, and that he treats it in the most radical way. The book is being translated by Miss Hapgood, and will soon appear in America. She says: "My father thanks you for the kind wish that he should come to America, but he is afraid that would never happen. He will be very pleased to see Mrs. Leavitt, and indeed we all shall be so also. Every American visitor is quite like a friend to us, and every letter from America is like one from home. It is really surprising that in your country my father's works are read and appreciated and understood better than anywhere else. This is why we feel such a link between us and America."

***

Miss Sallie A. Moore, who is president of St. Malachy's Ladies' Total Abstinence Society in Philadelphia, and a Catholic lady, has joined the W. C. T. U. She is the first Catholic woman who ever spoke in public at a convention. This she did before bishops and prelates at the Catholic Total Abstinence Society's annual meeting last year, having been sent as a delegate representing two thousand women. This session held a meeting commemorative of Father Mathew, April 9, at which time all present renewed their pledge, and several new members joined. In becoming a member of the W. C. T. U. Miss Moore expresses her willingness to have the statement publicly made, saying, "I am only following in the footsteps of Father Mathew, whose signing of the pledge we commemorated as occurring fifty-two years ago, when, at a Quaker meeting, the only Catholic present, among a few Protestants, lifting the pledge, he said, 'Here goes, in the name of God.' I now say the same to you." Miss Moore is an excellent speaker, and will be welcomed to the W. C. T. U. platforms.

ON DUTY.

WORLD'S W. C. T. U.

Founded 1883.

Motto.—For God and Home and Every Land. Object: To unify the methods of woman's temperance work the world over, and to circulate a petition for the prohibition of the traffic in alcoholic drinks and opium, and other social reforms.

All members wear a little knot of white ribbon, and remember the noon hour of prayer for all temperance work and workers, and for the coming of Christ's kingdom.

President—Miss Frances E. Willard, Evanston, Ill.

Vice Presidents—England ———

Canada—Mrs. S. W. Foster, Knowlton, Quebec.

China—Mrs. Dr. Farnham, 18 Peking Road, Shanghai.

Japan—Mrs. Saku Asai, Tokio.

Hawaiian Islands—Mrs. Mary S. Whitney, Honolulu.

New Zealand—Mrs. Emma C. Packe, Upper Riccarton, Christchurch.

Queensland, Australia—Mrs. Elizabeth Brentnall, Box 61 G. P. O. Brisbane.

South Australia—Mrs. E. Nicholls, Prospect, Adelaide.

Victoria—Mrs. Mary M. Love, Armadale, Melbourne.

Ceylon—Mrs. T. S. Smith, Tillipally, Jaffna.

India—Mrs. McDonald, F. C. M. Calcutta. Nat. Lecturer, Pundita Ramabai, Chowpati, Bombay.

Burmah—Miss Ruth W. Ranney, Rangoon.

Turkey—Mrs. W. E. Locke, Philippopolis, Bulgaria.

Africa—Miss Pride, Huguenot Seminary, Capetown.

Siam—Miss Mary L. Cort, Petchaburee.

Sweden—Madame Andersson-Meijerhelm, 17 Sodra Humlegardsgatan, Stockholm.

Straits Settlement—Mrs. Marie Oldham, Anglo-Chinese School, Singapore,

Mauritius—Mrs. Bishop Royston, Bishop Thorpe, Rose Hill.

France—Miss De Broen, 3 Rue Clavel, Belleville, Paris.

Norway—Fru Ignase Carlsen, Nordal Bruns Gade 10, Christiana.

New South Wales—Mrs. E. Bowes, Stanmore, Sydney.

Tasmania—Mrs. Grace Saltan, Mildmay Cottage, Launceston.

Mexico—Mrs. Margaret Taber, Zacatecas.

Jamaica—Miss Mary Dillon, Machioneal.

South America—Mrs. Ida A. T. Arms, Colejio Americano, Concepcion, Chili.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt, care of Miss Amy Leavitt, 1226 Massachusetts Ave., N. W. Washington, D. C.

Secretaries—American—Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, Ravenna, Ohio. British—Mrs. Mary Whitall Costelloe, 40 Grosvenor Road, Westminster, London, S. W. England.

Treasurers—American—Miss Esther Pugh, 161 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. British—Mrs. James Gregson, Heart's Hill, Debden Green, Longhton, England.

World's Organizers—Europe, Miss Charlotte A. Gray, Stensberggade 25 Christiania, Norway. Northern Europe—Madame Andersson-Meijerhelm, 17 Sodra Humlegardsgatan, Stockholm, Sweden. American Committee—The five General Officers of N. W. C. T. U.

Supt. Department of Bible Readings—Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, 44 Grosvenor Road, Westminster, London, S. W., England.

Supt. Department of Scientific Temperance Instruction—Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, Hyde Park, Massachusetts.

Supt. Department of Prisons, Police Stations and Almshouses—Mrs. J. K. Barney, Providence, R. I.

American Supt. Legal Dept.—Mrs. Bishop John P. Newman, Omaha, Neb.

Supt. Fairs and Expositions—Mrs. Josephine R. Nichols, 519 N. Pennsylvania St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Supt. Dept. Peace and International Arbitration—Mrs. Hannah J. Baily, Winthrop, Me.

NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

PLEDGE.

"I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt Liquors, including Wine and Cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

I give and bequeath to the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union the sum of ———; and the receipt of the treasurer thereof shall be a sufficient discharge of my executors for the same.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

HEADQUARTERS—161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

President—Miss Frances E. Willard, Evanston, Ill.
Miss Anna A. Gordon, Private Secretary; Miss Alice E. Briggs, Office Secretary.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Caroline B. Buell, 161 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.
Miss Bertha G. Brown, Office Secretary.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, Ravenna, Ohio.

Assistant Recording Secretary—Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, Portland, Me.

Treasurer—Miss Esther Pugh, 161 LaSalle, St., Chicago, Ill.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

Alabama—Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, Birmingham.

Alaska—Mrs. John G. Brady, Sitka.

Arizona—Mrs. S. A. Pearson, Phœnix.

Arkansas—Mrs. Lydia M. Chace, 315½ W. Markham St., Little Rock

California—Mrs. R. R. Johnston, Box 288, Oakland.

California, Southern—Mrs. N. P. J. Button, Riverside.

Carolina, North—Mrs. Mary C. Woody, New Garden.

Carolina, South—Mrs, Sallie F. Chapin, Charleston.

Colorado—Mrs. C. D. H. Thompson, Longmont.

Connecticut—Mrs. S. B. Forbes. 152 Wethersfield Ave., Hartford

Dakota, North—Miss Addie M. Kinnear, Fargo.

Dakota, South—Mrs. H. M. Barker, Huron.

Delaware—Miss Margaret S. Hilles, Wilmington.

District of Columbia—Mrs. S. D. LaFetra, Temple Hotel, Washington.

Florida—Mrs. A. A. W. Cadwallader, Jacksonville.

Georgia—Mrs. Wm. Sibley, Augusta.

Idaho—Mrs. Susan Holbrook. Blackfoot.

Illinois—Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, 161 LaSalle St., Chicago.

Indiana—Mrs. J. R. Nichols, 519 N. Pennsylvania St., Indianapolis.

Indian Territory—Mrs. Jane Staples, Tahlequah.

Iowa—Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, Clinton.

Kansas—Mrs. Fanny H. Rastall, Topeka.

Kentucky—Mrs. Nannie A. Munnell, 427 Chestnut St., Louisville.

Louisiana—Mrs. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.

Maine—Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens. Stroudwater.

Maryland—Mrs. Summerfield Baldwin, Baltimore.

Massachusetts—Miss Elizabeth S. Tobey, 36 Bromfield St., Boston.

Michigan—Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap. Jackson.

Minnesota—Mrs. H. A. Hobart, Red Wing.

Mississippi—Mrs. Lavinia S. Mount, Greenville.

Missouri—Mrs. Clara Hoffman, Kansas City.

Montana—Mrs. R. H. Howey, Helena.

Nebraska—Mrs. M. A. Hitchcock, Fremont.

Nevada—Mrs. D. W. Van Deventer, Virginia City.

New Hampshire—Mrs. N. H. Knox, 19 Penacook St., Manchester.

New Jersey—Mrs. S. J. C. Downs, Ocean Grove.

New Mexico—Mrs. M. C. Raynolds, Las Vegas.

New York—Mrs. Mary T. Burt, 103 East 123d St., New York.

Ohio—Mrs. Henrietta L. Monroe, Xenia.

Oklahoma—Mrs. W. L. Rhodes, Guthrie.

Oregon—Mrs. A. R. Riggs, Portland.

Pennsylvania—Mrs. Mary H Jones, 2051 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Rhode Island—Mrs. E. S. Burlingame, Pawtuxet.

Tennessee—Mrs. Lide Meriwether, 14 Talbot St., Memphis.

Texas—Mrs. S C. Acheson, 1419 W. Woodard St., Denison.

Utah—

Vermont—Mrs. Esther T. Housh, Brattleboro.

Virginia—Mrs. R. H. Jones, 130 Granby St., Norfolk.

West Virginia—Mrs. Jane A Johnson, Parkersburg.

Washington, Eastern—Mrs. Lucy A. Switzer, Cheney.

Washington, Western—Mrs. M. A. Shaffer, Old Tacoma.

Wisconsin—Mrs. Amy Kellogg Morse, Durand.

Wyoming Territory—Mrs. Charlotte Fisher, Evanston.

SUPERINTENDENTS OF DEPARTMENTS.

I. ORGANIZATION.

Miss Frances E. Willard. Mrs. Caroline B. Buell.

Organizers—Mrs. Sallie F. Chapin, Charleston, S. C.; Miss Henrietta G. Moore, Springfield, O.; Mrs. Lucy H. Washington, Port Jervis, N. Y.; Mrs. Mary Read Goodale, Baton Rouge, La.; Mrs. M. L. Wells, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Frances E. Griffin, Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. Helen L. Bullock, Elmira, N. Y.

American Organizers for World's W. C. T. U.—Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt, 830 12th St., N. W. Washington, D. C., Miss Jessie A. Ackerman, Sacramento, Cal.; Miss Charlotte Gray, Christiania, Norway; Mrs. Sallie F. Chapin, Charleston, S. C.

Work among Foreigners—Mrs. Sophia F. Grubb, Lawrence, Kan.; Secretary, Mrs. S. A. Brown, Lawrence, Kan.; Scandinavians, Mrs. K. A. Ostergren, Ogema, Wis.; Hollanders, Mrs. Mariette S. Van Olinda, Holland, Mich.; Chinese, Mrs. M. S. Carey, 506 S. 2d St., San Jose, Cal.; Sclavic Mrs. L. G. Sobieski, Neosho, Mo.; Spanish, Mrs. E. J. Harwood, Socorro, New Mexico; German, Mrs. Julia Fischer, Wheaton, Ill.; Department Evangelist, Mrs. C. H. St. John, Beloit, Ka

Work among the Colored People—Mrs. Frances E. Harper, 1009 Bainbridge St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Associate, Mrs. S. J. H. Early, 260 S. Cherry St., Nashville, Tenn.

Young Women's Work—Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, 146 W. 103rd St., New York City. Department Secretary—Mrs. F. S. Evans, 155 West 48th St., New York City; Organizers, Miss Ida Clothier, 36 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Miss Jessica Morgan, Oberlin, Ohio; Miss Mary McDowell, Evanston, Ill.

Juvenile Work—Mrs. Helen G. Rice, 1597 Washington St., Boston; Associate, Miss Anna A. Gordon, Evanston, Ill.; Organizer and Chalk-Talker, Mrs. Ellen A. Blair, Creighton, Neb.; Kindergarten, Mrs. E. L. Hailmann, La Porte, Ind.

II. PREVENTIVE.

Health and Heredity—Dr Orpha A. Baldwin, 216 J St., Portland, Oregon. Associates—Health—Dr. Mary Allen, Ithaca, N. Y.; Heredity—Mrs. R. A. Armstrong, Woodland, Cal.

III. EDUCATIONAL.

Scientific Instruction—Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, Hyde Park, Mass.; Literary Assistant, Miss Emma L. Benedict; Associate, Mrs. Geo. S. Hunt, 165 State St., Portland Me.

Sunday School Work—Miss Lucia E. F. Kimball, 644 W. Monroe St., Chicago, Ill., or Woodfords, Me.; Secretary, Miss Julia A. Bidwell, Hartford, N. Y.

Temperance Literature—Miss Julia Colman, 47 Bible House, New York City; Advisory Committee, Mrs. Helen E. Brown, Mrs. E. W. Ruliffson, Mrs. E. M. Wymond, Mrs. Dr. A. Buchanan, Mrs. W. Vigelius, Mrs. J. C. Craw, Mrs. M. E. Morgan, Mrs. Dr. H. McLean, Treasurer, 205 Mason St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Woman's Temperance Publication Association—Miss Alice M. Guernsey, Editor Department Books and Leaflets, 161 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. T. B. Carse, Publisher; Advisory Committee, the National President and Corresponding Secretary.

Editors of The Union Signal—Miss Mary Allen West, Miss Julia A. Ames, Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler Andrew, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Editor of the Oak and Ivy Leaf—Miss Margaret A. Sudduth, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Editor of The Young Crusader—Miss Alice M. Guernsey, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Presenting our Cause to Influential Bodies—General Officers.

The Press—Miss Mary Henry, Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Georgia Hulse McLeod, Baltimore, Md.

Relation of Temperance to Labor—Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns, Kirkwood, Mo.

W. C. T. U. School of Methods—Miss Mary Allen West, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.; Parliamentary Usage—Mrs. Anna S. Benjamin, Portland, Mich.; For Practical Training fo Public Speakers, Mrs. Anna B. Curry, Boston School of Expression.

Department of Narcotics—Mrs. E. B. Ingalls, 4119 Westminster Pl. St. Louis, Mo.; Lecturer, Mrs. James Havens, 673 Broadway, Denver, Col.; Mrs. Helen L. Bullock, Elmira, N. Y.

IV. EVANGELISTIC.

Evangelistic—Miss Elizabeth W. Greenwood, 151 Remsen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; National Evangelists—Mrs. S. M. I. Henry, Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Annie M. Palmer, Boone, Iowa; Mrs. Mary Sparkes Wheeler, Phœnixville, Pa.; Work among Miners, Mrs. D. W. English, Rushville, Ill.; Bible Study, Rev. A. A. Wright, Cambridge, Mass.

Unfermented Sacramental Wine—Mrs. R. A. Esmond, Syracuse, N. Y

Flower Mission—Miss Jennie Casseday, 216 E. Chestnut St., Louisville, Ky.; Department Secretary, Miss Gertrude Ferguson, 2633 Bank St., Louisville, Ky.

Work in Prisons, Jails, Police Stations, Almshouses and Asylums—Mrs. J. K. Barney, Providence, R. I.; Department Secretary, Mrs. H. D. Walker, Providence, R. I.

Work among Railroad Employes—Miss Jennie Smith, Mountain Lake Park, Md.

Work among Soldiers and Sailors—Mrs. S. A. McClees, 24 Hawthorne Ave., East Orange, N. J.; Secretary, Miss Anna L. Davidson; Associate, Veterans' Branch, Mrs. E. S. Moffat, Tacoma, Wash.; Petition Work, Mrs. Lavinia H. Chace, 1310 I St. N. W. Washington, D. C. Evangelist, Mrs. Mary Grant Cramer, 40 Prospect St., Orange, N. J.

Work among Lumbermen—Mrs. Mary C. Upham, Marshfield, Wis. Associate, Mrs. Emma Obenauer, East Saginaw, Mich.

Sabbath Observance—Mrs. J. C. Bateham, Painesville, O.

Promotion of Social Purity—Miss Frances E. Willard; Associates, Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. Dr. J. H. Kellogg, Battle Creek, Mich.; Dr. Julia Plummer, Boston, Mass.; Department Evangelist, Dr. Kate C. Bushnell, Evanston, Ill.; Legal Adviser, Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender, Washington, D. C.; Industrial Homes, Mrs. Lydia R. Clark, Northfield, Minn. Work among Mormon Women, Mrs. Angie F. Newman, Lincoln, Neb.; Lecturer, Mrs. Frances McCready Harris, 218 DeGraw St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Purity in Literature, Mrs. Ada H. Kepley, Effingham, Ill.; Travelers' Aid, Miss Maud Remington, Baraboo, Wis.

V. SOCIAL.

Parlor Meetings—Mrs. Anna M. Hammer, 23 Rowland St., Newark, N. J.; Associate, Madame Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York City.

State and County Fairs—Mrs. Josephine R. Nichols, 673 N. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.; Associate, Mrs. Marion McBride, 179 Fremont St., Boston, Mass.; Secretary, Miss Mary I. Stille, Westchester, Pa.

VI. LEGAL.

Legislation and Petitions—Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender, Washington, D. C.

Franchise—Mrs. S. S. Fessenden, Malden, Mass.; Associate, Mrs. Zerelda G. Wallace, Cataract, Ind.

Peace and International Arbitration.—Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Winthrop Center, Maine; Lecturer, Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, Ravenna, Ohio.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Railroad Rates—Miss Helen L. Hood, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

On Appropriations—Chairman, Miss Esther Pugh, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Mary T. Burt, 202 W. 133rd St., New York City. Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Fannie H. Rastall, Topeka, Kan.

Advisory Committee—Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, Jackson, Mich.

National Temperance Hospital and Training School for Nurses—Chairman of Committee, Mrs. J. B. Hobbs, 343 La Salle Ave., Chicago, Ill. Treasurer, Mrs. L. H. Plumb, Streator, Ill.

News from the Field.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

SOUNDS FROM THE WORKSHOP.

We are too busy, we women, to stop often to tell of our work, although we know there is a power for good even in the telling. I have seen artists who could dash off with a bold hand, a stroke here and there, and behold, a picture outlined and a story told! If there were only some instantaneous process of jotting down happenings—a word, a sentence, and the whole history in its powerful reality related, you would hear from us oftener.

We have had many things crowded into the past three months. I can merely touch upon them, leaving it to the imagination of your readers to do the filling in. Early in January, Mrs. Bateham, National superintendent of Sabbath observance, came among us. She had a warm welcome almost immediately from la grippe, and in consequence could not fill her appointments for about a month, but when she regained her strength, she did some very vigorous work. She has been in six of the southern counties, giving in all upwards of forty lectures, besides meeting many of the unions, that speak in words of praise of her helpful talks. She was present at the Ventura county convention held in Santa Paula, April 10, of which Mrs. Huffman, county president, writes as follows: "Our convention was a success. Mrs. Bateham says, 'It was very good and would have done credit to a much larger and older union; the papers were exceptionally fine, and the business was transacted in such an energetic, yet smooth way—not a break in it anywhere.' We all enjoyed it very much, sitting all through that hot day, the thermometer registering ninety degrees, until five in the evening, our interest never lagging. Mrs. Bateham was very helpful in every way. She talked to the women upon 'How to Grow' and 'Our Relation to Politics,' and gave an interesting lecture in the evening."

Mrs. Wells, National lecturer and organizer from Tennessee, beamed upon us for the first time at the Los Angeles county convention held May 3 to 5, at Pasadena. Of course she won our hearts at once, and you who know her understand the secret of it. In my humble judgment "sweetness" goes a long way in winning over people spite of much said to the contrary. She won a great triumph at the—ballot-box I was just on the point of writing, I mean question-box, over which she presided in most royal manner for fully two hours and a half. Her answers to questions were clear cut, sparkling with humor and bits of experience. All enjoyed them, and, I think, were a little sorry to adjourn at the noon hour from a "feast of reason" even to a delightful feast of more material things. The convention was a large and enthusiastic one. Pasadena, the "crown of the valley," the loveliest spot in all this south land, never looked lovelier, and the dexterous hands of the ladies brought much of its loveliness into the church where the meetings were held. Flowers, evergreen mottoes, potted fern palms which sell at $1.50 per pound, made the pulpit and chancel a very bower of beauty and fragrance. Mrs. Cash, the county president, touched in her address upon the rapid growth of the work in the county during the past five years. In 1885 there were but ten unions, with a membership of one hundred and ninety-one, while 1890 finds thirty-nine unions, with eight hundred and eighty-nine active and seventy-eight honorary members, making a total of nine hundred and sixty-seven. In 1885 there were but five children's organizations; to-day there are twenty-seven, with a membership of nearly two thousand; this great increase, although a large slice of the county taking a number of the unions with it has been cut off to form a new county.

Thursday evening, the convention adjourned to the tabernacle, which seats about fifteen hundred, to listen to Dr. Bowers, of the Ventura Vidette, and Mrs. Wells, both presenting the subject of prohibitory legislative enactment, the former basing his arguments largely upon results in the states that have already tried prohibition, the latter using a woman's strongest arguments, those based upon the protection of the home.

Little Orange county, with its nine unions and two hundred members, held its first convention March 28 and 29. A few of us from Los Angeles county went down to Santa Ana to help them, because we had an idea that they would not know very well just how to manage things, but they really did not need us at all, and managed everything in a most successful way as if they had had plenty of experience. We enjoyed the convention from beginning to end. Its president, Mrs. Mills, in speaking of the encouraging outlook for the county in the growth of its temperance sentiment said: "Two years ago there were in Santa Ana, with its population of twenty-five hundred, sixteen saloons, two houses of prostitution, and thirty men who made their living by running faro banks and other forms of gambling; to-day eight of these saloons—dives in character—are gone, and professional gamblers are gone, although the population has increased one-half. The moral trend is upward."

The consecration lesson the first morning, conducted by Mrs. Armour, state superintendent of the evangelistic department, was an object lesson, taken from Jeremiah: the potter's home, a vessel of clay upon the wheel, marred and made over again. God, the divine molder, his people the clay. He ready to mold us into beautiful vessels, if only we make it possible by observing the proper conditions. The name of a very original paper was "Six Little Pickles." "At our intellectual feasts," the writer said, "there is apt to be a superabundance of sweet things, as was often the case at old-fashioned country picnics, so I bring to-day as my contribution to the general table a relish in the shape of six little pickles. In other words, instead of lauding our virtues and good works, I want to call attention to some of our faults." These faults were undue zeal, lack of zeal, being unbusiness-like, too much "sweetness," want of charity, "and the spirit which leads us to cry, 'See how much better and smarter we are than the men.'" The convention seemed to enjoy being told of its faults, for it requested to have the pickles passed around the second time. I think we all recognized our own particular pickle, and swallowed it without making wry faces.

Friday evening Mr. Dye and Mr. Connell, ministers of Santa Ana, made some very strong points against the saloon; the latter in his speech said there were twelve hundred saloons in California; allowing two men to every saloon made twenty-four hundred saloon-keepers, thirty-one fat saloon-keepers to one lean preacher. Forty-eight millions of dollars a year for drinks, fifty dollars for whisky to one dollar for preaching. Why don't the church get on?

Mrs. Johnston, president of Northern California W. C. T. U., presented the subject of scientific temperance instruction in a very able manner before the State Teachers' Association held in Los Angeles, in March. In speaking of the Viticultural Commission and Kate Field's propagation of the "mission of the grape," Mrs. Johnston said she might "point a moral" if she took along the secretary of the Commission as an object lesson. We were glad to clasp hands with Mrs. Johnston and trust this first visit will be the beginning of many more.

On Monday, April 14, the municipal elections at Pasadena, Riverside, Long Beach and Redlands hinged upon the question of saloon or no saloon. The celebrated ordinance No. 125 was in danger; the saloon won. While the men went to the polls and voted, the women stayed away and prayed. Could they have crystallized their prayers into votes is there any doubt how the conflict would have ended? Perhaps these defeats come just to help us to see more clearly the only remedy.

MARY E. GARBUTT,
Special Correspondent.

TWO WEEKS IN OKLAHOMA.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Commissioned by the president of the National W. C. T. U. to visit Oklahoma and see what could be done toward establishing our principles within the borders of the new territory, April 14 found me wending my way southward to do my first pioneer work. Change of time on railroads delayed me a whole day at Wichita, and a few hours at Arkansas City, which last place I left on the evening of April 15, en route for Guthrie, I. T. At Arkansas City I had the good fortune to be presented to the Rev. Mr. Wood, now Indian agent of four tribes and secretary of the Indian Mission Conference of the M. E. Church, and continued in his company from Arkansas City to Ponca, about thirty miles. From him I learned much of interest in relation to his work, including the fact that the United States prohibitory laws governing the Indian Territory made it a penitentiary offense for any man except an Indian, to bring liquor within its boundaries. He said he dared not let Indians know the exception, and punished them without law when they brought liquor to that agency.

Reaching Guthrie about six o'clock p. m., I was cordially welcomed and hospitably entertained by Mrs. W. S. Rhodes, formerly president of the W. C. T. U. of Carthage, Mo., and who has up to date been the only aggressive white-ribboner in Oklahoma. Through her efforts a strong organization had been formed at Guthrie of about thirty members, and she had also been largely instrumental in securing a convention of the temperance men and women of the territory, which was in session at Guthrie when I arrived, and I found to my surprise that I was on the program for an address that evening. At the proper time we proceeded to Mundy's Hall, the place of meeting—an upper room in a two-story brick building about half-filled with chairs and temperance men and women.

The committee on resolutions reported after suitable opening, and the discussion consumed the entire evening, the principal point of interest and debate being the name of the organization. One party desired it to be the "Oklahoma Prohibition Alliance;" the other, the "Oklahoma Temperance Alliance." The former was finally adopted, but the action was reversed next morning. The resolutions, however, had the right ring. They provided for thorough organization of each township, and a demand upon political parties for a pledge submitting to the people a prohibitory statute to become effective upon their approval, and a declaration that they would sustain no man or party who did not so pledge themselves. They also instructed their officers to call a convention of temperance people to nominate other candidates if the two political parties failed to heed their demand. A hearty indorsement of the W. C. T. U. was also incorporated, and before adjournment, equal suffrage was indorsed. A constitution was adopted on the following day, and plans laid for carrying out the wishes of the Alliance. On the evening of the 16th I spoke to an attentive audience in the same hall, and left next day for Oklahoma City, about thirty miles south.

Guthrie is beautifully situated. From the railroad the land rises gently, both eastward and westward. It is built on a succession of hills, and covers six hundred and forty acres of ground. On the east is Capitol Hill, where citizens had fenced off ten acres for a site for the capitol building, and their faith has been rewarded by the temporary location of the capital there. There are some excellent business buildings and some cozy homes, although the most of the citizens are waiting for a government, and the certainty that they can acquire a title to their lots before investing large sums in buildings. Sidewalks from six to eight feet wide are already built on the public streets, and the luxury of electric lights is enjoyed throughout the business portion of the city, while an electric light tower crowns Capitol Hill. Ten thousand people call this "home."

Oklahoma City is not as large, claiming six to eight thousand people. It has no electric lights and is mostly built on low land. The heavy rains of this month make it almost a marsh, except on the rise in the north part of the city. On the northeast is a beautiful green hill, the military reservation, where scattered barracks and tents proclaim the presence of the defenders of our country and our homes. Here I succeeded in organizing a small union of fifteen members, at an afternoon meeting, not generally advertised, but every member knew some other who would join. This union invited the territorial convention to meet with it on Tuesday, April 29.

The next point visited was Edmond, midway between Guthrie and Oklahoma City, where I spoke on Sunday evening, April 20, and organized a union of eleven members and twelve honorary members, in a community of about two hundred souls.

On Monday I returned to Guthrie and spoke in the M. E. Church that evening by request. Several new members were secured. In the afternoon met the W. C. T. U. members in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, where an earnest conference meeting was held and delegates chosen to the territorial convention.

April 22 was celebration day, and I passed several hours in traveling by stage the forty miles which lie between Guthrie and Kingfisher. It was a very hard trip, but gave ample time for thought. One year ago not a resident was in Oklahoma; before night there were 15,000; now there are 60,000. A whole year these people have lived without law, a law unto themselves, and law-abiding, excepting only one class—the liquor men and their allies. Peaceable, patient, industrious they are; but as far removed from the ideal "pioneer" class as possible. The educated, the cultured, the refined, the minister, the lawyer, the physician, the teacher—all are here; not always pleasantly situated, but elevating and refining everything with which they come in contact. Oh, how they hoped and longed that this first birthday would give the territory a government! But it did not.

A telephonic message from Kingfisher to Guthrie had said I need not come; but when I reached Kingfisher I found many earnest hearts ready for the work. The M. E. Church ladies were serving dinner in a large tent on the principal business street, and it was proposed to seat this tent and hold a mass temperance meeting there the following evening; but we did not, for the heavens were opened and it rained in torrents all day. Another day of waiting gave to us no better weather; but in spite of storm a handful of true souls met in the Presbyterian Church and formed the nucleus of an organization, eight ladies and two gentlemen becoming members.

With an earnest request that I should return at an early day, I left on the southbound train Friday for El Reno. Here I found a town of a few hundred persons, and ordering handbills to announce an evening meeting in the school-house, I joined a party going to Fort Reno. We drove over a beautiful country through several prairie-dog towns, all around the fort and back to El Reno, after seeing how Uncle Sam provides for his boys. The meeting was very sparsely attended, but an organization of five members and five honorary members was perfected; as at other points, the members all knew others who would join.

Saturday, the 26th, I must go to Oklahoma City, en route to Norman, and it became necessary to secure a livery team to take me there, a distance of thirty miles, made much longer by the fact that the storm had washed out bridges across the streams on the road, and fording places must be found; but night found me at Norman, where the conference of the M. E. Church South was in session, Bishop Hendrix presiding. And this leads me to speak of the religious work in the territory. At the convention at Guthrie were many ministers. The Presbyterian, Congregational, Episcopalian, Christian, M. E., M. E. South and Catholic Churches are here in the persons of their representative shepherds, who are gathering together the scattered members of their flocks. I never have been more touched than while here, as I have learned what these devoted men and their families are enduring that they may be at hand to remind men that there are higher ambitions than those of earth, and that while seeking a home here it is well to remember the "home over there." Elder Swartz told me that the M. E. pastor in the Indian Territory—including Oklahoma—last year received an average of $168 per annum; that he received $668, and his traveling expenses were $550. But we need but to look at their habitations and their clothing, in many cases, to know that privation is theirs. From all I hear, the Presbyterian and Congregational pastors are most liberally sustained. Of course it is understood that this is a missionary field. I find most devoted men here, men who declare themselves in the enjoyment of a higher Christian life; a minister of the M. E. Church who told me feelingly of the spiritual help he had received from Miss Elizabeth Scovel; a member of the M. E. Church South, who publicly declared his better life came from the perusal of "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life," by our own dear Hannah Whitall Smith, until one wondered why M. E. Church and M. E. Church South. The spirit of fellowship between the two churches, and the able discourse by Bishop Hendrix, in which he elaborated upon the federal headship and unity of the human race, gave rise to the hope that this new territory may aid in bringing about a unity of these two great organizations for the common good of humanity, and aid in obliterating the lines of sectional differences. It was a lofty sermon, listened to by a packed congregation in the M. E. Church South on Sunday morning, April 27; a devout discourse was heard by an even larger audience in the evening. He dignified humanity, glorified Deity, reverenced law, and showed clearly the reasonableness and efficacy of prayer. These were fruit-bearing discourses.

After addressing a mass-meeting on Monday evening, April 28, I succeeded in organizing a W. C. T. U. at Norman, with eighteen members and eleven honorary members. An attempt to organize at an afternoon meeting was unsuccessful. More young ladies identified themselves with the work here than at any point in the territory.

On April 29, the first convention of the W. C. T. U. in the territory met in Oklahoma City. It was a delegate convention, and twenty-six delegates represented five of the six unions now organized. A total membership of one hundred and nine active and thirty-eight honorary members was reported. Department work is being taken up as fast as possible. A constitution and by-laws were adopted; plan of work outlined, discussed and adopted; resolutions and financial plans were submitted by appropriate committees, and after discussion accepted. Mrs. W. L. Rhodes, of Guthrie, was made territorial president; Mrs. J. Holzapfel, of Oklahoma City, corresponding secretary; Miss A. Carson, of Guthrie, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. D. F. Sprigg, Kingfisher, treasurer. Mrs. Sprigg is one of a class growing constantly more numerous among the women of this country, a member of the bar. It was decided that legislative work was at this time most important, and Mrs. Holzapfel was made superintendent of that department. At the close of this convention I returned to Kansas.

Everywhere in the territory I find the American people feel the school to be a necessity, and in all the cities visited schools are supported, either by a voluntary tax upon lots or on the subscription plan. And while good citizens are planting schools and churches, the liquor power is entrenching itself. The United States government does not enforce prohibition so well as the officers of the law in Kansas do. Saloons and joints abound and free whisky reigns. United States licenses have been granted to druggists for the sale of intoxicants for medical and mechanical purposes; the saloons run without license, and their signs decorate the buildings they occupy in some instances, while painted windows and screens indicate where other venders of the fiery fluid can be found. These licenses all expired on May 1, and after that, what? There is a great work to be done in Oklahoma Territory.

FANNY H. RASTALL.

MICHIGAN.

WORK AT LANSING.

The Central and North Lansing unions together engaged Mrs. Benjamin for an address, April 6, at Mead's Hall. A large audience was present, considering it was Easter Sunday, and many other services held on that day. The stage was arranged as a parlor, with a large portrait of Miss Willard on an easel with draping of wide white ribbon, the motto, "We are Laborers with God," in white letters on blue ground crossed the background, below which hung the large, white satin banner of the Lansing union, with gilt trimming and letters "W. C. T. U.," "In God we Trust," upon it; plants and flowers helped to make it a pleasant scene. After prayer, and a solo by Inez E. Smith, "The Banner of Temperance," we had a very interesting address by Mrs. Benjamin, a collection speech by Lillie Swartz who won the gold medal at our county convention, and a few remarks from Judge Turner from Kansas, who told us how prohibition did prohibit there.

The following evenings, April 6-8, Mrs. Benjamin gave her parliamentary drill to a class of three hundred or more at the same hall, which was very profitable in several ways. The Business College, Literary Society, Woman's Club, and I. O. G. T. Lodge took five dollars' worth of tickets, which admitted every member that chose to attend. A discussion with review the last evening closed a successful course which would be beneficial to any society educationally, and without doubt, financially as well.

W. C. T. U.

KANSAS.

EASTER DAY IN THE MILITARY PRISON.

I held my district convention at Leawenworth, April 3 and 4, and then accepted an invitation from Chaplain Jno. B. McCleery, of the Military Prison, Ft. Leavenworth, to spend Sunday at the fort, and attend the Easter services in the prison chapel. The invitation included Mrs. Rastall, our state president, and the Hiawatha ladies. Only our three "Y's," Misses Lena Henney, Fanny Bechtol and my daughter could remain with me, however. We went out from the city in time for the song service at ten o'clock. "Gospel Hymns" are used; the men choose the songs, and oh, how they do sing!

Five hundred male voices—many of them excellent ones—guided by the chaplain with his baton and led by a fine orchestra and picked choir, make grand harmonies out of the sweet old songs; No. 222 is especially fine as they sing it.

The chapel was made bright this Easter morning with flowers and plants sent by Mrs. Wright, mother of the prison surgeon. This dear lady, by the many thoughtful courtesies which prove her interest in these "wandering boys," does much to encourage them in their efforts toward a better manhood.

By the time the song service was ended the chapel was crowded. The officers of the prison, with their families, and many officers and men from the garrison, entirely filled the side reserved for visitors. Though Chaplain McCleery always has a good audience, there were unusual interest and desire to hear him on this morning, as many feared it was his last service in the prison. An order had been issued from the War Department, assigning him to Ft. Assinaboine, Montana, and it was not yet known whether the many petitions which had gone in would secure its recall or not. The order has since been revoked.

The morning service proper opened with a voluntary by the orchestra, followed by an anthem from a quartette and the orchestra; Scripture reading; trio, flute, violin and organ; prayer; quartette; sermon; duet, an Easter offering, violin and 'cello; quartette, "God be with you till we meet again."

The music, vocal and instrumental, was of the first order. I am told that the leader of the orchestra, Otto Euhl, is a graduate from the conservatory of music at Berlin, Germany. The chaplain said, in announcing one of his numbers, a flute solo, "It is astonishing how much music you can get out of one little Dutchman." Young man though he is, he has ability as a composer, and I was made proud by being presented with a written copy of a beautiful march which he had dedicated to me, and which the orchestra played in the afternoon. Certainly he is master of the instruments, and another, young Richards, is equally skilled with the violin. His "Carnival of Venice" was wonderfully well executed, winning the warmest encomium from Mr. Brown, who is at the head of the conservatory of music in Leavenworth, and himself one of the finest violinists in the West. The singing also, quartette and solo, would do credit to any company.

Whatever may have been the wrong-doing of these young men, and though they may still have many faults, I cannot find it in my heart to believe that these are not very manly, tender, human hearts, which put such expression into the beautiful songs.

"Down in the human heart
Crushed by the tempter,
Feelings lie buried that grace can restore,
Touched by a loving heart,
Wakened by kindness,
Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

But the crowning, central point of the day was the sermon. The perfect hush which pervaded that large audience as the chaplain, in low, thrilling tones, gave us a word picture of the sealed tomb and sorrowing Maries, told how the pathos of buried hopes found an echo in every heart. The wonder and the joyful certainty of the resurrection thrilled us as the chaplain, in glowing, earnest words brought the testimony of "more than five hundred witnesses" in proof. Surely under such preaching "Christ is Risen" will be the joyful song of many hearts.

We lunched with Chaplain and Mrs. McCleery, and at one p. m. went again to the prison and visited with some of the boys in the library until the afternoon service.

If the chapel was full in the morning it was overflowing in the afternoon. Benches were placed in the aisles, and every available inch was used, until the chaplain said, "Lock the door; no more can get in."

The following program was given as printed, excepting that Mrs. Hartough, our state recording secretary, filled Mrs. Rastall's place, and my daughter Belle recited "Rock of Ages" as the tenth number.

1.	March, Dedicated to Mrs. Chase by Otto Euhl,	No. 29, Orchestra.
2.	Recitation, "The Magic Wand,"	No. 31.
3.	Address,	Mrs. Rastall.
4.	Selection, "The Silver Bell,"	Orchestra.
5.	Song, "Lay Me Where the Lilies Grow,"	No. 457.
6.	Violin Solo, "Carnival of Venice,"	No. 521.
7.	Address,	Mrs. Chase.
8.	Song, "Take Me Back Home,"	No. 175.
9.	Flute Solo, "Kinloch of Kinloch,"	No. 29.
10.	Selection,	Orchestra.
11.	Double Quartette,	Nos. 78, 29, 108, 222, 540, 588, 23, 118.
12.	Finale, Selected,	Orchestra.

Souvenir programs, beautifully printed in gilt, were furnished by the prison printer, No. 274.

The young men all did themselves credit, and we were sorry when the program was finished.

After the close there was a short time for greetings, and then the "good-by" time came, and we walked out into the blessed sunlight and freedom, while these, our "boys" who had given us so much pleasure, went, by the side door, down into the prison yard.

JULIA A. CHASE,
State Supt. of Work Among Soldiers.

NEBRASKA.

WORK AT PONCA.

Nebraska's need is great for stanch temperance heroes, and never could truer ones be called to our aid than Major and Mrs. E. T. Scott, who have recently spoken truthful and inspiring words in a manner thrilling, eloquent and convincing.

The meetings from the first increased in interest and attendance, and at the closing lecture the large opera house was full, and during the entire address marked attention was given and perfect order prevailed. The pastors aided largely in the work, and excellent music was furnished.

The temperance people of Ponca would say to every loyal heart in Nebraska, "Secure the services of Major and Mrs. Scott." Fail not to hear them if the possibility is ever within your reach, and with us you will say of them, 'The half was not told."

MRS. G. B. FRANCIS.

NOTICES.

A prize of five dollars will be awarded at the Minnesota state convention to that member of any W. C. T. U. or Y. W. C. T. U. in the state who will send the best essay of not less than six hundred nor more than one thousand words on "Why Women Want to Vote," to lock box 21, Le Sueur, Minn., before June 20. These essays must be written on note paper, on one side of sheet only, and must not be rolled. On the first page of the essay write an assumed name and in a sealed envelope accompanying the essay write assumed name and also real name and address. This envelope will not be opened until after the decision, and is for the purpose of making it as impartial as possible.

ELLA TREMAIN WHITFORD,
Supt. Franchise for Minn.

TO MICHIGAN W. C. T. UNIONS.

Please send names of delegates to the state convention, May 20 to 23, to Mrs. D. P. Sagendorph, 701 First street, Jackson, Mich., immediately. This is due the committee in order that they may plan for your entertainment.

EMMA A. WHEELER.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

MRS. H. E. HAMMOND, president of first district and state organizer of Ohio, has removed from Saybrook to Cleveland, where her address is 66 Burt street. She has just finished a series of gospel temperance meetings in Ashtabula county, during which she has given twenty-three addresses, spoken to seven Sunday-schools, organized six new unions and obtained nineteen new subscribers to THE UNION SIGNAL. She returns for further work in this county in June.

WARREN, Minnesota, has been a license town until this year the vote stood as follows: For license, 56; against, 113. The W. C. T. U. aided greatly toward this result, distributing literature and serving free coffee near the polls. The ministers of several churches and the I. O. G. T., both Scandinavian and American, worked faithfully all day. There is great rejoicing among the friends of temperance.

Two thousand children listened to Mrs. Chant in City Hall, Portland, Me., on an occasion arranged under the auspices of the Children's Christmas Club. She made eight addresses during her stay in Portland, besides visiting and speaking in Lewiston, Cumberland Mills, Bath, Bangor and Dexter.

THE address of Mrs. Sarah A. McClees, National superintendent of work among soldiers and sailors, is changed from Mont Clair, N. J., to 24 Hawthorne Ave., East Orange, N. J.

THE address of Mrs. Mary E. Balch is changed from Eagletown, Indiana, to Frankfort, Clinton county, Indiana.

AT the recent annual convention of the second district of Nebraska, Mrs. Zara A. Wilson was elected president. The district is being thoroughly organized for amendment work. The outlook is hopeful.

MRS. HARRIET L. WALKER, of Cleveland, Ohio, is going to Washington for a few months, and will, if health permits, speak for the local unions. Mrs. Lucy Switzer, the indefatigable, will know about her movements.

AT Monona, Iowa, much interest has been felt in the Demorest medal contests held in the Congregational Church, under the direction of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. At the first two, all the contestants were young men between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one. At this one, "The World on Fire" was given by the winner of the medal. At the second, "The New Declaration of Independence." At the third, announced for May 2, young ladies as well as young men contested. Good and appropriate music helps to make these entertainments popular.

A CORRESPONDENT from Tahlequah, I. T., writes thus: "Since Miss Willard's visit to Tahlequah, the W. C. T. U. has kept up its meetings. Its influence has been slow but sure and steady. The Band of Hope is as regular as clock-work in its meetings Sunday afternoons, and Mrs. Jane Staples, our venerable president, is untiring in her efforts to build up both the Band of Hope and its mother society. One peculiarity in our fight against intoxicating liquors was the securing of the passage of an ordinance by the town council to prohibit the merchants from selling more than one bottle of Jamaica ginger per day. The consequence is that some of the drinkers, I hear, buy one bottle a day at each store until they accumulate enough to get thoroughly drunk."

MRS. JULIA M. BOSWORTH, of Kirksville, Mo., has been doing effective work for the cause of prohibition in Adams county, Illinois. Between February 1 and March 22, she traveled by rail and private conveyance five hundred and sixty-five miles; delivered forty lectures in twenty-one different townships, including the city of Quincy; organized one strong W. C. T. U., three good clubs, and obtained the pledges of seventy-five new voters. The receipts from collections at her meetings defrayed all expenses including her own fees. Cultivated, refined, and fertile in resources, those hearing her once are anxious to hear her again. Her whole heart yearns for the protection and purity of the home, hence the success attending her lectures in the cause of prohibition. She lectures upon a variety of subjects, such as "License Fallacies," "The Labor Problem," "Woman, Her Past, Present and Future," "Social Purity," etc. The prohibition committee of this county hopes to secure the services of Mrs. Bosworth soon again.

THE Colona. Ill., W. C. T. U. was organized in November, 1889, with twenty-five members, mostly young ladies and gentlemen. They have held public meetings every fortnight, which have been well attended. They have decorated the church with the stars and stripes, and held a flag service, thus furthering patriotism and temperance.

MRS. BATEHAM has recently visited Santa Barbara, Cal., and has addressed the people to great acceptance. A friend writes: "God is speaking through her to the people of California. She sends an arrow of conviction to the heart in every word she utters."

THE address of Dr. Orpha Baldwin, National superintendent of hygiene and heredity, is changed from 170 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, to 216 J St., Portland, Oregon, where she will be pleased to hear from all white-ribboners who are interested in the department of hygiene and heredity.

THE Rev. Frances Townsley, state evangelist of Nebraska W. C. T. U., has lately moved to David City, Neb., as pastor of the Baptist Church. This is her second pastorate in that state. She adds to her other labors lectures in behalf of the amendment.

THE recent Bucks county, Pa., W. C. T. U. convention was admirable in all its details. Ten departments of work were presented by the faithful superintendents; twenty-three unions in the county; 115,443 pages ot literature distributed since last report, beside hundreds of temperance papers; twenty-nine Loyal Temperance Legions. The peace and arbitration department has been added within the last six months. Practical work filled the day, while the evening's address, by Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, was all that heart and mind could desire.

A NEW W. C. T. U. was organized at Princeton, Ill., April 18, with Mrs. Julia Phelps as president, and Miss Sarah Coddington as secretary. This gives promise of being a good society, with a number of active workers. A plan was under way for the organization of a Swedish W. C. T. U. The Swedish people are waking up to the need of work.

MANY signed the pledge, and a goodly number of additions were made to the membership of the W. C. T. U. at Edinboro, Pa., during the recent labors of Miss Vandelia Varnum, who was accompanied by Miss Lena Crissey; the latter has a pure, sympathetic voice, which is especially adapted to the rendering of gospel songs. Miss Varnum's terms are such that she is within reach of all, and wherever she goes her good works praise her.

APPROPRIATE resolutions were passed by the Centerville, Washington, union, on the death of Mrs. C. A. Hoff, president of the Loyal Temperance Legion, and active in all temperance work. She passed suddenly away April 14. Her loss is deeply felt.

MRS. L. E. BAILEY has been actively at work in Nebraska since October 15, speaking for the pending prohibitory amendment. She reports crowded houses everywhere, and great interest. She has just finished a canvass of Lancaster county, where she gave twenty-two lectures, and besides holding women's and children's meetings at Firth, she organized a W. C. T. U. with the following officers: Mrs. Mary Beall, president; Mrs. Mary Burling, first vice-president; Mrs. Maggie Vanengen, second vice-president; Mrs. Barbara Rogers, recording secretary; Mrs. Lottie Rishel, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Candy, treasurer.

THE following tribute to the memory of a deceased worker comes from the hand of a friend: "Miss Sarah J. Moore, daughter of Jacob Mocre, of Ionia, was born at Farmington, Mich., 1851, and moved to Ionia in 1864; joined the M. E. Church in the spring of 1865. She went to Aberdeen, Dakota, in the fall of 1888, and died there, February 27, 1890. Her remains were brought to Ionia for burial. She was an unselfish, patient, hard-working Christian girl. She lived a useful life and died a beautiful death. She was a faithful, earnest, active member of the W. C. T. U. in Michigan and Dakota."

A NEW union was organized by Mrs. F. Merrick, at Dillsboro, Jackson county, N. C., March 18, with seven members; five have been added since. It is the first W. C. T. U. organized in Jackson county. The writer adds: "The only hotel in Dillsboro is a temperance house, and the town is protected by law from the manufacture, but not the importation of intoxicants. Almost every train from Asheville brings jugs of liquor, and men are frequently seen drunk on the streets."

MRS. FESSENDEN writes of Mrs. Barney's work in Malden, Mass., in the most cordial terms, closing thus: "In Mrs. Barney the white-ribbon army are blessed with a woman of rare combination of powers and ability, sanctified and consecrated to highest because to lowliest good. May the Great Captain long spare her in health and strength of body and mind to carry on her most excellent work."

A VERY interesting and profitable meeting was held in the M. E. Church, Memphis, Mich., April 9. The local union sent an invitation to their district president, Mrs. J. M. Kenny, of Port Huron, to be present at their regular meeting, to which she responded most heartily. She spoke in the afternoon to ladies in her usual cheering, helpful manner. At four o'clock the school children from the three departments and the Band of Hope came in for ten minutes' talk, which was delightful. In the evening the church was filled, and a deeply-interested audience were more than won by the quiet, definite remarks of the speaker, as she unfolded and explained the forty different lines of work which the W. C. T. U. are carrying out. She won votes and hearts.

BEAUTIFUL words come from the hand of her pastor, regarding the life and works of Miss Laura Minkler, who passed away March 18, at Edgewood, Iowa. When she was about ten years old she became totally blind. The following year she entered the Iowa College for the Blind, from which she graduated with honor, and remained there as an instructor for the next two years. She was a charter member of the Edgewood W. C. T. U., and "by her earnestness, zeal and ability, she became the inspiring genius of a most enthusiastic and efficient union." Her public work as a lecturer for the W. C. T. U was undertaken under the conviction that it was at her Father's bidding, and she did it with heartiness and courage. She had begun a course of study under the direction of the Boston correspondence school with the intention of entering evangelistic work; but after severe illness of a week she was called to the higher ministries of heaven. Her pastor says of her: "She was an earnest, devoted, thoroughly consecrated Christian, 'full of faith and of the Holy Ghost.'"

AT Tucson, Arizona Territory a grand convention was recently held, at which Mrs. M. L. Wells did work which was highly appreciated by the W. C. T. U. Her Bible readings were especially helpful. The evening collection was over sixty dollars. Mrs. L. C. Hughes is the territorial president, and is much honored and beloved. To her much of the credit is given of the passage of the "Sunday rest law."

WOMAN'S LECTURE BUREAU.

MRS. R. A. EMMONS, SEC.

All engagements made by this Bureau are conditional upon the ability of the lecturer to fill them. In case of detention by sickness, accident, or any legitimate and unavoidable cause, another date will be given as soon as possible.

LECTURERS.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap.	Mrs. S. M. I. Henry.
Miss Henrietta G. Moore.	Miss I. C. DeVelling.
Mrs. Marion B. Baxter.	Mrs. Caroline M. Woodward.
Rev. Eugenia F. St. John.	Rev. W. H. Boole, D.D.
Mrs. Helen L. Bullock.	Ex-Gov. John P. St. John.
Rev. C. H. St. John.	Volney B. Cushing.
Mr. A. G. Wolfenberger.	Mrs. S. M. Perkins.
Prof. A. B. Huckins.	Mrs. R. J. Trego.
Major E. T. Scott.	Mother Stewart.
Mrs. E. T. Scott.	D. H. Burwell.
Mrs. M. L. Wells.	Dr. Kate C. Bushnell.

Mrs. F. McReady Harris (Hope Ledyard).

MRS. MARY T. LATHRAP

begins a month's work in Maine, June 1.

MISS HENRIETTA G. MOORE

will be in West Washington until June 3. A few engagements en route to Chicago may be made following this.

MRS. MARION B. BAXTER

spends the entire month of May in Minnesota.

REV. EUGENIA F. ST. JOHN

speaks at Englewood, Ill., May 13.

MRS. S. M. I. HENRY

speaks at Maurice, Iowa, May 11; Calliope, 13; Akron, 14 and 15; Rock Valley, 18.

MISS I. C. DE VELLING

begins a month or six weeks' work in Wyoming, May 25.

MRS. C. M. WOODWARD

is devoting her entire time to Nebraska.

VOLNEY B. CUSHING

will be available for Chicago and vicinity the first seven days of June.

MRS. R. J. TREGO

spends next week at Defiance, Ohio.

DR. KATE C. BUSHNELL speaks at Kendallville, Ind., May 15; Findlay, Ohio, 18; Akron, 19 and 20. A few dates are still open en route for the East.

D. H. BURWELL

speaks at Bolivar, N. Y., from May 11 to 17.

For dates and terms of all the above, address the
WOMAN'S LECTURE BUREAU,
161 La Salle St., Chicago.

Causes of Failure in Business.

Promises made that cannot be kept. Inducements held out that do not exist. Claims that have no foundation. Great promise. Little result. So, when you see a firm prosper year after year, you know at once that these are not its business maxims.

You will also see that they cannot be the principles of Drs. Starkey & Palen, for after 20 years of success with their Compound Oxygen Treatment they have a record of cures that is something wonderful. This record is not a private affair, locked up in the safe, or worse still, one that does not exist. On the contrary, you can see it. All you have to do is to send for Drs. Starkey & Palen's Treatise on the Compound Oxygen Treatment. It is free to you. You will get it by return mail. This book contains a record of diseases removed, tells who have been cured and shows where they live. Send for it Address Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.

It is filled with such testimony as the following:

Drs. Starkey & Palen:—"I have received remarkable benefit from the use of your Compound Oxygen treatment. I was entirely cured of Neuralgia by it." MRS. G. W. VALENTINE, New Douglas, Ill., July 30, 1889.

Drs. Starkey & Palen:—"Your Compound Oxygen Treatment cured me of Neuralgia. I believe it saved my life." MISS MAGGIE HANNA, Mankato, Minn., Nov 15, 1889.

Drs. Starkey & Palen.—"By the use of your Compound Oxygen Treatment, my lungs which were badly affected are permanently cured." GEO. S. MURPHY, Cashier First National Bank, Manhattan, Kansas. Drs. Starkey & Palen:—"I can truly say that your Compound Oxygen Treatment has helped my lungs wonderfully." MRS. JAS. SEXTON, Union Hill, Ill., September 12, 1889.

Drs. Starkey & Palen:—"I had consumption of four years' standing, and the doctors pronounced me incurable. But your Compound Oxygen Treatment made a well man of me." JAMES W. ICE, Commercial Point, Ill., Jan. 15, 1889. Drs. Starkey & Palen:—"I have fully proved your Compound Oxygen Treatment to be unrivalled in its immediate effects upon throat troubles of any kind, asthma and catarrh." MRS. A. W. MATHEWSON, 85 Williams St., Providence, R. I., Oct. 22, 1888.

Publisher's Notes.

Our Edition this Week is 87,000 Copies.

That Splendid Picture of Miss Willard

Which is promised to all who send in one or more new subscribers, providing 15,000 are sent in by July 1st.

Don't You Want One?

No pains or money will be spared to make it the best picture of Miss Willard that has ever been issued. Full statement of this offer was in last week's UNION SIGNAL.

THREE NEW LEAFLETS.

Manual of the Department of Social Purity.

By Miss Willard and her Associate Superintendents, full explanations and directions, answering such questions as, "How shall I approach this subject with my son—or my daughter?" "What gain has been made the past year?" "What books can we read on this topic?" "What preventive work can be done?" "How are Mothers' Meetings conducted?" "What is the work of the Travellers' Aid branch?" etc. Twenty pages.

A White Life for Two.

Miss Willard's address before the International Woman's Congress in Washington. A strong plea for an equal standard of purity, etc., for the sexes.

A Letter to the National W. C. T. U.

By Wm. T. Stead. This was sent to the National Convention at Chicago, November, 1889. No word of this true champion of womanhood but is worth hearing.

Price, each..... $ .05
" 10 or more, each.... .03
" per 100..... 2.50

Address WOMAN'S TEM. PUB. ASS'N, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

I have one of Sherman, Tangenberg & Co.'s "Flour Bins," and am greatly pleased with it. It is a cleanly, economical, room and trouble-saving device.

MRS. GEO. C. HALL.

See Advertisement in another column.

BEECHAM'S PILLS cure bilious and nervous ills.

Home-Seekers' Excursions via the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Ry.

On Tuesdays, May 20, September 9 and 23 and October 14, 1890, agents of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railway will sell Home-Seekers' Excursion Tickets to principal points in the West, Northwest, South and Southwest at rate of one fare for the round trip, tickets good returning thirty days from date of sale. For full particulars call on or address agents of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railway.

MR. JAS. H. CORDON, pastor M. E. Church, Wilson, N. C., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Bradycrotine as a specific for Headache in its various forms."

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS

Beware of Imitations. NOTICE AUTOGRAPH OF Stewart Hartshorn ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

CHILDREN'S DAY HORAL SONGS Nos. 1 and 2. Two superior complete Programs of 16 pages each. With additional pages of choice Recitations. For Children's Day, or Flower Sunday. Sample copies, 12 cents for the two, or 6 cents each. R. R. McCABE & CO., 68 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Flax Fiber-ware.

The vast amount of flax straw going to waste in the West, led the present officers of the Standard Fiber-Ware Co., of Mankato, Minn., early in 1885, to investigate the merits of flax fiber—tow—with view to its manufacture into pails, wash basins, etc. Everything looked favorable, and that fall and winter an extensive plant was built and the present company organized with a capital of $50,000. The first goods were turned out late in the summer of 1886 and numerous complaints came in that the goods were not proving satisfactory, but in the two following years improved machinery and new devices in the process of manufacture brought them to their present popularity. Nothing in the market so thoroughly pleases the consumer as these goods. They are light, strong, handsome and cleanly. The wash basins do not rust out or slip from the fingers and break. The water pails, in the language of hundreds who have used them, are the "only pails fit to hold drinking water." The dairy pail is the only thing made that will not taint milk, get sour or need scouring. The slop-jars never lose their paint or decorations like tin, or break like crockery. The mats will in one year save more carpets than they cost, and so on through the list. The inside finish is paint (without white lead) or Japan finish, according to the use it is put to. The outside finish is such as to suit all tastes, in colors and decorations. All paints, japans, copals and decorations are baked on to stay.—Western Stockman and Cultivator.

Treasurers' Outfits.

For collecting money by the envelope system. The surest method, giving the largest returns and with the least labor. Adapted for churches, W. C. T. Unions or any similar organization. Complete for fifty collectors sent, carriage free, on receipt of five dollars. Address Miss Pugh, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Solid Silver Spoons—Free.

The firm who make the above offer in another part of our paper are perfectly reliable, and the premium box which they send out contains not only all the Sweet Home Soap and fine Toilet Soaps and the list of miscellaneous articles contained in the advertisement, but also a set of Solid Silver Spoons. Subscribers who write to them are perfectly safe in sending six dollars with the order, and this is the quickest and best way (on account of the extra present that is given for cash) to get goods from Messrs. J. D. Larkin & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., who certainly exhibit an enterprise and liberality in their desire to introduce their Soaps which is almost unheard of.

Homeseekers' and Harvest Excursions West, at One-Half Rates, via Illinois Central R. R.

On April 22d, May 20th, September 9th and 23d, and October 14th, 1890, the Illinois Central Railroad will sell excursion tickets at one fare for the round trip to all stations west of, and including Iowa Falls, Ia., which embraces the following prominent points:

Webster City, Ia.	Ft. Dodge, Ia.
Storm Lake, Ia.	LeMars, Ia.
Sioux City, Ia.	Cherokee, Ia.
Onawa, Ia.	Sheldon, Ia.

And Sioux Falls, So. Dak.

Tickets are limited to return within thirty days, and are good for stop-over privileges west of Iowa Falls, both going and returning.

Solid trains, consisting of elegant free reclining chair cars, and Pullman palace sleepers, leave Chicago at 1:00 p. m., and 11:35 p. m., and run through to Sioux City without change.

For through tickets, rates, etc., apply to nearest Ticket Agent; and for copy of pamphlet descriptive of towns in Northwestern Iowa, entitled "Homes for Everybody," apply to

F. B. BOWES,
Gen'l Northern Pass. Agent,
194 Clark St., CHICAGO.

For a DISORDERED LIVER Try BEECHAM'S PILLS. 25cts. a Box. OF ALL DRUGGISTS.

ASTONISHING CURES!

What ROYAL GERMETUER Has Done.

The remarkable cures with "Royal Germetuer" are astonishing the world. Thousands of certificates attest its virtues and sound its praise. If you are sick do not despair. Dr King's Royal Germetuer will cure you. It is as pleasant to take as lemonade without sugar; it is a scientific discovery, and cures disease by removing the cause. It builds up from the first dose.

Mrs. Ella R Tennent, editress of Tennent's Home Magazine, says. "Its fame has spread like a prairie fire. It is so pleasant to use I look forward to the time for taking it with pleasure. The verdict of all I know, who have taken it, is that it is a great remedy."

Price $1.50 per concentrated bottle, which will make, as per accompanying directions, one gallon of medicine. Send stamp for full particulars.

For sale by druggists and by the Atlantic Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga.

"SPLENDID!" All say, using Willcox Cuff Holder. Every reader of this paper can have a pair by sending 10 cents to S. P. and S. H. Willcox, Fairhaven, Mass. Lady Agents Wanted.

Maid for easy Housework —Pearline.

Made to save work and wear in all kinds of washing and cleaning. Made into a powder for your convenience. Made as cheap as pure soap for economy. Made harmless for all purposes for which soap is used.

What a friend—a friend who did half your washing and cleaning and made the other half so easy that you did not get too tired to enjoy the time saved; besides made things last longer and look better. That's just what Pearline will do for you if you'll let it. On the back of each package you'll find how it will best befriend you. Every grocer keeps Pearline, and many of your friends use it—ask them about it. You'll use it sooner or later—the sooner the better for both of us.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 180 JAMES PYLE, New York.

A BOOK TO Make Converts!

PLEAS FOR PROHIBITION,

BY

REV. SAM. W. SMALL, M. A.

This book has been written by Mr. Small, with the view of covering the whole argument for the legal suppression of the liquor traffic. It is written in a style to interest the general reader, and is not burdened with tables and figures that are irksome.

—o—

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I—Prohibition as a Principle.
" II—Prohibition in the Past.
" III—Prohibition in Practice.
" IV—Prohibition and Parties.
" V—Prohibition and Public Education.
" VI—Prohibition and the Press.
" VII—Prohibition and the Pulpit.
" VIII—Prohibition and the Professions.
" IX—Prohibition and the Public Peace.
" X—Prohibition and Prisons.
" XI—Prohibition and Pauperism.
" XII—Prohibition and the Public Purse.
" XIII—Prohibition and Posterity.

—o—

Read it yourself and strengthen your faith; then hand it to a hesitating neighbor and gain him for prohibition. A finely printed book, worthy of a place in any library, and put at a price to make it popular.

Bound in Cloth, 75 Cents.

Sent postpaid on receipt of postal note or money order for the price. Address

ALFRED MUDGE & SON,

24 Franklin St., Boston, Mass.

400 RECITATIONS and Readings, Bound in Handsome Lithograph Cover, mailed to any address for 30 cents. Stamps taken. Address J. S. Ogilvie, Publisher, 57 Rose Street, New York.

DO you know that you can beautifully decorate your walls and ceilings, and do the work yourself, and very cheaply? Ask any paint dealer, or write for designs and instructions. No stamps required. Alabastine Co., Grand Rapids, Mich. See THE UNION SIGNAL April 17.

The National Capital.

The City of Washington is an object of perennial interest to all patriotic Americans. Not alone because it is the great throbbing heart of the mightiest and grandest Republic the earth has ever known, but also on account of its material magnificence. All Americans take pride in its beautiful avenues, majestic architecture, stately homes, and well stored galleries and museums as things of grandeur and beauty in themselves, apart from the historic interest with which they are invested. It is a hope and aspiration of all "YOUNG AMERICA," at least, to some time or other visit the Capital of his country.

The Baltimore and Ohio R. R. offers unequalled facilities in aid of this desire. All its through trains between New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the east, and Pittsburg, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago on the west, pass through Washington. Its fast express trains are vestibuled from end to end and heated with steam. Pullman's latest and best productions in the way of sumptuous Drawing Room Sleeping Cars are attached to all its through trains. The present management of the B. & O. have made vast improvements in the last two years, and the road is to-day one of the foremost passenger carrying lines in the country. Through tickets via B. & O. R. R. can be procured at all the principal ticket offices throughout the United States.

I would like the permanent care of an invalid, or as a companion. Am a widow 46 years old, weigh 150 lbs. Have had experience as a nurse. Have almost perfect health. Address W, care UNION SIGNAL.

DON'T Wear Stiff Corsets that ruin your health and comfort. TRY "GOOD SENSE" Corset Waists. ☞ they will please you.

DR. WILFORD HALL'S HEALTH PAMPHLET. IN AMERICA.

Dr. W. B. Forden, M. D., St. Louis, Mo., 706 Pine St., writes, March 2:

"Dr. A. Wilford Hall: I have just finished reading your health brochure. To say that I am amazed does not express it—to think of the stupidity of our profession to have overlooked this factor in the physical economy for so long, and at last leave it to a layman to make the discovery! I had already an experience with a partial application of the remedy, but your pamphlet has convinced me that I did not know it all by half, and yet I thought I was in the van. I am fully convinced, however, that my partial application of the treatment has saved my life, and I now as fully believe that your advance application of the same will prolong it. Although a graduate of medicine and regarded as a successful practitioner, I have a supreme contempt for drugs, and for some time had contemplated changing my business, etc., etc. . . . Very truly yours, W. B. FORDEN, M. D."

Dr. John Kaufman, M.D., of Hazleton, Pa., writes, March 16:

"Dear Dr. Hall: I received your Health-Pamphlet yesterday, and have examined it sufficiently to grasp the rationale of your treatment. Please accept my thanks for the valuable little work. Your reasoning is logical and your conclusions are strictly physiological. I believe your discovery, as elaborated in your treatise, has more intrinsic value than all other pathological theories. Very truly yours, JOHN KAUFMAN, M. D."

We have received hundreds of similar indorsements of the Health-Pamphlet from physicians.

Business people, as well as professional people who have tested the treatment, are universal in its praise.

For further information regarding this medicineless treatment call upon or send 2-cent stamp to A. T. Bates, Room 46, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago.

A Bonanza for Book Agents.

Mrs. Livermore's famous volume, "My Story of the War" is growing in favor every day, and it is believed that its sale will reach 75,000 copies this spring. Men and women agents are unusually successful with it. Rev. A. W. Collins, Cameron, Mo., says:

"I have never shed so many tears over one book as I have over this one. I have given several readings from it to personal friends who have called upon me. All were delighted, and we read and laughed and wept together, for the humorous as well as the pathetic is in it. I have read a few chapters to old soldiers who happened into my study, and without exception they sat and listened as if enchanted, while tears ran thick and fast down their cheeks, and when I concluded they exclaimed, 'Where can I get a copy of that book?'

"I have often asked myself what is the real secret of this great book? The only answer I can frame that is at all satisfactory to me is that it is full of 'heart power.' It comes from the heart. The subject is great, the author is great, and of course the book could not but be great. Many times while reading this thrilling story I have said audibly, 'God bless Mrs. Livermore for writing it.' It is my heart-felt wish that a million copies of it may be sent out through this broad land. It will do good whenever and wherever read."

You have not Sent For Samples of Protection Posters? Well! Well!

And yet you want your place to have a healthy time of agitation and stir-up-edness? Such times don't "jist grow" or rain down from above! They come about when men see—stop—reason and assent or dissent—dismount from the fence of indifference, in other words. Given, a fence of ignorance and indifference, the top rail full of voters, the means (Protection Posters) of tipping the rail.

Not Sent for Samples? Well! Well!

Publisher's Notes.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy..... $1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each..... 1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each..... 1.00
To ministers and reading rooms.... 1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS: Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

From Miss Willard.

We need to start a POST-OFFICE CRUSADE—sending our leaflets on the forty and more subjects of which they treat to the classes that most need to have their opinions on those subjects enlightened. I find wall pockets in almost every railroad station, but frequently these are empty and on inquiry the local president often says, "Our depot master is unfriendly to the temperance reform," whereupon I urge that the superintendent of the road be written to and requested to issue a general order along his line that our wall pockets must be respected and protected, both. It is always best to seek the highest authority—one is most apt to be treated with consideration in that quarter; at least such has been my observation."

From the Publisher.

Do you all remember that item how the Moline, Ill., union furnishes THE UNION SIGNAL to the barber shops? Now as Miss Willard sees the necessity for a Post-office Crusade also a Barber Shop Crusade, we will make a special offer and allow subscriptions for THE UNION SIGNAL for these crusade purposes to be sent in at—75 CENTS EACH.—No commission will be allowed and only fair and honorable treatment is expected. Engine rooms, jails and prisons can be added to the list, also saloon keeper's wives! Now for crusades that will tell and papers to go where they will tell things that thousands now are ignorant of—totally ignorant of. Will you crusade with us? Or will you let this appeal fly in at one eye and out of the other? Put the paper where voters will see it.

An agent for Glimpses, writing from Louisiana, says, "Please send me twenty-one cloth and nine one-half morocco books. I began my work one week ago to-day fearing I could do but little here, but I find the people interested in Miss Willard's work. This is my first experience as a canvasser and I am delighted with the work, and am confident that I can get another much larger order in our little city." This lady's earnings in one week were $35.70 and one one-half morocco book at $3.50, total $39.20.

Another agent sends the publishers a draft for $140, for one order of books; Her commissions were $94, and three premiums worth $9, and the entire work of canvassing was done in three weeks.

Worthy?

AGENTS WANTED

For the two best temperance books ever published, viz.,

GLIMPSES OF FIFTY YEARS,

by Frances E. Willard, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT,

or "The Conflict of Man with Alcohol," by Henry W. Blair, United States Senator.

Of the first book, 50,000 have been printed since May, 1889. Of the second, three editions have been issued. Agents make money selling these books. Good territory can be had. Apply at once to

Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n,
161 La Salle St., Chicago.

Demand Pond's Extract.
Accept no substitute.

LADY AGENTS CLEAR $10 DAILY selling "Victoria Protector" and rubber goods for Ladies & Children. Sample "Victoria" by mail $1. Mrs. L. E. Singleton, Box 665, Chicago, Ill.

What do doctors know about corsets?

They know a good deal more sometimes than they dare give their patients the benefit of!

What are they afraid of?

Losing their patients. Many a woman would throw her doctor overboard sooner than change her corset.

What do women know about corsets?

The doctors and women together know all there is to be known. They all agree that Ball's is the proper corset.

You can go to your store and get it and wear it two or three weeks and get your money again, every cent of it, if you want it.

The store has a primer on Corsets for you.

CHICAGO CORSET CO., Chicago and New York.

Better than Tea and Coffee for the Nerves.
VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA
"Best & Goes Farthest."
Ask your Grocer for it, take no other. [63

LADIES! Use only { Brown's French Dressing } on your Boots and Shoes.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

STANDARD FIBER-WARE COMPANY — Trade STANDARD Mark — MANKATO, MINN.

ASK your dealer for Water Pails Dairy Pails, Wash Basins, Cuspidors, Slop Jars, Table Mats, Slop Jar Mats, Etc. made from FLAX FIBER. Practically indestructible. Manufact'd by the STANDARD FIBER-WARE CO. Nothing will please you like this Plain and Decorated Ware. In use everywhere. None genuine without "STANDARD" Trade Mark on bottom. If your dealer does not keep it, send his address and we will mail you picture cards.

THE GLUTEN Entire Wheat Flour the best and most economical flour made, the only cure for Dyspepsia. Recommended by Physicians. Kenosha Mills Co., 135 Lake St., Chicago.

HOTEL FREDONIA,
H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.
New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,
G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt., 97 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA
furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.
Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS
A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.
S. A. KEAN & CO. BANKERS,
CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

OREGON THE LAND OF BIG RED APPLES. The famous Willamette Valley. The best climate in the United States. Write for circulars to the Western Oregon Land Co., Monmouth, Polk Co., Oregon. J. G. CROUCH, Sec'y.

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.
Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free

PANSY PLANTS 12 very choice Pansy Plants, all colors, 20c. or 24 for 30c., nicely packed, postpaid Catalogue FREE, F. B. MILLS, Thorn Hill, N. Y.

UNITY. A weekly journal of a Religion that is Rational, and a Rationalism that is Religious. 10 weeks 10 cents. CHICAGO.

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD PICTURE Agents wanted. Terms extra liberal. Address C. P. CORY & CO., 325 State St., Chicago.

OPIUM Morphine or Whisky Habit cured in 11 to 21 days. Home or Sanitarium Treatment. Address The Compound Oxygen Ass'n, Ft. Wayne, Ind

PURE GRAPE JUICE. EMMA M. TAYLOR 29 Bow St., WOBURN, MASS.

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

$60 SALARY $40 EXPENSES IN ADVANCE allowed each month. Steady employment at home or traveling. No soliciting. Duties delivering and making collections. No Postal Cards. Address with stamp, HAFER & CO., Piqua, O.

LADY AGENTS WANTED—ALSO MEN. Two immense new specialties; 1 lady made $27 before dinner, another $16 the first hour; extraordinary opportunity; proof free. Ad., LITTLE & CO., 214 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND
Sent on receipt of price and waist measure.
Fitted band 75 cts. } Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367,
Plain band 30 cts. } Minneapolis, Minn.

WOULD YOU?
WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F." CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 134 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

"MURRAY"
$55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS
are the best and cheapest. Write for catalogue and prices. Wilber H. Murray M'f'g Co., Cincinnati, O.

$50 OUTFIT ON 30 DAYS' TIME TO AGENTS Guarantee $150 profits in four weeks or no pay, to travel or work at home. No competition. C. JARVIS & CO., Racine, Wis.

"DELSARTE" Corset Waists and Braces are the best selling goods made. Sold by Agents only. Exclusive territory Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

THE Perfection Flour Bin and Sieve. The housekeeper's best friend. Look for our card in this paper next week. Agents wanted.
SHERMAN, TANGENBERG & CO., 160 West Lake St., Chicago.

$29 Saved. A $45.00 Sewing Machine for $16.00. Call on or write to M. A. Scullin & Co., 762 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., for particulars. Mentioning this paper and get full information.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time. Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINGTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED
that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

WALL PAPER makes attractive homes. Our low prices, enormous assortment of styles and honorable treatment induce customers in all parts U.S. to recommend us. Lustres 6c. a roll. Handsome Golds 12c. Felts 20c. Iridescent Embossed Golds 35c. For 8c. postage will send to any address samples with borders to match. A. L. DIAMENT & CO., 1206 Market St., PHILADELPHIA, PA

Best Sewing Machine Made, Free!
We have an assortment of the best Sewing Machines made which we are selling lower than any other concern in the country, and as we sell more machines than any Manufacturer or Dealer, we can afford to give one free to have them introduced. Send for terms. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Illinois.

BABY CARRIAGES Direct from Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world. G. L. Spencer.

WE WANT 1,000 BRIGHT BOYS OR GIRLS.

To whom we can give employment in a way that will be easy and pleasant. The preliminary work can be done after school hours—an hour a week after that will suffice to bring in a profit of from 20 cents to $2.00 a week.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS TO
The Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n
161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO., ARCHITECTS.
Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
"Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

The Master of the Magicians.

A Novel collaborated by ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS and HERBERT D. WARD. 16mo, $1.25.

"The Master of the Magicians" is a novel dealing with court life in Babylon six hundred years before Christ.

"For art, power, scope, flexibility, wealth of imagination and fidelity to that human nature which changes so little in the course of ages, 'The Master of the Magicians' must be considered a brilliant success, and one of the very few really admirable productions of its kind."—New York Tribune.

Tales of New England.

By SARAH ORNE JEWETT. In the Riverside Aldine Series. 16mo, $1.00.

Eight of Miss Jewett's most delightful stories, forming a peculiarly good summer book.

Liberal Living Upon Narrow Means.

By CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK. $1.00.

A distinct addition to the kitchen library, containing many useful hints, and receipts clearly expressed and tested by careful trial.

For sale by all Booksellers. Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, by the Publishers.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO., Boston.

MAY FLOWERS OF SONG

For Schools:

Children's School Songs. (35 cts.: $3.60 dozen. 8 pages of simple explanations, and 138 new and selected songs for general singing. This little book is being received with much favor.

Kindergarten Chimes. ($1.25.) Kate Douglas Wiggin. Good manual, and fine collection.
Kindergarten and Primary School Songs. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Menard.
Songs and Games for Little Ones. ($2.00.) Walker and Jenks.
Gems for Little Singers. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Emerson and Swayne.
Rhymes and Tunes. ($1.00.) Mrs. Osgood.
Motion Songs. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Mrs. Boardman. Get them all! They are most delightful books! Also try the sweet little Cantatas:
Kingdom of Mother Goose. (25 cts., $2.28 doz.) Mrs. Boardman.
Rainbow Festival. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Lewis.
Who Killed Cock Robin? (40 cts.; $3.60 doz.) Ford.

Song Manual { Book 1, Primary. 30c.; $3 doz. Book 2, Medium. 40c.; $4.20 doz Book 3, High. 50c.; $4.80 doz.

By Emerson. These are the newest and best books for teaching note reading in schools.

Send for lists and descriptions.
Any book mailed for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston.

PIANOS $150 to $1500 UNIVERSITY ESTAB. 1859. INCOR. 1877

They Lead the World!
Sent for trial in your own home.
Guaranteed Six Years.
ABSOLUTELY PERFECT
Sold Direct to families. No Middlemen.
DON'T BUY A POOR PIANO!
Cat. Free.

MARCHAL & SMITH PIANO CO. 235 E. 21st St., N.Y. ORGANS $35 to $500

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

PIANOS—$35—ORGANS
Examine in your HOME before PAYING. Manufacturer's Prices. No Agents. Write for particulars. Address, THE T. SWOGER & SON PIANOS & ORGANS BEAVER FALLS, PA.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE
Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V. Farwell & Co., Chicago.

TEACHERS Register NOW and secure positions in the Colleges, Seminaries and Schools of the South and South-west. Vacancies are occurring every day. Registration fee $2. Send stamp for blank. American Bureau of Education, Room 32, Cole Building, Nashville, Tenn.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.
Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep.....$3.00
Crown Fountain Pen.....$2.00
Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY,
181 Monroe St., CHICAGO,
Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper

Publisher's Dep't.

FOR ✠ 20 ✠ CENTS ✠ YOU ✠ CAN HAVE ✠ THE ✠ UNION ✠ SIGNAL SENT ✠ TO ✠ A ✠ FRIEND ✠ FOR FIVE ✠ WEEKS ✠ WITH ✠ COPY OF ✠ A ✠ 25 ✠ CENT ✠ BOOK ✠ CONKLIN'S ✠ MANUAL ✠ OF ✠ INFORMATION. ✠ THE ✠ BOOK ✠ CAN COME ✠ TO ✠ YOU, ✠ THE ✠ PAPER TO ✠ YOUR ✠ FRIEND ✠ IF ✠ YOU PREFER. ✠ EITHER ✠ ONE ✠ IS ✠ WORTH ✠ MUCH ✠ MORE ✠ THAN 20 ✠ CENTS. ✠ ✠ ✠ ✠ ✠ ✠ ✠

From Scotland.

Mrs. G. A. Barclay, of Carrubbers Close Mission, Edinburg, Scotland, in asking that some temperance supplies be sent for distribution at an exposition there, writes: "THE UNION SIGNAL, we may just say, is a great treat to us and is looked for every week; it is, in fact, the most welcome paper which enters our home, as well as the finest Christian Temperance periodical in the world." High praise that, but if it's merited, show some faith by works, viz:—send $1 and the name of one new subscriber.

Extract from Letter.

I received from you about a month ago a colloquy, "The Milkmaid's Convention." We—the Good Templars—put it on the stage and with good success. It was well acted; it took well. DORA COPE.
Leetonia, Ohio.

Items and Smite-ems.

TAHLEQUAH, IND. TER.

"The Crusade Supplement Senior Grade Lessons on Government are just what we need." Mrs. L. Jane Staples, president W. C. T. U., Indian Territory.

Your children and your Loyal Legions need them, too. Ignorance is not bliss—it's misery, and mostly unpardonable. Come, put something substantial and worth reading in your children's hands. It will do its own stepping into the head and life.

A nicely printed W. C. T. U. Calendar comes from Effingham, Ill. It hangs on the wall and can be easily read at some distance. Dates of meeting are given and other standing announcements, and closes thus: "Please read the Bible lesson for each day in THE UNION SIGNAL." Those topics are like the one who writes them—lovely and Christ-like. They are full of rich truth and experience.

For an extra five cents we will put a copy of the great temperance chart, "How we spend our money," in with package of "Prohibition Posters," viz.: send fifty-five cents and ask for Temperance Dynamite with the posters.

1. John M. Pierce & Co., Rogersville, Tenn., send us a check for $25 to be used in sending Der Deutsch Amerikaner to Nebraska farmers.

2. "We like 'Unanswered Prayer' very much, and consider it such a missionary book for parents that we wish to get some more copies to distribute. Please send copies of it to the value of $3.30. It is a book to do much good. Respectfully,"
Savannah, Ga. MARY C. HULL.

3. "I sent you a club for THE UNION SIGNAL, January 1. The members of our union like it so well I have raised another club.
Potsdam, N. Y. LELIA WILLSON.

4. We have received $15 to send Mrs. Lord's pamphlet, 'Scripture Wines" to Nebraska for distribution. The saloons are distributing Rev. Dr. Hovey's argument. This is a woman's answer, complete, forcible, forceful. Don't you want to help in the good work? The pamphlet will be sent at cost prices for this purpose.

Mrs. A. C. Hopkins, Oberlin, Ohio, has sold thirty copies of "Free Rum on the Congo," in paper bindings within a month. She thought it would be good work to scatter the book among members of the union, and outsiders, and so went to work to canvass for it. We allow her a good discount. She says she thinks she will take a dozen more. There are undoubtedly other people who would be glad to take up work of this kind, and push this book and other books. Where we have no representative it would of course be very desirable to have such agents.

A lady from Illinois who sold Glimpses of Fifty Years for the last four months writes: "Do not ask me to sell any book but Glimpses. I have already bought me a sewing machine and a fine dinner set with my earnings on this book and am doing well enough. I think 'Glimpses' the best book I ever sold and would like to give my whole time to it."

Van Houten's Cocoa, once tried always used.

"Oread" free tells of Mt. Carroll (Ill.) Seminary.

The Vestibuled Pullman Car Line.

The Monon Route is the finest equipped line on the continent and affords choice of four daily trains from Chicago to the South via Indianapolis and Cincinnati, or Louisville and Burgin. For full information call on any ticket agent of the Monon Route or address W. H. McDoel, Traffic Manager, or James Barker, Gen'l Pass. Agent, 185 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

BURLINGTON ROUTE.
HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell from principal stations on its lines, on Tuesdays, April 22d and May 20th, Home Seekers' Excursion Tickets at Half Rates to points in the Farming Regions of the West, Southwest and Northwest. For tickets and further information concerning these excursions call on your nearest C., B. & Q. ticket agent, or address P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

Homeseekers' and Harvest Excursions South, at One-Half Rates, via Illinois Central R. R

On April 22d, May 20th, September 9th and 23d, and October 14th, 1890, the Illinois Central Railroad will sell Excursion Tickets at one fare for the round trip to all stations on its line in Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, excepting Memphis and New Orleans.

Tickets are limited to return within thirty days, and are good for stop-over privileges south of Cairo, both going and returning. The following are the principal points where northern people are settling:

Jackson, Tenn.	Brookhaven, Miss.
Holly Springs, Miss.	McComb City, Miss.
Durant, Miss.	Kentwood, La.
Aberdeen, Miss.	Roseland, La.
Canton, Miss.	Amite, La.
Jackson, Miss.	Hammond, La.
Terry, Miss.	Jeannerette, La.
Crystal Springs, Miss.	Jennings, La.
Wesson, Miss.	Lake Charles, La.

For through tickets, rates, etc., apply to ncarest Ticket Agent. For further information and copies of the "Southern Homeseekers' Guide" and "Farmers' and Fruit Growers' Guide to McComb City," apply to F. B. BOWES,
Gen'l Northern Pass. Agent.
194 Clark St., CHICAGO

GAIN ONE POUND A Day.

A GAIN OF A POUND A DAY IN THE CASE OF A MAN WHO HAS BECOME "ALL RUN DOWN," AND HAS BEGUN TO TAKE THAT REMARKABLE FLESH PRODUCER,

SCOTT'S EMULSION

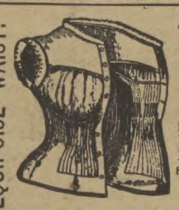
OF PURE COD LIVER OIL WITH Hypophosphites of Lime & Soda

IS NOTHING UNUSUAL. THIS FEAT HAS BEEN PERFORMED OVER AND OVER AGAIN. PALATABLE AS MILK. ENDORSED BY PHYSICIANS. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. AVOID SUBSTITUTIONS AND IMITATIONS.

AGENTS Wanted. $5.00 a day made selling our Jewel Tufting Machine, Rug Patterns, etc. Send for Catalogue and particulars. Small sample sent for 10c to pay postage. GIBBS MFG. CO., 88-90 State St., Chicago.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. R. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill. We do not sell liquors in any shape.

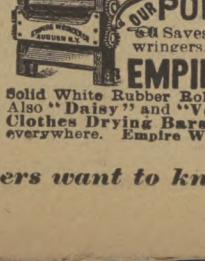
HARPER BROS. & CO., Grocers.
Established 1873, 90 State Street, Chicago. Opposite Marshall Field's. Send for Price List.
NO LIQUORS SOLD.



A FULL LINE OF DRESS REFORM GOODS,

including the Equipoise Waist, and all the Jenness-Miller specialties. Send stamp for Catalogue.
Mrs. S. W. Pike,
75 Madison St., Chicago.

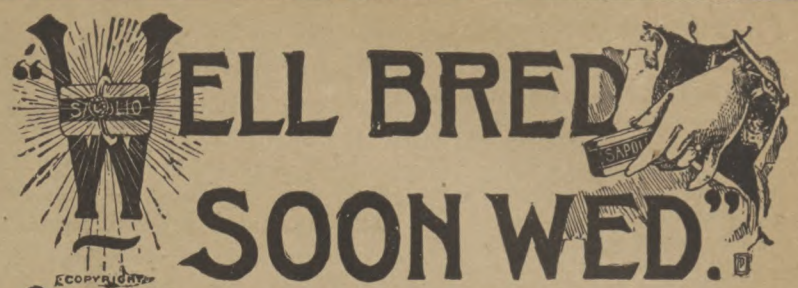
BUY THE WRINGER THAT SAVES THE MOST LABOR OUR PURCHASE GEAR



Saves half the labor of other wringers and costs but little more.

EMPIRE Does not GREASE The CLOTHES.

Solid White Rubber Rolls. Warranted. Also "Daisy" and "Volunteer" Wringers, Clothes Drying Bars, etc. Agents wanted everywhere. Empire Wringer Co., Auburn, N. Y.



WELL BRED "SOON WED."

©COPYRIGHT

Girls who use SAPOLIO are QUICKLY MARRIED

SAPOLIO is one of the best known city luxuries and each time a cake is used an hour is saved. On floors, tables and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans and metals it has no equal. If your store-keeper does not keep it you should insist upon his doing so, as it always gives satisfaction and its immense sale all over the United States makes it an almost necessary article to any well supplied store. Everything shines after its use, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.

DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

IN THE HEALTHY HIGHLANDS.

No Malaria, no Mosquitoes, no Saloons. Best climate in the United States for all-the-year-round residence.

SPLENDID PROGRESS.

Started late in 1889 with no population or improvements, the development already made is surprising. Five factories are building, and several companies organized to build others. No booms, but steady, substantial progress. A knitting factory company is organized, the stock to be all owned, and entire business managed by women. It will pay large profits. Those who want homes in a "clean city," where the rumshop, brothel and gambling den are perpetually excluded, should buy soon, as prices are rapidly advancing.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Stock in the Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Company will pay large profits. There are also good opportunities to make paying investments in several manufacturing enterprises. For full information address

The Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Co., Demorest, Ga.

REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. CATARRH.
REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O.

DEAFNESS CURED by Peck's Pat. INVISIBLE TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS Whispers heard distinctly. Comfortable. Successful where all Remedies FAIL. Illustrated book & proofs FREE. Address or call on F. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, N. Y.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY,"
Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard,
Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

PILES Cured at home. New treatment never fails when instructions are correctly followed. Read article in THE UNION SIGNAL, March 13, p. 15. The GLOBE MEDICINE Co., Box 711, Cincinnati, O.

Dr. B. A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St., Chicago, Ill.

THE DEAF HEAR SOUND DISCS are guaranteed to help a larger per cent. of cases than all similar devices combined. The same to the Ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively invisible. Worn months without removal. H. A. WALES, Bridgeport, Conn.

A-CORN SALVE.

Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time.
NO PAIN! NO POISON!
"After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Temperance Tea Tonic.

Nature's Great Remedy, Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine, made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases, female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache. Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE LADY'S SYRINGE,

is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz. Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

Ladies' fine Black Jerseys, pure Wool, $1.00 postpaid; handsomely-braided fronts, $1.50; with elegant Surah Silk Smocked front, $2.00. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Give Bust Measure. Mrs. L. Shrier, Jr., 256 Main St., Norfolk, Va.

ORANGE VALE COLONY, CALIFORNIA

Send for a descriptive folder and map showing fruit area, etc., free. Orange and fruit lands in ten acre tracts with water under pressure on every tract. Investigation invited. A good investment. Correspondence solicited. Reliable information concerning any part of California. Address Orange Vale Colonization Company, 214 J St., Sacramento, California, Geo. B. Katzenstein, Manager.

CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL
FOR
KINDERGARTNERS.
Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,
Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to Miss Alice McRoy,
2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR MY STORY OF THE WAR
By Mary A. Livermore

Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure, and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos. it sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. ☞ No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in twenty colors. 61st thousand. ☞ 5,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to
A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages
Delivered Free of Charge
to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.
CHAS. RAISER, Mfr.
62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

STEEL EDGE DUST PANS
~LAST A LIFE TIME ~ EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT
STEEL EDGE
SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.
By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the
STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,
89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods, 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.

IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKIND!

Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.

The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Signal Notes.

LOYALTY to Christ means carrying forward in our century the work He began in His; not only worshiping Him on our knees, but working with Him on our feet. —Parkhurst.

LONDON police district, the suburbs not included, has 13,955 dram-shops, which, allowing thirty feet front from each, would make a line side by side of nearly eighty miles.

THE Boston Police Board has ordered that from May 1st the sale of intoxicating liquors over the bar must be stopped. This if strictly enforced, will prevent much drinking.

THREE Austrian women, sisters, have received the degree of M. D. at Berne, Switzerland. Two of them are now practicing their profession in New York.

IN 1830 there were but thirty thousand native Christians in all India, Ceylon and Burmah; in 1871 this number had increased to 318,363; at the present time over two millions of the natives of India have accepted Christ.

ACCEDING to a petition signed by five thousand persons in different parts of the colony, the minister of education, Queensland, is arranging for the introduction of Dr. Richardson's "Temperance Lesson Book" into the public schools.

THE Ohio Suffrage Convention will be held at Massillon, May 20-22. Eminent speakers will be present, Henrietta L. Monroe, Anna H. Shaw, Olympia Brown, Mary H. Haggart and others. Delegates and visitors who desire entertainment will address Miss Elizabeth L. Folger, 86 Prospect St., Massillon, Ohio.

AT Hoopeston, Ill., recently, thirty-five gamblers were arrested and fined $2,000. They in return prosecuted the mayor on a charge of selling liquor in his drug store, but he came off victorious.

THE Mercersburg Classis of the Reformed Church was recently in session at Chambersburg, Pa. According to custom the attending ministers were assigned to the various pulpits in the town. When it was announced that the Rev. Cyrus Cost, the anti-prohibition preacher, had been assigned to the First Lutheran Church, the majority of that congregation protested to the official board, and the latter requested the Classis to assign another minister. The result was that no one was appointed for the service in that church. The Classis regarded the action of the Lutherans as an insult to the Reformed Church. The Rev. Mr. Cost is the preacher who fought the Prohibition amendment so vigorously last June.

THE following is from Senator Blair's valuable book, "The Temperance Movement": "There is nothing of his own manufacture which has such power over the body and soul of man as that mysterious substance to which has been given the name—alcohol. Indeed, so subtile and canny are its methods of asserting its influence, so commanding is its control over the spiritual as well as the physical structure, and so direct do its relations appear to be with the eternal essence as well as with the material parts of human nature, that from time immemorial this strange drug has maintained a personified existence in the imaginations of men."

THE tenth anniversary of the establishment of the Salvation Army in America was celebrated at the Barracks, 636 W. Lake St., Chicago, May 8, with great enthusiasm and earnestness. A meeting was held in the afternoon, in which rousing exhortations and testimonies were given, and gospel songs were sung with all the fervor of hearts on fire with love for God and humanity. On the walls hung mottoes that were eloquent sermons in themselves: "Wine is a Mocker"; "The Wages of Sin is Death"; "The Gift of God is Eternal Life." Practical screeds on the line of that "cleanliness" which is "next to godliness," were displayed here and there: "No spitting on the floor allowed;" "Gentlemen will not, and others SHALL not spit on the floor." All the services were characterized by ardent zeal and devotion. An earnest young cadet exhorted to absolute consecration and love to God as necessary for the soldier of Christ, exclaiming: "This is not a mock fight! As we go up and down these streets all hell seems let loose against us." Turning to THE UNION SIGNAL representative, who had spoken of the work and purpose of the W. C. T. U., he said, with deep intensity, "We'll fight with you against all sin, until the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and then we'll shout over the drunkards and the fallen in glory, saved by our Lord."

A Wealthy Manufacturing Co.

Gives Gratis Six Solid Silver Spoons.

Our object in making the following liberal proposal is that you may become one of our permanent patrons and always use our Family Soap, "Sweet Home," and fine Toilet Articles, and also by speaking to your friends in praise of the fine quality and high character of our Soaps, secure them also as regular patrons for our goods.

Our Soaps are the purest, best, and most satisfactory, whether made in this country or Europe; everyone who uses them once becomes a permanent customer. We propose a new departure in the soap trade and will sell direct from our factory to the consumer, spending the money usually allowed for expenses of traveling men, wholesale and retail dealers' profits, in handsome and valuable presents to those who order at once. Our goods are made for the select family trade and will not be sold to dealers, and to induce people to give them a trial we accompany each case with many useful and valuable presents.

ONLY ONE BOX SOLD TO A FAMILY.

Send us your name on a postal card and we will ship you on terms given below, a Box containing all of the following articles:

ONE HUNDRED CAKES "Sweet Home" Family Soap, enough to last a family one full year. This Soap is made for all household purposes and has no superior.

SIX BOXES BORAXINE.

One-Fourth Dozen Modjeska Complexion Soap.
One Bottle Modjeska Perfume.
One-Fourth Dozen Ocean Bath Toilet Soap.
One-Fourth Dozen Artistic Toilet Soap.
One-Fourth Dozen Creme Toilet Soap.
One-Fourth Dozen Elite Toilet Soap.
One English Jar Modjeska Cold Cream. Soothing, Healing, Beautifies the Skin, Improves the Complexion, Cures Chapped Hands and Lips.

The above are articles of our own manufacture which we take great pride in presenting to the readers of this paper.

One fine Silver-plated Button Hook.
One Lady's Celluloid Pen Holder (very best).
One Arabesque Mat.
One Glove Buttoner.
One Package "Steadfast" Pins.
One Spool Black Silk Thread.
One Gentleman's Handkerchief, Large.
Fourteen Patent Transfer Patterns for stamping and embroidering table linen toilet mats, towels, tidies, etc.,
One Lady's Handkerchief.
One Child's Lettered Handkerchief.
One Wall Match Safe. (can be seen at night.)
One Package Assorted Scrap Pictures.
Two Celluloid Collar Buttons, (Patented).
Twenty-three Pictures of the Presidents of the U. S.

☞ In addition to all of the above articles we place in each box ONE ALBUM containing pictures of the following celebrities:

Wm. E. Gladstone,	General Scott,
Bismarck,	Thomas Edison,
Daniel Webster,	Benj. F. Morse,
J. G. Whittier,	Jos. Jefferson,
Geo. Bancroft,	Benj. Franklin,
Abraham Lincoln,	H. M. Stanley,
Ulysses S. Grant,	Oliver Perry,
Robert E. Lee,	Goethe,
Gen. Sheridan,	Schiller,
Thos. Carlyle,	Alex. Hamilton,
Commodore Farragut,	John H. Payne,
"Stonewall" Jackson,	Etc, Etc, Etc.

A SPECIAL OFFER TO THE READERS OF THE UNION SIGNAL, CHICAGO, ILL.

We hereby promise that in addition to all the articles named above, to include in every box purchased by subscribers, who will agree to recommend "Sweet Home" Soap to two or more friends, ONE SET (SIX) SOLID SILVER TEASPOONS, PLAIN PATTERN—such as your grandmother used, very rich and elegant, (will Last a Life Time).

We know the great value of our articles, as we make them ourselves, and are willing to put them to the severest kind of a test, hence will ship the box on thirty days' trial, and if you are not fully satisfied with it send us word and we will remove it at our own expense.

Our Price for the Great "Sweet Home" Box is Only Six Dollars.

Write your name and address plainly on a postal card, mail same to us, and a case of these goods will be shipped to you on thirty days' trial.

J. D. LARKIN & CO. Factories:—Seneca, Heacock and Carroll Streets, BUFFALO, N.Y.

☞ Some people prefer to send cash with order; we do not ask it, but in such cases we place one Solid Silver Sugar Spoon in the box (in addition to all the other extras) and ship the same day the order is received; all other orders being shipped in their regular turn.

"SUPERIOR NUTRITION THE LIFE"

IMPERIAL GRANUM

REG'ST'D JUNE 5 '77

THE GREAT MEDICINAL FOOD

THIS ORIGINAL AND WORLD-RENOWNED DIETETIC PREPARATION IS A SUBSTANCE OF UNRIVALLED purity and medicinal worth—potent for good and powerless to harm. A solid extract, derived by a new process from very superior growths of wheat—nothing more, and as a FOOD, it would be difficult to conceive of anything more wholesome and delicious. It has justly acquired the reputation of being the salvator FOR INVALIDS AND THE AGED; an incomparable aliment for the growth and protection of INFANTS AND CHILDREN; a superior nutritive in continued fevers, the most nourishing and strengthening food for NURSING MOTHERS & CONVALESCENTS; and a reliable remedial agent in all diseases of the stomach and intestines.

John Carle & Sons, New York.

LADY AGENTS WANTED for the VAN ORDEN CORSETS. Every lady wishing good health and a beautiful figure buys them. Quick sales. Good pay. Send for terms and circular. VAN ORDEN CORSET CO., 22 Clinton Place, N.Y.

LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y.

Send 6c. for sample Silk Dress Goods Chicago Silk Dress Goods Co., 154 La Salle St., Chicago.

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP! Beautiful song and chorus. 30c. Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

THE PATHFINDER PHYSIOLOGY. ENDORSED BY W. C. T. U. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

Silk Satin & Plush Remnants for Crazy Patch a large pkg. pretty pieces, assorted col. & our ill. story paper 3 mos 10c. The Little Giant, St. Louis

MAN WANTED SALARY $75 to $100, to locally represent a N. Y. Company incorporated to supply Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Jewelry, etc., to consumers at cost. Also a Lady of tact, Salary $40, to enroll members ($0,000 now enrolled, $100,000 paid in). References. Empire Co-operative Ass'n (well rated) Lock Box 1610, N. Y.

TAKE AN AGENCY for the Best Utensil in the universe. DAGGETT'S SELF-BASTING ROASTING PAN Needed in every family. SAVES 20 Per Cent. in Roasting, and Bakes the Best Bread in the world. Address for terms W. A. DAGGETT & CO., Vineland, N. J. or Western Office, 184 E. Indiana St., Chicago.

25c PRINTING OUTFIT.

A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL. Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Sets up any name, prints cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersol & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

LADIES' BICYCLES All makes, new or 2d hand at lowest prices; easy payments, no extra charge. Cata. Free. Rouse, Hazard & Co., 77 G St. Peoria, Ill.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE how you do it for the money.

$12.50 Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine, a perfect working, reliable, finely finished Sewing Machine, adapted for light or heavy work, with all the latest improvements and complete set of attachments. A written guarantee for 5 years with each machine. Buy direct from manufacturers and save Dealers and Agents profits. Catalogue free. OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

MERIT WILL WIN

SALES of the Canfield Seamless Dress Shields for the first four months of 1890, in U. S., Europe, and Colonies, have been larger than ever before during the same period in any year, since we commenced business. It is the only Perfect and Guaranteed Shield made. Have been worn by more than Ten Million Ladies. To be found at all leading Dry Goods Stores in U. S. and Europe.

CANFIELD RUBBER CO.
86 Leonard Street, N. Y.

P. S.—All genuine goods are stamped "Canfield" on each Shield. Sent by mail on receipt of 25 cents.

This is the Picture of

Baby Barendse,

Three months old when cured by the use of Steketee's Worm Destroyer.

Read what its mother says:

"The undersigned has a child only three months old. It became sick with pains in its bowels and stomach when scarcely two months old. It cried and whined nearly all the time, and was completely run down in flesh. We gave it everything that we thought would relieve the child, but it grew worse all the time. We made twenty powders from a teaspoonful of Steketee's Worm Destroyer, gave it one powder three times daily. To our astonishment it was relieved of thousands of worms. We have given the child but twenty powders. It is entirely cured. I shall always recommend Steketee's Worm Destroyer. MRS. B. BARENDSE, Oakdale Park, Kent Co., Mich.

For Sale by all Druggists, and by mail, 25 Cents. Send U. S. Stamp. Address:

GEO. G. STEKETEE,
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The proprietor of this paper knows that this medicine is no humbug, and perfectly safe to send money to Mr. Steketee. Mention Union Signal.

RIDGE'S FOOD The MOST RELIABLE FOOD For Infants & Invalids. Not a medicine, but a specially prepared Food, adapted to the weakest stomach. 4 sizes cans. Pamphlet free. Woolrich & Co. (on every label). Palmer, Mass.

MILLER'S HOTEL New York City, 39 West 26th St. A Prohibition Home. Patronised by W. C. T. U workers visiting New York. Turkish, Electric, Roman Baths. Address, DR. E. P. MILLER, Proprietor.

$75 to $250 A MONTH can be made working for us. Persons preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1009 Main St. Richmond, Va.

GREAT SELLERS Four household necessities. Practical, meritorious. Used by every family. A complete line. Retail prices 10 cts. to $1.25. Agents report enormous sales. Two samples mailed for 25 cts. Splendid terms. Illustrated Circular free. GEO. M. REWELL, Cleveland, Ohio.

AGENTS. Something new in Family Bibles, which makes our Bibles sell where Bibles never sold before. Where other Bibles have been sold, there ours will sell the more. For particulars, address the Historical Pub. Co., Dayton, O.

WE buy second-hand books of any kind and of any language, and at fair prices. There is now a brisk demand for back numbers of magazines, of any language, published during the last 5 to 25 years. Send us promptly, and from any distance, a list of the books and periodicals you have. We may buy them. A list without a two-cent postage stamp for a reply will not be considered. Murray, Templeton & Co., 835 Broadway, New York. Established 1840.

Lady Agents wanted, also men in every state to sell our Rug Machine, Patterns, Yarn, etc. Write for catalogue and particulars at once. Gibbs Mfg. Co., 88 State St., Chicago.

Why This Supplement?

Because we want our readers to know what a Monthly Responsive Reading is like.

Will you not carefully read this?

And take it to your next meeting?

And get others interested in it?

The cost is trifling, the information and the "elbow touch" given is invaluable. Back numbers can always be supplied

MONTHLY READING.

JUNE, 1890. No. 6. Vol. 5.

OPENING HYMN. Tune—Webb.

In heavenly love abiding,
No change my heart shall fear;
And safe is such confiding,
For nothing changes here:
The storm may roar without me,
My heart may low be laid,
But God is round about me,
And can I be dismayed?

Wherever He may guide me,
No want shall turn me back;
My Shepherd is beside me,
And nothing can I lack;
His wisdom ever waketh,
His sight is never dim;
He knows the way He taketh
And I will walk with Him.

SCRIPTURE READING.

PRESIDENT.—If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not.

SOCIETY.—For the Lord giveth wisdom; out of His mouth cometh knowledge and understanding.

P.—And Moses said: See, the Lord hath called Bezaleel, and He hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding and in knowleage; and He hath put in his heart that he may teach.

S.—Show thyself unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. And be not weary in well-doing, for in due time ye shall reap, if ye faint not.

P.—The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the Holy is understanding.

S.—Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

P.—Therefore shall ye lay up my words in your hearts and bind them for a sign upon your hands, and ye shall teach them to your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down and when thou risest up.

S.—My mouth shall speak of wisdom, and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.

P.—Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day; for it is not a vain thing unto you, it is your life.

S.—Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage forever.

PRAYER.

W. C. T. U. SCHOOL OF METHODS.

MARY ALLEN WEST.

PRESIDENT.—The department we are to consider to-day is comparatively a new one. Will our Corresponding Secretary tell us something of its origin?

COR. SEC.—So far as I can learn, it resembles Topsy in this—it was not made, it just "grew"—grew naturally out of the needs of the work. As this broadened into many departments, special training to carry on each became a necessity in order to secure the best results. A favorite saying of the National Superintendent, "Skilled labor pays as well in philanthropy as in mechanics," seems to have been the seed-thought of the department.

MOTHER A.—I can remember when philanthropies were carried on much as cloth was made on my father's farm. There the wool sheared from the sheep raised on the farm was carded, spun and woven in the home, and the garments cut from the cloth were made there: in much the same way we carried on our philanthropic work; there was a generally diffused goodness among the women of the church, that, without much fuss or system, cared for the poor, taught Sunday-school, watched with the sick and did what it could to save the fallen.

VICE-PRES. CONG. CHURCH.—Those methods were lovely because of the spirit pervading them, and most effective because of their individuality, heart coming nearer to heart than is possible in great organized charities. Happy is that people who never outgrow our grandmother's plan of philanthropy. But the trouble is that most of us have outgrown it, or, rather, the need and the work to relieve it, have grown beyond the power of any one heart and hand to grasp; we are thus forced to develop departments.

SUPT. PRISON WORK.—Yes, indeed; my one department fills my hands and heart so full that it is almost more than I can bear, and it is the same with others.

SUPT. JUVENILE WORK.—It certainly is, and I very much feel the need of help in learning how to do the work; if the School of Methods can teach us "a more excellent way," that is exactly what we need.

PRES.—This is its purpose; "*Every*body knows more than *any*body." This department seeks to collect the wisdom of everybody who has worked successfully, and set it in order, so that each may benefit from the experience of all. Mrs. H., as you always attend the Lake Bluff Training School, please tell us something of its origin and growth.

MRS. H., (COR. SEC.)—This school has been in operation about eight years; at first it was called a W. C. T. U. Training School, but on suggestion of Mrs. Buell, the name was changed to School of Methods. The National Superintendent of this department has general supervision, while the National general officers and superintendents of the departments taught do most of the teaching. The school usually occupies the forenoons of eight or ten days, forming a part of the Lake Bluff Convocation. The Superintendent selects the departments to be taught, one for each day, and, early in the year assigns each to a specialist therein, who is requested to prepare herself thoroughly to teach the class the best methods of doing work in that department.

A. Y.—Is instruction given through lectures or papers telling the best plans for working?

COR. SEC.—To some extent, though the Superintendent does not encourage this method; she believes in making it as thoroughly a class exercise as possible, drawing out the experience of successful workers and the difficulties of those who have failed, questioning the classes and being questioned by them. The leader then sums up the whole in clear-cut directions, so arranged as to be transferable to the pupils' note-books.

REC. SEC.—Note-books seem the most important part of the outfit for pupils in Schools of Methods; and with good reason, for hearing so many things, we are in danger of forgetting all, unless we note down the points which promise to be most helpful to us.

SUPT. EVANG. WORK.—Note-books are important, yet in every school I have attended the Bible held the first place, the object of each teacher seeming to be to found her work upon "Thus saith the Lord."

VICE-PRES. EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—A very successful school is conducted every summer by Mrs. Buell, at Mountain Lake Park, the home of Jennie Smith. I was there last summer and found some of the leading workers of the country assisting in the teaching.

VICE-PRES. PRESB. CHURCH.—I was fortunate enough to attend the school at Pacific Grove, Cal., and I assure you it was a treat; the papers read there were the finest I ever heard anywhere. The surroundings of the school are almost ideally perfect.

SUPT. HEALTH.—I attended one on the Atlantic seaboard, at Ocean Grove, in charge of Mrs. S. J. C. Downs, and was greatly delighted with the exercises. The general plan was the same as described for Lake Bluff, and no one could help being benefited.

TREAS.—The National executive did a wise thing in making Mrs. Anna B. Curry, of the Boston School of Expression, Associate Superintendent in this department, that she might teach us how to use our voices, how to carry our bodies and how to care for them; so many who have not had any preliminary training are being called to the platform now-a-days, that our School of Methods ought to make provision for supplying their lack in preparation.

SUPT. PARLIAMENTARY USAGE.—I am glad that Mrs. Benjamin has brought her Parliamentary Practice into this department; it is just where it belongs, as parliamentary drills have always formed an important feature in the schools. Now that Mrs. Benjamin is Associate Superintendent, the work will be unified, and thus made more effective. By the way, Mrs. Benjamin has a new method of instruction in her favorite topic; a parliamentary institute, including four evenings of drill work and closing with a mass-meeting on the fifth evening.

MRS. N.—I attended one of them at Grand Rapids, and it was great fun as well as very instructive; tickets for the course were sold for seventy-five cents and eagerly bought, not only by the W. C. T. U., but by pupils in the High School, members of the C. L. S. C., missionary societies, the Y. M. C. A. and all the other "alphabetical" societies in town. The drills brought out the main points in parliamentary law, and fixed them in our minds. The last evening everybody was invited and nearly everybody came; there was a debate in which the class found or made opportunity to air their newly-acquired knowledge, good music and two fine recitations; at the close, a collection was taken and the audience were so well pleased, that it was a large one.

VICE-PRES. M. E. CHURCH.—Our School of Methods has been introduced into Chautauqua Assemblies with the happiest results; last summer I attended one at Puget Sound, Washington, and judging by attendance and interest manifested, it was the most attractive thing of the Assembly.

PRES.—I have heard the same report from Mahtomedi, Bay View, Long Pine, and other Chautauquas. The systematic arrangements of Chautauqua Assemblies and the large number of earnest men and women gathered there, afford excellent opportunities for our work. Usually only one hour a day can there be devoted to the school, but this hour, well improved, brings large returns.

VICE-PRES. BAPTIST CHURCH.—For three years the National Superintendent made a special point of gaining entrance to these Assemblies; now that this is accomplished, I wonder what her hobby is!

SUPT. S. S.—I can tell you; it is bringing the work into County Conventions and having county Schools of Methods, to help local workers who cannot attend the great gatherings. She is equally anxious to help prepare workers for great cities, but has not yet fully succeeded in her plans in this direction.

VICE-PRES. LUTHERAN CHURCH.—North Carolina took the lead in county work. In the summer of 1889, her President, Mrs. Woody, planned a ten weeks' campaign which was successfully carried on under the generalship of Mrs. M. L. Wells. Schools of Methods were held in the leading towns of the state, each one lasting a week; deep religious interest was developed, as well as a wonderful growth in knowledge of W. C. T. U. work. The movement crystallized into a permanent organization, the Asheville W. C. T. U. Assembly, which proposes a month's session next summer.

MRS. GRUMBLE.—I am somewhat skeptical about these so-called "schools," and don't believe they teach much; I attended one once, and there was no more teaching than in any convention; the leaders read fine, theoretical papers on the various lines of work, showing their importance and how much there was to be done in each, but though I sat with pencil in hand to note down any practical suggestion, not one thing was said that I cared to put in my note-book.

VICE-PRES. BAPTIST CHURCH.—Oh, that must have been years ago, before we learned to conduct these schools. At first there were a great many theoretical papers, but now conductors are growing to apprehend the significance of the department motto, "The servant of the Lord must be apt to teach, patient" and are exemplifying it in the schools.

CO. PRES.—I am very anxious to learn how to bring this work into our County Conventions; our women certainly need it, and time would be more profitably spent in drills upon methods of work, than in listening to even the finest papers upon the same old themes; as we have had two conventions a year for the last ten years, we have gone over the whole ground time and time again.

SUPT. LIT.—I have just received from the W. T. P. A. a Manual of W. C. T. U. School of Methods, which exactly answers your question. (reads.) "County Conventions usually occupy two days; give one-half the time to necessary business—reports, election of officers and the like, and devote the remainder to drills in methods of work. If an outside specialist conducts the school it is better to give her a day to herself; if local workers do the work, it is better to have it interspersed with reports; for example; the superintendent of S. S. work gives her report; immediately she, or some one else, conducts the drill in this department. Thought is thus concentrated upon one department; the ladies, warmed up by the report, are ready to give their experience in this line.

CO. PRES.—That is a good suggestion. I shall work it into our next convention. Here in the Manual is something more I need, directions for a four days' County School—program and all. The directions are so plain and full I am sure we could conduct one ourselves.

TREAS.—That is exactly what our county needs, for we never have money enough to hire outsiders to conduct the school.

SUPT. EVANG. WORK.—I wonder if the Manual would help me any in my department? I am discouraged about our Gospel meetings; they don't seem to be doing the work they ought.

PRES.—Your department receives more attention than any other, probably because other unions find the same trouble we do in carrying it on. I think it shows the reason of our failure—we have tried to make these entertaining, rather than soul-saving meetings.

SUPT. LIT.—I find in it capital suggestions for my work, and, besides that, an entire chapter devoted to literature helps in the various departments. This will save me no end of work.

TREAS.—What I wish to learn is, how to raise money; we need it to carry on the work of every one of you superintendents, and I have exhausted my ingenuity in devising "ways and means."

PRES.—Miss Pugh, who understands money matters better than any of us, suggests in the Manual, fifteen ways of raising money, and others add to the list.

VICE-PRES. LUTH. CHURCH.—And there is a Bible reading giving God's plan of finance, which is best of all.

PRES.—You are finding so many good things in this little book that we are running away from the subject of our meeting.

COR. SEC.—Excuse me, Madam President, but before we leave the Manual, may we not hear where we can obtain it and how much it costs?

PRES.—Will the Superintendent of Literature please answer?

SUPT. LIT.—It comes from our own publishing house, the W. T. P. A., and costs twenty-five cents.

SUPT. S. T. I.—Do these Schools of Methods have text-books? In my department we have found that it will not do to trust too much to oral instruction.

SUPT. LIT.—Indeed, they do. Besides the Manual, prepared expressly for them, there is the Helping Hand, by Mrs. Buell, teaching how to organize, how to prepare for and to conduct public meetings, and entertain the speakers; the text-book in the juvenile department is Miss Gordon's Questions Answered. In the Health department, Mrs. Barnes' Hygiene of the Home, and Miss Mather's Hints for Health Meetings; for work among foreigners, Mrs. Grubb's Handbook; in parliamentary usage, Neely's Parliamentary Practice and Mrs. Benjamin's Cards; in legislative work, Mrs. Bittenbender's Amendment Guide; in social purity, Miss Willard's Department Manual; then there are Monthly Readings and National Leaflets on most of the departments.

MRS. G.—I must confess it does look as if the Schools of Methods had improved since the one I attended; I think I must attend one next summer to see if they have done so.

VICE-PRES. CONG. CHURCH.—I wish I could attend, but my babies keep me at home. Can not schools devise something for the stay-at-homes?

VICE-PRES. BAPTIST CHURCH.—Oh, but they have the very thing—a course of reading, somewhat on the Chautauqua plan. Indeed there are two courses—one on scientific and the other on economic temperance, and in each two lists of books are given; one of Required Reading, which must be read in order to secure the diploma, and one of Recommended Readings, excellent to throw additional light on the topics studied in the Required list.

VICE-PRES. CONG. CHURCH.—That is just what I have been wishing for. I can not often attend our own meetings, and can never go to those away from home, but I do wish to be intelligent concerning the Great Reform, not only for my own sake, but for that of my children.

TREAS.—I like the plan, because it will bring our husbands and brothers into the work; we can form reading circles with which they may unite, and these can meet around at the houses so that the shut-in ones can participate. I hope the books are not expensive.

SUPT. LIT.—The cost of the entire set for Required Readings is: Scientific Series, $2.85; for Economic series, $1.60.

PRES.—The list for Recommended Readings is longer and more expensive, but the books would prove a welcome and valuable addition to our Union library, and if placed there could be consulted by all the class.

MOTHER A.—Madam President; I move that we form a Reading circle as proposed by the School of Methods, each member of the circle to provide herself with the books in the required course and the Union to buy those in the recommended course for its library.

(Let this motion be seconded, discussed and carried.)

MRS. B.—Where can the books be obtained?

SEC.—They are published by different houses, but can all be ordered through the W. T. P. A.

CO. PRES.—Madam President; if motions are in order, which I did not suppose was the case, may I make one?

PRES.—If the ladies consent. (Consent is given.)

CO. PRES.—I move that we, as a Local Union, invite the other Unions of this county to unite with us in a four days' School of Methods.

(Motion seconded, discussed and carried.)

PRES.—Ladies, this bringing business into the opening exercises is something unusual, but the motions grew so naturally out of the conference that this seemed the right time to put them. I welcome them as showing your interest in this department, which is indeed fundamental, as its aim is to secure better work in all departments.

Miss Willard has said, "White light includes all the prismatic colors; so the white ribbon stands for all phases of reform." It is equally true that the School of Methods embraces all the white ribbon departments and places each beneath a shower of sunbeams.

Let us close by singing the last verse of our opening hymn, and may it be an inspiration to us to press on in the "more excellent way."

Green pastures are before me
Which yet I have not seen;
Bright skies will soon be o'er me,
Where darkest clouds have been;
My hope I cannot measure;
My path to life is free;
My Savior has my treasure,
And he will walk with me.

Thirteen copies per year, to one address, $1.00. Address

Woman's Temperance Publishing Association, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.

A WONDERFUL OFFER.

No American woman is better known than Miss Frances E. Willard. No one in public life is more universally loved and respected. Believing that a large picture of her in oil colors and in the very highest style of modern art, would be an object lesson valued in thousands of American homes, we have decided to get out

Just Such a Picture,

Providing, only that we have the names of 15,000 new subscribers

By July 4th, 1890.

In other words, we want you to send us one or more new names with one dollar for each name, before the time specified (July 4th, 1890). The picture will be ready as soon after the date named as good work will warrant. It will be intrusted to the best artists in our country and no money or pains will be spared to have it made worthy the walls of any home in our land. The picture is not planned with a view to selling it. We prefer to use it only as a reward for getting us new subscribers. If any one, however, insists on buying the picture it will be sent for $1.00, no less. In other words, the one who wants it had much better look around and find some one to subscribe for THE UNION SIGNAL and so get the picture free. We originally named July 1st as the date for the expiration of the offer, but have changed it to July 4th. When amid the Boom, Boom, Boom,

of our National birthday we can have our own boom—one that means THE UNION SIGNAL has stepped up to the proud 100,000 rank! Read what Miss Willard says about THE UNION SIGNAL and remember —The Day IS Fixed—

July 4th, 1890. Remember the offer is made so that old subscribers will have this splendid reward for getting us new subscribers. Then each subscriber so gained will want the picture and will get another new name, and thus by compound interest our victory will be gained.

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

En Route in Iowa.

May 5, 1890.

DEAR PUBLISHER:

"As a man readeth in his newspaper so is he."

I find that true with emphasis in the Hawkeye State.

THE UNION SIGNAL is the best friend at Public Opinion's Court that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has on this planet. Courteous, kind, tolerant, but keen and wise, it builds up our blessed cause in one week with its eighty-five thousand copies, as not all our speakers can build in a whole year. Wherever it goes a trail of light follows to dissipate the clouds of prejudice and of misunderstanding. If our women would put in their time so as to secure the largest results, they would install THE UNION SIGNAL as our vigilant ally in every pastor's study, every editor's sanctum, every business man's office, and most of all on every sitting room center-table in America. Why not appoint a fixed time for a center-table crusade, to get that bright and blessed white ribbon Champion under the eyes of our folks who don't know about us, except as unfriendly newspapers tell them? Do set the day and let's begin. Yours for 100,000 copies!

Frances E. Willard.

PRESS NOTICES
Glimpses of Fifty Years.

The book promises to be one of the most popular publications of our times.—Religious Telescope, Dayton, Ohio.

The style is racy and engaging, and, as the world is well aware, material is not wanting to constitute a narrative of almost dramatic interest. The earnest purpose with which this eventful life has been informed is apparent throughout the book.—Commonwealth, Boston.

To us this is the most interesting book of the kind which has recently come under our eye. It is more than a life story; it is philosophy, religion, morals, poetry, reform, and almost every good thing, combined with consummate grace and skill, in a modest tracery of a half-century of eventful, personal life. The gifted author is here seen at her best. She is a wonderfully fluent and buoyant writer, and her plan of weaving into the thread of her life-story many of the best addresses she has delivered adds variety and richness to the work. The references to persons of note are so numerous and beautiful that at times the reader almost forgets he is reading autobiography, and wonders whether he is not roaming in some famous picture gallery, studying the faces and forms of persons of whom the world is scarcely worthy. The variety of matter in almost every chapter amazes the reader, but the masterly manner in which every subject is treated, gives rest and satisfaction. . . . . There are so many pleasant and readable paragraphs in this rich volume that to name them would be to refer to almost every page.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

A most notable book...The reader must not expect to find a monotonous, joyless, one idea tried; just enough narrative to sugar-coat a huge bolus of temperance ethics. On the contrary, the book abounds in fun, incident, personality, sentiment, history, travel—everything spontaneous and hearty; unselfish, unegotistic, innocent gayety, with piety and philanthropy as unobtrusive as the air they breathe.. We self-seekers feel half disposed to envy the self-devoted enthusiasts the good time they have and deserve....Think of it; about us to-day there are thousands upon thousands of beloved, innocent, eager, hopeful, trustful, prattling babies who in twenty years will be drunkards! And what are we doing about it? Some consciences are clear—a few—and this book is their voice...Well, thank Heaven, there are such people. Their blessed work may partly atone for our blind heedlessness.—The Chicago Tribune.

Miss Willard's career has been well called an object lesson in American living and development. It cannot fail to interest sympathizers with human nature equally with those who seek in these pages for a history of the social movements that are daily waxing in health and strength. For the "Glimpses" at once dispel any illusion that their writer is a rider of hobby horses. The only bees that can be said to hover near the modest little bonnet are the classic swarm that seem to settle on Plato's baby lips, bringing their fairy gifts of honeyed eloquence. The keynote of the memoir is its delightful human quality. There is no posing for effect as a reformer, or for that distasteful being, the individual with a mission. Every page is marked by good humor and sound, good sense. . . There is much to be learned from this study of an intensely womanly nature, which constantly upheld an ideal of personal liberty such as few conceive of or carry out. —Philadelphia Public Ledger and Daily Transcript.

Fortunate, indeed, have been the fifty years that have rounded out this noble life; fortunate for womankind since they span the life of one who has been raised up to fight woman's battles as no one else has fought them; fortunate for the temperance cause that has found an advocate with a voice so sweet, a presence so attractive, a tongue so persuasive; fortunate for the country whose daughter she is, and for which she has inspired a love in the hearts of so many other daughters. Miss Willard, too, is fortunate in living in an age that will listen to her voice. Hers are no Cassandra-like prophecies uttered only to be disbelieved, but all Christian people, however some may differ in minor particulars, recognize her as the prophetess of "the good time coming" for womankind and hence for all the world.—The Golden Rule, Boston.

I would advise every mother of daughters to put into their hands that eloquent story of her years from childhood until the rounding of the half century, given by Miss Willard herself in her own eloquent way, and named "Glimpses of Fifty Years." . . . Ah, it is these people that early come to feel the "victory that is in them," who accomplish so much. . . . What she has done, the nation, yes, and the world has need to be grateful for, to hold her in loving regard, and to trust and honor her always. It is because she is thus worthy that I would have this record of her life placed in the hands of the young in our homes everywhere. Given to our girls of lofty ideal—let them see what truth and honor and purity, in high realization, mean in a woman, and they will, they must be inspired—if inspiration can enter into their natures—to go and strive to do likewise.—Sarah K. Bolton in a letter to the Toledo Daily Blade.

This volume tells the stories of her eventful life and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in a most charming way. The task was a difficult one, but it has been done in such a way as leaves no regrets as to the completeness, accuracy and delicacy of its accomplishment. The book is full of thrilling incident and achievement from opening to close. How could it be otherwise? It is the story of a life of noble purpose, inspired by the simplest but purest motive, combined with a breadth of ability and fervor of consecration rarely seen. . . . This book should be in the hands of all the women of this and every other country. It is an inspiration of the highest kind, and it will nerve many a life for noble service, while some who may be despondent or faint will be filled with hope and stirred with endeavor. The book is handsomely gotten up.—New York Observer.

We recall hearing Miss Willard introduced to a Boston audience as "the best loved woman in America." . . . Miss Willard writes as she talks; her style is free and unstudied; she can be witty but never uninteresting, and she always seems to have more to tell than space in which to tell it.—Journal of Education.

"Dying at The Top."

A leaflet appeared within a year or two entitled "Dying at the Top" or "The Moral and Spiritual Condition of the Young Men of America."

Its author is Rev. J. W. Clokey, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, New Albany, Indiana. No book of greater helpfulness could be put into the hands of the young men of to-day. Its disclosures, while painfully surprising, are red signals of danger along the paths where, without wrong intent, so many kindly natured youths are led astray. Every minister, teacher, parent, Young Men's Christian Association worker ought to read this book and serve it up in sermons, prayer meeting talks, paragraphs; pass it along in every form possible. I am personally acquainted with Dr. Clokey, have been a guest in his home, and know him to be one of the most brotherly spirits, one of the most earnest, practical pastors, one of the ministers deeply imbued with the spirit of the twentieth century.

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

We first published this book, but it is now brought out by the Y. M. C. A. It can be ordered of us. Price 25 cents, paper; 50 cents, cloth.

THE YEAR'S BRIGHT CHAIN.

Compiled by ALICE M. GUERNSEY

A beautiful gift book; has twelve large pictures—one for each month—and opposite each a page of wise and telling quotations from Miss Willard's writings. Compiled especially for the fiftieth year of Miss Willard's life. A very appropriate birthday gift. Price, $.50.

AGITATION LEAFLETS.

A series of seven leaflets with blank spaces for the name of the town in which you live. We will print in the number of saloons and the town's name, so that a local agitation can be aroused. Send three cents for a sample package. They have been tested and found good.

Price per 1.000, specially printed, $2.00

SONGS FOR Y. W. C. T. U.

by ANNA A. GORDON.

Sample pages mailed at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies. A new and delightful song book, just what is needed for King's Daughters' meetings, Y. P. S. C. E., Young Ladies' Missionary Societies, etc. Will undoubtedly be a success like Marching Songs, of which 130,000 copies have been sold. Lined Covers. Price $.25.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 21.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, May 22, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: Prayer as a Practical Force—Mother Wallace at Englewood—A New Phase of Temperance Work 8, 9
SPECIAL DIFFICULTIES: 9
WATCH-TOWER: 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, In May, by Ella Beecher Gittings—A Simple Story, by Mrs. Nora Marble—Women in the Ministry, by Rev C. C. Harrah—Reforms that do Reform, or, Ten Good Men, by Rev. H. Calhoun—Parable of the Friend at Midnight, or, Out of Communion, by Elizabeth W. Greenwood 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: From the South—The Fruit Juice Industry—A Pioneer Woman Lawyer—Quarterly Temperance Sunday-School Lessons—Alcoholic Slaves vs. Russian Exiles—"The Offense is Rank and Smells to Heaven"—Temperance Temple Items 4, 5
OUR BOOK TABLE: 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, Something to Try—Patches—Candy Coaxers—Why Dolly Didn't Go to the Picnic 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning June 1, 1890 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, Praise Meeting of the Flowers—A True Experience—A Good Suggestion—Kitchen Temperance, or, a Moderate Use of the Broom 7
QUEEN'S GARDENS: "Talitha Cumi". 10
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: Colorado, South Dakota, Eastern Washington, New York, North Carolina, Missouri Kentucky, Massachusetts, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas—News in a Nutshell—Announcements 10, 11, 12
OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS: National Temperance Congress, Sunday-School Department 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT: 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has reported a bill to make it possible for states to regulate the liquor traffic.

The Louisiana Lottery Company have offered the State Legislature $1,000,000 a year for a twenty-five year charter.

Iowa had its first "original package" case at Des Moines, May 16. It was decided against the defendant, and appealed.

The Grand Duke Alexis proposes to take a select party of tourists through Siberia and show them the real conditions of the exiles.

A cablegram received Saturday announced the safe arrival of Mrs. Barnes and Miss Ames at Queenstown, after a ten days' passage.

Mrs. L. B. Tyng read a paper on temperance teaching in the Sunday-school before the Illinois Sunday-school Convention last week.

At the twenty-fifth anniversary of the National Temperance Society, Dr. Cuyler was elected president, Bishop E. G. Andrews, vice-president, and J. N. Stearns, secretary.

Chauncey Depew has accepted an invitation to address the Chicago Press Club June 5, responding to the toast, "The World's Fair." Thus New York and Chicago bury the hatchet.

The Prohibitionists of Kentucky in their state convention last week came out for woman's ballot, and nominated Mrs. Josephine K. Henry, of Versailles, for clerk of the Court of Appeals.

A gentleman who had been heard to express his intention of bequeathing $5,000 to the American Baptist Missionary Union, died without making his will. His relatives, however, sent the amount to the union.

Another victory scored by the W. C. T. U. Mrs. McClees' amendment to the Canteen Bill, prohibiting sale of wine and beer in the army canteens, after being debated an entire day, passed the Senate by a vote of 30 to 13.

The Ferd Heim Brewing Company, Kansas City, Mo., has opened a depot for the sale of their beer in original packages, on one of the principal streets of Kansas City, Kan. Similar depots are opened in Topeka and other Kansas towns.

The "irrepressible conflict" between state and national authority, precipitated by the "original package" decisions, has begun in earnest; a Maine judge fined a man $100 and costs for bringing liquor into that state in original packages, the judge holding that he was amenable to the state law. An appeal was taken.

The Secretary of War has amended paragraph 329 of army regulations so as to forbid the sale of ardent spirits or wines in canteens, but the commanding officer is authorized to allow the sale of light beer by the drink on week-days, outside the canteen, whenever he is satisfied that such sale shall keep the men from drinking stronger beverages.

Lackawanna county, Pennsylvania, has just issued its annual licenses. They count up 429 for saloons, bringing into the county treasury $139,023.75. Scranton took over two hundred licenses, whose blood-money cost was over forty thousand dollars, and as the Scranton Times gleefully remarks, "every borough and township will have a slice of the pie." And yet the Brooks law is restrictive.

The Association of Charities and Correction fixes the fourth Sunday in November as Prisoners' Sunday, and asks all churches to so observe it. This year this date is the centenary of the death of John Howard, the great apostle of prison reform. The Association put two ladies upon its committee of organization, Mrs. Goodlet, of Tennessee, and Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, of Maine.

"A bill to protect the states in the exercise of their police powers," was introduced into the Senate by James F. Wilson, and Mr. Boutelle, of Maine, proposes to the House this addition to the Interstate Commerce Law: "Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to authorize the sale or traffic in intoxicating liquors in any state contrary to the laws thereof."

LATER advices show an average daily sale of 5,000 copies of Mrs. Gougar's great speech, "Saloon vs. Republic: a Battle of Ballots." They can be obtained by addressing her at La Fayette, Ind., at eighty cents an hundred, or $4 per thousand. Mrs. Gougar spoke five times in Omaha, paying her respects to Rosewater, the champion of high license, then went to Minnesota and South Dakota.

THE First Congregational Church of this city was filled to overflowing Sabbath evening to hear Miss Willard on "Social Purity." She spoke with her accustomed sweetness and power, carrying her audience with her. Dr. Goodwin, the pastor, enforced her position with the strongest words of brotherly interest in the work. When he remarked, apropos to our city's misgovernment, "I should like to try the experiment of Miss Frances Willard as mayor of Chicago," spontaneous clapping of hands all through that conservative audience testified to general approval. A large collection was taken for the Anchorage Mission.

THE Mills-Griffin debate at Oak Park Saturday evening brought out a large audience and much enthusiasm. Of course our reporter was sure that the Little Giant demolished his opponent; doubtless Republicans feel equally sure that the opposite was the result. We are very glad that neither debater was demolished, for we wish to have the good work go on. This dispassionate setting forth of the difference between Temperance Republicans and Prohibitionists by well-posted leaders can not help doing great good. The debate in Chicago occurs May 31 in Farwell Hall. A large number of leading pastors and business men are on the list of vice-presidents. Tickets are for sale at this office.

A GOVERNMENT clerk thought he had discovered that General John C. Fremont was owing the Government $1,700, and this statement went the rounds of the press, much to the annoyance of the old hero and his friends. An investigation proves that instead of his owing the Government, the Government owes him $1,900, and has done so for forty years. Although there are idle millions in the treasury, this just debt can not be paid without special legislation. It is to be hoped, for the honor of the nation, that Congress will make haste to pass a bill repaying General Fremont this sum so long kept from him by a mistake of its own book-keeper, with the forty years' interest. And while they are settling up this old score, let them also pay her just dues to Anna Ella Carrol.

REV. W. D. P. BLISS, editor of The Dawn, Boston, has been in Chicago the past week, and has addressed several large audiences on "Christian Socialism," producing a profound impression. As a remedy of existing evils which all Christians acknowledge and deplore, he advises a return to the early teachings of Christianity, and to the methods practiced by the early disciples of Christ; as a step in this direction he advocates Christian socialism. "You cannot apply the golden rule in your business under the present system," he said. "The remedy for the evils of city life is a scientific municipal socialism, as the city of Glasgow has demonstrated. The remedy for railroad plutocracy is a democratic national socialism, where the people will govern for the good of the people and not for the few. We do not expect this to come in a day, nor in a year, but if you live the doctrines you profess, and vote as you think, the day is not far distant when the ballot will make this a nation of Christian socialists."

A FUNNY incident connected with the censorship of the press lately occurred at Constantinople. A Greek benevolent society in publishing its report, put on its title page a quotation from Paul's Epistle to the Galatians. Soon a police officer swooped down upon the office where it was printed, and demanded of the editor information of who this Paul was who was writing letters to Galata, a suburb of Constantinople, as he had orders to procure copies of these letters and bring Paul himself to headquarters. In vain the editor explained that Paul could not be brought to headquarters, for he was dead. The officer retorted that his orders were to bring Paul, and if he could not bring Paul to bring the editor. His protest that Paul had been in heaven eighteen hundred years was of no avail; the editor was taken to headquarters and thrown into prison. Finally the Greek Patriarch interfered, presented the bureau of censorship with a copy of Paul's letter, and at last succeeded in convincing the astute officials that the letter was not addressed to the people of Galata, but to a province of the ancient Roman Empire, whereupon the unfortunate editor was liberated from durance vile.

THE beauties of high license were strikingly illustrated in Dracut, Mass., lately. The selectmen decided to have one saloon, and to put the "privilege" up to the highest bidder. John Lennon was anxious enough to keep a saloon to pay $8,000 per annum, for this privilege; the license was granted him, and he opened up his business in fine style, the selectmen meanwhile congratulating themselves that they were not only securing a nice sum of money for the treasury, but were also insuring a model saloon, run by a respectable man, in orderly fashion, and being but one, they would have no trouble in controlling it. But the very first day and night resulted in such a pandemonium of drunken carousal and fights that the selectmen with their police force were utterly unable to "regulate" it, and telegraphed to Lowell and Lawrence for help. These towns sent down their policemen and patrol wagons, and carted off several loads of the worst "drunk and disorderlies," but without making much impression. The saloon keeper himself was scared half out of his wits, and, satisfied with this twenty-four hours' experience, offered to throw up his license and quit. The selectmen were more than satisfied, paid him back his $8,000 and are not such great admirers of high license as they were.

"ORIGINAL Package Politics" are surely coming to the front. Every paper is full of them, and it is great fun for us women "out of politics" to watch developments. The decision puts politicians into a bad box, and we are in no greater hurry to let them out of it than was St. Patrick to loose the snakes. But somebody must do something quickly. As the Inter Ocean says: "It would be mischievous to dilly-dally. The situation is peculiar. The Republican party is neither opposed to prohibition nor in favor of it. The attitude which it occupies is that each state should be allowed to regulate the liquor traffic within its own border to suit itself. If a majority want prohibition let them have it, and if they want high license let them have that. This is a free country, with each state at liberty to regulate such matters to suit itself." This sounds to us amazingly like Douglas' Squatter Sovereignty doctrine: "Let each state vote it up or vote it down." Indeed, this decision has wrought a wondrous change of base, making stanch States Rights-ers of Northern Republicans and old-time Federalists of Southern Democrats. But this turning and overturning is a grand thing for the cause; it presages a new crystallization of political elements, around a new center. The race question, the labor question, the tariff question and all other issues may well be held in abeyance till this question is settled, for settling it in large measure settles them. It seems a strange turn of the wheel which has brought temperance—which to us has always been the question of protecting the home against the encroachments of the saloon—to the front as a question involving the protection of the state against the encroachments of Federal power. Probably there was no other way of convincing politicians that temperance is a national issue of vital importance.

Contributed.

IN MAY.

BY ELLA BEECHER GITTINGS.

Busy bees, that murmur over
Meadows redolent of clover,
Hasten now.
While 'mid sweets you go a-maying
June advances, month of haying—
Grasses bow.

Grain, in tender green appearing
Boldly now your stalks uprearing
Lift them high,
Wine of sunshine, freely taking,
Ready for the harvest making
In July.

Thorn-set stems, with blossoms hoary,
Hiding yet the crimson glory
Of your fruit,
Quickly spread your leafy cover—
August's ripening beams soon over,
It shall shoot.

O it is the month of growing—
May, with lavish bloom, bestowing
Perfume rare.
O sweet May's the month prophetic,
Of the harvest—warm, magnetic
Is the air.

Colorado Springs, Colo.

A SIMPLE STORY.

BY MRS. NORA MARBLE.

"It weren't always so, ma'am, oh, no! The time was when no likelier place were to be seen fer miles 'round than this here very farm. Roses? Oh, yes'm, take as many as you want. I never look onto 'em a droppin' to pieces, the leaves ov 'em a-flutterin' down sad like—as if they knowed they was a-weavin' a white shroud fer the ground under 'em, but I ennymost feel as though I was again follerin' somethin' I love to the grave.

"I hope you won't think I'm a silly old woman fer cryin' so; but you see I never kin have them white roses on that bush brought up suddint like, but what I thinks of her as loved 'em and tended to 'em with ennymost as much care as if she hed giv 'em life herself.

"Yes'm! She's sleepin' in the churchyard over yonder now, and I fancy she knows that them white blossoms what blooms and falls in a shower onto her dear head, hes growed from a slip off'n this very bush what she loved so. It was all I could do fer her, ma'am, arter she was carried out there—bein' as I was too humble fer to buy wax crosses, and 'gates a-jars,' and sech.

"I see that tired look into your eyes, ma'am, as she used to hev sometimes, and maybe you'd like to rest awhile onto the porch where her own self has rested many a time. Take this cheer, ma'am, its comfortabler, fer I'd like to see your snowy head a restin' ag'in the spot where hers once rested.

"Make me unhappy to tell you about the place and how she died? Oh, no, ma'am, it'll do me good by easin' my heart like, fer it aches sometimes a-holdin' ov the memories ov them times past and gone. You see I was but a slip of a girl when I was bound out to Farmer Allen and his wife—her as lays over there in the churchyard—and a likelier couple, and a finer farm you couldn't find in a hull day's drive than them, and this here farm what is run down now and left to take care of itself—'ceptin' the little me and my good man John manages to do onto it.

"Mary Allen—her husband always called her Mary Ann, which name didn't fit her at all to my notion, seein' as how one spoiled the beauty ov the t'other, that is, if there kin be any beauty in Ann at all, ma'am—Miss Mary, as I called her, was a-settin' on this very cheer the day I comed up that walk a-carryin' my clothes in a bundle, a-settin' there rockin' and a-singin' low-like, to a little curly-headed boy the very livin' image ov herself. I worshiped her from the very first time I set my eyes onto her, she was that gentle and smilin' and considerate, as if I was somebody more'n a bound-out girl, you know, ma'am.

"'This is your little charge, Jane,' said she, 'my one little lamb, my darling. Be kind to him, and I shall love you well.'

"The idee ov axin' me to be kind to sech a cherub! Why no livin' soul could look into them blue eyes, and watch them dimples a-playin' hide and seek with his smiles, without jest a-worshipin' of him, ma'am, and that's what I done right off. Sech coaxin' ways no child never had afore. It was them very coaxin' ways when he growed older what—but I'll come to all that soon enough.

"Don't mind my stoppin' awhile, ma'am, here and there, fer thinkin' ov them happy days gives me a chokin' feelin' in my throat, ennymost as hard to bear as them what'll come when I gets to the parts of sorrer and trouble. There was nothin' his mother wouldn't giv into fer his coaxin', and many's the time I hev wished the Lord would send her another lamb to share her love, hopin' it would save our Charley from bein' so self-willed and spoiled.

"When the boy hed growed up to be quite a lad, and hed wrung his mother's heart many a time by doin' jest what he hed a mind to, why Farmer Allen thought it was about time to take the boy in hand hisself. He was a heap sterner than Miss Mary, and couldn't never be bought over by the lad's coaxin' ways as she was always doin'. Many and many's the time I hev seed him grow mad and leave the room a-callin' ov her a fool fer givin' in 'to somethin' what he hisself had forbid; but he dearly loved Miss Mary, and she was so delicate and that sweet, that he'd forgive her and ax her pardon to boot.

"'Miss Mary', said I one day—fer John and me was keepin' company, and I felt I hed a right, you know, ma'am, to speak to her like one woman to another, seein' as how I was near to bein' married myself, 'Miss Mary,' says I, 'it do appear to me that the boy's father hed ought to hev some say as to the bringin' up ov his own son. Charley won't love you the more fer your indulgin' ov him to his hurt, I'm thinkin', and who knows but some day he'll only despise you fer bein' so weak.'

"'What!' says she stern like, and turnin' very pale, 'Jane, you forgit yourself. My son despise—'' she broke off here, proud like, and went out the room without noticin' me at all.

"But I took notice the next time Master Charley wanted money and the horse and buggy to go to town, Miss Mary told him to ax his father fer 'em, and she held out, too, though the boy sulked and sulked, when his father said no, and then she went and shet herself in her room sayin' she hed a headache.

"But it didn't last, O bless you, no, it didn't last, fer she couldn't live without her boy's smiles, you see, ma'am, and she was that pale and miserable the next mornin' that Farmer Allen give in hisself jest to please her, and sent the boy to town with plenty of pocket money to spend with the 'city fellers,' as Charley called 'em.

"Well, that was the beginnin', ma'am, fer he didn't come home that night, and Miss Mary's head never pressed the piller the hull night through, and no more did mine.

"'He's dead,' said she when the mornin' broke, wan and pale; 'Jane, my boy is dead,' and then she got up, feebly moanin' the while like a hurt animal, and went slowly up stairs to her bedroom. She laid there, with wide-open dry eyes, and a sort of stony look into her face, when the sound ov carriage wheels was heard comin' up the drive.

"'They're bringin' him home, Jane,' says she with a shudder, 'Oh, my poor boy Charley, my one dear lamb.'

"Yes'm, they was a-bringin' ov him home, and soon we heard a stumblin' and a mumblin' on the stairs, and then somethin' fell ag'in the door like a heavy body fallin'.

"Miss Mary sprung from the bed and stood stock still, tremblin' like a leaf. 'It's horrible,' she said, 'the dead should not be treated—'

"Jest then the door opened, and in staggered Charley, her one dear lamb, a-swearin' at a rough, low-lookin' chap who was tryin' to keep him onto his feet. For a minute Miss Mary didn't understand. 'My boy,' she said soft like, lookin' with a smile into his wild eyes. 'You are spared to me; thanks to Him, the Giver of all good. I have mourned for you, dear, as one dead.'

"'You were a ——— fool then,' said he, sinkin' into a cheer with a coarse laugh, 'you were a —— ' But there, ma'am, I'll spare your soft heart by not tellin' you all the dreadful things that miserable boy of hern said. It breaks my heart to think ov it, ennymost as it did hern that day.

"Well, it all come out then how he hed been fer a long time in the habit ov leavin' his bed at night and passin' most ov it at the village tavern, gamblin' and drinkin' and carryin' on as they mostly do to them low places. He was always home afore daylight, you see, ma'am, so nobody suspected what was a-goin' on at all. He mostly hed a headache in the mornin', and Miss Mary was always a-pityin' and a-soothin' ov her dear boy.

* * * * * *

"Well, ma'am, I ax your pardon for stoppin' so long to look backwards like. Arter that dreadful day, Miss Mary went about like a ghost ov her dear, smilin' self, and Farmer Allen looked stern and hard, but Mr. Charley was as bold as brass, and laughed and joked his mother about her thinkin' ov him as dead, and then fell to tellin' her as how he was only a sowin' ov his wild oats like the—the—'bloods,' yes, that's the word, like the young bloods of the city done afore they could ever come to be fashionable.

"'Listen to him?' Oh, yes'm, she listened, and after awhile she begun to smile, and tried to make his father believe the same thing, and the poor soul, I railly do believe, began to take a little pride in knowin' her boy Charley was growin' 'fashionable.' Then things growed worse and worse, as was natural, ma'am, ov course. Money now was what he was always wantin'. He didn't coax much now—he was beginnin' to feel hisself a man, you know—and many's the day I hev heard loud words, and presently Miss Mary would come and borrer my little savin's, tryin' to smile the while and makin' some excuse or other about a ' 'mergency,' or somethin' like that. Rough-lookin' men begun runnin' to the house, and Mr. Allen was called on more than once to pay his son's gamblin' debts, and night after night Miss Mary laid awake a-listenin', and not till mornin' did she hear the stumblin' and mumblin' on the stairs which we hed all got used to by now.

"And then one day—it may sound wicked, ma'am, but I've often wondered if God hadn't drapped off to sleep jest that once, I have, indeed—one day Farmer Allen came back from town, lookin' so white and terrible that I screamed right out when I seed him. 'Jane,' says he, 'you've been a good girl, a very good girl!' and he looked at me as though he was takin' leave ov everythin'. Sech a turn as it giv me, ma'am, I kin never forgit.

"I seed him go into the room where Miss Mary was a-settin', and, without speakin' a word, laid down afore her a little scrap ov paper. 'I don't understand,' said she, bewildered like, lookin' up at him.

"He turned his eyes away from her face that had growed oh, so peaked and careworn by now, and he said, broken-like, yet stern: 'It's a check, ain't it?'

"'Ov course,' says she, lookin' a little scared, 'and for a very large amount.'

"'Jest so,' said he, still lookin' away from her, 'your son'—he stopped, chokin' like.

"Miss Mary opened her lips to say somethin', but the words wouldn't come, and she jest looked at him with a pityin', beseechin' sort of a look into her soft eyes. 'Yes,' she said after a spell, 'our son—'

"'Has forged his father's name, ma'am, ruined and disgraced us both,' said Farmer Allen, fierce like.

"Miss Mary sprung from her chair and grasped his arm. 'We must save him,' she said, in a commandin' voice; jest like a general givin' his orders. 'We must save our boy; come!'

"Farmer Allen said nothin', but jest looked at her.

"'You haven't,' she cried out then in an awful voice—the like ov which I never heard afore or since—'you haven't give him up? You never hev done so cruel a thing as that; give up your boy, my Charley, our son?'

"But I seed in his eyes, ma'am, that he had done jest that very thing. 'I hed no son to give up,' said he, as hard as flint; 'he is no boy ov mine; I curse the hour--'

"He never finished what he was a-goin' to say, ma'am, fer Miss Mary burst right out a-laughin', and sech a laugh! It didn't sound like a human creeter at all. I stood froze to the spot where I was fer a minit, then I run in and caught her in my arms.

"'Miss Mary,' says I, 'it's all a mistake; he's only a tryin' of you.' I said that hopin' to quiet her, you know, ma'am, but it was of no earthly use, fer she raved and raved, and laughed that awful laugh, and cried out fer her Charley, her one pet lamb. It was the pityfullest sight I ever seed, ma'am, nothin' what come after was more so.

* * * * * *

"Thank you, ma'am, I never carries a handkerchief, only on Sundays; I uses the corner of my apron on week days, but I thank you all the same. I beg your pardon fer givin' way so, but you see I loved her ennymost as well as if she had been my own mother.

"Well, it weren't many days afore the end come. She was a-layin' in the bed, quiet fer a spell, when all to once says she, 'Jane,' in the very same tone ov voice, ma'am, as she hed said it that night long ago. 'Jane, my boy is dead.' And then she give a little moan and looked at me in sech a way that I cried out in very anguish.

"'Miss Mary,' says I, bendin' over her; 'Miss Mary!' But she didn't hear me, ma'am, she didn't hear, bein' as she was listenin' jest then to somethin' what you and me hev never heard, or ever will hear on this mortal earth.

"'A mercy?' Yes'm! I, who loved her so, felt that way, too; but Farmer Allen couldn't or wouldn't take it that way a'tall. How could he, seein' as how everything was took from him at one blow, you may say! He seemed stunned like, as he stood and watched the earth as it fell onto her coffin, and when it was all over he come home and went and set by the bed on which she died.

"I couldn't do nothin' to comfort him, ma'am—fer words at sech times have no meanin' fer them who aire really stricken, leastways I always hev thought so myself—and so he set there 'till way after night. Then he come out and called fer me.

"'Jane,' says he, 'I'm a-goin' away early to-morrow morning, long afore you're up. You and John take care ov the place till I come back. Good-bye, Jane, good-bye.

You've been a good girl, a very good girl,' then he went into the room ag'in and shut the door.

"I know what you are thinkin' of, ma'am, by that skeared look into your eyes. But it weren't so a'tall, fer the next mornin' I was up bright and early—a-fearin' somethin' much the same you are a-fearin' now—but he had gone sure enough, ma'am, a-leavin' no word 'cept that last good-bye to me, and nobody has never seed nothin' ov him since.

" 'How long hes it been?' Well, ma'am, somewheres about nine year, reckoning from the time John and me got married, which was the day after master went away, onseemly as it must appeared. It won't be long now afore the boy who done it all with his wild ways will be comin' home, seein' his time's most out, and—that's your party you say comin' down the road? Well, good-bye, ma'am, and thank you for listenin' and sympathizin'. A-tellin' it over hes done me a powerful sight ov good, a-easin' my heart like of the tears what ever keeps it heavy.

"Help yourself to the roses as you go out, ma'am, fer it'll save me from seein' 'em die and drop to pieces, remindin' me too constant ov her who lies a-sleepin' over yonder in the churchyard."

Rockville Centre, N. Y.

WOMEN IN THE MINISTRY.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

A bugle blast of truth, which many will hear, comes from Hastings, Neb. Rev. H. P. Fitch, M. D., of that city, has published a pamphlet on the right of women in the gospel ministry, which no one can read without a conviction of its merit.

The first impression that one receives is the great sincerity of the writer as an earnest seeker after truth. He freely admits that when the subject was first pressed upon his attention, his prejudice against women preaching was such that it was impossible for him to investigate it with impartiality. We commend his fairness and honesty to all who have not yet studied this subject "with the one single desire of learning the truth." The only authority he recognizes in settling the question is the New Testament; and his interpretations are made regardless of that conservatism which has made the people so slow to apprehend the truth. Conservatism has its uses, but when it is suffered to influence the teachings of religion, and to mold the doctrines and practices of the church, it is a dangerous and troublesome thing.

May it not be that God has given rights to women which are withheld from them now for no other reason only that conservatism which has its origin in selfishness, indifference, and timidity, and which is blind because it will not see? Women have had a hard battle to wage against conservatism, in trying to secure the advantages of higher education, and in getting a place in the professions and in business. But the blessing of God has been wonderfully manifested in every advance made, and now woman is found side by side with man in nearly all the professions and lines of business. Everywnere she has maintained herself nobly. There is scarcely a religious denomination that has not now women evangelists, and many of them have ordained women pastors. These women preachers are demonstrating everywhere, what for a long time has been demonstrated by the Quakers, that women can do the work of the gospel ministry, and do it well. It is also made plain that it does not detract from her womanly graces, or make her any less a woman, because she has heard God's call to consecrate herself to the work of giving truth to just as many as possible. Men say that there is no way to give God's truth to the world and save sinners so effective as the pulpit. Women are finding this out, and are coming to believe that God not only calls them to work, but to work in the best way.

The great Methodist Episcopal church of this country is now in the midst of the discussion whether women shall have equal rights and opportunities for work in the church with men. This question will be settled right if every Methodist minister studies it in the light of the New Testament, with the sincerity that is evident in the investigation by Rev. Mr. Fitch. We wish that every one could have his pamphlet to read. We cannot do more than state his line of argument:

"1. The New Testament either prohibits or permits female preaching of the gospel. If the former, there is an end of all argument. The question is at once settled, settled against them.

"2. If the New Testament prohibits women from entering the sacred office, it is certain that God does not call them thereto—otherwise He would be inconsistent with Himself.

"3. If there be no such prohibition in the New Testament, God may call women to the work; and we are at liberty to apply the usual tests for deciding the question, the same as in the case of male candidates. Ordination confers neither calling nor gifts. It is simply a formal recognition of a call already bestowed—a bidding God-speed in the work to which we recognize the candidate as being called."

These propositions clearly and fully state the case, and the argument based upon them is as clear as the propositions. It will do any one good to take these propositions and follow them out in his thought, aided by the light of the New Testament. The investigation must be honest and impartial. It must not be made with a prejudice working at the same time in the mind against women appearing in the pulpit. Let us be honest with God's truth, and follow the right as He gives us light. Years ago, the writer of this article made a Bible argument against women voting. It was an elaborate one, and touched every phase of danger to refined and pure Christian women by going out into the world of politics. There is so much in the Bible about separation from the world, and it was used to the best advantage. In less than two hours after the argument was publicly delivered, my mind was in great trouble because I saw that the inspiration of the address was prejudice, and if some of my leading points were honestly carried out, Christian men could not vote any more than women. That address cured me of a great deal of folly. We ought to be wise and honest enough in the use of God's word, not to read into it a meaning which simply accommodates our own prejudice. A thing is not right, simply because it is our notion. It is admitted on all hands that changes have been made in the interpretation of the New Testament, so as to freely accord to women liberties in the church which they did not once have. More light along the same line will make it clear to all that women should be ordained to the gospel ministry.

Peoria, Ill.

REFORMS THAT DO REFORM, OR, TEN GOOD MEN.

BY REV. H. CALHOUN.

Many national perils are generally admitted, such as the saloon, anarchism, Romanism, Sabbath secularization, the multiplication of divorces; the doubling of the ratio of crime every ten years for the last half century; the corruption of public sentiment by a venal, partisan press; five million out of seven million young men never, or practically never, seen at church, and seventy per cent of the criminals in our penitentiaries young men—these are things which make it very, very evident that society is in jeopardy unless these ruinous tendencies can soon be arrested.

Never were these dangers more dangerous than at present; but most people, in a sort of easy-going optimism, in spite of all these admitted infernal potencies, so confidently indulge the expectation of a glorious future for this country, that they cannot be aroused to any earnest or adequate endeavors to reform these evils. Many build their hopes solely upon putting into power the Republican, Democratic, or Prohibition Party, and when disappointed in their political hopes, fall back upon a confident assurance that there must be ten righteous men in the nation, for whose sakes the country will be spared, even though it sink to the moral level of Sodom.

We need to be fully on our guard against that easy-going optimism which lulls us into fatal security and palsies all the nerve of effort in the vain expectation and delusion that nothing need be done; that all will come out right in the end, anyhow. The prevalent evils will not cure themselves. Something decisive, thorough-going, must be done. To let them alone is just what suits best all dark things, weeds and tares, vices and diseases, bad men and demons.

We must also guard against a prevalent tendency to employ inadequate, the weaker not stronger, measures,—levers not long enough to radically turn the world upside down, even if we had a place upon which to stand. Even those most active and in earnest make this mistake. We too often forget that the gospel is the power of God to pull down the strongholds of sin; and the meaning is not only that it is one of many things, but the only all-sufficient power. Political action, the ballot, is important, but trusting any political party to cure the abounding wrongs is only healing the hurt of the people most superficially. Many believe their whole duty consists in voting the Republican ticket, when nothing is more evident than the need of Christian reform in American politics in general and the Republican party in particular, American politics being, perhaps, our most perilous peril just now.

No political organization is likely to be sufficient for these things. We must give the better evangel its true and larger place among our manifold agitations, because it carries with it an overturning power. As old Andrew Fuller insists, "a perfect and perpetuating morality, sooner or later, runs to sure decay in any community where it lacks the sanction of 'Pure Religion and Undefiled.'"

Every man must for himself confess Christ. Putting the name of Christ into the National Constitution may be well enough, but cannot avail unless every man enters into covenant engagement himself to be the Lord's, putting the name of Christ into his ballot and life. No mere proper acknowledgment of Christ as King of Kings can be substituted for this individual consecration, and any reformation that stops short of that is built upon the sand. The only way to save this country is for every man to thoroughly repent and turn from his own sins and do his Christian best in every condition of life and then do his best to bring his neighbor to do likewise; and when we all do that and keep doing it, the country is safe. In spite of all our increasing wealth, education, culture, invention, trade and material progress, our existing sins are ruin begun, ruin at work, and, unless promptly arrested, will soon be ruin accomplished. No vague generalities, no easy-going reformers, but weapons with all gospel potencies must be employed; the entire work of the Holy Spirit must be the chief factor.

It is not enough that there be many more righteous men than were needed to save Sodom. It will not do to lean upon other people's piety. Every man must answer for himself. What nation or city has ever been spared for ten or ten times ten good men? There were, no doubt, ten righteous men among the Ten Tribes when carried into captivity, and doubtless many more when Judah was swept away into the seventy years' captivity in Babylon, and doubtless many Christians in Jerusalem, when invested by the Roman eagles; but the city was not saved, nor the Jewish nation for their sakes. There is no covenant promise to spare city or nation for the sake of a righteous minority. This dependence of the majority who will not pray for themselves, upon the progress of a few Christian people, is a flattering delusion. Sin is death, and national wrongs work national death, unless forsaken in sackcloth and ashes. In these national sins it is the nation that must suffer, and it is only national repentance, like that of Nineveh, and not ten good men that can save from destruction. We must go deeper.

Mansfield, O.

PARABLE OF THE FRIEND AT MIDNIGHT, OR, OUT OF COMMUNION.

BY ELIZABETH W. GREENWOOD.

(Concluded.)

If, then, the deepest lesson of this parable is that of communion, we may well ask what are the steps into this communion, and how shall we abide there? Notice, we speak of communion, not prayer merely; there is a wide difference. In prayer we are occupied with ourselves, our needs, and those of our loved ones. In communion we think not so much of self, as of Christ; not so much of what we shall say to Him, as of what He shall say to us. Waiting in silence until the touch of His spirit shall come upon ours, lifting the soul into the nearness of a friend of Christ; a child of the Father.

Bishop Hall says: "It is not the arithmetic of our prayers, how many; nor the rhetoric, how eloquent; nor the geometry, how long; nor the music, how sweet; nor the method, how orderly; nor the theology, how correct, but the spirit and sincerity." The first real step into communion is to realize our child place before our Father—to have the child spirit. This spirit was impossible before Christ died. Moses, Abraham, Enoch could not say "Our Father;" this is the glory of our dispensation. All through the New Testament we are taught this lesson. Read the Sermon on the Mount, and see how this thought is repeated; twelve times the word Father is used. "Your Father knoweth you have need of these things." "Pray to your Father in secret." The love which as parents you feel for your children, your interest in them, care over them, is but a faint type of the love, care, interest of your heavenly Father. We read of one of our most gifted English poets who was so sensitive that the fear of his teacher caused him to stumble, blunder, and appear so stupid as to be given up by the teacher as almost idiotic. But his mother, seeing his sensitiveness, taught him herself, bore with his nervousness and failures, and by her love and patience led him on until he became one of England's most famous writers. So if we, with all our weaknesses, failures, sins, will but come to our Father with this childlike spirit, place ourselves daily in His school of prayer, assured that He knows all our weakness and peculiarities, He will love us into knowledge.

The secret of real communion is to be filled with the Father love of God, to take our child place of privileges. A father heard his son say to a younger brother, "You must be good, or father will not love you." Calling the boys, he said, "My son, that is not true; it grieves me to have your brother disobedient, but it does not, cannot change my love. I cannot help loving you, for I am your father, you know." God is always our Father, "the same yesterday, to-day and forever," even when we are disobedient and indifferent; He loves with an infinite love the children of His household; only as we realize this truth, can we have real communion.

A second step into this communion is to realize our dependence upon the Holy Spirit, and God's infinite willingness to give this gift. More willing than are earthly parents to give good gifts unto their children.

But these two steps into communion depend upon another, all-important—that we are much alone with God. Only as we live with God can we be like Him. Moses was forty days alone with God in the mount ere his face shone with divine glory. The great need of the age, of the individual Christian life is the still hour; we live in such a rush and hurry that there is great danger that our service outrun our communion; that we go forth in the energy of self-will, rather than in the power of the Spirit of God. Moses must have his Midian, Elijah his desert, John the Baptist his wilderness, Paul his Arabia, John his Patmos, Luther his Wartburg Castle.

May the writer invite the readers of THE UNION SIGNAL to a plan which has been to her an increasing source of strength and delight? Each morning, unless utterly impossible, whether at home or abroad, immediately after the morning meal, she retires to her room, shuts and locks the door, and for a half hour or more seeks this preparation which can only be gained alone with God. A brief passage is read from God's Word, not now for intellectual food, but for real soul feeding, then a chapter is read from some of our best books of devotion—especially helpful have been those of Andrew Murray, "With Christ in the School of Prayer," "Like Christ," "Abide in Christ," "The Spirit of Christ," published by Willard Tract Society, Toronto, Canada, and by Randolph & Co., 38 West 23d St., New York. Then kneeling, she seeks to take by faith, these steps into communion. To realize her child place and privilege before the Father—the infinite fullness of the Holy Spirit, which He is so willing to give, the mighty intercession of Christ, now, at the right hand of God, as Mediator, Advocate, High Priest. And that prayer presented in His name through the Spirit to such a Father cannot fail. Then, when in the silent waiting the presence of the Father is realized, it is so easy to tell Him with childlike confidence what we need; our utter feebleness and ignorance; our yearnings for ourselves, our work, our loved ones, and the world. Such seasons of communion can be held in the cars or on the street, if in the rush of life's duties we cannot "enter into the closet and shut to the door." Would that all evangelistic superintendents and others who read these words would join with us in this daily season of communion and prove how it will deepen the spiritual life, calm the spirit, and bring power and success in the Master's work.

Correspondence.

FROM THE SOUTH.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—To attend the Louisiana and Mississippi conventions, and fill a few appointments between was the well-laid plan, but a freight wreck prevented my reaching Ruston for the Louisiana convention, and the high water interfered seriously with several appointments. I spoke at Shreveport, Natchitoches (pronounced Nak-i-tosh), and New Orleans in Louisiana.

Thirty or forty New Orleans ladies met me in Mrs. Merrick's pleasant parlors, always open to those who think and have the courage of their conviction. I found these women were not afraid to discuss politics, or suffrage, or any other issue before the people. Mrs. Merrick's courage and fealty to her highest conviction has opened the door for all southern women. I was surprised to find so many southern women in full sympathy with the most advanced thought concerning equal suffrage. Audiences South are quite as willing to listen to this theme as those in the North. Mother Wallace made converts wherever she went.

The desolation of water was over much of the land, and my heart ached for the people who again and again must suffer loss of all things by these recurring overflows. At the Nita crevasse fifty houses were swept away, and we saw the flood from the river pouring through that opening in the levee, like a cataract, and covering all meadows and fields below. Why cannot a government rich and strong as ours make a channel in that river, and construct levees that will stand?

At Columbus, Miss., I visited the Industrial Institute and College. This school should be the pride of that state. I know of no school in any other state that is meeting the need of the time as that Industrial Institute and College. The college course is on a par with our very best, and to this is added thorough instruction in all the industries. I found classes engaged in telegraphy, stenography, type-writing, printing, book-keeping, designing, engraving, modeling, wood carving, repousse (ornamental metal work), free-hand drawing, painting, dressmaking and housekeeping. The building is kept spotlessly clean—kitchen, pantries, dining-room, class-rooms, bed-rooms—everywhere! And all is managed by a woman! The Industrial Institute and College is a state institution, and, of course, has its board of men regents, or trustees, and did have its man president.

The president appointed by the board was not large enough for the place. The students of the senior class formulated grave charges of inefficiency and sent them to Governor Stone, who summoned the regents to appear and investigate the matter. One by one these seniors were cross-questioned, and the testimony sustained the charges. The president tendered his resignation, which was accepted by the board without protest. At first it was thought that the "women teachers" had helped on this insurrection against the "powers that be;" but at the close of the investigation the board admitted that the seniors had acted quite independently and with great wisdom and diplomacy. Miss M. J. S. Callaway, A. M., Professor of Mathematics, was called to fill the president's chair. She has loyal support from teachers and pupils.

The Mississippi convention was held at Oxford, and was a live meeting. Mrs. Mount presides well; Mrs. Kells, Mrs. Irvin, and other leading women of the state were present. Rev. Carodyne, of New Orleans, who has valiantly opposed the Louisiana Lottery infamy, preached the convention sermon. He spoke without fear. Mrs. Barney was present and gave the closing address of the convention. About fifty young men signed the pledge, many from the state university there located, some belonging to the town.

CLARA C. HOFFMAN.

THE FRUIT JUICE INDUSTRY.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—I want to say, as one who from her own needs has been compelled to make dietetics somewhat of a study, that our W. C. T. U. should more especially turn their attention to the fact that mankind craves the juices of fruit, and that if not furnished freely in their natural state, they will be taken in their unnatural or fermented and impure one.

As leaders in the great temperance reform, and also as wives, mothers and housekeepers, it is our duty to urge this truth upon the women of our own neighborhood. More fruit, canned when natural cannot be had, and less meat would, I am personally convinced, be a grand step towards the temperance goal we are all struggling for, and from the health, as well as the economic view, decidedly an improvement; and yet meat to-day in the majority of our families is considered the necessity, and fruit with its juices are the luxuries.

While looking without for the causes of all the sin and suffering, we must still remember that the kitchen, dining-room, and domestic service generally, are the physical architects of our upbuilding, and that our cook holds in her hands more power than an ignorant, untrained woman should hold.

Working all day in the dusty, unventilated factories, what wonder that thirst is created, and that girls and women, as well as men, after work is over, flock where it can be satisfied? There is a thirst that neither water nor milk will reach and satisfy, though the juices of fruit do. It is a thirst caused generally by the lodging of particles of dust in the throat, which becomes dry and feverish in consequence. Any one with weak lungs can understand this if they sweep, or sit in a room where sweeping is being carried on. The juice of an orange, or of grapes, will do more to relieve it than aught else, but the working girl or man finds the saloon convenient, while the fruiterer's may be far away. The saloon, too, will often trust, the fruiterer will not; besides, the saloon affords a resting place, and company is found there. It is warm, bright and cheerful. I wish that it were possible in every manufacturing city for our W. C. T. U. to start a temperance saloon near the site of factories and main workshops, where all the comforts of the present saloon could be found, without any of its evils; where unfermented fruit juices, such as the grape, orange, pineapple, strawberry, raspberry, blackberry, etc., could be purchased, besides milk, buttermilk, water, tea, coffee, chocolate, and a roll.

In England, unfermented fruit juices can be bought cheaper than with us. Some one remarked to me a few days ago, "Why, I can buy good California fermented wine cheaper than the unfermented wine! Temperance drinks are too expensive; besides, a bottle after being opened, will not keep but a day or so."

I believe that a way could be found through a coöperative woman's colony to not only supply fruit juices cheaper, but also to relieve some of the want and distress among women of the better class who have been reduced to poverty and now have but one resource, the needle. In our domestic service reform work we have frequently had applications from this class of women who, for many reasons, are not fitted for housework in its present condition, but who could work in this line.

In Tennessee land and building material are cheap. It is a noted fruit state, the climate is delightful, and further, our standard-bearer during the last Presidential campaign, General Clinton B. Fisk, with Ferd. Schumaker, and others, have organized a strong company to colonize East Tennessee, and land could be purchased in or near this colony at from prices varying from three dollars to fifteen dollars per acre in large tracts. While the river bottoms furnish richer farming lands, they are higher in price, and as fruit would be the main crop, the Cumberland plateau is said to be excellent for all fruit growing. A factory to extract and bottle the juices could be established at a central point, and if more revenue were desired, grazing land could be secured and sterilized milk bottled and shipped to various cities, North, East, South and West. Several prominent women whom I have consulted have approved this plan. In the spring I shall personally inspect East Tennessee and would be glad to present a report to any body of women willing to look further into this idea, and push it if approved. As my home and money are both in New Jersey, I can have no personal ends to further. The Woman's Journal of a year or two ago, through a Southern correspondent, mentioned a woman's colony to raise and can fruit in Louisiana, but a broader and more useful field seems open to the fruit juice industry, and Tennessee is more desirable as an "all the year round" residence than Louisiana, besides being nearer Northern cities. Very truly yours,

LAURA M. LIPPINCOTT PANCOAST.

Woodstown, Salem County, N. J.

A PIONEER WOMAN LAWYER.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—In your issue of April 17, it is stated that "The pioneer lawyer of the state (Wisconsin) is Miss Angie King, of Janesville, who was admitted to the bar in 1889."

The pioneer lawyer of Wisconsin was Miss Lavinia Goodell, daughter of the well-known Abolitionist, Rev. Wm. Goodell. Miss Goodell was admitted to the bar, after passing a brilliant examination, in 1873. Her first case was a prosecution of liquor dealers for illegal selling in an adjoining county. The district attorney, being a "liquor man," was not considered trustworthy by the temperance women, who were the real prosecutors of the case, and they employed Miss Goodell, who won her suit, first in the justice court, and, the defendants appealing. the second time in the circuit court. The success gained her considerable reputation and gave her a good start.

But the case which extended her reputation throughout the state and country was one involving twelve hundred dollars, in which her client was a woman. The case was carried from the county court to the circuit court, and appealed from that to the supreme court, where she won. According to the law of Wisconsin, Miss Goodell's admission to the circuit court admitted her to all courts in the state except the supreme court. Upon carrying up her case, and applying for admission to this, the chief justice (Ryan) refused her on the ground of sex. The arguments appear in substance in Vol. XXXIX of Wisconsin Reports.

She afterwards reviewed the chief justice's decision in the Chicago Legal News and unquestionably had the better of him in argument. She also prepared a bill and sent it to the state Legislature, providing that no person should be refused admission to the bar on account of sex. A petition asking for its passage was signed by the circuit judge and every member of the bar in the county. In such high esteem was Miss Goodell's practice held that her best paying clients were women. She was admitted to the supreme court in 1875. Miss Angie King became her law partner in 1878.

She did much work for temperance and woman suffrage, two subjects which were very near her heart. Her life was devoted to good deeds, which only ended here when she was called "up higher." She died in 1880 in Milwaukee, where she had gone for medical treatment.

Lebanon, Conn. SARAH THOMAS MILLER.

QUARTERLY TEMPERANCE SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSONS.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—It is a fact of notable helpfulness that Dr. Gilbert of the Chicago Advance takes ground squarely in favor of having a Sabbath distinctly set apart for a temperance Sunday-school lesson every quarter. He says:

Our present scheme of lessons, as appointed by the International Lesson Committee, does not make any appropriate provision for meeting the obvious necessity of the case. It may be they are too conservative and timid, and dare not do it. It looks that way. But it is not enough to say that temperance and all the virtues and the reforms are implied in Christianity. The question is not one of mere implication, but rather one of intelligent, thoughtful, distinctly intentioned and actual application. Of the ten million members in the various Sunday-schools of the country thousands and thousands every season are drifting out into the saloon, and into companionship with those whose business it is to damn and degrade. The temperance question is, after all, the supreme question of our day, but it will never make great headway until our myriad Sunday-schools take it up specifically and in earnest. In order to do this it is the clearest duty of the Sunday-school committee to furnish in the scheme of lessons which they devise, the appropriate opportunity for making good that which the great Sunday-school convention of 1887 announced, namely: that every Sunday-school should be in fact and in effect a temperance training school. To say that every school that wants to may give up its quarterly review and substitute the temperance lesson, is simply evasive. History holds in no uncertain estimate the memory of the emperor who is said to have fiddled while Rome was burning. The present is not a fit time for evasive trifling in the face of the momentous interests of this cause of temperance.

Rev. Dr. Noble, the senior Congregational pastor in Chicago, and Dr. Gray, the witty editor of the Interior, are both earnestly in favor of the special temperance Sunday, quarterly, at least so we are told. Doubtless these gentlemen in the position they have taken represent the most intelligent and earnest class among the clergy of the United States. If this is true we are quite likely to secure what Miss Lucia Kimball and her coadjutors have worked for so long and earnestly, namely: for temperance lessons in the regular course. This will be worth more than even constitutional prohibition would be in any commonwealth or any several commonwealths of the nation. Let us all buckle on our armor, do our first works over again, and bring to bear such a volume of influence upon the International Convention that we shall secure this sacred desire of our hearts.

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

ALCOHOLIC SLAVES VS. RUSSIAN EXILES.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—Is it not, like individual, like nation? Are not nations, like individuals, prone to see the mote in the neighbor's eye, and perceive not the beam in their own? While my heart burns with indignation over the wrongs of Siberian exiles, I can but think of our own exiles, exiles from truth, from purity, from God, and outcasts from society.

Is Russia so very much worse after all than the United States of America? We pride ourselves on being one of the leading nations of the world. We pride ourselves on our civilization, our Christianity, our government and our institutions. And yet, our grand nation legalizes one form of iniquity that yearly sends to death 100,000 souls, and legalizes or ignores another form of iniquity that destroys other souls innumerable; and the accompaniments of these, of sorrow, of suffering, of indignity, of crimes, of poverty, starvation, disease and death; are they less than those endured by Russian subjects? Can Russia furnish us an example of anything more damnable and barbarous than some of the things brought to light recently that took place in our northern lumber woods?

May God help us to cast out the beam that is in our eye political, so that we may see clearly to pluck out the beam from our neighbor's eye.

Muskegon, Mich. ADELLA C. FIRMAN.

"THE OFFENSE IS RANK AND SMELLS TO HEAVEN."

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—I was greatly impressed with the following fact, related to me a few days since:

A series of revival services in a prominent church; great interest excited; appeals made to all who had neglected the great salvation to delay no longer, and especially were the young urged to consecrate the dew of their youth to the service of Him who loves and tenderly pleads with them to receive Him into their hearts and lives.

At the close of an earnest appeal, all present who desired the prayers of Christians to aid them in their decision, were asked to rise. Many did; after this, Christian people talked individually with those who had thus responded, among others the daughter of my informant, a girl of about seventeen. But the Christian gentleman (!) who tenderly and earnestly urged upon her to decide at once for God, was so offensive with the fumes of tobacco that she was made sick by it, and could only turn her head from him in utter disgust; every particle of interest in the vital question was, for the time, destroyed, and she hastened away as soon as possible.

Is not this a frequent incident? The writer once had a similar experience, and shall an unclean mouth and foul breath be tolerated as a messenger from the Most High in this most important and tender duty? Will the Holy Ghost honor such instrumentality? M.

Baltimore, Md.

Our Book Table.

THE YOUNG FOLKS' BIBLE, in words of easy reading, sweet stories of God's word in the language of childhood, and in the beautiful delineation of Christian art, is indeed a gem in execution, and will be invaluable to mothers and teachers, because it will lead children to a love of the Holy Book which it is very desirable they should love earliest as well as longest. Rev. Dr. Wm. H. Milburn, the famous blind preacher, has written one of his charming introductions, full of the most choice anecdote and illustration, and Prof. David Swing has embellished the volume with his choice rhetoric, while Rev. Dr. John H. Barrows, one of the most earnest Presbyterian ministers in the country, has written a special address to the children. The simplification of the form of the Bible narrative has been done by Josephine Pollard, one of our brightest women writers. The book has 200 original engravings, some of them from famous classic master pieces. N. D. Thompson's Publishing Company, New York and St. Louis, Publishers.

FROM OVER THE BORDER, by Benjamin G. Smith. Published by Charles H. Kerr & Co., 175 Dearborn street, Chicago. Price $1.

OVER THE BORDER is the home of souls after death. The book purports to be indited by a gentleman after death, whose spirit was able to so impress itself upon an amanuensis in this world that he wrote as the spirit dictated. Its object, as the author says in the preface, is to aid in extending faith in the doctrine that death is but the beginning of a higher life, and that at the close of a man's earthly career, he enters upon another, which may be of a far higher order. It portrays heaven as a beautified earth, where one has but to hunger and a bountiful table is spread without hands, for his refreshment; only to be weary, to command the most refreshing sleep, only to desire to make scientific explorations to have a troop of horsemen with similar desires, sweep past carrying him along on a magnificent charger which is in readiness for him. Family life goes on there much as here, only that spiritual affinities are stronger than family ties. Contrary to Scripture, there is marrying and giving in marriage; we are treated to a celestial courtship and wedding which are idyllic. There are theaters, operas, and in the borderland, hints of a circus; there are beautiful lakes over which echo the sweet strains of the gondolier, verdure-clad plains and mountain slopes trod by untiring feet, cloudless skies and every element of physical beauty. And yet to one who knows the love of Christ, it is but a sunless land, dreary and shadowy, for in it there is no Lamb to be the light thereof. The last two chapters of Revelations strengthen our faith in the doctrine of a higher life after death—such a life as shall develop the higher part of our nature—more than scores of such books could do.

There lies before us on the study table, a book in brilliant covers, bearing the title, "THE LIFE WORK OF THE AUTHOR OF 'UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.'" It has been carefully prepared for publication by Mrs. Florence McCray, and while it does not purport to be a biography, it is a highly interesting sketch of the literary career of one of America's most successful and gifted women of letters. The volume contains an outline of each one of Mrs. Stowe's works, including commentaries and criticisms upon them by eminent reviewers. It is an entertaining and instructive work. Funk & Wagnalls, New York City, are the publishers.

"FREEDOM'S SONGS, POEMS AND WISDOM, compiled, reduced and modernized by Non Nack, Elkhart, Ind., publisher's agent."

Thus says the title page of a unique book that comes to our desk without name of author or publisher or price. It is a strange medley of prose and poetry, history, biography, socialism, the French Revolution, and almost everything else imaginable. We must confess to an utter inability to understand "what it is all about."

MOTHERS IN COUNCIL is a book published by Harper & Brothers, New York, and recommended by one of the truest of mothers. It represents a club of mothers sitting down together to talk over the best methods of training their children. It is full of bright ideas, besides giving the best thoughts of the best trained writers on this greatest of themes. Among many paragraphs that one would gladly select, we take the following from a physician, who says: "Hot-headed boys can be more effectually cured with cow's milk than with a cow's hide. The danger is lest their food should be too rich and stimulating. By giving them tea or coffee at too early an age, children are often made dyspeptics for life. One of the greatest dangers is lest nurses should teach the child wrong habits, which they are very ready to do if they can thereby decrease the amount of care and work that is put upon them."

A cordial welcome is hereby given to the UNION SERIES OF PHYSIOLOGIES, published by Ivison, Blakeman & Co. They are the first fruits of the work of Mrs. Hunt, not only in revision during the past year, but in steady, persistent effort to have all the text-books on this subject that go into the schools of the country, "up to grade" on the temperance question. That they bear her indorsement and that of the advisory committee of the department, which is sufficient evidence that they are safe books for the W. C. T. U. to recommend and work for. We rejoice that to the Pathfinder Series, so long the only one that we could unreservedly indorse, there are now added several others, and we congratulate Mrs. Hunt on this tangible result of her "patience of hope and labor of love," and the publishers on being ready to meet the demand of the hour. These books are inviting in make-up, correct in science, and they give no uncertain sound on the temperance part of the teaching.

Dr. M. L. Holbrook has a name grown honorable through years of service which has undoubtedly been of thorough practicable benefit to humanity. He is the Professor of Hygiene in the National Medical College and Hospital for Women, editor of the Herald of Health, and many other admirable publications. In his new book, FOOD AND WORK, he has some most suggestive chapters on "Food and Intemperance," "The Apple as the Prince of Fruits," "The Grape Cure," besides recipes for wholesome and delicious drinks and harmless beverages from fruits. Miss Willard says: "I could wish that this book, FOOD AND WORK, might be read in our local unions, for I believe the practicable outcome would be incalculable benefit to the children first, and also to the grown persons in the households influenced by our thoughtful and well-wishing white-ribboners, who not only know a good thing when they see it, but are among the readiest persons in the world to 'pass along like bread at sacrament' every helpful idea that comes to their knowledge." The book is published by Dr. Holbrook, and the address is simply New York City.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

What a blessed and comforting thought it is to those who desire to give, but have little of the riches of the world at their command, that God's measurement of giving is not counted by the amount given, but according to our ability and the spirit of love which dictates the gift. We say this for the consolation of numbers who write us, who can only send small gifts, and are deeply grieved that they cannot do more. Mrs. Anna A. Dunn, of Linden, Cal., who has secured a Baby Band of forty members which represents $4, writes: "I know this must seem a trifle to you, but think, please, of the loving wishes and prayers of a small and poor country union. We are doing our best. We are planning to have an entertainment for the Temple as soon as the weather and roads permit." Mrs. P. L. Waklee, Bradford, Pa., sends $10. She writes: "This is the Clark's Corners union—a small one and weak in all save faith in God. We are two miles out from the city union, in a little country hamlet where about half a dozen of us W's are trying to 'hold the fort' and carry on all the work—church, Sabbath-school, Y's and Loyal Temperance Legions." Mrs. L. E. Rehm, president of the Helix W. C. T. U. of Oregon, sends $1.25; she says: "I am sorry to send such a small amount, but our poor little union has only nine members. I should not feel like sending this small sum, only I remember that all large amounts are composed of small ones." This is a fact which all our W. C. T. U. members would do well to remember.

***

What is to be said, and what is God's estimate, which is of far more consequence, in regard to individuals and unions that are large and strong, and amply able to give, but are standing idly by, not so much as lifting a finger towards the erection of this building, which means so much for His cause? Should they not fear that they may hear the condemnation, "Inasmuch as ye did it not"? We are glad, however, that an increasing number of unions are wheeling into line and pledging their $100. We trust soon all may hear the call and do what they can. Miss E. W. Greenwood, president of the "Brooklyn W. C. T. U. on the Hill," sends a check for $100 for her union; she says she hopes more will be added ere long. This is the proper way to give. This Brooklyn union is strong, and has one of the ablest presidents at its head of any in our guild; they not only give $100—the sum asked from each able union—but they propose to give more, and thus make up the lack of those poor little country unions, who with hard work can only raise a few dollars. Mrs. J. B. Seymour, superintendent of Temple work for the Aurora, Ill., W. C. T. U., sends a check for $25, to be applied on their pledge of $100, making $35 in all which they have paid so far.

Mrs. Mary D. Ware, on behalf of the Worcester, Mass., W. C. T. U., sends a check for $22.75, on their pledge of $100, $75 of which they have now paid. The Kearney, Neb., W. C. T. U., through their secretary, Mrs. Letty M. Parrish, sends a check for $10 and hopes to make it $100 when Nebraska gets through its great fight. Mrs. Belle Kimball sends a check for $9.32 for the Kirkwood, Mo., W. C. T. U. She says: "We hope to be able to raise $100 in time, and have our union's name engraved on the enduring tablets that are to adorn Willard Hall." The Farmington W. C. T. U., of New York, has made a good start to raise $100: they have just sent a check for $19.44. Mrs. M. E. Wilkinson writes that the oldest member of their union, Mrs. Mary Wilson, eighty-seven years old, contributed $5 of the above amount.

***

We have received a check for $5 from a union, which as far as we know, is the only one of its kind in the country. It is the "Julia A. Chase Temperance Union," United States Military Prison, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. Mrs. Chase is state superintendent of the department of soldiers and sailors. She writes: "I send $5, a contribution from 'my boys' in the Military Prison, Ft. Leavenworth. Though the union numbers about three hundred members they have no way of securing money except by an occasional collection when visitors are present at a meeting. They are intensely interested in the Temple as in all lines of W. C. T. U. work, and read THE UNION SIGNALS which I send them, all to pieces." The Granville, Ohio, W. C. T. U. through their treasurer, Mrs. G. T. Jones, sends a check of $13, on their pledge of $100. Here is a union that without doubt, will raise their entire $100 through the mite-box system alone.

***

Mrs. B. W. Heineman, Colegrove, Pa., has sent in a full Baby Band, and now forwards $2.50 with twenty-five additional names. Mrs. C. F. Sheldon, Springfield, Vt., has the honor of raising one of the largest Baby Bands; it numbers 133, for which she has sent $13.30. Mrs. M. E. Tifft, of the Madison Ave. W. C. T. U., New York, is one of the most persistent and faithful workers for the Temple that we have. The Madison Ave. union is only a little over a year old; in that time they have raised three full Baby Bands of one hundred each. They have now sent in a Baby Band which numbers one hundred and two, secured by Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Tifft's efforts; beside this, $13.50 is sent as contributions from mite-boxes; $23.70 is the amount of the check sent in by Mrs. Tifft. This union has now given, in small sums and by hard work, $85 towards the Temple fund. Mrs. Amy Conlan sends $4.40 for the Washington Colony Baby Band, of Fresno county, California, which numbers forty-four members. Mrs. Joseph Tape, Providence, R. I., sends $5 for a Baby Band of fifty members. Mrs. I. M. Lovett, of Billings, Montana, sent in a full Baby Band of one hundred names with a check for $10 last September. In some way she was not given credit for it. We are glad now to put her name on the roll of honor.

We want to remind our friends that we have only promised to mention in this column the names of those who have raised a full band.

145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Our Children.

SOMETHING TO TRY.

BY CLARA DOTY BATES.

If you would like a bit of green
To make your window fair
When winter comes and skies are gray,
And snow is in the air,
A violet, maybe—who knows?
Or a spray of maiden-hair;

Go to a swampy bit of woods
Where many a summer day
You used to find amidst the moss
A nameless, strange array
Of flowers and curious shining leaves,
And berries, red and gay;

Take from the damp wayside a clod,
A handful of bare mold,
Without a visible root or leaf
To hint what it may hold;
Give it the sunniest place you can
And watch its growth unfold.

'Tis dull, dark earth at first—no more
Barren, unpromising,
But presently above the soil
Some pushing, little thing,
A frond, a twisted point of leaf,
Or a pale stalk will spring.

You never know what may come forth,
Wild violet or fern,
A wintergreen, a squawberry,
Or a twin-flower's double urn,
Growths strange hitherto, nor even guessed,
But very sweet to learn.

They make you feel what miracles
Are in the humblest sod,
What wise design and wondrous power
Is shown in a mere clod;
So, thankfully will the heart yearn
From God's work up to God.

—Housekeeper's Weekly.

PATCHES.

Little girl Goldie, looking up
Into the depths of the great blue "cup,"
Watches the cloudlets drifting by,
Here one and there one, and all so high.

Time goes on for a little while;
Sudden she turns with a sunny smile:
"Auntie, auntie, do you know why
There are all those patches on the sky?"

"They are clouds, my dear." But our Goldie wise,
With the red, red cheeks, and the blue, blue eyes,
Shakes her yellow curls with a laugh of glee:
"Why, auntie, you're 'staken as you can be!

"Those are the patches the angels sew
Over the holes in the sky, you know,
Where God cuts out the bits of blue
To put in a little girl's eyes for you!"

—Good Cheer.

CANDY COAXERS.

BY IVAN INKLING.

"Oh, Mr. Frank, please give me a bunch of those candy cigarettes like you sold Ben West! Here is your nickel," exclaims a little six-year-old man as he reaches out a chubby fist and deposits a shining nickel on the counter by which we are standing. In a moment more he catches up his disguised bit of candy and marches proudly from the store. Next we hear, as he joins a little companion on the walk, "My! they're 'most like real ones, aren't they, Tim?"

The grocer laughs, but we cannot. Do you know why, boys? Later we see this same little lad upon the street puffing away vigorously in close imitation of many an older smoker, though no poisonous vapor escapes from his rosy lips, or hides his yellow curls. We know that though a wee lad, he is some mother's dear one, and that he is thus early playing with fire; that already very hurtful seeds have found lodgment in his little brain and heart and are now springing up.

UNION SIGNAL boys and girls, did you see this little fellow? Have you ever known a boy who did the same thing? Do you say, "Yes, but what is the harm? they are only candy cigarettes."

Let us see what the harm is. They are "only candy," we will admit, and taken into the stomach might do no more harm than any other cheap candy, but a greater harm than this is done. Let me ask you a question: Why did that little fellow buy the cigarettes rather than any other kind of candy? Shall I answer? Well, it was because he could hold these between his lips and make believe he was smoking!

Do you ask, "What of that?" and add, "He wouldn't smoke a real cigarette." Wouldn't he? Why not? You think he would not because it would be wrong and would harm him. Just so, then why should a clean, pure hearted little boy feel proud in making believe to do something which he knows would be wrong, and would harm him in every way if it were real? You know the real cigarette would keep him from growing up into a strong and healthy boy; it would steal his red cheeks from him; would take away his power to learn rapidly; would make him care less for good and beautiful things, and, if he kept on smoking, might even steal his life away from him. And yet he is proud to be seen with those candy imitations in his mouth which, if they were real, would do all this. Boys, what do you think about it? Is the cigarette your friend or enemy? Ought you to be proud or ashamed to have these cunning copies between your lips?

The Bible says we are to "abstain from" (keep from) even "all appearance of evil,"—anything that looks like evil. We cannot be too careful. Would this not be a good place to practice what that verse teaches?

Now, little folk, if you believe this, and we do not see how you can help it, we want your help; we want you to become reformers. Do you know what a "reformer" is? Let us find out: A reformer is one who makes, or helps to make, some change for the better. Roe, would not you like to be a reformer, and you, Edith? Remember, if you help to change sometning for the better in this world of ours, you will not only brighten and make better other lives, but you will broaden and brighten your own. Will you try it? But you want to know how you can become reformers on the candy cigarette question. You like candy, of course you do; almost all children like it, and some grown-up children, too, and that makes you all the more ready to fight this evil that has crept in and is trying to use your sweetmeats. Now you can become reformers in this way: First, buy other candy in the place of these ugly little cigarettes. "What good will that do?" Why, by and by the grocer will not purchase the cigarettes because he cannot sell them, and, if he does not buy them, the wholesale grocer or confectioner will not buy them, because he, in turn, cannot sell them, and finally the ooxes will pile up in the manufacturer's storeroom and he will stop making cigarettes because he cannot sell them, and there will be none in the market to tempt little boys, and make them think that poisonous, harmful things are good. But refusing to buy these candies is not all you have to do. You think this thing is wrong; then if you do not tell those boys and girls who think it is all right just what you believe, you are as bad as they; for you are, by your very keeping still, taking sides with the evil. Do you not know what the Saviour said? "He that is not with me is against me." Little folks, we must do something in the world to-day as well as believe something.

Now, how many of my boys and girls—for there is no good work in the whole world in which the girls may not help, too—will try to be real, wide-awake reformers?

WHY DOLLY DIDN'T GO TO THE PICNIC.

"Mamma talks funny sometimes," said Dolly to herself, as she tripped along. "I don't believe God'll want me to do anything to-day 'cept to have a real good time. If He does want me to do anything, I hope He'll tell me real loud, 'cos little girls can't think of much at picnics 'cept the nice things."

Dolly had come now to the covered bridge that crossed the river. Just as she reached the other end and was passing out of the bridge, she heard a sob, and down by the very edge of the river, half buried in the green ferns and tall flags, she found Bessie Stone, crying as if her heart would break.

"Why-ee!" said Dolly, "what is the matter, Bessie?"

Never a word from Bessie, only she cried harder than ever. "Come, Bessie," said Dolly, "I heard the teams comin' when I was on the bridge. We'll miss 'em if we don't hurry."

"Oh, dear, dear, I can't go! I can't go! I lost my money down through the bridge, and now I'll have to stay at home."

"Run home and get some more," suggested Dolly.

"Mamma can't give me any, 'cos she's poor. I picked up chips for Mrs. Bean and earned this. I never went to a picnic in all my life, and I wanted so much to go to this." And the tears came faster and faster.

"Dear, dear!" said Dolly, "never been to a picnic?"

"No," said Bessie, "an' I worked four weeks to earn the money. I had it in my hand, and I stopped to tie up my shoe on the bridge, and I laid the money down on the bridge, and there was just a little crack, and it fell through."

They were not far from the school-house. They could hear the gay chatter of the boys and girls as they came together, and then the loud rumble of the teams as they drove up. Bessie gathered up her sunbonnet and basket, and then, with a very sad face, started to go back over the bridge again and home.

Did somebody whisper to Dolly that she jumped up so suddenly? There wasn't a live creature in sight except a very old frog. But Dolly heard very distinctly these words in her heart: "If God has anything He wants you to do to-day, don't fail Him, will you, dear?"

Another moment, and Dolly went flying back over the bridge, and caught Bessie, and crowded the precious handkerchief that had her money in it into her hand. "Here's my money," she said; "now go quick, Bessie, or you'll be late." She was a little afraid she might change her mind if there was any delay.

Then poor Dolly went home again; and when she told her mother why she had come back, she had to wink very fast to keep the tears back, but in spite of all she could do there were two or three that squeezed through. Mamma dropped the turnover she was making on the molding-board, and took Dolly in her arms, and gave her a hug.

"Why, Dolly," said she, "I'd rather my little girl should do a thing like that than have her made a queen."

Mamma gave up her baking, and devoted herself to her daughter all day. They had dinner out under the old elm, where the sunlight peeped through the leaves in little dancing flecks all over the table. And then they went out in the woods for a ramble after wild flowers. And the little girl was full of sunshine all day long. "Somehow," she said to mamma, "I keep growin' gladder and gladder all the time."

Bessie stopped on her way home to thank her. "I never had such a good time in all my life," she said to Dolly, "and I'll never forget it in you, Dolly Carr—never."

"It's been the beautifulest day I ever had," said Dolly, when she was snugly tucked in bed that night.

"And I know why," said mamma.—Presbyterian Messenger.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 1, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 10: 25-42; I Sam. 27-31; II Sam. 1.)

Sunday, 1; Luke 10: 25-42. Verse 25, The question, "What is truth?" is an important one to ask, and it is a noble employment of the mind to search after truth; but the highest question of all is this one of the lawyer: "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Verse 26, There is no authority to answer the question, "What shall I do to have eternal life?" but the Bible. Verse 37, That general love to man which leads one to do good wherever there is need and opportunity is one of the great blessings which true Christianity gives to the world. Verse 38, The anxious Martha was the first to welcome Jesus into the house. Persons of very different natures may be true Christians.

Monday, 2; I Sam. 27. Verse 1, When trials are many and long continued, we should think how God has helped and led us in times past, and not lose faith. David's resolution to leave his own land and go among the Philistines, showed a discouraged, faithless state of mind, and was wrong. Verse 9, This indiscriminate slaughter was one of the wicked things in David's life. His object was that no one might be left to tell the truth to king Achish. Verse 10, It was wrong for David to go among the Philistines; this was followed by the greater wrong of the cruel massacre of a defenseless people; then by lying he practiced a gross deception upon his royal host; one wrong leads to another.

Tuesday, 3; I Sam. 28. Verse 1, The presence of David in their own country, the dissatisfaction in Israel with Saul, and the death of Samuel, led the Philistines to believe that now was the time to invade the land of Israel. Verse 7, One whose soul is in communion with heaven has no need to resort to the "mediums" whose business is made profitable, because there are so many dark, distempered and superstitious minds that seek this way of gratification. Verse 9, This woman's profession was forbidden by the divine law; and as a guilty person she feared punishment. Lev. 19:31; 20:27; Deut. 18:9-14. Verse 15, Can it be supposed, that when God had refused to speak to Saul (verse 6), that now, in a way absolutely forbidden by God's law, devoid of all trickery and satanic influence, he gets a real communication from heaven? The Bible declares it to be another step in the rejection of God for Saul to go to this woman, for which he in punishment met his death. (I Chron. 10:13; Lev. 20:6.)

Wednesday, 4; I Sam. 29. Verse 3, David was completely ensnared by his wrong sojourn among the Philistines, and now is found in line marching against God's people. Verse 9, How many times has God rescued us from troubles of our own devising! The unhappy consequences which may follow a false step, a departure from the straight course of duty, should lead us every day to watch and pray.

Thursday, 5; I Sam. 30. Verse 3, Again David is punished for his wrong-doing. When one gets into an evil way, he may think that each trouble it brings to him will be the last; but he will find no rest in his wicked course. Isa. 57:20, 21. Verse 4, The right way to do when we have gone astray is to turn to the Lord and trust in Him for deliverance. In true faith we shall find comfort and energy, that we may make war against our sins.

Friday, 6; I Sam. 31. Verse 1, Under the leadership of bad men, Israel was in no condition to get a victory over the Philistines. Bad leaders will ruin any nation. Verse 4, Saul had some good traits, and many advantages to begin life with. Like all others he had a battle to make against evil within himself, and against the temptations from the world. The bad got the ascendency in his life, and he died a wretched man. Verse 11, The inhabitants of Jabesh-Gilead never forgot the kindness of Saul to them in the beginning of his reign. (Chapter 11.) They showed their gratitude by rescuing the bodies of Saul and his sons from the Philistines.

Saturday, 7; II Sam. 1. Verse 4, The Amalekite thought to win David's favor by his story of Saul's death. It is evidently false, and by his wrong calculation, his falsehood cost him his life. Where the devil promises a good as the reward of evil doing, he wants his pay in advance, and compels his victim to take the risk of losing not only the desired good, but also his peace of mind and eternal life. Verse 27, David had every reason to appreciate the love of Jonathan. He never again could have such a friend.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(The Little Children. Ezekiel 18:4.)

1. They belong to God. There is nowhere an intimation in the Bible that any little child belongs to the devil. If they die, they go to heaven; and if they live, they are the Lord's just as much as if they die.

2. God requires that they be treated with tenderness and care. The Jews were trained by their laws to look up children with an interest far beyond that of the other nations of antiquity. Our Lord went far in advance of the Jewish interest, and surprised His disciples by blessings upon the little ones. He rejected adults, but He never rejected a little child, or the parents who brought them to Him.

3. We cannot meet our obligations to Christ if we do not bring up our children in the church. Christ's church is His kingdom in this world, in which is every soul that belongs to Him. When and where do our boys and girls get the idea that they do not belong to Christ; that they are outside of the church; that they belong to the devil? Do they not become prodigals, because they are not trained as belonging to Christ?

The Household.

PRAISE MEETING OF THE FLOWERS.

[By request we give space to this beautiful poem, although it is of unusual length, that it may be used in preparing for Flower or Children's Sunday.—ED.]

The flowers of many climates
That bloom all seasons through,
Met in a stately garden
Bright with the morning dew.
For praise and loving worship
The Lord they came to meet,
The box of precious ointment
The Rose broke at His feet.
The Passion Flower His symbols
Wore fondly on her breast;
She spoke of self-denial
And what might please Him best.
The Morning Glories fragile
Like infants soon to go,
Had dainty toy-like trumpets
And praised the Master so.
"His word is like to honey,"
The Clover testified,
"And all who trust thy promise
Shall in thy love abide."
The Lilies said, "O trust Him,
We neither toil nor spin,
And yet His house of beauty
See how we enter in!"
The Kingcup and her kindred
Said, "Let us all be glad;
Of His redundant sunshine,
Behold how we are clad."
"And let us follow Jesus,"
The Star of Bethlehem said,
And all the band of flowers
Bent down with rev'rent head.
The glad Sunflower answered,
And little Daisies bright,
And all the cousin Asters,
"We follow toward the light!"
"We praise Him for the mountains,"
The Alpine Roses cried;
"We bless Him for the valleys,"
The Violets replied.
"We praise Him," said the Airplant
"For breath we never lack;"
"And for the rocks we praise Him,"
The Lichens answered back.
"We praise God for the waters,"
The gray Seamosses cried;
And all His baptized Lilies,
"Amen! Amen!" replied.
"And for the green, cool woodlands,
We praise and thanks return,"
Said Kalmias and Azalias,
And graceful, feathery Fern.
"And for the wealth of gardens
And all the gardener thinks,"
Said Roses and Camelias
And all the sweet-breathed Pinks
"Hosannah in the highest!"
The Baby Blurts sang;
And little trembling Harebells
With softest music rang.
"The winter hath been bitter,
The sunshine follows storm—
Thanks for His loving kindness,
The earth's great heart is warm."
So said the Pilgrim Mayflower
That cometh after snow,
The humblest and the sweetest
Of all the flowers that blow.
"Thank God for every weather
The sunshine and the wet,"
Spoke out the cheerful Pansies
And darling Mignonette.
And then the sun descended,
The heavens were all aglow;
The little Morning Glories
Had faded long ago.
And now the bright Day Lilies
Their love-watch ceased to keep;
"He giveth," said the Poppies
"To His beloved sleep."
The gray of evening deepened
The soft wind stirred the corn
When sudden in the garden
Another flower was born.
It was the Evening Primrose
Her sisters followed fast;
With perfumed lips they whispered,
"Thank God for night at last."

A TRUE EXPERIENCE.

BY A. C. B.

Two years ago I married a lawyer and left home. My brother, two years younger than myself, had then just finished school, and, the law being his chosen profession, he accompanied us to our new home, and for one year studied in my husband's office. He was a bright, lovable, manly boy, and made friends wherever he went.

Last winter he entered the law department of the university of a neighboring city, and through the kindness of a dear white-ribbon sister he obtained a home and almost a mother's care at the W. C. T. U. headquarters. He earned his board in the restaurant department, and we received good reports of him, both in school and at headquarters. Our minds were quite at ease about him, and we were so grateful to the dear woman who had found him such true-hearted friends in the loneliness of a strange city. But alas, we forgot the snares which the wicked spread.

Near to the W. C. T. U. was another restaurant, but how different the scene within. There were elegant pictures, gilded mirrors, rare flowers, beautiful music, and everything with which to delight the eye and the ear. But in the midst of all this splendor, unseen by the victim's eyes, the serpent crawled and writhed and hissed. His venom was all the more poisonous because he was so delicately nurtured. Of all the untold evil wrought by this fiend, from the low grog-shop up, the most terrible is accomplished by the splendid, glaring saloon.

The proprietor of this place had marked my young brother for his prey. His bitter hatred of the W. C. T. U. extended to all in any way connected with it. The unsuspecting boy was lured in by the flowers, the music, and, above all, by the smooth speech of the tempter. Then he was offered larger wages to assist in the restaurant, and thinking he might now have the opportunity of attending some good lectures and concerts, he consented. He thought he was strong enough not to touch the liquor or tobacco. He wrote us simply that he had changed his boarding place, and now made a trifle besides his board.

At first we suspected nothing wrong, but soon a faint, almost imperceptible, something in his letters made us fear that all was not well. This suspicion grew into a certainty, and the certainty into an agony. It was the old, shameful, disgraceful story—lemonade "with a stick in it," sweet cider, light wines, a mild cigar, etc.

My heart-broken mother brought my little brother, and together we went to the city. We obtained his address from the W. C. T. U. matron, whose tears fell fast in sympathy as she told us. We entered a small court near a side door, and I said: "You stay here, mother, and I will go and bring him out."

She put her arms about my neck, bowed her gray head upon my shoulder and her trembling, sob-shaken voice replied: "My daughter, I cannot let you go into that awful place. Something tells me I shall never see you again. Oh, how can I let you go, and how can I bid you stay!"

I answered, "Mother, I will not go inside, I will stand at the door where you may see me and will call to my brother, and he will come out."

I tremblingly approached the door and looked in. I had seen drunken men before, with varied feelings of pity, anger, compassion, contempt. They were not of my own heart's blood. But I think the sight I saw there will be before my eyes, sleeping or waking, till I die. My bright, brave, handsome young brother, my mother's hope, and the pride of us all, groveled upon the floor, beastly, senseless, silly drunk! His eyes, which we had last beheld so bright and sparkling, were half closed and covered with film. His clothing soiled and disarranged, and his voice thick and heavy. He vainly tried to rise, and sitting half up sang a few words of a maudlin, obscene song. I tried to call him but my voice failed me, and I could only whisper, "My brother, oh, my brother!"

My little brother who had crept to my side said, "I will go and get him tc come out." Before I could interfere he had gone in. The music, the flowers, the laughter, the dazzling lights so fascinated his childish eyes, that he stood as one in a trance. Then wildly I called, first to one brother and then to the other, but the noise within drowned my cries, and then the door was closed leaving me outside in the dark, and both my brothers—one in the budding promise of a perfect manhood, the other with the baby look scarcely gone from his face—swallowed up by that horrid, loathsome throat.

Then I fell upon my knees and prayed as I had never prayed before, "Lord Jesus, help and save and pardon. Here I dedicate my life to this Thy cause. Let Thy wrath fall upon the leaders and drive the curse from our otherwise favored land. Oh, God, have compassion on my gray-haired, sorrowing mother, and on all such wherever they may be found."

Then I awoke, my pillow wet with tears and myself exhausted by the violence of my emotion. It took some time to convince myself that I had dreamed and that my dear brother was safe and happy, eagerly pursuing his law studies, and gaining new friends each day, by his steady habits and his bright, unselfish disposition. And I said, "Thank God it was only a dream but it shall be a lesson to me." In my security I have been too indifferent. All my loved ones, father, husband and brothers, are on the right side, and through having no sorrow of my own I have failed to sympathize with the sorrowing ones. I have seen our local W. C. T. U. go down without making one effort to prevent it. God helping me I shall yet do some good work for the stricken women whose bleeding hearts cry out, "My son, oh, my son."

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

BY M. C.

In view of this question as to the Bible in the public schools, I, as a public school teacher, am much concerned. I am grieved every day because forbidden to read extracts from the Holy Word, or to pray with my pupils. Still, I do not actually stop teaching the Bible, for it is full of verses to which no one can object, and which I give as mottoes for the day, repeating them in concert with the pupils until they are committed to memory. After which we sing hymns to which no one can object, but which are virtually prayers. I have thought that as the opposition to the Bible rises so largely from ignorance of what it contains, perhaps if we could have a little book printed with excerpts suitable for reading to the children, dividing it into convenient sections as the revised version is, it might be permitted in the school room. Such a book would be very useful to teachers in the country and small towns where there is no definite opposition to the Bible, for very often they do not read it in the schools just because they do not know what part would do most good. Children can be made to take a great interest in Bible selections, or the exercises can be made exceedingly tiresome to them, according to the teacher's ingenuity. Are we really a Christian people while the highest authority we have is ignored in training our children in right living? If the sisters and mothers of the land do not bestir themselves, surely nobody will, since no one loves the children as they do.

Could we not call such a book "Helpful Mottoes for the School Room"? Then these mottoes could be written on the blackboard and memorized by the children. We might take them in alphabetic order, for instance: "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger." "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." "Cease to do evil, learn to do well." "Do good unto all men." "Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure and whether it be right." I have two complete alphabets selected, which contain teachings that neither Catholic nor Jew would find the least fault with, and great good would be done if they could be taught to thousands of children. Extracts from the utterances of men and women of great and noble nature would also help very much to make such a book acceptable.

KITCHEN TEMPERANCE, OR, A MODERATE USE OF THE BROOM.

BY CARRIE T. WOODARD

The Bible enjoins upon us temperance in all things, and although we are accustomed to think the word temperance applies more exclusively to our drinking, yet it may equally well apply to our eating, or to the expenditure of our time, our money or our strength.

The latter phase of the subject, which may include kitchen temperance, or a moderate use of the broom, seems to impress me as being very important. I cannot, however, in this case, advocate total abstinence, but only moderation, for cleanliness and godliness go hand in hand.

But I believe that Satan is pleased when he finds a woman who thinks her first duty in this world is to fight the "demon dirt," if she confine her efforts to that contained within the four walls of her own home; but if she lay down her broom, and go out into the world to fight spiritual dirt, or social impurity, he immediately assumes the defensive, for that is his realm; and, then it is he tries in many a wily way to thwart her best endeavor.

The natural desire in woman to be called a good housekeeper, or a model housekeeper, has, many times, tied her hands of usefulness in the world, and made her a slave to her broom. She fights with desperation every atom of dirt; the ever intruding dust finds no chance to repose on her shelf; and the cobweb in the corner is never permitted to reach completion.

In her personal appearance she may be the very embodiment of neatness: but let us look more carefully, for she is a three-fold being. There on the neglected shelves of the mind plenty of dust has accumulated; and the cobwebs of the brain have become so thick as to entangle many a beautiful thought, which otherwise might fly out on the wings of language to benefit humanity. She has no time to dust off the shelves of her mind and place there some beautiful gem of thought, gleaned from some good book or periodical, to talk over with husband or children at the evening hour. Her soul is shriveled and dwarfish, for she has had no time for prayer; no time to commune with her God and enrich her soul; instead she is often too tired to smile, too weary to be pleasant.

It may be her son, who, missing the brightness he ought to find in his mother's face, goes out into the street, to seek it in the gilded saloon. A lady with whom I have a personal acquaintance affords me a striking illustration of the point in view. She has always been known as a perfect housekeeper. Her kitchen stove, which received a daily polishing from her own hands, always shone like a mirror. Her front veranda, so often freshly scrubbed, was too clean for her son to step on, and he was taught the back way into her home. All through the long and happy summer time, God's own beautiful sunlight was banished from every room of her home, save the little back summer kitchen. She feared his warm and genial rays would pale the color of her beautiful carpets.

She loved her boy, in her way, but she was a slave to her broom, and it made demands upon her which she felt bound to consider before she did those of her child; and while he was learning the back way into her home, he was also learning other back ways more questionable, mysterious, dark and hidden ways into sin and crime. He learned the way to the saloon, and he learned the way to drink, and in a drunken carousal, when his brain was crazed with rum, he shot and killed a man; and to-day he is wearing out his weary existence behind the iron bars of our penitentiary,—the son of that perfect housekeeper; the son whose bed at home rivaled the fresh snow-drift in its whiteness; the son whose linen always showed the result of a mother's careful cleansing, but whose heart showed the result of neglect.

It takes work to make the character good; it only takes neglect to make it bad. In the garden of the heart weeds and briars spring up spontaneously, but the good seed must be planted and carefully tended; and the mother who neglects this heart culture—this planting and weeding while the soil is tender—fails in the sweetest mission of motherhood.

She who is continually and exclusively looking after the physical nature, to the neglect of the higher intellectual and spiritual nature, will find at last that "Dirt," against which she had declared eternal enmity, has come out victorious at the close of the battle. For her body, itself, is but an animated piece of clay, and when the soul is done using it as a vehicle in which to ride while on the earth, it will simply drop it in the dirt, and in a few short years it will become as the dirt which covers it.

How much wiser and better, then, if we could spend more of our time and energy trying to make clean that part of our being which shall live forever; and endeavoring to brighten those qualities of the soul which shall shine through all eternity; and in trying to inspire those about us with a greater desire for heart purity and a cultivation of the soul.

Columbus, Ind.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A. AMES. ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

What prayer and supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man the plague of his own heart, and spread forth his hands toward this house, then hear thou in heaven thy dwellingplace, and forgive, and do, and give to every man according to his ways, whose heart Thou knowest, for Thou, even Thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men. —I Kings 8: 38, 39.

Prayer is the key of the morning and the bolt of the night.—Beecher.

PRAYER AS A PRACTICAL FORCE.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, like the great missionary movements, was born in prayer, has been nurtured by prayer and lives only by breathing this, its vital air. Its strong women are not of the sort who disconsolately sigh, "There is nothing left but prayer." They do not make it only a last resort, when all their own efforts have failed; to them it is first in importance and in power. Their faith in prayer is not founded on the result of any skeptical "prayer test," but upon the sure word of God, and its fulfillment to his servants throughout past generations. These prove prayer to be a practical power in the affairs of men, the key to ever-present help in time of trouble. Bunyan's pilgrim is not the only one to whom dungeons have opened at the touch of the key, all-prayer.

Nehemiah, confronted with the bitter tidings that the walls of Jerusalem were cast down, the gates thereof burned with fire, and the sepulchres of his fathers laid waste, fasted and prayed, then went to his daily work as the king's cup-bearer. When the king asked, "What is thy request?" he prayed unto the God of heaven before preferring it. The answer to that prayer came in letters to governors and to keepers of the king's forests, in military escorts and all things necessary to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. When Sanballet and Tobias threatened to overthrow his work, "Nevertheless, I made my prayer unto God," records how he successfully resisted their machinations; when false prophets besought him in the name of the Lord, to leave his work and flee to the temple for safety, he saw through their pious fraud and his stalwart reply, "Should such a man as I flee to save his life? I will not go in," shows the fiber which is wrought into a man's soul by prayer.

Similar conditions surround us to-day, and we need similar soul fiber; the walls of "the country called home" are broken down, its gates are burned with the fire kindled by appetite and passion; Sanballet and Tobias are on every side, false prophets are counseling ignoble flight, we need the spirit of Nehemiah's "Nevertheless, I made my prayer unto God;" we need his full assurance of faith that prayer will be answered.

And we have granite rock of experience in God's answering prayer on which to found this assurance; passing over the wonderful Crusade days, whose experiences in answered prayer have been so vividly brought to mind by the Crusade camp-fires, let us recall a few other instances to strengthen our faith in prayer as a practical force in our every-day lives. While Daniel was yet praying, the angel who had been "caused to fly swiftly," touched him, bringing the desired answer; scarcely less marked answers have been vouchsafed to our tired workers, though they saw not the angel who brought them, nor felt his touch upon their shoulder.

At the close of a peculiarly trying day's work, Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, who at that time had charge of the Gospel work of the Chicago Central union, was preparing to go home, just as the postman brought in the last mail. Feeling utterly tired out, her first thought was, "This mail must wait till morning." But mechanically she opened one of the letters, and was astonished to find it contained a request from a lady in Cincinnati to hunt up her brother who a wayward boy, had left his home some three years before, and had become a wanderer. The sister did not know positively that he was in Chicago, but giving a description of his personal appearance, and the clothes he wore when he left home, she asked that an effort might be made to find him. This added burden put in the form of a request so utterly impossible from a human standpoint, broke even the strong spirit of Mrs. Rounds, and she exclaimed to her devoted friend and co-laborer, Mrs. Wilson, who stood at her side: "Do hear this! What can we do? The entire police force of the city might be summoned in vain to such a task." Mrs. Wilson's reply was, "Let us ask God to find him, and bring him here."

Locking the office door, these two weary women knelt and spread the letter before the Lord. This was Saturday night. On Monday morning as Mrs. Rounds took her seat at her desk, almost the first person who entered the room was this young man, answering to the description given in the letter. He asked to sign the pledge, and when she read the letter, withholding the name of the writer, the fountains of the great deep of his heart were broken up, and kneeling by Mrs. Rounds' side, he cried unto God for deliverance, and humbly confessed his sins. When asked how it was that he came to that room, he replied: "When I was opposite the entrance something seemed to say to me: "Go up those stairs and sign the pledge."

This was God's answer to the earnest prayer of His servants, who, utterly helpless, brought their cause to Him.

Jennie Smith, who has led hundreds of souls to Christ, recounts answers to prayers, not only in recovery to health, but in the every-day needs of life. At times she and her family were in sore straits, dependent entirely on the sale of her books for their daily bread. Scattered through her diary are such entries as this: "I begged of my Heavenly Father to send some one to buy a book, as that was all I had in the world to bring in anything. Within an hour a lady called, who said she was so impressed that while she was out she must come and get one of those books." Again: "We had sold nothing for several days, and I felt constrained to ask, in our morning devotions, that some one might make a purchase that day. My faith was so strong that I was not surprised when Miss Sharp called and bought fourteen dollars' worth of goods. She said she was impressed that she must get the goods of me." We might multiply instances showing that our "Heavenly Father knoweth that we have need of these things," and stands ever ready to give them to us for the asking.

"Pray for me, mother," said Miss Willard, as she held her mother in a close embrace when parting with her for a long, hard journey. "I do little else than pray for you when you are away," responded that heroic mother. "I know it, mother," Miss Willard replied, "and that is the reason that we go safely, never a carwheel breaks, never a car runs off the track, never a collision occurs on any train where we are, because mother's prayers encircle us." And who can gainsay this—thinking of the thousands of miles traveled annually by Miss Willard, without an accident? The same is true, in large measure, of other workers constantly traveling and always in safety, as though He had, indeed, "given His angels charge concerning them."

Answers to united prayer have been so marked as to attract world-wide attention. Missionaries on foreign fields always expect an outpouring of God's spirit to follow the Week of Prayer, and seldom are they disappointed. A similar experience has been ours in our concerts of prayer. The first week of April last year was largely observed in the unions as a time of concerted prayer for better observance of the Sabbath: it was no accident that before two months had passed, President Harrison promulgated the order forbidding Sunday parades at military posts, and several leading railroads greatly decreased the number of their Sunday freight trains.

Dr. E. K. Alden, home secretary of the American Board, sent to missionaries all over the world for testimony concerning the power of prayer in their work. He incorporated their answers in a paper on "The Place Occupied by Prayer in Missionary Work," read at the last annual meeting of the Board, and published in the November Missionary Herald. The most skeptical cannot read it without being impressed with the truth that prayer is a vital, practical force in human affairs. The spirit of prayer comes upon a little circle of missionaries. One testifies: "It was not common prayer, but wrestling with the angel of the covenant with strong crying and tears. Everything was awfully solemn, such as language cannot express. The worth of souls and the love of Christ pressed upon the conscience and heart almost too strongly to be endured." This continued for a week, through the day and often far into the night, the burden of prayer being the conversion of souls in the mission school. "We compassed its walls seven times by prayer," wrote one. The answer came in the conversion of nearly the whole body of students. Another writes of help in every-day trials sent in answer to prayer: "My experience has been that while there is no miraculous intervention, there is direct and positive help, and while there is no overruling or setting aside of human peculiarities or imperfections, 'if any man lack wisdom' he has simply to 'ask of God who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not,' and it shall be given him."

This God is our God as He is the God of the missionaries, and has done and is ready to do as great things for us as He has done on foreign fields. His help is ready for every time of need. A missionary writes: "Is a horse to be purchased, a new house to be built, a servant to be engaged, the location of a preacher or teacher to be changed, a Bible-woman selected, it cannot safely be done without prayer. How often the bowed head of the missionary, sitting on the floor of some gloomy village room, betokens prayer for guidance in choice of a subject for a sermon or prayer-meeting talk to the hungry people." How often is this experience duplicated by our gospel temperance workers!

Surely we have had enough answers to prayer to prevent our ever doubting its efficiency. How often has Mrs. Carse come into our office, when starting out on some particularly hard mission in connection with her work as president of the Central union, and gathering us around her, said: "You must pray with and for me before I start out." Never did she return unsuccessful from a mission thus inaugurated. This Publishing Association, her crown of rejoicing, is a striking monument to the efficacy of prayer; it was born of prayer in the home, of Mother Wallace in Indianapolis, incorporated in its by-laws the provision that every session of its directors' meetings shall be opened by prayer, and has never taken one step without seeking the guidance of God. Its most informal business meetings, though there may be present only its president, editor and business manager, are never held without prayer, and daily prayer ascends that God will guide every pen that writes, every hand that sets its type. Here, we are sure, is the secret of its unparalleled success in sowing broadcast "the leaves that shall be for the healing, not the hurt, of the nation." Let this review of what has been strengthen our faith in what shall be, through prayer as a practical force.

MOTHER WALLACE AT ENGLEWOOD.

An inspired prophetess! was the thought of many as our Deborah stood before them with hand upraised, and much of the fire and mystery in her face which painters love to throw into the faces of the old prophets. The occasion was the closing evening of an Equal Suffrage Convention at Englewood, the place the most beautiful, home-like church we ever saw, as well it may be, built under the supervision of Rev. Florence Kollock, for eleven years the beloved pastor of the flock worshiping there; the topic, "Woman Suffrage Essential to Further Progress in Civilization."

She presented the Bible argument, commencing with Genesis, and showing that woman was included in the original grant, "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness, and let them have dominion." Woman is the correlative part with man of the pattern of Godhead included in the "us."

All down through the ages of Scripture history she traced God's thought for woman, till that thought is brought to life and light in Jesus Christ, the Emancipator of woman. "Surely all equal suffragists should hold firmly to the divinity of Christ," she exclaimed. Many points made by her were almost startling in their originality, yet the longer we consider them, the more reasonable do they seem.

One cannot look into her grand face without thanking God for her, and for a cause which inspires to such living and thinking as hers. What butterfly of fashion, what narrow-minded keeper within her "traditional sphere," can at seventy-three years of age show such vigor of mind and body, such greatness and gentleness of heart as Zereida Wallace? This grand address of an hour finished the work of a two days' convention, in all of whose exercises she had been an interested listener, or an active participant; the hour of closing was late, and many younger women were "too tired to sleep," but Mother Wallace went to sleep almost as soon as her head touched the pillow, and slept sweetly as a baby till five o'clock in the morning. Then she was up, bright as a dollar, and had an hour and a half's conference with one of the leaders, on the good of the kingdom before breakfast.

Our work often illustrates beautifully the correlation of human forces; a striking instance of this is the relations of Mrs. Wallace and Helen Gougar—the younger all on fire, fearless, sometimes to rashness, impulsive, a born fighter; the elder calm, judicious, equipoised, they are perfect complements to each other. Mrs. Gougar says that every little while she has to go to Mother Wallace to get toned down. The events of the past few weeks had roused her wonderfully, and her great Bloomington speech was delivered at white heat. In the reaction wnich inevitably follows such an effort she wrote Mother Wallace: "I am losing my graciousness, and need to come to you and be toned down, have you read St. Paul to me, and put me into a good frame of mind generally." But our Deborah thought the occasion demanded strong measures rather than sweetness, and so responded: "Go on, Helen, in your own way. I don't want you to have any more graciousness just now."

That speech of Mrs. Gougar's is having a wide circulation, 45,000 copies of it were sold in about two weeks, and still the demand increases. The New York Prohibition committee are talking of ordering 100,000 copies for distribution in that state.

A NEW PHASE OF TEMPERANCE WORK.

Those of our readers who live in large cities must have noticed how the poorer and middle classes flock to the parks of the city on the very first opportunity. One can see all phases of human nature and all classes of humanity by simply sitting still and watching the people as they go by. No one has the temerity to say in the daily papers that the expenditure of the large sums of money needed to keep the parks bright and attractive is misplaced. Indeed, no one seems misanthropic enough to make a whisper of a growl that the parks cost too much. It would be a hard heart that could deny to the countless thousands of children and weary mothers the rest they get from seeing the lovely flowers, hearing the inspiriting music, meeting friends and neighbors, enjoying fresh, untainted (except by tobacco smoke!) air, and in short, the gain of new life and courage for daily duties. We use this as an illustration for the possibilities of another step in this line which, while it may be a new thought to our readers and open to many objections, has in it the seed for much action in needed directions.

All who read know that the amendment campaigns have, in every instance, been lost in the cities; that if the country alone could vote on this all-important question we should undoubtedly have national prohibition. The reason for this state of affairs is also well known. The large cities of the land had, in 1880, about seventy-five per cent of foreign parentage included in their population. In New York City this percentage was eighty-eight, and in Chicago over ninety-one! If the space could be given we would tell how the people in cities live, but instead must refer you to such books as "Our Country," "The Prisoners of Poverty," and to a good look around you.

What better use could Government make of its surplus revenue, than with it to teach the ignorant, the degraded, the foreigner and the home-born, that in alcohol there is a most dangerous delusion and snare? Here is our thought: Let the Government set apart a large sum of money, buy land in the crowded parts of our cities—the tenement-house regions where churches are not to be found and where the saloon evil flourishes like the green bay tree—on these lots erect large buildings which, for lack of a better name, we will call "Homes for the People." These homes are to serve the year around for the people as the parks serve in the summer time, and do even more, as we will attempt to partially indicate.

There should be one of these "Homes" for, say, every five thousand of the inhabitants of a certain district, and adapted to at least the three following named requirements: First, a place where, at any time of the day or evening, mothers could come with their children and babies and have a restful time, finding amusements and kindergartens for the children, and rest and comfort for themselves. Second, a place where, out of working hours, young men and young women could come, find plenty of good reading, see good pictures, hear good music, and meet others like themselves. Third, and most important of all, a place of education, where, in the evenings and on holidays, all ages and classes could be taught the evil effects of narcotics, especially alcohol and tobacco—where the masses might learn how to make the best possible use of their surroundings in the way of living hygienically and happily—where they can be taught what American liberties and institutions really should be. This does not mean "a course of lectures," but the presentation of such lines of thought as we have named, and the many kindred ones which we have no space to even hint at, by means of experiments, pictures, popular talks, etc., given by a corps of specialists under government employ, who shall go regularly and steadily from one of these neighborhood Homes to another, showing men and women, boys and girls, the way to a better manhood and womanhood, and pointing out the dangers that lie ahead of their footsteps.

We would like to amplify this thought, but cannot, for we have two more things we wish especially to say. First, the objections and the objectors; there will be plenty of both, but for the present we will write of one only. "The plan is impracticable, it would at once have to go into 'the dirty pool of politics,' and be run on a partisan basis." But why? With the proper agitation it could be worked up as a strictly non-partisan scheme, one which could be shown as greatly needed and whose success would result in lessening at once the serious dangers that now threaten our country. Second, will the W. C. T. U. champion such a movement? Remember the argument that the ignorant and massed-together foreigners of the cities do the voting that defeats the will and desire of the home-born people of our land, and that they vote in an ignorance which grows more and more dense; that our churches by their own confession are doing almost nothing against this terrible influx of foreign life; and last, that the liquor traffic is getting its strength and growing power from these same people, and is paying but a moiety of its wealth to our government for the protection which it is afforded. Can we attack the liquor traffic at any more vital point? With such a cause we could well appeal to the people to be heard and partisan politicians would be obliged to listen to the voice that can be recognized above all clamoring—the demand of the people.

How could such a plan as this be brought to public notice? The W. C. T. U. does not need any information on this point—it knows how to use the press and the pulpit, from past battles, the only question for its decision is, would it be best and advisable to undertake so great a work?

It seems to us that it would—we could work for such a government blessing by the side of any politics now before our country, and when the success should be gained (for success would surely come), the working classes would ever turn to the women of the W. C. T. U. as friends who labored for them. The plan has in it all the elements of popular success, and its pushing need not be delayed; here the very class of people who most strenuously object to anything that has the hated "temperance" word in it would be more than ready to help along a plan to give both amusement and instruction. What say you, friends? Shall we not put the force and energy of the W. C. T. U. into this plan, to lead up the people to a higher level, one where they can hear the call, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor," where now they only hear a call to a low dance house, or to the theater or to the saloon?

Special Difficulties.

PLEDGE.—"I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including Wine and Cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same."

QUERY.—What do you think about wearing bonnets in convention?

ANSWER.—In the interest of clear ideas they ought not to be worn.

QUERY.—What is your opinion about the propriety of giving specific names to local unions?

ANSWER.—We think well of it, but would not confine the names to our own workers or leaders. Florence Nightingale, Elizabeth Fry, Jean Ingelow, Frances Ridley Havergal, and a score besides would furnish beautiful names for local unions.

QUERY.—What would you say to the question box in the local union, county, district and state?

ANSWER.—We strongly favor it. So many timid women who sit silent in a convention are not silent because they are lacking in ideas; they are fairly bottled up with questions they do not get the courage to ask, and this outlet will be most helpful, not only to their enthusiasm but to the edification of those who listen.

QUERY.—Should the union vote on names presented for membership?

ANSWER.—By all means; names of those desiring to unite with the union should be presented at one meeting and voted on at a subsequent one. This gives to the ones joining a feeling that they are welcomed by the union and that joining it is not a mere form, but a pledge of active service. On the other hand, this safeguard is necessary as a protection to the union against designing, unworthy women. It is not an unheard of thing for such to seek admission to the union, as an indorsement of themselves and their projects. This is a growing danger, for as the W. C. T. U. is becoming so popular it is well worth an adventurer's while to seek admission into its ranks, to further private ends.

QUERY.—A leading speaker writes as follows: "I have noticed that the W. C. T. U. read more publicly and quote more the Old Testament than the New. What is the reason?"

ANSWER.—We think it is because the W. C. T. U. is set for the defense of the faith, is a sort of Isaiah to this generation, and must set before the people the terrors of the law that they may afterward be brought to grace. First comes conviction and repentance, later on salvation. This is just as true of a nation as it is of individuals.

The Watch-Tower.

"Discouraged! Why?
Doth love e'er die?
Doth God forget His own?
The sparrow's cry
Doth reach the sky:
Is thine the less upborne?"

***

Mrs. Harlan, of Wilmington, Ohio, carried the first petition to the Ohio Legislature when the Crusade was on. This lady is the mother of Mrs. Clevenger, now corresponding secretary of the Ohio W. C. T. U. Mrs. Judge Thompson made the first prayer in a saloon at the opening of the Crusade.

***

Judge James H. Thompson, husband of our Eliza Thompson, who led the Crusade, puts forth the following question: "Are not the questions of total prohibition, and the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and of woman suffrage, foregone conclusions of state policy affirmatively determined in the American mind?" Answer, yes. He then gives a concise and conclusive statement of the reasons why he believes woman is to prove the Nemesis of the liquor traffic.

***

"Whatever sins Christians can't do themselves they license sinners to do on shares." So writes a severe correspondent, but while not absolutely true the words have "truth enough to chew on."

***

Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender, attorney for the National W. C. T. U., recently appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States and made the motion for admission to practice as an attorney of Miss Emma M. Gillett, of Washington, D. C. This is the first time in the history of this or any other country that one woman has moved the admission of another to the highest court of the land.

***

Herrick Johnson is author of the famous sentence that closes the resolutions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church for '89: "So far as the liquor traffic is concerned, we would welcome its annihilation."

***

La Salle Seminary, Auburndale, Mass., is a unique school. For fourteen years it has used the method of self-government first introduced among young women in the college at Evanston when it was under the care of our National president. Prof. Charles Bragdon is at the head of La Salle School; his Sunday evening prayer meetings are especially interesting. A card with topics for the year is given to each student. Some of these topics are so helpful that we give them. "Christ for us, to us, in us;" "Steadfastness:" "Thou shalt be first, I will be last;" "What is religion?" "Fear not;" "Our conversation;" "Making the most of life;" "The comfort of the Bible;" "A successful life."

***

Among the few American women in Bombay is Dr. Emma Brainard Ryder of New York, who came to India in company with Ramabai. She is becoming prominent through her active interest in educational and philanthropic work, and is a large-hearted and large-brained woman, with a finer medical culture than any man or woman in this great city. She has identified herself with temperance, is a W. C. T. U. woman, and was a delegate to the National Congress held in December from the Bombay branch. She will be long and affectionately remembered for her "Sorosis," a literary club for Parsee, Eurasian and Christian young women, which is doing much good.

***

Mrs. Ella Dietz Clymer, the new president of Sorosis, is one of the most remarkable of the coming women of America. She was always precocious and versatile. A native of New York City, she was thoughtful and spiritual minded from the first. She has done a good deal of literary and dramatic work, and has been a reciter and interpreter of modern ballad poetry. In this capacity she is considered to be unequaled, and has had a fine career in England as well as in this country. Moncure D. Conway said of her: "Personally she looks the finest character she represents, possessing a beauty and expression almost unique,—a delicate, moonlight beauty." Her first poems were published in '73. In '77 appeared "The Triumph of Love;" seven years later, "The Triumph of Time," and soon after that, "The Triumph of Life." These books have been published in England and America. She was elected president of the recent convention of Women's Clubs in New York City, and is at the head of its executive committee. Her temperament is religious, and she has a taste for the mystical. Her mother was Mrs. Dietz-Hallock, a woman of much character, and the pioneer teacher of the kindergarten system in New York, a close friend of Miss Elizabeth Peabody, of Boston.

ON DUTY.

Queen's Gardens.

"TALITHA CUMI."

BY JULIA MORTON PLUMMER, M. D.

The hearts of thousands of women must have been stirred by the strong and searching message which appeared in your columns February 6, from William T. Stead, our brave fellow-worker across the sea.

With the realization of the terrible truth of his words, there must have come to the heart of American womanhood an overwhelming longing to do something to lessen the present evil and avert the future danger, and we have wished we could know how to translate this longing into adequate words or actions which should somehow meet the need in a real way, however small it might be.

Women who are thus longing and thus questioning may gain a practical hint along the line of simple preventive work, from a brief account of what one church is doing to raise and hold its young women to higher ideals of womanhood.

Among all the clubs, and classes, and guilds, and circles, we have one which we call the "Talitha Cumi Circle," for the express purpose of teaching the girls to think deeper and better thoughts about womanhood in general, and their own womanhood in particular.

We talk frankly and seriously about the facts of heredity, and the responsibility which these facts lay upon every young woman to think of herself in the light of a possible mother, and to prepare herself for that highest and most sacred of all callings, by cultivating, with God's help, such a condition of body, mind, and spirit, as she would wish to perpetuate in the little new life which may sometime be given her. We speak tenderly of motherhood as a glad and welcome thing, and as one of the highest motives for making the very best and most of ourselves.

We speak of fatherhood as a reason why we should think solemnly of marriage, and of the choice of a husband, since the responsibility of parenthood is a dual responsibility. And because this is so, we realize that young women must insist upon such qualities and habits in the men they marry, as they would wish to see transmitted to their children.

We exalt the privilege and duty of woman to set the standard for manhood at nothing less than absolute purity—to strike that high note and hold it until man responds.

That we may learn how to care for our bodies and minds, and make ourselves strong and womanly women, fit for motherhood or any duty to which God shall call us, we have simple, practical talks on physiology, hygiene, dress, occupation, marriage, amusements, etc. We meet only once a month. We should be glad if it were oftener, but our girls are so busy that they can hardly spare the time, and the earnest interest is by no means lost in the interval. We have an attendence of from thirty to forty, varying from sixteen to twenty-five years of age.

We chose our name "Talitha Cumi Circle," from the words of Jesus to the little maid whom He took by the hand, and lifted up into new life. "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise," seemed to us beautifully suggestive of His call to us to arise from all lower and less worthy thoughts and motives, into the noble possibilities of Christian womanhood.

This application of "Talitha Cumi" was suggested indirectly by the use which I once heard Hope Ledyard make of it as a text for her talk to girls.

I am confident that a multiplication of "Talitha Cumi" circles would in a quiet way do much toward saving our girls from low standards, frivolous thoughts and dreams of the future, false notions of marriage and maternity, and the failure to "read their titles clear" to the sweet dignity and power of woman's work in the world.

News from the Field.

COLORADO.

NOTES OF OUR WORK.

One of the most worthy charitable institutions of Colorado is that of the "Ladies' Benevolent Union" of Pueblo. Mrs. J. S. Sperry, who has been matron of the institution since its first organization, gives a reception annually for her friends and those interested in ner work. Those who have attended any of these receptions know that Mrs. Sperry spares no pains to give all an enjoyable time. The last, held on March 25, if anything, excelled those given heretofore. The solos by Mrs. E. K. Alden and Mrs. C. Neugabauer were delightful, as was also the music by Robinson's orchestra. Of the invited guests, one hundred and twenty-five sat down to the banquet. Among the strangers present were, Mrs. E. F. Leonard, city missionary of Denver; Mrs. M. E. Brazee, president of the Denver Central union, and Mrs. Eva Higgins, president of the southern district, all of whom gave addresses. At the close of the banquet, Mrs. E. P. Fish, in behalf of Mrs. Sperry's friends, presented her with a handsome silver service, gold lined. A gift well merited and a complete surprise to the recipient.

The quarterly convention of the El Paso county W. C. T. U. was held at Manitou, Thursday, April 3. The county president, Mrs. E. W. Chambers, presided. Mrs. Eva Higgins, president of the southern district, was present, and added much to the interest of the discussions.

The afternoon session was given up to reports from unions and discussions of various phases of work. The Manitou Park union deserves especial notice, being located in a small village. Although it is not three months since its organization, this has already twenty-five members, and has taken up work with an energy and enthusiasm which would put many older unions to shame.

Saturday afternoon, the Colorado City union gave a reception for Mrs. Higgins which was an enjoyable season. Sunday evening Mrs. Higgins gave an address in the Union Chapel in West Colorado Springs, where it is hoped to organize a union soon. On Monday she visited the society at Manitou Park; on Tuesday at Florissant, and Wednesday at Colorado Springs, after which she attended the Arapahoe county convention and the state executive committee meeting in Denver, and lectured at Monument the following Sunday evening.

Miss Kate Smith, of Salida, sends in an excellent report as press superintendent. Will not other unions be aggressive in this line of work, and report any work they are doing that will be helpful and encouraging to others? Miss Leech, press superintendent of Boulder, has secured a column once a month in the Sentinel. The Salida union divides space in the Chaffee County Call with the Band of Hope.

The elections in Salida, Longmont and Colorado City have been of lively interest, as the best citizens in each of these towns have asserted their rights to demand better municipal government.

Our state president, Mrs. Thompson, has recently organized unions at Berthoud, Erie, Louisville and a Y. W. C. T. U. at Longmont. The latter includes four of the public school-teachers. This is a good indication that the work is taking root in the minds of the people generally, as well as in the hearts of the mothers. Parlor meetings are adopted as one line of work by this organization of Y's. Colorado generally needs more of the social element to take the place of the sociability of relatives that takes such a prominent part in the life of all in the Eastern states, but is well-nigh lost sight of in the West where so few relatives are located in any one place.

Our thanks are due to our state president for ten dollars donated to the state for literature. If only every member of the W. C. T. U. realized the power of the press and literature in any shape, we would duplicate our distribution of literature an hundred fold. The publications of the W. T. P. A. are increasing in value and interest. Among the pleasing samples that have come to hand are the stories of "Helping," "Van and Vet," and the sequel to the latter, "Prove It."

At the recent state executive committee meeting, action was taken to adopt the plan to secure one hundred subscribers to THE UNION SIGNAL each month. It is hoped every union in the state will take hold of this plan heartily.

Arapahoe county held its fifth quarterly convention at the M. E. Church of West Denver, April 10. The session was most interesting throughout. The national constitution was adopted by this convention. Mrs. Beach read a proposition from the Glen Park—Colorado Chautauqua—management, offering land to the W. C. T. U. of Colorado at greatly reduced prices under certain conditions.

The superintendent of juvenile work, Mrs. E. C. Burton, reported four active Loyal Temperance Legions in the county and another soon to be organized. One Y. W. C. T. U. has been organized since the last county convention, and representatives were present to learn more of the work.

At Salida the Y's propose to welcome all respectable young women of whatever vocation and condition in life. Why not? The W. C. T. U. has for its purpose the uniting of the sisterhood of woman for one common purpose leading up to the ideal Christianity which makes all one in Christ Jesus.

Good work has been done in Arapahoe county in the way of distributing literature among foreigners. Mrs. Leonard, city missionary of Denver, reported meetings held every Sunday afternoon and several evenings through the week, and one hundred calls monthly on sick and destitute families. Mrs. Clark, of the evangelistic work, reported two meetings held in North Denver with good results, and Mr. Sinclair, a converted saloon-keeper, has held several meetings near the Railroad Mission. Mrs. McGahey reported work among the families of railroad men, and found that spiritual food was more readily received after material food and clothing had been provided.

Mrs. Kennedy, of jail and prison work, reported services held in the woman's ward of the county jail every Sunday, and literature distributed in both male and female wards.

The superintendent of scientific instruction reported a readiness on the part of superintendents and teachers to aid in the work, and that a column had been secured in the Educational Journal.

The evening session was occupied by the address of the county president, Mrs. Cassell, the report on resolutions, and an address by Mrs. James Havens, on "Woman's Work in the Temperance Cause."

One of the resolutions reads as follows:

WHEREAS, There are places of amusement in Denver that advertise "No Street Walkers or Disreputable Women Admitted Under Any Pretext," and

WHEREAS, The W. C. T. U. recognizes but one standard of morality and virtue for both sexes, and that the influence and lives of disreputable women are no more demoralizing than that of disreputable men, therefore,

Resolved, That we enter our most solemn protest against any discrimination, and that men who visit disreputable women shall be subject to the same rule as said women, and that the same be strictly enforced.

The annual convention of the northern district will be held in Denver, May 8 and 9, and of the southern district in Colorado City, the second week in June.

E. W. CHAMBERS, Special Correspondent.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

FIRST DISTRICT CONVENTION. SUFFRAGE NOTES.

The department of franchise having been made the special line of work this year in South Dakota, all district and county conventions have, accordingly, given that subject a prominent place on their programs.

The first district, which held its annual convention at Parker, April 2-4, devoted the first evening to a discussion on this leading issue, in which both women and men participated, after which, Miss Matilda Hindman spoke and organized a Turner county Equal Suffrage Association.

Twenty-four unions were represented in this convention by delegates or reports, and the ten counties comprising the district have forty-seven unions, with a membership of over six hundred. Thirty voting members were present, and splendid reports were given in the various lines of work. Twenty-six new unions and three county unions were organized during the year, all the result of Dr. Nettie Hall's successful labors in the district. The Y reports were exceedingly encouraging, especially on the line of finance.

Among the excellent things of the convention were the following papers, each of which was followed by discussion: "Hygiene," Mrs. J. R. Davis; "The Tobacco Habit," Miss Anna A. Smith; "Equal Suffrage a Protection to Purity," Mrs. M. M. Davis; "Narcotics," Mrs. J. E. Bailey; "Some Needed Legislation," Mrs. J. M. King.

Mrs. Nash was appointed as a committee to have a banner made for the district, and Mrs. O. J. Ward was elected delegate to the annual National Convention, with Miss Emma Swartz, alternate.

The first district contains some of the best workers in the state, and this was the best convention yet held. Mrs. Barker, state president, was present throughout the convention, as was Miss Hindman, who is doing most excellent work in the suffrage cause in South Dakota, and whose coming is made possible by the generosity of California suffragists.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. D. W. Meyers, Vermillion; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O. J. Ward, Parker; recording secretary, Mrs. J. M. King, Yankton; treasurer, Mrs. H. H. Blair, Elk Point.

The second, third, fourth and fifth districts, and most of the county unions are preparing for their annual meetings during May and June, and have engaged one or more of the ablest suffrage lecturers to be present. Mrs. Helen M. Gougar has donated a series of suffrage lectures to the course in the state, and will lecture before the third district convention, June 5, at Faulkton. Miss Susan B. Anthony is now in the field with headquarters in Huron, giving suffrage lectures and lending her splendid organizing abilities, indomitable energy and invaluable experience to woman's cause. Miss Nelson, of Red Wing, Minnesota, sent by Minnesota suffrage friends, is doing successful work, and Dr. Anna Shaw, won, while here, an army to the cause by her scholarly, unanswerable arguments and oratorical powers. She visited only the largest cities, but will return in August to remain until election, to the great delight of all who love the cause. Mrs. Emma Smith De Voe, assistant state superintendent of franchise, who has been doing such successful suffrage work for more than five months past, is now in the Black Hills in the same cause.

The Prohibition Law takes effect to-day, May 1, and what with informing themselves of its provisions, and carrying on a campaign for equal suffrage, the South Dakota women are the busiest women in the world, and need the prayers of all Christians that they may have physical and mental strength to work out the grand moral reforms now before them.

PHILENA EVERETT JOHNSON,
Special Correspondent.

EASTERN WASHINGTON.

STATE CONVENTION.

This was held at Colfax, April 24–26. More than fifty of Washington's most intelligent women were present as workers, and many more as visitors. Miss H. G. Moore, of Ohio, and Miss I. C. De Velling, National lecturers, were present, and were ever ready to aid with cheering and helpful words. General state officers present were: Mrs. Lucy A. Switzer, president: Miss H. M. Peet, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jennie F. White, recording secretary. The Colfax ladies had made every preparation to entertain the guests, and the Baptist Church was beautifully decorated with flags and banners and thrown open for use of convention.

Reports were read from every city and town in the state, breathing an increase in temperance sentiment and interest in the work. In the evening the president's annual address was given.

The second day's session was made interesting with more reports of work done, devotional exercises and remarks from national workers, and discussions by the delegates. One feature of the afternoon devotional hour was a temperance experience meeting, each woman giving her reason for engaging in W. C. T. U. work. Some things said were very touching. While it is true that a few go into the work for the name of the thing, the majority do so because of strong temperance principles, or it will be found that the bravest and best workers are led into it because intemperance and its attendant evils have blighted the hopes and lives of loved ones.

Another interesting thing was the collection of a free-will offering; each woman present who could give anything at all was asked to write her name and the amount on a slip of paper, and on the opposite side a Scripture text bearing upon the subject of giving. The largest amounts were two sums of two dollars each, and the accompanying texts were, "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God," and "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." The second text was the most popular one and must have been chosen by fully one-half the givers. The smallest amount was piece of money wrapped in a note which read, "Just one little nickel," and on the other side, "She hath done what she could." The amount and its very appropriate text brought down the house. The offering amounted to over thirty dollars paid, and five more pledged. Friday evening Miss Moore lectured in the M. E. Church in her usual pleasing and forcible manner.

Saturday morning occurred the election of officers. Mrs. Lucy A. Switzer, of Cheney, was unanimously re-elected president. The entire audience greeted her return to the platform by rising to their feet and waving their handkerchiefs. Mr. E. C. Graves, of Spokane Falls was elected corresponding secretary in place of Miss H. M. Peet, who leaves soon for New York. Miss Peet retired with the thanks of unions for her able service in the past. Mrs. Alter, of Colfax, was elected recording secretary in place of Mrs. White, of Spokane, the latter retiring because of other and nearer duties in the cause. Mrs. Hamblin, of Spokane, was elected assistant recording secretary. Mrs. McArthur, of North Yakima, was re-elected treasurer.

The following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That being convinced by past experiences that this work is of God, we do humbly declare our consecration to him, and express our trust in His guidance for the future.

Resolved, That we rejoice in the steady advance of public sentiment towards final prohibition and equal suffrage.

Resolved, That we do cordially co-operate with our National W. C. T. U. in its great enterprise of erecting a Temperance Temple in Chicago, and respectfully recommend the mite-box system.

Resolved, That as our hope for the future is in the children and young people of the present, we therefore recommend vigorous work in the Sabbath schools, Loyal Temperance Legions, medal contests, and among our Y's.

Resolved, That in order to uphold the principles inculcated in scientific temperance, we urgently request that no person be employed as teacher, or allowed to serve as a member of school board who indulges in tobacco or intoxicating liquors.

Resolved, We demand the removal of all revenues from alcoholic liquors, and the withdrawal of license of the social evil.

Resolved, We demand for men and women the same compensation for equal labor, and a like standard of morals.

Resolved, That we encourage the passage of the Sabbath rest law and the enforcement of existing law for Sabbath observance.

Resolved, That the condition of the political prisoners of Russia calls forth our heartfelt sympathy, and we promise all aid in our power by prayer and petition.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse our 'round the world missionaries, Mrs. Leavitt and Miss Ackerman.

Resolved, That we re-affirm our loyalty to the National and World's W. C. T. U. and to the Prohibition Party. And we recommend that the women of Washington be on their guard in receiving untried workers, lest our house become divided against itself.

Resolved, That we are earnestly waiting for the decision of the M. E. church on the admission of women into its general councils. We ask these Christian brothers and sisters to be consistent in this matter, as the church needs woman's influence in all its undertakings.

This report disposed of, it was time for good-byes, and the delegates who were obliged to go, left for the train, leaving the remaining delegates to finish the business and to remain over Sunday. Miss DeVelling's lecture occurred Saturday evening. A tired but happy set of women turned their faces homeward to take up the duties of their own home circles.

We do believe in the triumph of our cause. The good we do is in His name, and since He called us to this have we not a right to great faith in the final triumph of the good? It is only because people are ignorant of the workings of the W. C. T. U. that they fail to have an interest in it. It is reaching out to touch the very foundations of all good work done "For God and Home and Native Land." Each one of us can say with Whittier:

"Ring bells, in unreared steeples,
The joy of unborn peoples!
Sound trumpets far-off blown,
Your triumph is my own!
Parcel and part of all,
I keep the festival,
Fore-reach the good to be,
And claim the victory!"

MINNIE BEARD O'NEILL.

NEW YORK.

CAYUGA COUNTY CONVENTION.

The semi-annual convention of the W. C. T. U. was held at Genoa, April 23 and 24, Mrs. Mary L. Boyce, county president, presiding.

The proceedings of the convention were harmonious and earnest. Each session was opened with devotional exercises, and several members who arrived on the evening preceding the convention met for a prayer and consecration service, seeking for a special blessing upon the work and the workers.

Mrs. Cadmus, in behalf of the Genoa union, extended a cordial welcome to which Mrs. Searing, of Auburn, gave a fitting response.

Reports given by presidents of local unions formed an interesting feature of the program, and excellent papers were presented on the following subjects: "The Vital Need of the W. C. T. U.," by Mrs. Buchanan; "Helps and Hindrances to Temperance Work," Mrs. Mabey; "County Fair Work," Mrs. E. D. Mosher; "Obedience from the Standpoint of Christ, 'Thy Will not Mine be Done,'" Mrs. S. C. Crossman; "Why the W. C. T. U. Should Advocate Peace and Arbitration in Opposition to War," by Mrs. H. Elizabeth Jones; "The W. C. T. U., What it has Done and its Aims for the Future," by Miss Eva Osburn; "Relation of the 'Y's' to the 'W's'," by Miss Florence Dangerfield. The discussion which followed these able papers was interesting and profitable.

The report of the corresponding secretary was listened to with interest, and the convention was cheered and encouraged by the announcement of the reorganization of the Union Springs workers. The address of Mrs. Mary L. Boyce, county president, contained practical suggestions on the different branches of work, gave a broad view of the fields already white unto the harvest, and urged upon the laborers the necessity of earnestness and consecration.

Mrs. L. P. Davies, state superintendent of scientific instruction, brought greetings from Livingston county union, and presented various methods for the advancement of work in connection with her department. An excellent report of the state convention held at Auburn was furnished by Mrs. Clark. Remarks were made by several members, directing the attention of all white-ribboners to the importance of securing information in regard to W. C. T. U. work through the columns of THE UNION SIGNAL and our state paper—Woman's Temperance Work. Subscriptions were secured for these papers during the convention, and among the resolutions adopted was the following:

Resolved, That in justice to ourselves and to the work, it is necessary that we subscribe for our state and National papers.

A large audience was present during the first evening session, held in Academy Hall; after the usual devotional exercises, Rev. D. H. Conrad greeted the convention in behalf of the pastors, speaking words of counsel and encouragement, and expressing appreciation of the helpful relations of the W. C. T. U. to the great work of elevating and evangelizing the world. A response to the pastors' greeting was followed by a selection, entitled "An Earnest Cry," by Mrs. Brown.

Under the careful training and leadership of Mrs. A. V. Fox, the Loyal Temperance Legion of Genoa delighted the audience with a "Mother Goose" entertainment, in which the bright, eager faces of the children, with their grotesque costumes, their sweet voices, and the promptness and enthusiasm with which they entered into the spirit of the recitations and choruses combined to make the exercises complete. Mrs. P. J. Adams, of Moravia, gave an interesting report of the National Convention at Chicago; the choir furnished excellent music, contributing much to the enjoyment of the convention.

On the evening of the second day, Mrs. L. P. Davies delivered an address, giving, as the foundation for her remarks, the historical account of the fall of Jericho; and making a forcible application of that wonderful victory gained through faith and obedience to the "Jericho" of intemperance and vice.

Miss Grace Hayden recited "Grandma Robins' Mission," which was so well received that a selection entitled "Jerry" was rendered by special request, and also by request Mr. Theodore Miller sang "Where is My Wandering Boy To-night?" Appropriate remarks were made by Mr. Murphy, editor of the Genoa Herald, in behalf of the Good Templars. The thanks of the white-ribboners were due Mr. Murphy for many courtesies extended and full reports of the convention.

The convention appreciated the presence of the pastors, who manifested sympathy and interest in the work by their regular attendance and by participation in the discussion of papers. Pleasant memories of the hospitality of Genoa friends will long be cherished by the workers who were present on this occasion.

LILLIAN OSBORN, Rec. Sec.

NORTH CAROLINA

NOTES OF WORK.

We have had the best results from the shortest time which we have ever had in our W. C. T. U. work here. Mrs. Barney began at Raleigh on the evening of April 5, by speaking in the Mission Church. Sabbath morning she visited the penitentiary and the county jail. Sabbath afternoon she held a temperance Easter service in the church. At the close of this service she was invited to occupy the pulpit in the M. E. Church for the evening. At the close of the evening service she was requested to meet the women Monday morning and organize a local union. This she did, and Mrs. Winston is president of the new union, and will do all in her power to make it a success.

Mrs. Barney was as well appreciated at Durham, Greensboro and Thomasville, and gave the work such an uplift as only one who lives near the Saviour can do. We are anxious for her return for an unlimited time.

The faithful, untiring services of Mrs. Marriage Allen among the colored people in North Carolina should be mentioned in THE UNION SIGNAL. Mrs. Allen spares neither her strength nor her means, but consecrates all her energies to the work. She visits schools and colleges, interests the young in scenes from her extensive travels, and awakens an interest in total abstinence. On this, or a subsequent occasion, she solicits signers to the pledge, which is administered in an impressive manner to all who have given their names, and the whole circle of total abstainers kneel, and a blessing is invoked that they may have divine help in this effort toward a better life. Then this circle is formed into a society of workers, or united with one already formed, from the adult colored people. Mrs. Allen spent a month in North Carolina, laboring among the colored people of the largest cities, and banding them together in organized effort. This work is fast preparing the women of this race for the ranks of the W. C. T. U. Already the colored women are devising plans, and at no distant day they will be organized into a state W. C. T. U. Mrs. Allen introduced a simple method of daily Bible study. Her efforts will long be remembered and many prayers follow her. MARY C. WOODY.

MISSOURI.

HOWELL COUNTY CONVENTION.

The county W. C. T. U. held its first annual convention at West Plains, April 22, in the Baptist Church, which had been beautifully decorated with flags, flowers, mottoes, etc.; and the day was made bright within although a cloudy, misty day without.

The convention was called to order by the president at ten a. m. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. January, after which we listened to an introductory address by our district president, Miss Carrie Lee Carter, which was full of instruction and encouragement. After appointment of committees, we had reports from two unions, Willow Springs and West Plains, showing good condition of the work at both places. Noon-tide prayer and adjournment.

At 2:30 p. m. devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Shotwell, president of West Plains union. After a spirited song by the children, "We'll never touch the wine," and report of credentials committee, the convention proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, electing Mrs. M. E. Benson, of West Plains, as president. The choir then sang, "Sowing the seed," after which excellent papers were read by Mrs. January and Mrs. O. G. Hatchett.

Resolutions were adopted, recommending that special work be done in the juvenile department, mothers' meetings, against the use of narcotics, and in earnest effort for building up social purity; urging the use of unfermented wine at the Lord's Table; expressing loyalty to the state and National W. C. T. U., and fully indorsing the position taken by the National President; declaring for equal suffrage; and returning hearty thanks for all courtesies received.

The evening services were opened by singing the national anthem, "For God and Home and Native Land." Devotional exercises were conducted by the Revs. Leyda and Preston, after which a very earnest address of welcome was given by the Rev. Mr. Wright, pastor of the Baptist Church, which he had so kindly opened for our convention. A few appropriate words of welcome were then given by Mrs. Shotwell. A welcome song was sung by the children, and a few touching words of response were given by Mrs. Chase. A solo, "A Mother's Prayer," was beautifully rendered by Miss Alice Massey. Miss Carrie Carter, our district president, then addressed the audience, and her words were highly appreciated. A liberal collection was taken, and twelve new members were added to the West Plains union.

Although in its infancy, the W. C. T. U. of Howell county is in a very hopeful condition, and promises to do a much-needed work, and we also have the coöperation of the ministers, as was shown by their encouragement at our convention. Every one left with a new inspiration for service. Convention adjourned to meet at Willow Springs, April, 1891. MARY E. BENSON.

KENTUCKY.

JEFFERSON COUNTY CONVENTION.

This was held at Trinity M. E. Church, Louisville, Ky., on May 7. The convention was opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Barr, president of the Y's, Mrs. Munnell, state president, occupying the chair, and Miss Gibson, acting as secretary.

The usual committees on constitution and resolutions were appointed. Papers and discussions of the various branches of W. C. T. U. work were followed by special remarks on juvenile work by Mesdames Munnell, Schrader, Davis and Culter. Mrs. M. A. Watts gave an inspiring talk on "Scientific Temperance Instruction," and the noon hour having arrived, led in prayer, supplemented by the Lord's Prayer repeated in concert. A paper by Mrs. Snodgrass on the helpfulness of mothers' meetings called up a discussion which resulted in a special prayer for the distillers.

At 12:30 the delegates and visitors were invited to an elegant lunch, which was served in an adjoining room, and which bore testimony to the dainty and substantial domestic qualifications of the W. C. T. U. ladies.

The afternoon session was opened by devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Davis. The reports of committees on constitution and resolutions followed. Prominent in the resolutions was the pledge of loyalty to the National and state W. C. T. U., which was responded to with much enthusiasm.

A few remarks on "Young Women's Work," by Mrs. Matlack, showed the Y's as doing very well. She also presented a plea that the Y's and W's get themselves down to a business basis in regulating their financial matters.

The election of county officers then took place resulting in the election of Mrs. Barr as president, Mrs. Matlack as secretary, and Mrs. Woolford as treasurer.

All necessary business having been transacted the convention adjourned with prayer. After a few minutes of social chat the ladies dispersed feeling that the day had been helpful and had given them renewed courage, strength and faith. MRS. MATLACK.

MASSACHUSETTS.

WORK AT VINEYARD HAVEN.

The ladies of the place formed a W. C. T. U. in October, 1889, and have met regularly at the Methodist and Baptist Churches until recently, in turn. On Tuesday evening, April 15, rooms lately secured by them were formally opened with interesting exercises. The president, Mrs. G. W. Eldridge, welcomed the guests with a few appropriate words and Rev. J. E. Hamilton offered prayer. Addresses were made by Revs. D. W. Stevens, J. E. Hamilton and Mr. William Swift; music was furnished by a quartette choir and a recitation, "Only a Drunkard," was given. Refreshments were then served and a social time enjoyed.

We feel very grateful at having secured these rooms, which are so admirably adapted to our purposes, being centrally located, large, light and airy. The object now is to furnish them for use as reading rooms for sailors, and young men and boys about town who are sadly in need of some such place in which to spend their evenings.

In addition to the W. C. T. U. a band of about seventy children has been formed. This was organized by Mrs. Helen G. Rice, of Boston, who lectured to us one evening upon the juvenile work, particularly. The W. C. T. U. had held a concert previous to her coming, in order to be able to defray her expenses, and were very successful, clearing fifty-five dollars. MRS. J. E. HAMILTON, Press Supt.

ILLINOIS.

VICTORY AT PITTSFIELD.

The fifteenth of April, 1890, will long be remembered as a red-letter day in the history of Pittsfield. It was a day when the forces of the home were arrayed against the forces of the liquor power, and when five as arrogant high license saloons as ever cursed a community were completely routed.

For five years this town of three thousand inhabitants has been dazed by the high-license fallacy. Most of the time we have had five saloons, each paying a license fee of from $1,500 to $1,800 a year, and yet we were a long way from prohibition, and apparently traveling at a rapid rate in the opposite direction.

Last summer the W. C. T. U. began holding gospel temperance meetings in the park every alternate Sabbath afternoon, utilizing home talent for these services. We moved into the churches as the winter approached.

Whenever there was money enough in our treasury, speakers from abroad were brought in, namely: ex-Governor St. John, the Rev. R. M. Harrison, Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Gougar. In this manner the foundation was laid for the campaign.

Five weeks before the election the ladies of the union called a mass-meeting, and in as plain words as the English language affords, laid before their brothers the condition of the town, and the manner of conducting campaigns in the past; and be it said to the honor of our temperance men, we met with a right royal response. They organized immediately, appointed a campaign committee of five of the best men in the town, and before a week they had the license men on the defensive. The surrounding towns and neighborhoods began sending in protests against the re-licensing of saloons at the county seat.

Every Thursday night and Sunday afternoon anti-license meetings were held, usually in the court-house.

The last week we had meetings all the time. Jesse Harper, with his quaint humor and pounding logic, addressed crowded houses for four nights. Then came Mrs. Gougar for three days, talking to the women, the children, the colored people and the voters, putting everybody to work, and arousing all by her magical eloquence and courage. The temperance people crowded the largest church in town the night before the election to listen to her last appeal. At the same time the license party had called a meeting at the court-house. Quite a number of women determined to attend this license meeting, but as the women approached one door, the license party vanished from the other. We now had them on the run. They dare not transact the ordinary business of nominating a ticket in the presence of women.

The next day at least sixty women presented themselves at the polls. They decorated the old court-house with flags and bunting; served hot coffee and lunch in the school superintendent's office; electioneered like old campaigners all day long; won the admiration of our temperance men, and the respect and cordial hatred of the license leaders, and, best of all, helped to win victory for the home.

A change of one hundred and fifty-five votes from last year, in a total vote of five hundred and twenty, gave us an average anti-license majority of one hundred and ten. We had now conquered our foes. Good enough for a trial campaign.

Then what a jollification we had! bell-ringing, bonfires, marching and music!

As a trophy of this victory, Pittsfield union presents to the organization at large a Y. W. C. T. U. of thirty members. We ask you to make room for these girls, and pray for them that they may be "as corner-stones polished after the similitude of a palace."

MRS. ELLA M. ORR, Pres. W. C. T. U.

EDGAR COUNTY CONVENTION.

This met in annual convention in Paris, April 22 and 23, with Mrs. M. E. Easton, county president, in the chair. Thirty delegates and visitors, representing the eleven local societies of the county, were present, as was also Mrs. C. V. Walls, president of Douglas county, and Miss Anna Elliott, of Ridge Farm, Vermillion county.

Mrs. Rounds, state president, was with us, and spoke in Opera Hall in the evening to a multitude.

The work is looking up in every way in Edgar county. We now have eleven unions where we had only two six months ago. SECRETARY.

ILLINOIS NOTES.

Miss Mary Cowan, the active superintendent of the Y's, is visiting a number of county conventions in the interests of her department, and is winning golden opinions for herself.

Mrs. D. W. English, state superintendent of work among miners, has sent out during the last few months a great quantity of monthly readings, leaflets and other literature bearing upon her department of work. She reports the appointment of thirty-six new superintendents, making her roster in the state to number one hundred and six.

County conventions have been held during May by the sixth district at Pecatonica and Rochelle; by the eighth at Grand Ridge; by the ninth at Gibson City and Fairbury; by the eleventh at Cordova, and by the twelfth at Jerseyville; the fourteenth at New Holland, Lane, Lexington, Casner, and Cerro Gordo; the fifteenth at Champaign, and by the eighteenth at Greenville.

Coles county convention was held April 23 and 24 at Mattoon. Mrs. Rounds was present and strengthened the hearts of the workers. The district president, Mrs. Reprogle, and Miss Clara Parish, district organizer, were also present, and gave good service. There are eleven saloons and five drug stores in Mattoon. The union was much strengthened by the presence and work of the convention.

Mrs. L. S. Rounds is in the field, doing grand work in the ninth and fourteenth districts. She has during the month visited Lane, Gibson City, Lexington, El Paso, Casner and Minauk. She will also speak at the Missouri state W. C. T. U. convention in St. Louis, May 22. Her lecture, entitled "Labor and Capital," is being received with enthusiasm, and is helping on the cause of temperance in a marked degree.

The first district W. C. T. U. will hold a convention at Grand Crossing June 12 and 13. An excellent program is being prepared for the two days, and it is expected that Mrs. Rounds, Miss Hood, and other speakers will be present. Each union in the district is entitled to three delegates, besides its president. Will the unions of this district please consider themselves notified, read this notice in their unions, appoint delegates, and notify Mrs. Theodore Bassett, Grand Crossing, of such, so that places of entertainment can be provided?

NEBRASKA.

AMENDMENT WORK.

The semi-annual meeting of the executive committee of the state W. C. T. U. was held in Lincoln, April 23-26. Perfect harmony prevailed. Each member was impressed with the importance of the work before us. Our great need now is money to send literature into the western part of the state, and to assist in sending speakers there. Rev. Frances Townsley, evangelist and our state superintendent of evangelistic work, anxious to contribute to our campaign fund, gave a ring to be sold for that purpose. The ring was made from a watch that was given by her father to her mother—both of whom are dead—many years ago; and though she prizes it highly, she feels that her dear mother would be glad to have it used for so noble a purpose as helping to save the homes of Nebraska. She is a very successful evangelist, but is now in poor health, and has but little of this world's goods. Such a sacrifice cannot fail to have its effect, and others will undoubtedly contribute to the collection of souvenirs. Mrs. Mary M. Lantry, Omaha, Nebraska, was made custodian of souvenirs, and will gladly acknowledge all articles received.

The W. C. T. U. of Jerseyville, Illinois, sent $10 for the state campaign fund, and we hope many other unions will be moved to do likewise.

The committee decided to purchase two tents. One has already been secured, and if any reader of THE UNION SIGNAL knows of a good second-hand tent to sell or rent, please notify me immediately, giving terms, etc. The tent must be large enough to seat not less than eight hundred people, and a larger one preferred.

Jennie F. Holmes, state corresponding secretary, was made campaign manager with headquarters at Lincoln. At a joint meeting of the executive committee of the W. C. T. U., the chairman of the prohibition central committee, the president of the state non-partisan league, and a representative from the Good Templars, agreed to the following plan of work:

That a joint committee be elected, composed of one or more from each of the above mentioned organizations, who shall hold meetings at stated times and plan for the work of the entire state in order that no part shall be neglected and to prevent any clashing of appointments.

There is a determination on the part of all to work unitedly and harmoniously to win votes for the amendment. JENNIE F. HOLMES, Cor. Sec.

KANSAS.

CALL TO PRAYER.

Our union at Kingman decided several weeks ago to hold, aside from all other meetings, a special prayer service, every Monday evening from that time until the election in Nebraska is over. The re-submissionists are busy seven days in the week in our own fair state, and are equally zealous in Nebraska working for high license, and shall we not lay aside every other work of every kind and spend one hour each week on our knees before God, imploring His blessing upon our efforts to save our dear ones from that awful thing—a drunkard's grave! The three meetings we have held have been so blessed to us, that we have thought best to ask others to join us, and now we ask especially, that every union in Kansas and Nebraska will get as many praying men and women together as possible on Monday—or some other evening that is convenient—and lay this matter before the Lord, asking Him to fight this battle for us, as only our God can cope with the powers that are arrayed against us. It has been declared by those present in our meetings that such pleading for our own loved ones, and for those "who put the bottle to their neighbor's lips" had never before been heard in Kingman, and when we have the promise that where even "two are agreed as touching anything" that they shall ask of the Lord, what may we not expect when such a multitude of voices go up before God as the voice of one man, pleading with Him that our own righteous law may be kept on our statutes, and that our sister state may have such a law upon hers. We shall be glad to receive a postal card from any union that will hold such a service; our own meetings have been so helpful, that we want to sing the doxology over every report of a union whose "heart is as our heart" in this great battle "for God and Home and Native land."

MRS. MARY C. GILLETTE, Cor. Sec.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

GOOD words come regarding the work of Miss Stephens and Miss Estey in Iowa. The latter held a very successful meeting at Pleasant Plain, Sunday, April 27. Her address is spoken of in the highest terms; and Miss Stephens is "abundant in labors" in the literature department.

THE Temple at Effingham, Ill., was packed, April 24, to hear Miss Willard, many coming for miles around, and from adjacent counties. The W. C. T. U. there is doing good work, and the new Loyal Temperance Legion prospers finely. Dr. McLish was engaged for an address, May 17, and a grand time was anticipated.

THE work of Mrs. C. B. Buell in conducting a school of methods at the McKean county, Pa., convention, is highly commended, and is regarded by the workers as most helpful.

A SILVER medal contest was held at East Machias, Maine, April 4, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., which brought out some fine native talent, the speakers entering into the subject with spirit. The entertainment was appreciated and enjoyed by a crowded house, and was a means of rejoicing to the union for so potent an influence in their work. The medal was awarded to Miss Virginia Porter, and was presented by Mrs. Ruth Hanscom. Emma Hall stood No. 2, and Rosy Holmes No 3, both showing excellent ability as public speakers.

THE W. C. T. U. at Brownville, Nebraska, was organized a year ago by Mrs. C. M. Woodward, with but eight members. The members have been actively at work, however, under the leadership of their president, Mrs. Uptagrove, holding socials, concerts, and various entertainments, and soon had a flourishing treasury. They have held three silver medal contests, and aspire to the gold medal. The union meets every Tuesday, and holds a gospel meeting every Sunday night. Of course the union has grown in strength and numbers.

THE W. C. T. U., of Spencersport, N. Y., mourn the loss of a faithful and valued member in the death of Mrs. Julia Kincaid. She was active in many lines, and was especially successful in leading the mothers' meetings of the union. She had prepared to lead the temperance meeting of the society of Christian Endeavor, but before the time came for this meeting the call of the Master came for her change. She was the center and soul of the W. C. T. U., the Church Missionary society and the Sunday-school. Her Bible class of eight young men bore her remains to their last resting-place. She passed away in holy triumph trusting in her Saviour.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The eighth annual convention of the W. C. T. U. of West Virginia will convene in the Fourth St. Methodist Episcopal Church at Wheeling, June 4-6. The executive committee will hold a preliminary meeting at the same place, June 3, at eight o'clock. The special features of the occasion will be an address by Geo. W. Bain, of Lexington, Ky., and a School of Hygiene, conducted by Dr. Hattie B. Jones, assistant physician of the West Virginia Insane Hospital. JANE A. JOHNSON, Pres.
MAUDE MONTGOMERY, Cor. Sec.

Official Communications.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE CONGRESS

It is probably known to all our membership that a National Temperance Congress is to be held in Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., June 11, to which the W. C. T. U. is invited to send delegates.

The following have been chosen to represent the National union: The General Officers; the Executive Committee; the Board of Superintendents, and the National Organizers. We also request each state president to at once appoint delegates to represent her state union, and we earnestly urge that as many as possible attend all the sessions of the Congress.

There will be a one-third reduction of fare on the railroads, but concerning this as well as hotel rates, and for all particulars address Mr. Joseph A. Bogardus, 167 Chambers street, New York. In order to save the local committee unnecessary trouble, and avoid any disagreeable complications for delegates, we take this opportunity to state that no free entertainment will be furnished, and each delegate will bear her own expenses, including railroad fare. FRANCES E. WILLARD, Pres.
CAROLINE B. BUELL, Cor. Sec.
Nat. W. C. T. U.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

I desire to call attention to Miss Willard's article in this issue of THE UNION SIGNAL, concerning the temperance lessons, and to add that under date of May 7, Rev. Dr. Noble, pastor of Union Park Congregational Church, Chicago, who aided us so nobly in 1881 and 1884, wrote a most forceful appeal to the International Sunday-School Convention, which will assemble in Pittsburg June 24-27. I quote the opening sentence: "Six years ago it was borne in upon me to address a communication as clear and earnest as I could make it, to the committee having in charge the selection of the passages and topics for the Sunday-school lessons in behalf of a provision for quarterly temperance lessons in the regular course of the international series. Now I make my appeal, not to the committee, but to the convention, in the hope that such action will be taken by the body from which the committee derives its authority, that they will feel constrained to give the subject a regular place in their scheme of lessons." The arguments Dr. Noble uses in the remainder of his letter are most conclusive.

Dr. Arthur Edwards, the able editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, wrote me January 30, that the editorial in favor of our effort would appear in the next issue of his paper, and added: "Depend upon all the aid we can give you. This is a battle to the death, and God will cause us to prevail. I wish you all success. Your success will be mine, and that of all who have done even their little best." This editorial, like that of the Advance, was a powerful plea for the quarterly temperance lessons in the regular course of the International Series. Many other leading men of Chicago and elsewhere are grandly helping us, but we have need of every possible aid and prayers unceasing, as the opposition of the conservative leaders is very pronounced, and while the heart of the Sunday-school people is with us, when there is an intelligent understanding of our effort, it is not possible, with the limitations which beset us, to secure this in many cases.

It would hardly seem necessary to repeat the object of the present effort, since it has so long been a part of our national plan, but since I find that even some of our W. C. T. U. workers do not seem to understand it, I will simply say that in 1884 we memorialized the International Sunday-school Convention in behalf of quarterly temperance lessons in the regular course of the International Series. A resolution was adopted, well-nigh unanimously, by that body, recommending the lesson committee to provide quarterly temperance lessons in the regular course of the International Series. The committee complied only in part, placing the lesson on the review Sunday, along with a missionary lesson, and leaving it optional with the Sunday-schools as to its use. This was a gain for which we gave thanks and which we have most earnestly tried to improve. But the growing conviction as to the need of such instruction in our Sunday-schools and the demand for larger and better helps in the line of Bible temperance lessons, has led us to feel that it was our duty to repeat the memorial of 1884 and urge that the quarterly temperance lesson be placed upon some other than the review Sunday, in order that it may receive the attention its importance demands, and that complication with other subjects be avoided. To this end we ask the hearty coöperation of all those who desire the religious education of our children and young people, according to the teaching of God's Word, concerning the great question of temperance. LUCIA E. F. KIMBALL, Nat. Supt.

What our Friends Say.

"If all men knew what others say of them there would not be four friends in the world." But this is what our friends say: "I believe it to be a blessing from God, to help weak and suffering humanity." "It is certainly a great relief to the suffering." "Your Compound Oxygen Treatment has done more for me than any medicine could, and I feel very grateful for the relief." "No return of the disease, nor any other complaint." "It is a restorative and curative agent whose power can not be overestimated." "I regard Compound Oxygen as one of the greatest boons to suffering humanity, and speak from some observation, as well as personal experience. I regard it as a wonderful remedy." "I was entirely cured of Neuralgia by it." "I am now as well as ever, by God's blessing and your Compound Oxygen Treatment." These are a few extracts from patients' letters, published in our quarterly, "Health and Life." Write for it. It is sent free, as is also our Treatise on Compound Oxygen. No other genuine, than that of DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.

Publisher's Notes.

Our Edition this Week is 88,000 Copies.

You Surely

Want a large and handsome picture of Miss Willard? suitable for framing? Join others and send us one or more new subscriptions at $1.00 each, and the picture will be yours providing 15,000 new names are gained by July 4th, 1890.

☞Notice the date

Independence Day!

See supplement for full particulars.

Will You Do It?
Do What?

Send us the names of ten or more people to whom we can send fresh sample copies of THE UNION SIGNAL with the understanding that you on your part will follow the samples up with a request to subscribe for your paper for a year or, failing in that, for five weeks on trial at ten cents? We will notify you when the papers are sent and you can then tell your friends that they come at your request. We will send out any number that may be applied for with the above understanding.

Will You Do It?

For Decoration Day,

and any other day try the Flag Exercise in The Young Crusader of May 2. It is entitled "Flags of Freedom." Different countries are brought to the front by means of their flags and address the Spirit of Freedom. The anarchists' emblem brings out a protest and a spirited speech pledging "perpetual hate to the liquor traffic." Two new and appropriate songs (with the music) accompany the exercise. It is a splendid education. With this paper will come the Crusader supplement on "Government," which, of itself, is worth the price of a year's subscription. It is a perfect marvel to the publisher that the subscription list for The Young Crusader stays steadily about 8,000. It ought to be ten times that. We do not see what our temperance people can be thinking of to so neglect such a paper. If the youth of the land are not environed in the interests of temperance our own labor is in vain, and in this paper we give not only stories to amuse, but an education in the way the kind of temperance which will win through the heart and brain.

Addrcss WOMAN'S TEM. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Flax Fiber-ware.

The process of manufacture is interesting in the extreme, and must be seen to be appreciated, as it starts with raw tow from the Dakota prairies, passes through the beaters, bleach tubs, pail machine, presses, calenders, trimmer, corrugator, bottomer, hooper, the intensely hot water-proofing bath, the bakings and rebakings of water-proofing, paints, japans, decorations and copals, in ovens No. 1, 2 and 3; all of which unite to make ware with a body and a finish that is practically perfect, in the words of an enthusiastic salesman, "the ware of the future." —Western Stockman and Cultivator.

MR. J. H. ESTILL, President Morning News Co., Savannah, Ga., says: A member of my family who has been a martyr to Neuralgic Headache for twenty years, has found in Bradycrotine an infallible remedy.

MR. S. M. SOLOMON, Macon, Ga., says: I believe that Bradycrotine is the most wonderful medicine for the cure of Headache I have ever tried.

Tokology Health Patterns for Infants' Wardrobe, recommended by Mrs. Dr. Stockham. Full set for long and short clothes, with full directions for making, amount and kind of material, etc. Price 50c. Address Mrs. C. H. Starkey, Waterman, Ill.

Cancer PRIVATE HOSPITAL FOR THE CURE OF & Tumors Without the Knife Book free. L. D. McMICHAEL, M. D. 180 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS
Beware of imitations. Notice autograph of STEWART HARTSHORN on label and get the genuine Hartshorn.

BEECHAM'S PILLS cure sick-headache.

Van Houten's Cocoa, best and goes the farthest.

The Vestibuled Pullman Car Line.

The Monon Route is the finest equipped line on the continent and affords choice of four daily trains from Chicago to the South via Indianapolis and Cincinnati, or Louisville and Burgin. For full information call on any ticket agent of the Monon Route or address W. H. McDoel, Traffic Manager, or James Barker, Gen'l Pass. Agent, 185 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Rheumatism.

In nearly every locality are to be found sufferers from this disease. It frequently baffles the most skillful Doctor. A reliable firm advertise to cure Rheumatism permanently. If you will send your address to Yellow Pine Extract Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., they will send you a treatise on the subject and advise you how to permanently get rid of this most distressing disease.

BURLINGTON ROUTE.
HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell from principal stations on its lines, on Tuesdays, April 22d and May 20th, Home Seekers' Excursion Tickets at Half Rates to points in the Farming Regions of the West, Southwest and Northwest. For tickets and further information concerning these excursions call on your nearest C., B. & Q. ticket agent, or address P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

"The Mothers' Portfolio" is truly a book for every mother. It is the largest, handsomest, and most valuable book ever sold for the money. It contains 400 pages, 185 illustrations, besides 16 full-page engravings. It also contains music, stories and games. Write at once for terms and circulars. Price prepaid only $2.25. Address, Alice B. Stockham & Co., 161 La Salle St., Chicago.

The Heart of the Alleghanies.

Writing of a recent trip across the mountains of West Virginia a gifted journalist says:

"Twilight on the grade is grand. The mountain summits look like the bushy tops of trees. The sun has disappeared in a ball of fire at his 'jumping-off place,' but the vivid lighting of the western sky by the still upturned illumining face below the horizon is in marked contrast to the gathering shades behind the rushing train. From shelf to shelf, from crag to crag, from brink to brink, we almost fly. Like a flashing transformation, rendering almost past belief the fact that the scene is in the midst of the Alleghanies, comes a bit of landscape gardening with all the beauties of walks and hedges and bright hued flowers, a mountain brooklet tumbling through the center—Buckhorn Wall, the most noted and most admired view that can be had from any known point in the Alleghany range. To enable the road to span the tremendous gorges, a massive wall of cut stone was erected for a distance of several hundred feet, and more than a hundred feet above the foundation rock. As the river makes an abrupt turn at right angles, a deep canyon is opened up for miles. Range after range of mountains disappear behind each other. The shadowy outlines of single peaks steal out through the haze."

This beautiful scene is on the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. near Grafton, W. Va. The entire line from the Potomac to the Ohio is a majestic panorama of the grandest views on the continent and all endowed with historic interest.

MOTHERHOOD with Little Pain. Stamp to Dr Stainback Wilson, Atlanta, Ga

Home-Seekers' Excursions via the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Ry.

On Tuesdays, May 20, September 9 and 23 and October 14, 1890, agents of the Chicago, St Paul & Kansas City Railway will sell Home-Seekers' Excursion Tickets to principal points in the West, Northwest, South and Southwest at rate of one fare for the round trip, tickets good returning thirty days from date of sale. For full particulars call on or address agents of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railway.

Teachers' Excursion to St. Paul.

For the Annual Meeting of the National Educational Association to be held at St. Paul, Minn., July, 1890, the CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY CO. will sell reduced rate excursion tickets from Chicago and all other points on its 5,700 miles of thoroughly equipped road in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota and North Dakota; and all railroads in the United States will sell excursion tickets to St. Paul and return for this occasion via the CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY. For Circulars of information containing further particulars, please address A. V. H. CARPENTER, General Passenger Agent, Milwaukee, Wis.

The Arnold Steam Cooker is a wonderful invention. It gives me pleasure to recommend it most highly. Viands cooked in its inimitable way taste better, somehow, than by the old system of cooking. It must surely be a delight to the heart of any good housewife fortunate enough to possess one. These goods are manufactured by Wilmot Castle & Co. of Rochester, N. Y. They also have a coffee pot made on the same general principle in which coffee can be prepared so that it is not harmful to the most delicate stomach. These goods are sold by agents, and should this notice be read by any lady desiring such an agency, do not fail to write them for terms.

(Mention this paper.)

Best Truss Ever Used.
Improved Elastic Truss. Worn night and day. Positively cures rupture. Sent by mail everywhere. Write for full descriptive circulars to DR. HOUSE, N. Y., ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 744 Broadway, N. Y.

OVERMAN'S
SPECIFIC OXYGEN.

Is Medicated Oxygen.
Is a Germicide.
Is a Disinfectant for the lungs.
Is different from any other treatment for these diseases.
Is not a Patent Medicine.
Send stamp for Book telling why it is different and better than other remedies.

SPECIFIC OXYGEN COMPANY, Nashville, Tenn.

BUY THE WRINGER THAT SAVES THE MOST LABOR

OUR PURCHASE GEAR
Saves half the labor of other wringers, and costs but little more.
EMPIRE Does not GREASE The CLOTHES.
Solid White Rubber Rolls. Warranted.
Also "Daisy" and "Volunteer" Wringers, Clothes Drying Bars, etc. Agents wanted everywhere. Empire Wringer Co., Auburn, N. Y.

WHY DO MOTHERS put stiff corsets on their Growing Children? We beg of you don't do it but be sure to buy FERRIS' GOOD SENSE CORSET WAISTS THOUSANDS now in use. Best Materials throughout.

AVOID Inferior Imitations, BE SURE your Corset is stamped GOOD SENSE. Send for Circular.

	Childs.
BEST for Health, Comfort, Wear and Finish.	.50
	.70
	.75
Ring Buckle at Hip for Hose Supporters.	Miss.
Tape-fastened Buttons —won't pull off.	.70
	.75
	.80
Cord edge BUTTON HOLES—won't wear out.	.85
	1.00
FOR SALE BY	Ladies.
Leading Retailers,	1.00
or mailed Free on receipt of price, by	1.25
	1.50
FERRIS BROS. FIT ALL AGES.	1.75
	2.00

Manufacturers, 341 Broadway, New York.
MARSHALL FIELD & CO., CHICAGO, Wholesale Western Agts

WHOOPING COUGH REMEDY DELAVAU'S

Dispels whoop, allays cough, and cuts short the disease. Its peculiar anti-spasmodic action insures sleep and is perfectly harmless. Especially effective in dry, Hacking Coughs. For the sudden, dangerous CROUP it is infallible. 40 years established in Philadelphia. 50c. per bottle Sold at druggists.

Copyrighted.

I have a positive remedy for this disease, by its use the worst kind and most unyielding cases of all forms have been cured. I will take pleasure in sending ONE PACKAGE FREE to every sufferer who will send their name and address, with 4 cts in stamps to cover postage.
WALTER L. DAY, 23 West 12th St., N. Y. City.

Temperance Tea Tonic.

Nature's Great Remedy, Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases, female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache. Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE
LADY'S SYRINGE,
is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz. Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods. 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

PAINLESS EFFECTUAL
BEECHAM'S PILLS
THE GREAT ENGLISH MEDICINE WORTH A GUINEA A BOX

For Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after Meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. THE FIRST DOSE WILL GIVE RELIEF IN TWENTY MINUTES. This is no fiction. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one Box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be a Wonderful Medicine.—"Worth a guinea a box."—BEECHAM'S PILLS, taken as directed, will quickly restore females to complete health. For a WEAK STOMACH; IMPAIRED DIGESTION; DISORDERED LIVER;

they ACT LIKE MAGIC:—a few doses will work wonders upon the Vital Organs, Strengthening the muscular System; restoring long-lost Complexion; bringing back the keen edge of appetite, and arousing with the ROSEBUD OF HEALTH the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "facts" admitted by thousands, in all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is that BEECHAM'S PILLS HAVE THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY PATENT MEDICINE IN THE WORLD. Full directions with each Box.

Prepared only by THOS. BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lancashire, England.
Sold by Druggists generally. B. F. ALLEN & CO., 365 and 367 Canal St., New York.
Sole Agents for the United States, who (inquire first), if your druggist does not keep them,
WILL MAIL BEECHAM'S PILLS ON RECEIPT OF PRICE, 25 CENTS A BOX.

FACTS FOR THE SICK.
Dr. King's Royal Germetuer builds up and cures when all else fails. Send stamp for full particulars.
Atlantic Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga.

For Gas BAILEY'S For Oil
COMPOUND light-spreading Silver-plated Corrugated Glass
REFLECTORS,
A wonderful invention for lighting CHURCHES. Halls, etc. Handsome design. Satisfaction guaranteed. Catalogue and price list free. BAILEY REFLECTOR CO. 118 Wood st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

The "Little Beauty" A $5.00 Scale for $1.00
Capacity 1-4 oz. to 4 lbs. Steel Bearings, Brass Scoop and Beam.

For Housekeepers, Offices or Stores. Weight packed, 8 lbs. Sent by express
A $65.00 Sewing Machine $18.00
A 900-lb. Platform Scale... 15.00
A $125.00 Top Buggy 65.00
A 2-Ton Wagon Scale..... 40.00
A 5-Ton Scale and Stock Rack 75.00
A $50 Feed Mill 30.00
A $10.00 Road Cart..... 15.00
A $15.00 Single Harness... 7.50
A 240-lb. Platform Scale... 3.00
Price List Free. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

DR. WILFORD HALL'S
Hygienic Treatment is being used and indorsed by thousands of the leading physicians, lawyers, clergymen, and thinking people throughout the country, many of whom have given us letters.

MRS. CLARA C. HOFFMAN,
President of the Missouri W. C. T. U., writes:
Mr. A. T. Bates, Chicago:
After trying every remedy, for years, to remove constipation and hemorrhoids, and all without avail, I have found a complete cure offered by Dr. W. Hall. I recommend his treatment to all suffering from the nundred ills arising from these causes.
Kansas City, Dec. 24, 1889. C. C. HOFFMAN.
I wish to call particular attention to the letters I have published from time to time; coming as they do from prominent, intelligent people who have used the treatment for weeks, or months, there can be no doubt as to their meaning. I gave the treatment a fair trial before accepting the agency, and I believe it to be a valuable remedy, not only for invalids, or persons in poor health, but for every family to have in case of fevers, colds, or other sickness, as well as to use as a preventive of disease.
Respectfully, A. T. BATES,
161 La Salle st., Room 46, Chicago.
Full information sent on receipt of 2-cent stamp.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.
IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKIND!
Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.
The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

IF YOU ARE MARRIED, or contemplate taking this important step, we can send you information which you ought to know, and worth $100. Valuable 16-page circular mailed free, by J. S. OGILVIE, 57 Rose Street, New York.

ALL FAT PEOPLE
can safely Reduce Weight and Cure Corpulency permanently by taking TRILENE TABLETS (Regd.) for a few weeks. They are small, agreeable, harmless, and never fail to IMPROVE both HEALTH and FIGURE without Change of Diet. An English Countess writes:—"Your Trilene Tablets act admirably."—Send Postal Note for 75 cents to THE TRILENE CO., Sole Proprietors, 834 Broadway, New York.

Publisher's Dep't.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy	$1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each	1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each	1.00
To ministers and reading rooms	1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

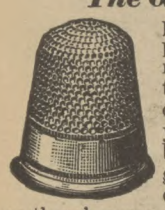
Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS: Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

The Gold Thimble



proves a most attractive premium. Get us three new subscribers, send in their names with $3, and claim the thimble. Unless you state size wanted number eight will be sent. It gives great satisfaction, so does THE UNION SIGNAL, so there's every reason why thimbles and papers should meander everywhere!

Address WOMAN'S TEM. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Stop that CHRONIC COUGH NOW!

For if you do not it may become consumptive. For Consumption, Scrofula, General Debility and Wasting Diseases, there is nothing like

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Of Pure Cod Liver Oil and HYPOPHOSPHITES Of Lime and Soda.

It is almost as palatable as milk. Far better than other so-called Emulsions. A wonderful flesh producer.

Scott's Emulsion

There are poor imitations. Get the genuine.

AGENTS Wanted. $5.00 a day made selling our Jewel Tufting Machine, Rug Patterns, etc. Send for Catalogue and particulars. Small sample sent for 10c to pay postage. GIBBS MFG. CO., 88-90 State St., Chicago.

WE WANT 1,000 BRIGHT BOYS OR GIRLS.

To whom we can give employment in a way that will be easy and pleasant. The preliminary work can be done after school hours—an hour a week after that will suffice to bring in a profit of from 20 cents to $2.00 a week.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS TO
The Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n
161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

Bathe sore feet in Pond's Extract.

"Wear it a week or two or three, till you make up your mind about it, and then go back to the store where you bought it and get your money back.

"Wear it a year; and, if a bone is broken or kinked or slipped or shifted, go back to the store where you bought it and get your money back."

What do you think of the Kabo corset when it is sold with such guarantees as those two?

There's a primer on Corsets for you at the store.

CHICAGO CORSET CO., Chicago and New York.

Better than Tea and Coffee for the Nerves.

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

"Once Tried, Always Used."

Ask your Grocer for it, take no other. [64

LADIES! Use only Brown's French Dressing on your Boots and Shoes.

SEE ADVERTISEMENT OF
STANDARD FIBER-WARE
IN NEXT WEEK'S "UNION SIGNAL."

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. R. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill. We do not sell liquors in any shape.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE

Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V. Farwell & Co., Chicago.

Ladies' fine Black Jerseys, pure Wool, $1.00 postpaid; handsomely-braided fronts, $1.50; with elegant Surah Silk Smocked front, $2.00. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Give Bust Measure. Mrs. L. Shrier, Jr., 256 Main St., Norfolk, Va.

MILLER'S HOTEL New York City. 39 West 26th St. A Prohibition Home. Patronized by W. C. T. U. workers visiting New York. Turkish, Electric, Roman Baths. Address, DR. E. P. MILLER, Proprietor.

HOTEL FREDONIA,

H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C. New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike, G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

ALL ABOUT NEW STATE OF WASHINGTON Send stamp for Catechism. ESHELMAN, LLEWELLYN & CO., Seattle.

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.
S. A. KEAN & CO. BANKERS,
CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA

furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.

Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt., 97 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

ORANGE VALE COLONY, CALIFORNIA

Send for a descriptive folder and map showing fruit area, etc., free. Orange and fruit lands in ten acre tracts with water under pressure on every tract. Investigation invited. A good investment. Correspondence solicited. Reliable information concerning any part of California. Address Orange Vale Colonization Company, 214 J St., Sacramento, California, Geo. B. Katzenstein, Manager.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time. Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINSTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED

that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.

Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free

DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

IN THE HEALTHY HIGHLANDS.

No Malaria, no Mosquitoes, no Saloons. Best climate in the United States for all-the-year-round residence.

SPLENDID PROGRESS.

Started late in 1889 with no population or improvements, the development already made is surprising. Five factories are building, and several companies organized to build others. No booms, but steady, substantial progress. A knitting factory company is organized, the stock to be all owned, and entire business managed by women. It will pay large profits. Those who want homes in a "clean city," where the rumshop, brothel and gambling den are perpetually excluded, should buy soon, as prices are rapidly advancing.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Stock in the Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Company will pay large profits. There are also good opportunities to make paying investments in several manufacturing enterprises. For full information address

The Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Co., Demorest, Ga.

GREAT OFFER!

PIANOS! $35. ORGANS!

Direct from the Factory at Manufacturer's Prices. No such offer ever made before. Every man his own agent. Examine in your home before paying. Write for particulars. Address

THE T. Swoger & Son Pianos & Organs
BEAVER FALLS, PENNSYLVANIA.

From Rev. Jas. H. Potts, D.D., editor of Michigan "Christian Advocate," Detroit, Mich.: "To say that we are delighted with the Piano does not express the fact. We are jubilant If all our instruments are as fine in appearance and as pleasing in tone as this one, your patrons will rise by the hundred."

Silk Satin & Plush Remnants for Crazy Patch, a large pkg. pretty pieces, assorted col. & our ill. story paper 3 mos. 10c. The Little Giant, St. Louis

UNITY. A weekly journal of a Religion that is Rational, and a Rationalism that is Religious. 10 weeks 10 cents. CHICAGO.

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD PICTURE Agents wanted. Terms extra liberal. Address C. P. CORY & CO., 325 State St., Chicago.

PURE GRAPE JUICE. EMMA M. TAYLOR 29 Bow St., WOBURN, MASS.

"MURRAY"

$55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS are the best and cheapest. Write for catalogue and prices. Wilber H. Murray M'f'g Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM or Morphine Habit cured at home. Trial Free. No Pain. No exposure. Address, Compound Oxygen Ass., Fort Wayne, Ind. Name this paper

THE EDISON MIMEOGRAPH

duplicating apparatus. Send postal card to A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, for descriptive circulars and samples of work.

$50 OUTFIT ON 30 DAYS' TIME TO AGENTS Guarantee $150 profits in four weeks or no pay, to travel or work at home. No competition. C. JARVIS & CO., Racine, WIS.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND

Sent on receipt of price and waist measure. Fitted band 75 cts. Plain band 30 cts. Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367, Minneapolis, Minn.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

$60 SALARY $40 EXPENSES IN ADVANCE allowed each month. Steady employment at home or traveling. No soliciting. Duties delivering and making collections. No Postal Cards. Address with stamp, HAFER & CO., Piqua, O.

WOULD YOU?

WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F." CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 134 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill.

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia. Pa.

LADY AGENTS WANTED—ALSO MEN. Two immense new specialties; 1 lady made $27 before dinner, another $16 the first hour; extraordinary opportunity; proof free. Ad., LITTLE & CO., 214 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O. CATARRH.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY,"

Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard, Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

PILES Cured at home. New treatment never fails when instructions are correctly followed. Read article in THE UNION SIGNAL, March 13, p. 15. The GLOBE MEDICINE CO., Box 711, Cincinnati, O.

Dr. B. A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St., Chicago, Ill.

Wholesale & Retail. Many long in use. Old Baths renewed.
Send for Circulars. E. J. KNOWLTON, Ann Arbor, Mich.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO., ARCHITECTS,

Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill. "Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

MAY FLOWERS OF SONG

For Schools:

Children's School Songs, (35 cts.: $3.60 dozen. 8 pages of simple explanations, and 138 new and selected songs for general singing. This little book is being received with much favor.

Kindergarten Chimes. ($1.25.) Kate Douglas Wiggin. Good manual, and fine collection.
Kindergarten and Primary School Songs. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Menard.
Songs and Games for Little Ones. ($2.00.) Walker and Jenks.
Gems for Little Singers. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Emerson and Swayne.
Rhymes and Tunes. ($1.00.) Mrs. Osgood.
Motion Songs. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Mrs. Boardman. Get them all! They are most delightful books! Also try the sweet little Cantatas:
Kingdom of Mother Goose. (25 cts., $2.28 doz.) Mrs. Boardman.
Rainbow Festival. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Lewis.
Who Killed Cock Robin? (40 cts.; $3.60 doz.) Ford.

Song Manual { Book 1, Primary. 30c.: $3 doz. Book 2, Medium. 40c.; $4.20 doz Book 3, High. 50c.; $4.80 doz.

By Emerson. These are the newest and best books for teaching note reading in schools.

Send for lists and descriptions.
Any book mailed for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston.

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

PIANOS $150 to $1500 UNIVERSITY ESTAB. 1859. INCOR. 1877

They Lead the World!
Sent for trial in your own home.
ABSOLUTELY PERFECT
Guaranteed Six Years.
Sold Direct to families. No Middlemen.
DON'T BUY A POOR PIANO!
Cat. Free.

MARCHAL & SMITH PIANO CO. 235 E. 21st St., N.Y. ORGANS $35 to $500

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR MY STORY OF THE WAR By Mary A. Livermore

Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos. It sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in two colors. 61st thousand. 5,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!

Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

THE PATHFINDER PHYSIOLOGY.
ENDORSED BY W. C. T. U.
A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL FOR KINDERGARTNERS.

Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,
Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to Miss Alice McRoy, 2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

BABY CARRRIAGES Direct from Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world. SENT C. O. D. G. L. Spencer's

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY,
181 Monroe St., CHICAGO,
Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper

MONDAY TUESDAY WEDNESDAY THURSDAY FRIDAY SATURDAY SUNDAY

SAPOLIO

USED EVERY WEEK-DAY BRINGS REST ON SUNDAY.

WHAT IS SAPOLIO? It is a solid, handsome cake of scouring soap, which has no equal for all scouring purposes except the laundry. To use it is to value it. What will Sapolio do? Why, it will clean paint, make oil-cloths bright, and gives the floors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes and off the pots and pans. You can scour the knives and forks with it, and make the tin things shine brightly. The wash-basin. the bath-tub, even the greasy kitchen sink will be as clean as a new pin if you use Sapolio. One cake will prove all we say. Be a clever housekeeper and try it. There is but one Sapolio.

REAL ECONOMY. It is worse than nonsense to buy a cheap article with which to damage valuable property. Scouring soap is at best only a trifling expense, but with a poor and cheap article it is likely to do considerable damage to fine marble or other property.

For many years Sapolio has stood as the finest and best article of this kind in the world. It knows no equal, and, although it costs a trifle more, its durability makes it outlast two cakes of cheap makes. It is therefore the cheapest in the end.

Any grocer will supply it.

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTES.

DEAFNESS CURED And NOISES IN HEAD entirely overcome by Peck's Pat. Imprv'd TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS Whispers, Conversation and Music heard. Comfortable; Self-Adjusting and Unseen. Successful when all other Remedies FAIL. SOLD ONLY by F. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, Cor. 14th, New York. CALL or WRITE for ILLUST'D BOOK of PROOFS, FREE. NO AGENTS

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY. Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep.....$3.00 Crown Fountain Pen.....$2.00 Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

A-CORN SALVE. Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time. NO PAIN! NO POISON! "After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

25¢ PRINTING OUTFIT. A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL. Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Sets up any name, prints cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersol & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

Patronize our Advertisers and Mention The Union Signal when Answering Advertisements.

Signal Notes.

DRINK has perhaps done more than anything else to fill our country with these two extremes—on the one hand the vulgar pride of wealth, and on the other the most abject, soul-destroying, degrading poverty.—The Reformer.

IT is said that over a thousand persons became Christians during Sam Jones' labors at Fort Worth, Texas, in April, many of whom had been well-known roughs.

THE Brewers' and Dealers' Journal, says, concerning Philadelphia: "There are in this city about one thousand licensed, and over five thousand unlicensed places for selling liquor."

MR. VOLNEY B. CUSHING of Maine has been doing grand work in Michigan under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. His work began March 25, and he spoke nearly every day from that time until April 30, filling engagements with great success in Holland, Grandville, Grand Rapids, and other places. The Daily Democrat of Grand Rapids gave him most favorable notice. The workers are full of joy and thankfulness for the new life and strength received through Mr. Cushing's work among the unions.

FROM Senator Blair's book, "The Temperance Movement:" "Alcoholic drinks are the work of man. They are a part of the history of the human race. When the process of distillation was appropriated by civilized nations, intoxicating beverages assumed an importance and asserted a destructive power in the affairs of mankind which has grown with the progress of civilization, until now they fill the world, and no problem of superior consequence or difficulty confronts the Christian, or the patriot, than how to remove them."

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "Our right royal speaker and friend, Col. Geo. W. Bain, addressed a most magnificent audience a few days ago in the famous Metropolitan Church, in Washington, D. C. He took occasion, as he generally does, to pay a well-merited compliment to the W. C. T. U., by speaking of the grand work done by our organization in securing prohibition for the Dakotas. As soon as he had finished, Senator Pickler from South Dakota, who was in the audience, at once arose and said he wished to add his testimony to that given by Mr. Bain concerning the work of the W. C. T. U. in Dakota, and then said in earnest tones, 'If it had not been for the W. C. T. U. the cause of prohibition would have been delayed in my state for thirty years!' These words, coming from so grand a man as Major Pickler, and a Republican, forms a tribute of praise which we highly value."

A BOY named Samuel Kimball, sixteen years old, a chorister boy in St. Mary's Church, Brooklyn, died very recently at St. John's Hospital. Almost his last words were: "Let any boy who smokes cigarettes look at me now and know how much I have suffered, and he will never put another into his mouth." He was a bright boy, an exquisite singer, and had many friends. He lived with his grandmother and worked in a chandelier factory. Here is his story, as he told it to his nurse, Sister Cornelia: "To me he confessed that this trouble had originated from cigarette smoking. Some days, he said, he smoked twenty cigarettes. At first he kept his grandmother in ignorance of his indulgence. As he continued to smoke the appetite grew upon him with such force that he could not choke it off, and it began to affect his constitution. 'Why,' I asked him, 'did you not stop when you saw what it was bringing you to?' 'Oh, I could not,' he replied. 'If I could not get to smoke I almost went wild. I could think of nothing else. That my grandmother might not suspect me, I would work extra hours instead of spending my regular wages for cigarettes. For months I kept up this excess, although I knew it was killing me. Then I seemed to fall to pieces all of a sudden.'" His disease took the form of dropsy in the legs, and was very painful. Sister Cornelia continues the story: "During all his sufferings he never forgot what had brought him to this terrible condition. He kept asking me to warn all boys against their use. A few days before he died he called me to his bedside and said that he thought he had not lived in vain if only those boys who are still alive would profit by his sufferings and death." There is no other form of tobacco so dangerous as cigarettes, because the nicotine in the smoke is not absorbed in the loose tobacco, smoked clean up to the end, but is taken, unfiltered and undiluted, into the lungs. It was not the poison in the paper, but the poison of the tobacco which killed Samuel Kimball, and is ruining the health of thousands of other pale-faced boys.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest, and most Healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime, or Alum. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.
NEW YORK. CHICAGO. ST. LOUIS.

GRANULA
The most nutritious and digestible of Foods. Send for pamphlet. Trial box by mail 36c. Address Our Home Granula Co., Dansville, N. Y.

THE GLUTEN ENTIRE
Wheat Flour makes the cheapest and best bread, cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Nervous Prostration. Send for circular. Mill Office, 135 Lake St.

LADIES,
do not overlook this. The PERFECTION Flour Bin and Sieve is a household necessity. No home is complete without it. Dispense with barrels, sacks, pans, scoops, sieves, etc. No scattering of flour; no apron or rolling up of sleeves needed. A few turns of the handle and you have enough sifted for a baking. It pleases everybody. No housekeeper will be without it after once using. Where we have no representative we will send the bin on receipt of price. To hold 100 lbs. $3.25; 50 lbs. $2.50; 25 lbs. $2.00. Freight pre-paid not to exceed 75c. No goods sent C. O. D. Agents wanted. Sherman, Tangenberg & Co., 160 W. Lake St., Chicago.

Bickford Family Knitter
Knits everything required by the household, of any quality, texture and weight desired.
A. M. LAWSON,
733 Broadway, New York.

LADY Agents clear $5.00 daily. Goods indispensable Sample free. G. L. Erwin, Chicago.

LADIES Send us your name with correct post-office address on a postal card and receive TWELVE SAMPLES of our Black Silk Dress Patterns, and our circular giving full information about the goods we make and how to buy our Black Silk Dress Goods. And how to buy the best dress silks made in the world, with a guarantee that every yard is perfectly made. Will not break, become greasy and shiny in appearance, or in any way disappoint you.

1000 Yards Sewing Silk and enough Silk Braid to hem bottom of dress sent FREE with every dress pattern (of 18 yds.) and goods delivered all express, mail or freight charges prepaid.

SAMPLES FREE. Send your full address on a postal card stating name of this paper.
O. S. Chaffee & Son,
Mansfield Centre, Conn.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
FOR BEAUTY OF POLISH.
SAVING LABOR, CLEANLINESS, DURABILITY & CHEAPNESS. UNEQUALLED.
NO ODOR WHEN HEATED.
Do not take any chances of being poisoned or burned to death with Liquid Stove Polish, paints, and enamels in bottles. The "Rising Sun Stove Polish" is safe, odorless, brilliant, the cheapest and best stove polish made, and the consumer pays for no expensive tin or glass with every purchase.

THE MODERN WAY OF POACHING EGGS
(By Steam).
A Difficult Process Made Easy.

When ready for the table the eggs are of uniform shape and inviting appearance, and may be transferred to toast or plate without danger of breaking.
DIRECTIONS FOR USING THE
BUFFALO STEAM EGG POACHER
Partly fill the large pan with water and place on stove, when steam arises drop eggs in small pans.
SOLE MANUFACTURERS.
SIDNEY SHEPARD & CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.
C. SIDNEY SHEPARD & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.
SOLD BY HARDWARE & HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS DEALERS

STEEL EDGE DUST PANS
LAST A LIFE TIME
EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT
SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.
By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the
STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,
89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages
Delivered Free of Charge
to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.
CHAS. RAISER, Mfr.
62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A BOOK
TO Make Converts!

PLEAS FOR PROHIBITION,
BY
REV. SAM. W. SMALL, M. A.

This book has been written by Mr. Small, with the view of covering the whole argument for the legal suppression of the liquor traffic. It is written in a style to interest the general reader, and is not burdened with tables and figures that are irksome.

—o—

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I—Prohibition as a Principle.
" II—Prohibition in the Past.
" III—Prohibition in Practice.
" IV—Prohibition and Parties.
" V—Prohibition and Public Education.
" VI—Prohibition and the Press.
" VII—Prohibition and the Pulpit.
" VIII—Prohibition and the Professions.
" IX—Prohibition and the Public Peace.
" X—Prohibition and Prisons.
" XI—Prohibition and Pauperism.
" XII—Prohibition and the Public Purse.
" XIII—Prohibition and Posterity.

—o—

Read it yourself and strengthen your faith; then hand it to a hesitating neighbor and gain him for prohibition. A finely printed book, worthy of a place in any library, and put at a price to make it popular.

Bound in Cloth, 75 Cents.

Sent postpaid on receipt of postal note or money order for the price. Address
ALFRED MUDGE & SON,
24 Franklin St., Boston, Mass.

"ORIGINAL PACKAGES." The full text of the United States Supreme Court Decision in the Iowa Imported Liquor Case, with the Dissenting Opinions of three Justices, has just been issued, and is one of the most important documents ever published. Every lover of his country should have a copy 12mo, 72 pages. Price only 10 cents. Send to J. N. STEARNS, 58 READE STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

LADY AGENTS Wanted for the VAN ORDEN CORSETS. Every lady wishing good health and a beautiful figure buys them. Quick sales. Good pay. Send for terms and circular.
VAN ORDEN CORSET CO., 23 Clinton Place, N.Y.

LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y

Send 6c. for sample Silk Dress Goods Chicago Silk Dress Goods Co., 154 La Salle St., Chicago.

MY CATALOGUE of DRESS reform goods sent free to any address on receipt of stamp for postage. Mrs. S. W. Pike, 75 Madison St., Chicago.

DELSARTE'
Corset Waists and Braces. Send for Price List.
Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

MONEY made easily and fast selling the celebrated Thomas Corset and Reform Waist. Three elegant samples for $3.50, which we refund when goods to the amount of $25 has been ordered. Send for terms and samples and go to work. (Enclose stamp). Address, The THOMAS CORSET PARLORS, 465 W. Van Buren St., Chicago.

AMERICAN
Desk and Seating Co.,
Manufacturers
Church, Lodge, School, Bank and Office Furniture.
Send for Catalogues.
270-272 Wabash Ave., Chicago

RIDGE'S FOOD
The MOST RELIABLE FOOD For Infants & Invalids. Not a medicine, but a specially prepared Food, adapted to the weakest stomach. 4 sizes cans. Pamphlet free. Woolrich & Co. (on every label). Palmer, Mass.

GREAT SELLERS Four household necessities. Practical, meritorious. Used by every family. A complete line. Retail prices 10 cts. to $1.25. Agents report enormous sales. Two samples mailed for 25 cts. Splendid terms. Illustrated Circular free. GEO. M. REWELL, Cleveland, Ohio.

WE buy second-hand books of any kind and of any language, and at fair prices. There is now a brisk demand for back numbers of magazines, of any language, published during the last 5 to 25 years. Send us promptly, and from any distance, a list of the books and periodicals you have. We may buy them. A list without a two-cent postage stamp for a reply will not be considered. Murray Templeton & Co., 835 Broadway, New York. Established 1840.

"COMBINATION"

This cut represents our "Combination" suit, extra pants and hat to match for boys, ages four to fourteen, for $5. Best value ever offered for boys' wear. Send for samples.
Prince Albert Suits, $15.00.
Nicely made from fine black corkscrew, a suit equal in appearance to a $40.00 custom made suit for $15.00.
Send for samples and rules for measuring. Goods sent C. O. D., with privilege of examining before paying.
PUTNAM CLOTHING HOUSE,
131 & 133 Clark St., 113 & 117 Madison St.
CHICAGO.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE how you do it for the money.

$12.50 Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine, a perfect working, reliable, newly finished Sewing Machine, adapted for light or heavy work, with all the latest improvements and complete set of attachments. A written guarantee for 5 years with each machine. Buy direct from manufacturers and save Dealers and Agents profits. Catalogue free.
OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

$16

FREE TRADE PRICES
No Protection! No Monopolies!
$45 SEWING MACHINES | NOW ONLY $16
We are now selling our Western Improved Singer Sewing Machine —same as cut—complete with all attachments and warranted for five years for only $16. Send for circular and see full description of this and other styles to
M. A. SCULLIN & CO.
762 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

RHEUMATISM NOT TEMPORARILY RELIEVED BUT PERMANENTLY CURED
Each case treated separately. Send us your address on a postal card for Treatise on Rheumatism with full information regarding its CURE. YELLOW PINE EXTRACT CO., BOX 246 PITTSBURGH, PA.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 22.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, May 29, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, Memorial Day, By Irene H. Smith—Brother John's Opinions, by Nettie H. Pelham—The Liquor Traffic on The "West Coast" of Africa and in the "Congo Independent State," by Mary Clement Leavitt—Memory Holds Them Dear, by Harriet Newell Swanwick—How I Became A Prohibitionist, by John G. Wooley 2, 3
CORRESPONDENCE: Interesting to White-Ribboners—Flower Mission Echoes—Temperance Temple Items 4, 5
WORLD'S W. C. T. U.: The Cause in Norway—The Temperance Movement in Denmark 4, 5
OUR BOOK TABLE: 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, The Dandelion, by E. Harriet Howe—Lulu's Flower Mission, by Esther Converse—True Story of Florence Nightingale 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning June 8, 1890 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, Decoration Day, by Alice M. Guernsey—The American One Man Anti-Tobacco Society, by Meta Lander—Words to the Wise, by Abby Morton Diaz .. 7
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: Christian Socialism—A Bright Galaxy—Conference of Christians—Mrs. Freeman Palmer in Chicago—Boy-Traps—May Magazines 8, 9
WATCH-TOWER: 9
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: Arkansas, Louisiana, Michigan, New Mexico, Illinois, New York, Iowa, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania—News in a Nut Shell—Announcement 10, 11, 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT: 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

The Illinois Prohibitionists held their state convention at Bloomington this week.

The report of the Interstate Commission shows that nearly two-thirds of the railroads prohibit the use of alcoholics by their employés.

Mrs. M. E. Layton, of Pittsburg, Pa., has been appointed by the General Officers as custodian of the W. C. T. U. parlor and guest chambers at Chautauqua.

Gladstone declares that the mere introduction of the license bill, with its compensating clause, in Parliament, has increased the value of publicans' property £50,000,000.

For the first time the judiciary committee of the Senate gave a majority report in favor of a joint resolution providing for a constitutional amendment giving the ballot to women.

The Kansas Re-submissionists held a state convention in Topeka, Friday, sent for the Governor to come and hear their harangue, and when he declined to do so, rated him soundly.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church during the past year raised $281,000, expenses all paid; the men's Board raised $291,000, expenses to be paid.

The Dairymen's Association raises its voice against the "original package" decision, declaring that under it oleomargarine can have free entrance everywhere. Did ever a decision stir up such a hornet's nest?

The Personal Rights Advocate is taking time by the forelock by coming out already with a long editorial in favor of opening the Columbian Fair Sundays. Friends of Sabbath observance must not be found lagging.

The Baptists' Anniversary reports just made in the gatherings in Chicago, show that they have 331 missionaries, 1,736 native preachers, 1,361 churches, with 138,293 members, 11,461 of whom were baptized in 1889.

An organization of business men, said to include all sorts of business except the liquor business, has been formed in Omaha to fight prohibition "from a business standpoint." The fact that its president is Mr. Roggen, the proprietor of the Capitol Hotel with which is connected one of the most lawless saloons in the city, shows how honest is their pretense that it is a movement free from the contamination of the drink traffic.

THE Mills-Griffith debate dates for the first week in June are, June 2, St. Joseph, Mich.; 3d, Pullman, Ill.; 4th, Manistee, Mich.; 6th, Lake Geneva, Wis.

THE Presbyterian General Assembly in session at Saratoga adopted a resolution urging Congress to pass the bill now before it for the creation of a Commission of Inquiry into the effects of intoxicating liquors, also one asking Congress to pass an amendment to the Interstate Commerce law that will enable states to prohibit or restrict the sale of liquors within their limits.

THE report of the committee on Temperance of the Presbytery of Council Bluffs rung out clear and strong against license and in favor of the total abolition of the liquor traffic. Among other things it says that there is an unanswerable argument against high license in these two facts: First, it is desired and demanded by the liquor interest. Second, it encounters the almost universal antagonism of the Church of Christ as manifested in the official declarations of its representative bodies.

MISS WILLARD requests all friends of Mrs. Shelton, who so appreciate her work as to be glad to show this appreciation in practical form to join in assisting to build her a home at Pacific Grove, Cal. The land on which it is to stand is already paid for, but as so much of her work has been "without money, without price," she has nothing to provide a shelter for her old age. All donations for this object, large or small, should be sent to Mrs. N. E. May, Pacific Grove, Cal.

Omaha Bee: Omaha can boast of one of the most effective and orderly systems of saloon regulation in the country. It is incomparably superior to the free dramshops in vogue in prohibition states.

Chicago Champion: The trade [liquor] can better afford to spend $200,000 in Nebraska than to let the state go for prohibition.

Behold how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

THE report of the Committee on Temperance of the Southern Presbyterians, in session at Asheville, N. C., in its report took grounds against interference of the church in matters of social government. The purport of their report seems to be that the church declare neither for prohibition nor high license. On motion the report was ordered printed and sent round to the different Presbyteries, then to be acted upon at the next General Assembly. Now for a year's "educational campaign" among the Southern Presbyterians.

FRIEND Hardy, of the New Republic, Lincoln, Neb., makes this good point:

Now comes the Texas cattle men, and propose to ship their cattle into Nebraska just when and in as large numbers as they please, subject only to the original package decision of the Supreme Court. But, Mr. Texan, don't you know we think a great deal more of our steers than of our boys, and we can't let them go in under that law. We never have tried to save our boys from delirium tremens, but have tried hard to save our cattle from Texas fever. No, sir, our Governor will save the steers and we will fight rather than see a steer die.

REV. MR. KELYNACK, of Manchester, England, honored this office with a call as he passed through Chicago on his return trip from Australia. He is an enthusiastic temperance worker, and wherever he goes is sure to find out what the temperance folks are doing. He was greatly surprised at the extent of the work done by the W. T. P. A. as disclosed by a tour through this establishment, and expressed very great interest in many phases of W. C. T. U. work new to him, especially our police matron work. He gave many interesting items of news concerning the work in Australia and other places visited in his tour around the world.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL CLAPP, of Minnesota, has given his decision relative to the rights of women as voters on school matters as follows: "A woman is entitled to vote upon school matters when she is of the necessary age, has resided in the United States one year, in the district four months, and is either a citizen of the United States, or has declared her intention to become a citizen. A foreign-born woman possessing the other qualifications is entitled to vote upon school matters if, before she became of age, her father had been duly naturalized, or if she is married to a citizen of the United States, whether such citizen be a native of the United States, or a duly naturalized alien."

THE program of the National Temperance Congress, in New York, will open at 10 o'clock, June 11, with an address by Gen. Neal Dow on State and National Prohibition, to be followed by Robert Graham, the secretary of the Church Temperance society. On all questions like the above, over which there is controversy among temperance men, the rule adopted by the committee is to permit a representative of either side to open the question, and then these addresses to be followed by five minutes' "talks." Among those who have already agreed to participate in the Congress are Ex-President McCosh, of Princeton, Joseph Cook, Gen. Greene Clay Smith, of Kentucky, Gen. Palmer, of Pennsylvania, Judge Bonney, of Chicago, Judge Noah Davis, Col. Cheves, Mary H. Hunt, N. S. Davis, M. D., of Chicago, Howard Crosby, the Silver Lake quartette, Eugene Clapp, of Boston, and a host of others, representing every shade of temperance opinion. THE UNION SIGNAL will be represented in the Congress by Mr. G. C. Hall, and will be reported by him and by Mrs. Hester Poole, that our readers may see it through a man's and a woman's eyes.

A COMPENSATION clause having been introduced into the government's scheme of licensing liquors, now before the English House of Commons, telegrams from all directions rained upon members, urging them to oppose the bill with might and main. A special cable dispatch says: "Whenever a movement of this sort is going on the temperance people show much greater activity and strength of organization than their opponents. They seem to have unlimited means at their command, and they all move as by a single spring; consequently the pressure was entirely in one direction to-day." It would be well for Americans to learn a lesson in this direction from their British cousins.

THE Baptist anniversaries brought to Chicago a thousand leaders of this denomination, and the exercises in connection with the various societies have been of great interest. The fact that the $400,000 necessary to secure the $600,000 pledged by Mr. Rockefeller has been raised making the new university an assured fact, with a million dollar endowment to begin with, was a cause of great rejoicing. The Missionary Anniversaries, Home and Foreign, reported grand advances all along the line. Sunday many pulpits in Chicago and its suburbs were supplied by ministers in attendance upon the convention. Dr. A. J. Gordon preached in the Third Presbyterian Church, and many white-ribboners, especially those who attended the Boston convention, went to hear him. The annual sermon before the Missionary Union was preached by Rev. T. E. Brown, of Providence, R. I., that before the Home Missionary Society, by Rev. George Dana Boardman, of Philadelphia. Rev. B. H. Carroll, of Waco, Texas, preached the annual sermon before the Publication Society.

THE one hundred and second General Assembly which has before it the grave problem of revision, involving other grave problems, is a body well fitted to discharge its important duties. The unanimous election of Dr. Moore as moderator was a portend of peace, and the spirit thus far manifested is such as a great Christian assembly should show. The report of the official vote on the overture sent out by the last General Assembly shows one hundred and thirty-two Presbyteries favoring revision; sixty-six opposing it; seven refusing to vote, and eight not heard from. The committee on revision recommended the appointment of a committee composed of one member from each synod, which shall formulate and report to the General Assembly of 1891 such alterations and amendments to the confession of faith as in its judgment may be deemed desirable. This committee on revision is instructed to meet at an early date, not later than October 31, 1890, and diligently pursue its work, that it may report promptly at the meeting of the General Assembly in 1891. The report was unanimously adopted.

STRONGER words could hardly be spoken than those forming the report of the Committee on Temperance of the M. E. Church (South) General Conference in session at St. Louis. In substance they are:

1. We are convinced if any more advanced position is possible to take than the one which the M. E. Church (South) occupies to-day upon the question of temperance, our membership will get ready at once to take it. We are emphatically a prohibition church. We stand out squarely for the complete suppression of the liquor traffic. We offer no compromise to, and seek no terms from a sin of this heinous quality.
2. Our inquiries developed the gratifying fact that in most sections there is very little drinking among our members.
3. We are able to state that for the most part our church members throw the full weight of their influence and authority as voters against licensing the liquor traffic.
4. The testimony was uniform and unvarying as to the fidelity of our preachers in the cause of temperance.
5. The evidence was practically universal as to the valuable work of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union in the cause of temperance. The report was unanimously adopted.

Contributed.

MEMORIAL DAY.

BY IRENE H. SMITH.

All hail! Memorial Day,
Another year has rolled its ample round,
Since last we met, within this hallowed ground
Where sleep the silent dead.
We come, with careful tread,
In fond remembrance of these heroes brave,
With gentle hands, to strew with flowers each grave,
To bow our heads and pray.

Dear Father, hear our prayer,
Be present with the throngs that gather here,
To pay this loving tribute, year by year,
Their noble deeds to praise,
Our voice in songs to raise
In thankfulness, that we may bear a part
In this sweet service, born of grateful heart,
In which all patriots share.

There is a day to come,
When Gabriel's trump shall wake the sleeping dust,
Bright morning resurrection of the just,
When all life's battles o'er,
There waits a peaceful shore.
In God's own word, sweet hope to us is given,
That those who trust in Him, shall meet in heaven,
That safe and happy home.

BROTHER JOHN'S OPINIONS

BY NETTIE H. PELHAM.

Brother John always had an opinion upon every subject; none of your small, wavering, half-formed opinions, but great, strong, well-finished ones, delivered with a promptness and an emphasis that was, at times, truly exasperating to a contrary-minded person.

I had opinions, too, but years of constant association with John had led me to keep mine pretty well in the background, lest they clash with his and result in one of those long, tiresome controversies in which I always came out second best, through sheer lack of breath to keep up the argument. John was a good man, though, as the world views it, honest and upright, and always ready to lend a hand to a brother in distress; he was conscientious, too, and, looking from his standpoint, he did everything exactly right.

Brother John's frail, pretty little wife had lived just long enough to strengthen his belief in the infallibility of his own opinions and ideas. She had yielded and deferred to him in everything, and had left this world firmly convinced that it contained but one wise and good man, and that one was John. With her last breath she had implored me to stay and care for her little Harry, then but two years old; and I, having no ties to keep me elsewhere, had listened to the pleading voice of the dying mother, and had promised to stay with her little one.

It was an easy matter to learn to love the pretty, winsome child, and, day by day, he crept into my lonely heart and grew nearer and dearer, till it almost seemed that God's sunshine would lose its brightness should any harm befall my boy. He was a good little fellow, and seldom gave me any trouble; he was gentle and yielding, like his mother. I used sometimes to be fearful that he was almost too yielding, and I used to wonder how it would be when he should grow up and go out into the great world; whether he would have enough strength of character to take him unscathed through all its snares and temptations. I tried to make his mind a perfect mirror of my own; tried to impress upon him all my convictions of right and wrong, and, above all things, to make him fear and loathe the drink habit. I endeavored to make him see that there was no safety even in tasting liquor, and that the mandate, "Look not upon the wine," was as imperative in our day as it was centuries ago. Then it was that Brother John often came between us with his opinions. John was what is known as a temperate man; he never drank himself, still it was his opinion that a man could drink like a gentleman, and had a perfect right to do so if he chose.

I was some years older than John and I could remember in my early childhood, the death of a dearly loved uncle who died from the effects of strong drink. Young, handsome and talented, he was the idol of his family; but he, too, believed that a man could drink like a gentleman. It was the same old story; only a social glass at first, but thus the appetite was born and nourished which finally became his master and at last he died, a miserable drunkard. As a child I was old beyond my years and I have often thought that I suffered almost as keenly as did my mother, for I loved this young uncle with all the devotion of my childish heart.

I used to attempt to talk to John about Uncle Dick, but he always poohed at what he called my "foolish notions" and gave it as his opinion that Uncle Dick must have been decidedly weak-minded or he would never have allowed himself to become a drunkard, for merely because a man drank there was no occasion for making a beast of himself.

I cared but little how John expressed himself before me but it hurt me when he carelessly expressed such views before Harry; for, somehow it so often happens when a boy is growing to manhood, that he looks upon father as his ideal. Mother or auntie are privileged to guide the faltering footsteps and listen to the little troubles when he is a child; but too often, as he grows older, it dawns upon his swiftly maturing mind that they are only women, after all, and he is going to be a man like father, and so it comes about that he acts like father, talks like father and thinks like father. Once or twice I remonstrated with John about expressing such opinions before Harry, but he proudly told me he guessed his boy wasn't a fool and that it was his "opinion" that Harry was about old enough to look out for himself.

Days and weeks passed on until the winter my boy was eighteen, then it seemed to me that his character was undergoing a subtle change; he seemed to be losing something of his straightforward, manly ways and had a habit which I scarcely liked, of evading my questions about where he spent his evenings. He had a latch-key and I knew that he often came in quite late at night, for, somehow, I never could go to sleep till I knew my boy was safe at home. I would have preferred to sit up and let him into the house, since it was useless for me to attempt to sleep, but it was John's opinion that the boy was old enough to take care of himself and he might just as well have a latch-key and come in when he got ready. Sometimes when Harry came home I would hear him stop and fumble with the lock and often, when he entered, his steps sounded faltering and uncertain, and the next morning I would notice that he looked pale and haggard.

How I suffered those days! I was constantly haunted by the fear that the tempter was laying his snares for my boy, but it was useless for me to talk to John about it and so I suffered alone, and O the keenest agony the heart can bear is that which it must bear in silence.

One night, I can never forget it, it was dark and windy and the snow was steadily falling. I was strangely depressed that evening; I seemed to have a presentiment of some threatening evil. We had our tea at six and, as Harry was preparing to go down town as usual, I said to him, "Harry, why don't you stay with us this evening, it is so dark and stormy," but he only laughed and said he guessed the storm wouldn't hurt him any and he would come home early.

I could not have told why I so dreaded to have him leave the house, but I almost shuddered as the door closed behind him. John seldom went down town in the evening, and so we sat together that night, by the warm fire, he, reading his paper, and I, keeping my hands busy at work, though my thoughts were with my boy.

At ten o'clock John lighted his lamp and went to bed, remarking, as he left the room, that he believed I was ruining my eyes working so much by lamplight. So, knowing that it fretted him to have me sit up late, I wearily prepared for bed, although I felt sure I should not sleep.

The snow had fallen to such a depth that it muffled the sound of passing footsteps and so I lay and listened for the sound of Harry at the door. Every noise seemed unnaturally loud, and, scores of times, I lifted my head from the pillow quite sure that he had come. What a noise the mice made in the garret overhead and how mournfully the old tree, beside my window, creaked and groaned as the heavy gusts of wind swayed it to and fro. How slowly the hours dragged away. I heard the clock strike eleven--twelve—one—two—three. What could be the matter! Harry had promised to come home early and I had never known him to stay out so late before.

I could endure it no longer and I rose, dressed myself and went back to the sitting-room. I lifted the curtain and looked out; I could see by the light of the street lamp that it had stopped snowing, but what was that dark object that lay across the walk? Could it be a human form partly covered by the drifted snow? I looked a moment longer; yes, I was certain that it was a person lying there and then, O! the thought came to me that it might be Harry.

I hurriedly called John, telling him that there was a person lying out on our sidewalk, but I dared not tell him of the awful fear that had seized me. He was dressed in a moment and when he came he asked why I had not called Harry: he looked surprised when I replied that Harry had not come home yet. I saw him glance quickly at the clock and an anxious look came over his face when he saw that it was after three.

We hastened out through the deep snow; John reached the form just before I did, and, as he lifted it in his arms and the light from the street-lamp flashed across the face, I heard him cry out, "Oh, my God! it's Harry!"

Yes, it was, indeed, Harry who had fallen and lain there, we knew not how long. That he was intoxicated we knew at once, for the heavy fumes of the liquor still clung to him.

We carried the unconscious form into the house, and I hastened to a neighbor's to arouse them and ask them to send their boy for a doctor; then I went back, and we did what we could for the poor boy before the doctor came. I shall never forget the look of agony on John's face while we waited for the doctor's arrival. Somehow, as I looked at him, I seemed to see the bigoted man, with all his wearisome opinions, sinking into the background, and, in his place, there stood the true father, with all a father's love and terrible anxiety written upon his face. When the doctor came he relieved anxiety by telling us that the boy was not so badly frozen as we had feared, but he said, "Had he lain there until daylight the consequences might have been fatal."

The weeks passed in tedious recovery, and one day when Harry remarked that he thought he was able to walk down town again, his father told him that he would like a few moments' talk with him; they went together into Harry's room, and the few moments lengthened into an hour. I never knew what was said during that hour, but I am sure there were no angry words spoken, for when they came out there was a gentle, softened expression on each face.

Well, thank God, my boy was not past redemption, and that terrible night's experience was his salvation, for never since then has he drank one drop of liquor; and, as the years go by, he grows braver and stronger and more manly.

And John? Well, Brother John still has his opinions, and in many respects they differ widely from mine, but upon the subject which is nearest to my heart, the temperance subject, we are firmly united; for never since that fateful night, when our boy came so near losing his life within the very shadow of his home, has John had aught but condemnation for the social glass.

Oh, how many Johns there are to-day who are carelessly giving their sanction and approval to this death-dealing traffic that is blighting the homes of our country, far and near? But wait, only wait until the curse comes to their own door, and then perchance they, too, will change their "opinions."

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC ON THE "WEST COAST" OF AFRICA AND IN THE "CONGO INDEPENDENT STATE."

BY MARY CLEMENT LEAVITT.

At the Berlin conference which established the "Congo Free State," since changed to "L' Etat Independent du Congo," all European nations except Switzerland and Greece took part. The United States also were represented. The following were some of the articles agreed upon:

Wares of whatever origin imported under whatsoever flag, by sea or by land, shall be subject to no other taxes than such as may be levied as fair compensation for expenditure in the interests of trade (wharfage and port duties), also, that all the powers exercising sovereign rights or influence in the aforesaid territories, engage to watch over the preservation of the native tribes, to care for the improvement of their moral and material well-being, and to coöperate in the suppression of slavery and especially of the slave trade. They will protect and favor, without distinction of nationality or of worship, all religious institutions and enterprises, scientific or charitable schemes and organizations for the purpose of leading the natives to know and appreciate the advantages of civilization. Christian missionaries, scientists and explorers, their associates and property, shall be the subjects of special protection. Liberty of conscience and religious toleration are expressly guaranteed to natives, citizens, and foreigners. The free and public exercise of all forms of worship, and the right to build religious edifices, and to organize missions belonging to all creeds shall not be limited or fettered in any way whatever.

Plainly, it was intended that all nations have a part and voice in the management of this "Congo Free State." A few years have passed, and the management of affairs is entirely in the hands of the Belgians. Of late, only Belgian officials are appointed in the government, and more and more Belgians get all the better places as employés, though Danes, Swedes and Norwegians still hold laborious places, and such as are often fraught with danger.

That some degree of reticence, at least, if not secrecy toward the rest of the world is practiced is evident from the following facts: "Agents are obliged to sign a binding contract for three years' service. They pledge themselves not to correspond with the press, nor to divulge to any one matters concerning the state. All ivories collected must be turned over to the authorities. They pledge themselves not to leave the state, nor enter into other employ until after the expiration of their contract, the penalty being forfeiture of double salary. The state reserves the right to discharge the agent at the expiration of one year, if the Administrator General reports him incompetent. The medical officers have authority to send any agent home on medical certificate whenever it might be considered necessary."

Werner, who was upon the Congo three years, in his book, "Stanley's Rear Guard," page 28, speaks as follows upon this subject: "Sir Francis de Winton remained in office as Administrator General, till February, 1886, when he returned to England leaving the Vice-Administrator General, M. Camille Janssen, in charge. It was about this time that a change took place in the administration of the state, the details of which are as yet but imperfectly known to outsiders, by which it was transformed from 'International Association of the Congo,' into 'L'Etat Independent du Congo,' which is entirely under Belgian control. Since that time all responsible posts in the state have been filled by Belgians, mostly lieutenants in the army."

The Independent state is divided into the following governmental districts, commencing at the mouth of the Congo, and extending up the river Banana, Boma, Matadi, Cataracts, Stanley Pool, Kassai, Equator, Ubangi-Welle, Aruwimi-Welle, Stanley Falls and Lualaba. There is quite an army of African soldiers under Belgian officers. These soldiers are not natives of the Congo region, but come from the coast countries farther north, the part known technically as "The West Coast." They are Krus, Kabindas and Houssas. These men are punished by imprisonment and flogging. Many of these men become possessed of wives while on the Congo, as I myself saw, on the steamer by which I sailed from Banana to Sierra Leone. I was told that the state buys these women from the Arab slave dealers at Stanley Falls for their soldiers. Various traits, such as the mode of dressing the hair, the filing of the teeth, the way of wearing the cloths that form their clothing, show that they have been taken from several "Upper Congo" tribes, some of which are cannibals.

Domestic slavery exists among the natives along the coast from the Island of St. Thomé in the North to St. Paul de Loando in the South. The traders and governmental officials on the Congo and in other places have this amount of complicity with it that they buy "wives" of the natives. These wives are only for the coast, are often sent away and others bought in their places, and sometimes if they offend, they are very severely punished, though I do not think this is very frequent. One Belgian caused 300 lashes, in installments, as the woman could bear it, to be given to his "wife," for one offence. I am strongly inclined to think that if a careful investigation were made, many young boys in these trading houses would be found to be slaves.

At one time Mr. Deane was sent to Stanley Falls, in full charge, to hold it against the Arabs, and prevent the slave trade from passing the falls to the west. He was poorly provided with arms and men. He was constantly perplexed by contradictory orders from Brussels, none of which could arrive in less than six months from the time he sent his inquiries. The result was that after one of the most heroic struggles made by mortal man, in which all good qualities as a leader and a man were displayed, Mr. Deane was obliged to vacate the post, and was finally found in the forest, nearly starved, and his only possession a fragment of an old blanket. Had he been properly supplied with men and arms, and had discretionary powers been given him, at least to act contrary to orders if the circumstances which called forth the orders were changed, the Arabs would never have gained the Stanley Falls Station, nor would the East Coast slave trade have penetrated to the west of the falls, and the Aruwimi country would have remained happy, populous and peaceful.

In the quotations I have made from the regulations agreed upon by the founders of Congo, it will be seen that all articles are to be admitted free of duty,—and also that the natives are to be protected, and their moral and material welfare looked after. The first admits rum, whisky, gin, all sorts of liquors free, from all parts of the world. This gives a chance for great profits, and has stimulated greatly the manufacture of these drinks.

It is not possible for any one to find out how much liquor goes to Africa,—the Congo or any other part. The traders on the spot refer one to the agents in Europe; the agents are perfectly non-committal. They don't want anybody to know how much they sell nor at what profit, as others might be attracted to enter into competition with them. One German house sends to Africa a large steamer every third week, filled with gin. On one that I saw, there were 50,000 gallons, for one town near the mouth of the Niger. Drink is the chief article on board most of the steamers that visit the coast. American rum is sent in sailing vessels. I am happy to state that one firm, Yates & Porterfield, of New York, never carry any drink in their vessels.

As we steamed into the harbor of Freetown, Sierra Leone, on my way down the coast, my attention was called to a beautiful sailing vessel lying at one side, with the remark, "That is an American vessel." It was painted white, from stem to stern, and every line and detail was perfect. The "stars and stripes" were flying, and when I saw them and the name, "White Cloud, Boston," with a swelling of the heart caused by pride and affection, I rapturously waved my handkerchief, when my interlocutor said, "Her cargo is rum; that line brings little else." What a revulsion of feeling came over me! Since then every American ship I have seen on the coast costs me a shudder and a feeling of shame so strong that I avoid all mention of them. The descendants of the Puritans sending rum to Africa to debauch these poor, ignorant natives! The foremost temperance nation allowing this abominable traffic, and refusing to join with European nations to forbid the trade with the Pacific Islands!

A slight idea of the amount of drink sent to Africa may be gathered from the following facts:

At Madeira, where many, but by no means all, of the ships going to Africa touch, the following amounts were declared in one week: 960,000 cases of gin, 24,000 butts of rum, 30,000 cases of brandy, 28,000 cases of Irish whisky, 800,000 demijohns of rum, 36,000 barrels of rum, 30,000 cases of "Old Tom," 15,000 cases of absinthe, 40,000 cases of vermouth, all costing $5,230,000.

In a very valuable pamphlet by Mr. Hornaday, the following statement is made:

Mr. William W. Long, United States Consul at Hamburg, says Western nations sent to the Congo and other parts in Africa in 1885: Germany, 7,823,042 gallons; Netherlands, 1,099,146 gallons; United States, 737,650 gallons; France, 405,944 gallons; Great Britain, 311,384 gallons.

A large amount of undiluted alcohol is carried out, reduced with water by the traders, flavored—much anise seed is used for this purpose—and sold as rum.

At Sierra I saw great pyramids of demijohns of gin, row upon row of butts of rum and whisky piled out of doors, besides store after store full of it. At Aforjupa, not long ago, all the seats of the church were gin boxes. I walked through a village near Mpallaballa on the Congo, where the chief's and some others of the better houses had for foundations gin bottles, with their necks driven into the ground, and farther north, on the coast, garden beds and walks are very frequently bordered with them.

The greater part of all liquors landed at any port goes into the interior, and it is spreading over wider and wider territories every year. A very common mode of reasoning among the natives is, "Drink comes from the God men's country, so it must be good." "God men" is a common name for the missionaries, and for them alone. An Angola chief said to one who proposed to open a mission in his town, "Why did not the God men come before the drink did? Drink has eaten away my people's hearts. Their heads are empty; they cannot understand the words you say to them. It is too late, too late!" And it is very true that if missions are to have the best possible success, they must keep ahead of the drink.

It has been the custom at some of the mission stations on the Lower Congo to send preachers out, generally some of the educated colored helpers from Jamaica, or the United States, to go from "factory" to "factory" (bear in mind that "factory" in Africa means simply "traders' house," or "store"), to preach to the natives in the employ of these traders. Three or four years ago congregations of fifty to one hundred and fifty could be gathered where now it is impossible to hold service, as every man, woman, and child is drunk. At Banana, I was ill at the hotel over two Sundays. The afternoon and evening of both these days was a howling pandemonium from drink. At Tunkerley, South Africa, there is an average of one native found dead every morning from excessive drinking.

(To be Continued.)

MEMORY HOLDS THEM DEAR.

BY HARRIET NEWELL SWANWICK.

As long as human hearts hold love for humankind, and while we are capable of joy in meeting with, or pain in parting from our beloved, so long will the homes of our dead remain hallowed spots; a leaf or flower—even a simple blade of grass—if it grew upon one of these sacred mounds, we tenderly, reverently touch; it has become to us wholly unlike all other growing things which adorn the green earth.

To-day, thousands upon thousands of these holy places all over our land are remembered, visited, honored. A nation is giving from its grateful heart its best. The fairest flowers from wood and field—from the wide, luxuriant gardens of the rich, from the narrow, but precious borders of the poor, are gathered, that a garland may grace each grave of friend or stranger—known or unknown among those who long ago gave noble service, and finally yielded their life's blood that father and mother, sister and brother, wife and child, might live in peace and in the enjoyment of their inherent rights.

Others bring songs—their tenderest, and the echoes ring from Maine to California, from our Northern Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. While these songs roll far and wide, over the singers floats the flag for which our brother, and against which the other, fought.

To-day, North and South unite in scattering the sweetest blossoms of the May above the sod that covers the mingled ashes of "the Blue and the Gray;" they fell together, and together, by a common sorrow made pitiful and forgiving, those who loved them meet to do them honor.

Eloquent tongues tell, over and over again, year after year, that none who survived the storm may forget, and that all who come after may know the story of the brave whom to-day we publicly name, and every day lovingly remember.

Year after year the sound of the death-dealing blow grows more distant and faint, the voice of duty more distinct. The smoke of the sinful strife is blowing farther and farther away, while clearer grows the vision of those who so blindly waged war upon each other. In this good work, surely the beautiful ceremonies of this Memorial Day have borne a part.

Then bring the flowers, fresh from Nature's lavish hand; full of hope is their smile, and in their fragrance is the breath of Love divine.

HOW I BECAME A PROHIBITIONIST.

BY JOHN G. WOOLEY.

In August, 1887, I went to New York City and wandered up and down the streets of that great metropolis, with its ten thousand saloons, a man alone without God, trying to get sober and keep sober. I went to bed hungry many a night. I knew a great many people in the city but never went near them.

I was winning the fight very well; but one morning I got up with that awful feeling of restlessness that is called "appetite for drink." I knew I was to drink that day, yet I made a struggle. I remember I would look at my watch and think, "Now it is seven o'clock, I'll not drink till half-past seven." Then at half-past seven I said, "Not 'till eight," and so on through the weary hours; I spent the forenoon walking up and down from Harlem toward the Battery and back again, hesitating at every saloon door, but passing every one, living desperately half an hour at a time. Such an expenditure of nervous energy could have but one ending; I knew it, but would not yield.

It was nearly noon; I was walking up Broadway and heard a band of music coming down. As it came near I stood on the edge of the sidewalk to look and to listen. Back of the band there was a long line of splendid carriages with flags and banners, and in the carriages were well-dressed, well-kept, comfortable looking men. It seemed some delegation of distinguished visitors. What was it? The saloon-keepers of New York and Brooklyn out for a holiday!

If you had been there, you would have seen nothing but the band and the carriages and the men; but I could see such sights as language fails to picture. You know the way of industrial processions is to carry samples of their handiwork in their parades, and the saloon business is an "industry," men say. In this line there were no samples carried openly, but I could see chained to the carriage wheels, a countless multitude of men shrieking and struggling, reeling, staggering, stumbling down Broadway, to celebrate the triumph of the drink.

Back of these another multitude, more pitiful—of women, sad-faced and heavy-hearted, dragging on behind, with little wailing children clinging to their skirts or tugging at their barren breasts, and starving, though 'twas a holiday, and from there back, the misery of the pageant shaded off into the light laughter of the tippling boys and thoughtless girls who laughed at drunkenness and wondered at despair. Farther than the eye could reach the long procession stretched away through the great city, over the Harlem river, and was lost to sight in the pitying woods of Westchester county.

I could see at every revolution of a wheel the idol of some woman's heart crushed beyond recognition. Broadway seemed paved with the bodies of the hundred thousand men who had died drunk in America in the year. And the wheels went crushing over their upturned faces in the summer noon. I could see in the smoke that curled up from the cigars of the merry-makers, shreds of burnt food, and books and clothes from the homes of the poor. I could see in the clothing that these men wore, silver threads, torn from the heads of suffering mothers, along with many colored threads drawn from the dresses of dispirited and broken-hearted wives. I could see my own wife among the followers in the line. I could see my own children trampled beneath the wheels. I thought things unutterable! When the music came I was about giving up the struggle—when I turned from the spectacle, I felt I had grown. My body was erect, my lips compressed, my heart firm, and I knew I would not drink that day; and then and there alone, though jostled by a thousand men, I made a new resolve. My own children might live to be a spectacle in such a procession to the eyes of other men. What should I do? Wait till the juggernaut had passed over them, then gather up their mangled forms and carry them to their mother and say, "Here are the boys?"

The thought drove me mad and I said, "Never another instant of waiting, but here and now I join the men, be they called fanatics or philosophers, who have the bravery to cry aloud and spare not, and to lay their hands upon the horses' bits and stop the procession, though they be sneered at and though they die for it."

That's the way I became a Prohibitionist.

Correspondence.

INTERESTING TO WHITE-RIBBONERS.

The following correspondence will explain itself:

DEAR MISS WILLARD:—We send you a little book decorated by loving hands, in which you will find recorded the names of friends known and unknown to yourself, who have contributed to the fund of $850 which you have received for the purpose of enlarging and refurnishing your "Den." They have uniformly expressed their pleasure for the opportunity of sharing in this offering of love. We all unite in asking you to accept it, as evidence of our high appreciation of yourself, and your work.

AMELIA C. THORP,
ABBIE E. SHAPLEIGH.

Riverview, Cambridge, Mass., May 12, 1890.

MISS WILLARD'S RESPONSE.

REST COTTAGE, EVANSTON, ILL., May 19, 1890.

TO MY DEAR HELPFUL FRIENDS:—I am sitting this sunny spring morning in the old "Den" while half a dozen carpenters are building a new roof over the weather-worn one of twenty-five years' standing. Every time the hammer falls it but accentuates my sense of your gracious, loving kindness, and when I think of that, an Æolian harp could not sound sweeter than all this heavenly racket. What an ideal piece of work it is! I might have saved money, I suppose, to make myself a lovely den, but that would have been a transaction purely commercial, while this is full of pathos that delights, and poetry that bends the knees in prayer. Faces as full of kindness as my mother's face, look in at the little door and window, some of them are my own beloved women with white ribbons on the breast; all are radiant with good will toward myself and the glorious cause for which I stand. How much this means to me words cannot tell. Come, one and all, about the first of June when Evanston is like a bower of beauty and see the New Den, not small and dingy like the one wherein I pen these grateful, loving lines, but large and sunny, with bay window, an open fireplace for cheer and rest, and book-cases of pretty wood—all because of your tender thought, which makes me more than ever in love with humanity and in grateful trust toward God. May He bless you, every one, prays your sister, comrade and friend,

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

FLOWER MISSION ECHOES.

SICK-BED, May 17.

MY DEAR MISSIONERS:—I sometimes wonder if time passes as swiftly with you, in the outside world, as it does in my little "shut-in" corner. It seems as if the year is scarcely here before June with its work is right on us, and whilst we do try each year to begin earlier so as to avoid the hurry and rush of the weeks just preceding Prison Day, we find that many orders come too late to reach the workers in time for that day. It would be easier all round if you would have all things made ready in time for our "feast of good things." Please let us hear from you at once.

I hoped to have a Responsive Bible Reading for the 9th of June's services this year, and wrote early in April to Mrs. Barney to ask her to select the texts for prisoners to read in response to the ones I have always given, which would be read by the Flower Missioners. She answered as promptly and kindly as possible as soon as my letter was forwarded to her at Savannah, Ga., and I quote from her: "I think your plan very good, but I cannot help this time, as much as I would like to do so, as I am making a trip through the South in the interests of my department, and have not a single hour to myself now. Then I think your selections so excellent that you might use them again this year, and then we will begin early to plan for another year." I will make no change, therefore, in the leaflet of "Texts for Prison Day Use" for 1890. I believe it will be a cause for great encouragement and thankfulness to you, as it was to me, to hear from Mr. Nunnemacher that we have issued from his office over a half million of the small cards alone since the fall of 1883.

"So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." Resting on this promise—faithful, positive and sure, how secure the results of our work! My faith reaches after a large increase in the flower mission department for 1890, and I am asking "Our Father" to let this, my fiftieth birthday, be blessed above all others to the unfortunate, the weary, the sin-sick; to let you, my dearly prized co-workers, have broad, clear insights for these saddened lives; to help you to seize more eagerly all opportunities for individual soul-growth and mutual helpfulness; and to teach you to remember that the limit of your duty to God and your generation is "She hath done what she could."

"Then here's to those whose loving hearts
Shed life and joy about them!
Thanks be to them for countless gems
We ne'er had known without them.

"Oh! this should be a happy world
To all who may partake it;
The fault's our own, if it is not,
This life is what we make it."

We have prepared a fresh supply of cards, printed on white with purple ink (the King's royal color), and have added three new selections for the aged, three for soldiers, and three for Decoration Day. The W. T. P. A. will issue flower mission readings for the W. C. T. U. and Y's, as well as the children. We hope to make arrangements to keep them in stock for our department's work. In loving comradeship "your servant for Jesus' sake."

JENNIE CASSEDAY.

World's W. C. T. U.

THE CAUSE IN NORWAY.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—On March 5 I started from Christiania in order to visit some of the more northern towns of Norway, in hopes of being able to form some branches of our women's union, and otherwise help the temperance cause, and the women generally to more active interest in it.

The first place I stopped at was Hamor, a small but thriving town of 4,000 inhabitants with a good temperance society at work. I might say two societies, for the Norwegian Total Abstinence and the Blue Ribbon societies are both active there, and, together, own a bright, pleasant hall, in which they hold their meetings conjointly. Here I gave two lectures and afterward met the women and told them a little of the work of the W. C. T. U., gathering many signatures for the World's Petition, and a few "mites" for the Woman's Temple.

Another run of nine hours brought me to Touset. It is one of the most elevated villages in Norway, being about 2,000 feet above sea level, and consequently bleak and cold all the year round. The days I was there the thermometer stood at about two degrees below zero, but it had been much colder a few days before. My host and hostess were elderly people with a large family, all the members of which were total abstainers. Until quite recently he had been a member of the Storthing (Norwegian Parliament), and had voted for the grant of 3,000 kroners to the Alcohol Congress. Naturally, he is a leader in the temperance movement where he lives. I arrived at 11 p. m. and found that two meetings had been arranged for the next day—one for women at one o'clock, and a general meeting at six. On arriving a little before the time appointed, I found about two hundred women present, many of whom must have come several miles over the snow from all the country round. Many elderly women, with their little black caps covering the back part of the head, and hair neatly combed in front, young women with hair hanging in long plaits, or else twisted up at the back of the head—all with knitting or crochet, busily at work, and waiting for me. First, a psalm was sung, then prayer, followed by a Scripture lesson, which formed part of over an hour's talk, in which all were so interested that knitting and crochet needles lay still and all attention was given to me. I then produced the Petition while coffee and buns were served as refreshment for those who intended waiting for the evening meeting, which most of them did. After all had been served, the gentleman I have mentioned before took up the model of the Temperance Temple which I received from Mrs. Carse, and, quite unexpectedly to me, told all who wished to give anything for their coffee, to put 10 öre (equal to a mite) into that box. He assured me privately that the cost of the refreshments would be met in another way. Immediately all hands were stretched out for the little box and it soon began to feel quite heavy, while all were highly delighted—I not the least so. The meeting was held in the Communal House or Common Council Hall. Only half of the large hall was used, but for the evening meeting the partition was removed, making a very large room, which was densely packed, about 500 or 600 being present. Towards the close of my lecture the lamps nearly went out. I thought it was for lack of oil, but it was for lack of air. This want of fresh air has been one of the most trying parts of my journey. The effort of speaking and thinking in a foreign tongue is in itself a strain, but it has been greatly increased by having to do it almost invariably in crowded, heated rooms.

The next day at my special request the children were gathered together and I gave them an address, urging them and the adults present to begin a juvenile temperance society. Touset is one of the places in Norway where the people have voted down the liquor traffic, and the only place and time that any intoxicating drink is sold is at the railway station while the train is stopping, and even then the station master is only allowed to sell it to the travelers.

Leaving Touset at eleven o'clock Saturday night I arrived at Trondhjem about seven on Sunday morning, and found several friends waiting to receive and welcome me to their city. Drontheim, as it is sometimes called, is a very interesting place, because one of the most ancient cities in Europe. It was formerly the capital of Norway, and though Christiania now occupies that place, yet the kings of Norway are still crowned in the cathedral at Trondhjem. There is one entrance which is reserved for such occasions. On the ceiling and all around the arch forming the porch to this entrance is represented the creation of man, and the history of the fall and its consequences, all most curiously carved in stone. This building has always struck me as one of the most remarkable and interesting cathedrals I have seen. For many years it has been undergoing repairs and renovations, for it was crumbling away in many places. This is not to be wondered at when we remember that it must be at least 800 years since it was built. The choir is said to be higher than St. Peter's at Rome. The carving is both grotesque and unique, and shows that the hardy Norsemen knew how to handle tools on land as well as oars and clubs at sea. Trondhjem is a very busy shipping place, and ships go daily round the coast, up the Fjord and to the North Cape in the summer time. There are several active temperance societies to be found in various buildings devoted entirely to temperance purposes. This city was a kind of center from which I visited several places, returning after a few days.

Seven o'clock one morning found me on board the steamer bound for Christiansund, where I landed at six o'clock the same evening, after as pleasant a trip as could be by sea in winter time. I doubt if anything else than temperance would have induced me to take that voyage. I was much favored in the weather, for we really had a fine trip. I was not sick, but it was three days before I rallied from the effects of the sea. It did not, however, prevent me from working, for I attended a meeting and delivered an address the same evening I arrived. During my four days' stay, I gave six addresses and organized a branch of our women's union with fifteen members, most of whom were not previously pledged abstainers. The people here were all very kind, and the only thing to be regretted was that my stay was so short.

Christiansund is built on three rocky islands, between which small steamers or ferry boats are constantly plying. These are apparently the only means of locomotion besides marrow-bone stage, for I saw no horses or conveyances. And yet it is a thriving place, with a brisk seaport trade. The coast between here and Trondhjem is very broken and wild, and innumerable islands of rock are visible. At one part the captain told me there were certainly over one thousand. Most of them are uninhabited, but here and there a few cottages are to be found, or sometimes only a solitary dwelling. It must be a hard life, and one does not wonder that the poor people look so worn and fagged and weather-beaten when they reach middle life.

The day after I returned to Trondhjem had been fixed for starting a W. C. T. U., for which I considered the previous meetings had prepared the women. The Temperance Hall was well filled with these, only about six or eight men being present. But we were not able to form a union then, although most of those present wished to be connected with the World's W. C. T. U. The reason was that many of them belonged to the Norwegian Total Abstinence Society, and were forbidden by its rules to belong to any other temperance society, and among those who did not so belong there were not sufficient women suitable to elect as officers. Two or three weeks later on, however, we did form a union with thirty-three members and some energetic representative women as leaders. Some of them had walked about five miles into town three times in order to be present at the formation of the union, and they went home wearing the white ribbon and looking so pleased.

I made another water trip, or rather several, in order to visit and lecture at a few places up the Fjord farther north than Trondhjem. I spent three days in Levanger, and gave four addresses. The Good Templars have built a fine hall with an illuminated clock outside. This was filled as it had never been before. It was stated that between five and six hundred were present each evening that I was announced to speak, and this, out of a population of nine hundred, was not bad. The room was also well filled at the women's meeting, and much interest was excited. They were not quite ready to form a union, but I have good hopes that before long one will be started. You cannot hurry the people here; they must have time to consider before beginning something new.

Stenkjar, the next place I went to, is situated at the head of the Fjord, and is much frequented by English sportsmen, who go there for the fine salmon fishing, and the deer hunting to be found in the neighborhood. Here I found a hearty welcome, for I had visited this place immediately after coming to Norway. Then I was only able to speak to them through an interpreter, but now we were able to hold converse together.

During my stay in Stenkjar, which lasted five days, I gave two lectures, had a woman's meeting and a children's meeting besides addressing two other meetings. All were well attended and many were present who had probably never heard a temperance address before. I did not form a W. C. T. U. here, as a woman's branch of the Norwegian Total Abstinence Society was doing good work. The members of that, however, said they should take steps to obtain permission to form a part of the World's W. C. T. U.

I spent Good Friday with an English family who have been many years in Norway and live upon a lovely island in the Fjord called Ytteröen. It was a lovely spot, but had its drawbacks as well as advantages. There are 1,200 or 1,300 inhabitants on this island, but not a single place where intoxicating liquors can be obtained, and there is no resident doctor on the whole island. It was rather curious that one arrived with the same steamer that brought me, and he had been brought for a man who had been to Trondhjem and there had obtained and drank so much liquor that he was now ill and needed the doctor. I told the people in my lecture that I did not think they would be able to do without a resident doctor if they had drinking places on the island.

One other little trip I made to a village a few miles south of Trondhjem. At Melhus there is a large dairy where quantities of butter and cheese are made for exportation. The country people for miles around bring their milk to the dairy from whence it is sent by rail to the towns or else used, as I have said, to make butter and cheese. It was in a large room over this dairy that I gave my lecture and I think I have never seen a place more densely packed. The seats were planks laid across stools or chairs and so close together that people almost sat in each other's laps. The women sat so close around me that I was afraid to move a foot for fear I should tread on them. The desk was placed by the door so that those who stood on the landing and stairs outside and room behind might hear. The atmosphere was so close that I had to ask them to open the window, and though I stood in a strong draft all the time, yet it was greatly preferable to the sense of suffocation that I felt when I entered. I think there must have been nearly three hundred people present—scarcely any children—but where they all came from was the wonder to me. More than sixty of the women present remained to sign the Petition, and many of them, and men, too, came and thanked me so much for coming and speaking to them.

The next day I drove to another village called Soberg in a carriole. This is a curious conveyance, peculiar, I believe, to Norway, and adapted to the rugged mountain climbing as no other is. They are, of course, not all exactly alike, but the generality are like the seat of a narrow arm chair, with a plank, or kind of long, narrow box extending from the seat to the front. Unless you drive yourself, the driver sits on a box behind you, and it is a work of skill or habit for him to hold his seat. There is no back to this box, and when going up hill the man, or boy, jumps off and walks. He often kneels while driving, and it is most amusing to see how expert they are.

After an early meeting at Soberg I returned to Trondhjem, so thoroughly tired that I had to cancel one or two engagements, feeling that I had done as much as I had strength for. After remaining a few days in Trondhjem in order to recruit a little I left for Christiana April 27, arriving here the next evening after nearly twenty-two hours run in the train.

The day I left, the Good Templars in Trondhjem organized a farewell social gathering and invited the presidents of the different temperance societies with their wives and a few representative friends to be present. The meeting was opened in lodge form, all the offices being filled by sisters, and a sister giving the opening address while another presided over the whole meeting. This was something very unusual there, but they said themselves that I had helped to put new life into them and waken them to a sense of their opportunities and responsibilities. The Wesleyan minister who spoke on behalf of the Norwegian Total Abstinence Society thanked me for what I had done for the temperance cause in Trondhjem and neighborhood and for my life among them.

Altogether, I am glad that I have made this trip, for I feel I have been able to accomplish much. In every place I have been, people have been attracted by the novelty of an English lady lecturing in their own language, but then they have been interested and pressed me to stay longer or come again. As to the results, eternity alone will reveal, but some of them I can tell now. I have gathered over 600 women's signatures to the Petition, collected nine dollars for the Woman's Temple, formed two branches of the Women's union, created a desire in many hearts to be connected with us, and helped women generally to take more active interest in temperance, etc. I am conscious that my Father has been with me making me a blessing to many, and I can leave the result with Him. During my trip I have delivered over fifty addresses, which have been listened to by old and young, rich and poor, wise and ignorant. And now I have returned to the city to work for the coming Congress and aid the cause more with my pen than my voice.

Christiania, May 6, 1890. CHARLOTTE A. GRAY.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT IN DENMARK.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—In the issue for March 27, 1890, I was much pleased to see an answer to my article on the Denmark Temperance Movement, by Mrs. Elisabeth Selmer, President of W. C. T. U. in Denmark, the esteemed wife of that honored physician, Dr. H. Selmer, who for a number of years has been the efficient leader and wise chief of the I. O. G. T. in Denmark. I was very glad, indeed, to see Mrs. Dr. Selmer sign herself as Pres. W. C. T. U. for Denmark, because I feel assured that the Denmark union will, under her supervision, by the help of God, be carried forward to victory.

In her appeal to the Danish people in behalf of that young, struggling union, she writes in Danish Good Templar: "We ought to get all classes of society interested in this movement, because it is one of the greatest importance for society as a whole, but we will most likely not be enabled to do this except through the work of woman. Working men and mechanics, who suffered most from the misery brought on by the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, were naturally among the first to unite with the temperance movement; but the evils of drink are not confined to those classes alone. We must therefore do our best to reach the other classes, also—if our work for temperance shall have its desired effect upon society as a whole. As it is a fact that it is nearly always the women who take hold of the philanthropic problems, why then should they not also be enlisted as helpers in this movement which not only lays demand upon the time and money of its friends, but it also asks them to make a personal sacrifice of an enjoyment, which it is very difficult for most men to make, while it is supposed that it would be very easy for women to make that sacrifice,—if not, then they ought (for their own sake) to abstain as soon as possible. And then it must be admitted that it is women who suffer so intensely from the lamentable consequences of drink. It is their husbands, fathers, brothers and sons who destroy themselves as well as their families, because they have formed that unhappy drink-habit which in this country is nourished so extensively through old customs and inherited habits. . . . All women ought to unite with this movement. Mothers for the sake of their sons, wives for the sake of their husbands, young girls for the sake of the young men with whom they intend to unite their fortunes for life; by so doing they would be enabled to observe many things which now escape their attention, and by which they would avoid much misery." This quotation will show the readers of THE UNION SIGNAL that the lady who occupies the Watch-tower, as a representative of W. W. C. T. U. in Denmark, is giving the temperance trumpet no uncertain sound.

Now, just a few words in answer to a remark in Mrs. Selmer's article. She says: "I find myself in the sad necessity—according to truth—to repeat in THE UNION SIGNAL . . . . that poor little Denmark really is the most drunken country in Europe. This statement is first taken from the official statistics for the years 1871–80." The official statistics referred to by Mrs. Selmer I have in my possession, but as the Danish temperance movement was started December 12, 1878, and organized April 17, 1879, it will be seen that these statistics do not take in more than one or two years of the eleven or twelve years of the active temperance work. As these statistics were mostly taken while Denmark was reeling like a drunken man in a spree under the influence of intoxicating drinks before the temperance movement was started, and as I know from personal observation that the temperance agitation has done a great deal to waken up the Danish people to a sense of their imminent danger, so that thousands upon thousands who have not yet joined the temperance army are drinking much less than they formerly did, I have good reason to hope that Denmark, when compared with the other drunken nations of Europe, has at least made some progress in temperance.

In my article which Mrs. Selmer refers to, I admitted 1, that Denmark had been the most drunken country in Europe; 2, I did not deny that it was so still; 3, I stated that as the temperance movement was spreading rapidly, and as public opinion was turned more and more in favor of temperance, the time was consequently drawing nearer year by year when Denmark no longer could be called the most drunken country in Europe, and therefore I thought that I might just as well call a halt in time and ask temperance orators to investigate new statistics, so that they could be sure before they put that ugly black mark on Denmark which it has deserved to bear so long, and which, I fear, it will have to carry awhile longer.

The last Danish "Folkething" (House of Representatives) had, according to "Afholdsbladet" (the temperance paper), only three temperance men among its members, while the newly elected "Folkething" has at least ten total abstaining members. This is a straw that shows in which direction the stream of public opinion is flowing in Denmark. May this stream of public opinion against the drink traffic widen, deepen and swell until it overflows all banks of insulted and overtaxed patience, rushing onward in its increasing power to a speedy and perfect prohibition of the infernal drink traffic.

Oakland, Cal.

Our Book Table.

THE CHAUTAUQUAN, Meadville, Pa., $2 per annum. All Chautauquans will, of course, turn to the Required Readings first, and will find them of unusual interest. But outside of them the number contains enough to satisfy the most fastidious. The second paper of Miss Pennell, on "From Cathedral to Cathedral," takes us through Peterborough, the "Golden Borough" of the Saxons, and Lincoln, with its "Angel Choir," and ruins of the Bishop's palace. "Woman's Work in Archæology," translated from the German of Franz Xavier Kraus, introduces us to some women worthy to be known, yet strangers to many, besides giving a beautiful picture of Mrs. Jameson's life and work. Articles on Tennyson, and on Salmon P. Chase, add to our biographical knowledge, as do other articles to our stores of history. Edgar L. Wakeman contributes an exquisite poem, "The Songs my Mother Sung," suggested by the Angelus chimes.

THE NATIONALIST seems a month behind, at least the last that has reached our desk is for April. Its principal paper is by Edward Bellamy, "The principles and purposes of Nationalism." As there set forth these are: The nationalization of railroads, telegraph and express business; also that of coal-mining; that municipalities shall control lighting, heating, running of street cars and other municipal service, and that while waiting for these reforms all Nationalists shall enter a protest against the granting of further franchises to corporations. Lawrence Gronlund's latest, and in his own estimation his greatest work, "Our Destiny," is running in the Nationalist as a serial. Since writing the above the May number is received. In it is an article, "Nationalism versus Prohibition," which, if it expresses the real feeling of Nationalists, as we believe it does not, forever bars Prohibitionists out of the movement. The object of the article is, as its author declares, "to develop the pivotal fact that the philosophy and policy of these two movements are so utterly irreconcilable, that it would be suicidal to entertain any thought of affiliating politically with Prohibitionists." We commend this article to the serious consideration of all temperance men and women, especially this sentence which sounds very much as if written by Louis Schade, "I shall but suggest the fact that the remedy offered by the Prohibitionists proposes to put in place of the evil of occasional intemperance the wrong of universal overture and tyranny, such as might indeed have won the public mind in the days of the Blue Laws and Scotch Calvinism, but which is sadly out of place when all tend to the goal of perfect personal liberty." The Nationalist Educational Association, 77 Boylston St., Boston. $1 per annum.

IN OUR DAY Joseph Cook gives this characterization of Bellamy's Nationalism: "His plan is very complicated, very revolutionary, very optimistic, very self-contradictory, and, as I think, very visionary, but it has in it elements that are very Christian; but the Christianity is in the voluntary coöperation, not in the compulsory nationalism. I am not a nationalist because I do not believe in a scheme which reduces labor reform to a single wheel. In my opinion the driving wheels of labor reform ought to be four—self-help, state help, school help, church help. But Nationalism, instead of this locomotive with four driving wheels, reduces labor reform to a wheel-barrow with one wheel, nationalism, and it is an exceedingly difficult vehicle to manage. . . . Nationalism, as outlined in Mr. Bellamy's novel, is a statue with feet of clay and limbs of iron, forehead of brass, and crutches of splintered reeds—I mean the political parties that are to rule under his scheme—and with a cigar in its lips and a wine cup in its right hand. Is this the angel that is to lead us into the millennium? I think not. But, because the figure has a golden heart and philanthropic motives, I mean to speak of it with adequate respect."

LEND A HAND, J. Stillman Smith & Co., Boston.

WIDE AWAKE and PANSY, D. Lothrop Co., Boston.

The LADIES' HOME JOURNAL, Philadelphia. The Peace Maker, organ of the Universal Peace Union, 123 N. Fourth street, Philadelphia.

The BUSINESS WOMAN'S JOURNAL, 447–49 East 52d street, New York City, and

The WOMAN'S CYCLE, 253 Fifth Avenue, New York, is each full of its own peculiar excellencies, which must await another issue to be set forth.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

Dear white-ribbon sister, brother, boy or girl: Have you a Temple mite-box on your table? If not, write to Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, 145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, inclosing a two-cent stamp, and it will be promptly sent you on condition that you will drop into it a cent a day, or its equivalent, during the next twelve months. Mite-boxes in quantities will also be sent to unions for the cost of transportation.

***

Standing on a little easel before me as I write, is a handsome plaque, painted by the loving hand of an illustrious white-ribboner, Mrs. Mary Grant Cramer, sister of General Ulysses S. Grant. Around the margin of the plaque, painted in beautiful illuminated text, is the following quotation from the Book of Books: "Let your hands be strong, that the Temple be built." Mrs. Cramer brought this gift to me two years ago by her own hand. She said she knew I would meet with many discouragements in the great work I had undertaken, and she desired that I would keep her little gift always before me until the building was completed, as a reminder that God who is able to strengthen His children for any and every work stood behind this, and his command was: "Let your hands be strong that the Temple be built." I did not know then how precious and helpful this souvenir would become. It has, indeed, been a talisman to give me renewed strength and perseverance in the arduous undertaking which my Master has given me to do. There have been hindrances at every step—Sanballats and Tobiahs that were determined that the work should not go forward. I am sorry to say some even within our own ranks have opposed the undertaking. They seem to see no good in any work, if they imagine it diverts money from the particular line in which they are interested. Some are even now busy at work circulating stories to affright the timid from doing anything for the building. But as in the case of Nehemiah, in the midst of persecution, when he would build the walls of Jerusalem, we can also say, "The God of heaven, He will prosper us; therefore, we His servants will arise and build." Dear sisters, let none of the foolish stories you either hear or read of in the papers affright you from the work. The Temple is an assured success, detraction and lack of interest cannot hinder the work. No man, or set of men, can pluck it out of our hands, be assured of that.

***

We are glad there are so many brave, strong hearts coming forward ready and willing to aid in the erection of the building. A dear and aged saint in Aurora, Ill., who does not desire to have her name appear in the paper, sends a check for $200 on her seventy-first birthday; $100 for herself and $100 in memory of an only daughter who is waiting to welcome her on the other shore. H. S. Merrill, Astoria, Ill., sends a check for $100, and writes: "The strong drink habit has a powerful hold upon our people, and I believe the women of our land can and will do more to abolish the saloon than the men can or will do. May God speed you in the work."

Miss Kate Sanborn, of New York, the talented writer, sends a check for $15 on her pledge of $100. Mrs. Josephine Escoe, Muscogee, Ind. Ter., sends $5, the contents of her mite-box, earned by herself and children.

***

Mrs. M. E. Tifft, of the Madison Avenue W. C. T. U. of New York, sends $15, which completes their gift of $100. This sum has been raised by this union, which numbers but twelve members, in less than two years. Mrs. Tifft writes: "We have sent you now 332 names of babies. What a little army for temperance! Mrs. Richardson raised the last hundred names." The Willard W. C. T. U., of Natick, Mass., sends $11, $2 of which is for the purpose of placing on the Veteran Band the name of Rev. Horatio Alger and Mrs. Aurinda G. Cowdin, both earnest temperance workers. A most touching letter has been received from Mrs. A. C. B. Lyman, Strongsville, Ohio, inclosing $1. She herself is eighty years old, so blind she can see only with great difficulty to read, and her hearing is all gone. Her husband who is still older, is paralyzed and utterly helpless, and yet in the midst of it all, this aged saint exclaims, "I joy to find something still to do or bear for the dear Lord! I have been trying since the Fourscore Band was commenced to save enough to join it, and have at last succeeded. I am in my eightieth year and may not live to see the wonderful Temple completed, but if not, perhaps I may be permitted to look down from my home above, when the top stone is laid, and shout with a great multitude, 'grace, grace unto it'!"

***

Unions are coming up nobly to the $100 pledge. We hear through Mrs. V. A. Brundage that the Kalamazoo, Mich., W. C. T. U. are hard at work raising their $100. The Jacksonville, Ill., W. C. T. U. are also working with all dispatch on their $100 pledge, so writes Mrs. Buckthorpe. Mrs. Richardson writes that the W. C. T. U. of Ogdensburg, N. Y., have voted to raise $100, and she has sent for one hundred mite-boxes. Mrs. J. M. Brooks, president Atlanta, Ill., W. C. T. U., writes that their union will send $100 as soon as possible for the building fund. She sends for forty mite-boxes. She says: "We feel very anxious that the Temple may be finished to stand as a great monument for temperance at the World's Fair." No. 1, W. C. T. U. of Brooklyn, N. Y., send $10 on their pledge of $100. Mrs. M. A. Wilder writes that she will see that the entire $100 is raised. She has sent for twenty-four mite-boxes. Miss Ella G. Fuller writes that the W. C. T. U. of Trumbull county, Ohio, has pledged $100. A pledge for $100 has been received from the W. C. T. U. of Granville, O., signed by its president and secretary, Mrs. Bancroft and Mrs. Munson. We have also heard from the Grant Park, Ill., W. C. T. U., Billings, Montana, W. C. T. U., and the W. C. T. U., of Fort Fairfield, Me., they are also all at work raising $100 each.

145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Our Children.

THE DANDELION.

BY E. HARRIET HOWE.

[Written for Master C. C. McCabe Howe.]

Babes cannot eye the great gold sun,
And yet he loves them well;
He woos till gleaming day is done,
By his enchanting spell.

So in the earth God hides the germ,
Of countless disks of gold;
The dear old sun, as spring returns,
Smiles on the conscious mold.

And meadow, hillside, pasture, lawn,
Thrilling beneath his kiss,
Have put a spangled mantle on,
What mystery is this?

The sun sends down a golden ray,
To form in flecks of light,
A world of tiny suns by day,
To match the stars by night.

And little children ever go—
A joy that ne'er grows old,
To pluck of hats and aprons full,
The dandelion's gold.

Franklin, Pa.

LULU'S FLOWER MISSION.

BY ESTHER CONVERSE.

"O Aunt Annie!"

"Yes."

The exclamation came from the depths of a trunk that my little niece was unpacking; the response, from an adjoining room where I was similarly occupied.

"Auntie, you will be ashamed of me."

"Never! Why?"

"Mamma has packed so few dresses. Here are only my pongee and three ginghams. What could she have been thinking of?"

"Of laundry bills and cool days; she is a very sensible mamma."

"Oh! why didn't she send my French lawn and moire sash?"

Lulu's voice suggested tears.

"Pongee, gingham and flannel are all right for a young miss like you. You shall not flout those pretty gowns," I said, examining the tasteful wardrobe.

"They'll call me 'the young miss from Hingham, who always wore gingham,'" said Lulu, half tearful.

"Well, you can tell them you've 'dresses in Hingham, but chose not to bring 'em.'"

The cloud lifted, and Lulu was her merry self again.

"There was a girl in our school who wore a red albatross dress: we called her the albatross girl. Perhaps I shall be remembered here as the gingham girl or the flannel girl."

"Well, 'tis sweet to be remembered, is it not?"

The ringing of the tea bell interrupted us, but later in the evening I knew Lulu had heard my question, when she asked me if I thought she would ever come to Barton again. I fancied there were tears in the eyes turned toward the mountains standing somber and grand in the gathering twilight, and a sudden pain filled my heart.

"We come and go, but the mountains stand there always. Auntie, I would like to be remembered here, if I never come again, just as the mountains are remembered."

"What an ambitious little girl it is!" I exclaimed; but I called her away and led her to the broad veranda that overlooked the valley below.

I had spent several summers here, yet the lofty peaks had not lost their influence. I appreciated Lulu's feeling.

The next morning she came early to my room. "Do you suppose I shall ever come here again, auntie?" she asked.

Lulu was a delicate child, and a recent illness had developed symptoms that suggested serious results; so I said, "My dear, you might as well ask me if the Fourth of July will be a pleasant day, or if the president is to be reëlected. Why do you ask?"

"I would like to come again and find people glad to see me. A man can do beautiful things—he can build a church or a library, or give a chime of bells; but what can a little girl like me do?"

A few days later she said, "I've thought it all out at last; I'm going to be a flower mission, all by myself! If I hear of any sick people, or people in trouble, I'm going to give a little bouquet of flowers. I can always find something in the fields or woods."

"Yes; and Dr. Hasbrook, who sits at our table, will tell you where to carry them," I said.

"I'm so glad I thought of it! Now I'll be the flower girl instead of the gingham girl," laughed the happy child.

The flower mission began that day, and during our stay at Barton Lulu allowed nothing to interfere with her chosen work. The lady to whom one day the mail brought sad news, found a bunch of violets by her plate. The heavy eyes of the mother whose rest had been broken by a fretful child, brightened as she lifted from her napkin the wild rosebuds heavy with dew. Even Dr. Hasbrook's face lost the gravity it had held for days when a rare hot-house flower was offered by the little flower girl. Home friends contributed to the mission, and the inmates of the house seldom returned from a ramble without an addition to Lulu's store. Dr. Hasbrook often invited her to accompany him in his visits to the sick, and far and wide were spread the simple offerings. The child's happiness was complete; the days passed quickly, and a merry little maiden returned to gladden the home that had been shadowed by anxiety.

A few months passed and again I was with Lulu. A violent cold had revived previous alarming symptoms, and the cloud had returned. We watched her, oh, how tenderly! We measured the failing strength: we noted the occasional brightening of the waning life. She often talked of the mountains, and one day when a warm March sun betokened approaching summer, she asked again the question I remembered so well.

"Darling," I said, "we may never go again, but we have the recollection of a beautiful summer; we shall never lose that."

"And they will not forget us, auntie," she said cheerfully. "I am glad I thought of the flowers."

Then we talked of the mountains standing always so strong and grand, and of Him who "settest fast the mountains," and who is "round about His people."

A few weeks later, when life burned dim, she murmured, "You must go without me; the mountains will be the same always."

I went alone. There was to me an added somberness in the hills. The mists seemed heavier, the shadows deeper. Lulu "came and went," but the fragrance of a sweet, loving spirit lingered in many homes, and incited others to carry on a work her feeble hands had begun.

—Exchange.

TRUE STORY OF FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

When the celebrated philanthropist, Florence Nightingale, was a very little girl and living in Derbyshire, England, everybody was struck with her thoughtfulness for people and animals. She even made friends with the shy squirrels. When persons were ill she would help nurse them, saving nice things from her own meals for them.

There lived near the village an old shepherd named Roger, who had a favorite sheep-dog called Cap. This dog was the old man's only companion, and helped in looking after the flock by day and kept him company at night. Cap was a very sensible dog, and kept the sheep in such good order that he saved his master a deal of trouble.

One day Florence was riding out with a friend and saw the shepherd giving the sheep their night feed; but Cap was not there, and the sheep knew it, for they were scampering about in all directions. Florence and her friend stopped to ask Roger why he was so sad, and what had become of his dog

"Oh," he replied, "Cap will never be of any more use to me; I'll have to hang him, poor fellow, as soon as I go home to-night."

"Hang him!" said Florence. "Oh, Roger! how wicked of you. What has poor old Cap done?"

"He has done nothing," replied Roger, "but he will never be of any more use to me, and I cannot afford to keep him. One of the mischievous school-boys threw a stone at him yesterday and broke one of his legs." And the old shepherd wiped away the tears which filled his eyes. "Poor Cap!" he said, "he was as knowing as a human being."

"But are you sure his leg is broken?" asked Florence.

"Oh, yes, miss, it is broken, sure enough, he has not put his foot to the ground since."

Then Florence and her friend rode on.

"We will go and see poor Cap," said the gentleman. "I don't believe the leg is really broken. It would take a big stone and a hard blow to break the leg of a great dog like Cap."

"Oh, if you could but cure him, how glad Roger would be!" exclaimed Florence.

When they got in the cottage the poor dog lay there on the bare brick floor, his hair dishevelled and his eyes sparkling with anger at the intruders. But when the little girl called him "poor Cap," he grew pacified, and began to wag his short tail, then he crept from under the table and lay down at her feet. She took hold of one of his paws, patted his rough head, and talked to him while the gentleman examined the injured leg. It was badly swollen and hurt him very much to have it examined; but the dog knew it was meant kindly, and, though he moaned and winced with pain, he licked the hands that were hurting him.

"It's only a bad bruise; no bones broken," said the gentleman; "rest is all Cap needs; he will soon be well again."

"I am so glad!" exclaimed Florence. "But can we do nothing for him? He seems in such pain."

"Plenty of hot water to foment the part would both ease and help to cure him."

"Well, then," said the girl, "I will foment poor Cap's leg."

Florence lighted the fire, tore up an old flannel petticoat into strips, which she wrung out in hot water and laid on the poor dog's bruise. It was not long before he began to feel the benefit of the application, and to show his gratitude in looks and wagging his tail. On their way home they met the old shepherd coming slowly along with a piece of rope in his hands.

"Oh, Roger!" cried Florence, "you are not to hang poor old Cap. We have found that his leg is not broken, after all."

"No, he will serve you yet," said the gentleman.

"Well, I am most glad to hear it," said the old man, "and many thanks to you for going to see him."

The next morning Florence was up early to bathe Cap. On visiting the dog she found the swelling much gone down. She bathed it again, and Cap was as grateful as before.

Two or three days later, when Florence and her friend were riding together, they came up to Roger and his sheep. Cap was there, too, watching the sheep. When he heard the voice of the little girl, his tail wagged and his eyes sparkled.

"Do look at the dog, miss," said the shepherd: "he's so pleased to hear your voice. But for you I would have hanged the best dog I ever had in my life."

This is quite a true story. It happened many years ago, and is now told with pleasure of that lady who, in later years, grew up to be the kind, brave woman who nursed so many soldiers through the Crimean war, and has done so many other things for the poor and suffering wherever she could.—Youth's Temperance Banner.

A VERY learned dog appeared before Mr. O'Donnell in the Dublin police court recently as a witness on a dispute as to his ownership. A Mr. Burke claimed to be his owner as against a man named Smith, who had had the animal since last August, when Mr. Burke said he lost him. Mr Burke, who has been in India, said he taught the dog Hindoostanee and Tamil, and the dog, on being brought into court and addressed by him in these languages, immediately responded, did several things he was desired to do and was therefore restored to Mr. Burke.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 8, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 11; II Samuel 2-7.)

Sunday, 8; Luke 11. Verse 1, Our Lord's example shows us how we should pray. He was in the habit of talking matters over with God. Verse 8, The faith that God wishes in prayer is not ashamed of endurance; and it leads one to keep on praying, with the expectation that God will answer in His own time and way. Verse 29, The craving for wonders is a diseased condition of the soul. Those who give way to it are never satisfied, and are certain to be led into falsehood.

Monday, 9; II Sam. 2. Verse 1, David knew very well that he was to be among his own people as their king; but it is not right to move in any important matter without asking the Divine direction. Verse 5. There are times when we should use a sound policy in the management of important interests, which require the goodwill and union of the people; but especially is this right when, as in the case of David, it is prompted by noble and generous feelings, and the policy has a foundation in a sincerity which impels to action. Verse 11, The developments of Providence are sometimes slow, but we should wait God's time.

Tuesday, 10; II Sam. 3. Verse 1, The opposing forces against the plans of God to redeem and save this world carry on a long and troublesome war; but it is of no avail that they thus spend themselves, for the purpose of God is certain to get the victory. Verse 18, Abner's words implied that he was acting from religious motives; while the true inspiration of his conduct was malice and revenge against the son of Saul. We should always conscientiously consider the motives of our action, lest we not only deceive others but deceive ourselves.

Wednesday, 11; II Sam. 4. Verse 4, This poor fellow remains as the only representative of the once grand family of Saul. How marvelous are the changes of time, and how transient are the riches and glories of this world. Verse 11, This cold-blooded murder was as wicked an act as man could be guilty of. No circumstances of personal interest should ever keep us from abhorring that which is unjust and wicked, wherever it is seen.

Thursday, 12; II Sam. 5. Verse 1, It was God's decree that David should become king; but from the beginning to the ending it was brought about in the most natural way possible. He was an Israelite; he had a long preparatory education, which fitted him to become the king; he had military talent; and, finally, he was elected by the representatives of the people. No one rises to eminence as a favored instrument of God without taking all the steps that naturally lead him to eminence. Verse 10, A greatness that comes from God continues to grow Verse 25, We should have more faith from an example like David's, that God will fit us to do what he put us into this world to accomplish; and we should be more diligent in the use of every means by which we may be educated and prepared for future work.

Friday, 13; II Sam. 6. Verse 2, For nearly fifty years the ark had been in the house of Abinadab, David now wished to bring it to Jerusalem, and make the city a center of religious teaching and worship. Verse 8, It was hard for David to meet disappointment in his cherished plans; but it was needful for him and for all the people to see that God's laws must be obeyed. That law required that they should carry the ark instead of setting it upon a cart. Uzzah was not a priest, and was forbidden by the law to touch the ark; his presumption was the result of indifference to God's law. The lesson was that there must be submission to the law of God

Saturday, 14; II Sam. 7. Verse 2, Christians ought not to be contented while our Lord's kingdom is in any way being neglected. What can we do to-day for our church? Verse 18 We do not spend enough time in religious meditation. God and His mercies would be far more real to us if we would habitually think more about them. Verse 25, We should pray that what God has spoken concerning the church may be accomplished.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC

(The Danger and Security of the Church. Rev. 3:10, 11.)

1. The church is in danger by taking in the spirit of worldliness peculiar to our times, and by losing sight of the spiritual life and forces which, everywhere in the Bible, are represented to be the strength of the church. We never can consecrate the pomps and vanities of the world; and the church is in danger of losing its strength by the attempt to do so.

2. The church is in danger because it has in it so many indifferent professors of religion. They are not troubled by the ruin of souls, the poison of false systems of religion, and the aggressive and destructive work of infidelity. Their "crown" will be taken if they do not awake from their sleep and bestir themselves.

3. The church's strength lies in its faith in God and its sincere obedience to His law. The Bible shows that it never has been weak or in danger where there have been faith and obedience. Where these exist, God's Word is real, the doctrines of religion are precious, spiritual life and growth are prized, and work for Christ is a delight.

The Household.

DECORATION DAY.

BY ALICE M. GUERNSEY.

Softly the snows of the winter have covered
Graves that we garland with blossoms to-day.
Lovingly o'er them the grasses are greening,
Smiling in beauty to welcome the May.
Prayers have been answered, and hopes have been shattered,
Chills of the April and winds of the March
Faded the blue of the violet's petals,
Blighted the buds of the maple and larch.
Yet in thanksgiving we mingle our voices,
While a low murmur of anguish and pain
Blendeth forever with all our rejoicing,
Soundeth its wail through our gladsomest strain.

O'er us the skies of the spring-time are bending,
Arching above us their tremulous blue;
O'er us one flag in its beauty is floating,
Back to the heavens reflecting their hue—
Starry-gemmed azure and bands of the sunset,
Bars of the moonlight in silvery sheen,
Chrism of blood for its deep consecration,
Baptism fearful by priesthood unseen.

* * * * * *

Mustering bugle and thunder of cannon
Challenge our answering echoes no more.
Now on Death's camping grounds meet we as brothers,
From the far West to the orient shore.
'Neath the green tents with their curtains of grasses,
Broidered with gold by the sun and the rain,
Rests there an army no bugle can rally,
Never reveille can summon again.

Call we the roll of the brave who have fallen,
Out from the silence no syllable comes.
Only an army of phantoms is gathered,
Marching in file to the beat of our drums.
Come we again with the guerdons of valor,
Bring we a tribute, O comrades of ours.
Roses and lilies we bear for our fallen,
Garland their graves with our loveliest flowers.

—America.

THE AMERICAN ONE MAN ANTI-TOBACCO SOCIETY.

BY META LANDER.

This society, which was born in 1848, was, I believe, the first for this cause ever known in the world. Its founder, George Trask, by a slavery to the weed of more than twenty years, was brought to the gates of death. Looking to God for help, he broke from its bondage. In his own words, "Its renunciation lifted a loathsome incubus from my soul. I came back to a normal condition of body and mind. I ran, I leaped for joy, and sometimes my gratitude to God for the return of health was so intense that I was overwhelmed and wept like a child."

In all the enthusiasm of a fresh convert, George Trask began to labor with his neighbors, and finally consecrated himself to this work, in which he continued ever after, undeterred by the greatest obstacles.

In giving his experience some time after he says:

"My clerical brethren have treated me in a style somewhat diverse. Some have heartily bid me God-speed; some—votaries of the weed—have eyed me askance, and, I presume, wished me in Japan. Some have played the captious critic—laughed at my work, as they have laughed at all reforms while struggling for life.

"Riding out of Brattleboro one Monday morning with Rev. Dr. Pierpont, he asked me, 'What did you do yesterday?' 'I preached to Baptist friends in the morning on the text, "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God," and showed them they could not glorify Him by using tobacco. I addressed three Sunday-schools at noon, and showed the boys that tobacco leads to idleness, poverty, strong drink, vice, ill health, insanity and death. I preached to the Congregationalists in West Brattleboro in the afternoon on the text, "That which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God," showing them that men highly esteemed tobacco, but God abhorred it. I lectured in the evening in the town hall to a noble body of young men on the destructive effects of tobacco.'

"The poet exclaimed in surprise, 'A prodigious worker!' Then musing a moment, added, 'I will give you your epitaph.' In a Hudibrastic sort of verse which I cannot repeat, he said in substance: '"We have great men enough, philosophers enough, poets enough, geniuses enough, D. D.'s enough, LL.D.'s enough. The world needs workers. Here lies one." This is your epitaph.'

I take a few specimens from the journal of Mr. Trask's warfare on tobacco, which he says "are the off-hand record of the rough and tumble incident to the early stages of this reform, when to assault tobacco in the shape of a smoker, chewer, snuffer or raiser, was tantamount to assaulting a hornet's nest, and we were about as likely to be stung by friend as foe."

"October 28, 1852.—On my way to the city, I have a free talk with Dr. P., who affirms, 'It is an insidious evil; it injures the individual more than the community; to fight it is like fighting the miasma,' and winds up by saying, 'Brother, I wouldn't fight it another day. Take a parish, be quiet and happy the rest of your life!'

"Right in front of Tremont Temple, a clerical brother takes me by the button, and facetiously asks, 'Brother, have you got all the tobacco out of the world?' 'Not all, brother; to mend the world is a vast concern. Dr. P. bids me quit this reform and take a parish.' 'No, no; go on; agitate, agitate! It is up-hill work, but in the strength of the Lord, go on.'

"Called on Professor ———. He assures me I shall do a world of good if I do not carry matters too far. 'I chew a little,' he adds: 'if I did not, I should be as fat as a pig. The little I chew does me good. I detest smoking; it poisons the common air.'

"I passed to the seminary to give a lecture to the students. The first I met accosted me: 'Mr. Trask, you are too late to benefit me; I gave up tobacco three months ago.' 'You smoke, my young brother; I smell it.' 'Yes, I must smoke a little, but I abhor chewing.'

"At Greenfield, saw Rev. Mr. Langstroth, the corypheus in the science of bees. He says, 'Bees are wiser than men about tobacco. One of my hives was insulted, made stupid or drunk by tobacco smoke; but when the persecutor came round again with his pipe, they gave him to understand that he could not repeat the insult with impunity. They assailed him on all sides with a vengeance.'"

Selections from some of Mr. Trask's campaigns:

"Mr. J. C., of Connecticut, in a letter denounces me and my mission. He bids me meet him at the judgment day, and answer for the sin of preaching against tobacco on the Sabbath. I reply: 'Mr. J. C:—When you write again, pay your postage. George Trask.'"

"January 26.—Spirits below zero. Letter after letter, giving me not a ray of light, not a farthing of money, not a word of encouragement. One from a brother clergyman says: 'Our Association criticised you and your mission in a fraternal manner, after you left us the other day. Many of us thought you ought to be a little more cautious and courteous, and thereby carry on your unpopular work in a way less offensive and with better success.' 'O God!' I cry, 'have mercy on an amateur ministry! One-third of this Association, or more, sit in their chairs, chew, smoke, criticise and imagine that a man can handle pitch and not defile his garments.'

"Called at a school in Boston to drop a word touching pernicious habits. The teacher assures me it would not be best. 'My scholars are from rich and fashionable families, which smoke, and it will not do to forbid the boys to do what their fathers practice.' The Lord have mercy on genteel families and genteel schools in this city of notions!

"May 13.—On my route to Waltham. Three red cents in my treasury to hire a hall, pay my board and battle the most popular of all narcotics. God give me grit and grace.'

"Cambridge, July 20.—Commencement. A class of eighty-eight were graduated. With rare exceptions the young men were pale, lank and lean—the pitiable victims of smoke. This is Cambridge College in 1853. How was it in 1650? 'No scholar shall take tobacco, unless permitted by the president, with the consent of their parents or guardians, and on good reasons first given by a physician, and then in a sober and private manner.'

"I met an admirable woman, a clergyman's wife, who said, 'My husband preached an excellent sermon on self-denial one Sabbath, and as he came down from the pulpit, I said, "Husband, that is a good sermon. Now go home, drop tobacco, and put it into practice." He did.' Luther says, 'The sweetest thing in the world is the heart of a pious woman.' Brother Martin, I sincerely believe it.

"A deacon in Hadley besought us not to lecture against raising tobacco, because by raising it he could give more to foreign missions. The deacon reminds me of a man in Marlboro, who said to his neighbor, 'Sir, I wish to sell you my conscience. It is just as good as brand new, for I never used it.' Tobacco fields and distilleries of liquid death belong to the same category. When, oh when, will Christian pulpits in that fat valley do their duty?

"A school-master caught his boys smoking. 'How, now!' he shouted to the first lad; 'how dare you be smoking tobacco?'

"'Sir, I am subject to headaches, and smoke takes off the pains.'

"'And you? And you? And you?'

"One had a raging tooth; another colic, the third a cough.

"'Now, sirrah!' shouted the master to the last boy, 'what disorder do you smoke for?'

"Looking up in the master's face, he said in a whining tone, 'Sir, I smoke for corns.'"

Then follows a characteristic report:

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: A few friends have urged me to call you together to listen to a statement of the doings of the American Anti-Tobacco Society, for the ten years of its existence, and to give you an opportunity to adopt measures to arrest an evil of great magnitude.

"This society is not rich in names; still we are happy to present a Board of Officers so united in purpose, so efficient in action, so reliable, and so well looking, considering the 'wear and tear' of this decade of hard service. The president of this society is George Trask; the vice-president, secretary, treasurer and auditor is George Trask. The honorary body, corporate and incorporate, is the same unwearied individual — the Anti-Tobacco Apostle.

"The object of this society is to break up a death-like, prevalent stupidity in relation to the evils of tobacco, and by 'light and love' create a public conscience, which we trust in God will lead to the removal of so great a curse. This society encounters many obstacles. Among these is the incorrigibility of the habit it assails. A man can give up his pastimes, his bottle, his pastor, and his politics with less ado than his quid or his pipe. If any devotee of the weed disputes this, let him try it. This cause encounters scorn and derision. It has been laughed at in the church and out of it from Maine to Georgia, from Plymouth Rock to California. We have needed temples of brass, we have needed faith in God like Abraham's, to brave this tide of sarcasm. Thank God, we have had it!

"The position of many women is unfavorable to this cause. They think it in bad taste to rebuke husbands and sons for indulgence in this fashionable pleasure. But they do not think it in bad taste to live day and night in apartments fumigated with this impurity; they are used to it. They are like the Irish girl, who was advised not to marry a drunkard. She replied: 'I will; I am used to it; it will seem more like home.'

"We have during ten years delivered more than two thousand sermons and lectures, adapted to show the pernicious effects of this poison on the bodies and souls of men. We have published a number of small books and thirty tracts on the subject. These tracts have never been modified or mollified by any committee; hence they are not perfect; they retain all the original depravity they had at the hands of their authors; I mean the respectable board of gentlemen we have named who constitute the officers of this society."

Thus all along the years, this unwearied reformer preached and prayed and wrote tracts and small books which he sowed broadcast. But in the great Boston fire a sore calamity befell him in the destruction of all his plates. I remember seeing a letter he wrote on this occasion, in which he speaks of himself as lying flat on his back, yet looking up into the sky. And with a heavenly inspired courage he instantly went to work and had the plates re-cast.

That he was never unwise in his methods, he was the last man to claim. Fighting single-handed as he did against a public idol enthroned in the highest places, it would have been a miracle had he escaped criticism. But with the most imperturbable good nature, he skillfully parried the many hard blows he received.

After a quarter of a century's incessant toil, his health gave way and for months he was a sick man. Yet his busy hands never ceased their work, his last tract being an Appeal to the Rev. Charles Spurgeon. It was while correcting the proofs of this tract that the master summoned him. So the old hero joyfully passed from the toils of earth to the higher, broader services of the heavenly kingdom.

Blessed be the memory of George Trask, one of the earliest workers in this great field—THE ONE-MAN ANTI-TOBACCO SOCIETY!

WORDS TO THE WISE.

Children's Rights and Wrongs.

BY ABBY MORTON DIAZ.

As they cannot make the claim for themselves, some one should make it for them, that children have some rights which grown folk are bound to respect. And, first, it should be considered that they are human beings. They do not grow up into human beings, but are born such, and as such have all the human characteristics. We can, therefore, judge by our own sensations just how a child would be affected by any given manner of treatment. This common nature is too little recognized. Many people seem to think that in their behavior to children accepted standards may be set aside. Children as a class are in a sense helpless and defenceless. The power which controls them is absolute. Not infrequently parents and others take advantage of this absolute power, and treat children with a discourtesy and rudeness, with an unkindness, injustice, unfairness which they would be ashamed to exhibit towards grown people, and which, if shown, would be judged worthy of general condemnation.

But children can never be judged by a jury of their peers. Their standpoint is not that of grown folk. Their reasoning is based on a comparatively small amount of knowledge and experience. Much that in after life becomes fixed and settled does in childhood remain crude and but partly understood. Yet child conduct is always judged from the adult's standpoint This cannot be otherwise, but such being the case, and because such is the case, we may put in a plea for mercy. Not a plea for weak indulgence; there is plenty of that. Not a plea for severity; there is plenty of that. And these remarks are not directed against obedience, but against certain methods of child treatment which are objectionable, considering children as human beings, and sharing the common nature. Ridicule, for instance. How sensitive are grown folk to this! How it mortifies and rankles and embitters! They would sooner take almost any affront than to be laughed at. Yet with what frequency are children made subjects of ridicule. Perhaps in company, or at table, a child makes a remark, or uses a phrase, which to the grown people, with their superior knowledge, contains an element of absurdity. Instantly there is a burst of laughter, and the poor child is filled with mortification, perhaps not shown, but felt, nevertheless. But grown up blunders are courteously ignored.

Children have another grievance in the injustice and unfairness often shown them. Take ownership, for instance. With children, as with adults, what they own is absolutely their own. Sometimes a grown person has need of some article belonging to a child, or wishes it to be given to some other child, and the rightful owner is so coaxed, and blamed and shamed, as to be actually compelled to give up the article. In some cases it is taken without asking. No grown person would be treated thus. There is other injustice. In many families a child is punished at one time for behavior which at other times has been allowed, the punishment or approval depending on certain conditions of the parent. Then there is questioning "When you are ignorant, my dear, always ask," says the fond and serene parent. "How your tongue flies! Don't ask so many questions!" says the same parent, if preoccupied, or nervous, or cross, or not wishing to give answers.

Sometimes a disagreement arises between a child and a grown person regarding the details of an occurrence of no great moment, witnessed by both. The child may be right, for child eyes often see details which would be scarcely noticed by an adult occupied with affairs of more importance. In such cases some one clothed with the authority of years may peremptorily order the child to stop talking, thus implying, on its part, incorrectness and even blame for persisting in its statement.

Do as you would like to be done by is a pretty safe rule. Adults do not like to be found fault with before folk; do not like their peculiarities of face or figure, or disposition to be made the subject of remark; do not like to be everlastingly nagged; do not like harshness, rudeness, impoliteness, ridicule, injustice, unfairness. It seems a pity, it seems mean that they take advantage of their position to inflict all these upon children. True, children should be trained in the right paths. But for child-training there are ways, and ways. Let us consider some of them.

Belmont, Mass.

UNION SIGNAL

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A. AMES. ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James, and Joses, and of Juda and Simon? And are not his sisters here with us? And they were offended at him. And He could there do no mighty work, save that He laid His hands upon a few sick folks and healed them. And He marveled because of their unbelief.—Mark 6: 3-6.

CHRISTIAN SOCIALISM.

The time has long passed when Christians can wrap themselves in a cloak of sanctity and sit and sing psalms, unheeding the great, struggling, toiling, suffering masses around them. Christianity must put on its boots and go out into the highways of labor, the byways of sin, and do the work of its Master there. Strangely enough it has reversed these two, going first into the byways of sin to seek and to save them that are lost. "This ought ye to have done, and not to have left the other undone." It is now awaking to its duty to go into the highways of labor, to see that those who are not vicious and not idle shall have a fair chance, as well as those who are. And this is Christian socialism, Christianity applied to the business of life.

Rev. W. D. P. Bliss, the apostle of this new movement and editor of its organ, The Dawn, spent a week in our city; we have heard his setting forth of the new-old doctrine, and purpose to give, as well as we may, his views. Allow a word of personal introduction; Mr. Bliss belongs to the Bliss family so well known in missionary circles, is himself a son of missionaries, born, we believe, in Constantinople. He is now pastor of a Congregational Church in the suburbs of Boston; an earnest, devout Christian. He goes into this movement with his whole heart and soul, because he believes Christ is in it, and that its principles must prevail if Christ's redemption is to be brought within the reach of every creature.

First, Christian socialism is not anarchy; it is not communism; it is not opposed to individualism; it believes that individuality and socialism are coördinate, not antagonistic forces. It believes that applied Christianity is the best solution of all social problems.

Mr. Bliss says that Christian socialism stands for democratic coöperation—combination, in industry, and the ownership of all capital by the community collectively, to be operated by the community coöperatively for the equitable good of all.

Government should not be paternal, but fraternal; the working together of brothers and sisters under a system which makes the weal of each the care of all. We cannot bring all this about in a day; the evils under which we suffer are deep-seated; the cure must be gradually applied. He has no patent scheme for bringing in the millennium in an hour, but we must stand ready to do that in the direction of our goal for which the nation is most ready, even if it does not seem to us the best thing or the thing most needed.

This next thing seems to be the nationalization of the railways. They are the nation's highways, and only the nation should control them. So long as it costs twice as much to carry a bushel of corn to market as it does to raise it, so long will farms be mortgaged and city poor be crying for bread. Nor should Uncle Sam go down on his knees to Jay Gould, nor will there be need when right principles are enforced by righteous practice. There are political as well as economic reasons for the nationalization of railroads; now these corporations, by corrupt use of their vast wealth, often prevent just legislation, or procure that which is unjust. Then, the power they yield over the prosperity of cities and states, is such as is safe only in the hands of government. Third, their desperate rivalries waste national resources, and are a potent cause of business crises, and lastly the convenience of the traveling public and the safety of railroad employés, now slaughtered recklessly on many roads because avarice forbids the employment of safety appliances, demand that the control of railroads be lodged in the hands of government. The acquisition of this control should be a gradual thing, one road to a section first, and he has firm faith that the experiment would be so successful that others would soon follow. The purchase of such roads when land, not "water," was paid for, would not exhaust the Nation's exchequer; once acquired, and run on as good business principles as is the postal system, with no dividends to pay, no "cuts" and strikes to provide for, who doubts that the people would be better and cheaper served on the Nation's highway?

The telegraph, in connection with the postal system, is the highway of the Nation's thought, and like the highway of its material goods, should be controlled by no one but the Nation. Who imagines that a letter could be sent from New York to San Francisco for two cents if our postal arrangements were in private hands? Even if private enterprise would provide for the postal needs of great centers, it would not provide for those of small villages and distant hamlets. Postal telegraphy is an assured success elsewhere, why not in America? A similar line of reasoning would prove the desirability of municipal ownership of gas works, water works, and street car lines.

But back of all these problems, deeper than all, are two others, the problem of the unemployed and of the education of the children. What matters it if railroad fares and gas are cheap if the laboring man has not money enough to travel, and can hardly meet his weekly kerosene bills? This is the case with thousands, not because they are unwilling to work, not because of low wages entirely, not even because of the licensed dramshops by which Government lures them to ruin, but because of the uncertainty of labor. To-day a million men are out of employment, while other millions are working over hours. Eight hours a day and a Sabbath for rest, would equalize this terrible inequality, giving to every man a chance to work for the support of his family. And it would touch the problem of child labor and woman labor; men could then earn the support of their families; it would touch the terrible drink evil, too, for it would remove the temptation which accompanies squalid poverty and enforced idleness.

Increased and enforced schooling is another vital need. In New York City there are 20,000 children for whom no school sittings are provided; an examination of the statistics of other cities will show similar appalling facts. What does this mean? 20,000 children turned into the school of the street, where the saloon is the most potent teacher, or forced upon the labor market to reduce wages and thus prevent healthy, economic conditions. Municipalities should provide school sittings for every child in their jurisdiction, and the school age should be raised to such an extent as will prepare the children for the work of life.

Just here seems a weak point in the argument, for schools are already under municipal and state control; but it is only fair to consider that success here depends upon many factors over which the state has no control. There are other points which it seems to us need strengthening, but we give a brief resume of the argument, asking each of you to study the matter out for yourself.

These questions are upon us and will not down. There must be radical changes in economic and industrial conditions; that all admit. The question is whether it shall be in the lines indicated, having Society do what societies have failed to do, or whether it shall be in the line of further concentration of wealth and power in the hands of the few and more grinding oppression for the many. It behooves Christians to study these problems in the light shed on the value of a soul from Calvary. The Carpenter of Nazareth cannot be indifferent to industrial problems. His spirit must pervade these problems if ever they are solved. Let Christians beware lest their unbelief, like that of Capernaum, prevents His doing many mighty works through the application of His gospel to the social problems of the hour.

A BRIGHT GALAXY.

A young lady who has lately visited Berlin writes: "In Mrs. Willard's cheerful home last spring, I had the privilege of seeing a number of remarkable women who were invited to meet Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, formerly president of Wellesley College. One was Frau Schubat Cauer, president of the woman's union of Berlin, who, when her husband's death took from her by German custom her social position, determined to claim and maintain a title to recognition because of her own worth, and thenceforth to devote herself to the elevation of women. Right nobly has she done both. Near her was Frau Dr. Tibertius, who twenty-five years ago came to the United States to study dentistry, at a time when even an American woman would have shrunk from so hazardous an undertaking. It is not strange then that on her return to Berlin she was subjected to the severest scrutiny and criticism in society, until her sweet temper and common sense allayed all fears lest she had lost her womanliness. Her sister-in-law, Fraulein Dr. Tiburtius, is a graduate of Zurich, and has for years practiced medicine in Berlin without a license, such a profession being denied her because of her sex. At any time she might be prosecuted for illegal practice, but so great has been her success, and so high is the esteem in which she is held that her right has never been publicly called into question. Another honored guest was Frau Dr. Schubert-Fidel, the first woman to secure the privilege of regular attendance upon lectures in the University of Vienna. Immediately following her two other young women, Jewesses, took the medical course, and are now practicing physicians in New York City. In Berlin each of these women is unique in her profession, the lecturer, the dentist, the physician and the artist, and with a handful of followers, men and women, they are storming the citadel of conservatism by day, and undermining its foundations by night. Soon it must fall crushed by its own weight, and the first edifice to rise upon its ruins will be a university for women. What a time of jubilee for womankind the world over when we all may enjoy the long accumulated riches of Strasburg Munich and Berlin, and listen daily to the lecturers of Gottenberg, Jena, Leipsic and Halle."

CONFERENCE OF CHRISTIANS.

Last month there was in Chicago a notable gathering of Christians opposed to the Secret Lodge system. It included presidents and professors of colleges, editors, distinguished ministers and laymen of leading religious denominations, especially from the large number of churches which by their organic law or by vote of their legislative assemblies, are committed against secret societies. The printed report of this conference is before us. It contains all the addresses delivered on that occasion, including those of Dr. T. D. Wallace, Prof. David McDill, Dr. E. P. Goodwin, Joseph Cook and many others. Joseph Cook gives the gist of his address in these pithy sentences, which we commend to the unprejudiced consideration of all Christian patriots.

Of all I wish to say of secret societies, this is the sum:

Secret oaths—

1. Can be shown historically to have often led to crime.
2. Are natural sources of jealousy and just alarm to society at large.
3. Are especially unfavorable to harmony and mutual confidence among men living together under popular institutions.
4. Are dangerous to the general cause of civil liberty and just government.
5. Are condemned by the severe denunciations of many of the wisest statesmen, preachers and reformers.
6. Are opposed to Christian principles, especially to those implied in these three texts—

"In secret I have said nothing."

"Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers."

"Give no offence in anything, that the ministry be not blamed."

7. Are forbidden in some portions of our Republic by the civil law, and ought to be in all portions.
8. Are forbidden to church members by some Christian denominations, and ought to be by all.

MRS. FREEMAN PALMER IN CHICAGO.

Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer was the honored guest of the Chicago Congregational Club, at its banquet last week, and took the leading part in the discussion of the evening on "Higher Education." She brought out many truths that were somewhat startling, but which all will be better for hearing. For example:

"We women are worn out with the complexity of—things. Housekeeping is a bore, a worry, and a trouble, and even the children's faces are tiresome. And we worship—things. Sanitariums, nervous prostration, watering places, health resorts, do we have them in the West? Must we confess that these reproaches belong to us also?

"What shall we do? What shall we give our girls? How avoid for them all these? There is nothing so good as the hard study, the plain living and high thinking of college life. They are better places than are homes in which to get health. Homes, where young girls scarce out of their pinafores give missionary teas for the benefit of the heathen in foreign lands, give parties to their young friends—but I can best illustrate by an example. It is a rule in Wellesley not to admit a girl under sixteen years of age. A mother once came to me trying to induce me to take her daughter, who was but fifteen. 'She is strong enough,' she said; 'why, she goes to high school, stands high in her classes, studies all her lessons, does her church work, and finds it easy to attend five parties a week!'

"Ah, your children are losing their childhood. That this is being realized is shown by the fact that twenty-five thousand girls have left their homes and gone to college. The home but stripped them of their childhood, robbed them of their youth, and gave them an inheritance of nervous prostration. The college, with its regular thinking, ennobles and elevates them, fits them in sweetness and womanly graciousness to make the true homes that we need. It makes them younger. A gentleman, whose name is well known here, wanted to have me take his daughter, who was but fourteen years old. As the seven hundred girls slowly filed out of chapel he insisted that many of the girls were younger than sixteen. 'There,' he said, 'now that young girl there, she is younger than that, I know.' 'How old is she?' I asked him. 'Why, she cannot be fourteen years old.' 'No? Well, she is just twenty-three years old, and stands high up in the senior class.' Now this is absolutely so. Having made our girls strong and healthy, they must have new interests. Whims and moods—who does not know their evil influences?—when an east wind or a cup of coffee makes the woman of the home—shall we not confess it?—a discontent to herself and to all. To make them happy we give them such interests that they shall have whimless future lives. Women have all the grand work of making the true home. This is woman's work to-day, and the higher education has been forced on us women because the men are too busy to do it. The boys must be kept for business, then the girls must go to college. Why? To make them healthy, happy, sweetly reasonable. Send them to the very best colleges you can, for on them depends the preservation of the home, the noble, the enduring, the beautiful and true."

BOY-TRAPS.

Not very long ago a gentleman showed us a package of cigarettes, "twelve for a nickel," with which our boys are tempted to destruction. He had tested them chemically, and found them impregnated with opium; this, he says, is the universal rule, and is the great reason why cigarette smoking is at once so seductive and so dangerous. All who smoke the things are learning not only the tobacco habit but the opium habit, the most difficult of all habits to break. The package shown us contained, beside the cigarettes, a picture of a "noted beauty" and a slip of paper, on one side of which was printed a list of famous running horses, American and English, of which pictures, 8x10 inches or 10x12 were to be had on conditions named on the other side. We give that side in full, except the address:

RETURN 100 OF THESE TICKETS

To either address below, and we will send FREE, POSTAGE PAID:
A CIGARETTE-HOLDING CANE,
Unique and novel, or,
AN ELEGANT IVORINE PERPETUAL CALENDAR
(7 designs), hand colored; or,
OUR LIBRARY ALBUM, No. 1, of Reigning Beauties, (Other Albums in preparation); or 4 LARGE PICTURES, on heavy plate paper, of any 4 horses in the list on back of ticket,
(or one Picture of any Horse for 25 Tickets.)

Thus thousands of children, many of them with Christian parents too busy about their farms or their merchandise to know the dangers threatening them, are being "toled on" to destructive habits and degrading associations through cigarettes—the devil's own kindling wood.

DR. NORMAN KERR, President of the British Society for the Study of Inebriety, makes the startling statement, that while drinking has decidedly diminished among men, it has markedly increased among women. He says they are not limited to the beer-shop class, but are to be found among educated and religious women. There is a noticeable increase of drunkards among the lady members of the families of wine merchants, distillers and brewers, who have access to the choicest unadulterated liquors. Alcohol is no respecter of persons. As might be expected, prison statistics are changed. There used to be seven male prisoners in England and Wales to one female; the proportion now is three to one. The doctor's study has been comprehensive, and his paper bristles with facts. He sweeps the horizon, touching all intoxicants in the circuit—opium, ether, chloral, cocaine, capsicum, ginger, absinthe. "Honor, duty and self-preservation demand entire abstinence from such drugs." He pronounces the present method of dealing with both the inebriate and the intoxicant, "a huge government training school of inebriety." He calls upon the church to clear herself from complicity with temptation by banishing intoxicants from her table. From his standpoint that inebriety is a disease, induced by the use of intoxicants, the demand upon the state to prohibit the manufacture and sale of such, a disease producer, is even more imperative in the name of justice, than from the ordinary point of view, that the intemperate man is morally responsible for indulging his unfortunate appetite. There is but one national sequence of the temperance movement, upon whatever line it proceeds. All the lights focus at the same point—Prohibition.

MAY MAGAZINES.

THE ARENA, Boston, Mass., $5.00. May completes the first volume of this magazine, whose motto is the words of Heine: "We do not take possession of our ideas, but are possessed by them. They master us and force us into the arena, where, like gladiators, we must fight for them." A review of its six months' work impresses us with the all-roundedness of this magazine, and with its virility. There is no namby-pambyness about it; its ideas are veritable gladiators, and fight manfully for their lives. Of course many of them are not our gladiators, nevertheless we admire their courage, and are interested in watching their contests. Then our pets, and everybody's else, are sure of fair play in this arena. If in the March number "the doctrine presented is pernicious in the extreme," as one reviewer puts it, succeeding numbers refute the fallacies of their predecessors. If Ingersoll derides "God in Government," Canon Fremantle, in the May number, enthrones Him there. In this number Dr. Heber Newton, in the "Dogmatism of Science" turns the guns of infidel scientists, which have so long been trained against the church, against themselves. Professor Jos. Rodes Buchanan, in "The Cosmic Sphere of Woman" gives the most all-embracing view of woman's sphere we have seen lately. Lawrence Gronlund. from several months' residence in "Godin's Social Palace," the latest development of Fourierism in France, gives an unprejudiced estimate of its merits. He considers it from three points of view, as a home, as a profit-sharing experiment, and as a social and intellectual center. In the second respect it is a great success; in both the others it is a lamentable failure. Science is represented by Professor Shaler's "Rock Gases," and geography by Judge Keatley's "Gold Fields of Alaska." There are many strong articles in this number; its weakest one is Hartt's "Another View of the Rum Problem,"—weak not because it does not accord with our hobbies, but weak because it utterly leaves out of view the physiological elements of the problem. We commend its author to the tender mercies of Dr. Crothers, of Hartford. The frontispiece is a fine engraving of Phillips Brooks, giving a good idea of his grand physique, his magnificent head, and the eyes that read men's souls. Even the eye-glasses are there which are wont to leap like a living creature from his nose, when his wonderfully rapid eloquence is in full flow. Rev. Thomas A. Hyde gives a sketch of the great Boston divine, taking for its centerpiece Dr. Brooks' New York Lenten Lectures.

Marion Harland's HOME MAKER is as sharp a contrast as can well be conceived to The Arena. It takes us from the fields of conflicting ideas into the green pastures and beside the still waters. It introduces us to "Another Old Kentucky Home," indulges us in a day in Scio; gives us as frontispiece a beautiful picture of Mrs. Washington, trowel in hand, receiving La Fayette in her garden; in the department for young people tells of several Historic Mothers, those of Napoleon, Cromwell, George Herbert, and Goethe; Margaret E. Sangster, in "Shall Women Vote?" decides negatively, and sustains her decision by the well-known arguments—or assertions—sure to be advanced by sweet, gentle women whose lives have been so sheltered from the ills which make their less fortunate sisters desire the ballot that they cannot at all appreciate its needs. It is to be regretted that Gertrude Clark chose the quotation, "Across the Walnuts and the Wine," as the title to her story. It was a useless lugging in of the "wine," for coffee was its substitute at that dinner table; yet there the mistress declares "the men may smoke if they choose;" "she was too clever to forbid them that pleasure." Enveloped in tobacco fumes, the moral obliquity of vision is hardly to be wondered at that seer cause for covert blame of a young girl because she refuses to marry an acknowledged drunkard and gambler. Home Maker Co., 19 West 22d Street, New York. $2 per annum.

The most noticeable article in the May COSMOPOLITAN is a posthumous story by Porte Crayon, whom readers of HARPER'S a score of years ago remember so delightfully. Elizabeth Bisland gives the second stage of her "Flying Trip Round the World, which takes her out of the Golden Gate to within sight of Japan. Here is a sentence which, as she says, speaks very highly for the civilization of all traveled parts of the globe: "I was a young woman quite alone, and doing a somewhat conspicuous and eccentric thing, yet throughout the whole journey I never met with other than the most exquisite and unfailing courtesy and consideration; if I had been a princess with a suite of half a hundred people, I could have felt no safer or happier." When Miss Bisland knows our missionaries better, especially when she sees them after their ten years' "apprenticeship" is completed, she will learn that her pity was thrown away upon the handsome girl of twenty who in "a spasm of the romantic exaltations to which young women of her age are subject, has condemned herself to a decade of lonely exile in a remote Japanese town." "Artists and Art Life in Munich," traces the rise and growth of art in that city, and introduces us to some of the best works of Franz Defregger, Gabriel Max Rosenthal, and Linden Schmit. Other interesting matter fills this number. Fifth Ave., Broadway and 25th street, New York. $2.40 per year.

THE QUERIES MAGAZINE, Buffalo, New York, $1 per annum. Two articles will especially interest authors. "About Writing," by Mrs. M. F. Butts, and "How to Write Novels," by Walter Besant. Here is a paragraph we commend to all story writers. "As regards characters . . . make every one real. Do not introduce a single character who is not thoroughly real to yourself, and remember that they should be interesting. Make them comic, or grotesque, or pathetic, or wicked, or anything you please—but make them interesting. Animated—always be animated. Animation does not mean a great number of incidents; many very beautiful novels have very little incident. It means rather that way of telling a story which shows that you are yourself deeply interested in it; that you feel no fatigue nor weariness with your task; that you love your creations at every step more and more; that no one is more truly sorry when the story is told than you your self."

The Watch-Tower.

Dean Wright reports that there are now in the Evangelistic Course class of 1892 forty-four ladies. The class of 1893 shows large increase, including in the four courses one hundred and seventy-six students; sixty-five of them are in the Evangelistic Course, thirty in the English Bible Course, four in the Greek Course, and seventy-seven in the Bible Reading Course.

***

Mrs. Mary E. Haggart, of Indianapolis, has been made a National lecturer of the department of Franchise in the W. C. T. U. Indiana women associate her name with that of Mrs. Zerelda Wallace. There are no two abler speakers on the subject than these ladies. Mrs. Haggart is a senatorial sort of woman in mental make-up, and carries her audience with her by sheer force of argument. Her points are made in the most winsome and womanly manner, never antagonizing. Miss Willard says: "We wish she could be heard in every town and city of the continent. Applications can be made through Mrs. R. A. Emmons, 161 La Salle St., Chicago."

***

Of all the grand temperance utterances made by the National Ecclesiastical Conventions in their late meetings, none had a clearer ring than that of the M. E. Church South, in session in St. Louis. And no wonder, for the report was penned by Wilmot H. Goodale, that most knightly of temperance knights. Here is its tribute to the W. C. T. U.: "Fifth.—The testimony was unvarying as to the valuable work of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union in the cause of temperance. 'Why,' said one brother, 'we have pretty much given over the temperance work to the women since we got beat in our state. They were beat, too, but they never could find it out as we men could.' God bless these noble women in their noble work! They bend beneath the storm of adversity only to rise again in the might of God's eternal truth—the stronger for the time thus spent upon their knees. They are our wives, our mothers, our daughters and our sisters, and every thought of our hearts for them is love." The report was unanimously adopted. God bless Wilmot H. Goodale and his wife.

***

A letter which came to Mrs. Payne, treasurer of the National Temperance Hospital, demonstrates the value of keeping literature in wall pockets in depots. It is from a traveling salesman who writes that while waiting for a late freight train, he took up a paper which proved to be THE UNION SIGNAL, containing the article concerning the hospital. The result we give in his own words: "As I consider temperance one of God's choicest blessings, I will most cheerfully aid in my weak way in carrying the good work on, by sending my check for five dollars, the initiation fee for membership in the Hospital Association, and I will pay the annual dues as required. Please send pledge by inclosed envelope, and I will sign same. In fact, I will sign anything and do anything that is fair and honorable, to promote the virtue of temperance, to retard the evils of the opposite vice, and thereby assist in educating our people to be sober. I am a Catholic, and a member of Father Hayes' total abstinence society, known as the League of the Cross. As I am a traveling salesman, I may be able to do something for the Hospital Association among my friends."

***

So much injury has resulted from confusing the similar names of two utterly dissimilar women that official action became necessary in the state where much damage was being done by this confusion. The general officers of Washington state, in accordance with a vote taken at their state convention, request that THE UNION SIGNAL publish in full the name of our Mrs. Mary Torrence Lathrap, of Michigan, that all may be able to distinguish her from Miss Mary F. Lathrop. Please note the differences in titles, in middle initial, and in spelling the last name. These differences, marked as they are, are slight compared with the difference between the women.

***

In a letter to Miss Willard, Mrs. Josephine Butler asks her to convey to American friends the expression of her gratitude for the sympathy expressed with her on the death of her husband, Canon Butler. She says: "I value the affection and friendship which you have always manifested towards me, and which at the present moment comes to me with such consoling force. My loss is indeed a terrible one. The world of social reformers has not as yet any idea of the nobleness of my husband's character, nor of how vital a part of the work which is generally called my work was actually his. Among human influences his was for me by far the highest and most enduring, and the memory of his character and his example will be my best earthly support to the end. During his long and painful illness his character ripened in a remarkable way on the spiritual side; though a man of great learning and sharp critical faculty, he had the perfect faith of a little child" ON DUTY.

News from the Field.

ARKANSAS.

W. C. T. U. STATE CONVENTION AND OTHER JOTTINGS.

The annual state convention was held at Van Buren May 10–13, and was very enjoyable and profitable. Delegates from different counties and districts were present. Mrs. J. K. Barney, National superintendent of prison, jail and police work, was with us till the last two meetings, then left us to go to Tahlequah. She gave us the compliment of saying she thought our women were most prompt and attended to business with marked ability. She also gave the high praise that our corresponding secretary's report was as good, if not the best she had ever heard, and was the best delivered she had ever listened to.

The state officers elected for the ensuing year are: Mrs. L. M. Chace, president; Mrs. F. L. Sutton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. A. Clark, recording secretary; Mrs. A. G. Farr, treasurer. Mrs. S. K. Hart was elected state organizer (and as we felt that we could not do without her services, four ladies pledged themselves to raise a month's salary each,) and with an efficient corps of district and county vice-presidents, we expect to do good work this year.

The people of Van Buren gave us a royal welcome and large attendance every night. Mrs. Barney gave a Bible reading—from Matthew, twenty-first chapter, "The Women at the Tomb,"—and spoke regarding our work, this being the anniversary address on Sabbath at 11 a. m. At night at the same place she gave a most telling address, and on Monday night gave her renowned word picture, "From Jerusalem to Jericho," all to crowded houses that gave the closest attention—not only attention, but attested their appreciation by liberal contributions.

Mrs. Barney went to Fort Smith. At both places she won many to our cause, and filled with enthusiasm those already enlisted.

The last night our Mrs. Harris held the large audience almost spell-bound with a brief history of her work as police matron. The treasurer's report showed that nearly $1,100 had been received, and $1,046 expended, leaving about $50 on hand, which has been applied on the indebtedness.

THE UNION SIGNAL and the Woman's Chronicle were again adopted as the chosen organs of the Arkansas W. C. T. U., and the unions are urged to send reports of work accomplished to these papers, also to obtain as many subscribers as possible to them.

Mrs. Barney has since returned from Tahlequah, and Sunday, May 18, held three services in Little Rock. In the morning the county judge got a carriage and took Mrs. Barney, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Hart, and Mrs. Chace across the river, about three miles, to the county farm, where there are about one hundred inmates, and Mrs. Barney spoke to them. We took flowers, texts, and the strawberries came after; it was a gala day to many of them. This has been a terrible place for cruelty, and many abuses, too disgraceful to recite, but this has been changed through Mrs. Harris' influence.

At 2 o'clock we went to the penitentiary, and Mrs. Barney gave a most plain, practical and touching address to over two hundred convicts; there were also one hundred and fifty persons from the city in attendance. After singing and the sermon—for it was one, though called by another name—the flowers with texts tied with white ribbon and leaflets and pledge cards, for those who wished them, were given out, and then they went down to dinner, where the strawberries were given to them at their plates. Some of us went to the hospital and had service and distributed strawberries, flowers and texts, then to the jail and calaboose.

Mrs. Barney spoke at the Main Street M. E. Church at night to a large, appreciative audience. All her work has been so satisfactory that many are begging her to come back and give us more time. She left for Malvern and Hot Springs May 19, and will start for home the following Wednesday night. We begin the year with a sense of many blessings and a firmer foundation for work than ever before, and I trust the obstacles which have hindered will not rise again. We are glad to know of the good work being done and feel that THE UNION SIGNAL is one of the great levers, and perhaps the decisions of the supreme court favoring the liquor fraternity may be another, as this will reach a great many who could not be otherwise stirred. "All things work together for good to them that love God."

LYDIA M. CHACE.

LOUISIANA.

STATE W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

The eighth annual convention of the Louisiana W. C. T. U. was held at Ruston, April 18-20. The delegates and visitors were gladly welcomed. They assembled in the Methodist Church which was elaborately decorated by the ladies of the town, and every session was numerously attended.

Mrs. Fauntleroy gave a beautiful address of welcome which was answered by one of the young ladies from New Orleans, and Mr. Harrell, the pastor of the Baptist Church, welcomed the convention on behalf of the clergy, in a kindly, fraternal way which pleased every one.

The president, Mrs. Caroline E. Merrick, delivered her annual address on the evening of the 18th, to a large and appreciative audience. Mrs. Merrick explained the aims and objects of the W. C. T. U. in a direct and simple way, urged the unions to exert themselves to improve their financial condition, with all the force and eloquence at her command, nor did she forget to enlist the men, to whom she paid an unusual tribute of gratitude and praise. Mrs. Merrick was born in East Feliciana parish, and has many friends all over the state.

Mrs. Dr. J. J. Lyons, the recording secretary, is also well known; she assisted greatly to promote the success of the convention. She gave a touching tribute to Mrs. Read, the mother of Mary Read Goodale, which was as gratifying as it was unexpected.

On Sunday, Mr. Harrell, of the Baptist Church, preached the convention sermon in his own church to a very large assembly of both residents and strangers.

In the election of general officers few changes were made. Mrs. Julia Cole was elected treasurer. This gentle Christian lady, together with Mrs. Lyons, conducted the devotional hours. The executive committee have determined to go forward in strong, aggressive work. They have been reinforced by the accession of Mrs. Adella C. Sligh, of Ruston, as corresponding secretary.

No account of this wonderful convention could be complete without more particular mention of Mrs. Goodale who spoke Sunday night in place of Mrs. Clara Hoffman, who had been detained by a railroad accident. Mrs. Mary R. Goodale is one of the best speakers among the National organizers, and is in great demand all over the South. She is gifted with a clear and pleasant voice, and pleasing womanly ways. Her address was eloquent and able, and was equally instructive and entertaining. She has been out in the field about two months as state organizer, performing good and faithful work, which is beginning to be felt and shown by a new life infused into all the unions. She is continued as the state organizer.

WHITE-RIBBONER.

MICHIGAN.

MONROE COUNTY CONVENTION.

This was held in the First Presbyterian Church of Petersburgh, March 19 and 20. The convention opened at 10:30 a. m. with praise service and devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Julia Stannard, president of the second district, which continued until the hour for dinner was announced. The pulpit was adorned with rare plants, trailing vines, and blooming flowers. Suspended in front and above were appropriate mottoes and the "White Cross," and on either side a beautiful banner, and the flag of our country.

In the afternoon the devotional exercises were led by Mrs. M. B. Davis. At 2 p. m. the convention was called to order by the president, Mrs. Jennie H. Lockwood. All the officers and twenty-one voting delegates answered to their names at roll-call. A large number of visitors and four clergymen were present at all the meetings. The afternoon was devoted to reports of superintendents, vice-presidents, local unions, and the reading of an admirable paper, "Work of the Flower Mission," by Mrs. Addie Rawson, followed by discussions, music, and miscellaneous business. At 4 p. m. the children's hour was observed. Prof. J. G. Lampson, principal of the Union School, marshalled his pupils to the number of one hundred into the church and seated them in places previously assigned them in the center of the church; nearly the whole number are already pledged to temperance. The grown people filled every vacant place, and listened from doors and gallery to instrumental music, songs and recitations, followed by an impressive address by Mrs. Stannard, who encouraged them to stand by their pledges, and walk in the ways of temperance and purity.

In the evening the devotional exercises were led by the Rev. D. A. Curtis. At 7:30 the church was filled to overflowing with attentive listeners. The music, by the orchestra and male quartette, was very fine. The address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Lottie Wheeler, and was full of words of cordial and hearty greeting. The Rev. Chas. Baldwin followed in an address of welcome in behalf of the churches. With a peculiar warmth and tenderness the guests were welcomed, thrice welcomed. From our beloved first president, Mrs. F. J. Sumner, came the grateful acceptance of the preparation of labor and love tendered. Many a heart was waiting for just the comfort and encouragement that such a response would bring. Mr. E. R. Bragg, fraternal delegate of Petersburgh I. O. G. T., delivered a short address, which was instructive, and full of good thoughts, showing commendable work accomplished by the order.

One of the finest productions of the evening was the reading of a poem, "Views of Personal Liberty," by Mrs. C. W. Phelps, a pen picture ingeniously wrought. A letter of greeting from Mrs. S. A. Grosvenor, of Demorest, Georgia, was read by the secretary, which was affectionately received by the convention as a message from their sister seeking health and strength in her far-away summer home. Music by the male quartette, collection and benediction closed the meeting of the first day.

Thursday morning the devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. T. J. Sumner. The following excellent papers were presented during this session: "What Can I Do?" Mrs. Anna Haight; "Influence," Mrs. Corbett; "Woman's Work," Mrs. Allie Allison; and papers were also given by Mrs. Hobart, Mrs. A. Bruce, and Miss Eliza Phelps. A question-box occupied the remainder of the time until dinner was announced. Delicious dinners and teas were prepared, and promptly served by the entertainment committee, and pastors and people seemed to vie with one another in bestowing such hospitality as only Christian courtesy can offer.

Devotional exercises were led in the afternoon by Mrs. Celestia Carson. After music by the choir, a recitation, "The Captain's Well," by Mrs. Barnes, was well rendered, followed by reports from heads of departments. A paper on "Franchise," by Mrs. Harriett Wheeler, was listened to with the acceptance and delight of all who heard her. Reports of juvenile work, followed by the superintendent, Miss E. A. Stacy, and of scientific instruction, by Mrs. E. J. Van Derlip; both made earnest pleas for their respective departments. Miss Johnson, superintendent of Y work in the second district, gave a finely written essay on the work among young women, carrying conviction to every heart; her best thanks were in the form of the resolve of one delegation to immediately form a young people's society. Mrs. Stannard, continuing her journey through a portion of the country as organizer, reached Dundee on the 24th, where she also organized a union of fifteen members, which is now reported to number over forty. The reports of county officers, secretary and treasurer, were read and accepted. The election of officers then took place, which resulted in the reëlection of the old officers as follows: President, Mrs. Jennie H. Lockwood; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. M. Kirby; recording secretary, Mrs. C. W. Phelps; treasurer, Mrs. E. J. Van Derlip.

Devotional exercises were led in the evening by the Rev. Mr. Gerlach. The audiences which were large in the beginning had increased in numbers until every available place was occupied, and improvised seats were largely used. After singing by the choir, Miss Mary Lockwood, district superintendent of kindergarten work, gave a scholarly address on "Kindergarten Work and its Relation to Temperance Work." The choir again favored the convention with an appropriate selection. A paper was presented by Dr. C. S. Fries, who treated the subject, "Social Condition of Women in Denmark," which was a most spicy article, engaging deep attention, while smiles and applause alternately greeted him. A vocal duet by Misses Nora Tucker and Helen Tyler was delightfully rendered; also a recitation by a member of the Loyal Temperance Legion of Carlton was fine.

Our beloved president, Mrs. Jennie Lockwood, who had been unanimously elected the second time, then gave a most eloquent address, replete with helpful and earnest words concerning the work. A fine solo, "The Wreck of the Man on the Sidewalk," was rendered by Mrs. C. Carson. Resolutions were read and adopted. With a generous collection, music, and benediction by Rev. Mr. Shumaker, closed one of the best conventions ever held in Monroe county.

MRS. M. M. KIRBY, Cor. Sec.

NEW MEXICO.

GLEANINGS.

Having recently visited most of the unions in the territory in company with our loyal leader, Mrs. M. C. Raynolds, we are pleased to find the work encouraging. During the past year, the American population has been somewhat fluctuating, and as a consequence, our "white-ribbon" ranks may be slightly reduced in numbers, but everywhere we found faithful ones, "sowing in shade as in sunshine."

The Santa Fé union will soon lose a faithful and efficient president, Mrs. Carpenter, who is about to remove permanently to her Eastern home. We trust the right one may be found to fill the vacancy and strengthen good work already done.

The Albuquerque union, led by Mrs. J. W. Granger, and otherwise well officered, is a felt power for good in the city. They will place a prohibition ticket before the people at the next municipal election. The Y's also, with an efficient president in the person of Miss Macy, are doing good work, and with the W. C. T. U., are in possession of headquarters, where open and business meetings are regularly held.

Although Socorro has lost thirteen members within the last few months, eleven by removal and two by death, all faithful and regular workers, there are brave souls left who are loyal to the utmost, and are holding the fort. Mrs. E. J. Harwood is doing grand work among the Spanish speaking people. The Spanish union there, numbering some sixty-five, with thirty men, women, and children present at the weekly meeting, manifested an interest and zeal in the cause which was, indeed, a pleasure to witness. Such is an earnest of what may be accomplished by consecrated effort, in this broadest of fields.

The Deming union, although in its infancy, is doing grand foundation work with the children. Miss Gordon's "Prohibition Program" was most excellently rendered by the little ones, and with such leaders as Mrs. Frances Pipes, Mrs. Sleight and Mrs. Merrill, we may look for a continuation of the good work. At Silver City, the meetings of the union had been abandoned. However, an enthusiastic meeting was held in the parlors of Mrs. Moorhead, and the work was reorganized, with Mrs. Agnes Moorhead as president, Mrs. Ella Lucas, secretary, and Mrs. Farnesworth, treasurer.

Mrs. Dilly, president of the Mora union, writes that during the short existence of the work there, eighty have signed the total abstinence pledge. The union at Raton, with Mrs. Mary T. Rife as president, is doing noble work. Miss Henrietta G. Moore did grand, good work in the hearts of the people at Raton, as elsewhere throughout the territory.

The W. C. T. U. at Chama became auxiliary to New Mexico in September last, having at present a membership of thirty-two.

The Las Vegas union, with the W. C. T. U. Reading-Room as pleasant headquarters, supports eight departments of work.

Everywhere we found our women loyal to the National, and ready for a "membership crusade" as suggested by Miss Willard; all willing to pledge themselves to an effort to add one name each to our membership list before the close of the year. The annual meeting will be held in June, when we hope to find many new workers in our ranks. We shall continue to wage our peaceful war, hoping, praying and believing for victory.

M. J. BORDEN, Cor. Sec.

ILLINOIS.

ELECTION WORK AT LAURENCEVILLE.

Tuesday, April 15, was our election day. We have for years had a license board, and each year the temperance people have failed to elect their ticket. So this year the W. C. T. U., though few in number, and the Christian people with our pastors to aid, laid plans and worked accordingly. One week before election day, we began a series of gospel temperance meetings. We secured valuable assistance from abroad—from the W. C. T. U. ranks. Mrs. Musselman, of Toledo, Ill., and Mrs. Denny, of Vincennes, Ind. On the Monday evening before election we held a mass-meeting in the court-house. There were between three and four hundred people present, and we had a splendid program, consisting of recitations, select readings and choice music, all of which were rendered by our school children, prepared for the occasion. They were marched into the court room in procession, carrying their white cross and their banner, and truly it was a beautiful scene. Our home brass band was with us, and gave us an abundance of good music. After the children's exercises, Mrs. Denny took the stand and gave us a most earnest address. Such earnest appeal to our voters on the morrow. The Lord was with His people; we had been going "from strength to strength," as God in His Word promised, so now we were ready for service. Mrs. Denny advised us to be present at the polls the next day, with hot coffee. So early next morning, even before time to open the polls, the women began to gather, and by the time the work had begun in earnest our coffee was ready and we spread a table with plenty of good bread and butter, hot coffee, cream and sugar. The first tickets balloted were presented by the ladies.

The struggle for the right began now in earnest, and oh, how our God did strengthen us! Such liberty he gave us to plead with voters as to how they should cast their votes, and while his people were so wonderfully strengthened, those of the rum power were exasperated. and such mighty efforts as they made and by every means that you so well know, such as buying by drinks and dollars. At last they were so convinced they were losing that they went for the sheriff to arrest us for intimidating voters, but we had the lawyers on our side and well knew we had not taken one liberty we should not have taken, so we stood our ground. They began about noon to hold back votes, thinking the women would become tired out and go home, and that they would then have the field. Tired we were, indeed, but we had never expected to give it up until the last vote was polled; and we stayed with them from seven o'clock in the morning until seven in the evening. After the polls closed we repaired to the M. E. Church to hold a prayer service until the votes were counted; we spent an hour this way. At the close of the hour, one of our ministers, who was one of the committee to help count out ballots, came with the report of the result. Just as soon as he entered the house we knew by his countenance that victory was ours, which proved to be true. What made it such a grand victory was that the whisky board only had one man to elect and the temperance board had five, and every man was elected from first to last. Such a shout went up of praise to our God!

Never was a happier people in all the camps of Israel than were we; so we spent another hour in a praise service and testimony meeting. In our meeting men said they had been voting for twenty years and longer but could say they had never witnessed such an orderly election. It was remarked many times during the day what a good feeling existed in and about the halls where the election was held; even saloon men were gentlemanly in our presence and allowed us to talk to them and persuade them to give up such a business for a righteous one, and they drank of our coffee. While there were some that were furious, yet they were well-behaved in our presence, and I never heard an oath all day long, and to me it was a blessed place to be in. I never felt His presence more sensibly. The men give the victory to the women, and the women give it to the Lord. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Amen. L. B.

VERMILION COUNTY CONVENTION.

This was held in the First M. E. Church, at Danville, April 17 and 18. Every union in the county was represented, and some towns were represented where there are no unions, but will be as soon as our busy organizer can visit them.

The district president, Mrs. Replogle, could not be with us, and Mrs. Parrish, our district organizer, presided over the convention, and by her earnest, sweet Christian spirit greatly endeared herself to all.

Rev. C. A. Crane, the pastor of the church, who I am glad to say is a genuine temperance man, and believes in prohibition with a party back of it, gave the opening address and helped us in many ways during the convention. Several other ministers of the city were present the first afternoon. The reports from the unions show a prosperous condition of the work throughout the county. There were several good papers read, and through the question-box much helpful information was gained.

We all deeply regretted that Mrs. Rounds could not be with us. Mrs. Emmons came Thursday evening, gave us a fine lecture, helped in the convention Friday morning, and lectured that night. All were well pleased, and greatly enjoyed her instructive addresses. County officers were elected, and the following petition was unanimously adopted:

"We, the women delegates and visitors assembled in county convention at Danville, April 17 and 18, desire to go on record as opposing license, high or low, and so unanimously and respectfully petition the mayor and councilmen of Danville to declare that our homes and children shall be protected, and that no man or woman shall be allowed to sell intoxicating liquors in any form either by license or without license.

"The above petition is earnestly and prayerfully presented to the mayor and councilmen of the city of Danville, Ill., April 18, '90."

The above petition was presented to the council, who immediately tabled it, after which they proceeded to fix the license for the coming year at $1,000. By which you see our beautiful little city is completely in the control of the rum power. How long, oh, Lord, will this people be permitted for a price to sanction the destruction of its inhabitants? MRS. LIZZIE E. KYGER.

NEW YORK.

ALBANY COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Albany county W. C. T. U. held their twelfth quarterly convention at the Methodist Church at Coeyman's Hollow, March 26 and 27. The attendance was good, notwithstanding the bad condition of the roads and the fact that the church is located five miles from the railroad. Many of the members of the city unions feared we had made a mistake in holding a convention in a town away from the railroad, but we demonstrated beyond a doubt that "where there is a will there is a way." The union at Coeyman's Hollow can boast of fourteen honorary members. Several of these met the delegates at the depot with carriages, entertained us magnificently, and returned us to the station after the last session.

The convention opened with a good attendance of earnest, hopeful men and women, Mrs. C. A. Jump, county president, ably presiding. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Theo. Van Heusen in a very impressive manner. The reports of the officers and superintendents showed that the unions throughout the county were in a healthful and flourishing condition. The children's hour was made enjoyable by a score of juveniles marching in, with the national colors formed into little caps resting on their brows, who bravely stood while their leader questioned them in the temperance catechism, much to their credit as well as to that of their teacher. We afterwards learned that three of these bright children belonged to the only saloon-keeper in the village, and, while the mother is not a member of the union, she was anxious to do something to make the convention a success, and her sympathies were wholly with us. Just here, Mrs. Snyder, the pastor's wife, invited all delegates and strangers to retire to the vestry to partake of supper.

The women of the union are good workers, but they also enjoy a feast of good things such as was set before them on that occasion. At 7:30 the church was well filled, and, after a very earnest prayer by our president, we listened to words of welcome by Mrs. A. E. Dunbar, followed by a short address by the pastor, Rev. M. B. Snyder. The question-box, presided over by our president, Mrs. Jump, was the occasion of no little merriment, not alone because of the questions, but also because of the shrewd and original way in which they were answered. A very able and instructive paper was read by Mrs. Aaron Veeder, entitled "Justice to Women," which was listened to with marked attention.

On Thursday morning at 9:30 a prayer meeting was led by the president, in which many took an active part, after which two interesting papers were read, "Gleanings," by Mrs. A. J. Hall, and "The Doctor and His Patient," by Mrs. R. G. Wentworth. Mrs. C. A. Jump was elected a delegate to the National Reform Association. After prayer at the noon-time hour lunch was served, then the carriages were driven to the door, and in one short hour we were at the depot, and the beautiful little church, the pleasant associates and the most enjoyable drive, were ours only in memory. We had proved that a successful W. C. T. U. convention in the month of March in a rural town was a possibility.

ALICE A. WHEELER, Cor. Sec.

IOWA.

JOURNEYINGS AND JOTTINGS.

Your readers will be interested to know of the earnest white-ribbon workers in Iowa. In Volga City, Sunday, May 11, our meetings were well attended. The subject of narcotics in the evening was productive of good, as seven gentlemen gave up the use of tobacco during the week following. At Brush Creek, notwithstanding the rain, we had a good audience and good attention. At Strawberry Point a large audience greeted us; four honorary, including both clergymen, and seven active members, were added to the union. At Hopkinton we had the church filled with earnest, intelligent hearers, and the day following a reception and supper at the pleasant home of one of the ladies. In the evening the good M. E. pastor took me four miles to Sand Spring to speak on the temperance question, and the earnest women said, "We would like a union here, and are ready to work;" so I organized a union of eighteen active and seven honorary members, who I am sure will do a grand work.

At Marion our loved Miss Willard had spoken to an immense audience a few days before my coming, which insured me an audience and an attentive hearing. At Greene on Sunday, May 18, we held a women's meeting in the afternoon, and a union service in the evening, at which we had more people than could be seated and many stood, giving the best attention during the entire evening. Sixteen active and six honorary members were added to the union, and at least one more gentleman gave up his tobacco. I go next to Denison.

At every point visited new members have been added and new interest manifested. It is delightful to find towns and cities free from the curse of the saloon, jails empty, and the rising generation coming up without the vices which are so common in towns where liquor is openly sold. The temperance people here were at first shocked by the blow struck at prohibition by the supreme court decision, but have come to feel that the evil effect will be only temporary, and that it will in the end react upon our enemies and hasten the day of National prohibition. HELEN L. BULLOCK.

WISCONSIN.

STATE MOTTO: WHAT OUGHT TO BE DONE CAN BE DONE.

The result of the vote at our spring elections on the question of license, in accordance with our town option law, was encouraging throughout the state. Many towns have voted to abolish the saloons. Our county has so many no-license towns that it is, practically, a prohibition county. Our W. C. T. U. workers have done much to bring about this result. You have had an account of their work and the victory in Black River Falls. The victory at Stoughton was also a signal one, and there was a much larger vote for no-license in Madison than we had dared to hope for.

From the eighth district we have an account of an event that shows how some of our women work, and will be of interest to your readers, I think: "The Spring Brook union is in a rural district, lying midway between the cities of Eau Claire and Menomonee, being about eight miles long and three or four miles wide, and covering four school districts. Most of the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society are also members of the W. C. T. U., composed of members of five different denominations, so, as a matter of economy, the meetings of both organizations are held monthly on the same day, the missionary in the forenoon, and the temperance in the afternoon, and rotating between the church and schoolhouses in the summer and private houses in the winter, all joining in furnishing a picnic lunch.

"The February meeting was held at a residence near Menomonee, as it had been intimated that two or three women from that union would like to be with us. The roads had been rendered very slippery by a recent thaw and sudden freeze, making it difficult to travel unless horses were sharply shod, but quite a goodly number assembled for the missionary meeting. Just as the exercises were closing a vehicle came to the door bringing eighteen W. C. T. U. women, a driver, and one pair of horses. The women were packed into an omnibus box, and as they unloaded, looked like bees at swarming time, and sounded something like it, too. They brought their baskets, and in a short time a bountiful lunch of all sorts of goodies was spread, and 'all went merry as a marriage bell' for an hour or so, when the president called to order, and the regular exercises and business of the evening were taken up and discussed in 'free parliament.' We did not forget the interests of the W. C. T. U. state work, nor the lumbermen's work, and in this connection the department of literature, Loyal Temperance Legion, and Band of Mercy work were reported, district dues discussed, suffrage department furnished a letter calling for money, etc. A supper was arranged for, and after the close of the local meeting, the president, who is also county president, called a meeting of the county executive committee to plan for the spring Institute to be held in April, and to commence the county fair work by appointing a committee to ask for privileges on the fair ground.

"At an early hour the guests took their leave, pronouncing it a good time, 'as good as a convention.' We would say to all rural unions, 'Go thou and do likewise.' We all know how, in the routine of household duties and family cares, we are cheered by a visit from some one else, and listening to a recital of their trials, failures and successes relieves us of the selfish narrowness of our round of duties. We are all one family; let us try to help each other by being more social."

The first district held its annual convention the last week in February, at Palmyra. At the close of the last evening's meeting twelve new members were added to the Palmyra union. The principal of the high school dismissed his pupils for one afternoon to attend the convention for the purpose of taking notes from which to prepare compositions for the next day.

The fifth district convention was a decided success. Although this district has few unions, the few are full of zeal and enthusiasm, and the union at Green Bay is, both in numbers and activity, one of the strongest in the state. The convention accepted Mrs. Knowles' offer of her park at Wrightstown for the use of the W's and Y's of the fifth district, for camping excursions, and for any Christian and temperance work. The reporter of the convention says of it:

"Echo Park was formerly a beer garden, and Mrs. Knowles purchased it in order to rescue it from evil hands. It is a lovely spot, beautifully located on the banks of Fox river. The Woman's Christian Temperance Unions and the Y. W. C. T. Unions of the district will entertain here, for two or three weeks in the summer, twenty or thirty working girls from some of the large cities. Nearly all the buildings necessary are already on the park grounds, and with the furnishing by the unions of the district of ladies to take charge of tents, provisions, hammocks, games, etc., this can be made a most delightful, restful place to these hard-working, shut-in girls. This park will doubtless be put to many other good uses as the work develops."

The third district is to hold its annual convention May 22 and 23. A good program has been prepared and a helpful meeting is expected.

Barron and Trempealeau counties, in the eighth district, and Sauk county in the seventh district, have held very successful conventions. At the Sauk county meeting, Mrs. M. A. B. Smith, of Madison, president of the third district, gave an interesting lecture on the subject, "A Review and Criticism of the Liquor Laws of Wisconsin." Walworth county is to hold its meeting the last of May.

Miss Lois Russell, organizer for the eighth district, has spent a month in Clark county, and as a result we have six new unions in that county. Miss Russell did real pioneer work, as the interior of the county can be reached only by team. She writes:

"A very pleasant feature of that part of the work was that Mrs. Buland's white-ribbon sister, Miss Mary Mason, took her horse and carriage and drove with me to the various appointments. Our old white horse should have received a white ribbon, so faithful was he in carrying us over the rough, frozen roads." Mrs. Buland is president of the county.

The Demorest contests are growing in interest. Bessemer, Rusk, Merrimac, Mukwanago, Boscobel, Eureka, Lodi, Antigo, Sturgeon Bay, and Stoughton have held contests, I think, since I wrote you last. I am sure others have held them, but have not reported to me. In order to show something of the interest these contests awaken, I quote first from the report sent me from Lodi:

"Though but one can win the prize, the time, the effort are not lost. Not one taking part in such a contest but goes out into life better able to give a reason for the faith that is in him,— better equipped to take part in the conflict which the stern logic of events has forced upon the American people. The struggle demands their youthful strength and ardor. The cry of the thousands whom rum has shackled, the prayer of the widow and orphan, the 'Voice from the Poor House,' the jail, and the gallows have roused to thought and action a host of resolute men and women. Why is the 'Liquor Vulture' allowed, under sanction of law, to feast on hopes, and homes, and hearts? and 'Who is to Blame' for these things? are questions of the hour. The 'Walls of the City' are slowly but surely building; the 'Prohibition Life Boat' is being manned by a gallant crew, and when, in God's own way and time, the temperance sentiment in all parties shall become consolidated and crystallized into action, the saloon will go, and 'Prohibition, the Ultimatum,' will be reached."

The following is from the report of the contest at Eureka: "The prize was awarded to Miss Julia Loker, who rendered with fine effect, 'The Martyred Mother.' All the participants merited the great applause they received. A beautiful bouquet was presented to each of the seven other members of the class. Besides the contestants, other recitations, vocal and instrumental music were given. The church was beautifully decorated with mottoes and potted plants. The entertainment was a success financially, as well as in the temperance sentiment it disseminated; as it was held the night before election, and our town was carried no-license by a large majority, we hope the seed sown was at least a little help."

At Sturgeon Bay the medal was won by a boy of fourteen who rendered "Young America's War Cry." These contests are a power in making good public sentiment a great educational force in our state.

The lumbermen's work was of absorbing interest to our workers during the winter. Mrs. Upham writes:

"The missionary, Mr. S. E. Very, is proving most acceptable to all concerned, his fervor, zeal and consecration, his simple report of walking through deep snow, preaching nine times to camps last week, and cheerfully taking up with the hardships of camp life, seal his acceptance to the W. C. T. U.; while the cordial manner in which the loggers receive him, carrying him from camp to camp (thus lessening his expenses), listening eagerly to what he says, treating him royally, prove to us his adaptation to the work, and his acceptance to the camp men, two rare blessings for which we are all truly thankful.

"Our Wisconsin unions, are we not proud of them? One hundred unions and seven Y's have taken camps, sending to each every week packages of good literature; this means hard work and unselfish devotion on the part of our women.

"We are greatly indebted to Mrs. Emma Nason, of the King's Daughters of New York, who has also distributed about seventy-five camps to her 'co-workers' in New York state, besides sending us twenty-five dollars for our missionary. Mrs. C. E. K. Davis, wife of our first woodsmen's missionary, has done an equal work for us in Massachusetts, receiving from us a long list of camps, and distributing them among the Massachusetts unions, besides sending to us from them sixteen dollars in money for our camp missionary. Altogether we have sent enough good papers to our northern Wisconsin pineries this winter to hide from view the Police Gazette, by substituting something better. Many unions have subscribed for The Deutsch-Amerikaner for their special camp, that good German temperance paper, 'sugar-coated' enough to be very palatable to our conservative friends. Truly this is good work, and many a devoted woman is enabled in this way to do what she possibly could.

"Our missionary writes that he finds plenty of good literature, and the men do read eagerly all they receive. I add this thought for the 'Pessimists' who say 'these men don't read;' they do read and listen earnestly to his preaching. The American Bible Society has just sent us a large box of big type Testaments."

Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, president of Illinois W. C. T. U., has done excellent work in Wisconsin. The president of Chippewa Falls union writes.

"Our union is beginning to realize the need of real, aggressive work. Mrs. Rounds spoke one evening on the work of the White Cross and social purity, arousing the people to great interest on that subject. Her second lecture was on prohibition. The result of her lectures is a great awakening among our members, and an increase in our numbers, nine new members having already been received." Mrs. Rounds' work in Fond du Lac has been reported for these columns. To every place she visited she carried help and inspiration. We are glad we are to have her at our state convention.

Mrs. Annie M. Palmer, National evangelist, has given nearly, or quite two months' time to Wisconsin work. God has greatly blessed her stay among us. Many unions have been strengthened and uplifted through the influence of her earnest, devoted spirit and teaching. We shall gladly welcome her within our borders as often as she can come.

Baraboo union has become incorporated. The members find themselves very comfortable and "at home" in their pleasant rooms at their new headquarters. Their meetings are better attended than before, and people seeing the women going to and from these rooms, inquire about their meetings, and conclude that some work is being done by the Baraboo W. C. T. U. Suitable headquarters prove a source of power to any union.

EMMA J. CURTIS, Special Correspondent.

GRADUATING EXERCISES OF THE LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION OF MILWAUKEE.

The evening of March 11 was a most enjoyable one to the W. C. T. U. workers in Milwaukee. A class of seven bright girls and boys was presented by the state president, Mrs. Morse, with the national diplomas of the L. T. L. All honor to the first class of Loyal Temperance Legion graduates in Wisconsin!

The exercises were held in Summerfield Church. Not a large audience, but a very appreciative one gave inspiration to the occasion. The corresponding secretary of the Milwaukee union presided in her own happy way. The exercises began with the beautiful song, "Spirit of Joy, Cold Water! Gift of the Love Divine," well rendered by a chorus of young voices. Mrs. Herr, president of the Milwaukee union, followed with a fervent prayer. After a short introductory by the chairman, explaining the object of the occasion, the seven graduates were asked some of the principal questions from lessons upon which they had passed examination, both oral and written lessons relating to alcohol and the body, the mind, the pocketbook and the nation. The answers were well given.

A very few recitations, one by the youngest member of the Loyal Temperance Legion in Milwaukee; a solo by a sweet little singer, "She Sails by the Stars, the Good Ship Prohibition," and then came the most interesting part of the evening's entertainment, the address to the graduates and presentation of the diplomas. Mrs. Morse alluded in a most happy way to the 18th of March as her birthday, and said that in all the sweet honors given her on this day as it counted out her years, this celebration brought a joy unknown before; for it was a forecast of the great on-coming army of intelligent, Christian temperance workers. She told the graduates she was almost glad that the first class in Wisconsin numbered just seven—"The mystic seven"—but she would like to have the next class number two, three, or even five times seven.

She gave the class Garfield's motto, "Watch the margins," and showed them by his life, how a careful study of the little, half-hidden opportunities to add wealth to mind and character would suddenly bring to them, some day, a glad revelation that they were ahead in the onward march. She urged the class to take up the study of volume 2 of the L. T. L. Manuals, and be present at the state convention in Racine next June, to add the first seal to their diplomas. Here are the names of the seven: Bessie Price, Nina Shumway, Elsie Hand, Addie Johnson, Clifford Hand, Perley Hand, Joseph D. Herr, Jr. The average per cent of standing is 81, the highest in the class, 95.

Mrs. Herr followed Mrs. Morse with words full of cheer; said the Milwaukee union was proud of its first L. T. L. graduates, and in its name presented each member with a pot of lovely white primroses. God bless the dear girls and boys, and help them to develop characters as pure and white as the beautiful blossoms! Such a glad surprise to the superintendent of juvenile work followed. One of the graduates stepped forward, holding a large cluster of exquisite roses encircling a pure calla lily, tied with a white ribbon, bearing the letters we so much love, "W. C. T. U.," and with tender words presented them to the superintendent on behalf of the L. T. L. and Milwaukee union. A bewildering rush of grateful love to the dear children and the beloved union for their generous appreciation of her services, a longing to be worthy of it all, and an intensity of desire to "lose her life" that she might "find it" in Christ's sweet service, made it impossible for her to make any response save the commonplace "thank you." The very interesting hour closed with a verse of sung by all, and the pastor of Summerfield Church pronounced the benediction. ANNIE J. BRADBURY, Supt. Juvenile Work.

"God be with you till we meet again,"

PENNSYLVANIA.

WORK AT LEECH'S CORNERS.

We live in the country in Western Pennsylvania where the roads are "narrow winding ways" over hills and hollows. It is very difficult to maintain a regular working organization.

For two years a band in our Sunday-school has been doing a little missionary and temperance work very quietly by bringing birthday offerings.

This spring there seemed to be a spontaneous uprising to enlarge our borders. So we teachers proposed, as the children had all signed the pledge, that we organize a "Loyal Temperance Legion Mission Band." All agreed. Some more boys joined us, badges were procured, officers elected and we went to work. Our first public meeting was pronounced a success. The children are aged from ten to fifteen years.

In the devotional exercises the boys and girls repeated Scripture responsively, and as I listened to their fresh voices, so prompt and earnest, then suddenly swelling out into an old familiar hymn in which at the tap of the bell the choir and congregation rose and joined, and then as an old, white-headed father in Israel, who had come out to encourage us, led in heart-felt prayer, I felt a peace and blessedness stealing over me that paid abundantly for all the labor done.

After the opening exercises, the president of the Band, a manly boy of fifteen, came forward with a white banner, on which at the top in large blue letters we read, "L. T. L.," and the motto, "Our Native Land for Jesus." Below was a white cross on a blue shield surmounted with six small flags. The president repeated, "In the name of our God we will set up our banners," and then recited, "Unfurl the Standard," and remained standing while the little secretary came forward with a blue banner on which was inscribed in white letters, "All the World for Jesus;" she recited nicely a missionary poem.

At the tap of the bell the entire Band came to the platform to the strains of Anna Gordon's Loyal Temperance Legion marching song, and sang the beautiful words with a will. After this a young lady came forward and in a sweetly solemn voice recited Mary Lathbury's "By This Sign We Conquer."

We had only one copy of the "Marching Songs," and so I drilled the children with blackboard, and in striving to impress the words on their minds we rehearsed the different phrases pretty often. I was told after the drill that one of our stanchest Republican boys remarked, "Mrs. Stevenson would say that 'help to save the Nation,' means to join the Prohibition party!" Not a word politically had been said, but boys are bright, and political prohibition is in the air. Recitations and missionary exercises followed in rapid succession. A teacher gave us extracts from the Timely Talk, "The Liquor Traffic and Foreign Missions." He spoke well, and from my seat in the choir I could see that the audience was deeply interested. Then we had Esther Housh's beautiful poem, "'The Little Feet a Comin'," recited by Mrs. J. S. Peirsol, whom some of our Kansas sisters will remember as giving the address of welcome a few years ago at one of their state conventions, in Cherry Vale. Her rendering of this poem was highly complimented.

I do not see any reason why every country Sunday-school may not have such a band—as the Missionary and Temperance causes are so closely allied, and where children live so far apart that it is difficult to meet often, use a little tact and cement the work.

Our next public effort will probably be entirely an L. T. L. meeting, if we succeed in finding a program adapted to this conservative neighborhood.

The W. C. T. U. work in Mercer county moves on harmoniously. The department of scientific temperance instruction is receiving more than usual attention this year. Printed blanks have been sent to the local superintendents for the teachers to fill out and sign, which I think will be very helpful. Mrs. U. R. Allen, our county corresponding secretary assists the county superintendent in this work. We hope to have a local superintendent in every township, and each school district thoroughly looked after. Pennsylvania is fortunate in having Mrs. Lovell, of Bryn Mawr, at the head of this department; her earnestness, skill and experience, will arouse enthusiasm throughout the whole network of organized superintendents, both county and local.

Through the never-tiring work of our county literature superintendent, Mrs. Hamilton, and our bright W. T. P. A. representative, Miss Adda Burch, a large number of UNION SIGNALS are taken in the county. Our new state paper, the Bulletin, will be largely patronized also as soon as it becomes more widely known. Its columns are filled with department work and excellent instruction.

In social purity work in this county we are glad to note a resolution passed by the last Sunday-school Association, a delegated body of Sunday-school superintendents, pastors and delegates representing one hundred and twenty schools, recommending that "our pastors and teachers use their influence in disseminating the principles of the White Cross and social purity organizations, and endeavor more earnestly by wise and careful teaching to raise the standard of social purity among the youth of our communities." MRS. J. W. STEVENSON.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

WOODFORD W. C. T. U., of Fargo, North Dakota, has recently held its third Demorest silver medal contest, eleven contestants, a large audience, receipts fifty dollars; but the best part was the splendid entertainment, doing much toward influencing those who are not pronounced temperance men.

AN Iowa correspondent writes: "Miss Willard addressed an audience of over 2,000 people in Des Moines on the evening of May 7. The largest opera house in the city was filled to overflowing, and many went away who were unable to find even standing room. Miss Willard won the hearts of her audience at once, and the great throng listened with unabated interest through the entire address of nearly an hour and a quarter. At the close an elegant basket of roses and carnations was presented to her, and the many who crowded about her, eagerly seeking an introduction, evidenced the fact that she has many warm friends in the city."

MISS ADDIE NORTHAM visited Greenfield, Ill., April 21 and 22, and organized a Y. W. C. T. U. of seventeen members. This has since increased to over twenty. She also greatly strengthened the Loyal Temperance Legion, and other temperance work in this place.

APPROPRIATE resolutions were passed by the Chester and Center unions of Oakland, Ohio, concerning the death of Mrs. Mary Leonard, a beloved member whose heart was full of interest for all temperance work up to the last moment of her life.

MRS. M. V. WOOD, Fargo, North Dakota, is elected State corresponding secretary of the W. C. T. U. in place of Mrs. Ida G. Fox, resigned.

LITERATURE is wanted for the outlying posts of Florida, on educational and evangelistic lines, especially suitable for distribution among the colored people, also among soldiers and sailors. Any friend of temperance who has a paper or package of tracts to spare will put them to a good use by sending the same for distribution, to Mrs. E. A. Hill, the W. C. T. U. state superintendent of press work, at Orange City, Fla.

LYON county, Minnesota, reports eight Demorest silver medal contests, with others in the near future.

MRS. S. M. PERKINS gave a temperance lecture to a crowded house at Wauseon, Ohio, the 4th inst. At the close of the address, Rev. J. G. Smith, the pastor of the Congregational Church, made these remarks: "I have been thinking, while Mrs. Perkins has been speaking, and have been wishing that we had more women lecturers and women preachers. The people like to hear them, as we see by this audience. Hence I say to the young ladies before me, if you have a call to preach, heed the call, and you shall ever have a warm welcome in my pulpit, and I will assist at your ordination. The world needs the gospel as it is presented by women."

AFTER a varied experience during a life of over sixty years, Mrs. H. H. Pettis passed away, at the Master's call, from her home in Sparta, Wis., April 17. She came to America from England in 1843, lived for several years in Illinois, and afterward removed to Wisconsin, where she taught the first district school ever held in Sparta. She was an earnest worker in the W. C. T. U., and her loss as a noble Christian worker is deeply felt and mourned. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Dr. Crawford, April 19, with appropriate singing by the Congregational Church choir, after which the remains were consigned to their peaceful rest in Woodlawn cemetery.

A correspondent writes thus from Fairport, New York: "Our little local union goes on the even tenor of its way, and will soon hold its semi-annual meeting, at which time the 'Temple' will be prominent in the exercises. One of our charter members, whose interest in the work has not flagged these thirteen years, is Miss J. E. Dickinson, of this place. For several years past, she, with her family, has spent the winter season in Nassau, B. I., and we learn that she has succeeded in organizing a W. C. T. Union there. She writes that one of the members on whom she most depends is one to whom she has herself been sending THE UNION SIGNAL for a year or more past. Peculiar circumstances and environments mark the new enterprise; the union will be composed of a peculiar people—its lines of work will necessarily vary from ours,—but its aim, its basis of hope and strength will be the same. Pray for its success. Our Fairport union rejoices in such faithful, energetic work on the part of its members, effort reaching even to the far-off isles of the sea."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The annual convention of the W. C. T. U. of Western Washington will be held in the First Congregational Church, Tacoma, June 3-6. Miss Henrietta G. Moore, of Ohio, and other temperance advocates will be present to address the people. The names of delegates should be sent to Mrs. M. E. Turrell, 802 North I street, Tacoma. It is desired that all Western Washington unions observe 3 o'clock p. m. Friday, May 30, as an hour of prayer for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in our plans, and His blessing upon our work.

MRS. MELINDA A. SHAFFER, Pres.
MISS JENNIE M. HOPKINS, Cor. Sec.

Look Into Things.

"What is agreeable to nature is also consonant with reason."

"Look into things, and see what they are made of, as well as what they subserve."

This is precisely what we desire you to do. Investigate our Compound Oxygen Treatment, learn what it is made of, and what it subserves.

We shall be pleased to aid you in your researches, and to furnish abundant evidence. If you find it "agreeable to nature," it will be "consonant with reason" to try it.

We are permitted to refer, among many other prominent individuals, to the following well known Philadelphians; Rev. V. L. Conrad, Ed. "Lutheran Observer:" Mr. E. C. Knight, Edward L. Wilson, Ed. "Philadelphia Photographer," and a host of others.

For further information, write for our book on Compound Oxygen, its nature, discovery and results. It will fully repay the trouble. It contains among other interesting reading matter, numerous testimonials from patients who have been cured of various diseases. Sent free.

There are numerous imitations. The only genuine Compound Oxygen is that of DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.

Publisher's Dep't.

Our Edition this Week is 89,000 Copies.

The Full Text.

All should read the full text of the famous "Original Package" decision. We have it in pamphlet form, together with the dissenting opinions. Price 10 cents. The decision may be good law—possibly the Dred Scott case was also. These government partnerships have to face consequences at the bar of justice, and now the people are learning that the W. C. T. U. position, "Abolish the great high license tax—the Internal Revenue," is worth considering. If the saloon is to be protected and the homes suffer, it is a God-send that the veil of politics can be torn down and the people see that they (i. e., the government) are responsible. By all means get this pamphlet and become posted.

Salaried Agents.

The plan is doing well. Here are some of the sales made by different ones—$81.74, $71.25, $69.40, etc., etc. Write for full particulars. You can make some spending money if you want to. The work is directly in the line of building up the temple of correct public sentiment.

Enthusiasm.

That is the only word. The thought of having Miss Willard's picture is what has brought it around. Read some of the words written us:

The picture offer is ahead of anything offered as an inducement to workers. There ought to be no difficulty in obtaining the 15,000.—Mrs. Wiley Honey, Newton, Ill.

I pledge one or more new names by July 1. THE UNION SIGNAL is an absolute necessity to all who desire to keep pace with the greatest reform movement of the day.—M. H. Dunham, Burlington, Iowa.

I will help. Know you will get more than 100,000, as so many will try for sake of getting the prize—he portrait.—Mrs. Dr. Blair, North Bend, Neb.

I like your proposition very much. No one can be an intelligent W. C. T. U. worker without THE UNION SIGNAL.—Mrs. E. T. Philpott, Loyal, Wis.

I am a W. C. T. U. woman from away back. I enlisted for life, and I want that Picture, and will help all I can to get subscribers. Will send some names soon.—Vashti Williams, Union City, Ind.

I will help.—Belle Anderson, Williamsport, Ind.

THE UNION SIGNAL is the best paper devoted to the best cause. I am exceedingly anxious to secure Miss Willard's picture.—P. Solenberg, Itasca, Ill.

I will help you get the desired number for THE UNION SIGNAL.—Vella Lewis, Angola, Ind.

Your new proposal has again awakened latent enthusiasm for the success of our UNION SIGNAL. The plan is excellent.—M. A. Post, Carbondale, Ill.

I'll be most happy to send you one or more new names, and get that picture of Miss Willard.—Mrs. W. S. McDaniel, Belle Flower, Ill.

You can see that all these words are from near by points; by next week you will be hearing from New York, Pennsylvania, the East and the far West. We want to give one more big tug and get the victory. Don't hold back. Don't think, "Oh, I cannot do the work, that's the business of some one else." One friend writes: "I have my new subscriber, it is the man who is putting down carpets for me to-day, a drinking man, too." Insist on your grocery man trying the paper for a year. Who is there that has not an influence over her grocery man? A crusade means move, move, move. There is nothing so restless and upheaving as a crusade, and here we have for our crusade. Your leader calls you on. She says the paper is doing a blessed work; far beyond all speech making. Join her in this new crusade.

Only One Month

Sit Still? Oh, No! Move!!

Address WOMAN'S TEM. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS

Beware of Imitations. NOTICE AUTOGRAPH OF Stewart Hartshorn ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

Ask for Van Houten's Cocoa, take no other.

MR. J. W. STUBBS, Rutland, Ga., says: Bradycrotine is a sure cure for Headache.

MR. JERE HOLLIS, Macon, Ga., says. I would not be without Bradycrotine for the cure of Headache, for ten times its cost.

THE KINDERGARTEN, a monthly magazine for teachers and parents. Contains typical lessons, stories, science lessons, games and nursery occupations. Invaluable for primary teachers and parents of young children. $1.50 a year. Subscribe at once and receive May and June numbers free. Address Alice B. Stockham & Co., 161 La Salle St., Chicago.

HOW I GOT TO COLORADO.

Having read in several papers that they were giving away lots at Montrose, Colorado, I wrote and received the deed so promptly, that a large number of my friends at once sent, and after getting their deeds, they appointed me a delegate to visit Montrose; through the courtesy of the Colorado Homestead and Improvement Co. I got a free ticket there and back. I had a lovely trip, and while there sold my lot for $127.50. Any person can get one lot absolutely free, by addressing the Colorado Homestead and Improvement Co., Montrose, Colorado. By giving every third lot, they will bring thousands of people there. Montrose, the county seat, is a railroad junction, and a beautiful city of nearly 3,000, and will have ten thousand within a year. Their motto is "Get There, Boys," and certainly free lots and free tickets are sure winners. When property can be obtained free, why should not every one own real estate? S. S. N.——Elizabeth, N. J.

YOUR CHILD must be kept healthy, or she can not be beautiful. Sensible mothers buy the "GOOD SENSE" Corset Waist for themselves and their growing daughters.

WANTED.—20,000 boys and girls to canvass for a first-class 25-cent monthly Woman Suffrage paper. THE WITNESS, Frankfort, Ky.

D. Lothrop Company Publish

GO'S GOINGS. By MRS. S. R GRAHAM CLARK, author of the "Wensie Walton Books." 12mo, $1.25.

The charming heroine, whose "goings" wrought such happy changes in her own life and others', furnishes the text for some very strong teachings on religion and temperance, which will make the book especially valuable for Sunday-school libraries.

THE STORY OF NEESIMA. By PHEBE F. MCKEEN. With introduction by Philena McKeen. Illustrations from original photographs. 16mo, sixty cents.

Joseph Neesima, a Japanese boy educated in this country. His story is a marvelous recital, a signal example of what a soul on fire with a desire for truth will do and dare in Christian service.

A CHRONICLE OF CONQUEST. By FRANCES C. SPARHAWK, author of "Little Polly Blatchley." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A story of intense interest; what the Indian is and can be.

"It is well written. Its story is graphically told, and it has a moral as well as a literary interest for every humane and thoughtful reader. It will do good wherever it goes."—John G. Whittier.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST CONFLICT. By HENRY BOYNTON. 12mo. $1.25.

By the "World's Greatest Conflict" is meant, of course, the world-struggle for popular rights, of which the French Revolution is very naturally considered the type; the volume is a cyclorama of the civilized world of a century ago, in which the central and absorbing piece is Paris in the turmoil of revolution.

THE FAIRHAVEN FOURTEEN. By MARIANA TALLMAN. $1.25.

"Shows what a world of good can always be accomplished by the well-directed efforts of energetic young people."—Philadelphia Presbyterian.

THOSE RAEBURN GIRLS. By MRS. A. E. RAFFENSPERGER, author of "Patience Preston, M. D." $1.25.

"A thoroughly healthy and natural book, which will be read with interest not only by the great army of girls who are bravely earning their own living, but by all who enjoy a bright, wholesome story."—Golden Rule.

OUR TOWN. By MARGARET SIDNEY. $1.25.

Like all the stories that come from the pen of Margaret Sidney, "Our Town" evinces the strong love of humanity that bubbles over with clarified humor and plain common sense that are delightful and fascinating.—Home Journal, Boston.

HER MOTHER'S BIBLE. By "PANSY." 50 cents.

"Among many charming stories by 'Pansy,' we have seen none that surpassed in pith and point and beauty, 'Her Mother's Bible'; it is a book to commend everywhere for children."—Presbyterian, Philadelphia.

ACROSS LOTS. By HORACE LUNT. $1.00.

A book that will delight all lovers of nature by its apt and beautiful descriptions of country sights and sounds, and that will teach hundreds how to use their eyes.

Send for pamphlet, "The Utmost Help We Know How to Give in Picking Out Books for Sunday Schools."

D. LOTHROP COMPANY, Boston.

Read THE NEW SENIOR AT ANDOVER, beginning in June Wide Awake, which opens the new volume.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY, Boston.

TO GIVE

PROHIBITIONISTS

A Special Opportunity for Investment where they have PROHIBITION IN TITLE DEEDS.

500 SHARES OF STOCK

Are reserved for readers of THE UNION SIGNAL until June 15, by the EAST TENNESSEE LAND CO.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

CLINTON B. FISK, President; JOHN HOPEWELL, JR., 1st Vice-Pres; FREDERICK GATES, 2d Vice-Pres; A. W. WAGNALLS, Treasurer; A. A. HOPKINS, Secretary. JAMES B. HOBBS, FERD. SCHUMACHER, I. K. FUNK, WM. SILVERWOOD, F. W. BREED, J. R. LEESON, W. C. HARRIMAN, E. M. GOODALL.

The Capital of this Company, only $3,000,000, is based on property values from five to ten times larger than those of any other Southern enterprise; and by vote of the Board of Directors, stock will be sold to the amount of $2,000,000 only. But a small portion remains unsold.

This Company was organized by cautious business men, as a legitimate business investment. It has a larger aggregate of

RICH COAL AND IRON DEPOSITS,
IRON MINES IN PROFITABLE OPERATION,
ARABLE AGRICULTURAL LANDS,
VALUABLE TIMBER TRACTS AND ADMIRABLY LOCATED CITY AND TOWN LOTS, than any Single Corporation has ever before obtained in this Country. Within three months it has sold over three-quarters of a million dollars worth of lots

AT HARRIMAN,

The New Key City of the South, IN TENNESSEE;

where Coal and Iron are right at hand; where the Emory River furnishes the finest water supply, with freighting advantages; where the Cincinnati Southern and the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroads afford ample Transportation facilities; where a Belt Line Railroad is already begun; where, in ninety days, more than 2,000 people have gathered; where an Electric Light Plant is in operation, and a Daily Newspaper established; where Mills and Brickyards and Stone Quarries are actively at work; where Churches and Schools are arranged for; where the Company is building a fine Company's Office and a magnificent $100,000 Hotel; where No Saloons Need Apply, being banned forever by provision of Title Deeds; and where is being brought together a Community of sober, intelligent, Christian people, such as no other city can show.

One Share, of $50 Par Value, or more shares, may be ordered at par, and every share thus taken, within the time prescribed, will participate in the 3 per cent. Dividend Declared,

FROM AN ACTUAL GAIN IN ASSETS OF OVER $950,000.

The solid character of this Company is now recognized everywhere. Its Iron Mines are producing steady revenue. Its newly discovered vast BEDS OF CANNEL COAL, hitherto unfound in that whole region, form an unexpected source of great wealth. Its common Bituminous Coal, for Coking, Steam and Domestic purposes, is inexhaustible. Its Timber supplies are large. Its landed area is immense. Its young City of Harriman surpasses every other new town of the South for beauty of situation, surrounding resources, character of inhabitants, quickness of growth, topographical advantages, and an assured future. All who would coöperate with this Company, and enjoy the advantages offered by it, should embrace the present opportunity.

Make all remittances payable to A. W. WAGNALLS, Treasurer, but send to the Secretary.

CLINTON B. FISK, President.

A. A. HOPKINS, Secretary.

Address: THE TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK CITY.

JAMES B. HOBBS, Northwestern Genl. Agt., 97 WASHINGTON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

Publisher's Dep't.

Bombs!

It's all right to talk about bullets and bird shot, they have their place, but read now about some genuine bombs that we have—warranted to produce consternation in the camp of the enemy, i. e., the liquor traffic.

Bim—Bim—Bomb!

What? Read! Large posters, some in red ink and some in black, about 15x20 inches, having thereon such sentences as these, in bold, attractive type:

> The Wine and Spirit Gazette says: "The men who advocate High License as a Temperance measure are either hypocrites or fools."

> "We have less paupers and less tramps in this state in proportion to our population than ever before. Breweries have been converted into oatmeal mills and canning factories, and are operated as such."—Gov. Larrabee's Message, 1890.

> "What the voters of to-day need is BACKBONE. The defeats of to-day are the victories of to-morrow."

> "Prohibition is better enforced in ninety counties in Iowa to-day than any license law ever made in Iowa, and even better than any High License Law is now enforced in any State in the Union."—Gov. Larrabee's Iowa Message, 1890.

These are samples of the first series of thirty. They controvert the favorite newspaper gabble, "Prohibition don't prohibit," which, being so wonderfully true (?) the brewers and distillers fight prohibition with daily newspapers, money, lies, bribery, corruption, deceit and desperation! Make men mad? Maybe—any way to get consciences aroused. Hurt the church member's feelings? Um—um—maybe they need hurting? Where use them? On bulletin boards, inverted V boards about 24 inches wide, three feet long, hinged at apex of V, or on fence corners—in church lecture rooms—Everywhere the eye of a voter can fall on them. Sold only in series of Thirty for 50 cents postpaid.

If one hundred or more of any one is wanted for a special purpose, we will have to print it to order. Prices will be given on application. It takes a lot of money to get these posters out, but if you will respond liberally and post your town with them one month, there will be a howl and a groan from the dailies that will at once show their darling saloons are not bomb proof!

Aggressive?

Well—Try Them Once!

Be lively about it—that Nebraska campaign is on now and there's no use talking—the whole country is getting ready to take sides for the saloon or Against the Saloon.

No man, no newspaper, no politician—not even a know-nothing-about-it-in-our-platform party can stop the fight.

Aim True!

Coming—

and not very far off—namely, Marching Songs, No. 2. The copy is in the printer's hands, and all who know Miss Gordon and her song books know that a musical treat is in store for them. It's a great pleasure to have common-sense words, stirring ideas and the best of music presented in Miss Gordon's own inimitable way. Be getting ready—a dime per book!

Notice.

Will the friends in Pennsylvania please remember the address of our agent for that state, Miss S. S. Sterrett, 2133 Vine street, Philadelphia, Pa., and correspond with her in relation to getting up new clubs for THE UNION SIGNAL.

Don't Pass this Item.

THE UNION SIGNAL editor lately had a call from an attorney here who said in effect that he had entertained a delegate to the last "National"; that he had done so merely because he was solicited—had no interest in the cause. The delegate had THE UNION SIGNAL sent him; he at first merely glanced at it; then he read a little; then he got to watching for it, and "now," said he, "I think it's the grandest paper published, and it ought to be known in every one of our Chicago homes. I'll give $200.00 toward just such an effort." Is not that an eloquent fact?

Address WOMAN'S TEM. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

No other preparation is the "same as" Pond's Extract.

LADY AGENTS CLEAR $10 DAILY selling "Victoria Protecter" and rubber goods for Ladies & Children. Sample "Victoria" by mail $1. Mrs. L. E. Singleton, Box 665, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS Wanted. $5 00 a day made selling our Jewel Tufting Machine, Rug Patterns, etc. Send for Catalogue and particulars. Small sample sent for 10c to pay postage. GIBBS MFG. CO., 88-90 State St., Chicago.

Better than Tea and Coffee for the Nerves.
VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA
The Original--Most Soluble.
Ask your Grocer for it, take no other. [65

STEEL EDGE

LAST A LIFE TIME — EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT
SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.
By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the
STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,
89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. R. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill. We do not sell liquors in any shape.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE
Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V. Farwell & Co., Chicago.

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS
A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.
S. A. KEAN & CO. BANKERS,
CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA
furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.
Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

400 RECITATIONS and Readings, Bound in Handsome Lithograph Cover, mailed to any address for 30 cents. Stamps taken. Address J. S. Ogilvie, Publisher, 57 Rose Street, New York.

AGENTS. Something new in Family Bibles, which makes our Bibles sell where Bibles never sold before. Where other Bibles have been sold, there ours will sell the more. For particulars, address the Historical Pub. Co., Dayton, O.

A HOUSE OF REST is opened for those needing rest, with the best of nursing if required, and retirement to wait upon the Lord. For particulars address Mrs. Dr. A. M. CUNNINGHAM, Beaver Springs Farm, Woodville, Mass., Box 47.

"ORIGINAL PACKAGES." The full text of the United States Supreme Court Decision in the Iowa Imported Liquor Case, with the Dissenting Opinions of three Justices, has just been issued, and is one of the most important documents ever published. Every lover of his country should have a copy. 12mo, 72 pages. Price only 10 cents. Send to J. N. STEARNS, 58 READE STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!
Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May. Box 3442. New York, N. Y.

CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL FOR KINDERGARTNERS.
Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,
Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to Miss Alice McRoy, 2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR MY STORY OF THE WAR
By Mary A. Livermore
Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure, and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos. it sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in twenty colors. 61st thousand. 75,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY
CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.
Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free.

LADY Agents clear $5 00 daily. Goods indispensable. Sample free. G. L. Erwin Chicago.

Silk Satin & Plush Remnants for Crazy Patch a large pkg. pretty pieces, assorted col. & our ill. story paper 3 mos 10c. The Little Giant, St. Louis

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD PICTURE Agents wanted. Terms extra liberal. Address C. P. CORY & CO., 325 State St., Chicago.

"MURRAY"
$55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS
are the best and cheapest. Write for catalogue and prices. Wilber H. Murray M'f'g Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM or Morphine Habit cured at home. Trial Free. No Pain. No exposure. Address, Compound Oxygen Ass., Fort Wayne, Ind. Name this paper

"DELSARTE" Corset Waists and Braces are the best selling goods made. Sold by Agents only. Exclusive territory Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND
Sent on receipt of price and waist measure.
Fitted band 75 cts. } Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367,
Plain band 30 cts. } Minneapolis, Minn.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

WOULD YOU?
WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F" CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 134 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill.

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

LADY AGENTS WANTED—ALSO MEN. Two immense new specialties; 1 lady made $27 before dinner, another $16 the first hour; extraordinary opportunity; proof free. Ad., LITTLE & CO., 214 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

I WANT SEWING WOMEN to write me for circulars concerning The Pearl Sewing Machine. Splendid machine. Low price, M. A. Scullin & Co., 762 W. Lake St., Chicago

MONEY made easily and fast selling the celebrated Thomas Corset and Reform Waist. Three elegant samples for $3.50, which we refund when goods to the amount of $25 has been ordered. Send for terms and samples and go to work. (Enclose stamp). Address, The THOMAS CORSET PARLORS, 465 W. Van Buren St., Chicago.

$75 to $250 A MONTH can be made working for us. Persons preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1009 Main St. Richmond, Va.

WE wish to buy second-hand books of any language, and also back numbers of magazines, of any language, published during the last 2 to 25 years. Send us promptly, and from any distance, a list of the books and magazines you have. A list without a two-cent postage stamp for a reply will not be considered. MURRAY TEMPLETON & CO., 835 Broadway, New York. Established 1840.

WALL PAPER makes attractive homes. Our low prices, enormous assortment of styles and honorable treatment induce customers in all parts U.S. to recommend us. Lustres 6c. a roll. Handsome Golds 12c. Felts 20c. Iridescent Embossed Golds 35c. For 8c. postage will send to any address samples with borders to match. A. L. DIAMENT & CO., 1206 Market St., PHILADELPHIA, PA

GREAT SELLERS Four household necessities. Practical, meritorious. Used by every family. A complete line. Retail prices 10 cts. to $1.25. Agents report enormous sales. Two samples mailed for 25 cts. Splendid terms, Illustrated Circular free. GEO. M. REWELL, Cleveland, Ohio.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time. Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINSTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City.

MAN WANTED SALARY $75 to $100, to locally represent a N. Y. Company incorporated to supply Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Jewelry, etc., to consumers at cost. Also a Lady of tact, Salary $40, to enroll members ($0,000 now enrolled, $100,000 paid in). References. Empire Co-operative Ass'n (well rated) Lock Box 1610, N. Y.

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt., 97 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

ORANGE VALE COLONY, CALIFORNIA
Send for a descriptive folder and map showing fruit area, etc., free. Orange and fruit lands in ten acre tracts with water under pressure on every tract. Investigation invited. A good investment. Correspondence solicited. Reliable information concerning any part of California. Address Orange Vale Colonization Company, 214 J St., Sacramento, California, Geo. B. Katzenstein, Manager.

MILLER'S HOTEL New York City, 39 West 26th St. A Prohibition Home. Patronized by W. C. T. U. workers visiting New York. Turkish, Electric, Roman Baths. Address, DR. E. P. MILLER, Proprietor.

HOTEL FREDONIA,
H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.
New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,
G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

Ladies' fine Black Jerseys, pure Wool, $1.00 postpaid; handsomely-braided fronts, $1.50; with elegant Surah Silk Smocked front, $2.00. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Give Bust Measure. Mrs. L. Shrier, Jr., 256 Main St., Norfolk, Va.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO.,
ARCHITECTS,
Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
"Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

MAY FLOWERS OF SONG
For Schools:

Children's School Songs, (35 cts.: $3.60 dozen. 8 pages of simple explanations, and 138 new and selected songs for general singing. This little book is being received with much favor

Kindergarten Chimes. ($1.25.) Kate Douglas Wiggin. Good manual, and fine collection.
Kindergarten and Primary School Songs. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Menard.
Songs and Games for Little Ones. ($2.00.) Walker and Jenks.
Gems for Little Singers. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Emerson and Swayne.
Rhymes and Tunes. ($1.00.) Mrs. Osgood.
Motion Songs. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Mrs. Boardman. Get them all! They are most delightful books! Also try the sweet little Cantatas:
Kingdom of Mother Goose. (25 cts., $2.28 doz.) Mrs. Boardman.
Rainbow Festival. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Lewis.
Who Killed Cock Robin? (40 cts.; $3.60 doz.) Ford.

Song Manual { Book 1, Primary. 30c.: $3 doz. Book 2, Medium. 40c.; $4.20 doz Book 3, High. 50c.; $4.80 doz.

By Emerson. These are the newest and best books for teaching note reading in schools.
Send for lists and descriptions.
Any book mailed for retail price.
OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston.

PIANOS $150 to $1500 UNIVERSITY ESTAB. 1859. INCOR. 1877

They Lead the World!
Sent for trial in your own home.
Guaranteed Six Years.
ABSOLUTELY PERFECT
DON'T BUY A POOR PIANO!
$35
Sold Direct to families. No Middlemen.
Cat. Free.
MARCHAL & SMITH PIANO CO. 235 E. 21st St., N.Y.
ORGANS $35 to $500

PIANOS—$35—ORGANS
Examine in your HOME before PAYING. Manufacturer's Prices. No Agents. Write for particulars. Address, THE T. SWOGER & SON PIANOS & ORGANS BEAVER FALLS, PA.

WE WANT AN AGENT
In every county to represent the Lothrop Magazines and take subscriptions.
Every family with children from 6 months to 16 years should subscribe for one or more of these popular magazines.
We pay the largest commissions.
Exclusive Territory. Outfits free.
D. LOTHROP COMPANY, Boston.

A BOOK TO Make Converts!

PLEAS FOR PROHIBITION,
BY
REV. SAM. W. SMALL, M. A.

This book has been written by Mr. Small, with the view of covering the whole argument for the legal suppression of the liquor traffic. It is written in a style to interest the general reader and is not burdened with tables and figures that are irksome.

—o—

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I—Prohibition as a Principle.
" II—Prohibition in the Past.
" III—Prohibition in Practice.
" IV—Prohibition and Parties.
" V—Prohibition and Public Education.
" VI—Prohibition and the Press.
" VII—Prohibition and the Pulpit.
" VIII—Prohibition and the Professions.
" IX—Prohibition and the Public Peace.
" X—Prohibition and Prisons.
" XI—Prohibition and Pauperism.
" XII—Prohibition and the Public Purse.
" XIII—Prohibition and Posterity

—o—

Read it yourself and strengthen your faith; then hand it to a hesitating neighbor and gain him for prohibition. A finely printed book, worthy of a place in any library, and put at a price to make it popular.

Bound in Cloth, 75 Cents.

Sent postpaid on receipt of postal note or money order for the price. Address

ALFRED MUDGE & SON,
24 Franklin St., Boston, Mass.

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY,
181 Monroe St., CHICAGO,
Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper,

Patronize our Advertisers and Mention The Union Signal when Answering Advertisements.

Publisher's Notes.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy	$1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each	1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each	1.00
To ministers and reading rooms	1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

★ Star Offer Workers. ★

We add the names of those who have last joined this little army. It means you are willing to work steadily, as you have opportunity, for short-term subscribers to THE UNION SIGNAL. Our list will steadily build up if you will do this work regularly and systematically. And the pay? Well, it is good, either cash or valuable premiums, such as gold thimbles, solid silver spoons, subscriptions to illustrated magazines, etc., etc.

Mrs. Jennie Jones, Pontoosuc, Mass.
Libbie Clowe, Scotia, N. Y.
Lizzie Nelson, West Wheeling, Ohio.
Mrs. J. M. Turrill, Little Rock, Ark.
Mrs. J. S. Nash, Strong, Me.
Abbie N. S. Parish, Allen, Mich.
Cora B. Collins, Lowville, N. Y.
Mrs. H. C. Guise, Gold Hill, Colo.
Mrs. Julia A. Holmes, Memphis, Mich.
Miss R. J. Briggs, Martindale, Tex.
S. E. Kretzinger, Latham, Ill.
Mrs. H. P. Jones, Crystal Lake, Ill.
Alice B. Ogden, Wamsley, Ohio.
Mrs. Frank Law, New Richmond, Wis.
Mrs. Arthur Markham, Independence, Wis.
Hulda Hansen, Independence, Wis.
Sarah H. Chickering, Suncook, N. H.
Miss L. J. Jeffery, Canon City, Colo.
Mrs. W. C. Parker, Grand Rapids, Mich.
Mrs. L. Forbes Ferro, Tracy Minn.
Mrs. S. H. West, Devine, Tex.
Mrs. I. C. Wade, Jamestown, N. Dak.
Mrs. J. Blackmer, Springfield, Mass.
Agnes M. Caylor, Columbus, Ohio.
M. L. Montgomery Starkville, Miss.
Mrs. R. Schurz, Streator, Ill.
Mrs. E. Hurd, Emporia, Kan.
Mary U. Waite, Marseilles, Ill.
Mrs. L. C. Holzapfel, Oklahoma City, Ind. Ter
Malvina Thornton, Pollocksville, N. C.
Mrs. Etta Van Wagnen, Billings, Mont.
Abbie J. Clark, So Abington Sta., Mass

FOR 20 CENTS YOU CAN HAVE THE UNION SIGNAL SENT TO A FRIEND FOR FIVE WEEKS WITH COPY OF A 25 CENT BOOK CONKLIN'S MANUAL OF INFORMATION. THE BOOK CAN COME TO YOU, THE PAPER TO YOUR FRIEND IF YOU PREFER. EITHER ONE IS WORTH MUCH MORE THAN 20 CENTS.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

I thank you for the white pin which you so kindly sent me. It is by far the best substitute for our ribbon badge that I have seen, less expensive, and readily changed from one garment to another, and combines in itself the qualities we temperance women admire, neatness, beauty and convenience. What will you think out for us next? ANNA H. SHAW.

Worthy?

AGENTS WANTED

For the two best temperance books ever published, viz.,

GLIMPSES OF FIFTY YEARS,

by Frances E. Willard, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT,

or 'The Conflict of Man with Alcohol," by Henry W. Blair, United States Senator.

Of the first book, 50,000 have been printed since May, 1889. Of the second, three editions have been issued. Agents make money selling these books. Good territory can be had. Apply at once to

Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n,
161 La Salle St., Chicago.

The Vestibuled Pullman Car Line.

The Monon Route is the finest equipped line on the continent and affords choice of four daily trains from Chicago to the South via Indianapolis and Cincinnati, or Louisville and Burgin. For full information call on any ticket agent of the Monon Route or address W. H. McDoel, Traffic Manager, or James Barker, Gen'l Pass. Agent, 185 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Home-Seekers' Excursions via the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Ry.

On Tuesdays, May 20, September 9 and 23 and October 14, 1890, agents of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railway will sell Home-Seekers' Excursion Tickets to principal points in the West, Northwest, South and Southwest at rate of one fare for the round trip, tickets good returning thirty days from date of sale. For full particulars call on or address agents of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railway

BURLINGTON ROUTE.

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell from principal stations on its lines, on Tuesdays, April 22 1 and May 20th, Home Seekers' Excursion Tickets at Half Rates to points in the Farming Regions of the West, Southwest and Northwest. For tickets and further information concerning these excursions call on your nearest C., B. & Q. ticket agent, or address P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

Teachers' Excursion to St. Paul.

For the Annual Meeting of the National Educational Association to be held at St. Paul, Minn., July, 1890, the CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY CO. will sell reduced rate excursion tickets from Chicago and all other points on its 5,700 miles of thoroughly equipped road in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota nd North Dakota; and all railroads in the United States will sell excursion tickets to St. Paul and return for this occasion via the CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY. For Circulars of information containing further particulars, please address A. V. H. CARPENTER, General Passenger Agent, Milwaukee, Wis.

Some Children Growing Too Fast become listless, fretful, without energy, thin and weak. But you can fortify them and build them up, by the use of

SCOTT'S EMULSION

OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND HYPOPHOSPHITES Of Lime and Soda.

They will take it readily, for it is almost as palatable as milk. And it should be remembered that AS A PREVENTIVE OR CURE OF COUGHS OR COLDS, IN BOTH THE OLD AND YOUNG, IT IS UNEQUALLED. Avoid substitutions offered.

WE WANT 1,000 BRIGHT BOYS OR GIRLS.

To whom we can give employment in a way that will be easy and pleasant. The preliminary work can be done after school hours—an hour a week after that will suffice to bring in a profit of from 20 cents to $2.00 a week.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS TO
The Woman's Temp. Pub. Ass'n
161 LA SALLE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

Ball's Corsets in a variety of styles. Most comfortable corset ever made. Kabo Corsets of perfect fit, in various styles and lengths. Kabo never breaks. Ball's Waists are the best in the world for Ladies, Misses and Children. All with soft eyelets.

FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.
CHICAGO CORSET CO.,
CHICAGO AND NEW YORK.

DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

IN THE HEALTHY HIGHLANDS.

No Malaria, no Mosquitoes, no Saloons. Best climate in the United States for all-the-year-round residence.

SPLENDID PROGRESS.

Started late in 1889 with no population or improvements, the development already made is surprising. Five factories are building, and several companies organized to build others. No booms, but steady, substantial progress. A knitting factory company is organized, the stock to be all owned, and entire business managed by women. It will pay large profits. Those who want homes in a "clean city," where the rumshop, brothel and gambling den are perpetually excluded, should buy soon, as prices are rapidly advancing.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Stock in the Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Company will pay large profits. There are also good opportunities to make paying investments in several manufacturing enterprises. For full information address

The Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Co., Demorest, Ga.

THE EDISON MIMEOGRAPH

Patented by THOS. A. EDISON.

Makes 3,000 copies of one original writing, Drawing, Music, etc. 1,500 copies of one original Typewriter Letter. Recommended by over 40,000 users. Send for circular and sample of work.

A. B. DICK COMPANY,
152-154 Lake Street, CHICAGO. 32 Liberty Street, NEW YORK.

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

UNITY. A weekly journal of a Religion that is Rational, and a Rationalism that is Religious. 10 weeks 10 cents. CHICAGO.

FACTS FOR THE SICK.

Dr King's Royal Germetuer builds up and cures when all else fails. Send stamp for full particulars. Atlantic Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga.

The "Little Beauty" A $5.00 Scale for $1.00

Capacity 1-4 oz. to 4 lbs. Steel Bearings, Brass Scoop and Beam. For Housekeepers, Offices or Stores. Weight packed, 8 lbs. Sent by express

A $65.00 Sewing Machine $18.00
A 900-lb. Platform Scale... 15.00
A $125.00 Top Buggy 65.00
A 2-Ton Wagon Scale 40.00
A 5-Ton Scale and Stock Rack 75.00
A $50 Feed Mill 30.00
A $40.00 Road Cart..... 15.00
A $15.00 Single Harness... 7.50
A 240-lb. Platform Scale... 3.00

Price List Free. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

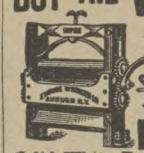
REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. CATARRH.
REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O.

BUY THE WRINGER THAT SAVES THE MOST LABOR



OUR PURCHASE GEAR
Saves half the labor of other wringers and costs but little more.
EMPIRE Does not GREASE The CLOTHES.
Solid White Rubber Rolls. Warranted.
Also "Daisy" and "Volunteer" Wringers, Clothes Drying Bars, etc. Agents wanted everywhere. Empire Wringer Co., Auburn, N. Y.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY,"

Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard, Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

PILES Cured at home. New treatment never fails when instructions are correctly followed. Read article in THE UNION SIGNAL, March 13, p. 15. The GLOBE MEDICINE CO., Box 711, Cincinnati, O.

Dr. B. A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St., Chicago, Ill.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE how you do it for the money?

$12.50 Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine, a perfect working, reliable, finely finished Sewing Machine, adapted for light or heavy work, with all the latest improvements and complete set of attachments. A written guarantee for 5 years with each machine. Buy direct from manufacturers and save Dealers and Agents profits. Catalogue free.
OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

DEAFNESS CURED by Peck's Pat. INVISIBLE TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS Whispers heard distinctly. Comfortable. Successful where all Remedies FAIL. Illustrated book & proofs FREE. Address or call on F. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, N. Y.

Copyrighted.

I have a positive remedy for this disease, by its use the worst kind and most unyielding cases of all forms have been cured. I will take pleasure in sending ONE PACKAGE FREE to every sufferer who will send their name and address, with 4 cts in stamps to cover postage.
WALTER L. DAY, 23 West 12th St., N. Y. City.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages
Delivered Free of Charge
to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.
CHAS. RAISER, Mfr.
62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A-CORN SALVE.

Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time.
NO PAIN! NO POISON!
"After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Temperance Tea Tonic.

Nature's Great Remedy, Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache. Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

ALL FAT PEOPLE

can safely Reduce Weight and Cure Corpulency permanently by taking TRILENE TABLETS (Regd.) for a few weeks. They are small, agreeable, harmless, and never fail to IMPROVE both HEALTH and FIGURE without Change of Diet. An English Countess writes:—"Your Trilene Tablets act admirably."—Send Postal Note for 75 cents to THE TRILENE CO., Sole Proprietors, 834 Broadway, New York.

THE LADY'S SYRINGE,

is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz. Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.

IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKIND!

Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.

The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED

that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

WEBSTER'S
UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.

Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep..... $3.00
Crown Fountain Pen..... $2.00
Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

BABY CARRRIAGES Direct from Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods. 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

25c PRINTING OUTFIT.

A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL. Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions of "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Sets up any name, prints cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersol & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

Cancer PRIVATE HOSPITAL FOR THE CURE OF Cancer & Tumors Without the Knife Book free. L. D. McMICHAEL, M. D. 180 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

Advertisers want to know what paper pays best. Mention The Union Signal.

Signal Notes.

MR. SPURGEON says: "Grape-juice has killed more than grape-shot."

THE corner-stone for a Methodist Episcopal hospital at Portland, Oregon, has just been laid.

LONDON has about twelve licensed houses per one thousand of the population; Manchester has nearly eight.

BY an amendment to the constitution, at a recent meeting of the Supreme court of the Independent Order of Foresters in Canada, "Saloon-keepers and bartenders where intoxicants are sold" are prohibited from becoming members.

MRS. EMILIE D. MARTIN, a valued worker in the W. C. T. U., of Pennsylvania, but now a resident of New York City, has been chosen as a member of the executive committee of the Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. John Hall, of New York, is president. Mrs. Martin has been invited to speak at the coming etate Sunday-school convention. Her theme will be "Qualifications of a Successful Sunday-school Teacher."

BISHOP WILLIAM TAYLOR, just home from Africa for a short visit in this country, said, in an address at Memorial Hall, Evanston, Sunday, May 4, among other startling facts regarding the liquor traffic in the Dark Continent: "Hamburg alone sends out by its English and German steamers annually 200,000 tons of rum and gin,—not gallons—not barrels—but tons"!

OUR Message pleads thus: "It may not be generally known that more vessels pass through Vineyard Sound, southeastern Massachusetts, than any other channel in the world, except the English Channel. Here is located the Vineyard Sound Mission for Seamen, which is doing great good. Coming to anchor along the shores and in Tarpaulin Cove, Naushon Island, where frequently there are more than a hundred sail, the men can be reached at two reading rooms by the missionary, who visits the vessels in a steam launch, holding services, etc. Help the work by sending good literature, magazines, religious and temperance papers, etc. THE UNION SIGNAL and Youth's Companion are eagerly read. Pack in a barrel or box, and be sure to prepay freight. Money can be well invested in the various lines of work, especially as now another helper is greatly needed. Literature or money can be sent to the superintendent, Madison Edwards, Wood's Holl, Mass."

THE National Conference of Charities and Corrections held in Baltimore, May 14-21, was of unusual interest. Public and private in and outdoor relief, the care of the insane, and of feeble-minded children, methods of caring for dependent children, hospitals, prisons, jails and almshouses, training schools for nurses, and other kindred subjects were considered. Several white-ribboners were among the delegates. Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, who was sent by the governor of Maine to represent the charities of that state, was among the indefatigable workers. Mrs. Stevens' efforts were principally in the direction of the appointment of women on all boards of charitable institutions.

SENATOR BLAIR says in "The Temperance Movement:" "There are used in making one gallon of beer 83.2 ounces of barley of which 70 ounces are lost in "malting," in "mashing," "fermenting," and "fining," leaving 13.2 ounces of nutritious (?) substance. Consumed by the glass at 5 cents each this would cost 80 cents, or about two-thirds of a day's labor; at 80 cents per bushel for barley the same amount of nutriment in the form of bread, allowing about 60 per cent for waste and making, would cost 2 cents. In other words, if a man drinks daily 4 quarts of lager beer he will, in about 12 months succeed in taking into his stomach in that form the nutriment contained in a five-pound loaf of bread."

A CALL was recently made for a prayer season and conference meeting of the Presbyterian women belonging to churches of the several presbyteries in and around Philadelphia. This call was made "in view of the hindrances to all missionary endeavor at home and abroad by reason of the liquor traffic." The following petitionary resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, We, women of the Presbyterian Church, in convention assembled, realizing the fact that women compose a majority of the church, and our consequent responsibility under our representative form of government, do hereby Resolve, That we petition the sessions of our churches to carry out the repeated injunctions of the General Assembly in respect to the subject of intemperance;

Resolved, That our sessions, in the exercise of their supervision of the Sabbath-schools, be requested to have a temperance lesson taught unto our children at the close of each quarter;

Resolved, That we request our pastors to read to their people the injunctions of the General Assembly in behalf of temperance, and to preach at least annually in behalf of the same great cause and department of Christian work.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest, and most Healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime, or Alum. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.
NEW YORK. CHICAGO. ST. LOUIS.

GRANULA
The most nutritious and digestible of Foods. Send for pamphlet. Trial box by mail 36c. Address Our Home Granula Co., Dansville, N. Y.

THE GLUTEN ENTIRE
Wheat Flour makes the cheapest and best bread, cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Nervous Prostration. Send for circular. Mill Office, 135 Lake St.

PANSY PLANTS 12 very choice Pansy Plants, all colors, 20c. or 24 for 30c., nicely packed, postpaid Catalogue FREE, F. B. MILLS, Thorn Hill, N, Y.

BROWN'S FRENCH DRESSING
—FOR—
LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S BOOTS AND SHOES.
Awarded highest honors at

Phila.,	1876	Melbourne,	1880
Berlin,	1877	Frankfort,	1881
Paris,	1878	Amsterdam,	1883

New Orleans, 1884-85.
Paris Medal on every bottle.
Beware of Imitations.

This is the Picture of
Baby Barendse,

Three months old when cured by the use of Steketee's Worm Destroyer.
Read what its mother says:

"The undersigned has a child only three months old. It became sick with pains in its bowels and stomach when scarcely two months old. It cried and whined nearly all the time, and was completely run down in flesh. We gave it everything that we thought would relieve the child, but it grew worse all the time. We made twenty powders from a teaspoonful of Steketee's Worm Destroyer, gave it one powder three times daily. To our astonishment it was relieved of thousands of worms. We have given the child but twenty powders. It is entirely cured. I shall always recommend Steketee's Worm Destroyer. MRS. B. BARENDSE, Oakdale Park, Kent Co., Mich.
For Sale by all Druggists, and by mail, 25 Cents. Send U. S. Stamp. Address
GEO. G. STEKETEE,
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
The proprietor of this paper knows that this medicine is no humbug, and perfectly safe to send money to Mr. Steketee. Mention Union Signal.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
FOR BEAUTY OF POLISH, SAVING LABOR, CLEANLINESS, DURABILITY & CHEAPNESS. UNEQUALLED. NO ODOR WHEN HEATED.
Do not take any chances of being poisoned or burned to death with Liquid Stove Polish, paints, and enamels in bottles. The "Rising Sun Stove Polish" is safe, odorless, brilliant, the cheapest and best stove polish made, and the consumer pays for no expensive tin or glass with every purchase.

SCHOOL OF EXPRESSION. Most thorough training for voice, body and mind. Opens Oct. 9th. Summer at Newport, July 5. Circulars free. S. S. CURRY, 15½ Beacon St., Boston, Mass. Clergyman's Vacation Class. Course by Prof. Churchill.

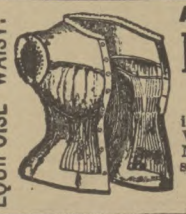
THE Perfection Flour Bin and Sieve. The housekeeper's best friend. Look for our card in this paper next week. Agents wanted.
SHERMAN, TANGENBERG & CO., 160 West Lake St., Chicago.



A FULL LINE OF DRESS REFORM GOODS,
including the Equipoise Waist, and all the Jenness-Miller specialties. Send stamp for Catalogue.
Mrs. S. W. Pike, 75 Madison St., Chicago.

Christian Life Songs
(Ready May 10, 1890.)
For Sunday School, Praise and Prayer Meetings, Etc. By S. W. STRAUB,
Author of "Beautiful Songs," "Living Fountain," and twenty other favorite books. Europe and America have been canvassed to find new gems for "Christian Life Songs." It contains Living and Earnest Words, Not Cant and Jingle. Rich and Powerful Tunes, Not Mere Roar and Rattle.
This book has "staying qualities," and will not be superseded in a few months by another. The more the songs are sung the better they will be liked.
There will not be the slightest risk taken in ordering a supply at once. If, however, you wish to examine a complete copy, send 20 cents for one sample copy. Regular price 35 cents.
FOR CHILDREN'S DAY — "Branches, Buds, and Blossoms." By S. W. Straub. The latest and the very best. Price, 5c.
S. W. STRAUB & CO., 243 State St., Chicago.

COMMON SENSE BROOM HOLDER
NOTHING LIKE IT. BEST IN THE WORLD.
Sample mailed on receipt of 15c.
Over 165,000 sold.
Holds a Broom either end up: keeps a wet broom from rotting. Boys and girls can more than double their money selling them. 2c. stamp for terms. 14 Holders sent prepaid on receipt of $1.00.
Address ENGLE SPRING GUN CO., Hazleton, Pa.

THE "FREEMAN" SELF-WRINGING MOP!

"It leads all others" is the verdict of all who see it. A ratchet on this mop helps the hand by retaining the cloth at any stage of the work. Don't touch the water with your hands. Boiling water can be used, also potash, lye etc. if desired. If you desire to wash windows, corners up high, in fact anywhere, the mop by the means of the ratchet, can be held without the aid of the hand, thus removing the strain. Write for circulars. Sold exclusively through agents throughout the United States. Agents wanted. Write at once for territory—The Racine Malleable & Wrought Iron Co., Racine Wis

ASK your dealer for Water Pails Dairy Pails, Wash Basins, Cuspidors, Slop Jars, Table Mats, Slop Jar, Mats, Etc. made from FLAX FIBER. Practically indestructible. Manufact'd by the STANDARD FIBER-WARE CO. Nothing will please you like this Plain and Decorated Ware. In use everywhere. None genuine without "STANDARD" Trade Mark on bottom. If your dealer does not keep it, send his address and we will mail you picture cards.

"SUPERIOR NUTRITION THE LIFE"
IMPERIAL GRANUM
REG'ST'D JUNE 5'77
THE GREAT MEDICINAL FOOD
THIS ORIGINAL AND WORLD-RENOWNED DIETETIC PREPARATION IS A SUBSTANCE OF UNRIVALLED purity and medicinal worth—potent for good and powerless to harm. A solid extract, derived by a new process from very superior growths of wheat—nothing more, and as a FOOD, it would be difficult to conceive of anything more wholesome and delicious. It has justly acquired the reputation of being the salvator FOR INVALIDS AND THE AGED; an incomparable aliment for the growth and protection of INFANTS AND CHILDREN; a superior nutritive in continued fevers, the most nourishing and strengthening food for NURSING MOTHERS & CONVALESCENTS; and a reliable remedial agent in all diseases of the stomach and intestines.
John Carle & Sons, New York.

LADY AGENTS WANTED for the VAN ORDEN CORSETS. Every lady wishing good health and a beautiful figure buys them. Quick sales. Good pay. Send for terms and circular.
VAN ORDEN CORSET CO., 22 Clinton Place, N.Y.

LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y

Send 6c. for sample Silk Dress Goods Chicago Silk Dress Goods Co., 154 La Salle St., Chicago.

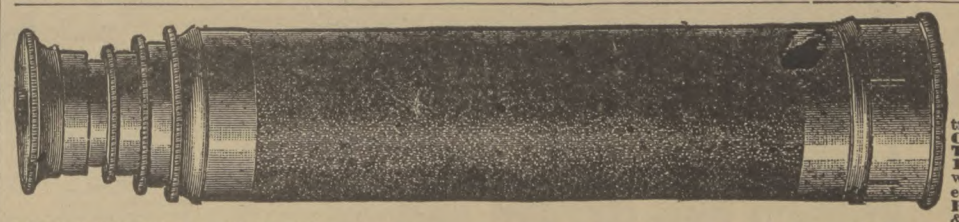
AMERICAN Desk & Seating Co.,
Manufacturers
Church, Lodge, School, Bank and Office Furniture.
Send for Catalogue.
270-272 WABASH AVE. CHICAGO

TO MOTHERS.
If for any reason you cannot nurse your child, we can assure you positively that there is but one Food that is practically a perfect imitation of Mother's Milk in composition and digestibility, and that is LACTO-PREPARATA. It is made wholly from milk.
All manufacturers of Infant Food make the broad claim that theirs is the best, but few, if any, tell how it is made or of what it is composed for the facts told to any intelligent person would condemn most of them.
CARNRICK'S SOLUBLE FOOD contains 62 1-2 per cent. of Powdered Milk and 37 1-2 per cent. of wheat. Both the milk and wheat are partially digested. It is especially adapted for Infants from six months upwards, and for Invalids, Aged People and Dyspeptics.
Before you take the risk of trying any other Food, do not fail to send to us for a pamphlet of 64 pages entitled Our Baby's First and Second Years, by Marion Harland, which also gives a minute description of Lacto-Preparata and Carnrick's Soluble Food and their mode of manufacture. Sent Free.
Read the above pamphlet and then ask your Physician which Foods are the nearest approach to mother's milk.
REED & CARNRICK, New York.



SPECIAL SALE OF FINE TELESCOPES.
We have imported expressly for our summer trade 5000 LARGE FRENCH TELESCOPES. They OPEN 32 INCHES IN THREE SECTIONS, and measure CLOSED 11 INCHES. They are nicely brass bound, with brass safety cap on each end to exclude dust, etc. The lenses are very POWERFUL ACHROMATIC CRYSTALS, polished by Lemair & Co., of Paris. With this fine Telescope objects miles away are brought close to view with astonishing clearness. Never before has a Telescope of this size been sold for less than from $5 00 to $8.00. Every sojourner in the country or at seaside resorts should certainly secure one of these instruments and no farmer should be without one. SENT BY MAIL OR EXPRESS SAFELY PACKED, PREPAID. FOR ONLY $1.00. WE HAVE THEM IN STOCK AND THERE WILL BE NO DELAY. YOUR ORDER WILL BE FILLED THE DAY WE RECEIVE IT. Our new Catalogue of Watches, Telescopes, Field Glasses, etc., sent with each order. This is a grand offer and you should not miss it. WE WARRANT EACH TELESCOPE JUST AS REPRESENTED, AND WILL REFUND THE MONEY TO ANY DISSATISFIED CUSTOMER. Send $1.00 by Registered Letter, Post Office Money Order, Express Money Order, or Bank Draft, payable to our order. Address your order to.
KIRTLAND BROS. & CO. 62 FULTON ST. NEW YORK.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

SHORT-HAND SELF TAUGHT Send for Catalog of Books and helps for self-instruction by BENN PITMAN and JEROME B. HOWARD, to THE PHONOGRAPHIC INSTITUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

RIDGE'S FOOD
The Most Reliable Food For Infants & Invalids.
Not a medicine, but a specially prepared Food, adapted to the weakest stomach. 4 sizes cans. Pamphlet free. Woolrich & Co. (on every label). Palmer, Mass.

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 23.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, June 5, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: The W. C. T. U. Exhibit at Paris—Prohibition Conventions—The Mills-Griffin Debate 8, 9
SPECIAL DIFFICULTIES: 9
WATCH-TOWER: 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, At Eventide, by Warner Snoad—Miss Margaret, by Miss Harriet Francene Crocker—The Liquor Traffic on the "West Coast" of Africa and in the "Congo Independent State," by Mary Clement Leavitt—International Temperance Studies, by Felix L. Oswald, M. D.—Masked Groggeries, by Hester M. Poole 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: The Canteen System—The Colored Work at Georgia's Capital—Why We Did It—Swedish Newspapers on Temperance—Temperance Temple Items 4, 5
WORLD'S W. C. T. U.: A Glimpse into Ramabai's Life—Help Your Japanese Sisters 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, "Just Like a Girl"—Wanted to Be An Orphan 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning June 15, 1890 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, Wheels—The Physical Basis of Effectiveness in Speaking—Bible Reading on Giving, or Paying, in the W. C. T. U. 7
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: Maryland, Kansas, South Carolina, Illinois, California, Indiana, Minnesota, British Columbia, Southern California, New York, Oklahoma, Missouri, Michigan—News in a Nutshell—Announcements 10, 11, 12
OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS: World's W. C. T. U.—Receipts for Temperance Temple 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT: 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

Tennessee Prohibitionists are holding their state convention to-day at Nashville.

Thursday was observed as Memorial Day in the Chicago schools, to inculcate patriotism.

Rev. Sam Small has been elected president of the Methodist University, Ogden, Utah.

The Chicago gas trust has been beaten in the courts and placed in the hands of a receiver.

Union and Confederate veterans met at Vicksburg last week, the Confederates banqueting the Unionists.

Geo. W. Bain lectured in Chicago Monday evening, under the auspices of the West Side W. C. T. U.

The Ohio Knights of Pythias have amended their constitution to exclude dealers in intoxicating liquors.

A bronze equestrian statue to General Robert E. Lee at Richmond, Va., was unveiled Friday by General Johnson.

Olive Logan has been elected a member of the Incorporated Society of British Authors, of which Tennyson is president.

New York laid the corner stone of the Washington Memorial Arch on Decoration Day; George William Curtis delivered the oration.

The German Catholic societies in convention at Milwaukee decided to take an active part in the fall campaign to fight the Bennet law.

Speaker Read has issued an order forbidding the sale of whisky in the House restaurant; its keeper declares he will still sell wine in original packages.

The Garfield Monument at Cleveland was dedicated Decoration Day, with appropriate services in which President Harrison and his cabinet participated.

The State Supreme Court of Maine bows to the decision of the Federal Court and reverses the decision of Judge Whitehouse in the original package case.

Owing to the death of the senior member of the firm, the old publishing house of Robert Carter & Brothers, well known for fifty years, goes out of business.

The first submarine telephone cable has just been opened, and it is in South America, between Montevideo and Buenos Ayres; its length is thirty-two miles.

Germany has decided to adopt the time standard which came into use here in 1883. By it official time all over Germany will be one hour earlier than Greenwich, and seven hours earlier than Chicago time.

Mrs. Ella Alexandria Boole, corresponding secretary of New York W. C. T. U., by invitation of the G. A. R. Posts of Van Wert, Ohio, delivered the address on Memorial day, before an immense gathering of citizens and the military and civic bodies of the county.

The Senate modified the House Bill forbidding the sale of liquor in army canteens so to make such restriction apply only to canteens in prohibition states. This caused great discussion, and Senator Blair moved to adjourn, remarking that the Senate was in no condition to pass a temperance bill.

The Daily News has demonstrated that gambling dens can be broken up in Chicago by raiding them without any help from Mayor Cregier. Saturday night it cleaned out the second one, a high toned affair, dragging to light two tons of gambling apparatus and securing its destruction by order of Justice Blume.

The college students' summer school for Bible study, at Northfield, Mass., opens June 28 and closes July 9. Rev. Marcus Rainsford, of London, Dr. Munhall, Professor Weidner, Major Whittle, and others are the teachers. The athletic exercises are in charge of Mr. A. Stagg, of Yale. The eighth General Conference for Bible study and equipment for Christian work, begins its sessions July 31, and ends August 9. Dr. Gordon, of Boston, Professor Moorhead, Bishop Newman, John G. Woolley and others are on the program. Ira D. Sankey and George C. Stebbins, are in charge of the music of the Conference.

MISS ACKERMAN makes a strong plea to have a white-ribbon missionary stationed in Japan, and supported by the World's W. C. T. U. She says it is a case of "now or never" with Japan; if the country is held for God and temperance, workers must be stationed and sustained there. Letters from missionaries in Japan speak in high terms of the value of Miss Ackerman's work.

OUR sisters of the British Woman's Temperance Association have just published a book which will be welcomed by thousands in America, as well as in England. It is the Memoirs of Mrs. Margaret Bright Lucas, with portrait and autograph. It has been prepared by the Executive Committee of the B. W. T. A., and can be obtained from their office, 13 Memorial Hall, Tarrytown street, London, E. C. Price fifty cents.

Through an oversight, the letter in last week's issue on "The Temperance Movement in Denmark" was not credited to the Rev. Carl F Eltzholtz, the author.

By a typographical error which we are much ashamed of allowing to pass uncorrected, "Mrs. Skelton" was transformed into "Mrs. Shelton." It is Mrs. Henrietta Skelton, for whom a house is to be built. We trust this blunder will serve to emphasize Miss Willard's request.

AT a meeting of the Council of the B. W. T. A., London, May 21st, Lady Henry Somerset was unanimously elected President of the Association to fill the place left vacant by the death of Mrs. Margaret Bright Lucas. This announcement, made by Jessie A. Fowler, Honorary Secretary, reaches us just as we go to press. THE UNION SIGNAL gives most hearty welcome to Lady Somerset and next week will make its readers more fully acquainted with her through a letter received by the same mail from Hannah Whitall Smith. Miss Ames writes that Lady Somerset is beautiful in person and spirit, and a magnificent speaker.

MONDAY'S Inter Ocean comes out squarely for the abolition of the United States saloon license; on this THE UNION SIGNAL gives the Inter Ocean its hand, and trusts it will not be long before it is ready to come out as squarely against municipal license of the saloon. It says: "This Congress should do away altogether with the saloon license feature of the internal revenue law. It is no longer needed, answers no good purpose, and is an unmitigated evil, first, directly, and second, indirectly. In prohibitory states, and in places where local option prevails, the violators of law hide behind government licenses. Even in localities where high license prevails, a good many saloons of the lower order are run on nothing but internal revenue licenses. The letter of the law provides against this, but practically it works that way in a great many cases. Indirectly the government occupies a false and demoralizing position, through this license, as a sort of silent partner in every saloon in the country."

AT the thirteenth annual convention of the United States Brewers' Association in Washington, John W. Mason, commissioner of internal revenue, was introduced by the presiding officer, and said he was glad to be with the brewers, for he regarded them as substantial business men, engaged in a lawful and legitimate business. "Having paid your tax to the government," he said, "you are entitled to the privilege of selling beer. It is a mistake for you to think that the government desires to hamper you by unnecessary restrictions." John W. Douglass, one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, also paid his respects to the convention, and spoke even more flatteringly to these brewers. His speech so pleased the brewers that one of them remarked, "We haven't much to fear for Washington if we can keep Douglass on this line." Yet these men are Federal office holders.

ON the 14th of June, there will be a joint Congressional Hearing before the Senate Committee on Education and labor, and House Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic, on the joint resolution for National Constitutional Prohibition. This matter has been pending in every Congress since the 44th—nearly fourteen years—without reaching a vote in either body. It was favorably reported by the Senate Committee in the 49th and 50th Congresses, and a minority report in its favor was returned by the House Committee to which it was referred in the 50th Congress. The Committee, at the Joint Hearing, are to be addressed by the members of the "National Prohibitory Amendment Committee for Congressional work." This Committee consists of the General Officers of the several National Prohibition Societies of the United States, the General Officers of the National Executive Committee of the Prohibition Party, and the National W. C. T. U. Superintendent of Legislation and Petitions. The W. C. T. U. having made this Amendment a special line of work, having county and district as well as local and State organizations through which to carry it on, and having a suitable department, that of Legislation and Petitions, ready to do its bidding, the initiatory steps for the organization of the Committees and the responsibility for executing a part of the system of official reporting are committed to its care.

THE combat deepens. If you doubt it, read the debate in the Senate last week on the Wilson amendment of the Imported Liquors Bill, as reported in the Congressional Record of May 23. The amount of logic and Latin brought into play was something astonishing, especially as the logic proved two diametrically opposite propositions. The American eagle soared very high and shrieked in consternation at the prospect of having "a great national policy subordinated to the wishes of a few localities, to the destruction of its symmetry and uniformity." "If the Constitution is to be set aside, and the powers of Congress under it to be transferred at the behest of any one or more of the states, how long will it be before, under the influence of such a precedent, we have the states bargaining and intriguing with Congressional majorities for undue advantage? How long will it be before the great and powerful states of the Union will secure advantage over their weaker sisters? This is Senator Coke's scarecrow. And he goes on to prove (?) that while states have the undoubted right to protect themselves against diseased meat, infected clothing, dynamite, et al. under their police power, said power does not extend to intoxicating liquors." "The state cannot part with the right of defense against dangers to the lives and health of her people, and her police powers for these objects being inalienable, and known to the framers of the Constitution to be so, are necessary and understood exceptions to the grant to Congress over inter state commerce. But for an article of commerce in every country in the world, an article of necessity in some form and everywhere, which is dangerous only when improperly used,—to say that such an article can be suppressed and excluded from interstate commerce under the police power of any state, is to go to an utterly unwarrantable extreme." Senator Eustis, of La., in speaking of the sudden conversion of Republican senators to state rights said: "Such a performance as that having been intended, as I believe, only to captivate the excited imagination of a Prohibition audience, was to me inexpressibly comical,—that you, gentlemen, should stand forth as against us, as the champions and defenders of state's rights as against Federal centralization!" Senator Reagam declared that there is a way in which alcoholic liquors might be outlawed by the joint action of Congress and of the states declaring them injurious to public morals and public health. Being outlawed, Congress would have nothing to do with them, but the states under police powers might exclude them. Yes, gentlemen, that might be done, but until it is done —and nobody sees any signs of that—Congress has something to do with the question; sooner or later the whole country will recognize this fact, which the Prohibitionists long since discovered, and "On to Washington" for National Prohibition, will be the cry.

Contributed.

AT EVENTIDE.

BY WARNER SNOAD.

With the dreamy lilacs at their best and sweetest,
Fitting incense for the shrine of evening sky,
My thoughts are borne to that divine, completest
By and by.

Through clouds of dim, impervious, sunset amber,
'Twixt vague perfume and pale light we half descry
The pavement of that glorious, golden chamber,
By and by.

Not all golden—gold is wearisome and blinding,
An echo of this world's continuous cry—
And Time's tangled clue will meet a fair unwinding
By and by.

Not all singing, not all brilliance, not all duty,
But soft, sweet, quiet rest, nor question why,
And perfect stillness, perfect love and beauty,
By and by.

Through oriel panes by cool, green leaves half-shaded,
And lilac blossoms' fragrance, you and I
Will watch the sunlight stream on days long faded
By and by.

And 'mid the hush, by twittering birds just broken,
Stirred by no sound of harsh, discordant cry,
Reunion's passionate, shy words, half spoken,
By and by.

And worship? Love is worship—past conceiving
The thankfulness of every blissful sigh—
Content, beyond our finite, dull believing,
By and by.

* * * * * *

Dear, with the lilac blossoms bending o'er us,
Does it not seem as Heaven itself drew nigh?
As if the very stars rang out in chorus
London, Eng. "By and by."

MISS MARGARET.

BY HARRIET FRANCENE CROCKER.

Wherever Miss Margaret was, young people delighted to be. Her cozy sitting-room with its cheery fire-place and blossoming plants was often filled with bright young faces and happy voices, and once a week she threw open her pretty rooms for a sort of informal reception to which all young people, friends or strangers, were quietly but heartily welcomed. Older people liked Miss Margaret and were fond of coming to see her, but it was among the young that her influence was most widely scattered and among the young that she was at her best, and Miss Margaret's best meant a great deal, I can assure you.

What a lovely face she had! fair as a girl's, with a sea-shell tint in her cheeks, and a dewy redness on her lips, eyes darkly blue, smiling at one so kindly through gold-rimmed spectacles, hair not white, but of a rich creamy color that suggested the golden-brown it used to be. Tall and stately as an ideal queen; she was, indeed, the queen of our village society—a belle to whom no young person refused to pay homage and of whom no other maiden was jealous.

Dear "St. Margaret!" We used to call her that and she received the appellation as quietly and gracefully as she did all the other evidences of our love. About herself she was singularly reserved. While ever ready and glad to bestow her sympathy on those about her she rarely spoke of herself or her past life—the life she had lived before she came among us.

Perhaps it was this reticence, perhaps it was the expression of intense sadness we often noticed in her eyes—perhaps the deep lines that keen trouble had left about her sweet mouth and across her frank, open brow, that awakened in us that curiosity which all young women have inherited from their mother Eve. We knew she had a history, and we thought it was a sad one. We longed to know, but not one of us ever dreamed of asking her to tell us the story of her life.

One day—I remember it was a wintry, snowy afternoon, she had asked half a dozen of us to tea. We had brought our fancy work and were sitting cozily around the cheery fire-place. We had been very merry, I remember, but toward twilight a sort of hush had fallen upon the group and one by one we dropped our work into our laps and leaned back looking dreamily into the glowing bed of coals, and speaking now and then in low voices. With Miss Margaret we never felt the necessity of making conversation. Perhaps that was one of the proofs of the true sincerity of our friendship.

Our hostess sat down to her piano and played for us—soft, dreamy chords fitting for the time and place. We knew she was improvising. Her music was her passion—full of power and expression, thrilling and trembling with pathos. She never sang and we did not miss it—her playing was enough for us. All her beautiful self seemed merged into the melody she evoked.

When the last notes had died away she came back and stood leaning against the mantel-piece, looking down at us. I remember how beautiful she looked that night in her soft, black draperies and the spray of lily of the valley on her breast, her dear, kind face, so sweet, so sad, so loving.

Alicia Edwards looked up at the dear face and said softly, "Do you know, Miss Margaret, I think it is so strange you never married, why, if I were a man—" but here she stopped suddenly, overawed by the depressing silence that prevailed, for we were all spell-bound at the question no one had ever dared to ask.

Miss Margaret reassured her with a gentle laugh and a swift, kind glance around our little half-circle. Then she was silent for a moment while that look of intense sadness we had seen before came into her eyes and settled about her lips. She seemed lost in sorrowful thought. Alicia hung her pretty head and I saw tears on her eyelashes. She was sorry she had spoken. Miss Margaret saw the pathetic, girlish figure and roused herself. Her voice was sweet and low but perfectly distinct in every syllable.

"Dear child," she said to Alicia, "do not grieve at what you said. It was not impertinent or curious—it was only natural that you should say what you did,—have you forgotten that I was a girl once myself? I have not forgotten those bright years of happy girlhood when life looked as fair and golden as it always does to youth—as it does to you to-night. I have sometimes thought I would tell you the story of my life, and to-night you shall hear it if you wish. No, Marie"—to the maid who came in with lights, "the firelight is pleasanter to-night." The girl withdrew and Miss Margaret went on.

"Some of you have lovers and years ago, O ever so many years ago, I had a lover, too—as noble and good, as bright and promising as yours—as pure and upright as a young man can be. He was studying for the ministry when I first met him. From the first we were all in all to each other—our friendship was sweet, and strong, and sure,—life looked like Paradise to both of us, and the coming years stretched away before us like a flower bordered path across a pleasant field—one path, not two—for that we should not walk together, side by side, through life, neither of us dreamed. My friends were pleased with him—his prospects were of the brightest. We loved each other—and nothing else was needed. How happy we were! How full of joy my heart was all the time! I wonder, dear girls, if any of you are happier, can be happier in your love than I was."

Alicia looked down at the new ring on her finger and smiled a little. A smile of sympathy shone on all our faces. Alicia and her newly-announced engagement were very interesting to us just then. Miss Margaret continued: "We were to be married in the spring—in May—when the lily-of-the-valley would bloom in sweet masses in our garden and the whole world would be fair. A friend of ours made us a betrothal party as the custom was then in that place. Every one we knew was there—the house was filled with life and gayety and the rooms rang and echoed with the music of light feet and young voices.

"I was only a girl—not yet eighteen—and perhaps was proud of my power over the handsome young man at my side. Yes, it must have been that or I would never have done what I did that night. A delicious supper was served and wine was at every plate. Of course there would be toasts in our honor and it would not look well, I thought, if Robert did not drink. I knew of his puritanical ideas, as I called them, and decided to show my power of influence over him that night at least. I foresaw that he would decline to drink, for I knew he was stanch in his principles. O girls, never abuse the power you have over young men! Never exercise that power for the sole purpose of proving that you have it! Never dare to tamper with a human soul as I, in my girlish ignorance and foolish pride, did that night!

"He refused, as I expected. At first with a laughing remonstrance, then earnestly with a grieved expression in his eyes as he looked at me, surprised at my persistence. I could not bear defeat that night before all our friends who were looking on interested in the final victory. I determined that the victory should be mine—that I should not fail in the presence of that large assembly of friends and acquaintances, a woman's influence should prevail. It did prevail. At last, for the sake of peace and to put an end to the scene, he yielded. Before we left the table he had his glass refilled. That night the kiss he left upon my lips was tainted. Whom could I blame?

"I need not tell you all that passed. Daily the power of inherited appetite developed in him, daily he sank lower. In vain I begged and plead and cried for forgiveness for my sin, for mercy that should stay his ruin. He realized his position, but was powerless to alter it. Strong in all else, he was pitifully weak in this; he could not give it up. Yet all the time I loved him, loved him better than ever. I never shrank from him; what I had caused him to bear, I would bear—his life, blighted and ruined I would share with him, and suffer all that might be pressed into my cup of bitterness—in recompense. Remorse of conscience was ever present with me. He wished to break our engagement. I would not hear of it. We would be married in May when the lilies were in blossom just as we had intended. Perhaps I might save him after marriage. O how many girls have shipwrecked on that rock! If not that, then I could suffer with him, and for him; would bear the shame of being called a drunkard's wife, would sacrifice everything for his sake in atonement for what I had done. My friends were powerless to move me from the determination I had taken, and gave me up as one lost. Next to a woman's influence there is no power on earth so strong as a woman's love.

"On the eve of our marriage a letter was handed to me. Even while I broke the seal and unfolded the sheet a great horror fell down over me like a pall, and I feared the worst, for I knew the hand that had addressed the envelope.

"Later, when my mother found me lying like one dead, and wrenched the letter from my hand, it only confirmed the rumor she had heard. He had taken his own life. Rather than drag my honor down with his, rather than profane the altar with vows that could never be sacred, rather than live a slave to appetite, he took with his own hand that which God alone has the right to take.

"One whole year was a blank to me. They told me afterward that a merciful lethargy had come upon me in which all was blotted out—a mild insanity which was life-saving in its effects. Of that year I remember nothing. It is like a dreamless sleep to me now. When health and reason came back the tide of recollection came back, but softened by the lapse of time and sanctified by God's pitying hand. I tried to live for others wholly, to forget myself and my grief in little services for those around me, to help in every possible way all young people and to bury the dear, dead past in my dead lover's grave. Men have honored me with their love but nothing in my heart has ever responded. I am as happy in my simple life here among you as it is possible for a broken-hearted woman to be.

"It is nearly forty years now since that night in May, and the lilies bloom just as sweet to-day and are just as dear. I can think of them spreading their delicate fragrance over his grave in the little old church-yard far away, and I wear them for his sake. At last I can think of it all with calmness and speak of it with a heart that is reconciled, for I believe that the great-hearted loving Father who cares even for the sparrow has looked with mercy on my lover's sin and mine, and pardoned all."

Her voice died away into silence with a gentle sigh and tears were on her down-dropped lashes. Tears were in our own eyes, too, and we held each other's hands in silent sympathy.

Alicia was the first to speak. "Thank you, dear Saint Margaret," she said, softly, as she rose and kissed her, tenderly—"you have helped me with your life-story."

And we all, as we gathered around her, breathed words of thanks and gratefulness. She smiled at us through her tears—"God bless you all, my girls, and let you learn a little lesson from the sad story of one woman's life"—and then she rang for lights and we had tea.

Allegany, N. Y.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC ON THE "WEST COAST" OF AFRICA AND IN THE "CONGO INDEPENDENT STATE."

BY MARY CLEMENT LEAVITT.

(Continued.)

At many, if not at all, the "factories" a glass of rum or gin is dealt out to all native helpers at noon every day. This dram is about two-thirds of a tumbler full. Every Saturday two bottles of gin must be taken as part of the week's pay. Men who have been "down the coast" from the upper part of it, at work for a year, or a term of years, are often forced to take a barrel, some demijohns or cases of liquor, in part pay, to carry home with them. This I saw on the steamer on which I sailed from Banana to Sierra Leone, and inquiry put the matter beyond question.

Since writing the last paragraph I have talked with a lady who has lived some years on the "West Coast," and to whose town these natives are returning from the South in larger or smaller numbers by nearly every steamer, and her testimony is that scenes of terrible debauchery arise from these very barrels and demijohns, resulting often in maiming and other wounds, and she mentioned six deaths among the most prominent and promising young men of the town who had died from drink under precisely these circumstances.

On a recent Sabbath this lady went to town for the usual Sunday service at eleven o'clock. A steamer had come in at daylight from the South, as is very common. She found the whole village drunk, men, women and children. The very air was tainted with the scent of the gin. She could not find a cup that had not had gin in it, to take the drink of water she needed. From many sources I hear of deaths occurring in this way. All will remember the startling account recently published in American newspapers of ten Africans dying from one cask of liquor drank in a debauch.

European traders force drink upon natives and native traders contrary to their will. One European trader said to another in my hearing, "Down my way the 'niggers' are getting so impudent they don't want to take what you offer them in trade, they want to choose." Said another trader, "What do they want?" "Oh, cloth, salt and money. Think of that! They want money and they don't want rum!"

"That will never do," said number two; "there is nothing we can make so much on as rum." "They get these notions from the —— missionaries," said number one.

"Yes," said number two, "the missionaries spoil the country for trade." All this being interpreted meant that the missionaries are imparting instruction, are elevating the natives, and fitting them to look after their true interests, and unfitting them to be the unthinking, unresisting prey of the traders.

The following incident was related to me by one of the missionaries at Duke Town, Old Calabar. A chief of one of the towns up the river had been trained in the mission school, but had not been converted. He returned to his village, married, and became a trader. Afterwards he was converted and wished to join the church. Among the questions asked was this, "Are you willing to sign a total abstinence pledge?" He was willing and signed it. Next the question was put, "Will you give up trading in drink?" This caused some hesitation as it would interfere with his profits to a very considerable extent, but this also was promised. Not long after he had a boat load of palm oil and "kernels" to send down the river to Duke Town. He strictly charged the clerk not to take any drink in payment, but the trader said he must take one cask, and, finding remonstrance vain, the clerk consented to receive the cask on board the boat. On receiving an account of the circumstances the chief went down the river to exchange the cask of drink for other goods, but this the trader refused to do. Seeing that his efforts were of no avail, the chief poured the rum into the river, threw the empty cask after it and returned home.

Reviewing all this wretched business, we must ask ourselves what can be done about it,—what we can do about it. I will mention two or three minor measures, before proceeding to weightier ones, that would be of some assistance, and which probably may be secured more readily than other and more fundamental ones.

On the Congo, and in some other places, the introduction of a small copper coin of about the value of one-fifth of a cent would be of great importance. If they were annular in form they would be all the more convenient, as the natives could carry them on strings about their necks. Then natives could sell a yam, two or three sweet potatoes, half a dozen onions, a pint of palm kernels, and not be forced to take drink in return, as is the case now. Indeed, drink is the small change of the country on the Congo.

Again, all consuls should be instructed by their governments to see that traders do not force natives to take articles they do not want. And still again, a trading house which does not deal in drink would thrive at many towns. Such a house would have friends in all missions, and warm ones, if all white men connected with it would keep themselves from this almost universal buying of women to live with as wives.

Not long ago a European consul on the "West Coast" sent a demand to a chief for a certain number of "girls," for himself and other men of his own nationality, offering to pay the market price for wives. The chief, an educated, Christian man, sent back a letter refusing compliance, with some suitable remarks upon the wickedness of the request. From that time to the present, nothing is too bad to say about that chief, and every way that can be taken to thwart and injure him is sure to be employed. On my way down the coast this chief was mentioned to me by traders on the steamer as one of the worst of men, one of those "completely spoiled" by the missionaries. On my way up the coast I heard the true estimate of the man's character and life, namely, that he is a pure, consistent Christian, who believes it his duty to look after the welfare of his people in all lines, and who does not fear the face of man, be it white or black.

INTERNATIONAL TEMPERANCE STUDIES.

BY FELIX L. OSWALD, M. D.
Author of "Physical Education," "The Poison Problem," etc.

V. TURKEY.

About eighty miles east of the Austrian border the Danube is joined by the river Save, and the delta of the confluence has for centuries been the site of a prosperous town—the ancient Singidunum—now the fortress of Belgrade. In that city an international league of Total Abstainers should assemble a convention for the conversion of their friends duped by the "beer and brawn" argument of the alcohol sophists.

Belgrade is now the capital of Servia and the industrial metropolis of a large area of countries peopled chiefly by Christian nations, but up to recent date the Porte was allowed to maintain in the citadel a garrison of three thousand men, and the yearly fairs of the business town attract a still larger number of customers and tradesmen from the borderlands of Islam. Most of those visitors are life-long abstainers from all alcoholic stimulants; they are descendants of Turanian ancestors—first cousins of the bow-legged Mongols and blear-eyed Kalmusks—yet with few exceptions the temperance law of their creed has made them physically the superiors of their alcohol-worshiping neighbors. And, moreover, their habits illustrate the absurdity of the frequent assertion that stimulants of some sort or other are physiologically necessary to the welfare of a human being. The wealthier Turks smoke tobacco, a vice which from Vienna and Bucharest has overspread an enormous area of Eastern Europe in less than a century, but a considerable plurality of Mohammedan rustics and artisans on both sides of the Bosphorus abstain not only from tobacco and opium, but from coffee, too, and often even from meat. Their poverty precludes anything in the shape of dispensable articles of food and clothing; they dress in baggy trousers and linen blouses of a fabric tough enough to stand the wear and tear of successive years, and besides corn-bread and coarse cheese their bill of fare includes only fruit and nuts, cold water, sweetened on holidays with a modicum of sugar, and such sweetmeats and pastry as can be prepared with honey, ginger and the wheat-flour they purchase as a special dainty on their occasional visits to the next town.

Combined with outdoor labor in a salubrious climate that frugality has developed the athletic vigor which on thousands of battle-fields has turned the scales against the superior tactics and more effective fire-arms of their Christian rivals. The poet, Campbell, laments the fate of Polands as the most tragic event in the history of the human race, but numerous unprejudiced officers of the Russian army who have seen hot work both in Warsaw and on the shores of the Caspian, testify to the fact that for deeds of physical prowess and heroic perseverance the resistance of the Polish patriots could not begin to compare with that of the Circassian highlanders who for sixty-eight years of almost continued warfare defended their homes against the enormous power of the Muscovite Empire. Reduced to a diet of bread, millet-seed and water, and at last to beech-nuts and water, the followers of the warrior-prophet, Shamyl, again and again routed the well-fed and brandy-stimulated troops of General Grabbe and Prince Baryatinski—commanders trained in the military schools of Western Europe and abundantly supplied with all the machinery and contrivances of modern warfare. Whenever the Russian infantry exhausted their ammunition, no bayonets, no sabres or musket-butts could resist the onset of the wild highlanders, who broke the ranks of their enemies in the first few minutes of the hand-to-hand conflict and repeatedly stormed camps defended by an elaborate system of ditches and palisades.

"I am indebted to a gracious Providence," says Sir W. F. Williams, the defender of Kars, "for preservation in every unhealthy climate; but I am satisfied that a resolution, early formed, and steadily persevered in, never to take spirituous liquors, has been the means of my escaping diseases by which multitudes have fallen around me. Had not the Turkish army at Kars been literally a 'cold water army,' I am persuaded they would never have performed the achievements which crowned them with victory."

The present decline in the political prestige of the Turkish Empire can be abundantly explained by the hereditary policy of its rulers and its peculiar position in the midst of countries occupied by warlike and hostile nations of a different creed. The only wonder is how any race could so long hold its own under such circumstances, for we should remember that the aggregate of the Mohammedan population in European countries never exceeded five millions, and that more than once one-fifth of all the males capable of bearing arms perished in the course of a single campaign. The science, the commerce and the industrial development of the Turkish nation have been blighted by these incessant wars, yet, as the Orientalist Vambery reminded a supercilious critic, "Turkey could boast a whole galaxy of popular poets, philosophers and historians, before the masses of the population of Central Europe could read and write."

Political vicissitudes have reversed that contrast, yet the worst of our liquor sophists would hardly venture to suggest that the alcohol vice could have prevented that decline, and physically the modern Turks can certainly not be called a degenerate race.

"On the wharfs of Beyroot," says a personal observer, "turbaned Samsons can be seen shouldering bales of merchandise which a western drayman would hesitate to hoist single-handed into his cart. Of course, they cannot maintain a rapid gait under a load of five or six hundred pounds, but they walk along with a firm step, without panting, and without finding it necessary to shift their burden from one shoulder to the other. One morning I followed an old porter who had undertaken to lug off a box of hardware marked '510 pounds,' and which he tried to secure against damage by first saddling himself with a big armful of folded sackcloth. But substratum may have helped to make his burden a trifle less uncomfortable, though I am persuaded that outside of a convention of professional circus athletes, not one western man of ten thousand would have attempted to lift that box from the ground and carry it more than a dozen steps, after once ascertaining its weight. But my old 'longshoreman strode along manfully and finished the steep ascent of the landing-slope without a single stop. He crossed the first row of warehouses, turned a corner and walked an additional distance of at least three hundred yards when he stopped to exchange a few words with an acquaintance who seemed to inquire after the whereabouts of some local business man. My Samson disengaged his right hand, pointed to a building on the other side of the street, and then completed his task by carrying his box to a commission warehouse in the east end of the city, where he rolled up his pad of sackcloth and sauntered back as comfortably as if he had just delivered a box of cigars." Men of that kind can be found in every seaport of the eastern Mediterranean, and many of them would think themselves lucky to earn three piastres (about thirty-three cents) a day—just enough to keep their family in bread and dried figs, and save a few paras for confectionery on the chief holidays of the year.

MASKED GROGGERIES

BY HESTER M. POOLE.

Very lately one of the leading newspapers of New York City declared that "The farcial administration, or rather, maladministration, of the excise laws in this city has so long been a standing joke that reference to the subject has lost the power to elicit a smile." This paper (the Tribune) then proceeds to describe the manner in which the liquor traffic continues, unrestrained, and yet escapes general notice.

Scattered over the poorer districts of the city, as every one who has passed through them must remember, are petty grocery stores filled with a small miscellaneous assortment of necessary articles such as sugar, tea, coffee, starch and soap. In the windows, at the entrance and on the sidewalk, are seen rows of inferior lemons and oranges, dingy and ancient-looking candy in glass jars alternating with lithographs which set forth the virtues of various soaps and medicines. Against these dirty panes the small boy and his sister flatten their noses as they survey the cheap pictorial splendor within, and through the swinging door flit the poor women of the neighborhood. Some emerge from the shop with small parcels, some steal to their tenements with empty hands and flushed cheeks.

The casual observer might see nothing wrong in the manner of these habitues; the initiated sigh and pass along with that feeling of helplessness in the face of violated law which paralyzes every keen observer of the effect produced upon the moral sense of a community whenever such scenes become general.

In truth, these small groceries are petty groggeries. To them are lured those women dwelling in tenement houses, who are not openly and hopelessly given over to intemperance. Here those who through pride and fear would hesitate long before entering a liquor saloon, but who have a taste for strong drink or are exhausted by work, want or disease, can imbibe beer or whisky, and no one but the keeper of the den is the wiser for it. It is a temptation which a large portion of the class who are the least able to indulge in ruinous luxuries, cannot forego.

From the exterior these groceries are innocent and uninviting. The neighbors know it to be otherwise, and so do the police as well as the proprietors of the gilded liquor saloons upon the corner, but no one interferes. The excise law of the state of New York forbids the drinking of wines and liquors "in the house or shop of the person receiving such license," where the quantity sold at each time is less than five gallons, but this law is constantly violated.

In these masked groggeries rear rooms are fitted up with all the appurtenances of a liquor store. They are divided from the front by a door through which those pass, without a word, who know the secret of the place. Once inside, all pretense of secrecy is dropped, and the visitor, be it man or woman, calls for his dram, and either drinks it there or takes it home in a flask. Oftentimes children are sent for the vile stuff—it is sure to be the vilest kind concocted on earth—for the delectation of the family and its visitors. Generally the poor woman goes alone under the pretense of buying the soap for her washing or the sugar for her tea.

The temptation of these "grocery bars" to the weak consists of the ease with which liquor can be procured, and yet the wage-earner, who gives to his wife his hard-won money, remains ignorant of the fact until her habits are fixed and like him, she has those regular sprees that precipitate the entire family to the lowest depths of misery. It is bad enough when Pat indulges in a periodical debauch, but when Bridget joins him, and the babe at her breast draws nourishment tinged with alcoholic poison and perhaps is fed an occasional teaspoonful in sweetened water, then the family demoralization is complete. The rising generation, at the death of the sodden parents, join the swelling throng of idiots, vagrants and criminals.

In the face of these facts which are common in other cities besides the metropolis, humanitarians and Christians can see no other preventive and antidote than renewed and untiring efforts toward the cultivation and development of the moral powers and the establishment of true religion. For this end THE UNION SIGNAL exists and toward it all co-workers lend their energies.

[While accepting the mission marked out for it by its talented contributor, THE UNION SIGNAL believes that prohibition must reinforce the "cultivation and development of moral powers," if ever those powers are to develop as God intended they should.—ED.]

Correspondence.

THE CANTEEN SYSTEM.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—Nearly two months after the discussion in the House of Representatives of the Beer and Wine question in the army canteen, the bill came up in the Senate of the United States. In anticipation of the interest this subject was likely to create, because of pressure brought to bear upon temperance Senators from our workers throughout the country, I sent the memorial of our National W. C. T. U., accompanied by a letter in my official capacity, to the members of the Appropriation Committee, who had in charge what is now so well known as the "Canteen."

While in Washington, an interview with Senator Eugene Hale resulted in his promise to consider and present "the Amendment" which had stirred up the other branch of Congress on this temperance issue. The result has been most advantageous to our cause.

On Friday, May 9, the Army Appropriation Bill came up, and upon the clause giving $100,000 for the construction or purchase of buildings designed for the amusement and comfort of the enlisted soldier, and "canteens" (a coöperative grocery store) where wine and beer may be sold, an amendment which reads as follows: "Provided that no alcoholic liquors, including beer or wine, shall be sold or supplied to the enlisted men, in any canteen, or in any room or building at any garrison or military post," was offered by the Honorable Senator Hale. The debate lasted throughout the day, and no finer temperance lectures were ever listened to with more attention. On Saturday morning the vote was taken, and the amendment carried by 30 to 13.

Mr. Hale's arguments against the sale of intoxicants to the soldiers were based upon the broad ground that "neither directly nor indirectly should the Government embark in the sale of any alcoholic drinks to the army. The states cannot control the military forces of the United States in their border, and the Government is responsible for them and for their conduct. At military posts and garrisons the jurisdiction of the United States is complete, and it would be a scandal if the Government should directly or indirectly engage in this traffic, especially in states where the statutes prohibit it."

Mr. Cockrell, of Missouri, argued in favor of leaving the whole matter to the Secretary of War, and said with regard to the state of Maine, "that if wine and beer were permitted to be sold at the military posts in that state, the moral sentiment of the citizens of that prohibition state would not be shocked since there was such open and notorious defiance of the law within its borders;" to which Mr. Hale replied that "some of us who have lived there all our lives, know how it is. I am not reckoned myself at home, and do not set up as an ultra and extreme Prohibitionist or temperance man, but I should not be truthful if I did not admit that the prohibitory law and the temperance sentiment based upon and acting with it, have in a great degree driven the grog-shop out of the state of Maine. All of us who live there and have memories going back for forty years or more, know the immense benefit that has been derived from it. I did not intend to introduce that subject here—but, certainly, here and now, I do not believe the Senate will put itself on record against a proposition which declares that if the canteen system is introduced into the army, the government of the United States shall not go into the sale of intoxicating liquors."

Senator Frye stated that "when the discussion of this subject took place in the other House, and that body refused to take this legislation out of the appropriation bill, I know in my state (Maine) it attracted a great deal of attention, and caused a great deal of consternation. In less than ten days, I had received a perfect shower of letters largely from Portland, Me., where there is a camp or barracks. In a state like Maine, where there is a prohibitory law which we try to enforce and do enforce very well, it is very offensive to have the United States government actually violating the laws of the state and with perfect impunity, because the state has no jurisdiction over the barracks."

Senator Blair said that "the temperance sentiment of the country would deplore any action which looked like a recognition on the part of the Government for legalizing the sale and use of intoxicating liquors. This amendment ought to be adopted. There was an expression of the temperance sentiment of the country upon that amendment at its adoption by committee of the whole on the state of the union (although afterward rejected by the House) that caused universal joy throughout the country, and if the Senate can restore it, it will certainly do that which will commend itself to the approbation of the better element of American society." Afterward Mr. Blair introduced two spicy articles which had appeared in the Army and Navy Journal, published in Washington. I quote a few paragraphs showing how some people see it: "Look! Look! Canteen Saloon. Credit check system. Wines, beers, pies, cakes, doughnuts, popcorn, peanuts. Major Hon. Career, U. S. A., Manager. Saloon collectors, Lieutenants, A. B. C. D. Patronize us. Remember the profits, etc., etc.

"There it is, true to life. Look at it. Nice business, isn't it for the United States Army! Nice for the officers! Such a noble estimate of the profession of arms! How do you like it?

"I hear some say, 'Oh, you must amuse the men.' Indeed! Well, not to be mean, let the War Department issue a new regulation, as follows: 'Our company officer will visit the barracks at 11 p. m. and lull the men to sleep. Rock-a-bye-baby on the tree-top, or some appropriate melody will be sung. If the men appear restless, administer Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup. See that the feet are well wrapped in pinning blankets!

"It is idle to ask for any moral ground. Equally so to ask what is the drift or tendency of this whole business. The excuse for the saloon is that it will benefit the company funds. What a sad reflection on the United States government! What a shame for the Army! To engage in the saloon business to raise money to help out the government ration. For the sake of honor and decency, let the canteen saloon go!" To which we temperance women will all say, Amen!

The opposing side gave glowing representations of the beautiful state of affairs existing where the canteen had been introduced, and proved its superiority to the post trader's stores.

Senator Paddock of Nebraska made a short but effective speech, and hit the nail on the head when he stated, from his own knowledge, that very many officers of the army disapproved the plan; he said pertinently that "the fact that the proceeds from the disposition of these liquors in the canteens go into the company fund is something of an incentive to them to patronize the canteens very liberally, for whatever profits there are from this saloon business go into the company fund for the benefit of all the soldiers of the company."

All this goes to show that our National legislators have accepted the demonstrations of science, and they are now prepared to place fermented liquors in the same category as the fiery, distilled intoxicants. I think we will all rejoice that the United States Government has, by this recent action of the Senate, maintained the dignity of a Christian Nation. SARAH A. MCCLEES,

Nat. Supt. Dept. Soldiers and Sailors.

THE COLORED WORK AT GEORGIA'S CAPITAL.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—During the early years of its existence, the Atlanta, Ga., W. C. T. U. began to organize unions among the colored women. This work was not as difficult as it might have been, had not Mrs. Witter and our union been aided by Miss Lizzie Stephenson, of the Storrs school, who may well be termed the pioneer of temperance work among the colored people of that period. For a long while she had trained her pupils in temperance principles, and did missionary visiting among the families they represented. Between our union and the various missionaries and teachers among the colored people, there was always a bond of sympathy and coöperation, and our hearts were cheered by the reports brought by the teachers from Atlanta University, Clarke University, and Spellman Seminary. It is my purpose now to speak especially of the work at Spellman.

In the early days of the Atlanta W. C. T. U., when we met in the blessed little "upper chamber" on Whitehall street, we were now and then favored with the presence of Miss Packard and Miss Giles, the principals of the now flourishing Spellman Seminary. This institution began in 1881, in the basement of a colored Baptist Church, with eleven pupils too old to avail themselves of the instruction furnished by the city schools. To-day the seminary owns several acres of ground and two magnificent buildings, besides several houses which once formed a part of the Old Barracks. But it is not of its material prosperity, nor its educational advantages considered merely from a literary standpoint, nor of its industrial training, including printing, telegraphy, sewing, and domestic arts of all kinds that I would speak, but of its moral and religious training. The school is under the care of the American Baptist Home Missionary society, and has also the sympathy and coöperation of leading Southern ministers and laymen.

One bright morning a few weeks ago, in company with two white-ribboners from New York, I visited Rockefellow Hall, where seven hundred women and girls are daily brought under the influence of cultivated Christian teachers. Several hundred of the pupils board in the institution. We heard recitations in mathematics, civil government, and natural science, then went to Packard Hall where we saw some of the girls setting type for the Spellman Messenger, and others taking lessons in sewing. We were greatly pleased with all we saw and heard; best of all the seven hundred pupils are daily receiving religious instruction and teaching in total abstinence and social purity.

Last year one of the graduates of Spellman went as a missionary to Africa, and is located at the Palabala mission. Now another has consecrated herself to this work. Her name is Clara Howard, and she goes to Lukunga, a station two hundred miles from the mouth of the Congo, where she expects to have charge of a school, and to be associated with Miss Faulkner and others. Palabala and Lukunga are one hundred miles apart. Imagine the scene should the two missionaries ever meet in the land of their forefathers!

Home missions are not neglected by the converts from this school, as their efforts testify; and during the vacations a large number of the pupils go out to teach summer schools, and often form Bands of Hope among the children. For mission work they have been well prepared by the study of the International Sunday-school lessons and frequent Bible readings, together with practical efforts in the shape of visiting families for the distribution of religious literature, etc. They are trained in temperance principles, by the study of physiology, and by their connection with the seminary Band of Christian Temperance Workers. All the boarding pupils have taken the Social Purity pledge. MISSOURI STOKES.

Decatur, Ga.

WHY WE DID IT.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—I heard a conversation about two days ago that stirred me beyond telling, and wish to relate it to you, wondering as I write if in this nineteenth century, ringing on every side as it does to woman's voice and woman's work, there are many Christian women who take the stand this one did, of whom I am writing. We were at the supper table, and a young girl casually remarked that next Sunday our minister would preach a temperance sermon. "Yes," answered her aunt, and after a minute's pause said vehemently: "The way temperance is preached now-a-days does more harm than good. The whole thing is being run to death."

"What do you mean, auntie?"

"Why, I mean just this. Drinking is only one form of intemperance, and those who drink are being continually hit at, while they know of those who call themselves temperance people, who do things much worse—things they would never dream of doing. It is the very best hearted men, who by their kind-hearted ways are led to drink, and it's a shame to persecute them all the time."

The listener, a young girl, very recently a member of the W. C. T. U., looked aghast; for her aunt is a sweet, brave, pure, Christian woman, and one generally in sympathy with reform movements. "But, auntie," she said, "the temperance workers have more than one line of work. They—"

"But they keep hammering at the drinkers all the time."

"You should read what I have been reading to-day, Miss Willard's annual address at the convention; you would see that the drink habit is only one of the things they are working against."

"I know what I am talking about. It's no work for women, anyway. When they went into saloons as they did some time ago, it was very bad taste, exceedingly bad taste."

"I think it was grand!" came the quick answer. "The curse is on our land, and if men won't remove it, women must. It is God's work, and in his sight there is no difference between men and women. I tell you it was the grandest thing they ever did, and the world will bless them for it—is blessing them for it every day!"

"It was shameful," continued the elder in no way abashed by the warm defence. "This is a free country; to their own Judge men stand or fall; women have no business to interfere. If it does not go against men's conscience to keep saloons, they have a right to!"

"A right to!" and the girl's voice fairly quivered with suppressed feeling, but she said no more, and we left the table soon after. When we were alone she said to me, "Has the devil a right to us because it does not trouble his conscience to tempt us and lead us away from Christ?"

I have always, myself, held my breath a little at the manner in which women have gone out in this Crusade, but that conversation converted me most thoroughly. It was my privilege not many weeks ago, to listen to Dr. Kate Bushnell, God bless her! in her emphatic assertions of woman's equal footing with men on this earth of ours; how God made man and He made woman, each a complete human being before Him, each equally endowed, each with the same rights; and the above talk so awakened me that I saw very clearly that woman's place is in this life of conflict between the powers of good and evil, between God's design for His children, and the devil's plots to sink those children lower than hell: her place is right to the front of the battle, side by side, shoulder to shoulder with her brother, ahead of him if he fail, but never for any reason whatever, one-half step behind. Wherever Christ's cause needs supporters, wherever souls are going down to darkness, wherever the call, it is woman's grand and God-given privilege to go, it is, moreover, her duty, and she dare not disobey. If any one should feel ashamed to see women entering saloons and pleading there for God and Home and Native Land, to see them tearing down soul-polluting pictures, from the public gaze—if any one should feel disgraced in this matter, should it not be those who have fed and pampered the saloon-keeper, encouraged the youth-slayers, laughed at or simply ignored the obscene picture? We bore the curse as long as we could, we tried to believe we must be keepers at home, silent, non-aggressive, but the enemy came to our firesides and stole away our dear ones, he visited the very cradles which we rocked, and left the blight of sin and death there, he came and drank of our life-blood, until, God-awakened, we went out in His strength to fight this demon, and never shall we lay down arms until he lies slain forever at our feet.

ONE OF YOU.

SWEDISH NEWSPAPERS ON TEMPERANCE.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—The oldest and the largest Swedish Temperance paper is the Augustana, with a circulation of 15,000, the official organ of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, an organization of about 125,000 members. Next comes the Skaffaron of St. Paul with a circulation of about 10,000. Then we have Framat (forward) the paper that aided materially to get prohibition in Kansas, while edited by the Hon. Carl A. Swenson, of Lindsburg, Kas.; Ostems Vaktare (The Eastern Watchman) of Jamestown, N. Y., the official organ of the New York Swedish Lutheran conference; Mission Friend of Chicago, with a circulation of ten to twelve thousand, has always been a stanch temperance paper. The Minneapolis Veckoblade (Weekly Blade) is a vigorous temperance paper, and so are the Swedish Baptist and Methodist organs, issued at Chicago. The Temperance Bugle, edited by Hon. Eric Johnson, of Holdrege, Neb., is a special Swedish campaign paper for the prohibitory amendment of that state. It has already a circulation of 5,000, and the second number is just out. Our American temperance workers in Nebraska, and elsewhere will please have that in mind, and send their communications to its editor in chief, Hon. E. Johnson, of Holdrege, Neb. All the religious denominations working among the Swedes in Nebraska are represented on the editorial staff of that paper, and it promises to be the best edited Swedish temperance paper in the United States.

S. M. HILL.

World's W. C. T. U.

A GLIMPSE INTO RAMABAI'S LIFE.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—I know it will interest your readers to hear of their old friend, Pundita Ramabai, who has been giving a few lectures in Hyderabad, the great Mohammedan city and capital of the Nizams dominions. She left us this morning after having spent a little more than a week here, and we shall miss her gentle, womanly presence among us, for she has completely won the hearts of all with whom she came in contact.

The Pundita gave four lectures here, two in English and two in the Hindustani language. The attendance at each of these was very large, and the people were eager to listen to their brave countrywoman and enthusiastic in their applause. Of course the audiences were composed of men, with the exception of a very few American and English ladies, and also two Brahman ladies who have been educated in England, and have adopted English customs entirely. The native women are very much secluded; even the Hindu women who in some parts of India move about freely, shut themselves up here because of the Mohammedan custom, and no women are seen on the streets except the ayahs, coolie women and other low castes. Even the Pundita was told that she must not walk out here as she is in the habit of doing in Bombay. When the Zenana ladies do go out (which does not happen very often to some, never to others) they drive in carriages closed up tight, or in a kind of a cart with curtains all around it, or else they are carried in a palanquin, the doors of which are closed, and a heavy cloth or quilt made to fit the box thrown over it. When such a lady reaches her destination the palanquin is put down, the bearers all disappear around the corner of the house, and then our lady creeps out of her box. This is a wretched inconvenient Mohammedan institution handed down all these years from the prophet, whose wives no one must speak to except behind a curtain.

Pundita Ramabai has been on a short lecture tour in the interest of her school and social reform generally, endeavoring to arouse the people to see the necessity of educating their sisters and daughters. Her words were stirring and often pathetic; now setting forth the miserable and often cruel treatment received by the poor Hindu widows and pleading for the uplifting of her sisters to stand beside their brothers and husbands where they belong, and again would tell of the noble work done by women in America and England where she is being recognized, and of the many avenues open to her in those countries.

The Mohammedans here supported the Pundita nobly, attending her meetings by hundreds and subscribing to her school fund. The Hindus are so reserved, afraid lest their supporting such a work might lead to the breaking down of their caste walls, and they still hesitate to send their girls to the school. But the leaven is working even among them, and it cannot be long before a marked change will be apparent to all.

One of the navabs here, the director of public instruction, did everything possible to make the gatherings a success, introducing the Pundita in well-chosen words to the audiences on several occasions. One afternoon his begum gave a tea in her honor. A few ladies had been invited to meet her with a number of begums and some Parsee ladies. This navab's two daughters speak English well, and at present attend the Zenana school recently opened. The young begums served the tea as, of course, no male servants were admitted. After tea the Pundita gave a little talk in Hindustani, which was listened to by the begums with a great deal of interest, one of them replying in a neat little speech. This ended the very pleasant occasion.

A native Christian gentleman invited about a hundred native Christians to his house for a social evening and to meet Ramabai. There were also present a few American and English ladies. The Pundita also gave a talk, for many of those present had not yet had an opportunity to hear her. She talked very simply and gave beautiful words of help and advice. Among other things she said that it made her very happy to meet so large a company of native Christians, that she was one of them as believing and trusting in the same Saviour and with them, like their Master, being despised of many. She spoke of the necessity of activity among them, and that no matter how humble they might be there still was work for each one to do, and time for this work might be saved in many ways. For instance, the time often spent in gossip at the wells, where the women meet each other when drawing water, might be utilized in doing for others. She also told of the different kinds of work carried on by Christian women in America, and urged them to organize and work unitedly.

The last words Ramabai said to me in the train when leaving this morning was of how sorry she had been to leave America where she had found so many true friends.

Well, she is a wonderfully brave little woman, and will gather friends around her wherever she goes. God has raised her up to come to the rescue of her down-trodden sisters in this great land, and though the work of reformation apparently moves but slowly, yet in time good must come from it.

JOSEPHINE C. ELTZHOLTZ, M. D.

Hyderabad, Deccan, India.

HELP YOUR JAPANESE SISTERS.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—He who said, "I will say to them which were not my people, thou art my people; and they shall say, thou art my God," has opened the doors of all the nations, has sent the glad tidings of salvation into the hearts of their peoples, and has brought hundreds of thousands, and is bringing millions of the lost souls into His glorious kingdom of Light and Life.

Followers of Confucius have cast down their books and are reading the Book of books. Worshipers of stock and stone are looking up to the throne of grace and praising the name of the Triune God, saying, "There is none like thee, neither is there any God beside thee."

Dark Africans are confessing their sins at the feet of our Saviour, and singing in tears, "Whiter than snow, yes, whiter than snow." Even carnivorous tribes of yesterday are now lifting up banners of the cross and telling their fellow-men of the teaching, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

Look at Japan, the most beautiful little daughter of Asia. Only about thirty years ago she was aroused from her deep sleep of dark heathenism, and since then she has made such a remarkably rapid progress that no parallel event can be found in the history of mankind. The organization of a constitutional government, the establishment of extensive universities and colleges, the adoption of western manners and customs, and the substitution of locomotive engines for palankeens, of the telegraph and telephone for coolies, and of electric lights for lanterns are products of the last generation of the Japanese people. Japan has not only imported external forms of western civilization, but also received the internal or essential element of it. Yes, she has found the fountain of life, and more than thirty thousand of her people are strong and faithful soldiers of God. Scores of Christian schools are teaching their young students pure doctrines of the true religion; hundreds of earnest preachers are preaching practical gospel sermons; non-Christians as well as Christians are extremely eager to better humanity, reform the society and elevate their moral standard to the same plane as that of the best peoples in Christian countries. There are a great number of associations and organizations with social reforms as their purpose, but the foremost of all is the Tokyo W. C. T. U. of above two hundred white-ribbon Japanese women, whom the Lord has called and is using as instruments in lifting up the sphere of the weak and enslaved sex, and purifying all the society of the Sunrise empire. It was this W. C. T. U. that presented the Empress of Japan with a Holy Bible; it was the same W. C. T. U. that petitioned the Japanese government to abolish the heathenish custom of concubinage, and it was also the same W. C. T. U. that wrote and spoke against the evils of prostitution in such an effective way that the conscience of all Japan was aroused, and a number of prefectures have already issued their local prohibitory laws. Besides this W. C. T. U. there are in Japan a number of W. C. T. U.'s, a good many Christian Temperance Unions, and still more Temperance Unions, all of which are working together to stop the importations of liquors from America and Europe, and close the breweries of all the kinds of strong drink in Japan.

The future prosperity of Japan depends largely upon the success of her moral and social reforms. But these reforms are entirely in the hands of those temperance unions, and the movements of all these are determined by the energy of the W. C. T. U. of Tokyo. Hence, my readers, you can easily imagine what a great responsibility rests upon those few chosen women of Japan. They know that their organization is still very young, and feel that their work is quite unsatisfactory, but trust that the day is coming when a Miss Willard will appear among them and captivate the hearts and consciences of all the Japanese men as well as women.

They need, at present, a new, large building for their office, but the expense is so great that they feel a necessity of asking financial aid of the members and friends. Now, my reader, if you are a man, I ask you to help your Japanese sisters who are busily working all the day and night to rescue the perishing souls of your fellow-men and keep young boys pure and unspotted from the evil world. If you are a woman, I ask you to help your Japanese sisters who are sacrificing everything to console tearful wives and starving children, and bring their own sex up to the true sphere of womanhood. If you are a Christian, I ask you to help your Japanese sisters who worship the same God as yours, have the same hope as yours, and are spending all their time, labor and wealth for forty million souls, "having no hope and without God in the world." If you are a temperance worker, I earnestly ask you to help your Japanese sisters who love exactly what you love, hate exactly what you hate, and are doing exactly what you are doing, with the same hope to see the human society without curse and without abomination. If you are a member of the W. C. T. U., I sincerely ask you to help your little Japanese sisters who wear white ribbons of purity, being soldiers of "the Latest and Greatest Crusade," and who will never separate from you but will always unite with you in singing, in praying, in thinking, in speaking, and in doing, in the sight of God, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost.

Contributions may be sent either directly to the treasurer of the W. C. T. U., of Tokyo, Japan, Mrs. Ko Honda, 16 Honfunacho, Tokyo, Japan, or to myself.

Y. ASADA.

Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill.

TRIBULATION cannot separate you from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. But the love of God will, in the end, separate you from tribulation, and bring you out of it, and give you fullness of joy.—J. Hewitson.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

Miss Charlotte A. Gray, the noble English white-ribboner, who is devoting her time to temperance in Norway, and has studied the Norsk language for that purpose, has just sent $9 from mite collections given by the women of Norway. This was gathered in during an eight weeks' trip lately made by Miss Gray through Norway. She writes that the mite-box we sent her a few months ago excited much interest, and helped her to tell something of the work it represented. "I shall keep it going, and gather what I can," she adds. She is now in Christiania at work for the Congress which soon meets there. She requests us to send documents in regard to the Temple for distribution at that time. Thus the knowledge of our Temperance Temple spreads around the globe, and women of all lands hold out loving hands to drop in their mite.

* * *

The mites will soon become a million if enough hands will only undertake the work. Dear sisters, you who stand halting because you have so little to give, hesitate no longer, but with an eye of faith, bravely say, I will, at least, pledge one cent a day, for a year, and if I cannot put it all in myself, I will trust the Lord to put it into the hearts of my friends to help me out. You will never accomplish anything unless you launch forth in faith. Send to me at once for a mite-box and descriptive cards of the Temple. They will be the means of getting your friends to help you. The outfit will cost only two cents. What you do, do at once.

The following letter from an aged saint, Mrs. Lewis Ford, North Abington, Mass., shows the right spirit in which we should give. She writes: "When the noble project of a Temperance Temple in Chicago was first mentioned in THE UNION SIGNAL, I felt a desire to be associated, with others, in the enterprise, and although I can only give the poor widow's mite, without further delay, lest I fail of it (being now in my 79th year) I inclose $2. I know it is but a single mite of the vast amount needed, but enough of them would build the Temple."

Mrs. D. Harris, of Ypsilanti, Mich., sends $4, the contents of her mite-box for a year. She writes, "I pledged myself to put in a penny a day during a year; I have done so and a little better." If she had not pledged herself to do it the probabilities are the building fund would not have received the $4.

Another faithful friend, Mrs. Lizzie R. McCutchen, Norwood, Ill., took her mite-box with her, she writes us, "to a dinner where the anniversary of a fortieth wedding day was being celebrated," and received $1.75 which she sent us. This is, indeed, being instant in season and out of season.

A dear Quaker sister, Rebecca B. Hall, Stockton, Mo., writes, "Thee will please find enclosed postal order for $5, the contents of my mite-box for the year ending June 1. I am much concerned for the success of the building of the Temple. I have looked over my resources, turned the fleece wet and dry, to contribute a much larger amount, but can see no way at present. As the dear Master blessed the widow's mite, so I have faith that He will still continue to help me drop pennies into the mite-box, and if I am ever able will do more. May the Lord bless thy efforts. I pray He may touch the hearts of all women to see their duty in this respect." O for an army of such Rebeccas!

* * *

A letter has been received from the widow of a minister in Connecticut, inclosing $35 as a first payment on a pledge of $100, which she expects to pay during the year. She says: "I wish to have the name of my husband on the memorial tablets in Willard Hall. Please do not publish my name."

A touching letter inclosing $1 has been received from a mother in Pennsylvania. The dollar is in memory of her precious boy, not quite ten years old, who left her last month for that fair land where death enters not. He was a brave temperance boy, and when the physician ordered milk punch as a last resort, he was told by his father that it was the only thing that would save his life, and that it was a medicine; he nobly replied, "You know, papa, I signed the pledge, and I said 'not in any form.'" He finally consented to take it to please his parents, but it was of no avail, and dear brave Karl is safe with the angels to-day. Some of the money sent was his own and very dear to his mother, but she says: "I want to do something for the Temple in his name."

Jane E. Weeden continues faithfully at work for the Temple. She has gathered in $60.80 in the following towns in Illinois: Peoria, Morrison, Rock Island, Albany, Colona Station, Alexis, Cordova.

* * *

The New Rochelle (N. Y.), W. C. T. U., through Mrs. C. C. Lyon, sends $15.70 for autographs. If all unions would send in the names of members to be put under the corner-stone, what a nice sum it would realize for the building fund. Surely there are none so poor but they could give twenty-five cents for this purpose; send to me for the linen lists and try it. The Buckeystown W. C. T. U. of Maryland, through their president, Mrs. Sarah C. Thomas, send a check for $21.90; the entire amount was realized from their mite-boxes. Why will not every union in the land try this plan? It will impoverish no one, and give all the feeling that they have a hand in building the Temple. The Wilmington, Vt., W. C. T. U. has also sent in a check for $18.50, through its treasurer, Mrs. A. K. Spencer, the entire amount being raised through the mite-box system. Mrs. D. M. Tanax sends $11.12, contents of mite-box, from the Hastings W. C. T. U. of Minnesota.

All money orders and checks for the Temple should be made out in the name of Miss Esther Pugh, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago, National treasurer, and treasurer of the Temple fund. All information in regard to the Temperance Temple should be addressed to Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, Pres. Woman's Temperance Building Association, 145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Our Children.

"JUST LIKE A GIRL."

BY EMMA C. DOWD.

"What a beautiful garden it's going to be!"
Said Faith, as she planted her pansy bed;
"With morning-glories to cover that tree,
And dozens of roses, yellow and red.

"And may be," she added, the earnest thought
Illuming the face that was sweet and fair,
"We can make little nosegays of every sort,
For the hotel ladies to buy and to wear."

"That is just like a girl!" said indolent Joe,
As he spilled his sister's begonia seeds;
"But the worms will ruin the roses, I know;
And the garden will be overrun with weeds.

"When the tenderest seeds decay or bake,
And the others are all by the Leghorns scratched,
You will find you have made a silly mistake
In counting your chickens before they are hatched."

"What dire prediction," said Faith, with a laugh;
"Don't prophesy further, I beg, I beg!
For I'd rather count my chickens by half,
Than to kill them all off while yet in the egg."

—Christian Register.

WANTED TO BE AN ORPHAN.

BY MABEL GIFFORD.

Such a dismal day as it was! The mist was thick enough and dingy enough to answer for a London fog. Everywhere was slippery, and everything was dripping.

A young woman was hurrying across the city as fast as the uncertain footing and the jostling crowd would allow. The crowd was soon left behind. The water-proof cape was pulled closer, the umbrella righted, and steps quickened. Suddenly through the mist came a child's voice, in a mournful wail. The sounds were not at all like those of a child who expects to have its own way if it cries hard enough, but desolate, hopeless sounds that seemed to say, "I know it is of no use, but I can't help it."

The young woman peered through the mist, and soon discovered a mite of a child bare-headed, bare-footed and shivering, sitting on a wet, muddy step. She hesitated. She was very anxious to catch the next train; if she lost five minutes it would be gone before she could get to the station. The grimy little fists were so screwed into the child's eyes that she could not see, and the grime had been so diluted with tears and rubbed about by the active fists, that a very ludicrous countenance was revealed to her when her voice brought the fists down with a jerk; and startled eyes looked out from the muddy face.

"What is the trouble, little one? Are you lost?"

"Me are not losted. Me wants to be an orphin. O-o-o-h!"

"Want to be an orphan!" the woman exclaimed. "Want to be an orphan! Perhaps you mean you are crying because you don't want to be an orphan. Is that it?"

"No-o-o-o! Me wants to be an orphin! Mikey's an orphin, an' he lives in a fine house all carpits an' picters, an' he has booful close, an' shoes 'thout holes in 'em, an' he has everysing to eat, an' books an' playsings, jes' like rich folks."

"O! I see," said the listener, feeling vexed that she had missed the train for nothing more serious than a child's notion. She started on her way, saying a little severely, "You ought to be glad that you have a home, and a father and mother to take care of you. It is wicked to wish yourself an orphan."

"O-o-o-o-h!" began the plaintive wail again, "ain't no fader, an' muvver's koss. O-o-o-o-h!"

The woman paused again. That half-weird little moaning went to her heart. The child's grief was without doubt, sincere, however foolish the cause of it.

Luella King, for that was the young girl's name, had a bright idea just then, and being an energetic person, set about immediately putting the idea in motion.

"See here, little one, where do you live?"

Mournfully, "Over there."

"Will you show me the way? I wish to see your mother."

The child looked up suspiciously; "What for?"

"To see if you have a nice home and a nice mother."

"'Taint nice; 'tain't nuffin nice 'bout it."

Luella had a few wafers in her pocket. "See, I will give you this candy if you will show me the way."

The wafers were promptly accepted. "Sec'n door, fird floor," directed the child as they climbed the stairs. She pushed open the door, half tumbling in, and a tired, cross voice commenced to scold.

"Where have you been? You'll catch your death prowlin' around in the wet. Didn't I tell you—" She stopped short as she saw the stranger.

Luella walked over to the woman, introduced herself, and then talked in low tones, smiling and laughing a little. The child remained near the door, ready to run out if she saw occasion.

The mother smiled faintly, at last, and said a little hesitatingly, "Well, if you care to take the trouble, but it's only a foolish notion; she will soon forget all about it."

Then Miss Luella went to the child. "Dora—your mother tells me your name is Dora—you can be an orphan if you wish. Your mother will wash and dress you, and then I will take you to the Orphans' Home. I am acquainted there. I have just come from there. I visit them and read stories to them and teach them games. They will take you if I ask them."

"Lots of children?"

"Yes, indeed; fifty."

"Mikey there?"

"I do not know. I will inquire."

Dora looked incredulous, but seeing that her mother was in earnest and proceeded to wash and dress her, she gradually became convinced that it was true, and grew quite gay.

She trotted after Luella without kissing her mother, and evidently without a pang of regret. The young girl was shocked. What queer ways poor people had.

The home and the mother Dora left so willingly were poor enough, and nothing nice about them, as Dora had said, but both were neat and orderly. Down the dark and uneven stairs, and out into the muddy street, Luella led the child, who skipped and prattled, and was hardly awed into silence when they entered a street car. The delight so visible in her face caused her guardian to mentally exclaim, "You little heathen!"

When they walked up the broad stone steps of the "Home," the child's eyes sparkled, the little hand clasped in that of her kind guide trembled. It was all like a wonderful fairy story to Dora, though she had never heard of fairy stories.

Luella went first to the superintendent and then to the matron; then she kissed Dora good-by, and said, "Be a good girl. I will come to see you some day."

Two weeks later she visited the Home again, and inquired for the child whom she had made an orphan.

"Come and see for yourself," said the matron with a smile. They went to the play room, and on opening the door, a number of children were seen playing with dolls and blocks and toys, and one, a little apart from the rest, seated on the floor, looked on with a most mournful countenance. This one was the first to observe the visitor. She was on her feet in an instant, and pattered across the room. She reached up two chubby arms to Luella and lifted a pitiful, quivering face full of pleading.

"Take me home to me muvver. Me don't want to be an orphin no longer."

"Don't want to be an orphan? Don't want to live in this pretty place any longer?"

Still the little arms reached up, the brimming eyes overflowed and big tears rolled over the round cheeks.

"It be booful here, but me wants me muvver 'thout nuffin."

Luella, delighted that the child proved to have a human heart, clasped her in her arms, and said,

"You little darling, you shall go right home to your mother this blessed minute. What do you suppose she has done without you all this time?"

The child shook her head, as if that question was involved in deep mystery, and looked earnestly into Luella's face.

"What you 'spect?"

"I expect she has been very, very lonely. Now run and get your cloak and hat."

Luella hoped the child would not leave the Home as unceremoniously as she had parted from her mother, and she did not. She kissed every child, clasping her short arms around their necks and looking earnestly in their eyes as if she meant to remember them. Then she kissed the matron on each cheek, murmuring, "Dood lady."

She placed her chubby hand in Luella's and walked out quietly, looking back once, wistfully.

The energetic young girl did some lively thinking on her way back to Dora's home. The child wondered if the pretty lady was displeased with her. At last she pulled her dress:

"Solly wiv me?"

"No, dear; I am very glad about you."

"All yight."

"How many 'grown-ups,'" thought Luella, "find themselves like this little midget. Detesting the life they are born into, detesting their surroundings, yet held by their love for those who share their miserable life, even when they find a way of escape. Was it not the duty of comfortably situated mortals to do all in their power to improve the condition of the less fortunate?"

When they reached the dreary tenement house Dora would have rushed in, but was held back. On the "third floor, second door" they paused. A sad, care-worn face looked out, but suddenly brightened as it caught sight of Dora.

"Muvver, I've comed; I've comed!" exclaimed the child springing into her mother's arms.

"Tiss me," she commanded, setting the example, "every ladies do it at the Home. More; some more," she begged, as the woman kissed her once, and then attempted to speak to Luella.

They all sat down at last, Dora still clinging to her mother. She cuddled up to her, and caressed and kissed the rough, calloused hand, while the happy woman talked with the visitor whose sparkling eyes told how she enjoyed the scene.

They talked a long time, so it seemed to the child, who was impatient to begin her chatter. She did not heed their conversation until she caught the words, "Orphans' Home." Then she straightened up:

"No orphin no more; never no more."

Luella was satisfied that the woman was deserving, that she was worried and overworked. Her plan was to find work and a home for mother and child at the Orphanage. The grateful tears that fell from the woman's eyes at the very thought of it, decided the young girl. She immediately returned to the Home and found that they would be glad to have a capable woman in the laundry. When the news was told to Dora, she was wild with delight. She danced about and clapped her hands:

"Me have everysing me wants now. Me be an orphin an' have me muvver, too."

Dora's mother was found to be intelligent as well as capable. She was soon promoted to the nursery where she proved invaluable.

Dora is the happiest child at the Home.

To receive honestly is the best thanks for a good thing.—Mac Donald.

A man who acquires a habit of giving way to depression is on the road to ruin.

O Lord, that lends me life, lend me a heart replete with thankfulness!—Shakespeare.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 15, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 12: 1-21; II Sam. 8-13.)

Sunday, 15; Luke 12: 1-21. Verse 3, Mysteries occupy a high place in heathen and other false religions, and in secret orders. Christianity is the opposite of this. We do not advance in it by initiations into an unfamiliar region, which the tongue is not to reveal. The piety of true religious progress opens up to the world, as worthy to face the brightest light. Christianity is to us a safeguard against hypocrisy, and sins against God and man. Verse 15, Covetousness is a passion for possessions, in order that we may gratify selfish desires. It may be the love of money in itself, or the love of that which money will get. In whatever direction the passion reaches out, it exalts and makes a god of self. One who gives way to this sin brings ruin to his soul, and has no hope of eternal life.

Monday, 16; II Sam. 8. Verse 4, All these cruelties in warfare practiced by David were in accord with the customs of those times. Horses were forbidden to the Hebrews, both in war and agriculture, by the Mosaic constitution; and the greatest damage that could be done to enemies who used them was to render their horses unserviceable in war. We have not such cruelties in our age, but cruelty exists in other forms, like the liquor traffic, and victims are numbered by the thousands. Verse 15, Though involved in foreign wars, David maintained an excellent system of government at home. We should remember our rulers in prayer, and not forget to thank God where we have good ones.

Tuesday, 17; II Sam. 9. Verse 7, Jonathan's son was five years old when his father was killed; and David, who at that time was in exile, knew nothing about him. He was lame and lived in retirement, and doubtless feared to make himself known. We can do no such honor to the dead as to show kindness to the living. It is far better to help some cause that will lessen the ignorance and the distress of the world, in memory of those who have died, than to erect costly tombstones. Verse 8, The surprise of this poor, lame soul, at the kind treatment of David, was small compared with that which awaits us, when as helpless but redeemed sinners, we are brought into the presence of the King of Kings.

Wednesday, 18; II Sam. 10. Verse 3, A suspicious and evil nature misinterprets the good motives and conduct of others, and brings upon itself misery and ruin. It is so much better to have a sweet, and pure, and charitable mind. Titus 1: 15. Verse 12, This war had been forced upon Israel, and they could expect the blessing of God in the effort to defend their country. All through life, there are times when our courage and manhood are brought to the test. God expects every Christian to be a man.

Thursday, 19; II Sam. 11. Verse 1, David, as a king, should have gone forth in the battle; but instead, through indolence or self-indulgence, he stayed at home. When one thus shirks duty, and lays himself open to the temptations of the devil, his wicked heart and the devil are certain to get him into trouble. Verse 15, The dreadful sin that David had committed, followed by the murder of Uriah, shows how the nature of man, even when it has very many noble qualities, if left to itself, will sink down to the very gates of hell. No wonder that our Lord addressed the hearts of men, in giving to the world His truth; and that He required of every one entering His kingdom a change of heart. Matt. 12: 34, 35; 15: 18. Jno. 3: 3.

Friday, 20; II Sam. 12. Verse 5, David's sympathies were aroused by the story of the poor man and his lamb, while he was unmoved by his own wickedness, which far exceeded that of the rich man in Nathan's parable. The Saviour's condemnation stands against every hypocrite, who condemns sin in others and indulges it in himself. Matt. 7: 3-5. Verse 14, If sinners repent, God may forgive them; but that does not wipe out the consequences of the sins which the transgressor continues to reap with sorrow and bitterness of soul.

Saturday, 21; II Sam. 13. Verse 1, Wicked lust and sinful policy led David to multiply his wives, in violation of the express command of God. Deut. 17: 17. The bitter fruit of his sin now appears in his family, and it continues as a cause of depravity and trouble, until, under Solomon, the king's house was a place of apostasy and debauchery, and the nation was corrupted and the kingdom divided. Verse 21, David was angry, but his own sins made him so weak morally, that no punishment was inflicted. Verse 28, Absalom had a double motive in his act, for he was heir to the throne after the death of Amnon.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(Yield, trust, obey, "Bible Reading Leaflet," Feb., 1889, Psalm 37: 5, 6.)

1. Of every soul it is required to yield, trust and obey; and unless this is done there cannot be peace, or victory, or communion with God. By doing these things there is a cure for all spiritual diseases and difficulties.

2. We yield to the Lord when we give Him the possession and control of our whole being. We usually call it consecration, but yielding is a better word. We make ourselves over to the care and keeping of God. Rom. 6: 13.

3. The Bible is full of the idea of trust. To believe is the same thing, if the belief centers, not in a creed, but in the Lord Jesus Christ as a person. We must yield before we can trust; and if we do truly yield we will trust.

4. Obedience is the logical outcome of yielding and trusting. If you yield yourself to the care of a physician and trust him, you necessarily obey his orders. It is to our self-interest that we obey God; the consequences of it are unspeakably blessed. Ex. 19: 5, 6.

The Household.

WHEELS.

BY ADALINE HOHF BEERY.

Stood forth from his masterful fingers
An artisan's wondrous design;—
A myriad wheels ran their circles,
Obedient to subtle combine;
Some swift, with the hum of the busy,
Some slow, like the great mill-wheel's drone;
Some giants, and some small as dewdrops;
Some crosswise—but none wrought alone.

The artisan, tenderly gazing
On the beautiful child of his thought,
Soon noticed a rough sound of discord,
And anxious, the culprit he sought.
A small wheel, for envy of larger,
A quiet one, fretting at noise,
A great one, disturbed by the cross-wheels,
Had stopped, in rebellious poise.

* * * * * *

Oh, world! does the parable touch you?
Humanity's made of such wheels;
Some heroes are known the world over;
A "shut-in" no clarion peals;
There are those who must gather the harvests,
And those who the mysteries teach;
While "least ones" are set among gardens,
And martyrs beatitude reach.

Oh, spoilers of God's good creation!
When, loth to revolve in your sphere,
Ye long for a large place to dwell in,
And chafe at the cross winds so drear;
Know fully the plan of the Maker:
Each soul shall his own work fulfill,
And wrapped in a trusting contentment,
Lie down under guard of His will.

Huntingdon, Pa.

THE PHYSICAL BASIS OF EFFECTIVENESS IN SPEAKING.

BY MRS. ALICE B. CURRY.

Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, in an account of a visit to George MacDonald's, describes, among the subjects of interest and entertainment enjoyed there, some wonderful voice figures shown by a Mrs. Watts Hughes, of Islington, and explained in full in the Spectator of October as follows: "She sings into the tube, a low note of her voice—a note not very loud but firm and willful. The effect on the paste is immediate. Tiny globules are thrown up into the air, and sputtering and leaping, all alive with the motion caused by the vibrations of her voice, crowd into the center of the membrane making a little round heap like the center of a daisy. Mrs. Hughes then changes the character of the note she is singing, though not its pitch. Instead of the note of firm, peremptory character, she sings a very sustained, insidious sound. Then from the round center of the white paste will fly out, at unequal distances, little tentative, starlike jets. Sometimes two or three such furtive attempts at the start will have been made, when, suddenly, a perfect and symmetrical row of petals will start out and create with the center a lovely, little, exquisitely finished daisy-like form. Sometimes, even three rows of petals will be the answer to the song note, whereas, at other times, the one row will be imperfect, and will require singing in again to the center before a regular row will produce itself."

The science of the phonograph and of the voice, as sound resulting from waves of air in vibration, explains this phenomenon, as to how it takes place; and a further study into the voice would demonstrate how the shape of the passage through which the sound wave passes modifies the quality of the tone, and as quality manifests feeling in expression with the voice, so in a terribly literary sense every tone of the voice does produce a picture in every human soul within reach of its sound. This is one of the most important reasons for urging upon moral and religious teachers a study of the use of the voice in expression.

The wrong use of the vocal instrument brings about physical deterioration and disease, and for this reason it is imperative that every speaker should know what is a wrong use of the voice, but in case the body was strong enough to stand the strain of unnatural abnormal use would there then be any object to study vocal expression? Yes, as I have said, the strongest reasons. In speaking to an audience the effort is to convince the hearers through truth; the ideas expressed by the words are of a definite character; they are chosen for their adaptability to convey certain impressions, and for the association with them of certain definite feelings, which if realized and felt by the individuals of the audience will move to the desired course of action.

In written thought if the words are well chosen, the author may trust to the universality of the instinct of language, and be certain, that all things being equal, the thought expressed in the words will arouse the natural emotion which belongs to the thought; but in spoken language, not only is the logical part of the thought manifested in the words, but also feeling in the voice, for the very sound of the voice conveys and awakens feeling, and the untrained speaker can never be certain of arousing any certain conviction, as he can never tell just what the voice is doing.

If the management of the voice is so bad that because of constriction of the passage only one quality, and hence only one feeling, is expressed, no matter what the nature of the idea, then contradiction, insincerity, superficiality, even hypocrisy, are the impressions intuitively realized by the audience, and although reason may accept the words, man is not moved to act when the intuitive truth is not consistent with demonstrated truth, and so audience after audience is convinced, but not convicted.

This is not a fancy. It will bear thorough analysis and discussion, and the more deeply investigated the more overwhelming will be the evidence of the truth of what I have said. How will voice training make it possible to control expression of feeling, may be asked, and the instinct for truthful expression become effective? If working naturally, God and Nature work with us; if in perverted habit we have all Nature to work against. There is nothing the Christian worker in every department needs more to-day than a thorough and fundamental knowledge of the principles of expression through voice.

God will change and beautify our voices, and manifest Himself by them if we obey his law written on our bodies. We have no promise that He will while we are in actual disobedience.

Boston.

BIBLE READING ON GIVING, OR PAYING, IN THE W. C. T. U.

BY MRS. A. S. K. BURTON.

Prov. 11:24: "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, and it tendeth to poverty."

It certainly seems as if God had made a law that in order to keep knowledge we must impart it. The preacher must preach each truth studied or lose nalf its force. The Sunday-school teacher who faithfully and prayerfully prepares to teach the lesson misses the best of it if prevented from teaching. The believer must tell to others the riches of grace experienced or become barren in soul. The whole church must be active to impart blessings, or wither and die. And the local union must work and give,—or die. If a union yields to temptation and says, "We are so few we cannot pay into the treasuries of the state, district and county any dues, because we need all our money at home," it is virtually sentencing itself to death; so if for no other reason, I would urge upon every society prompt payment of dues, for the sake of "self-preservation."

"Hear the word of the Lord" in Prov. 11:25, 26: "The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself."

And in Isa. 32: 8: "The liberal deviseth liberal things, and by liberal things shall he stand;" II Cor. 9: 6, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully, shall reap also bountifully;" then answer, "What can the union that pays nothing expect but extinction?" No society, however feeble and straitened it may be, should argue that "prudence dictates that the little in its treasury be retained for home use," and that "the state and other treasuries cannot need its dues so much as the poor local union needs its little all," for money, and toil, and talent are nothing without God's blessing, so far as ability to spread the blessings of the kingdom, or to retain the enjoyment of blessings possessed are concerned; for obedience to God is the condition of having His blessing upon our labors and plans, and one of his commands is, Matt. 10:8, "Freely ye have received, freely give." And "Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord, that delighteth greatly in his commandments. His seed shall be mighty upon the earth; the generation of the upright shall be blessed. Wealth and riches shall be in his house, and his righteousness endureth forever."

Our local membership dues are to us and our work what the "atonement money" of the Israelites was to them. Ex. 30. And the Lord spake unto Moses saying, "When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel after their number, then shall they give every man a ransom for his soul unto the Lord when thou numberest them, that there be no plague among them when thou numberest them. This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary," a trifle more than a half dollar of our money. "Every one that passeth among them that are numbered, from twenty years old and above, shall give an offering to the Lord. The rich shall not give more and the poor shall not give less than half a shekel when they give an offering unto the Lord to make an atonement for your souls." This equal sum of "ransom money" kept the people in remembrance that in God's sight all souls were equal in value. It was a constant reminder that all were sinful and in equal need of God's mercy and forgiveness. This ransom money was paid once a year, and Moses was commanded to "appoint" it for the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, which "service" was a daily ministration of burning offerings, lights and incense, the necessary expense of which was met by this "atonement fund," and was a daily acknowledgment of the sins of all, and the need all had of mercy and forgiveness.

When from tent door or daily task in the field, the Israelite, looking up, beheld the column of incense smoke rising he must be reminded of the memorial fund, its meaning and his own part in it,—equal bondmen to sin, equally ransomed by God's mercy, equal sharers in the memorial fund. Other offerings or taxes being by "tenths," of course different in amount according to wealth.

What the "memorial," or ransom, was to the Israelites, the membership fee is to us, and what the "tabernacle" in the wilderness was to them, the National W. C. T. U. is to us. They were journeying from Egyptian bondage to the "Promised Land." We are being led out from the Egyptian darkness that in the past held woman in bondage, into a bright "promised land" of equality in the home, the church, the government and society. And right over the "tabernacle" of the National Union is the "pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night," that shows us when to stand and when to march.

The work of the National officers is to keep the lights and the incense burning, and if they do this, the memorial fund, which is the aggregate of individual memberships, must not fail. Every woman of us has a vital, personal interest in this daily ministration. Should it cease, the "pillar of fire and cloud" would forsake the "tabernacle" and we could not find our way to the "promised land."

As even Caleb and Joshua could not go on alone and enter Canaan, so to-day, all womankind must move on together to enter our Canaan. And, though there are women who "hanker for the flesh-pots" of the past, and murmur against the movement that is taking us away from them into a state of personal responsibility, the duty of each one is to faithfully pay her "ransom fee" and keep the memorial fund good. As enemies were between Israel and Canaan, so enemies stand between woman and her rightful estate.

Their enemies were overcome by the united advance of Israel. So the enemies of woman's emancipation may be overcome by our united host of white-ribboners, but not by any of us singly or in "squads." And as the movement of Israel toward the "promised land" was more for posterity and humanity's sake than their own, so our W. C. T. U. "movement" is more for the good of posterity and humanity than for our own selves. Yet I believe the most of us would prefer even our present position, "midway between Egypt and Canaan," to Egypt's bondage.

The "offerings" on the "altar" of daily ministration are the consecrated, devoted lives of women, "consumed" in service to humanity—which is the altar. The constantly burning light is the teaching given through our work; and our leaders, by constant study, trim the lamps and keep the light clear and the flame steady. The Israelites had "scouts" and "pickets" to go before the hosts, and so have we,—our organizers, of whom Mary C. Leavitt, our "round-the-world" missionary, is the chief.

These priests, Levites and scouts, and their families, must be fed and clothed while they work, and to meet those needs we must look to other sources of supply than the "memorial fund." But that fund should be first secured. It is our personal ransom from heathenism. It marks us on the record as among the "new Israel." To neglect that is to straggle behind the marching host, and to be in danger of being forgotten by our people because not numbered with them, and of being picked up by Israelites or Edomites.

To the "tents" of those who have means, and the "free-will offerings" which those who are able, and some, indeed, who are not able, so freely give, are we indebted for the means of doing many of the good works which are done by our noble organization.

In Exodus, twenty-fifth and thirty-fifth chapters, we read of the "free-will offerings" to build the tabernacle, and of the work of the "wise hearted women," and in the thirty-eighth chapter, in the midst of the mention of the "free-will offerings" is another reference to the "numbering offerings." "And the silver of them that were numbered of the congregation was an hundred talents, and a thousand, seven hundred and three score and fifteen shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; a bekah for every man, that is, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary for every one that went to be numbered, from twenty years old and upward, for six hundred thousand, and three thousand and five hundred and fifty men." "And of the hundred talents of silver, were cast the sockets of the sanctuary, and the sockets of the vail; an hundred sockets of the hundred talents, a talent for a socket."

May we not say that in the "sanctuary" of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which God is building to his glory, and the redemption of womanhood from the curse of bondage, which lust, in the fallen state of mankind has placed upon her, every "local union" is a socket of silver (Ex. 36: 36) into which is set a pillar of this sanctuary? If the "sockets" are removed, the "pillars" are not upheld, and the tabernacle falls. To preserve these "sockets" that the "pillars" may support the building, and to maintain the memorial fund, and perpetuate the daily ministrations, each member must make a conscience of "dues," each local treasurer must be prompt and exact in remitting, first to the county, district or state treasurer, so that she can remit to the state treasurer and she to the national treasurer promptly.

Remembering that "He that withholdeth corn the people shall curse," Prov. 11:26, and that "corn" is food, bread, life, and that Jesus said, John 6:63, "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life," and Matt. 10:8, "Freely ye have received, freely give," let us ask ourselves if we dare to withhold from those who are mentally and spiritually famished for want of it, this grain and bread of religious and scientific truth that have come to us, through the agency of the W. C. T. U.?

The famished ones may not realize their need, or know where to seek supply. Who are they? The voters who go on blindly voting freedom of the streets to that outlaw robber and wholesale murderer—the liquor traffic. The parents who are transmitting to their children alcoholized and tobacco and opium narcotized brain cells. The young men and women who are blindly hurrying to the gates of marriage, to follow in their footsteps. The children who need now to be taught why alcohol, tobacco, and opium are deadly. We must do all we can to give the "corn" to these, and all who need it, or in the near future a demoralized society will curse us and our homes and children.

To us, in a preëminent degree, is committed the duty and honor of preaching the word of emancipation of woman from the thralldom of "prejudice which is so commonly mistaken for principle." And near every local union are women in castles of custom and prisons of despair, dying for want of this word. Before they can come to us, we must go to them. Many will push the truth from them, having been told that it is poison. But we must keep trying to reach them.

Sometime they will taste and learn that the food is good. They will sit with us and learn. They will kneel with us and pray. They will be "numbered" with us and help to maintain the "memorial fund" to furnish silver for "sockets." And many of these, thus rescued from the narrow walls of "self," will become "givers of bread," and may feed scores, and hundreds, and thousands, whom we, personally, would never have reached.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays!—Lowell.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A. AMES. ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn.—Proverbs 29: 2.

Every subject's duty is the king's, but Every subject's soul is his own.—Shakespeare.

THE W. C. T. U. EXHIBIT AT PARIS.

We had hoped that Mrs. Nichols would find time to give our readers a report of this great work, but as she does not seem able to do so, we make it out as well as possible from her report to the World's Union. Such a second-hand report must, of course, lose much of the picturesque interest of one made by an eye witness, yet it cannot fail to impress every one with the difficulty as well as the importance of the undertaking. Women in America with helpful surroundings, find it hard enough to work up an exhibit in county or state fair, what then must have been the difficulty of such an undertaking in a foreign land, with officials slow to recognize the value of this evidence of woman's progress in other lands, and not inclined to give this innovation on established customs much aid or encouragement. It needed all the faith and courage of a W. C. T. U. woman, such a woman as Mrs. Nichols is acknowledged by all to be, to push on the work, where every movement was regarded with suspicion by those in authority, who, if they understood what the word "temperance" means, were opposed to its teachings. Even friends were discouraged, and that strong heart, Hannah Whitall Smith, wrote: "The obstacles seem insurmountable." But grace, grit and gumption did surmount them, and the work accomplished stands a monument to what can be accomplished by patient persistence, backed by consecrated common sense.

From the first, Mrs. Margaret Bright Lucas showed great interest, and promised coöperation by sending a helper representing the British Woman's Temperance Association. This promise was made good by the appointment of Miss Emilie Pearce to represent the association. She was admirably adapted for the work, speaking French and German fluently, being "physically and mentally tireless," as Mrs. Nichols describes her, and no amount of fatigue could deter her from pushing to a successful issue the details of any part of the work. In July a welcome addition was made to the force by the arrival of Miss Darby, daughter of the secretary of the Peace Society of England. The Peace societies showed the greatest interest in this exhibit, recognizing in it a powerful auxiliary to the forces that make for peace.

Mr. Bailly Blanchard, resident representative of the United States Commission in Paris, was an unfailing friend, and his unvarying courtesy and cheerful encouragement, when failure seemed inevitable, prevented that dire calamity.

Application for space was made to the United States Commissioner of the Exposition, with the intention of having the exhibit of the World's Union and of the American Union both in the American section. This was found impracticable owing to the lack of space. The National union, therefore, was housed in the American section, while space for the World's union was secured by Miss de Broen and Hannah Whitall Smith, on the Esplanade des Invalides. It was literally "space," a delightful situation, cool and shady, but with no building. This necessitated the erection of a Pavilion, at large expenditure of time, tact and patience, as well as money, and throughout the season nearly doubled the work of attendance by having the exhibits widely separated from each other. It may have had its advantages, as probably more visited the two exhibits than would have visited one.

With the space for the World's W. C. T. U., had been given the privilege of selling drinks belonging to the exhibit, and a café had been arranged at one side of the Pavilion where all sorts of temperance drinks were sold at reasonable prices. The café was in charge of a competent Swiss woman, who spoke French and German, as well as English, and was thus well fitted to attend to such a cosmopolitan crowd as thronged the Pavilion. The special object of the café was not to make money, although it was self-supporting, but to serve as a model for cafés, where non-alcoholic drinks only were sold. Connected with the café was the manufacture of soda water with syrups, in machines kindly loaned by the patentees, Chinnery & Sons, of London, and the arrangements for filtering water, which was given away to all visitors.

Large quantities of literature in English had been shipped from the United States, and some leaflets and journals in several other languages. These had been donated by the Woman's Temperance Publication Association, the National Temperance Society, and the superintendents of departments in the National W. C. T. U. Very soon after the regular work began, it was obvious that there was greater need of supplies of French literature than any other, and much time and money were devoted to securing the translating and printing of that which would be acceptable and appropriate.

One pleasant little episode during the Exposition was the entertainment of the United States Marine Corps at the Pavilion for tea by the workers, assisted by friends. This was done to give the young men a bit of American home life, and to show appreciation of the exemplary manner in which they had conducted themselves. Many of the members were total abstainers, and several of those who had begun to drink wine in Paris, took the pledge. A notable event was the reception given at the Pavilion to our round-the-world missionary, Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt, on her way back to England from the International Conference, in the interest of social morals, held at Geneva, Switzerland. Friends of temperance from England were present. The doors were closed to the general public, and luncheon was served to the guests of the day. Mrs. Leavitt entertained the friends for nearly two hours, with an account of her travels and work, touching upon adventures that showed the dangers of her udertaking, and presenting occasional glimpses of the trials and difficulties under which she had wrought. No religious meetings were allowed within the Exposition limits, but after Mrs. Leavit finished speaking, all joined in singing a sweet hymn suggested by her, and the thanks of all hearts were voiced in prayer by Dr. Thurber. A pleasant incident was the meeting of Mrs. Leavitt with the Swiss attendant at the café of the Pavilion, Susanne, who was an enthusiastic W. C. T. U. woman, and who had become interested in the work by attending one of Mrs. Leavitt's meetings in New Zealand,

Many representatives of the press visited our exhibit and took copious notes for French and other European journals. Pastors and priests came and gladly took away packages of literature offered them. Vintners also came, anxious to learn of the work which threatened to interfere with their own, and learning of the use of unfermented juice promised to give its manufacture a trial. Our Japanese friend, Sho Nemoto, took a deep interest in the work, secured a fine exhibit from Japan, and on his way home from America, stopped in Paris and was a frequent and welcome visitor at the pavilion.

So busy had the women been in their self-forgetful labors that they had not thought of securing prizes. But the jury of the Social Economy Exposition, after repeated visits and thorough investigation, awarded it the highest prize, a gold medal; the points on which the award was made were: the general work of the W. C. T. U.; its Publication Association; its hygienic teachings from a scientific standpoint and its Temperance Café, with non-alcoholic drinks, healthful and palatable.

The moral effect of the exhibit was marked and enduring. Many pronounced it an oasis in the desert, the only witness that stood for God and things sacred in that great Babel. Its closed doors on Sunday when all others were open, preached perpetually of Sabbath observance. On an average one thousand persons a day passed through this building and were taught by word and by the printed page, the lessons inculcated by the W. C. T. U. The people of every European country, of both Americas and the Orient, were represented in the throngs which passed through the Pavilion; literature in nine languages was distributed continually and of the millions of pages thus given, little, if any, was thrown away. Mrs. Nichols says she could count on her fingers those who declined to accept the gift of literature. It was a time of broad seed sowing whose harvest will be fully reaped only in eternity.

PROHIBITION CONVENTIONS.

At this season of the year many state Prohibition conventions are being held; a glance at them may show the trend of temperance sentiment. It is impossible to describe all; let one stand as a representative of its class. As the Illinois convention is the only one we have attended, we take it as an example.

The first pointer is the large attendance: eight years ago the first state convention of Illinois was held in the same city, Bloomington, in a small hall, with an hundred and fifty delegates, now over eight hundred delegates were reported by the enrollment committee, and the convention crowded the largest hall in the city. Bloomington is head center of high license and opposition to the prohibition movement, and its newspapers are wont to have nothing but jibes and sneers for us, but the size of this convention and the "eminent respectability" of its personnel evidently awed these papers into good behavior. The only complaint we heard was from a cigar stand whose proprietor was greatly disgusted with his poor trade—"never saw such a political convention before, can't sell them anything in my line; just look at that crowd of men; there's at least fifty of them and not a single one of them smoking." A reporter remarked: "This convention lacks one thing I never saw lacking in any other political convention, spittoons."

This lack may be accounted for by the presence of ladies. They were found in most of the delegations, coming there just as their brothers came, elected delegates from prohibition clubs and sent, not because they were ladies, but because they were recognized by their constituency as the most level-headed members of the club, and so best fitted to be its representatives. There was little of the sentimental reference to women as women, no endorsement of the W. C. T. U., but, what was much better, the convention did what the W. C. T. U. asked. When Mrs. Rounds asked it to instruct its chairman and secretary to sign the World's petition in the name of that great convention, every man and woman rose to signify hearty acquiescence in that request. A like brotherly response met our request for an expression in favor of the enforcement and strengthening of the scientific temperance law, and this was made one of the planks of the platform.

The naturalness of the position of women in this convention was noticeable; as before mentioned women were in most of the delegations, in one congressional district, and that one lying wholly in Chicago, a lady was chairman; women were upon the platform committee, were elected to serve on the state central committee, and a woman was nominated for a state office.

Another significant feature was the presence of a large number of farmers, nearly a fourth of the delegates. Of course there was some of the "city farmers" to be found in every convention, but there was a large number of the simon pure articles, hard-headed men who during the long winter evenings read, and as they follow the plow think, on the great problems that confront the nation. Their presence in such numbers shows that they are thinking to good purpose, they are beginning to realize that their heaviest burdens of taxation are imposed by the liquor traffic through the expenses it renders necessary for courts, jails, poor-houses and asylums for its victims. They are awaking to the fact that high license is a big swindle of the farmers, as all the license money goes to the cities, and the farmers foot the biggest part of the tax bill resulting therefrom. The presence of so many farmers in the convention made itself felt in the platform adopted, and will undoubtedly tell on the next election.

Another pointer to be noted in all the Prohibition platforms adopted is the widening out to take in the prominent topics now before the American people. Prohibitionists can no longer be charged with having only one idea; whether this broadening shall, as some fear, lessen the intensity with which they hold to the main issue remains to be seen. We believe that this party may say, "Nothing that affects humanity is foreign to me;" those things that tend to the uplift of humanity have a rightful place in the platform of a party which stands for the rights of humanity to the unhindered development of all its powers.

The platform adopted by this convention acknowledged God as the source of all rightful power, declared in strongest terms for state and national prohibition, for the abolition of sex distinction as a condition of suffrage, for scientific temperance instruction, for such a revision of the tariff as shall remove the burden of taxation from the necessaries of life and place it upon the luxuries and shall raise no more revenue than is needed for the economic carrying on of government; for the limitation of individual as well as the corporate ownership of land; for the Australian ballot, the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, the suppression of trusts, and the enactment and enforcement of such Sabbath laws as shall give to workers one day's rest in seven.

The convention also passed a resolution asking the commissioners of the Columbian Exposition to forbid the sale of liquor on the grounds.

Although no exciting campaign is on in Illinois, it being an "off year" there, these Prohibitionists testified to their appreciation of their principles by raising a campaign fund of over thirty-two hundred dollars. They also gave substantial testimony to their appreciation of the Prohibition press and temperance literature. Illinois is in a fair way of being sown knee deep with it.

When it became evident that the convention could not complete its work in time for the delegates to take the regular train north, the Chicago & Alton road promptly placed at their disposal a special train of five cars; which brought us home at the rate of thirty-eight miles an hour.

THE MILLS-GRIFFIN DEBATE.

Farwell Hall, Chicago, was well filled Saturday night to listen to the arguments of these champions of the Prohibition and Republican Parties. Uriah Copp, presided, and on the platform were Dr. Herrick Johnson, who opened the meeting with prayer, Dr. E. P. Goodwin, Dr. Bolton, Dr. Noble, Rev. M. N. Haynes, Hon. J. B. Hobbs, Rev. J. W. Allen, Miss Pugh, Mrs. Buell and Mrs. Emmons. Mills opened with a thirty-five minute speech; Griffin followed with one of forty-five minutes, and Mills closed with a ten-minute summing up.

Mills made a cool, dispassionate, unanswerable argument along the line of the political power of the saloon. There are three forces alien to good government:

1. Those engaged in public service for private profit, for example, gas companies and railways, which, to carry out their ends, must often control government, and when thus controling it, there is no protection for the people.

2. Politicians who are in politics for revenue only.

3. Professional criminals, those outside of penitentiaries who ought to be inside, but we cannot put them there. These men have more power in politics than the honest men of the community. The club room, the training ground of this class is the saloon where the vices of men are made the subject of traffic.

These three classes work to each other's hand; the monopolist who wishes a franchise must have votes to procure it. It was said in New York that the only way by which the Broadway franchise could be secured was by buying aldermen; votes are needed to elect purchasable officers. Politicians wish office for what there is in it, hence are for sale to the highest bidder. The criminal classes want protection and are ready to sell votes to whoever will give it. There is always a vote to sell the criminal class, the slum with its purchasable vote always to be disposed of at the saloon; the monopolist and the pothouse politician are always ready to buy.

Nearly equally divided as the great parties are, neither can afford to lose this saloon-controlled vote; banish the monopolists, the distillers, the brewers, and the saloon from the Republican Party and the Democrats would surely beat it; banish this element from the Democratic party and victory will be with the Republicans. Thus neither party can take up the temperance question, however thoroughly convinced the best men in either may be of the criminality and dangerous character of the saloon. A party must not be judged by the best men in it, so long as they do not control it. There are splendid men on this platform; if all Republicans were like them, the saloon would go; but they have not a feather's weight when put in the balance against the gamblers and the saloon element which will have its way at the ballot box or break up the party. If the Republican party can not bring its strength to bear against the liquor traffic now, when can it do so? When it can afford to lose the liquor vote and still beat the Democrats, but not till then. All signs show that this time is not approaching.

Time was called and Mr. Griffin took the floor. He entirely ignored Mr. Mills' argument, and rested his case on a series of assertions sustained by no proof, though to the minds of most of his audience they were far from being axioms. First, all the prohibitory work has been accomplished through the Republican party. The Prohibition party has done no good but an immense amount of harm—it has stopped the work of moral suasion; has embezzled the name of the cause it misrepresents, has antagonized large bodies of temperance people, the anti-woman suffragists, the boys in blue and the black men (we wonder how) and the tariff protectionists. The great mass of the people have fixed convictions on more than one subject, Prohibitionists have but one idea and no way of carrying that out, hence they virtually demand that men must give up everything for nothing.

His main point was that the Republican party was a big party and growing faster than all other parties put together and the Prohibition party was a little party and constantly growing less. The third party, as he delighted to call it, must necessarily be anti-Republican and an auxiliary to the Democratic party; it must work harm to the Republicans and therefore has no right to live. He was particularly sarcastic in regard to its size, "a baby twenty-one years old."

As soon as public sentiment is strong enough in any northern state to enforce prohibition, the Republican party will take it up. Till that time comes the only proper way is to carry on the work by moral suasion, get men to sign the pledge, put a prohibition pledge over every man's mouth, and the thing will be accomplished. Now seventy-five per cent of all the men and over half of the women of the nation drink and of course prohibition cannot prosper.

Mills in closing called attention to the fact that Griffin had not answered one of his arguments regarding the political power of the saloon, riddled some of his opponent's assertions and disproved his figuring. In reply to the sneer that Prohibition was a twenty-one-year old baby still in the cradle, he reminded his audience that the lives of parties and even industries were not measured by the same time standard as that of man; the iron industry was two hundred and fifty years old in this county, yet was considered by our friend as still an "infant industry" which must be protected. And as for the Prohibition party growing smaller, if that were true it is only following the example of the anti-saloon wing of the Republican party which has grown small by degrees and beautifully less till now our honored friend is practically al. there is of it.

He closed with a striking historical parallel between the political situation during the '40's and '80's. Next week we may have something more to say concerning some of Mr. Griffith's assertions.

Special Difficulties.

PLEDGE.—"I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including Wine and Cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same."

QUERY.—Will the vote of Nebraska necessarily adopt one or the other of the pending amendments? May they not both be defeated, and the constitution be left as it is? We submitted this question to Mrs. Jennie F. Holmes, corresponding secretary of Nebraska. This is her answer:

Both of the amendments may be defeated. The constitution requires that an amendment to be adopted must have a majority of all the votes cast at that election, not a majority of the votes cast on that question.

There will be perfect unity of action of all the temperance organizations in the state, and we hope to conduct the most thorough campaign possible. Victory is ours if we can secure the financial help needed.

QUERY.—Can you suggest some new and reasonable amusement for the Y's?

ANSWER.—It seems to us that an interesting way of making the evening's talk of young people amount to something would be to have a game easily enough constructed, by which they should be divided into two classes, and seek to determine who are the eight or ten most distinguished persons in the state in which they live, or in the nation, or in the world. Let them first take those who have passed away, and vote after the names are suggested, each suggesting a name. Later on those who are their contemporaries. This will awaken curiosity, increase knowledge, and set their minds toward high ideals.

QUERY.—Why do you advocate the canning of fresh grape-juice and pledge against cider? Why is not grape-juice as harmful and dangerous as apple-juice?

ANSWER.—Because grape-juice does not contain enough sugar to produce alcoholic fermentation. If you wish to make wine out of the juice of most grapes you must add sugar; apple-juice turns into hard cider without any additional ingredients. Grape-juice, allowed to stand open, turns into an unpleasant tasting liquid, non-intoxicating, hence, there is no danger of its being drunk in that state, nor any difficulty in drawing the line, as between sweet cider and hard cider.

QUERY.—What is the work of the Protective Agency for women and children in Chicago?

ANSWER.—It is to befriend the unbefriended, to furnish strength for the weak. Many women who would go to law to secure their wages unjustly withheld, etc., have not the courage, and the backing of a society like this made up of influential and capable women forms a moral basis of incalculable value to the great class of unprotected. Full particulars of its work can be learned by sending stamp for its Annual Report to Mrs. Charlotte Holt, 70 State street, Chicago.

QUERY.—If prohibition is resubmitted in Kansas can women vote on the question?

ANSWER.—Women have only the municipal ballot in Kansas, and therefore cannot vote on the question of "re-submission." But this makes little difference, for we do not believe there will ever be any question of "re-submission" submitted to Kansas voters.

The Watch-Tower.

I pray the prayer of Plato old:
God make thee beautiful within,
And let thine eyes the good behold
In everything save sin! —Whittier.

***

A brotherly heart sends these words of cheer and uplift: "We are watching and praying for you. We believe the women are God's host, inspired and trained for this emergency. It is no strife of tongues. It is the blood-warm mother heart in conflict with the cold core of crime."

***

An esteemed correspondent writes: "Within a few weeks I have been attracted to the use, in two articles in one paper, of the proverb, 'Like apples of gold in pictures of silver.' Long ago, when a school girl, I found in reading the French version the word 'baskets' substituted for 'pictures.' The same change has been made in the recent revision of one English version. 'A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in baskets of silver.' Prov. 25:11."

***

The Press Association of Virginia invites the New England Woman's Press Association to visit the Old Dominion, that thus those who mold public opinion at the North and the South, may be brought into friendly and sympathetic relations. The excursion occupying the time, June 7—19, will include an ocean trip to Norfolk, visits to Richmond (via James River) Lynchburg, Washington, Old Point Comfort, and other points of historic and picturesque interest. The party will be entertained publicly and privately by the press and municipalities.

***

THE UNION SIGNAL'S fair young daughter, the Oak and Ivy Leaf, for June, is a special Flower Mission number, so bright and beautiful that On Duty longed to inclose one in each copy of this paper sent out. Jennie Casseday sends a loving message, and a poem so sweet you must all read it; Harriet Francene Crocker contributes another poem fully as sweet. Myra Goodwin Planz tells the story of Nellie's Rose Party, and flower missioners, North, South, East and West, tell of their loving service. Taken altogether the number is a gem, and reflects great credit on its editor, Miss Sudduth. She has prepared this number with especial care as a tribute to Miss Casseday, whose fiftieth birthday is June 9.

***

Mrs. Josephine E. Butler, in the last number of The Dawn, pays an affectionate tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Margaret Bright Lucas, of London, of whom she says: "She was at the first Geneva Congress, and at Genoa in 1880, and at the Antwerp Conference in 1885. Her last appearance at the Ladies National Association meetings was last summer at the annual meeting at Exeter Hall. She came in rather late bringing Mrs. Leavitt. She looked older than before her long illness, but very handsome still with a serene patience in her face, quietly bearing her infirmities. We little thought then that she was so near the end of her useful and beautiful life. Mrs. Tanner describes her spirit and power in the midst of the Anti-Corn Law Agitation. She was then radiantly beautiful and full of energy for the repeal of those unjust laws, as she was afterwards for temperance and purity."

***

A beautiful memorial of a beautiful life is that just received of Julia M. Thomas. A full-paged portrait gives her sweetest expression; facing it is Helen Hunt Jackson's poem, "In Memoriam." Then follow appreciative tributes from The Home Journal, many New York papers, THE UNION SIGNAL, The Woman's Tribune of Washington, The Woman's Journal of Boston, Sorosis, the Illinois Woman's Alliance; from Miss Willard, Mrs. Lathrap, Mrs. Downs, and other W. C. T. U. leaders. The sketches of Miss Thomas, by Mrs. Croly (Jennie June) and Alma Calder Johnson, portray a character whose mingled strength and sweetness have seldom been excelled. "Studying, thinking, writing, working her way steadily to the front, with the help and sympathy of the sister who was seldom absent from her side, she was naturally drawn to the great metropolis. Here the privations of the poor, the privileges of the rich, the trammels of custom, the ignored laws of nature, the repressed faculties, the unwholesome conditions, the ignorance of many, the seeming indifference of all, was a revelation to her ardent soul. Henceforth the practice of her art, elocution, as an amusement merely, was thrown aside," and she gave her whole soul to bettering the conditions that so appalled her. In full, bounding life she was stricken down. "I must get well," she exclaimed, "I have so much to do!" Yet later when it seemed clear that the end was near, she prayed, "Dear God, Thou hast given me wonderful messages to Thy people, and I would love to live and continue to be Thy messenger, but I lay all at Thy feet. Thy will be done." And thus she passed from our sight into that "fullness of life" which Christ bestows upon His own. ON DUTY.

News from the Field.

MARYLAND.

"SYLLABLES GOVERN THE WORLD."

High license is on our statute books $250 high, a slight contrast to the $1,000 contemplated by some sanguine admirers of the alluring phrase. But we are to "go slow;" by "patient steps" we are to "approach gradually the higher figures that will be a glorious thing for the state," and "it is possible for saloons to so diminish in number as to finally disappear altogether and, therefore, the most conscientious Prohibitionist can consistently endorse high license."

Wisdom, pathos and eloquence unbounded were brought to bear upon the Legislature in disposing of the bill. Many interested ones "sat up all night" in their zeal and enthusiasm. One ardent "friend of the poor man" opposed a $400 license, because it was "in the interest of an aristocratic monopoly against the rights of the yeomanry of the country, and neither voice nor vote should go to the subjugation of an honest man, trying to make an honest living." Another, who had "the honor" to represent a ward containing between three and four hundred saloons, "defended their keepers on the great principles of the rights of men," while still another would "never vote to break up the business of any poor but honest man." Altogether we had interesting reading, strongly suggestive, of course, to the well-read Prohibitionist, of last year's almanac.

Our progress thus far is beautiful. Slowly, patiently, gradually, we are approaching the disappearance of the saloon, only 2,100 of the "honest yeomanry" having had their applications for license filed in the city of Baltimore in the few weeks the commissioners have been at work, and but 500 more, it is expected, will have theirs filed! The names of the applicants, as published in the dailies, according to the new law, are suggestive of many things, and the unusual and unpronounceable character of a large proportion provokes the query as to what country or countries the yeomanry belong, for whom we have legislated so tenderly.

In response to a petition presented by a committee of the state Prohibition Party, the license commissioners issued blanks for those desiring to protest against the granting of licenses to any applicants. One hundred remonstrances had been filed up to May 13, with about fifty more to be filed.

The eager and unblushing arguments for license for revenue, which prevailed during the latter part of the campaign, to the utter exclusion of all moral considerations, was a revelation to some of the ministerial friends of the bill, and a number, I am told, are now to be found in the ranks of the "be ye separate."

Among the good works of the legislature were the following bills: The one for raising the age of consent and the cigarette bill, presented by the W. C. T. U.; a bill abolishing pool-rooms, and numerous local measures for the prohibition and restriction of the liquor traffic. The local option precinct bill, submitted by the Prohibition Party, was lost in the city delegation.

The bill prohibiting pool selling went through triumphantly. The manner in which this bill was secured, after having failed two years ago, is valuable as an object lesson. When it had passed the senate, and was in the house for a second reading, the Society for the Suppression of Vice called a meeting in Baltimore, to take measures to urge upon the house the passage of the bill. The meeting, composed of representative men, was large and enthusiastic, and determined that "the pool-room must go;" it was evil and evil only, and must not exist. Various strong resolutions were passed, and a committee of twenty-five appointed to go to the legislature and urge the passage of the bill. Among the resolutions was one earnestly requesting the Society for the Suppression of Vice to use its utmost efforts to secure the rigid enforcement of the law, if enacted. The mayor of the city, an active and zealous advocate of the high-license bill, "lent his influence to prevent pool selling, and the disgrace which attaches to our fair city as a result of the legal protection thrown around a business which saps the foundation of character and leaves its victims moral and financial wrecks." Strange that the pestilence and the plague should require such diverse sanitary measures in their treatment! It is almost unnecessary to add that the press of the city urged the passage of the bill with earnestness and ability.

Other victories must be noted, one in Carroll county for the home against the saloon, reported in one of the Baltimore dailies under the heading "Women carried the day," and another of similar character for Kent county. Mrs. S. H. Martin, one of the able veterans in our work, writes regarding the former: "We were on the field of battle all day. The men who worked for the liquor interests worked hard. They were greatly surprised to see women on the ground, having expected that we would keep in the lunch-room, but it was the homes of the women that were in danger, and they wanted to see the men before they voted. Good work was done by all the ministers of the place, and Mr. Frank Brown, late postmaster of Baltimore city, did admirable service." Several meetings were held the night before the election, Mrs. Martin being one of the speakers both on this and other occasions during the campaign.

The results of the election in Kent county are most gratifying. The contest was license versus local option, which had been the law of the county for some time. Mrs. M. E. Brown, of Chestertown, a good and tried enthusiast in the work, writes that she distributed about ten thousand leaflets, the best to be had; that thirty different kinds of posters, giving valuable information, were put up in various places, and that she had twenty-one feet of canvas covered with posters placed across a gateway at the polls in Chestertown.

The annual meeting of the State Temperance Alliance held in Baltimore recently is regarded as one of the best yet held. Addresses were made by Hon. J. B. Stewart, a member of Congress from Georgia, by Hon. E. A. Morse, of Massachusetts, also a member of the present Congress, by Rev. G. H. Hick, of New York, secretary of the National Temperance Society, by Bishop Thomas Bowman, of the M. E. Church, and by various members of the Alliance. The W. C. T. U. also took part in the meetings, and in the devotional services. Mrs. Anna B. Thomas, editor of the White Ribbon Herald, the state organ, presented the claims of that paper, and also of THE UNION SIGNAL; and Mrs. Lake, corresponding secretary of the state union, gave a brief résumé of the work of the union, and then spoke of the great need of a new building for headquarters, and the importance of having it in the central part of the city, as a counter attraction to the saloons abounding there.

The quarterly meeting of the Baltimore city union in April was of unusual interest and value. To use the words of our stanch ally, the Baltimore Methodist, "By the grace of God we will kindle such a fire of indignation against the monstrous liquor traffic in Maryland that we will yet drive it out of the city and state." M. A. L.,

Special Correspondent.

KANSAS.

ZEPHYRS.

Spring elections are now over and the political machinery moves on as usual. I believe that in many places the vote of the women was a felt power, and although some of those who had held offices of honor and trust the past year were not reëlected, there were others elected in different places, and many more were elected on school boards than ever before. So far as I can learn, the verdict has been "well done" concerning the women's administrations.

Many W. C. T. U. district and county conventions have been held of late, but few reports have reached me. The first district met at Leavenworth, April 3 and 4; the fifth district at Manhattan, March 13 and 14; Cherokee county convened at Columbus, March 22; Crawford county at Pittsburg, February 26 and 27; Kingman, Labette and Wyandotte counties have each held spring conventions; others will follow soon.

The ninth convention of the sixth district was held at Downs, April 2 and 3. Attendance good, despite unfavorable weather. The district includes twenty-two counties. State organizer reported eight local and two counties organized since last convention, which was very encouraging. This was the banner district of the state last fall. Mrs. Grubb, National superintendent of foreign work, gave two stirring addresses to large audiences; also assisted in convention work. The district president having been recently elected state treasurer, consented to retain her district office until the annual convention. Among the resolutions adopted was one indorsing the National W. C. T. U., also one condemning the Russian government for cruelty to its political prisoners, and indorsing an appeal to the Czar to mitigate the horrors of the Siberian exiles. The superintendent of evangelistic work presented the course of study prepared by Dean Wright. She herself is taking the course and pleaded for its necessity for all W. C. T. U. women. As a result several are entering upon one of the prepared courses. The superintendent of juvenile work added largely to the interest of the evening sessions, with her youthful singers. She is well adapted to fill the place assigned to her.

A beautiful banner artistically wrought upon white silk, the work of the president, was then presented by her to the district in a very earnest and affecting speech, which was responded to by Mrs. Nellie Michener, of Beloit. Smith county now holds the banner, having had the greatest increase in membership since last convention. The convention was in every way a success, and the resubmission question was "given a back seat."

Jewell county convened at North Branch April 9 and 10, with a good attendance of members, and a large number of visitors; among these were many gentlemen, this unusual fact being accounted for in that the convention was held among the society of Friends, whose membership, both male and female, are loyal to the W. C. T. U. The "honorary" membership of this local union almost equals its voting members. May God hasten the day when all Christian denominations shall reach the same height! The "honoraries" entered freely into the discussions concerning our different departments of work, thus adding much to the interest of the meetings. The feature of the evening session was an older people's contest class, modeled after the Demorest plan. A solid silver W. C. T. U. pin was offered as a prize to the successful competitor, Mrs. Susan McKinney receiving the same. These contests are to be a permanent part of the county work, and I would heartily recommend the plan to others, as being not only a great educator, but of much value as a means of bringing out before the public our timid women, who could in this way overcome much of their diffidence to public speaking, and develop their talents, which have long been "hid in a napkin." Jewell county has the largest number of unions, and the largest membership in the sixth district, and as it borders on Nebraska, many ways are being devised to assist that state in its coming campaign for prohibition; for prohibition in Nebraska means also the better enforcement of the law in our own fair state.

Re-submissionists in Kansas are somewhat noisy, but liquor always develops that element, and when they claim that more liquor is sold in Kansas than when under the license system the statement is simply absurd, for if it were a fact why should the liquor dealers of other states who supply the liquors drank here be so very anxious to have our prohibitory law repealed. They are not noted for such self-sacrifice as this would involve. Though I have no doubt that much liquor is drank in private places, yet the temptation is not before our boys, and a generation is growing up that has never tasted and perhaps never even smelled liquor of any kind. "Snake bites" are not nearly so numerous as formerly, and "snakes in boots" are of very rare occurrence. A child in one of our primary schools in spelling his lesson came to the word "saloon," and was asked by the teacher to define it, which he could not do, having never seen one. Is not that something to be thankful for, that children of school age are not familiar enough with the word "saloon" to be able to tell what it means?

An interesting report comes from the Rossville union. Among other items it says that "as one of the results of their past year's work they count the increase in the vote of the women of that place; last year but sixteen women voted, this year there were seventy-five; twelve of them, alas! voted the whisky ticket. Rastall union, of Coffey county, held a gold medal contest at Emporia, March 28. The medal was awarded to Mr. Fred Yingling.

The W. C. T. U. of the fourth district met at El Dorado, May 1 and 2. The beautiful May day morning to Kansans has much significance, because upon that day, ten years ago, the prohibitory law heralded to our state and nation our freedom from the legalized sale of liquor. This year came together women from all parts of the district, ready for the duties of the hour. On the evening previous, we were favored with a Demorest medal contest from seven young ladies, brought by our president, Mrs. J. C. Haines, from Augusta, which work we consider one of our great educators for prohibition. The work of the morning was devoted to franchise and methods of work. A paper, concise and most helpful, was read by the state superintendent of franchise, Mrs. S. A. Thurston.

One hour was occupied in the discussion of methods, led by the state president, Mrs. Rastall. The familiar way in which she placed before us our great needs and the way to overcome our faults and surmount difficulties, can be best understood by those whose privilege it is to sit at her feet and learn.

In the evening we listened to her most interesting lecture which was alike helpful and entertaining. Papers were read before the convention on, "Franchise," by Mrs. S. A. Thurston; "Our Literature," by Mrs. E. V. Schriver, and "The Curse of Intemperance and the Sublimity of Temperance, by Mrs. Frances Rathburn. Of the resolutions passed on Friday a. m., one was as follows:

Resolved, That we will continue to work in harmony with the plans of the National and state unions, and carry out so far as possible the methods devised for thorough and successful work.

Question-box was conducted by the state president. Reports were received from eight superintendents.

MRS. S. S. WEATHERBY,

Special Correspondent.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

NEWS OF GOOD WORK.

Mrs. Barney arrived at Columbia April 10. She was met at the depot by Mr. C. D. Stanley, and taken to his home for her stay in the city. She spoke that night before the Sons of Temperance, and was cordially received. On the next day, she visited the penitentiary, jail, and guard house, and was allowed every facility for inspection. By his request Mr. J. N. Brooker, chairman of the board of directors for the penitentiary, met Mrs. Barney and assured her of his assistance in procuring needed reforms.

At night she delivered an address at the Gospel Tabernacle to an appreciative audience.

On the morning of the 12th she went to Charleston, where the earnest president of the local W. C. T. U., Mrs. L. M. Whitney, met our sister at the train and conducted her to the home of the treasurer, Mrs. McCowen, who pleasantly entertained the traveler. At 2 p. m. she visited the jail, where services were held with the prisoners. In the evening she talked at the W. C. T. U. room to an audience that filled the hall. The large opera house had been secured for Sunday night, and an enthusiastic audience greeted Mrs. Barney. The Charleston union, realizing the power for good of this noble worker, urged her to return for a course of Bible readings, and a conditional promise was given for next winter. Would that each National superintendent could visit our state and show the lines of work so that our people could see the symmetry of the W. C. T. U. as a whole. The visits of our sisters cheer our local workers with echoes from other fields, and we receive the stimulus of coöperation in a great and glorious work. MRS. J. M. NEBLETT, Cor. Sec. State W. C. T. U.

ILLINOIS.

LETTER TO FLOWER MISSION WORKERS.

I have promised some of the Flower Mission workers of our state that I would give, through THE UNION SIGNAL, directions for the observation of June 9. I most earnestly wish that each union in our state, whether or not the flower mission is included as a regular branch of its work, would devote this one day, June 9, to the distribution of flowers among the afflicted and imprisoned.

Let each union, no matter how small the community, make a careful list of all who may, in any way, be benefited by this visitation, and choose, as a visiting committee, those women of the union best adapted to gain gracious welcome to hearts as well as homes. Let each gift of flowers be accompanied by a card bearing a Scripture text; otherwise the significance of the gift will be lost. Make these visits as personal as possible, a ministration of heart as well as hand, and pray that God may add His blessing.

I would urge that all the unions in Illinois, which are located in the vicinity of jails, alms-houses, hospitals, reformatories or houses of detention of any kind, respond to the call to visit all such institutions on June 9, with flowers and carefully selected literature, temperance and religious, for distribution. Ask for flowers through the local papers, and if the demand is great, solicit further supplies from neighboring towns. Many country stations can, to this extent, at least, aid in the work of the flower mission. Secure beforehand the coöperation of all superintendents of prisons, jails, etc., and ask them to have the inmates assembled in their chapel at a stated hour. Miss Casseday, National superintendent, has prepared the following form of service for this occasion:

Opening hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," (sung to an old, familiar tune).

Prayer, closing with the Lord's Prayer, repeated in unison, in which ask all the inmates to join.

Reading of the Scripture texts prepared by the National superintendent for this service.

Address to the assembled inmates.

Distribution of flowers and carefully selected reading matter.

Singing of long meter doxology by all assembled.

Having previously learned the number of inmates, present to each one a bouquet with Scripture text attached and a pledge card. Aim to promote temperance sentiment by direct effort, as well as through evangelization. Let the visiting committee be composed of consecrated women who may be prepared to utter tender, helpful words at the bedsides of the sick, and to carry comfort to any struggling soul. In conclusion, I quote the following suggestion from Miss Casseday: "I would earnestly recommend for each of the prison hospitals the gift of a Bible roll, with a select page for each day of the month, hung in some conspicuous place. In the dreary hours of illness, or the weary hours of convalescence, the truth and invitations of the gospel may find a tender lodgment." This suggestion is applicable to all hospitals.

Supplies may be ordered at the following rates of Miss Gertrude Ferguson, 3208 Rudd Ave., Louisville, Ky.: Large text cards per thousand, $2.50; large text cards per hundred, twenty-five cents; Prison Day texts per dozen, ten cents.

These texts have been prayerfully chosen by Miss Casseday, and will be generally used, I hope. May something of the brightness, sweetness and light of the outside world be conveyed to the "shut-ins" by this gift of the flowers, and may they be led to look to Him who is the source of all light,—who, in the guise of the human, gave to the imprisoned world the grand revelation of divine love and mercy!

ELLA WRIGHT,
State Supt. Flower Mission.

COLES COUNTY CONVENTION.

The W. C. T. U. held its convention in the Congregational Church in Mattoon, April 23 and 24. There were present Mrs. L. S. Rounds, Mrs. Dr. Replogle, district president, Mrs. M. L. Harlan, county president, Mrs. Sheplor, president sixteenth district, Miss Clara Parrish, district organizer, three delegates from Charleston union, two from Hutton union, and one from Charleston Y. A new union was reported at Oakland, that had not yet gotten into running order.

Doubtless this county convention differed from the average county convention in only one thing, namely, the discouraged condition of the local union. The "faithful few" at this point have expressed themselves of late as tired of simply existing as a union.

Charleston reported a flourishing mission school. Hutton, a county union, reported that it had discontinued its meetings the past winter, for the first time in its four years' existence, owing to "mud and la grippe." It also reported a Loyal Temperance Legion of six years' existence, in which the youth of the community are growing up "with pure hearts and pure breaths." Many members of the union will be truer, stronger women for Mrs. Rounds' helpful influence.

What the convention may have lacked in "method" was certainly atoned for in earnestness of purpose. The local union found out its needs and possibilities and hopes to take a new lease of life.

Resolutions of loyalty to the National society and president were passed. Officers elected for the coming year are as follows: President, Mrs. M. L. Harlan, Hutton; secretary, Mrs. Alice Mason, Charleston; treasurer, Mrs. Anna McNeal, Lerna.

MAY A. MCLAIN.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO COUNTY CONVENTION.

The annual W. C. T. U. convention of this county was held in San Francisco, April 22 and 23. A most enjoyable and profitable session was the result of the hard work of the committee. The program was one of unusual merit, and among the many able papers were some as follows: "Is Alcoholic Medication Justifiable?" by Dr. Rebecca Hallowell, formerly of Philadelphia; "Hygiene and Heredity," Dr. Anna Booth; "Sailors' Work," Mrs. M. B. Eden; "High License," Mrs. M. F. Gray; "Corner Groceries," Mrs. J. H. Matthews. Excellent addresses were delivered by our worthy president, Mrs. L. M. Carver, Rev. C. D. Barrows, D. D., Rev. Wm. F. Gladwin, Mrs. R. R. Johnston, Miss C. M. Victor and others.

A description of the good things cannot do them justice, one must have tasted to have appreciated them.

Mrs. L. P. Williams was elected president in place of our much loved Mrs. Carver, she being obliged to retire on account of a contemplated removal from the city.

The outlook in San Francisco is more encouraging than for some time past.

LILLA L. FALES, Co. Cor. Sec.

INDIANA.

WORK IN WARREN COUNTY.

The W. C. T. U. has just closed a month of successful work. Mrs. C. H. St. John came into the county on April 3 and remained until the 17th. The result of her visit was the organization of three new unions and one reading club. Her work closed with a reception and banquet in her honor, at the residence of P. W. Anderson, of Williamsport, a leading Prohibitionist of the county. As a token of our appreciation of her work we have invited her to deliver an oration at our W. C. T. U. celebration of the "glorious Fourth."

Miss Alice R. Palmer, our state organizer, began her work on the 15th, and remained in the county until the 28th, also organizing three new unions, and assisting us at our county convention the 22d; so now we rejoice in ten unions and a membership of one hundred and fifty. Although we can illy spare Miss Palmer from Indiana, she is destined to spread her wings and gather a larger constituency than the old Hoosier state affords. Rest assured, however, we will keep her as long as we can, and when we do reluctantly spare her to go abroad, and when we read with pride of the great good she is accomplishing, we will say, "It is our Alice, Hoosier born and bred."

The county executive committee, met, prayed and planned, and decided that some work in organization must be done. The county union cheerfully voting out its fund, and the four local unions then organized, quite as cheerfully responding to all assessments made. To Mrs. S. J. Whitten and myself was assigned the task of securing the speakers and fixing the dates. First, we secured our workers. Second, we selected points to be reached in the county, planning that our workers who were coming in at different dates should not only enter at different points, but that their work should overlap and sustain each other. We allowed from two to three days to a point, thus enabling each speaker to establish her work.

We asked of each appointment announcement of meetings, a public collection, and entertainment for our speakers, all of which were gladly accorded, and we believe that had it not been for so much rain our speakers would have paid their way. But please note, I am saying this on behalf of the plan of the work. We did not send our speakers out dependent upon collections. Their fees were already on deposit; they merely took collections to add to our county fund, and I believe with such workers as ours money will be added to the treasury of any county union. Every dollar spent for this work meant to us hours of weariness and sacrifice, but the blessedness of the return was great. My article is long, and I have said nothing new, but if earnest, humble effort will in any way help other struggling county unions to engage in the "Membership Crusade of 1890," I shall be glad.

SADIE B. WHISTLER.

MINNESOTA.

TODD COUNTY CONVENTION.

This was held April 16 and 17 at Grey Eagle. The county president, Mrs. Fuller, conducted the meetings assisted by the district president. The exercises consisted of papers prepared for the occasion, select readings, addresses, singing, and on the last evening, music by the band.

A Demorest medal contest was the most interesting feature of the first evening. Six young ladies gave the recitations with spirit and grace, and the medal was awarded to Mrs. Stella Thompson Sliter, of Grey Eagle. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Hankins, rendered very valuable assistance, which is gratefully remembered.

The house was well filled in the evenings, and the audiences were quiet and appreciative. The following named ladies were elected officers: President, Mrs. Dr. Christie; secretary, Mrs. A. W. Sheets; treasurer, Mrs. Annie Crowell. We are hoping for good results from the influence of this convention.

MRS. S. L. DIMOND.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VISIT OF DR. BALDWIN.

It becomes my pleasant duty to report to your readers a visit from one of your National superintendents. Dr. Baldwin reached Victoria March 10, and left New Westminster for her future home in Portland, Oregon, on the 17th instant. In Victoria she gave two lectures, one for the public and one for women only, which were well attended and appreciated.

Coming across to the mainland she arrived in New Westminster Thursday, March 13, gave one of her interesting talks to the Loyal Temperance Legion Friday afternoon; lectured in the opera house the same evening; addressed women only Saturday afternoon; took the Methodist pulpit Sunday evening, speaking on "social purity;" lectured in the opera house again, at the close of the church services, to a packed audience gathered from all the city congregations, and upon returning to her place of entertainment was summoned by telephone to attend the introduction into this life of the first-born son of our local W. C. T. U. ex-recording secretary. True to her professional instincts she kindly consented, and by her presence and skill greatly obliged the family interested.

Women doctors are not so numerous in Canada as in the United States, and, as yet, none have taken up their residence in British Columbia, but Dr. Baldwin made so good an impression by her common sense and ability that a strong desire was expressed to keep her with us, and she was invited to open an office in New Westminster where, without doubt, she would have secured a large practice. Although other arrangements made this impossible, the doctor left us with the promise of visiting our province again before long, Oregon being only two days' journey from British Columbia.

M. A. CUNNINGHAM, President.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY CONVENTION.

The seventh semi-annual convention of the W. C. T. U. met at Redlands, in the Congregational Church, Wednesday, April 23, at 1:30 p. m., Mrs. Abbie Lee Button, county president, in the chair.

The cordial addresses of welcome by Mrs. Bangs, local president, and Mrs. Seabury, were happily responded to by the presidents of Riverside, Colton, San Bernardino, Highlands, Rialto and Beaumont.

Their words were full of encouragement and enthusiasm. After singing the "Battle Hymn of the Crusade," Mrs. M. L. Wells, a National organizer, who was present was introduced and greeted with the Chautauqua salute. She addressed the convention for a few minutes in her charming manner. We were fortunate in having our state president, Mrs. N. P. J. Button, with us during the entire convention; also, Mrs. Rose Hartwick Thorpe, the gifted poet, who favored us with the recitation of one of her own poems, and spoke words of hearty sympathy and cooperation with her white-ribbon sisters. The address of the county president which followed was strong and hopeful, showing substantial growth in the number of members and the efficiency of the work being done in the unions; every union and every member so far as known, being harmonious and loyal to the National union. Promptly at four o'clock Mrs. McIntosh marched in with a perfect "Legion of Loyal Temperance" boys and girls, with drum beating and banners spread. A half hour was given to songs and recitations by the children, and a cheering word by Mrs. Wells. In the evening Mrs. Wells gave a fine address and Mrs. Thorpe recited one of her poems.

The Thursday morning session opened at nine o'clock. A half hour was given to devotional exercises in charge of Mrs. Della Winbigler. The spirit of prayer and consecration filled the hearts of all present. Appointing of committees and reading of papers by superintendents occupied the time until eleven, when the "question-box" was opened by Mrs. Wells, and in this she was just at home, showing familiarity with every line of thought, and remarkable tact in answering queries. The time passed all too quickly. Noontide prayer and the convention adjourned until 1:30. A bountiful lunch was served in the church. The table was decorated with flowers, and a beautiful bouquet was laid at each plate. The afternoon session opened with devotional exercises, led by Mrs. M. L. Potter. Interesting papers were read on narcotics, heredity, labor and temperance, Sabbath observance, purity in literature, evangelistic work and mothers' meetings; all of which were listened to with close attention and evident sympathy. The committee reported resolutions which were unanimously adopted. The one indorsing the National W. C. T. U., the Prohibition Party, and equal suffrage receiving a hearty response.

The convention closed at five o'clock, with the generally expressed feeling that it had been a most pleasant and profitable meeting.

MRS. A. E. SUDDUTH,
County Cor. Sec.

NEW YORK.

RENSSELAER COUNTY CONVENTION.

The regular quarterly convention of the W. C. T. U. was held at Grace Church, Troy, April 3, under the guidance of the efficient president, Mrs. O. J. Squires. The union is in a prosperous condition. After the usual preliminary proceedings the ladies were welcomed by the Rev. Mr. Atwell, pastor of the church in which the convention was held. This address was responded to by Mrs. Gurley and Mrs. Gaston, all of the addresses being heartily enjoyed by the ladies. A workers' conference conducted by Mrs. H. C. Bascom was held, and many valuable suggestions were made by the ladies, in response to questions asked by the conducter.

Miss Harriet Robinson was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy caused by the removal to another part of the state of Mrs. Ira Van Allen, the corresponding secretary. Two new departments, those of narcotics and juvenile work, were taken up, and superintendents were appointed. Two excellent papers on "Progress—What is it?" and "The Baneful Influence of Breweries," were read and much enjoyed. Through the day and evening several fine solos were sung by different ladies, which added much to the pleasure of the occasion. In the evening Miss Robinson presented a very good paper and an enthusiastic address was delivered by the Rev. E. J. Guernsey. The convention was well attended and inspiration was there received for renewed efforts in sustaining the cause.

STELLA E. WILLIS, Rec. Sec.

OKLAHOMA.

FIRST TERRITORIAL CONVENTION.

Delegates from the various W. C. T. Unions of Oklahoma met in convention at Oklahoma City at 10 a. m., April 29, for the purpose of organizing a Territorial Union. Mrs. Rastall, president of the Kansas W. C. T. U., presided over the meeting with dignity and success, and the following officers were elected: Mrs. W. L. Rhodes, of Guthrie, president; Mrs. Holzapfel, of Oklahoma City, corresponding secretary; Miss Alma Carson, of Guthrie, recording secretary; Mrs. Sprigg, of Kingfisher, treasurer.

Just after the adjournment of the afternoon session the delegates were treated to a drive around the city by the ladies of the Oklahoma City union. In the evening Mrs. Rastall delivered a most interesting lecture to a large audience, after which many noble men and women promised to put their shoulders to the wheel and push the cause of temperance.

WHITE RIBBONER.

OKLAHOMA CITY.

It has been intimated that a wrong impression might be gathered from the few words I wrote regarding the location of Oklahoma City. I had so much to say that I made but hasty mention, necessarily incomplete. To correct the idea which might be gathered from my former letter, I desire to say that the north part of Oklahoma City is beautifully located on rising ground, from which a fine view of the valley of the North Canadian spreads before you. On my last visit the city authorities had a force of men engaged in digging canals to divert the water from the lower part of the city, and this enterprising people will soon have a well-drained and thriving metropolis.

As stated in my former letter, Oklahoma City entertained the territorial convention; but I did not mention the courtesies I received from Mrs. Brown, of that place, who hospitably entertained me in royal style on my first visit; nor the kindness of Rev. Mr. Doane and wife who generously entertained me while at Edmond. In fact, there was so much left unsaid that the dear people of Oklahoma must forgive, as space forbids details. To all who in any way aided in the success of my work in the territory, thanks are hereby extended.

FANNY H. RASTALL.

MISSOURI.

THINGS PAST AND FUTURE.

We are just having a fresh breeze that brings us renewed vigor from our state president, Mrs. Clara Hoffman. The closing of a year of state work gives us a summing up of results that can be measured, and we find Missouri has not fallen below the past, and bids fair to step upward in the ranks of the white-ribbon army. The organizers have not been idle. Mrs. Kate B. Robinson has been heard from in the conventions. Mrs. Julia Bosworth has been seen in fields afar as well as at home, having had engagements in Kansas and Illinois.

Mrs. Helen B. Harford has added numbers to the old unions and organized many new ones. Among those heard from for their aggressive work and untiring energy we find Polo, Lawson, Lathrop, Princeton, Jefferson City, Mountain Grove, Cabool, Houston, Licking, Festus, Bonne Terre, Monroe City, Browning, Spickardsville, Clinton and North Springfield.

Carrie Lee Carter, whose work has been noticed in THE UNION SIGNAL previously, has brought up the fourteenth district of which she is president, from an unorganized to a well organized condition, and bids fair to become one of the strong young women, who are continually being brought into active positions in the ranks of the W. C. T. U.

Miss Lillian Wood has kept the banner district of last year wide awake by her presence and cheer. Mrs. Ida Burr has, after a few months of rest, taken up the gauntlet where she laid it down, and will be again at the command of the unions. The Demorest medal contests have been a source of revenue as well as one of the best means for disseminating pure temperance thought over our state.

The study of God's word and the looking to a better observance of the Sabbath has been one of the most advanced lines of work.

The union at Cameron has enlarged its influence by the systematic manner in which its president, Mrs. Kate Shaw, has planned and executed. Trenton has fallen in line, despite the "non-partisan" influence, and the W. C. T. U. comes out with flying colors. Lathrop, Spickardsville and Farrington, with their positive demands for enforcement of law, have suited the word with the action and law prevails regarding the liquor traffic. Lexington has headquarters. Lebanon likewise, where a weekly sewing school is sustained. Kansas City unions have made themselves felt from the slums to the official positions. St. Louis will snow the strength of its organizations in its ability to entertain the large numbers who gather at the annual meeting. R.

MICHIGAN.

ETCHINGS.

May 5, our parliamentarian, Mrs. Benjamin, who is also yours of the National society, was at Leslie. Her convention over, on an informal ballot she received every vote for president. In Lansing, our capital city, a few weeks ago, she held a drill with three hundred in the class, members of the Business College, Library Club and Good Templars giving their presence and $5 apiece towards expenses. North Lansing union is young but strong, paying the highest district dues of any in the sixth, and was most helpful in working up this drill.

The secretary of the seventh district, Carrie E. King, sends an interesting report of their recent convention: "The W. C. T. U. of the seventh district met in convention at Almont, April 29 and 30. The session opened at 2 p. m. with a large attendance. The usual routine work was followed by discussions of 'How to conduct the regular meetings of the union,' and a paper on 'The relation of the Sunday-school to the saloon.' So interesting were they that our president said, at closing, that she believed it to be one of the best meetings we ever held. A gold medal contest took place in the evening before a crowded house. The medal was awarded to Miss Helen Anderson, of Marine City. A bouquet of flowers, accompanied by a note and the white ribbon, was given to each of the other contestants.

"The program for the 30th was crowded full and very interesting. In the forenoon there were reports from each county save Huron. Papers on 'The Flower Mission,' 'The Need of a new Party,' 'The Elective Franchise' and 'The Temperance Temple' were read. Mrs. Lathrap arrived at noon and helped to make the afternoon a treat to all present. 'An Appeal to Mothers,' 'Woman's Influence,' 'Our Influence as Christians in regard to Card Playing and Dancing' were ably treated in short and practical papers. Then Mrs. Lathrap followed with a grand talk, taking as her subjeet the many thoughts suggested by the papers read in her presence. Very touching and tender were the memorial services held for our dead, Mrs. Lathrap closing with prayer. The election of officers was laid over until the next session, to be held in October. The resolutions brought in by the committee were ably discussed. One, expressing the utmost confidence in and unfailing loyalty to our leaders, was greeted with hearty applause and passed. A letter of greeting from our state recording secretary, Mrs. C. H. Johnson, was received, and a telegram of greeting was directed to be sent to the sixth district W. C. T. U. in session at Flushing. Convention closed with a lecture from Mrs. Lathrap in the evening. A friendly, full and very fine report of our convention work was given in the local paper."

MRS. C. H. JOHNSON, Special Correspondent.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

MRS. HELEN G. RICE, National superintendent of juvenile work, is expected to speak at Lake Bluff, July 12 and 15, and can fill some engagements on, or near, direct lines of railroad between Boston and Chicago, either going or returning. Mrs Rice will address regular meetings of the L. T. L. and W. C. T. U., or mass-meetings of children; she will also give public addresses on children's work, or on general temperance topics, as may be desired. Address Miss Addie Northam, Warren, Ill., for terms and dates.

PRISON day at the State House of Correction at Ionia, Mich., will be observed this year on Saturday, June 7, instead of June 9, to avoid desecration of the Sabbath. The prison contains four hundred and fifty inmates, besides those in the insane asylum and hospital. Cards with written Scripture texts and white ribbons tied in the corner, are solicited. These can be sent to Mrs. H. M. Wilson, Ionia.

FROM Mrs. Bullock; "On Sunday May 11, I had the privilege of meeting a goodly number of the ladies of Volga City, Iowa, in an afternoon meeting, and in the evening the church was full of earnest men and women who listened attentively to truth concerning the narcotic evil. Fourteen new members, active and honorary, were added to the union, and great interest was manifested in this department. One young man went home with the white ribbon on and gave his mother his last cigar, saying, 'I will try once more to give up this habit.' At Bush Creek, notwithstanding the rain, a good interest was shown in the work, and although the audience was not large, eight new members were added to the union."

MRS. CAROLINE S. CUMMINGS, Mrs. Emma S. Young and Mrs. P. E. Johnson, prominent white-ribboners of South Dakota, have been made an investigating committee for penal and charitable institutions of that state by Governor Mellette, who is making a noble record through his opposition to the lottery steal, his recognition of women, and other progressive acts not witnessed in the average executive officer of the period.

ON Sunday, May 4, Rev. Eugenia F. St. John, commenced revival services in the first M. E. church at Bunker Hill, Ill., under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. She won the hearts of the Christian people at the first service. The evangelical churches of the town united with the W. C. T. U. in these meetings, and blessed results followed. A number of clear conversions, reclamations, renewed consecration of the churches, and broader views of the work of the W. C. T, U. are among the results.

MRS. MARY T. LATHRAP, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., gave two highly interesting lectures at Oil City, Pa., in April, and was greeted with crowded houses. She was followed by Dr. and Mrs. Boole, of New York, who remained for one week. Bible readings were given every afternoon. Mrs. Boole's Illustrated Lecture was very fine. Thirty-nine new members were added to the Band of White Ribboners as a result of the meetings held during the week. All unite in wishing Dr. and Mrs. Boole success.

MRS. MERRICK, president of Louisiana, writes: "Mrs. Clara Hoffman has been with us and although she could not make connection in time to reach the Louisiana Convention, she has given a splendid address in New Orleans on her way to the convention in Mississippi. Mrs. Hoffman is a strong and effective speaker and will do much good wherever she goes. The people were delighted to hear her."

MRS. MARY M. CLARDY will be at Fort Worth, Texas, during June and perhaps longer, and all correspondence should be addressed to her there, at 310 W. Belknap street.

REPORTS of Demorest medal contests have come in such great numbers that the crowded columns of THE UNION SIGNAL cannot possibly set them forth further than to give a list of these grand entertainments. Gold medal contests were held at Leonard, North Dakota, April 10, successful contestant, Miss Bernice Peart; and at Cortland, N. Y., May 10, Miss Celona Wells, being the prize-winner. Trumbull county, Ohio, has held twenty-eight contests for the silver and two for the gold medal. Four more are soon to be held. Silver medal contests have been held at Rock Falls, Ill., May 21, Miss Bella Allison, winner; Marquette, Mich., March 20, Miss Olive Beland; Denver, Colorado, February 22, Master Putnam Curtis; Washington, D. C., May 2, Josie Lee; Lake City, Minn., March 21, Grant Phillips; same place, April 24, Olive Goodenough; Roodhouse, Ill., April 30, Willie Needles; receipts $14.50; Middletown, Deleware, April 15, Mr. Thomas Coleman, receipts, $28; Uniontown, Pa., Miss Nellie Grimes, receipts, $26; Mukwonago, Wis., has carried one gold and ten silver medal contests.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Nevada W. C. T. U. state convention will be held at Reno, July 8 and 9. Mrs. M. L. Wells will be present, and other good workers.

Official Communications.

WORLD'S W. C. T. U.

Dear State Presidents:

I know well from the experience of years how neavily your labors press upon you, but as each superintendent is assured that the work of her department is the "most important," it must be axiomatic to all that a petition to the Rulers of the Nations, for the overthrow of a traffic against which all our lines of work are directed, is superior in its demands, and should receive immediate and careful attention. The late proposition of indorsement by state W. C. T. U. officials representative of the membership, will, if approved. greatly lessen labor, and give more time to present the petition for the indorsement of influential bodies. No M. E. or Congregational Conference, Baptist Association, or meeting of other religious denomination, no Sunday-school union, prohibition convention, etc., etc., ad infinitum, should be held without giving an opportunity to join in our appeal. Could the secretary know of these meetings in every part of the land, she would gladly do this work, but it is not possible, and the duty must rest upon state officials or their appointees.

The necessity of continuous appeal is to be regretted, but though public and private letters have been written, a comparatively small number of states and territories have responded. Kansas has called for one thousand copies of the petition, which is truly representative of her activity. Three other states have ordered five hundred each. If the president or corresponding secretary cannot, because of other labors, or absence from the state, perform the work, will it not be well to place copies in the hands of one active woman in each county, who will conscientiously do it? George Eliot said, "The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another." Let us seek the power.

MARY A. WOODBRIDGE,
American Sec'y World's W. C. T. U.

LATEST CONCERNING THE WORLD'S PETITION.

To All White-Ribboners:

We are now securing not only individual signatures to the World's Petition, but what might be called signatures by vote or attestation. For instance, the General Conference of the M. E. Church South is now in session at St. Louis. We hope that it will indorse this Petition asking the governments of all nations to put away the sale of all brain poisons by means of a prohibitory law. Should this be done, we hope that the president and secretary of the Conference will send us an official document to the following effect: "We hereby certify that on such a date the General Conference of the M. E. Church South indorsed the World's Petition, etc., etc., by unanimous vote, this vote representing —— members, men and women." Any conference, synod, association of good people, clerical, educational, medical, editorial, what not, can in the same way give its indorsement to the Petition, signing on behalf of its membership. Of course not every association would do this, but when the sentiment is large enough it would be so much the more valuable. When the Petition cannot be signed or attested in this way let it be signed on behalf of the number of delegates present without involving the constituency back of them. By means like these the Sabbath Rest Petition has acquired sixteen million backers. Christian workers are so wearied with seeking out individual names, that this method has come to the front latterly as the most helpful, and practically has the same significance as the specific signatures. Will not our white-ribboners everywhere take notice of this new method? Please send to Mrs. Mary Woodbridge, Ravenna, Ohio, for copies of the Petition, and help us to swell the number already gained individually up to two millions or more, which is the figure for which we set out. Until this number is secured the World's Petition will not be presented to the various governments of civilized lands. It seems desirable that this should be done within a year or two, hence we urge renewed efforts along this less laborious line. Please take notice that Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt has announced that all petitions must be sent in July, 1891. Your friend and comrade,

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

RECEIPTS FOR TEMPERANCE TEMPLE.

From April 28 to May 24.

California—W. C. T. U. Linden, $4.60.

Colorado—W. C. T. U. Pueblo, $1.

Connecticut—Noank, Baby Band, $7.70; Chester, in memoriam, $35.

Dakota South—Tyndall, W. C. T. U., $2.

Illinois—Galesburg, Mrs. M. K. Ward, $5; Yorkville, Baby Band, $2.80 (sent in 1888); Evanston, W. C. T. U., $3.64; Chicago, S. A. Kean & Co., $50; Mrs. H. A. Plummer, $10; Aurora, cash, $200; W. C. T. U., $25; Norwood, per Mrs. McCutcheon, $1.73; Plymouth, W. C. T. U., $5; South Englewood. per Mrs. M. E. Hanshett, $10.30; Astoria, H. S. Merrill, $100; Bowen, Baby Band, and W. C. T. U., $3; Woodhull, W. C. T. U., $2.25; Batavia, W. C. T. U., $6; Fredonia, Y. W. C. T. U., $1; Tamaroa, W. C. T. U., $1; Morrisonville, Mrs. I. A. Wykoff, 75 cents; Polo, Leone and Ina Snyder, $3.65; El Dorado, Baby Band, $4.25; Wheaton, in memoriam, Mrs. Elizabeth N. Norwood, $100; Peotone, W. C. T. U., $1.75.

Indiana—Daleville W. C. T. U., $6.35-

Indian Territory—Muscogee. Mrs. Josephine Escoe, $5.

Iowa—Delta, W. C. T. U., $3.75; Jesup, Mrs. Draper and Alice Draper, $2.95; Washington, W. C. T. U., $7.40.

Kansas—Hiawatha, Julia A. Chase Temperance Union, Military Prison, Ft. Leavenworth, $5.

Kentucky—Danville, Annie Pearce, $50.

Maine—Augusta, Baby Band, $2.

Maryland—Baltimore, J. M. and S. H. Manny, $4.

Massachusetts—N. Abington, Lewis Ford, $2; Natick, Willard W. C. T. U., $11; W. Somerville, Nancy B. Wilder, $1; Dighton, Mary W. Briggs, $5.02; Adams, W. C. T. U., $8.08.

Michigan—Ypsilanti, W. C. T. U., $4; Ionia, Mrs. M. L. Dyer, $1; Eaton Rapids, W. C. T. U., $1; Mt. Pleasant, Baby Band, $1; Bay City, W. C. T. U., $4,25; Saginaw County, W. C. T. U., $2.

Minnesota—Duluth, Mrs. R. A. Harris, $4.15; Ada, W. C. T. U,, $10; Hastings, W. C. T. U., $11.12; Minneapolis, Mrs. S. S. Sickels, $50; Chatfield, Baby Band, $10.44.

Missouri—Carthage, W. C. T. U., $2; Kingsville, W. C. T. U., $3; Unionville, W. C. T. U., $2; Kirkwood, W. C. T. U., $9.32.

Nebraska—Salem, W. C. T. U., $2; Gordon, cash, $1; Kearney, W. C. T. U., $10; Rising City, Loyal Temperance Legion, $1.30; Lincoln, Baby Band, 50 cents; Aurora, Baby Band, 50 cents (sent in 1888).

New Hampshire—Lancaster, per Emily Congdon, $4.

New Jersey—Salem, Mrs. J. Morris, $5; Shiloh W. C. T. U., $2; Hope, Miss C. E. Turner $10; Netherwood, S. A. Haines, $50.

New York—New York W. C. T. U., Madison Ave., $15; Kate Sanborn, $15, New Rochelle; W. C. T. U., $15.70, Brooklyn; First W. C. T. U., $10; W. C. T. U. on the Hill (Miss Greenwood president,) $100; Kittie Beam, $1; Pittsford W. C. T. U., $5; Rochester, Mrs. H. M. Sage, $1; Duane W. C. T. U., $1; Hamburg, Mrs. Lucy Arard, $1; Brocton Baby Band, $1.90; South Perinton, W C. T. U., $19.44.

Ohio—Mt Cory, H. M. Williamson, $3.50; Zanesville W. C. T. U., $6; Strongsville, A. C. B. Lyman, $1; Bissells, Loyal Temperance Legion, 70 cents; Kinsman Baby Band, 2.90; Shane's Crossman, Mrs. Mary Hickernell, $5; Cleveland, Mrs. S. M. Perkins, $1; Mrs. E. S. Silver, $3.75; Granville W. C. T. U., $13.

Oregon—Helix W. C. T U., $1.25.

Pennsylvania—Cross Creek W. C. T. U.. $6.10; Harbor Creek, Ella Cass, 25 cents; West Newton, Y. W. C. T. U., $5.

Rhode Island—Middletown Baby Band and Mrs. Lydia Chace, $5.

Texas—Dallas, Nonna and Josephine Mow, $4.50.

Wisconsin—Appleton W. C. T. U., $6.61; Berlin W. C. T. U., $10.72; Galesville Loyal Temperance Legion, $2.

Washington—Olympia, John Chandler Allen, $100, (bequest.)

Vermont—Wilmington W. C. T. U., $18.58; South Ryegate, Mrs. Sam'l Mills, $3.65.

Miscellaneous—Cash $1.00; cash, Martha A. Cushing, $5; cash $50 cents; sales $7.25; interest $94.79.

Total to date, $24,011.12. ESTHER PUGH,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Philosophy versus Oxygen.

"What is it to die? If we will only look at it apart from the fearful mask which fancy has imposed, we shall see that death is natural after all: and he who dreads the course of nature, in which everything is for good, is a child."

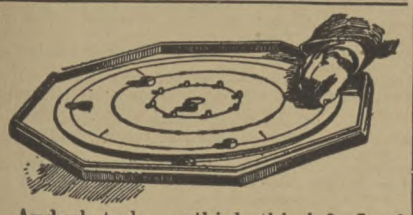
This is philosophy. But before you resort to philosophy, try Compound Oxygen. It has effected wonderful cures in desperate cases. Here are a few testimonials as to its worth:

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN:—"I am fully satisfied that your Compound Oxygen Treatment is an excellent remedy." Dr. O. A. DARBY, President of Columbia Female College, Columbia, S. C.

DRS. STARKEY & PALEN:—"I fully indorse your Compound Oxygen Treatment." J. F. SPENCE, President of Grant Memorial University, Athens, Tenn. DRS. STARKEY & PALEN:—"I regard your Compound Oxygen Treatment as a wonderful discovery of science and a blessing to suffering humanity." REV. A. A. JOHNSON, President of Wesleyan College, Fort Worth, Texas.

We have many more of them. You will find hundreds of them in our work on Compound Oxygen, its nature, discovery and results. This is no primer, nor is it an almanac, but a well written medical work. It is sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.

Publisher's Dep't.



And what do you think this is? Lend us your eyes a bit and we'll tell you how the publisher who weekly writes these notes was led to buy a "Crokinole" board, of which the above is a picture; and how since then it has been an unfailing source of lively chattering amusement in his family; and how the young people who congregate in the aforesaid home weekly also think it is "first class fun." "So," says the publisher to himself, "if this game is such a happy device for interesting young people, we will tell our one hundred thousand readers about it so that it can be adopted in homes where the boys need something to keep them from straying out nights. Or it can be most successfully used for Loyal Temperance Legions as a means of unfailing amusement." Therefore we made the picture and offer you the Crokinole board $1 cheaper than we had to pay for the one bought at retail here—viz:

Price—by express at your expense, $3.50.

FREE

Sent free as a premium for twelve new names (with $12) for THE UNION SIGNAL.

Why, yes,

That is so, haven't told you what the game is! It consists in your snapping or pushing your discs or men so that the other fellow's discs or men have to leave. There are eight rubber posts in the center which serve to make things lively. But the book of instructions must tell the rest. The game is easily learned but not easily left!

Better, better try it?

Nebraska!

We have seen a letter from a Nebraska W. C. T. U. leader and it had these items in it: "We are in the fight and it is a National battle. God only knows how we will succeed. We have great need of money to send out speakers. Piles of literature that are three or four years old are being sent into the State. All are good, but they are not what we want for the amendment work. I had one lot that cost the senders $3.50 expressage; the same amout of money sent us could have been used to good advantage." Having read these items it would be well to heed them. Money for the Nebraska work can be sent to Miss Esther Pugh (this address) or to the president of the Nebraska W. C. T. U., Mrs. Mary A. Hitchcock, Fremont, Neb. You won't find the liquor men sending old papers into Nebraska!

CRUSADER SERIES. No. I, No. 2 and No. 3.

Each 10 cents. No. 1 is on general temperance points; No. 2 on the Temperance Temple, and No. 3 is "The Trial of Prince Nicotine." All are bright and good. Address WOMAN'S TEM. PUB. ASS'N, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

MT. CARROLL (ILL.) SEMINARY; open 38th year under same president, Sept. 4. Send for "Oread," free.

WHY NOT LOOK INTO THIS!

50 acres of good fruit land for $25 cash and $5 monthly for 12 months; in Honduras, where it is not hot, no frosts, no drought, no failure of crops. Income $200 per acre without going on the land. Many already sold, some to ladies. For circulars address,

J. W. Toreger, 223 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS

Beware of imitations. Notice autograph of STEWART HARTSHORN on label and get the genuine Hartshorn.

Van Houten's Cocoa, largest sale in the world.

MR. W. H. SNOWDEN, Macon, Ga., says: I have yet to record an instance in which Bradycrotine failed to afford prompt relief.

MR. B. F. BROWN, Manager, Electric Health Resort, Hillman, Ga., says: My wife has used Bradycrotine with most gratifying results on several occasions.

TOKOLOGY has become a household word in thousands of families. This book is indeed a boon to every woman. Lizzie Noble Armstrong of Grand Rapids, Mich., writes: "If I knew I was to be the mother of innumerable children it would have no terrors for me, so great is my confidence in the science of TOKOLOGY. I have a great, strong, healthy, good-natured baby boy, who has never been sick a minute since his birth."

Best terms to agents. No book sells better in new or old territory. Sample pages free. Prepaid $2.75. Address Alice B. Stockham & Co., 161 La Salle St., Chicago,

A Cure for Hemorrhoids.

If any one in the family is subject to this most distressing of all complaints, let them read what L. J. SOVEREIGN writes from Ruby, Nebraska: He had been troubled with Blind and Itching Piles about twelve years, caused by constipation, exposure and heavy lifting. He tried several doctors who gave him temporary relief, but each time the Piles grew worse than before. Finally last October he commenced using the GLOBE PILE CURE, and one package cured him in about two weeks time. His eyes, which had become very weak, in sympathy wiih the disease, are also restored and stronger than for years. This wonderful treatment and cure for every form of Hemorrhoids may be had by addressing the GLOBE MEDICINE CO., Box 711, Cincinnati, Ohio. Large package $2, usually sufficient to cure any case. Trial size $1. Full instructions for self-treatment at home goes free with every order. A new scientific treatise on Piles is sent free on application. Why not profit by the experience of others and be quickly cured of this terrible affliction.

The Northern Summer Resorts of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Dakota, not forgetting the famous Excelsior springs of Missouri, are more attractive during the present season than ever before.

An illustrated Guide Book, descriptive of a hundred or more of the choicest spots of creation on the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R'y, will be sent free upon application to A. V. H. CARPENTER, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO SHOPPING FREE. Send for circular. Mrs. Shergold, 3524 Lake Ave., Chicago. Ill.

SEA SHELLS.

To any one sending for my list of SHELLS, CURIOS, and SUB-TROPICAL PLANTS, I will mail a box containing ten varieties of SEA SHELLS, upon receipt of sixteen cents.—the actual charge for postage and registry free. AGENTS WANTED.

RICHARD SCOTT, Sarasota, Fla.

LADIES! Use only { Brown's French Dressing } on your Boots and Shoes.

FAITH COTTAGE—Rooms to rent at Lake Bluff, a summer resort 30 miles from Chicago, on the Chicago & Northwestern R. R. For further particulars address Mrs. Alice R. Bishop, Lake Bluff, Ill.

Just What is Wanted.

A PROHIBITION EMBLEM

That can be worn by everybody men, women and children, all over the world. Endorsed by the leading prohibitionists of the United States. Gold front. Sample by mail 75c. Discount to agents.

JEWELRY MFG. CO., Box 1211, Providence, R. I

STEEL EDGE DUST PANS

-LAST A LIFE TIME- EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT

SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.

By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the

STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,

89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

PURE TEA

GET ORDERS

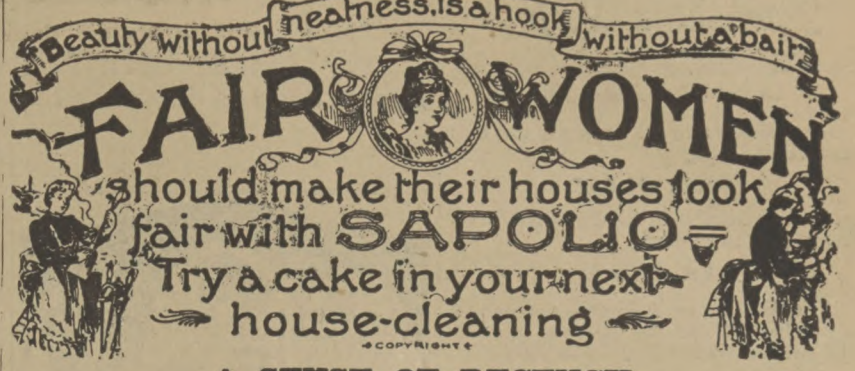
FOR TEAS, BAKING POWDER AND PURE SPICES.

We are the only Tea firm who give Premiums to Club Raisers and, at the same time, Presents to Consumers. We give Gold Watches, Silver Ware, Tea, Dinner and Toilet Sets, Hanging and Stand Lamps, and hundreds of other useful articles. 3½ lbs. any kind of Tea by mail, $2.00. Agent wanted in each town. Big Pay. For terms address YAMASHIRO TEA CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

List of 500 Presents for Consumers.

Please address P. O. Lock Box No. 10,471.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL FOR THE CURE OF Cancer & Tumors Without the Knife Book free. L. D. McMICHAEL, M. D. 180 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.



A SENSE OF DECENCY

Constrains many people to hide the dirt of their kitchens. They make the kitchen a secret chamber, into which it is forbidden to enter; but half the trouble which they take to hide the dirt and the disgrace which it entails, would keep the kitchen clean, and all its pots and pans bright as a dollar, that is, if they use

SAPOLIO

50,000 Men & Women Canvassers now. $1 an hour Present worth $1. A. Bloomingdale. Gloversville. N. Y.

MOTHERHOOD with Little Pain. Stamp to Dr Stainback Wilson, Atlanta, Ga

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!
Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

MY CATALOGUE of DRESS reform goods sent free to any address on receipt of stamp for postage. Mrs. S. W. Pike, 75 Madison St., Chicago.

LADIES' FINE JERSEYS pure Wool, only $1. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Sent postpaid upon receipt of price and size. Mrs. L. Shrier, Jr., 256 Main St., Norfolk, Va.

SEE ADVERTISEMENT OF
STANDARD FIBER-WARE
IN NEXT WEEK'S "UNION SIGNAL"

IF YOU ARE MARRIED, or contemplate taking this important step, we can send you information which you ought to know, and worth $100. Valuable 16-page circular mailed free, by J. S. OGILVIE, 57 Rose Street, New York.

Tokology Health Patterns for Infants' Wardrobe, recommended by Mrs. Dr. Stockham. Full set for long and short clothes, with full directions for making, amount and kind of material, etc. Price 50c. Address Mrs. C. H. Starkey, Waterman, Ill.

BARLOW'S INDIGO BLUE.

Its merits as a Wash Blue have been fully tested and indorsed by thousands of housekeepers. Your Grocer ought to have it on sale. Ask for it.

D. S. WILTBERGER, Prop.
233 North Second St., Philadelphia, Pa.

(Mention this paper.)

Best Truss Ever Used.

Improved Elastic Truss. Worn night and day. Positively cures rupture. Sent by mail everywhere. Write for full descriptive circulars to DR. HOUSE, N. Y., ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 744 Broadway, N. Y.

A MOST WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

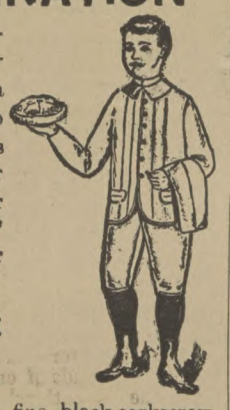
For ladies only. An intelligent lady wanted in every county of the N. W. to represent the Handy Treatment Co., Des Moines, Ia. Send 2-cent stamp.

WANTED a refined and Christian woman, who is able to do the work for a family of three, consisting of husband, twelve-year-old daughter and myself. To such a woman I can offer a permanent home, and good compensation, and she will be treated as a member of my family. No one, not desirous of a permanent situation, need apply. References exchanged. MARION B. BAXTER, Drawer 18, Charlotte, Mich.

WE wish to buy second-hand books of any language, and also back numbers of magazines, of any language, published during the last 2 to 25 years. Send us promptly, and from any distance, a list of the books and magazines you have. A list without a two-cent postage stamp for a reply will not be considered. MURRAY TEMPLETON & Co., 835 Broadway, New York. Established 1840.

"COMBINATION"

This cut represents our "Combination" suit, extra pants and hat to match for boys, ages four to fourteen, for $5. Best value ever offered for boys' wear. Send for samples.



Prince Albert Suits, $15.00.

Nicely made from fine black corkscrew, a suit equal in appearance to a $40.00 custom made suit for $15.00.

Send for samples and rules for measuring. Goods sent C. O. D., with privilege of examining before paying.

PUTNAM CLOTHING HOUSE,
131 & 133 Clark St., 113 & 117 Madison St.
CHICAGO.

SENSIBLE WOMEN all want FERRIS' GOOD SENSE CORSET WAISTS.

THOUSANDS NOW IN USE.

Best for Health, Economy and Beauty.

BUTTONS at front instead of CLASPS. RING BUCKLE at hip for Hose supporters. Tape-fastened Buttons—won't pull off. Cord-Edge Button Holes—wont wear out. FIT ALL AGES—Infants to Adults. Sold by Leading RETAILERS everywhere. Send for Circular.

FERRIS BROS., Manufacturers,
341 BROADWAY, New York.
MARSHALL FIELD & CO., CHICAGO, WHOLESALE WESTERN AGENTS.

O O

DR. WILFORD HALL'S HEALTH PAMPHLET.

IN AMERICA.

Dr. W. B. Forden, M.D., St. Louis, Mo., 706 Pine-st., writes, March 2:

"Dr. A. Wilford Hall I have just finished reading your health brochure. To say that I am amazed does not express it—to think of the stupidity of our profession to have overlooked this factor in the physical economy for so long, and at last leave it to a layman to make the discovery! I had already an experience with a partial application of the remedy, but your pamphlet has convinced me that I did not know it all by half, and yet I thought I was in the van. I am fully convinced, however, that my partial application of the treatment has saved my life, and I now as fully believe that your advance application of the same will prolong it. Although a graduate of medicine and regarded as a successful practitioner, I have a supreme contempt for drugs, and for some time had contemplated changing my business, etc, etc. . . Very truly yours,
W. B. FORDEN, M. D."

Dr. John Kaufman, M. D., of Hazelton, Pa., writes, March 16:

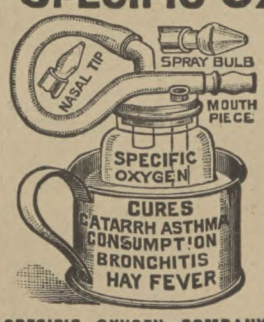
"Dear Dr. Hall:—I received your Health Pamphlet yesterday, and have examined it sufficiently to grasp the rationale of your treatment. Please accept my thanks for the valuable little work. Your reasoning is logical and your conclusions are strictly physiological. I believe your discovery, as elaborated in your treatise, has more intrinsic value than all other pathological theories.
Very truly yours, JOHN KAUFMAN, M. D."

We have received hundreds of similar indorsements of the Health Pamphlet from physicians.

Business people, as well as professional people who have tested the treatment, are universal in its praise.

For further information regarding this medicineless treatment call upon or send 2-cent stamp to A. T. Bates, Room 46, 161 La Salle street, Chicago.

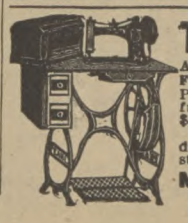
OVERMAN'S SPECIFIC OXYGEN.



Is Medicated Oxygen.
Is a Germicide.
Is a Disinfectant for the lungs.
Is different from any other treatment for these diseases.
Is not a Patent Medicine.

Send stamp for Book telling why it is different and better than other remedies.

SPECIFIC OXYGEN COMPANY, Nashville, Tenn.



THE "PEARL"

A marvel of beauty & usefulness. FULLY WARRANTED FOR 5 YEARS. Plush-lined case of Attachments free. Buy direct and save $20 to $50 Agents' commissions.

Send for Circular and see full description of this and other styles to

M. A. SCULLIN & CO.
762 W. Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Advertisers want to know what paper pays best. Mention The Union Signal.

Publisher's Dep't.

Just Pouring In.

The promises to go to work for new subscribers during June Only!

It is important that this be remembered. The work is to be done

In June.

It can be done in four weeks just as well as in eight, if one has only the mind to. The loveliest month of the year, then, is to see the success Miss Willard herself so ardently wishes—15,000 or more new subscribers reading and being influenced by THE UNION SIGNAL.

—June—June—

Read these words of cheer from everywhere, and know that we have a lot more ready for next week's paper. Remember, though, these pledges are from the tens, the results must be from the thousands.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Most certainly "I will help." 1. For the sake of the cause: 2. Because I can most earnestly recommend THE UNION SIGNAL: 3. For the sake of the new subscriber. 4. With the earnest desire of owning the portrait of our beloved Miss Willard—our Queen of Hearts. Yours in the work.

L. S. WEIGHTMAN.

DU QUOIN, ILL.

I like your breezy, pungent calls for THE UNION SIGNAL Of course "I will help" all I can Who would not give $1 to send such a paper as THE UNION SIGNAL to one who will read it gladly and yet is not able to pay for it? I would do it for such a pictu of such a leader if I had to live on bread and water or on one meal a day until I earned it. Yours for the 100,000 subscribers to help hasten victory.

MRS M. KENNEDY EAST.

SALT SPRINGS, GA.

Even to my resting place your appeal for work for THE UNION SIGNAL follows me. I shall certainly try—which means I shall send one or more new subscribers, for you know I consider it the very best all-around paper in America. And when people ask, "Where did you get all your knowledge of the work," I say, "From THE UNION SIGNAL."

LILY REYNOLDS.

HARTFORD, OHIO.

Please enroll my name and that of Mrs. C. C. Jones, both Hartford, Ohio, as those who promise one or more names before July 1st for THE UNION SIGNAL, and who work for the portrait.

C. S. BURNETT.

ATHENS, OHIO.

Yes, I will help to one (or more) new name by July 1st. No wide-awake temperance woman can afford to do without a single number of THE UNION SIGNAL, that ablest exponent of woman's highest thought in 1890.

EMMA C. MCVAY.

NEWPORT, OHIO.

I think you have hit upon a happy thought and a happy plan in your effort to add 15,000 to the subscription list of THE UNION SIGNAL. For my part, I'll get a new subscriber.

MRS. A. R. MCEL HINNEY.

WESTCHESTER, PA.

I fully indorse the plan, and give my hand and heart for the high water (not high license) mark for my birthday anniversary, July 1.

MARY I. STILLE.

EXCELSIOR, MICH.

Will secure at least two subscriptions for THE UNION SIGNAL at $1 each. THE UNION SIGNAL is a grand paper, and destined to become a wonderful educator in the home. A long life and millions of readers is the wish of MRS. E B. DENNIS.

COLLEGE HILL, O.

I will get one or more subscribers for THE UNION SIGNAL before July 1. I enjoy reading THE UNION SIGNAL very much, and can recommend it as a paper well worthy of the subscription to any one interested in temperance, and who is not?

MISS C. P. SNOWDEN.

CRAFTSBURY, VT.

"I will help." Have been trying to do so; will try a little harder, but I do wish that picture of Miss Willard. Will get the one subscriber if I have to present it to some one. Will try for the more, but want the picture whether the other 14,999 subscribers do their part or not.

MRS. M. E. BELL.

MIDDLEBURY, VT.

I will be one to help swell your subscription list before July 1st. I trust I can get more than one new subscriber before that date.

MRS. CLINTON SMITH.

NEW RICHMOND, WIS.

The plan you sent me meets with my hearty approval, and I am glad to say, "I will help."

MRS. FRANK LAM.

CAIRO, ILL.

I do not see how any temperance woman who wishes to keep herself posted can afford to do without our splendid UNION SIGNAL. They can't, and yet be intelligen. W. C. T. U. workers. I wish we might raise your subscription list to 200,000, and have Miss Willard's sweet face in all our homes. I'll do my best. LAURA J. RITT. NHOUSE.

PANAMA, NEB.

I will send one subscriber before July 1st, if I have to pay for it myself. Oh, that THE UNION SIGNAL could be put in every home there would not be so much indifference then. I can't tell you how I prize my copy, or how it helps me. I shall prize Miss Willard's picture. ADELIA STOCKING.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

I will try for the one or more new subscribers to THE UNION SIGNAL to bring the number up to that much-to-be-desired 100,000, hoping to get the more instead of the one, and please put me on the list for Miss Willard's picture. R. A. GIFFORD.

All this applies to the offer to send to the one who gets us one or more new subscribers before July 4th, 1890, an elegant picture of Miss Willard as a reward therefor. Providing, only, that 15,000 new names are secured.

Finally, forget it not, while the offer closes July 4th, the work must be done in

J-U-N-E!

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

For chafed skin
apply Pond's Extract.

Ball's Corsets in a variety of styles. Most comfortable corset ever made. Kabo Corsets of perfect fit, in various styles and lengths. Kabo never breaks. Ball's Waists are the best in the world for Ladies, Misses and Children. All with soft eyelets.

FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.
CHICAGO CORSET CO.,
CHICAGO AND NEW YORK.

Better than Tea and Coffee for the Nerves.
VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA
Appetizing--Easily Digested.
Ask your Grocer for it, take no other. [66

PLAYS Dialogues, Tableaux, Speakers, for School, Club & Parlor. Best out. Catalogue free. T. S. DENISON, Chicago, Ill.

CORNISH ORGANS Great installment offer. Send for illustrated catalogue. Mailed free to any address by CORNISH & CO., Washington, N. J.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

CHANCE FOR ALL TO enjoy a cup of Perfect Tea. A trial order of 3½ pounds of fine Tea, either Oolong, Japan, Imperial, Gunpowder, Young Hyson, Mixed, English Breakfast or Sun Sun Chop, sent by mail on receipt of $2.00. Be particular and state what kind of Tea you want. Greatest inducements ever offered to get orders for our celebrated Teas, Coffees and Baking Powder. For full particulars address The Great American Tea Co., P.O. Box 289, 31 and 33 Vesey St., New York.

SCHOOL OF EXPRESSION. Most thorough training for voice, body and mind. Opens Oct. 9th. Summer at Newport, July 5. Circulars free. S. S. CURRY, 15½ Beacon St., Boston, Mass. Clergyman's Vacation Class. Course by Prof. Churchill.

SHORTHAND INSTITUTE
Type-writing included. Miss C. C. Cronise, Principal. Send for circulars. 45 E. Twenty-sixth St., Chicago. Reference, J. V Farwell & Co., Chicago.

CHICAGO TRAINING SCHOOL
FOR
KINDERGARTNERS.
Miss Elizabeth Harrison, Principal,
Reopens Sept. 16th, 1889. For particulars apply to Miss Alice McRoy, 2323 Indiana Ave., Chicago.

A HOUSE OF REST is opened for those needing rest, with the best of nursing if required, and retirement to wait upon the Lord. For particulars address Mrs. Dr. A. M. CUNNINGHAM, Beaver Springs Farm, Woodville, Mass., Box 47.

MILLER'S HOTEL New York City. 39 West 26th St. A Prohibition Home. Patronized by W. C. T. U. workers visiting New York. Turkish, Electric, Roman Baths. Address, DR. E. P. MILLER, Proprietor.

HOTEL FREDONIA,
H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.
New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,
G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries. Every thing you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. R. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill.
We do not sell liquors in any shape.

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt, 97 Washington St, Chicago, Ill.

ORANGE VALE COLONY, CALIFORNIA
Send for a descriptive folder and map showing fruit area, etc., free. Orange and fruit lands in ten acre tracts with water under pressure on every tract. Investigation invited. A good investment. Correspondence solicited. Reliable information concerning any part of California Address Orange Vale Colonization Company, 214 J St., Sacramento, California, Geo. B. Katzenstein, Manager.

GREAT OFFER!
PIANOS! ✣ $35. ✣ ORGANS!
Direct from the Factory at Manufacturer's Prices. No such offer ever made before. Every man his own agent. Examine in your home before paying. Write for particulars. Address
THE T. Swoger & Son Pianos & Organs
BEAVER FALLS, PENNSYLVANIA.

From Rev. Jas. H. Potts, D.D., editor of Michigan "Christian Advocate," Detroit, Mich.: "To say that we are delighted with the Piano does not express the fact. We are jubilant If all our instruments are as fine in appearance and as pleasing in tone as this one, your patrons will rise by the hundred."

LADY Agents clear $5.00 daily. Goods indispensable. Sample free. G. L. Erwin, Chicago.

Silk Satin & Plush Remnants for Crazy Patch, a large pkg. pretty pieces, assorted col. & our ill. story paper 3 mos. 10c. The Little Giant, St. Louis

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

SAVE MONEY. Our 486-page Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD PICTURE Agents wanted. Terms extra liberal. Address C. P. CORY & CO., 325 State St., Chicago.

"MURRAY"
$55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS
are the best and cheapest Write for catalogue and prices. Wilber H. Murray M'f'g Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM or Morphine Habit cured at home. Trial Free. No Pain. No exposure. Address, Compound Oxygen Ass., Fort Wayne, Ind. Name this paper

AGENTS Wanted. $5.00 a day made selling our Jewel Tufting Machine, Rug Patterns, etc. Send for Catalogue and particulars. Small sample sent for 10c to pay postage. GIBBS MFG. CO., 88-90 State St., Chicago.

BLISS WOMAN'S BAND
Sent on receipt of price and waist measure.
Fitted band 75 cts. } Bliss Mfg. Co., Box 367,
Plain band 30 cts. } Minneapolis, Minn.

DRESS SILKS The very best. Send 8c. in stamps for fine lot of samples to select from. The beautiful silks and low prices will astonish you. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., Silk Store, Chicago, Ill.

WOULD YOU?
WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE LOCAL AGENT FOR ARTICLES THAT EVERY BODY WANTS? Write for CIRCULARS to "F." CASSGREEN Mnfg. Co., 134 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill.

400,000 THE LARGEST CIRCULATION of any periodical in the world. "The Philada. Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper." Sample copies FREE. CURTIS PUB. CO., Philadelphia. Pa.

MONEY made easily and fast selling the celebrated Thomas Corset and Reform Waist. Three elegant samples for $3.50, which we refund when goods to the amount of $25 has been ordered. Send for terms and samples and go to work. (Enclose stamp). Address, The THOMAS CORSET PARLORS, 465 W. Van Buren St., Chicago.

THE EDISON MIMEOGRAPH
duplicating apparatus. Send postal card to A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, for descriptive circulars and samples of work.

WE SELL DIRECT TO FAMILIES
PIANOS $150 to $1500. ORGANS $35.00 to $500.
Marchal & Smith Piano Co.,
265 East 21st St., N. Y.

Wholesale & Retail. Many long in use. Old Baths renewed.
Send for Circulars. E. J. KNOWLTON, Ann Arbor, Mich.

THE DEAF HEAR SOUND DISCS are guaranteed to help a larger per cent. of cases than all similar devices combined. The same to the Ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively invisible. Worn months without removal. H. A. WALES, Bridgeport, Conn.

GREAT SELLERS Four household necessities. Practical, meritorious. Used by every family. A complete line. Retail prices 10 cts. to $1.25. Agents report enormous sales. Two samples mailed for 25 cts. Splendid terms. Illustrated Circular free. GEO. M. REWELL, Cleveland, Ohio.

YOU CAN LAY BY $500 TO $1500 a year by working for us. You can't do it in any surer or simpler way no matter how you try. We furnish capital and pay liberally those who work either whole or part time Stamp not required for answer. JNO. C. WINSTON & CO., Pubs., Phila., Chicago, Kas. City.

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS
A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.
S. A. KEAN & CO, BANKERS,
CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE
LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA
furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.
Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

EVERYBODY SATISFIED
that uses WESTPHALS UTILITY. Strong, clean, durable and the only satisfactory FLOWER STAND made. Circulars and prices on application to mf'rg's. A. M. HOWES & CO., 65 and 67 So. Canal St., Chicago, Ill.

WEBSTER'S
UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.
Ogilvie's Edition, 1615 pages, sheep.....$3.00
Crown Fountain Pen.....$2.00
Each Including Family Gazette one year and Economy Club Membership. These dictionaries are selling by the thousands. Family Gazette Pub. Co., 173 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

WM. A. YOUMANS & CO.,
ARCHITECTS.
Room 91, 159 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
"Ottawa Terra Cotta" construction a specialty. The best looking and cheapest sanitary system of building.

MAY FLOWERS
OF SONG
For Schools:

Children's School Songs. (35 cts.: $3.60 dozen. 8 pages of simple explanations, and 138 new and selected songs for general singing. This little book is being received with much favor.

Kindergarten Chimes. ($1.25.) Kate Douglas Wiggin. Good manual, and fine collection.
Kindergarten and Primary School Songs. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Menard.
Songs and Games for Little Ones. ($2.00.) Walker and Jenks.
Gems for Little Singers. (30 cts.; $3.00 doz.) Emerson and Swayne.
Rhymes and Tunes. ($1.00.) Mrs. Osgood.
Motion Songs. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Mrs. Boardman. Get them all! They are most delightful books! Also try the sweet little Cantatas:
Kingdom of Mother Goose. (25 cts., $2.28 doz.) Mrs. Boardman.
Rainbow Festival. (20 cts.; $1.80 doz.) Lewis.
Who Killed Cock Robin? (40 cts.; $3.60 doz.) Ford.

Song Manual { Book 1, Primary. 30c.: $3 doz. Book 2, Medium. 40c.; $4.20 doz Book 3, High. 50c.; $4.80 doz.

By Emerson. These are the newest and best books for teaching note reading in schools.
Send for lists and descriptions.
Any book mailed for retail price.
OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston.

WE WANT AN AGENT
In every county to represent the Lothrop Magazines and take subscriptions.
Every family with children from 6 months to 16 years should subscribe for one or more of these popular magazines.
We pay the largest commissions.
Exclusive Territory. Outfits free.
D. LOTHROP COMPANY, Boston.

A BOOK
TO Make Converts!
PLEAS FOR PROHIBITION,
BY
REV. SAM. W. SMALL, M. A.

This book has been written by Mr. Small, with the view of covering the whole argument for the legal suppression of the liquor traffic. It is written in a style to interest the general reader, and is not burdened with tables and figures that are irksome.

—o—

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I—Prohibition as a Principle.
" II—Prohibition in the Past.
" III—Prohibition in Practice.
" IV—Prohibition and Parties.
" V—Prohibition and Public Education.
" VI—Prohibition and the Press.
" VII—Prohibition and the Pulpit.
" VIII—Prohibition and the Professions.
" IX—Prohibition and the Public Peace.
" X—Prohibition and Prisons.
" XI—Prohibition and Pauperism.
" XII—Prohibition and the Public Purse.
" XIII—Prohibition and Posterity.

—o—

Read it yourself and strengthen your faith; then hand it to a hesitating neighbor and gain him for prohibition. A finely printed book, worthy of a place in any library, and put at a price to make it popular.

Bound in Cloth, 75 Cents.

Sent postpaid on receipt of postal note or money order for the price. Address

ALFRED MUDGE & SON,
24 Franklin St., Boston, Mass.

BOOK AGENTS WANTED FOR
MY STORY OF THE WAR
By Mary A. Livermore
Her own Narrative of "FOUR YEARS PERSONAL EXPERIENCE AS NURSE" in Hospitals, Camps, and on the Battle-field. No other book has drawn so many tears. Bright, Pure, and Good, of matchless interest and profound pathos. It sells at sight to all. The "booming" book to make money on now and for the holidays. No competition. 700 pages, splendid Steel Plates, and old Battle-Flags in twenty colors. 61st thousand. 75,000 more Agents Wanted—Men and Women. Distance no hindrance, for we Pay Freights and give Extra Terms. Write for circulars to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn.

Publisher's Notes.

TERMS FOR 1890—THE UNION SIGNAL.

To Old Subscribers.

Single copy	$1.50
In clubs of 5 to 9 each	1.25
In clubs of 10 and over each	1.00
To ministers and reading rooms	1.00

To New Subscribers.

Only $1.00, whether in clubs or singly.

Clubs can be made up of both old and new names, but the full number of names required must be sent.

Trial Subscribers (Five Weeks) 10 Cts.

Other Papers Issued by the W. T. P. A.

The Young Crusader (juvenile temperance) semi-monthly edition. Single copy 50 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Monthly (Sunday School edition) single copy 15 cents; five to twenty-five copies, in package, each 1 cent; twenty-five copies or over, in package, at the rate of $1.00 per 100 copies, per issue.

The Oak and Ivy Leaf (monthly) organ of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union; single copy, 25 cents; in clubs of 10 or over, 20 cents.

Der Deutsch Amerikaner (semi-monthly) German temperance; single copy 50 cents, in clubs of 10 or over, 40 cents.

Advertising rates in THE UNION SIGNAL per agate line, 75 cents. TIME DISCOUNTS Four times, 10 per cent; 13 times, 20 per cent; 26 times, 30 per cent; 39 times, 40 per cent; 52 times, 50 per cent; five lines one year costs only $97.50. No advertisement of less than five lines inserted at time rates on a contract for variable space.

Bargain Prices.

Books, etc., soiled by having been sent to convention, or having some slight damage in binding.

	Regular Price.	Bargain Price.
Ye Hatchet Partie,	$ .15	$ .07
Helping,	.10	05
Nineteen Beautiful Years, cloth,	.75	35
" " " paper,	.40	.15
Romance Nineteenth Century	1.00	35
Duties of Women,	.25	.15
Free Rum on the Congo,	.25	.10
Boys and Other Boys paper.	25	.12
Girls of To-Day,	.25	.12
Y Song Books,	.25	20
Glorious Cause,	30	20
Birthday Books, plain,	1.00	50
Birthday Books, gilt edge,	1.25	.60

Please name first and second choice, as we have only a few of some of the items. Secure your bargains promptly. They will not last long.

PRESS NOTICES

GLIMPSES OF FIFTY YEARS

The motto of the volume is well chosen: "Nothing makes life dreary but lack of motive," and, if we mistake not, its highest value to its readers will be inspiring them with stronger and broader purposes. —Wisconsin Journal of Education.

The book will, without question, attract world-wide attention, and besides giving pleasure, will be an inspiration to thousands who are plodding along the highways and by-ways of life, to do with their might whatsoever of good comes to their hands to be done.—Toledo Blade.

As you read the wonderful history, there is nothing but seems ordered by the Master builder. She who was to help redeem the homes of the world from the curse of intemperance and impurity, and their myriad companion sins, was so blessed in her own home. Was not the sisterly love, now growing to be a world-wide bond among women, shadowed forth in the little plan proposed to her own sister? "Mary, wouldn't it be a good plan for us to ask each other's forgiveness the very last thing before we go to sleep, for any word or deed that wasn't just sisterly and kind, and to thank each other for everything that was sisterly and kind?" And so until the last evening of the "Nineteen Beautiful Years" these sisters always said, "I ask your forgiveness and thank you." . . . The most obdurate critic will not find a flaw in this autobiography. It is honest, straightforward, complete.—The Woman's Magazine (Brattleboro, Vt.)

A volume of strong, genuine interest, written in a crisp, vigorous style, that makes its pictures of American life remarkably vivid and faithful, and filled all through with solicitude for the highest interest of society.—Chicago Times.

It comes as nearly "reading its-self" as any book we have ever looked into. And we get in it glimpses of many others whom we like to know, in all a goodly company of the best men and women of our times. The mechanical execution is good, and many engravings add to the interest of the pages.—Central Christian Advocate.

A VERY SATISFACTORY GARMENT.

WHY? Because it Supports Stockings and Underclothes from the SHOULDERS, and has no stiff cords, fits with perfect ease and freedom. For sale by leading dealers.

Send for illustrated price list.

FOY, HARMON & CHADWICK, New Haven, Conn.

DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

IN THE HEALTHY HIGHLANDS.

No Malaria, no Mosquitoes, no Saloons. Best climate in the United States for all-the-year-round residence.

SPLENDID PROGRESS.

Started late in 1889 with no population or improvements, the development already made is surprising. Five factories are building, and several companies organized to build others. No booms, but steady, substantial progress. A knitting factory company is organized, the stock to be all owned, and entire business managed by women. It will pay large profits. Those who want homes in a "clear city," where the rumshop, brothel and gambling den are perpetually excluded, should buy soon, as prices are rapidly advancing.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Stock in the Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Company will pay large profits. There are also good opportunities to make paying investments in several manufacturing enterprises. For full information address

The Demorest Home, Mining and Improvement Co., Demorest, Ga.

RHEUMATISM NOT TEMPORARILY RELIEVED BUT PERMANENTLY CURED

Each case treated separately. Send us your address on a postal card for Treatise on Rheumatism with full information regarding its CURE. YELLOW PINE EXTRACT CO., BOX 246 PITTSBURGH, PA.

Dr. B A. Camfield, Consulting and Operating Surgeon, for all diseases and deformities of the Eye and Ear. The largest stock of artificial eyes in the West. Office 163 State St, Chicago, Ill.

THE "FREEMAN"

SELF-WRINGING MOP!

"It leads all others" is the verdict of all who see it. A ratchet on this mop helps the hand by retaining the cloth at any stage of the work. Don't touch the water with your hands. Boiling water can be used, also potash, lye etc. if desired. If you desire to wash windows, corners up high, in fact anywhere, the mop by the means of the ratchet, can be held without the aid of the hand, thus removing the strain. Write for circulars. Sold exclusively through agents throughout the United States. Agents wanted. Write at once for territory—The Racine Malleable & Wrought Iron Co., Racine Wis

LADIES do you want a perfectly made handsome Black Silk Dress that will not fade, crack or become shabby, then buy direct from our factory. Our BRAND NEW SILKS for SEASON of 1890 are far superior to any ever made. The goods are woven in our own factory, which is the best equipped in the U. S.

OUR SILK DRESS GOODS

will give you perfect satisfaction. All of our goods are sold at less than half the price of many of the adulterated, so-called cheap silk dress goods (many of them imported).

☞ We guarantee the CHAFFEE DRESS SILKS for richness of color, superior finish and wearing qualities, to be unexcelled by any make of Black Silks in the World. We offer these Dress Silks in Gros Grains, Satins, Surahs, Faille Francaise and Aida Cloths, in blacks only.

Send your name on a postal card and we will forward you without charge samples of all our styles with prices, and you can see for yourselves.

1000 YARDS Sewing Silk & enough BRAID to Bind bottom of Dress FREE

BESIDES WE PAY COST OF DELIVERING THE GOODS.

O. S. CHAFFEE & SON, Mansfield Centre, Connecticut.

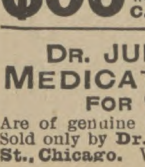
☞ Refer by permission to First National Bank, Windham National Bank, Dime Savings Bank, Willimantic Savings Institute, of Willimantic, Conn.

REV. T. P. CHILDS Will effectually & permanently cure any case of CATARRH or BRONCHITIS, no matter how DESPERATE. REV. T. P. CHILDS, TROY, O. CATARRH.

The "Little Beauty" A $5.00 Scale for $1.00

Capacity 1-4 oz. to 4 lbs. Steel Bearings, Brass Scoop and Beam. For Housekeepers, Offices or Stores. Weight packed, 8 lbs. Sent by express



A $65.00 Sewing Machine	$18.00
A 900-lb. Platform Scale	15.00
A $125.00 Top Buggy	65.00
A 2-Ton Wagon Scale	40.00
A 5-Ton Scale and Stock Rack	75.00
A $50 Feed Mill	30.00
A $40.00 Road Cart	15.00
A $15.00 Single Harness	7.50
A 240-lb. Platform Scale	2.00

Price List Free. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

MY WIFE SAYS SHE CANNOT SEE how you do it for the money.

$12.50 Buys a $65.00 Improved Oxford Singer Sewing Machine, a perfect working, reliable, finely finished Sewing Machine, adapted for light or heavy work, with all the latest improvements and complete set of attachments. A written guarantee for 5 years with each machine. Buy direct from manufacturers and save Dealers and Agents profits. Catalogue free.

OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

The Vestibuled Pullman Car Line.

The Monon Route is the finest equipped line on the continent and affords choice of four daily trains from Chicago to the South via Indianapolis and Cincinnati, or Louisville and Burgin. For full information call on any ticket agent of the Monon Route or address W. H. McDoel, Traffic Manager, or James Barker, Gen'l Pass. Agent, 185 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

"EUREKA ASTHMA REMEDY," Send ten cents, stamps or coin for package. Gives perfect Rest and Relief. The Latest and Best Remedy. Address Kate Hillard, Box 115, Verndale, Minn.

RHEUMATISM If you suffer it is your own fault. Address Dr. W. H. Ross, Grand Rapids, Mich.

FACTS FOR THE SICK.

Dr King's Royal Germetuer builds up and cures when all else fails. Send stamp for full particulars. Atlantic Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga.

DEAFNESS CURED And NOISES IN HEAD entirely overcome by Peck's Pat. Imprv'd TUBULAR EAR CUSHIONS, Whispers, Conversation and Music heard. Comfortable; Self-Adjusting and Unseen. Successful when all other Remedies FAIL. SOLD ONLY by

P. HISCOX, 853 Broadway, Cor. 14th, New York. CALL or WRITE for ILLUST'D BOOK of PROOFS, FREE. NO AGENTS

BAILEY'S COMPOUND light-spreading Silver-plated Corrugated Glass REFLECTORS, A wonderful invention for lighting CHURCHES, Halls, etc. Handsome designs. Satisfaction guaranteed. Catalogue and price list free. BAILEY REFLECTOR CO. 113 Wood st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

BABY CARRRIAGES Direct from Factory, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago. Express charges prepaid to any place within 300 miles of Chicago. $3 to $8 saved on each carriage or you need not pay for them. Send 2c. stamp for illustrated catalogue. Thousands of carriages shipped yearly to families direct. The largest factory and finest goods in the world.

MAJOR'S CEMENT

"Major's Cement" repairs broken articles, 15 and 25c. per bottle. By mail same price. Major's Leather Cement for reparing boots and shoes, 15 and 20c. Major's Rubber Cement for repairing all kinds of rubber goods. 15c. Major's Best Liquid Glue for repairing wood, books, etc., 10c. On these last three kinds, by mail, 5c extra each bottle. Sold by druggists and crockery dealers. A. MAJOR, 230 William St., New York City.

ILLINOIS PAPER COMPANY, 181 Monroe St., CHICAGO, Manufacturers and Dealers in Book & Cover Paper,

Copyrighted.

I have a positive remedy for this disease, by its use the worst kind and most unyielding cases of all forms have been cured. I will take pleasure in sending ONE PACKAGE FREE to every sufferer who will, send their name and address, with 4 cts in stamps to cover postage.

WALTER L. DAY, 23 West 12th St., N. Y. City.

A-CORN SALVE.

Removes the Toe-Corn Every Time.

NO PAIN! NO POISON!

"After using it my feet are in a better condition than they have been for a year." Mrs. E. A. Collins, Havana, Ill

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS OR SEND 15 CENTS TO THE GIANT CHEMICAL CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Temperance Tea Tonic.

Nature's Great Remedy, Free from Alcohol, and Narcotics. Ladies will find this a true temperance medicine made in a tea, and absolutely cures Liver Complaint, disease of the kidneys, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn, skin diseases female complaints, constipation, chills and fevers, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache Mailed on receipt of price, 50 cts. Address TEMPERANCE TEA TONIC MED. CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE LADY'S SYRINGE,

is as yet the only practical instrument for the treatment of certain female complaints, because it is constructed upon the only correct principle, viz. Injection and Suction. It cleanses PERFECTLY which no other syringe has yet accomplished, and has many other advantages explained in our descriptive circular. GOODYEAR RUBBER CO., New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Buffalo.

WHOOPING COUGH DELAVAU'S REMEDY

Dispels whoop, allays cough, and cuts short the disease. Its peculiar anti-spasmodic action insures sleep and is perfectly harmless. Especially effective in dry, Hacking Coughs. For the sudden, dangerous CROUP it is infallible. 40 years established in Philadelphia. 50c. per bottle. Sold at druggists.

BABY CARRIAGES!

I make a specialty of manufacturing Baby Carriages to sell direct to private parties. You can, therefore, do better with me than with a dealer. Carriages Delivered Free of Charge to all points in the United States. Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

CHAS. RAISER, Mfr. 62-64 Clybourn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ALL FAT PEOPLE

can safely Reduce Weight and Cure Corpulency permanently by taking TRILENE TABLETS (Regd.) for a few weeks. They are small, agreeable harmless, and never fail to IMPROVE both HEALTH and FIGURE without Change of Diet. An English Countess writes:—"Your Trilene Tablets act admirably."—Send Postal Note for 75 cents to THE TRILENE CO., Sole Proprietors, 834 Broadway, New York.

25c PRINTING OUTFIT.

A WHOLE PRINTING OUTFIT, COMPLETE AND PRACTICAL, Just as shown in cut. 3 Alphabets of neat Type, Bottle of Indelible Ink, Pad, Tweezers, in neat case with catalogue and directions of "HOW TO BE A PRINTER." Sets up any name, prints cards, paper, envelopes, etc., marks linen. Worth 50c. The best gift for young people. Postpaid only 25c., 3 for 60c., 6 for $1. Ag'ts wanted. Ingersoll & Bro., 65 Cortlandt St. N. Y. City.

This Magnetic Belt is the Most Powerful Curative Agent ever made for Lame Back, Weakness of Spine and Kidneys, and pains arising from derangements of the abdominal organs. It is Nature's Substance concentrated, and will give immediate comfort and relief by restoring Natural Action to every organ in the body.

IT IS NATURE'S BOON TO WOMANKIND!

Language but faintly describes the health-giving power of this Natural Support.

The Belt is made of genuine magnets, and the genius of man has not produced its equal since the days of Paracelsus, the world-renowned physician, who cured all diseases with magnetism. Every lady, young or old, should wear this vitalizing health-giving Belt and Abdominal Support. Our Book "Plain Road to Health" free. MAGNETIC SHIELD CO., No. 6 Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

$50 OUTFIT ON 30 DAYS' TIME TO AGENTS Guarantee $150 profits in four weeks or no pay, to travel or work at home. No competition. C. JARVIS & CO., Racine, Wis.

DR. JULIA R. HOWE'S MEDICATED CAPSULES FOR WOMAN'S ILLS.

Are of genuine merit—not a patent medicine. Sold only by Dr. Julia R. Howe, 263 Ohio St., Chicago. Write for explanatory letter free

Advertisers want to know what paper pays best. Mention The Union Signal.

Signal Notes.

DR. S. WEIR MITCHELL, the famous Philadelphia physician, is said to have lately received a characteristic present from a young girl, whom he had rescued from nervous invalidism. It was a cord of white oak chopped down and sawed up by her own hands, and sent as circumstantial evidence of the health she had gained by following his directions to live an open air life in the woods.

KENT county, Maryland, is rejoicing in a great victory, a majority of nearly 1,300 against license. The contest was license versus local option, which had been the law of the county for some time. Mrs. Brown, of Chestertown, a zealous white-ribboner, writes: "We are jubilant! The W. C. T. U. did its part nobly, supplying large quantities of literature, meeting with the Temperance Alliance for consultation, and working both with them, and independently. The union has had most favorable recognition, a great step forward. The Supreme Court decision rather helped than hindered." The saloon is outlawed in nearly half of the state.

THE Hennepin county prohibition convention will be held in Minneapolis, Friday June 13, to elect delegates to the state convention to be held at St. Paul, June 24. The Clarion Quartette will sing, eminent speakers will be present, and in the evening a grand rally for prohibition will be held, "original package decision" to the contrary notwithstanding. Geo. R. Whitcomb is chairman of the county prohibition committee.

HENRY B. KEPLEY, of Effingham, Ill., one of the stanchest friends the W. C. T. U. has ever had, was last week thrown from a carriage, and was seriously, and it was feared fatally, injured. A late telegram gives a little hope of his recovery, for which many are praying. His wife is associate National superintendent of the department of purity in literature and art, and has the deepest sympathy of her white-ribbon sisters, in this great trial.

As the white-ribboners all over the land are celebrating Jennie Casseday's birthday, June 9, it would be fitting to remember in practical fashion "Jennie Casseday's Mission," a Bethel in Cincinnati, which has done an immense amount of good. Its gospel meetings have been held in a tent, and five times this spring it has been flooded by the high water. It is all worn out, and those in charge of the work desire to build a frame Bethel as a memorial to Jennie Casseday on her fiftieth birthday. No more appropriate memorial to their leader could be reared by the Flower Mission of the country. Here in this tent a hundred and seventy have signed the pledge during the past ten months; the adult membership in this mission church has reached sixty-seven, and the Sunday-school numbers sixty. If any are moved to have a share in this good work, they can send contributions to Miss Jennie Casseday, 216 E. Chestnut street, Louisville, Ky., carefully stating what these are for.

A SUMMER convocation of Christian workers of different denominations will be held June 20 to August 17, at Western Springs, a suburb of Chicago, Ill. The Rev. Dr. A. J. Gordon, Dr. Simpson, Mrs. E. V. Baker, Miss Scovel, the Rev. R. L. Marsh and others will be present as teachers of spiritual truths. Send addressed stamped envelope for further information to John L. Atwater, 15 Lakeside Building, Chicago.

THE Willard W. C. T. U., of Kansas City, Mo., has earned the name and reputation of "The Fighting Union." It is in the Springfield addition to the city and was organized May 8, 1889, for almost the sole purpose of keeping the saloons out of that addition, and so far it has succeeded. There are fifteen members but only eight "fighters," and backed by the churches and the men who sympathize with this temperance principle, they were instrumental, recently, in securing the defeat of two additional applications for license which were before the police commissioners. The ladies have thus far defeated eight applications of the kind. The two defeated saloon-keepers, as they were leaving the office of the police commissioners, were consoling one another in their disappointment. Said the one: "We'll have a saloon in Springfield addition before the year is over, remember what I tell you, and that, too, in spite of these women." The union, headed by the president, Mrs. S. L. Chase, has gone systematically to work in its fight, and has in its possession a map containing the name, location and address of each property owner in the addition, and is therefore prepared to furnish remonstrances in short order.

Over One Hundred Million Dollars

TO BE RECLAIMED BY THE

CONSOLIDATED CARSON RIVER DREDGING COMPANY.

An Investment of $375 at the Present Price may bring a Return of from $25 to $100 Per Month.

READ THIS THROUGH AND SEE HOW THIS IS POSSIBLE.

THIS Company, known as the CONSOLIDATED CARSON RIVER DREDGING COMPANY, was incorporated the 15th day of March, 1888, under the laws of the State of Nevada, owning seventeen virgin claims of 4,250 feet each of the Carson River, claims and titles located under the laws of the United States.

This property is known to contain rich deposits of tailings, consisting of gold, silver, amalgam and quicksilver, in value from $40,000,000 to $100,000,000. This statement can be easily verified by the U. S. mint report and geological survey, Vols. third and fourth, and by those who have personally examined the whole property. The capital stock of the Company is $1,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares, par value of which is ten dollars.

It is now proposed to use an Osgood wrought steel dredge, which is guaranteed to raise eight hundred cubic yards in twenty-four hours, at least; an amalgamator is also used to handle the material as fast as the dredge raises it. The amalgamator separates all the free gold, the free silver, the quicksilver, the amalgam. Then the refuse is to be put over a concentrator attached to the amalgamator, which will save all the sulphurets of gold and silver. These two machines are guaranteed to do the work claimed for them, and the cost of running the plant for twenty-four hours will be under $100. It is claimed that four hundred cubic yards [or about six hundred tons] of material can be raised every ten hours. As the assays run anywhere from $5 to $120 per ton, it is believed that the earnings of the Company will be something enormous, and that it will enable the Company to pay from twenty-five cents to one dollar per share monthly, in dividends.

Recently, 27 tons were raised and milled, and $666.62 was taken from it, only 60 per cent. of the material being worked. The balance of 40 per cent would have been more than $300, making altogether over $1,000 from 27 tons, or over $40 per ton. Of course, if 600 tons in ten hours were raised, with this average it would be something enormous, more than ought to be expected. But to put it at the lowest, say $5 per ton, the income of the Company would be $3,000 per day, only working ten hours. Of course if work was continued for 24 hours, the income would be doubled and would reach the enormous amount of $6,000 per day, with a yearly income of $1,800,000 upon a capital of $1,000,000. Thus the reader can see how it is possible to pay one dollar per share per month in dividends. Should this be done, a party owning 500 shares of stock, costing $1,775, would receive a monthly income of $500, as per following the table:

500	shares, costing	$1,775.00,	monthly income		$500.
250	" "	$887.50,	"	"	$250.
100	" "	$375.00,	"	"	$100.
50	" "	$187.50,	"	"	$50.
25	" "	$93.75,	"	"	$25.
10	" "	$37.50,	"	"	$10.

The above is what the officers of the Company think they will be able to pay; but if this should be divided by four, it would still make an investment without a parallel. It is therefore worth while to take a reasonable amount of this stock. Had this Company been organized merely for the purpose of "floating" the stock, it would have been organized with a capital stock as high as $10,000,000; but at the present time no private stock is for sale; that which is now being sold is Treasury stock, and is for the purpose of completing the present dredge and amalgamator, which is to start up by July 1st. 10,000 shares of this stock were recently placed in my hands to dispose of for this purpose, and a considerable amount of it has already been taken.

The directors of the Company are all good men, and are interested in their work. All the stock is registered by the FARMERS' LOAN & TRUST CO., of New York. Parties wishing to invest in this enterprise should do so immediately, as in all probability, the small amount of stock which we have for sale will remain upon the market but for a few days only, after the above facts become known to any number of people. There is no use of asking the question, "Why, if it is so good a thing, do not the people in New York take it?" The answer to this question is that it has been taken in New York City very largely, and several people here have as high as from 3,000 to 4,000 shares. But the people largely interested in the concern have taken about all the stock they feel able to, and it has therefore been determined to sell the number of shares above mentioned in small lots.

The present price of $3.75 per share will be continued until June 13th. No less than 10 shares will be issued. Orders may be sent at the rate of $3.75 per share, by P. O. order, express, checks or New sYork draft, to the order of W. S. CHAMBERLIN, Agent, Rooms 51 and 53, 115 Broadway, New York City.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

FOR BEAUTY OF POLISH. SAVING LABOR, CLEANLINESS, DURABILITY & CHEAPNESS. UNEQUALLED. NO ODOR WHEN HEATED.

Do not take any chances of being poisoned or burned to death with Liquid Stove Polish, paints, and enamels in bottles. The "Rising Sun Stove Polish" is safe, odorless, brilliant, the cheapest and best stove polish made, and the consumer pays for no expensive tin or glass with every purchase.

LADIES,

do not overlook this. The PERFECTION Flour Bin and Sieve is a household necessity. No home is complete without it. Dispense with barrels, sacks, pans, scoops, sieves, etc. No scattering of flour; no apron or rolling up of sleeves needed. A few turns of the handle and you have enough sifted for a baking. It pleases everybody. No housekeeper will be without it after once using. Where we have no representative we will send the bin on receipt of price. To hold 100 lbs. $3.25; 50 lbs. $2.50; 25 lbs. $2.00. Freight pre-paid not to exceed 75c. No goods sent C. O. D. Agents wanted. Sherman, Tangenberg & Co., 160 W. Lake St., Chicago.

'DELSARTE'

Corset Waists and Braces. Send for Price List.

Agents Wanted. DELSARTE CORSET CO., 142 W. 23d St., New York.

Bickford Family Knitter

Knits everything required by the household, of any quality, texture and weight desired.

A. M. LAWSON, 733 Broadway, New York.

RUBIFOAM

FOR THE TEETH

DELICIOUSLY FLAVORED DENTIFRICE. Cleanses, Preserves, Beautifies.

LARGE BOTTLES, PRICE 25 CENTS.

Sample Vial sent free to any address.

PREPARED AND GUARANTEED BY E. W. HOYT & CO., LOWELL, MASS.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE Celebrated Hoyt's German Cologne.

LADY AGENTS

WANTED for the VAN ORDEN CORSETS. Every lady wishing good health and a beautiful figure buys them. Quick sales. Good pay. Send for terms and circular.

VAN ORDEN CORSET CO., 22 Clinton Place, N.Y.

LADIES! write for terms. $3 sample corset free to agents. Lewis Schiele & Co., 390 Broadway, N.Y

Send 6c. for sample Silk Dress Goods Chicago Silk Dress Goods Co., 154 La Salle St., Chicago.

ACME CORSET PROTECTOR CO.

A complete garment worn under the corset or flannels, protecting the clothing from perspiration. Cheaper than dress shields, one pair doing the work of six. Misses' bust measure, 28-33, $ .50 Ladies' " " 34-39, 1.00

M. DEWEY, Mnfr., 1397 W. Monroe St., Chicago. Send Money by P. O. Order. Catalogue free. AGENTS WANTED.

ALL ABOUT NEW STATE OF WASHINGTON. Send stamp for Catechism. ESHELMAN, LLEWELLYN & CO., Seattle.

THE GLUTEN ENTIRE

Wheat Flour makes the cheapest and best bread, cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Nervous Prostration. Send for circular. Mill Office, 135 Lake St.

RIDGE'S FOOD

The MOST RELIABLE FOOD For Infants & Invalids. Not a medicine, but a specially prepared Food, adapted to the weakest stomach. 4 sizes cans. Pamphlet free. Woolrich & Co. (on every label). Palmer, Mass.

AMERICAN Desk & Seating Co.,

Manufacturers

Church, Lodge, School, Bank and Office Furniture.

Send for Catalogues.

270-272 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

NEW MUSIC FOR PROHIBITION.

"WHITE RIBBON VIBRATIONS."

The new W. C. T. U. Song Book. The latest and the best. 150 pages of splendid songs. Meets the wants of all aggressive temperance work. Words and music of superior quality. Good paper, good binding. Just the book for Choirs and other musical organizations. Nothing equal to it for the public meetings of the W. C. T. U., Medal Contests, &c. Music for all occasions.

Price 35c, prepaid; $3.60 per doz. not prepaid.

Order of FLORA H. CASSEL, HASTINGS, NEB.

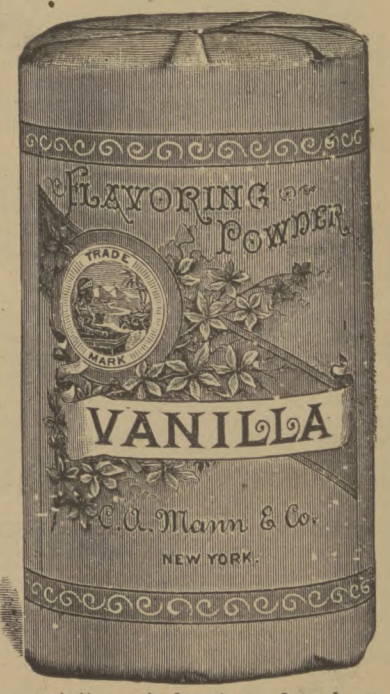
Flavoring Powders.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight,—
"Go around the other way,"



Sang the children in a sort of rapid monotone, holding hands tightly, and moving around quickly in a ring, keeping time to their own words. It was a pretty, graceful sight, and we smiled to see their happiness, just as old heads smile over the vigor and impatience of the young enthusiasts who want to turn the world over and make it go around the other way. It means life and strength and advance to this old world of ours. But the love for old habits and customs is inborn. We all have it, even the very young, else why these impressive services on Decoration Day, Fourth of July and other days? What are those two buttons for? The two on the back of a man's coat? Don't laugh. Every woman would like to know. One was used long ago to hitch up the sword, and the other one, well, that was to match it. Sandals and tunics belong to another age, but their influence is still felt, and tradition colors our lives.

Mental impressions, like coral reefs, were built up gradually, and it takes an earthquake to shake them. Some will tell you they are conservative, some say they have strong individuality, and but few will admit that this love of habit and custom has so much to do with the formation of character. It is a strong element, and we all have it. How about our language, rich with the memory of every century? And what of the awkward spelling, whose very ungainliness is dear to us from long association?

We could not alter anything here, we should lose so much and gain so little. Still, of course, moderation in all things is desirable. Why cling to customs that belong up garret with the old coats and swords? Why go on sewing up seams by hand, when the machine will do it in a fifth of the time? Or why continue to use Flavorings, four-fifths of the cost of which is represented by Alcohol, when you can get the concentrated stuff in powdered form, without a particle of Alcohol in its composition? We make them in all flavors, too. Ask your grocer for them, or if your search for them in your neighborhood is fruitless, send us 50 cents, and we will mail you a 1-ounce bottle each of the Lemon and Vanilla Powders to try.

(Also Powdered Perfumes in Satin Packets, sent by mail for 30 cents.)

C. A. MANN & CO., 48 Murray St., NEW YORK

THE UNION SIGNAL

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

"THOU HAST GIVEN A BANNER TO THEM THAT FEAR THEE; THAT IT MAY BE DISPLAYED BECAUSE OF THE TRUTH."

Vol. XVI.—No. 24.] CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, June 12, 1890. [Price $1.50 per Year.

CONTENTS OF THIS NUMBER.

NEWS NOTES AND EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.
EDITORIAL ARTICLES: Our Canadian Sisters—The Call From Nebraska—A Few Fallacies 8, 9
WATCH-TOWER: 9
CONTRIBUTED: Poem, He Could but Cannot, by Mrs. George Archibald—Who Killed Him? by Gypsie Traine—The Liquor Traffic on the "West Coast" of Africa and in the "Congo Independent State," by Mary Clement Leavitt—The Eight-Hour Movement, by Edward W. Bemis—The Pure in Heart, by Mary A. Allen, M. D. 2, 3, 4
CORRESPONDENCE: A Morning in a Cincinnati Police Court—The Shut-In Society—Temperance Temple Items. 4, 5
WORLD'S W. C. T. U.: The New President of the B. W. T. A.—Our Round-the-World Missionary in the Dark Continent 4, 5
OUR CHILDREN: Poem, The L d of Fresh Air—"A Day in the Country"—How Larry Forgave 6
THE STILL HOUR: Topic for the Week Beginning June 22, 1890 6
THE HOUSEHOLD: Poem, Maternity—How Miss Hildreth Helped a Little—To Mothers—The Tone the Household
NEWS FROM THE FIELD: Michigan, Missouri, California, Illinois, Georgia, Wyoming, Montana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Nebraska—News in a Nutshell. 10, 11, 12
OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS: Sch of Methods—Work Among Foreigners—Woman's Lecture Bureau 12
PUBLISHER'S DEPARTMENT: 13, 14, 15
SIGNAL NOTES: 16

SINCE OUR LAST ISSUE.

President Carnot has released the Duke of Orleans.

An hundred and seventy-five papers in Nebraska have come out for prohibition.

Miss Tennant, who this week becomes Mrs. Henry Stanley, is a descendant of Cromwell.

Governor Hill has signed the bill exempting editors and reporters of New York from jury duty.

Chinese gamblers in New York have offered $1,000 each for the heads of Anthony Comstock's Chinese spies.

McGill University, Montreal, has just received a quarter million dollars from Sir Donald Smith, to establish a woman's branch.

Speaker Read was renominated for Congress by acclamation, by his constituency, the Republicans of the first district of Maine.

Segwald A. Quale, of Eau Claire, Wis., bequeaths $1,000,000 to found a hospital for cripples and deformed persons at Madison.

The annual report of the American Tract Society shows receipts for the year $322,268; six periodicals are published, with an aggregate circulation of 2,413,600.

It has been ascertained that the vandalism of painting the statue of the founder of Harvard University, red, was perpetrated by three seniors, a junior, and a sophomore, all members of leading college clubs.

Election returns show that wherever in England women were candidates for Poor Law Guardians they received large votes. There are now thirty-six in London, an increase of eight over last year, and one hundred in the country.

The Czar, in response to a personal appeal from the Queen of Denmark, promises strict inquiry into reported outrages in Siberia, that officials found guilty shall be punished, and that measures for general amelioration shall be inaugurated.

The management of the Shore Line road have decreed that on the new day express from Boston to Philadelphia there shall be no smoking apartments in the parlor cars; the order is given in consideration to the women passengers. Thanks, gentlemen.

Dr. Forster, director of the Ophthalmic University of Breslau, Germany, declares that three hundred cases of short-sightedness which he has studied are caused by the pressure of tight collars upon the muscles and blood-vessels of the neck, disturbing the circulation of the blood.

The Russian government refuses to accept the millions offered by Baron Hirsch to be appropriated to education in which Jewish children have a share; the Baron now proposes to send $120,000 annually to this country to be expended in educating Jews who have been driven from Russia.

The official organ of the Norwegian Total Abstinence Society says that the (Lutheran) bishop, all the ministers in Christiania, and five professors of theology signed a petition to the city council of Christiania asking that the sale of beer and wine may be prohibited from five o'clock Saturday p. m. to eight o'clock Monday morning. The Sabbath sale of whisky is already prohibited.

THE Manual of the Social Purity Department, prepared by Miss Willard and her Associate Superintendents, is now ready. Fuller notice of it will be given later.

AT the close of a temperance address given by Mrs. S. M. Perkins, at Green Bay, Wis., June 1st, one of the ministers thanked the speaker, but said "rather hard on us ministers who temporize the evil." "Well, don't temporize, then," was the reply, "read Ezekiel 18th, 3d. The watchmen on the walls have a solemn mission."

WE hoped to have full accounts of the annual meeting of the B. W. T. A. before going to press, but have not yet received it. This dispatch comes from M. E. Docwra: "The British Women's Temperance Association in council send loving and enthusiastic greetings to Miss F. E. Willard, as President of the W. C. T. U., and especially congratulate her on her reëlection as President of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Association."

A SUBSCRIBER sends a circular from a certain hotel in Nebraska which keeps a bar. Besides this, it has worked up quite a business in supplying families with "pure wines and liquors." After lauding the character of its goods, it adds significantly, "We send no goods C. O. D., each order must be accompanied by the cash." Bread and butter, potatoes and meat may be bought on credit, but death and the elements of destruction are dealt out "for cash only" by this enterprising firm.

A WORKING man in a western town where high license had been voted in and prohibition voted out, came to a physician saying, "You know doctor that I paid up all my back debts to you, at the grocery, and all around town, but the saloons are coming, and I shall go back to drink, not because I want to; the Lord knows I want the very opposite. But I feel I shall start in again because I have not the moral courage to resist, and the door is open before me." His experience is that of millions who are going to destruction this day.

MRS. MARY T. LATHRAP spoke to a large audience in Portland, Me., waking them up as is her wont. She said that the drinking classes were never so far from the churches as to-day. We must bring politics into our religion and religion into politics before we can solve the liquor problem. It is a National question and we must look to Government for its settlement, because moral suasion unaided has proved inadequate. Men are bought and sold in the shambles of the liquor traffic, which has its hand in murderous assault on the throat of the Republic.

A FUNNY typographical error occurred in the newspaper report of the Dominion Convention, from which we make up our account on page 8. In conducting the Parliamentary Drill, Miss Willard, after explaining the nature and form of a motion, said, "Now, I'll be teetotally dumb, and you will begin to make motions." Imagine the feelings of the President of the World's W. C. T. U. when she read in next morning's paper, that Miss Willard declared, "Now, I'll be teetotally drunk." We hope the papers will not try to make a case against her by quoting this as her firm determination, though to do so would be no more ridiculous than their representations in the "little pills" case.

A DAINTY box came to this office through the mail and on opening it we saw two beautiful prohibition badges, such as are advertised in our columns by W. J. Pettis, Providence, R. I. One of them bore on its bar the letters "W. C. T. U.," and was, as the accompanying letter said, for Miss Willard; the other bore the words, "UNION SIGNAL" and was for "ye editor." She at once put it on and proudly wears it as the only pin of the kind she has seen that seemed worthy to be worn with the white ribbon. It speaks of a united temperance army, for all who believe in prohibition can wear it, and thus it becomes a bond of union. It is beautiful in design and workmanship, as appropriate for a lace pin for ladies as for the lapel of a gentleman's coat.

THE committee on Platform of the Texas Prohibition convention failed to agree on a suffrage plank; a minority report was brought in taking strong ground in favor of woman's ballot. This brought out an earnest debate concerning which the Fort Worth Gazette says: "The minority report was ably supported, the women making the best speeches on the floor of the convention." The vote on tabling the minority report stood yeas, 29, nays, 25, a decided gain since the convention two years ago, when the majority against suffrage was 59. The following plank was adopted: "We recognize in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union a powerful ally in the battle for temperance and Prohibition, and bid them Godspeed in their noble and self-sacrificing labors."

ALICE MAY DOUGLAS has lately written a book, "Gems without Polish," in the interest of the Fresh Air Fund. It is the spicy story of the experiences of a party of city waifs who, through the beneficent workings of the Fresh Air Societies, become acquainted with the, to them, unknown delights of country fields and woods. A list of societies doing this work is given, and this list Miss Douglas wishes to make as complete as possible. That it may be so she asks all unions that have a "Country Week," or "Fresh Air" department, to report to her at once, at Bath, Maine, that they may be included in the revised list of the second edition of her book. "Gems without Polish" is published by Hunt & Eaton, New York and Cincinnati, $1.25.

THE "Coffee Palace," a restaurant and lodging-house under the charge of the Minneapolis W. C. T. U., has had a unique experience. It was so successful that other restaurant keepers were alarmed, and called a meeting to consider the matter. The chivalric brotherhood resolved that the women's restaurant ought to be boycotted, because it was taking away their business by trading on the sentiment in favor of the work of the W. C. T. U. A committee was chosen to issue a manifesto to the public, proving that the "Coffee Palace" was not doing a straightforward, legitimate business, and that their business was being ruined. There was some talk of appeal to the city council, but the matter seems to have stopped there. The manager writes: "It was a grand advertisement for us, and I wish they would try it again!" What a pity it is, to be sure, when women succeed in any business venture! Suppose it had been a man who had "run out" the others, one wonders if they would have "resoluted," then.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW received a grand ovation on the occasion of his delivering the annual address before the Chicago Press Club. The Auditorium was crowded with an enthusiastic audience that very soon became a delighted one, as his musical voice penetrated every part of the vast audience room. The theme assigned him was "The World's Fair," and he remarked that in one light he might appear as a captive chained to the chariot wheels of his conqueror, but a broader and more generous conception was that, after a healthy and friendly rivalry, we are now all equally earnest and enthusiastic for a phenomenal success of the Columbian Fair. "New York has no animosities, no jealousies, no enmities, and I am here to say that all that it is in her power to do will be done for the exhibition in Chicago: The Columbus Quadri-Centennial Celebration will be the only one within recorded time in which all the world can cordially and fraternally unite. It is not sacrilege to say that the two events to which civilization to-day owes its advanced position, are the introduction of Christianity and the discovery of America. The dynamic forces of our Christian faith, in the destruction of the buttresses of bigotry and oppression, and the leveling up of the masses to common rights, could never have worked such marvelous results, except for the opportunities of a new country and an untrammeled population." He paid a beautiful tribute to Isabella, saying that it was a happy omen of what America would do for woman, that when statesman and prelate alike had rejected the appeal of Columbus as visionary, and the King had dismissed it with chilling courtesy, Isabella comprehended the discoverer's idea, saw the opportunities of his success, appreciated the magnitude of the results to her throne and to the world, and pledged not only her royal favor, but her fortune and her jewels to the enterprise. The American woman, with her property rights guaranteed by American law, with her equal position and independence, with her unequaled opportunities for higher education and for usefulness, can say with pride to her brother, her lover, and her husband, "You owe America to me."

Contributed.

HE COULD BUT CANNOT.

BY MRS. GEORGE ARCHIBALD.

He was one of the fellows
That can drink or leave it alone,
With a fine, high scorn for common men,
Who are born with no back-bone.
"And why'" said he, "should a man of strength,
Deny to himself the use
Of the pleasant gift of the warm, red wine,
Because of its weak abuse?"

He could quote at a banquet,
With a manner half divine,
Full fifty things the poets say
About the rosy wine;
And he could sing a spirited song
About the lips of a lass,
And drink a toast to her fair young worth
In a sparkling, generous glass.

And since this lordly fellow
Could drink or leave it alone,
He chose to drink at his own sweet will,
'Till his will was overthrown.
And the lips of his lass are pale with grief,
And her children shiver and shrink,
For the man who once could leave it alone
Is the pitiful slave of drink.

Elmira, N. Y.

WHO KILLED HIM?

BY GYPSIE TRAINE.

"What's the bill to-night, boys, bourbon or champagne? How's this? Glasses still down?

'Fill the bumper fair!
Every drop we sprinkle
O'er the brow of Care
Smooths away a wrinkle.'

I wonder how much English brandy Moore had drunk when he wrote that! Try a swig of this modern grief-quencher, friend Ellsworth, and see how quickly it will chase away the frowns from that handsome face of yours."

"Thank you, I do not drink."

"Then, in the name of Bacchus, what are you in here for?"

"Hold on, Stone! Let Ellsworth alone, will you? He is my guest," said Edgar Strathclyde.

"Your guest! Does that honor give him the privilege of teaching us morals? Here's to The Jolly Bachelors' Club. Now let's see who will dare refuse to drink."

"That's the right talk," was the quick approval. "All hands fill. It'll be a cold night for cranks."

"Boys, this is'nt fair," expostulated Strathclyde. "I say Ellsworth shall drink or not, just as he pleases."

"I—I will take a glass," said the nervous guest, paling as he held out his hand for the goblet.

"One glass can't hurt you," said his friend in a low tone, and they will not urge you further."

Ellsworth's hand shook, as he raised the cup of fire to his lips, half dropped, then with a swift motion the glass was drained and replaced on the table.

"Not a very young cub, I reckon," laughed Stone. "I couldn't empty a glass neater myself."

"You are right. I haven't dared to touch a drop of liquor, or even smell it, for two years; and God knows if I had thought it would be part of your game to-night, I should have refused to come. But now I am ready to put myself against you. Fill again, and we will see which is the better man."

It was in vain for Strathclyde to remonstrate with his wine-crazed friend. Not till half unconscious, could Ellsworth be persuaded to go home.

This scene was enacted in one of the new towns of the West. The company was mixed as always happens in these sections of rapid growth. Ellsworth was a barber, Stone, a lawyer, Strathclyde, a banker. As a regular patron of Ellsworth, Strathclyde had a good opportunity of studying the man with whom he felt sure there was some mystery connected. He judged from the barber's conversation that he had had good social and educational advantages. Ellsworth always evaded any reference to his past life. He kept good company, and avoided the usual haunts of gay, young men. For once he had accepted Strathclyde's invitation to attend a meeting of the Jolly Bachelor's Club. That night's revel swept overboard the good rosolutions, the courage, the strength acquired in two years of earnest effort toward reformation. As the weeks and months went on Ellsworth fell more and more under the influence of drink. One day, after a prolonged debauch, Stone met him on the street and said:

"Why will you make a beast of yourself? A man must be blamed weak who will keep his mouth to the spigot, after he knows he ought to stop."

Ellsworth looked at him in silence for a minute, then pointing to a new building just going up, said:

"You see that fellow on the scaffolding yonder? He is within an inch of the edge; you think it would be a mighty mean man who would disturb his balance; but you did that thing for me; I was just learning to steady myself on the platform of total abstinence, when your cursed intemperance threw me back into the gutter. Perhaps you wonder why I always have some excuse for not shaving you. Do you know that I almost lose control of myself every time I look into your cold, sneering eyes? Beware of placing yourself in my power!"

"See here, old fellow, I had no idea it was so bad as that; I did wrong, I own, but if you have pulled yourself up once, why can't you do it again?"

"Why can't I! That is good. Suppose you had a wife whom you loved, but had outraged and abandoned; suppose the day was near when you thought you might return and say, 'I have redeemed myself; I am a man once more. Forgive the old wrong and let us be happy again;' suppose at this time some hound of Satan wilfully tripped you, and left you despairing, helpless. If this cur should say to you, a poor, broken cripple, 'pull yourself together again,' what would be your answer?"

"I would say, 'Let me give you a sound drubbing, and then if you'll help, I'll try! Come, shan't we be friends, and won't you let me help you?"

"What would your help amount to? The very smell of your breath would rouse the craving for liquor."

"For your sake, I will give up all strong drink, if I can undo the mischief I have wrought."

"Too late," the poor inebriate muttered, as he turned and went into his shop.

So it proved. All his earnings went for drink, and he was frequently under arrest for intoxication. Finally one cold December day, he was picked up from the street drunk, and sent to the lock-up, where he stayed all that bitter night with no fire. Somebody was to blame? Yes, but it was only a drunkard who had to suffer.

The next day it was necessary to call a doctor, who soon found that he had a fatal case of pneumonia on his hands.

In feverish pain the sick man lies in one of the upper rooms of a cheap hotel. Now and then a servant maid looks in upon him and administers the medicine. Two are at this moment leaving the room.

"How quiet he is!" one whispers to the other.

"Yes, he breathes easier. I guess he's better."

The patient is alone. The phantom fingers of the western sun are slowly creeping toward the one window lighting the dingy room. See! they have reached the bed, felt their way over the quiet form, and are now gently touching the drawn, pallid face, throwing over the sin-marred features a veil of tender purity. There is a slight tremor; the eyes languidly open; the stiffening hands with wavering motion stretch out toward the unseen a look of glad recognition and peaceful content spreads over the face; a feeble whisper, "Elfried—Grace"—and all is over. Ellsworth, the drunken barber, is dead.

Among his papers they found the signature, Reibert Schule. This was thought to have been his real name. No clue to his family was obtained.

At his funeral the pall-bearers were conveyed in a cheap carry-all. Behind the dark hearse was a single team, occupied by kind-hearted hotel domestics. On the coffin lay an exquisite floral offering from the sorrowing man who had thoughtlessly tempted him to his ruin.

"Well, Ellsworth has gone under," one of the members of the Jolly Bachelor's Club remarked the next day.

"Yes," said another. "It's a pity he should have been so weak-kneed. I wonder if his name really was Schule. A Mrs. Schule and daughter Grace are reported in the list of those burned to death in the ——— fire last week. Somebody ought to make inquiries."

Somebody generally means nobody. So far as known, no inquiries were made as to the truth of this suspicion, nor did any one think to ask, "Who killed him"?

Aberdeen. S. Dak.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC ON THE "WEST COAST" OF AFRICA AND IN THE "CONGO INDEPENDENT STATE."

BY MARY CLEMENT LEAVITT.

(Concluded.)

To show that I do not speak too strongly of the evil influence of traders and officials in Africa, I will quote a few sentences from an English tourist, Mr. Thomson, not a missionary:

The truth of the matter is that our trading stations on the west coast of Africa, instead of being centers of beneficent and elevating influences, have been in the past, breeding spots which have infected with a blighting and demoralizing poison the whole country round. . . . They (the trading stations) have been sources of corruption, whose men have coined money out of the moral and physical ruin of the nations and tribes they have supplied. . . . With the stoppage of the slave trade, the gin traffic only received a more powerful stimulus.

I doubt not Mr. Thomson would allow as gladly as I do, that there are officials and traders to whom the above does not apply.

As the first of the more important measures that should be adopted, we should not consider that the useful doctrine of non-interference in European politics, requires us, at the threshold of the twentieth century, with our seventy million of people, to keep to non-interference in affairs that touch the welfare and salvation even, moral and physical, of weak or ignorant eastern nations. In the prosecution of the anti-slavery reform we did not trammel ourselves with that doctrine. At the request of England our ships joined with hers in exterminating the West Coast slave trade. May our new, splendid and swift steel men of war, soon find a similar employment on the East Coast.

Not only should we give up the policy of non-interference, but we should see that it is our inestimable privilege to take the lead in the practical application of the great Christian law of the brotherhood of all mankind. If a hundred years ago we were ourselves too near infancy to be able to take this position, surely to-day our limbs are long enough, if they are not very well rounded, to enable us to stretch out a powerful arm to protect the weak little ones, or the decrepit old ones of the family of nations.

I agree with Mr. Hornaday in his declaration that it is the duty of the government to call a conference of European nations in Washington, and to place the case of Madagascar, of Africa, of India and Burma, of China and Japan, before it and demand that there be no intoxicating liquors sent to them. Nay, I would go beyond, and demand that all alcoholic liquors be contraband of trade outside the limits of the country where they are made. This is a subject for international conference and agreement, bearing the same relation to national manufacture of and trade in alcoholic liquors that the action of England in regard to the slave trade did to slavery in America. It is quite time that our shameful record in regard to the islands of the Pacific should be changed. Doubtless that record is mainly to be laid at the door of one man, but the nation rests under the odium of it. It is true that our record in Madagascar is an honorable one, and one in which I greatly rejoice; but I fear that it would have been blotted before now, had there been a possibility of competing with the rum of Mauritins. But with how much more force would such an appeal to other nations come, if first we shohld do what we ought, and forbid the exportation of any alcoholic liquors. Should we take the position that we ought, the high moral and Christian stand that other nations must not be demoralized or destroyed for our own financial advantage, with what deference other nations would be obliged to listen to us! And if we could then point to a vast domain prosperous in every department, where drink is not made nor used, we might be pioneers in regard to moral emancipation, as we have been in political freedom.

Surely America is rich enough, not to miss the few millions she receives from foreign countries for drink. It would be well if the money invested in making rum for Africa, should take the the place of some of that English capital that is creeping into nearly all manufactures, that is investing largely in land which the purchasers never intend to live upon nor cultivate. Do not Americans see that in the near future Englishmen will be drawing millions of revenue from this country? Now is the time to prevent it, and to exchange capital from distilleries of rum for Africa, to factories, to canneries, to mines. Such changes would leave clean money, not fraught with fearful temptations.

For one, I must say that I am not averse to Englishmen investing in our breweries. They have every opportunity to know the growth of prohibitory sentiment, and to see how it is materializing in law, though all too slowly for our own peace and prosperity, and if they will read and hear only one side, and allow themselves to be beguiled into putting their money into a business upon the point of being swept out of existence by the righteous indignation of an injured peopie, I shall not shed tears for them. Indeed, I think we may find less opposition to voting the brewers out of existence because they are alien institutions.

If such action as is indicated above is the duty of Americans, women can not and will not fail to do their part. We are allowed to talk, at home, at afternoon teas, at social evenings. We may speak and pray in church prayer-meetings, and in many pulpits. All platforms are eager to secure us. Can we look upon our own children, and fail to talk for them and the greatest evil that blocks their way? As I have travelled from country to country, as I have had children of every race and nearly every nation that inhabits the globe, gathered before me, and have realized that black, brown, yellow and white differ only as red, yellow and white roses differ, I have felt more and more the full force of our obligation as women to take care of the children of the world.

I do not know what theologians will think of my exegsis of the following words. I think I shall not weep if some do not agree with me, but every time I think of earth's millions of children to be ruined by drink, I hear God's voice sounding down the ages from that cool morning by the banks of the Nile, "Take this child and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages." It is not a magnificent princess speaking to an eager little slave girl; it is Almighty God speaking to us, to us, women of America, nay of the whole world, in this nineteenth century, and calling us to our great work. Oh, it is heart-breaking to see the children, as I often do, in unending procession, in my hours of overworn wakefulness, going on into the unsuspected snares that will destroy them; snares offered by men from Christian countries, and by the sanction of majorities in Christian America, the most Christian land in all the world! And women will not cry out; women will not storm legislative halls demanding, not praying, for the legislation needed. Nay, women will not ask the ballot, that would enable them to wipe out this crime before two years have passed away. And good men pray, "Thy kingdom come," and then won't take the help of women who want to bring it in. God help us to bring it in. God help us to be as earnest and forceful as consuming fire, and as gentle and patient with the obstinacy and blindness that hinders the coming of peace and good-will, as we want the dear God to be with our own hardness and blindness.

THE EIGHT-HOUR MOVEMENT.

BY EDWARD W. BEMIS.
Professor of Economics and History in Vanderbilt University.

Do you believe in eight hours for a day's work? What would be its effect on wages? What on those now unemployed, on employers and the rest of us? Can it be secured? Such are the questions now being asked on every side. Economists are not agreed upon the answer, although most of them look with favor upon a shorter day. Despite all differences of opinion, the following positions seem to the writer to be well established.

1. A reduction of the day to eight hours would advance the intelligence, morality and happiness of the worker, and therefore is to be advocated unless the economic argument against it is strong. To be sure, man seems better off, and becomes more energetic and civilized when obliged to devote most of his time to labor, than when able to live lazily by one hour's daily labor of appropriation of tropical fruits, as in equatorial regions. But man in America, in this rushing nineteenth century, is a widely different person from his savage brother of the tropics, and may be safely trusted to retain his ambition and energy, however much improvement may occur in his present condition. No fact of social science is better established than that more hours of leisure will mean to the average laborer, not more drink or dissipation, but less of it. Leisure means more hours for his labor organizations, an undoubted benefit in more ways than one, more hours, too, for study and discussion of those questions most vital to him, such as taxation, labor legislation, ballot reform, etc. More time is also had and used for innocent and healthful recreation, and for homestaying. A minority will haunt the saloon, but the great majority will be made better for society and for citizenship by this leisure. But how about the more strictly industrial results of the change to eight hours? This is the point of controversy which will be referred to later.

2. The eight-hour day is neither very possible nor very desirable among those engaged in agricultural, personal, and professional service, which departments in 1880 comprised over sixty-seven per cent of all labor. Those engaged in out-door farm pursuits, in housework with its frequent opportunities for change and brief rest, or in congenial professional work, do not need or want an eight-hour day half as much as those engaged in dreary, monotonous tending of machines, in mine labor, or in rapid use of edge tools in mechanical pursuits. Similarly, many of the one-third classed by the census as engaged in trade, transportation, manufacturing, mechanical and mining pursuits do not desire or need less than the present hours of labor. Such are probably sailors and most traders and dealers, exclusive of clerks. About one-fourth of the present population engaged in gainful pursuits, or say five million persons, belong to the class that would be most directly benefited by the success of the eight-hour movement. To this class, then, we will especially direct attention, not forgetting the indirect interest of others.

3. Wages would not fall or employers be injured if the efficacy of labor should increase with the decrease in hours so that one would do as much in an eight-hour day as now in ten hours. Whether the efficiency of labor would thus increase is uncertain. When the hours of labor in the factories of Massachusetts were reduced from eleven to ten some fifteen or more years ago, the daily product per operative soon became as great as before, and as great as in New Hampshire which continued the eleven-hour plan a little longer. The same favorable experience is claimed on the reduction from ten to nine hours in the English textile factories. Of course there must be a point somewhere, below which a reduction in hours will reduce the daily product, but that point is as yet undetermined. It undoubtedly varies with the century, the occupation, and the the country. A prominent civil engineer tells me that he finds that men can do as much with edge tools in eight hours as in ten, since in eight hours they reach the limit of their strength. Mr. Lewis Miller, president of the Chautauqua Assembly, and a large manufacturer of agricultural implements in Akron, O., reports to Professor Ely a similar experience after over two years' trial in his works. Some others say the same, still others deny the economy of the shorter day in their special lines of business.

4. Admitting, as many do, that the average workman in most machine industries will not do as much in eight hours as now in ten, wages will be less likely to fall than either prices to rise or profits to fall. This for the reason that a strong factor in keeping up wages is the customary standard of living, and therefore the customary demands of the wage receiver. This standard does not readily change, and wages having once conformed themselves to it are likely to remain about as now, if the burden can possibly be shifted upon either prices or interest or capital. That it can be so shifted unless the decline in productivity is greater than seems probable has been well shown by Sidney Webb in the Contemporary for last December. A slight rise in the prices of the goods made in the eight-hour day would largely fall upon the three-fourths of the population whose hours, as shown above, would remain unchanged, and who necessarily consumes much of the product of the other one-fourth, giving their own in exchange. The amount of wealth now wasted in excessive luxury is so great as to indicate that a slight rise in the price of goods or reduction in interest would scarcely effect the business of a community. As to the ethics of such a mild gain to the wage-earner at the expense of others, usually better off, the important considerations should not be overlooked that hitherto the wage-earner has hardly had his share of the benefits of the wonderful inventions and improvements of the century. Society can well afford to share a little more generously with him now.

5. An argument for a shorter day more often used than most of the above, but apparently of more doubtful merit, is that employment will thereby be given to the million or so at present unemployed without any loss to those now at work. This is the argument of Gunton in his able work, "Wealth and Progress," and of a writer—Macdonald—in the April number of the Nineteenth Century. The contention is that those now idle will at first be employed in order to keep up present production, and that these new workers will much increase their present consumption of goods the moment they can afford to, which means an increased market for goods. Now a manufacturer who can increase his sales twenty or ten per cent can better utilize machinery, can turn over his capital oftener, and can thus make more and afford to give ten hours' pay for eight hours' work.

There may be something in this argument, but no permanent provision of employment can be secured to all as long as immigration is free to the unskilled labor of Europe. The constant glut of labor in our large cities is partly due to this crowding thither of those from abroad whose low standards of living enable them to accept low wages and take the place of American workmen, who are often too poor and ignorant themselves to rise to better occupations. It used to be said that, when the American factory girl in New England was displaced by the Irish, and the latter in turn by the French Canadian, the displaced worker found better employment higher in the industrial scale. Unfortunately, this has by no means been the universal rule. There are other and deeper causes for such conditions of slack trade as were responsible in Massachusetts in 1887, a prosperous year, for the enforced idleness of 90 per cent of the third of the laboring population, who were idle one-third of the year. There is no full agreement even among economists as yet, as to what these causes are, and to what extent and how they may be remedied, but new light on the subject is constantly being secured.

In view of all this, we may well endorse the position of the president of the last British Trades Union Congress in his annual address: "No one will assume that the enactment of an eight-hour day will be a permanent adjustment of the social machine, but it is a step in the right direction—a stopgap until such time as education shall have spread the light, and enabled the people to grapple with, and sweep away, the real cause of the oppression of labor."

It remains to consider briefly the history of this movement for a shorter work-day. Thorold Rogers finds that eight hours was the day's work even of farm-hands in England in the latter half of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, but was gradually abolished by magistrates, composed of employers exclusively, who were given the legal control of wages and conditions of employment from the time of Henry VIII. This was the period when a debased coinage, seizure by the king of the guild funds, enclosure of common lands by robber landlords, and adoption of sheep-raising, which required but few laborers, had destroyed the latter's power of resistance. Since that time thirteen and fourteen hours seems to have been usual until the demands of labor organizations, factory acts applied to the work of women and children, public opinion and the enlightened self-interest of employers have slowly reduced the labor of all women and of children under eighteen years in manufacturing and commercial establishments to sixty hours a week, and in textile factories to fifty-six hours, though the latter actually work but fifty-four hours. In other employments adult males so frequently work over-time as to make eleven hours more nearly than nine the actual day's toil of unskilled and unorganized labor. This has led to a growing demand for government compulsion, so as to secure eight hours in mines, railroads, gas-works, street-car lines and any other works in England, but this demand has not yet been indorsed by a majority of even the workers most concerned. On the continent eleven and even twelve hours prevail, but there is a rapidly growing demand for at least ten hours in the case of all women and young persons from twelve to eighteen. Such a rule necessarily reduces to the same length of toil all men working with these.

The present agitation in Europe, however, seems to owe its chief impulse to the action of the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention in St. Louis in 1888, when the first of May, 1890, was appointed as the time for demanding the eight-hour day. But the leaders of this Federation expect to reach the goal slowly, one trade at a time, just as the ten-hour instead of the twelve to fourteen-hour day, common in the United States in the forties, has been gained. The plan of Mr. Powderly for a reduction of a half-hour yearly for four years seems fair, and has been adopted by the Union Pacific Railroad. The great success of the eight-hour day in Australia gives much force to the movement here. Beginning in 1855 with the victorious demands of a few trades' unions in the far-off continent of the South Pacific, whose people and industrial conditions somewhat resemble our own, the eight-hour day has become almost universal, and Mr. Charles Dilke, in his "Problems of Greater Britain" shows what satisfaction this change has given to all classes of society. In New York state in 1887 and 1888, there were 197 strikes that were followed by a reduction in the hours of work, and only seventy that were followed by an increase, while 1181 strikes brought no change in hours, and in most cases sought none, but only in wages or other conditions of employment. In Massachusetts there were one successful and 412 partly successful, with only twelve unsuccessful strikes for reduction of hours of labor in 1886, the last year of which full returns are available.

It is not likely that many hundred thousand of our five or more million wage earners in manufacturing, mechanical and mining pursuits will gain the full reduction they hope for during the next three years, but time is long and all indications point to ultimate success. Consumers may at first have to pay slightly higher prices, capitalists perhaps content themselves with slightly lessened returns, but soon increased efficiency will follow, and, best of all, the workman will enjoy more of the benefits of advancing civilization, and will have a better chance of learning his true economic and political interests in questions of taxation, monopoly, labor legislation and public education, and of acquiring also the power to secure these interests.

Nashville, Tenn.

THE PURE IN HEART.

BY MARY A. ALLEN, M. D.

"True conscious honor is to feel no sin, He's armed without, that's innocent within."
—Pope.

Ignorance and innocence are often wrongly deemed synonymous. The innocence which results only from ignorance is no virtue. The purity of the child is that of the mountain lake, which has never seen anything to reflect but the brightness of sunny skies, and the whiteness of snowy peaks. The purity of manhood is like that of the ocean, which in spite of inevitable contact with sullying influences, by virtue of its own inherent constituents, and by ever laying open its heart to heavenly agencies, maintains its healthfulness and purity. We have believed fully in the innocence of true womanhood, but have thought it best maintained in sheltered security; and because man must mingle in the world, must hear and see much of evil, we have thought it inevitable that he become sullied, and have felt justified only in hoping that he might retain a comparative virtue. The slightest smirch upon the robes of our daughter has given us untold anguish; but if our son's purity was tarnished, we have said, "We must expect it. He will outgrow it." And so society has grown into opposing ranks; the defenseless, whose honor must be stainless, and defenders, alas, not wholly, but too often offenders whose boast is that they have slain the weak and innocent, who had no one to defend them. Do they ever think that in so doing they may have slain those who will have a right to demand of them support and defense; those who will be dearer to them than life?

No man is so low that he will not resent a wrong to sister, mother or wife, yet what man so wise and noble that he will in every way protect his own daughter? Not that he will directly do her harm, but by sullying his own manhood will defraud her of her rightful inheritance. The stain upon a girl's honor may have filtered through her father's blood, a sediment from the days when he was carelessly "sowing his wild oats," little recking the bitter harvest he should reap. A man bereft of an arm or a leg hesitates to offer the remnant of his physical manhood to the woman he loves, but the man whose soul is stained with lust and impurity, does not hesitate to offer his marred real self to the girl whom he has chosen for her purity, nor does he hesitate to become the transmitter of his vices. He has only done as other men do; he has committed only those sins which in a man are soon forgotten. But God does not forget. The laws of inheritance do not recognize the "I will" of wedlock as a boundary line, but, reaching their clinging fingers back into the very youth of the parents, seize upon some almost forgotten vice or folly and bind it about the innocent necks of their children. In every form of temptation against purity of life or thought, "Take heed what doom against yourself you give."

Your children will be the living monuments that shall repeat in undeniable and unmistakable phraseology the history of your deeds, your words, yes, even the secret thoughts of your heart. "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." They shall see Him in the conscious blessedness of their own lives, and in the glory reflected upon them through their loved sons and daughters.

Correspondence.

A MORNING IN A CINCINNATI POLICE COURT.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—On the morning of the twelfth of May I spent an hour or more in a police court in the city of Cincinnati. Here are some of the things which I saw and heard and some things which I did not hear and yet which I deem worth hearing.

One of the first prisoners called, with a sadly bandaged head, answered the charge of disorderly conduct with a plea of not guilty and the explanation that he had seen his wife enter an assignation house and had gone in after her, when the police was called, and although the character of the place was known, he was brutally clubbed out of the house, and finally arrested. He uncovered his head to display the terrible marks of his clubbing.

The Court:—Officer, did you know the nature of this place?

Officer:—Yes, sir.

Court:—Did you arrest the inmates or the keeper?

Officer:—No, sir.

Court:—Did he tell you he was after his wife?

Officer:—He did.

Court:—The case is dismissed.

Then the bloody, bruised and disgraced husband left the court, and presumably the police officer returned to the work of protecting the criminal resorts of the city from the unwelcome calls of those whose lives are blasted by them.

Why should the public support a private bully to defend a public nuisance? Why it should do so would be hard to answer. Why it does do so is an easier question. There are votes in the vicious quarters.

Mrs. Mertz was called, together with a large company of other women. She was charged with keeping a house of ill repute, and the others with being inmates. The plea was, guilty. Several other groups of women came in answer to similar charges and the answer was always guilty. In passing sentence on the Mertz case the court made some remarkable statements in the course of his exposition of the law. In the other cases the same was substantially repeated with variations. The report of her case will answer for all.

The officer who had made the arrest testified that the place was one of the very worst resorts in the city; that he had known the place for ten years, and that its character had been very bad all this time, and that connected with the business of prostitution was also a saloon. None of these things were disputed. Then there was a consultation between the prosecutor, the judge, and the clerk, which lasted for some minutes and was followed by the deliverance here given by the judge, James D. Ermston:

The Court:—"Mrs. Mertz, it is the purpose of the prosecuting attorney to inaugurate a crusade against a certain class of houses. He will continue this policy as long as he is the prosecuting attorney, and he will be supported in it by this court so long as I am on the bench. It is his policy, a policy which the court fully indorses, that the saloon business and the business of prostitution shall be separated. Both are evils, necessary evils. The saloon is a respectable evil, the house of ill-fame has nothing respectable about it. The only thing respectable about a saloon is its recognition by the law. Should the legislature extend the same recognition to the business of prostitution it would become respectable in the same way that the saloon is said to be respectable. You can take your choice as to which line of business you will follow, and you are at perfect liberty to do either, but you cannot do both. There is not a respectable saloon-keeper in Cincinnati who will not support the court in this decision. Fined fifty dollars."

Among the other cases of a similar character were five women who answered the call by a written plea of guilty, which was presented by their attorneys in their absence. They were fined double the sum assessed like offenders who had, as the court said, "the courage (?) to come into court," and the attorneys were committed to jail until the fines should be paid. Among the attorneys so committed I noticed a former member of the state legislature. In all the cases, although the presence of men in the places which had been raided was frequently mentioned by the officers who had made the arrests, only women had been arrested.

In no case was any offense against the law emphasized, but whenever the court made explanation for its proceedings some other reason was assigned than the authority of the law, or the wrong of the offense itself. For instance, a man and woman were brought up for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. They had been found quarreling with a hack driver at three o'clock in the morning, over the price which should be paid for his all night services. It was remarked as they were fined five dollars each that it would have been less expensive to have paid the hackman his price. And in the defense of the policy of the court in dealing with disreputable houses, the authority of the law was at no time mentioned. In fact the law was distinctly abrogated by the declaration that they were "at perfect liberty" to conduct an unlawful business if they would do so according to the new policy of the court. If they would not submit to this new policy continuous prosecution was threatened, not because their business was unlawful or injurious, but on the ground of the support of "every respectable saloon keeper in Cincinnati."

That was a most valuable remark of the court in which an authoritative exposition of the meaning of "respectable" as applied to a "necessary evil," was given. According to the court between the saloon and the house of ill fame there is no inherent difference. Both are evils—necessary evils. The legislature has recognized this fact regarding the saloon by disgracing (?) it with a special tax and it is therefore respectable. It only remains for the legislature to extend a like recognition to the disreputable house and it becomes alike respectable as it is alike inherently evil. (So reasons a judge.)

Several hundred dollars in fines were assessed for some sort of offense in this connection. It could not have been for running a saloon. The law permits that. It could not have been for keeping a disreputable house. The court distinctly said they were at liberty to do so, notwithstanding the unlawful character of the business. It was for combining two lines of business. But the law nowhere forbids the combination. They were not fined for the offense which the law does forbid. They were fined for an offense which the law of Ohio does not recognize and which is held punishable not by the statute of the state but by the "policy of the prosecuting attorney." Or in other words here is a Cincinnati police court ignoring the laws which the people have enacted and enforcing laws of its own creation. It seems to be running a kind of a Cincinnati legislature of Ohio.

I will mention but one other question which occurred to me which may interest others as it did me. Why were men not arrested as well as women? Why were women fined a double sum who did not appear in court, while the men who were their companions in sin and crime were left to go on their lawless way unmolested? There are so many factors in this problem that I shall not undertake its solution. Still I venture the opinion that while the vicious man has a voice in the election of the officers of the law, and women, both vicious and virtuous, are voiceless in naming the authorities to whose rule they must submit, there will remain a discrimination against the voiceless woman in the administration of laws where she and her vicious brother are equally at fault.

Commenting on this session of Judge Ermston's court the Cincinnati Enquirer says:

"Judge Ermston merits the approval of the whole community for his rigid dealing with the low 'dives' which do so much to contaminate the young girls of the city and to foster vice in its most hideous shape. He is doing good work, and will be most heartily sustained in it."

That this court is not exceptionally bad but is exceptionally rigorous in its dealings with the criminal classes I can readily believe. That its policy of dealing at all with "vice in its most hideous shape," even though the orderly vicious remain untouched, is that much more than is usually undertaken is not to be denied. Still the reflection is forced upon us that ethics and not æsthetics, that moral conduct and not elegance and refinement in crime, is the end of the law, and farther, if such a court is to be especially noted for its "rigid dealing" and "good work" where, then, shall the ungodly appear?

Chicago. WALTER THOMAS MILLS.

THE SHUT-IN SOCIETY.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—This is an unorganized society consisting of invalid and associate members, but having no officers. The associate members are not all invalids, but include others who, in tender sympathy with the suffering, and believing that blessedness comes to both those who give and those who receive kindly ministrations, have volunteered in this ministry of love for "Jesus' sake." To be a sufferer, shut out from the world, constitutes one a proper candidate for invalid membership. This is secured by a subscription to the organ of the society, The Invalids' Visitor, which is fifty cents a year, through whose columns the many little wants of its members are made known, and pathetic, indeed, are some of them. There is sometimes a list of names and of birthday dates, and requests to be remembered by prayers or greetings, leaflets or letters, photographs or cards, so that the day may not pass unnoticed. Some of the requests are for correspondents. Contributions for scrap-books and leaflets give much pleasure. Many are thankful for pieces for quilts, and many others are grateful for reading matter. Much religious reading is distributed among those who desire it, and an ever-increasing correspondence is carried on for the comforting of the afflicted. Through the kind editor and publisher, wheeled chairs and reclining chairs are supplied to those who could not afford to buy them. Contributions of funds are, of course, always acceptable, but they are never solicited.

May I quote a few lines from a letter by a "shut-in?" Its lessons of patient suffering sank deep into my heart: "I have suffered so many years, and been perfectly helpless. I know full well the meaning of that word. We can not know the 'whys and wherefores,' but such a life must be in some way best for us, or our Father would open some other work for us to do. What a comfort I take in these words: 'They also serve who only stand and wait.' I do try very hard to wait patiently, and to keep my mind occupied with all the bright and cheerful things I can, and my hands, too, when I am able. I have found that if the thorn cannot be removed there is always grace given us to bear it. I have been an invalid twenty-one years, and have not walked nor sat up a day in all that time."

Hundreds of others equally pathetic are published in the Visitor. The fee for associate members is one dollar, one half of which is designed to furnish the magazine to invalid members unable to pay for it. The Invalids' Visitor is edited by one of the associate members, Mrs. Kate Sumner Burr, Williamson, N. Y., to whom all inquiries concerning the Band should be addressed. As there are no officers in this society, the associate members occupy places of equal importance and respect. This is not, properly speaking, an aid association, though many kind offices are performed for the needy. Though The Visitor is the especial organ of the invalid band, its list is not limited to the members, but any others are cordially invited to subscribe for it. F. G. H.

Chicago.

World's W. C. T. U.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF THE B. W. T. A.

DEAR UNION SIGNAL:—The British Women's Temperance Association has to-day unanimously and enthusiastically elected Lady Henry Somerset president for the coming year. I believe it may be truly said of her, as it was of Esther, that she has come to the kingdom for just such a time as this. She is peculiarly gifted in mind, manner, and person to be the leader of the great army of temperance women in Great Britain, and it is universally felt that she is God's gift to us to fill the place made vacant by the summons to her eternal home of our beloved and honored president, Margaret Bright Lucas.

Lady Henry Somerset is a deeply taught Christian, full of zeal in good works, and realising very fully that the source of her strength for all she may be called upon to do, is not in herself, but in the Lord alone. Her great natural gifts are all given up to the control and guidance of the Spirit of God, and we feel sure she will be endowed with divine wisdom in leading our temperance women forward in their work "For God and Home and Native Land."

A few biographical items will be of interest to her American sisters. Lady Henry Somerset was born in 1851, and was the daughter of Earl and Countess Somers, of Eastnor Castle, Ledbury, Herefordshire. At the death of her father, Earl Somers, there being no sons, she was treated as the eldest son and inherited the large family estates. In 1872 she married Lord Henry Somerset, the second son of the Duke of Beaufort.

Until in 1885 her life was passed in the gayest circles of England's most aristocratic society, and although she had always had many and deep longings after a spiritual life, she knew but little of divine things. In 1885, however, she turned her back on the world and went to Eastnor Castle to spend some months alone with the Lord. And here He revealed Himself to her as a present and complete Saviour, and from that time her life has been entirely devoted to His service.

The first temperance meeting she ever attended was in December, 1885, in the little village of Eastnor, at the gates of her castle, when she signed the pledge along with forty of the people on her own estate. Having devoted herself to the care of her tenants, her experience of the awful evils of intemperance among them has given her very strong convictions on the subject, and she feels she cannot devote her time and talents to any worthier cause than that of total abstinence.

I want to tell my dear American sisters, that Lady Henry Somerset reminds me in many ways of our own beloved Miss Willard, and I seem to foresee in her appointment as president of the B. W. T. A. an earnest of future triumphs that cannot be measured in our woman's temperance work, not only in England but in the world.

I must also add, what I know will delight the readers of THE UNION SIGNAL, that our new president feels the deepest sympathy with all our American methods, and is a warm admirer of our own Miss Willard. Some day I hope she will visit America, and then you will, I am sure, realize with me, that one of God's best boons has been bestowed upon us in a leader of such gifts and graces as Lady Henry Somerset. HANNAH WHITALL SMITH.

London, May 21, 1890.

OUR ROUND-THE-WORLD MISSIONARY IN THE DARK CONTINENT.

MY DEAR SISTERS:—I thought I had found the slowest of places in some parts of Asia, but after a brief experience of equatorial Africa, I must give it the palm in this respect. In the native estimation time is of no value, and the most energetic and stalwart Englishman, the most driving American soon learns to go at a slower pace than elsewhere. It would be well if all whose movements depend upon the natives were like Rev. Hoste, an English missionary. Whenever one of the unexpected, but usual halts for a "palaver" or anything else occurs, Mr. Hoste sits quietly down and writes a native hymn, or translates from the Bible.

As some reason for the slowness, there is no swifter mode of conveyance even in Freetown than man power. It seems most astonishing that in so old a town as this, and under English supervision, with 22,000 inhabitants, all transportation of goods and people is accomplished by men. A few horses are kept for pleasure riding, but there is not a vehicle in town except a few English "bath chairs," propelled by one or two men pushing behind, and steered by the rider, by means of a little wheel in front.

Before getting off for my country trip, a good committee was formed to arrange work, upon my return. When everything was ready and we expected the mission boat, we sat waiting from Monday to Thursday. I ought to explain that Rev. and Mrs. West had come up overland to meet me, and we with mission supplies were to go back in the boat. It was delayed by an accident and head winds, and possibly by the fact that there was no white man on board to urge them on.

A prosperous run to Shaingay of about seventy miles, first along the coast, then across the mouth of a bay, landed us at one of the most beautiful spots I have yet seen. It is a station of the mission of the United Brethren and has been under the care of Rev. Mr. Gomer and his wife, who are colored Americans, for more than twenty years. Mr. and Mrs. Wilberforce, and Mr. and Mrs. Bickersteth, all colored, are helpers or rather co-workers in the mission.

Friday evening, the next after our arrival, the chapel was well filled. Saturday morning, early, the women had a meeting, and one of them interpreted for me. Sunday morning a woman's meeting was held in the chapel at 7:30 and a W. C. T. U. organized. Mrs. Bickersteth, president; Miss Clark, Mr. Gomer's niece, secretary. I took service at eleven o'clock, spoke to the young men of the training school at two o'clock, to the Sunday-school at the close of the other, and in the evening service, and so finished a very pleasant series of meetings.

Wind and tide serving, we left for Rotifunk at ten o'clock the same evening. Our way lay back across the bay, but at an angle from our former course, which brought us to the mouth of a river, up which we were to go. In the brilliant moonlight, with the high tide filling all the space up to the foliage, the scene was most charming. But as the searching, revealing daylight came peering in and the tide slunk away before it, what slimy realms of horror stood revealed. Even the trees had mounted on stilts to escape the deadly slime. Like all African rivers this is broad and full. Soon we turned into a branch, the wind left us, and oars had to be substituted for sails. They were long sweeps, and the six men pulled with a will, after they got at it, and began to sing. It is said that they cannot row without singing. But the stream narrowed. The masts sometimes were caught in the branches above. The oars had to lie close to the sides of the boat, and a short, almost paddling motion only was possible. Then the bends in the stream came so often, the boat was almost too long to pass, and poling, shoving with the oars, pulling by branches, indeed any way to forge ahead a little, became the order.

All sorts of vines and shrubs had encroached upon this creek. Great arums, almost exactly like the Jack-in-the-pulpit, bamboo palms, convolvuli, passion flower, many new and beautiful or strange flowers, and over all the stately trees, so that we had but passing, checkered gleams of sun through the lace work of leaves. But this beautiful creek, even more than the loathly mangrove swamp on the broader river, is the home of malaria.

We arrived at 1 p. m., Monday, and rested till Tuesday morning. At seven o'clock women met, at eleven, children, and public lecture in the evening. Wednesday morning we organized a W. C. T. U. of about twenty members. At eleven o'clock I spoke to young men, and a White Cross Society will be the result, as also at Shaingay. The officers of the W. C. T. U. are Miss Groenendyke, president; Mrs. West, vice-president; Miss Williams, secretary; Mrs. Sage, treasurer. In the evening I gave another public lecture although I had fever all day.

Early the next morning we were all astir. At 6:30 good-byes had been said, and I was off. My trip had cost nothing, all the labor and expense having been borne by my kind friends, the Wests; but not content with this, they gave me, "from the missionaries" £4 or about twenty dollars. One pleasing incident was the decoration of the chapel where all my meetings were held, by the boys and young men of the school. They asked what they could do, what people did in America when a lady came from a distance to speak to them. "Decorate with branches and flowers," was the reply. As they lacked neither will, taste, nor material, the result was most pleasing. The bamboo palm lends itself wonderfully well to decorative purposes. "The School," "The Boys' Home," "The Girls' Home," "The Training School," the preaching at home and at out stations, are the principal lines of work.

This mission at all its stations does something in an industrial line for its pupils, and in the judgment of some, if not all, the missionaries, more ought to be done. In all missions to savage peoples, it seems to me there should be industrial departments, under the charge of pious, skilled laymen, not college graduates, much less D. D's. But in civilized countries like Japan, China, India, such schools would be worse than useless, they would be harmful.

As at Bomy, at the mouth of the Niger, I was especially gratified at Shaingay to find a station managed entirely by colored people. "They never will be able to take the lead," "They never succeed," "They have no qualities that will make them leaders," are phrases that one hears over and over again, so that every time there is a success I am very glad to see it. Doubtless with training in early life, and the results that come from generations of ancestors drilled in these lines, Africans will develop as many "leaders of men," as many capable managers of affairs, as other peoples have.

I had said that we started from Rotifunk at 6:30 a. m. Thursday. I lay in a hammock with a flat roof, or canopy over it, which was carried by four men, and a fifth man took the small amount of luggage I had with me. The path was mostly level, some of the way wide enough so that two men could "carry" abreast, again so narrow, and the bushes so grown up that a way was forced for the hammock with some difficulty, and it received considerable damage. I received warm welcome and hospitable entertainment at the house of Rev. Williams, English Wesleyan native pastor at Mobang, but rose quite unrefreshed the next morning, and went on my way. Rev. Williams set me across the river in native canoes. The road was better, the remainder of the way, but fever increased upon me, so that the day was one of much suffering. The night was spent at Waterloo, in the house of Rev. Mr. Taylor, Church of England, native pastor. Here, too, I was treated with the utmost kindness. The fever was not so bad Saturday, but it was with great joy that I saw the end of my journey.

Three services had been arranged for Sunday, one for Monday, and two each for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. I was scarcely equal to undertaking the work, but still I hoped to get through. In the midst of my discourse Sunday morning, I saw that I could not stand, and asked for a chair. It had to be brought from the next room; I grasped the altar rail and knew nothing more till I found myself sitting in the chair, Miss Dr. Harris with her fingers on my pulse, three ladies fanning me, and two pastors looking very much troubled. Dr. Harris told me afterwards, it was failure of the action of the heart, and that when the chair was brought, I had to be put into it. They tried to persuade me to stop then, but after a little, as my head felt clear, I concluded to finish, but I sat in the chair.

My temperature was 102 degrees when I reached home. In the afternoon "Wilberforce Memorial Hall," which holds nine hundred people was crowded with the older pupils of the Sabbath-schools. Full half were young men and women. Again I sat to give my address. After the evening service in one of the churches, I had a restless night, remained in bed most of the day, but spoke in Wilberforce Hall in the evening, sitting as before.

I felt, then, that my strength was spent, and although I did not say it, Dr. Harris forbade me to make another attempt. The fever left me Wednesday, and Sunday I began work again, feeling equal to standing for one service daily. On Sunday the hall was filled with young men, and at the close over one hundred promised to join a White Cross Society, which Bishop Ingham, Rev. Mr. Johnstone, and other missionaries and pastors promised to form. Monday and Tuesday mornings at 7:30 o'clock the same hall was filled with women, and on the latter morning a W. C. T. U. of ninety members was formed; Miss Dr. Harris, president; Miss Thompson (a granddaughter of Bishop Crowther), secretary, and Mrs. Robbin, wife of Archdeacon Robbin, treasurer.

I am in correspondence with a lady, now in England, who will be the most suitable National president for Sierra Leone, if she will take it. Her husband will not hinder her, as he was one of my most efficient helpers, and both have long been total abstainers. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings public lectures were given. I had been obliged to lie upon my bed a great part of the time during the day, and never felt less equal to the exertion I must make, so I was glad when the work was finished.

The audiences were composed almost entirely of colored people, and many of the clergy upon the platform were colored. The collections nearly covered expenses, which amounted to $35, and a few gentlemen made up the balance. Bishop Ingham from the first promoted the work, taking the leading part, and Rev. Mr. May, the most laborious. Rev. Mr. Selwyn, missioner, or as we should say, evangelist, of the Episcopal Church, England, is spending a six months' leave on the "West Coast." He is a very thoroughly evangelical man. His meetings in Freetown were scarcely finished when mine began. I am sure his work had prepared the people to listen to me, to receive what I had to say, and Mr. Selwyn was good enough to say that mine would supplement and tend to conserve his.

At the request of Bishop Ingham, a few of the clergy came together Saturday morning, to consult as to what steps should be taken to preserve, gather in the fruits. The most important thing was that five of those present representing the different religious bodies, were constituted a committee, and these agreed never to let the work cease, to keep it up in one form or another. Propositions were made to form a "Men's Total Abstinence Society." The "White Cross" already promised was talked over and approved for young men, and a work in the schools, which will involve four pledges, temperance, purity, anti-swearing and anti-tobacco, was recommended and discussed. I think all these beside the W. C. T. U. already established will be put in motion.

I was not equal to another term of exposure, hardship and hard work in Liberia, and consequently wrote, withdrawing my appointments there. My last letter had also brought the information that small-pox was raging to such an extent that only very small audiences could be gathered. When an epidemic is raging like that, steamers will not bring passengers away. Miss Amanda Smith was once detained there three months under these circumstances.

I have just had a long conversation with Miss McNeal, one of Bishop Taylor's missionaries at Point Palmas, a Liberian town, and I cannot refrain from repeating some things she has said about the great value of Miss Amanda Smith's work in Liberia. It is the universal testimony that not more than one-third as much gin is drank in Point Palmas as before she began her work. Throughout Liberia she raised the tone of Christian living so that there is far less "backsliding" than before her coming. It is to be hoped her health will be recovered so that she can resume her work. But hush! "It is wrong, all wrong! She is a woman and must not speak in the churches!" So did not Paul say of such as she but only of babblers, chatterers.

On Monday I came on board this steamer, the Africa, and we are now near Madeira, where I tranship for Lisbon.

I cannot finish this letter without expressing my appreciation of the great kindness shown me by Rev. and Mrs. Johnstone, and Dr. Harris. The latter was both physician and nurse, and nothing was too much for Mr. or Mrs. Johnstone to do for my comfort. I also wish to ask all the dear members of the W. C. T. U. to be much in prayer upon the subject of the liquor traffic in Africa, Madagascar and other missionary lands. I trust temperance friends will read my article upon this subject especially. I have no hope that it will be fuller, better or wiser in any way than what others have written, but in the columns of THE UNION SIGNAL, all the W. C. T. U. forces can conveniently get it, and we must work energetically with other societies if this enormity is ever to have an end. Lovingly your sister,

MARY CLEMENT LEAVITT.

Freetown, Sierra Leone.

TEMPERANCE TEMPLE ITEMS.

MATILDA B. CARSE.

Dear white-ribbon sister, brother, boy or girl: Have you a Temple mite-box on your table? If not, write to Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, 145 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, inclosing a two-cent stamp, and it will be promptly sent you on condition that you will drop into it a cent a day, or its equivalent, during the next twelve months. Mite-boxes in quantities will also be sent to unions for the cost of transportation.

***

If we had more ministers like the Rev. W. H. Carwardine, Steward, Ill., the building fund of the Temple would increase rapidly. He writes: "Will you please send me such reading matter as may be convenient concerning the Temperance Temple to be erected in Chicago. I intend to preach on the subject some Sabbath evening in the near future, and take a collection for the fund."

We ask the attention of hundreds of rich women who belong to the W. C. T. U., and have so far held back from giving substantial aid to the Temple, to the following letter from the Rev. H. M. Goodell, Salem, Neb.: "Inclosed find $1 for the Temple. Ours is a home missionary family, and the calls in our Nebraska work just now are many, but we gladly contribute this mite, and may be able to do more after a time." Think of this good man saving from the pressing needs of a Nebraska home missionary this little sum to help erect our Pharos of temperance! Hundreds who read these lines can far better afford to give a thousand dollars than he can one dollar. Let us remember that the sins of commission are no worse sometimes than those of omission. Christ says, "Inasmuch as ye did it not."

***

One of the hopeful signs of the times is the large number of noble women that are engaged in this country in teaching. Since starting the building fund for the Temple, our heart has been cheered over and over again by their helpful aid. Extracts from the following letters will show what some of them are doing for the Temple. Miss Jane T. Nicholson, Eureka, Wis., writes: "Inclosed please find post-office order for $5.80, Temperance Temple money from Fox River Union, school district 9. This is for the placing of the inclosed names under the corner-stone of the Temple." Miss E. B. Swan, Mt. Lake Park, Md., Principal of the Buaibend Seminary, writes: "We are all interested in the Woman's Temple. The young ladies voted the other day to fill a Temple mite-box. Please send one." Why cannot all W. C. T. U. women who are engaged in teaching follow this admirable example? We will be glad to send mite-boxes and descriptive cards to all who will send to us for them. Miss Mamie A. Secor, Etter Station, Minn., writes: "Please find inclosed $5 for the Temple. We started a Sunday-school on Prairie Island near Etter Mine, and raised $5 in nine Sundays. I hope during the spring term of school to raise more. I am getting up a Baby Band and dollar subscriptions. God bless the Temperance Temple work."

***

Our loyal friend, Jane E. Weeden, hammers away stoutly for the Temple; she has just sent $107 from Clinton, Ill.; $100 of this amount is the gift of Mrs. E. A. Argo, one of the old settlers of Clinton, a large-hearted and generous woman. She is one of the original crusaders, and has been the president of the Clinton W. C. T. U. since it was first organized. Ten dollars has been received from Mrs. Sarah M. Beelman, the oldest member of the W. C. T. U. of Plymouth, Ohio. The Roslindale, Mass., W. C. T. U., sends $10, with the autograph list of their members for the corner-stone. So one-tenth of their $100 is raised in this easy manner. Let all unions send for lists and try it.

***

The following additional unions are at work raising $100 each. We wish we had room to insert some of the words of cheer contained in their letters. We will head the list with the Y. W. C. T. U. of Nashua, N. H., and the Duluth, Minn., Y. W. C. T. U. We are sorry to say but few of the Y's have as yet pledged $100. We hope a large number of them will fall into line with the Duluth and Nashua Y's. The W. C. T. U. of Leonard, North Dakota, pledges $100, and has paid $20. The W. C. T. U. of Le Roy, Minn., pledges $100 and sends for one hundred mite-boxes (they must mean to raise $300, we think). The W. C. T. U. of Racine, Wis., have sent for mite-boxes, and are hard at work raising $100. So, also, is the W. C. T. U. of Greencastle, Ind.; they have sent for seventy-five boxes. Fairport, N. Y.; Worcester, Mass.; Dickinson, N. Dakota; La Porte, Ind.; Rosenhayn, N. J.; Youngstown, Ohio; Ellendale, N. Dakota; La Grande, Ore; Nashville, Tenn.; Port Huron, Mich.; Amboy, Ill., unions have sent for mite-boxes, and are lovingly and enthusiastically at work raising their respective $100 towards the building of our great Temple. Let more and more follow.

***

It is with deep sorrow that we learn of the failing health of the beloved mother of the Crusade. The sad news has reached Colorado, and moved the heart of Mrs. J. E. Howe, of Pueblo. She writes: "Wishing to see Mother Thompson honored by a tablet in the Memorial Hall of the Temple, and believing that all of the unions in the country so desire and will be willing to assist if an opportunity be given, East Pueblo Union wishes the honor of starting such a movement by sending the first dollar, which please find inclosed." We are sure our unions will all delight to send in $1 each to show their loving appreciation of our sainted Mother Thompson.

145 Ashland Boulevard.

Our Children.

THE LAND OF FRESH AIR.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

Dust and glare on the city street,
Alleys blistered with scorching heat,
Poor little children fever-flushed,
Waxen faces like blossoms crushed;
Never a breath of the sweet, fresh air
In the dingy court and narrow stair;
What can the babies do but die
Under the fierce and burning sky?

Yet cool and fragrant the green hills are Under the kisses of sun and star,
Grasses wave and tall reeds shake,
Ripples dance over stream and lake,
Over the stones the brooklets plash,
Over the cliffs the torrents dash,
Dream the cows in the pleasant shade,
Skip the lambs in the mossy glade;
May we not carry the babies there,
Into the world of the sweet, fresh air?

Here they go on the rushing train.
Off to the beautiful farms again;
Up to the sunny farms that lie
Under the face of the open sky,
Down to the homes like happy nests
Hiding in hollows of mountain crests;
There they shall tumble, romp, and play,
Free as the birds, the livelong day,
Have plenty to eat and never a care,
While they stay in the land of the sweet, fresh air.

Driving the cows to the pasture lot,
Hunting for eggs in the queerest spot,
Fishing for hours beneath the bridge,
Climbing the steeps of the pine-clad ridge,
Cheeks with the roses of health aglow,
Feet that are flitting to and fro;
Very well will the babies fare,
Once in the land of the sweet, fresh air.

—Youths' Temperance Banner.

"A DAY IN THE COUNTRY."

Pent in close, unwholesome places,
  Where the sun can scarcely shine,
Little children with pale faces,
  In their abject squalor pine;
'Tis a spot that's fever-haunted,
  Where they draw a poisoned breath,
But the poor work on undaunted,
  In that atmosphere of death.

Though the children that they cherish
  Swiftly fade away and die;
Though the little babies perish
  And in nameless grave-plots lie;
Still the workers plod on grimly,
  Where the thick, black smoke is curled;
Sometimes, maybe, feeling dimly,
  There's somewhere a brighter world.

Those poor children, sad the story,
  Never saw a stately tree,
Ne'er beheld the sunset glory,
  O'er the flower-bespangled lea.
Never saw the starry daisies,
  And the streams that wimple down;
Far the meadow's fragrant mazes
  From the close courts of the town.

They have never seen the ocean
  Break in thunder on the strand,
All the wild waves' mad commotion,
  When the surge o'erlaps the land;
Never known the twilight tender,
  When the storm-wind had passed by;
Or the pale moon's silver splendor,
  Where the sea reflects the sky.

Take them one day, then, from sorrow,
  From the haunts of sin and crime,
That from gladness they may borrow
  Comfort for the after time.
Let them see the country smiling,
  Smiling streams and flower-clad plain;
All their wee sad hearts beguiling
  From a life so full of pain.

One small luxury untasted,
  One delight in all the hours,
And the pittance won't be wasted,
  Since the children see the flowers.
Sir, your buttonhole has posies,
  Madam, your fan, too. Suppose
You for once give up your roses,
  That the children see one rose.

—London Paper.

HOW LARRY FORGAVE.

BY LIZZIE MARGARET KNAPP.

The first landing on the staircase of the Blake house had a long window with a deep, cushioned window-seat. Larry Blake sat there quite alone.

Larry was a good-looking boy—when he was pleasant, that is; but this morning, with that fold in his forehead and those stormy eyes, he looked as dangerous as a Scotch thistle. His lips were shut tightly together, like two straight lines. His hands were clasped around his knees, and every now and then he gave an impatient kick, and then braced himself anew. Uncle Will found him so when he came down late to breakfast. Uncle Will had been studying until midnight lately for some coming examinations. t made him very sleepy next day. This was the third morning that he had come downstairs late.

"Hullo, sonny! What's up?" he called, as he caught sight of Larry. "You seem to be in the dumps."

Larry hated to be called "sonny." Besides, Uncle Will was such a tease! He answered, not too agreeably:

"Better not mind about me. Your breakfast might get cold."

Uncle Will stopped on the landing, put his hands behind his head, and yawned, smiling at the same time.

"I'll risk it. Come, what is it all about?" he said.

This time there was a tone of good-comradeship about the question. Larry felt it, and answered briefly, but confidentially:

"I'm mad!"

"What for?"

"You know that new kite I made awhile ago?"

"The impossible red and green butterfly, with wings three feet across?"

"Wasn't she a beauty! Well, Bob Oakley's gone and spoiled her."

"How?"

"He had an old knife-blade tied on to his, and he cut her string right across. I won't forgive him for it in a hurry. I told him he might have given me fair warning, and he said I ought to have seen the knife without being told. That's just his mean way."

"It wasn't the fair thing," said Uncle Will, who was the most good-natured fellow in the world; "but there is no use in being angry over it. What's one kite? You can easily make another."

"It isn't the kite so much; it's for him to be so mean about it. It makes me mad! I don't want to be mad, but I can't help it. I keep thinking how mean he was."

Uncle Will drew a paper and pencil from his pocket.

"Things look different in black and white sometimes," he said. "Suppose you write the 'pros' and 'cons' down and compare them. Bob may have a better showing on his side, on the whole, than you think for."

"Uncle Will thinks everything in the world can be put on paper," muttered Larry, as Uncle Will's curly head disappeared around the corner. "Might try it, I suppose." And, bracing his foot against the other side of the window, and putting the pencil point to his tongue, he began.

Presently, light steps came down the hall, and Cousin Sue's bright face looked up through the tall palm at the foot of the staircase.

"How busy you look, Larry!" said she. "Is it lessons or a new game?"

"It's neither," said Larry. "Won't you come up, Cousin Sue?" and he moved to make room for her beside him.

Cousin Sue was the children's idol. She was exceedingly pretty, and wore the most bewitching dresses, and —well, it was no use talking, she was just Cousin Sue.

"She always treats a fellow as if he was somebody," Larry once confided to his mother. "She never snubs him because he ain't a hundred years old."

He put the paper in her hand, with a few words of explanation. Cousin Sue examined it gravely, though her eyes danced as they fell upon the following:

"Bob Oakley cut my kite-string with his knife, with out giving me any warning."

PROS.	CONS.
"There are some good things about Bob Oakley.	"But he's got the crossest mother I know,—you can't have a good time in her house. But that isn't Bob's fault, I suppose.
"He bandaged my dog's leg when it got hurt.	"The boys at school don't like him.
"He ain't ashamed to wear old clothes,—I like him for that.	"But he's always throwing it at you that your family are richer than his.
	"He spoiled my kite."

Cousin Sue took the pencil, and made an addition at the bottom: "God forgives Larry Blake every time he really wants it, and asks it. Larry Blake—"

"Cousin Sue, Bob hasn't asked me," said Larry, proudly.

"But perhaps he really wants it just the same; and besides, that isn't your part of it, you know."

Larry drew a long breath. "I guess you're right, Cousin Sue; you most always are. But"—

"I saw Bob Oakley out by the fence, just now," continued Cousin Sue. "I shouldn't be surprised if he felt sorry. He looked to me as if he did."

Larry got up. "I'll have to go," he said. "I wish you'd kinder come along too, Cousin Sue."

"I will," said his cousin.

Bob Oakley was still down by the fence when they got near enough to speak to him. His hat was pushed down over his eyes; he had his hands in his pockets, and he was kicking a pebble up and down the pavements trying to whistle meanwhile. Cousin Sue discreetly retired a few steps, and occupied herself with the trailing vines on the fence. Larry cleared his throat.

"Hullo, Bob!" he called. "Say, Bob, you know I said last night that I never'd forgive you for what you did? I've changed my mind. I'm not going to be mad any more. I've forgiven you."

"Who wants your forgivness?" said Bob uneasily, kicking the pebble an inch farther, as if his whole mind were intent on it.

Larry was silent a minute. "Well, I have, any way. Say, Bob, don't you want to go down and play ball in the meadow?"

"Well,—I don't care," said Bob, with a shamefaced twist of his neck, and the two started off together. Cousin Sue watched them out of sight, her hand shading her eyes from the bright sunlight.

"Such a difference in boys!" she said to herself, with an amused smile.—Sunday School Times.

Hartford, Conn.

The Still Hour.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 22, 1890.

BY REV. C. C. HARRAH.

DAILY BIBLE READING NOTES.

(Luke 12: 22-59; II Samuel 14: 19.)

Sunday, 22; Luke 12: 22-59. Verse 22, The freedom from care which our Lord teaches has nothing in common with that light-minded carelessness of the shiftless, which is indifferent to labor and provides no means of a livelihood or with which to help the needy. The care of worry is what the Saviour forbids, which we have when we have not faith. We should not have excessive anxiety for earthly things. Verse 31, We ought to consider what the kingdom of God is in heaven, and then do our utmost to have such a condition of things in this world. Verse 32, Anything we lose by being Christians does not make us worse off. We have the treasure and reward of a kingdom which we shall never lose.

Monday 23; 2 Sam. 14, verse 1, David was really desirous to have Absalom return to Jerusalem. The trick of Joab enabled him to overcome this fear for public interests and public opinion, and Absalom was pardoned. A thing may appear very wrong at first, but if we want to do it, and keep wanting to do it, some excuse will be found at last for the wrong doing. Verse 25, Judge not according to appearance, but judge righteous judgment. Jno. 7: 24, verse 33, Absalom showed no repentance or submission. In his arbitrary exacting way, he commanded the interest of Joab so as to bring about a reconciliation with the king. God will not be mocked by allowing us in our willfulness to escape punishment without repentance.

Tuesday 24; 2 Sam. 15, verse 6, Absalom's treachory was made easy, because the confidence of the people in David was shaken, on account of his sins. Verse 7, We cannot trust every one who professes to be religious, since a pretense of piety has always been one of the favorite cloaks of evil. "After forty years" should read, "after four years." Verse 11, We cannot be too watchful lest the world may ensnare us, and use us to promote its pleasures and evils. Verse 30, A distress had now overtaken David more bitter than any he had felt on account of Saul's persecutions. The outside world cannot punish us as we are punished in ourselves and in our families, when we are called upon to meet the consequences of our transgressions.

Wednesday 25; 2 Sam. 16, Verse 4, The stories of crafty and deceitful people may lead us to do very wrong things. David, by his hasty judgment, based upon the false statement of Ziba, inflicted a great injury upon the character and interests of a devoted friend. He was afterwards ashamed of what he had done; (Chapter 19: 24–30.) Verse 12, David was innocent of the crimes now charged against him, but there were other great sins of which he was guilty, and his conscience made him feel that the cursing of Shimei was a chastisement from heaven. We are shocked at the depravity of human nature as we read of the horrible crimes against womanhood and against virtue in the family of David.

Thursday, 26; 2 Sam. 17. Verse 2, In times of depression, we are most likely to be attacked by the devil. If by a living faith and by keeping on "the whole armor of God" (Eph. 6: 11–18), we keep ourselves from becoming "weary and weak-handed," we have little to fear from the plague of our evil hearts and Satan's malignant power. Verse 23, When Absalom accepted the counsel of Hushai instead of that of Ahithophel, it was one of the links in a chain of providences which led to his overthrow. Every cause which has not God in it will fail.

Friday, 27; 2 Sam. 18. Verse 5, His affection for his son, and the consciousness that in the conduct of Absalom he was but receiving the chastisement for his own crimes, led David to make the charge, "Deal gently with the young man." Verse 9, At one time it seemed almost certain that Absalom's rebellion would succeed. So now there are times when unrighteous movements seem to have the victory. Verse 33, There is no suffering greater than that which parents have to bear whose affections bind them to a prodigal son.

Saturday, 28; 2 Sam. 19. Verse 5, David had no right, in his grief, to neglect his duties to his country, and Joab's remonstrance was right and necessary. Verse 30, By David's hasty judgment in giving property to Ziba, and now by his cold and unjust treatment, the son of Jonathan was greatly wronged. But he proved to be a worthy son of his noble-hearted father. It is better if we can arise above insults and wrongs, and live peaceably with all men. Rom. 12: 18.

THE PRAYER MEETING TOPIC.

(Sowing in Tears, but Reaping in Joy. Psalm 126: 5, 6.)

What is true in the natural has its counterpart in the spiritual world. The work going on in one's own spirit, and what is being done to lift up and save others, is a sowing and a reaping.

1. The sowing requires a great deal of labor. The land has to be broken up and put in condition to receive the seed, and the seed must be carefully planted. All this takes much work, and the laborer in both the natural and spiritual sowing, becomes at times very tired. Gal. 6: 9; 5 Thess. 3: 13.

2. Sowing is a self-denying work. The laborer goes out by himself and regards not winds or weather, and undergoes many privations against selfish ease, in order that the harvest may be planted in good season, and be well planted. Eccles. 11: 4, 6.

3. The harvest time is the time of joy. Every one is glad when his barn is well filled, and an abundance is laid up in store to meet all wants. The joy by reaping in the spiritual harvest is the greatest that a Christian heart can feel, and angels are glad to share it with him. Jud. 4: 36; Luke 15: 7.

The Household.

MATERNITY.

BY E. HARRIET HOWE.

God gave me children, so He fed, in part,
The quenchless longings of a loving heart;
And taught me how to love, and He doth choose
My loved for me, and so I never lose;
And, for my children, O what love divine
This dear pre-natal pledge, "They shall be mine!"
Thrilling my soul with life inspiring flame;
Twin born with Love, so all my children came.

When near my heart their first faint pulses beat,
It seemed an angel spoke a secret sweet,
With a strange meaning other words above
To fit my girlish heart for mother love;
Trembling at thought of life's great mystery
My timid soul His way alone would see;
In dearer tie He met my spirit there,
When first for babe unborn I breathed a prayer;
Alone, and kneeling in the twilight dim,
The asked of God, I gave again to Him.

I even dared to pray, so bold I grew,
That He would keep me to my trust as true,
As His own Virgin Mother when she bare,
The Incarnate Life beneath her bosom fair;
And often through those waiting days there came,
Dear thoughts of Him who bore the sweetest name,
Who made for us the badge of motherhood—
The deepest sorrow, and the highest good.

I leaned by day upon His promise strong,
And heard by night the angels' cradle song;
And bore each life, deep, deep my soul within,
Unsullied by one cherished thought of sin;
And looking ever in His tender face,
Could say, "Thou knowest it is all of grace!"
So, in the promise of His love I rest, . . .
Since faith will always say, "He knoweth best."
And trust my flock shall gathered be at last,
Safe in the fold above, when life is past.
ranklin. Pa.

HOW MISS HILDRETH HELPED A LITTLE.

BY MYRA GOODWIN PLANTZ.

"Miss Case, be a little quicker."

The "floor-walker" spoke so sharply that the girl he addressed started and the heavy box she was lifting down fell to the floor, scattering expensive jet trimming in every direction.

The young girl gave a frightened glance towards the young man who had charge of her department. She knew later she would have to bear insulting words for this accident, as well as lose part of her day's wages.

"I am sorry, Miss Hildreth, that you should be detained by such a slow, awkward clerk. I will wait on you myself," said the young man in a gallant tone as he went behind the counter.

The young lady who was waiting was one Mr. Gordon had met in society, and her beauty and her father's income had great charms for him. He was the son of the proprietor of this large establishment and Miss Hildreth had not been indifferent to his handsome face and easy grace. Now she hardly noticed him, while watching the pale-faced girl who was trying to arrange the disordered trimming.

"That young lady looks too delicate for her work," Miss Hildreth remarked as the girl moved out of hearing.

"Perhaps. How sympathetic you young ladies are! Now it is my duty to take care of my father's interests. I will discharge her."

* * * * * *

"Mamma, I have no secrets from you, so you know I have not discouraged Earnest Gordon in his attentions, but I saw a little scene to-day that completely changed my opinion of him. He spoke to one of his clerks, a sweet, sad-faced girl, hardly more than a child, as if she had been a dog. I overheard one of the girls say to another that he insulted them every time he could, and kept back as much of their wages as possible. This was while he was called away a moment."

"Clara, dear," answered her mother, "beware of a man who does not treat working women well."

"Well, mamma, it hasn't gone very far, and if Mr. Gordon asks why I do not care for his society, I will tell him the girls of to-day demand noble, manly men. But what I want now is to give that poor girl a rest. Can I invite her to our country home for two weeks?"

"Certainly, daughter," replied Mrs. Hildreth, "but the large stores dismiss extra help through the dull season, so I doubt about her getting a vacation."

"I think I can manage that," said Clara with a laugh, and a few days later when she made her request, after a little coaxing, dignified Mr. Gordon gave his consent to leave it to his son, who willingly granted Miss Case a vacation.

"We have never been introduced, but you know I am Clara Hildreth and I know you are Anna Case, so let us be friends," Clara said this in her happy cordial way, as she took Miss Case's thin hand.

"You are always so kind it is a pleasure to have you come in the store," answered Miss Case. "Do you mean these lovely flowers for me?"

"Yes, indeed, and I came not only to bring you some flowers, but to invite you to spend two weeks with us. Papa has bought a farm near the lake, and we want as many of our friends as possible to share it with us this summer."

"They would not let me off a day last week to go to a Sunday-school picnic where I promised to take my little brother, so I can't be spared so long, but I thank you with all my heart," was the poor girl's answer.

"Oh, that is all arranged. Mr. Gordon, come, tell Miss Case she can visit me," for this young man could not keep very far from the bright Miss Hildreth.

"Yes, of course you can go. Miss Case has been with us and has been very faithful for three years, so her wages shall go on and when she returns we will try and promote her to a more profitable position."

The pleased, grateful look the young man received from Miss Hildreth, repaid his generous speech, and was worth several dollars a week on Miss Case's future salary.

First they drove to Anna's home, a few rooms in a tenement house; here an invalid mother and little brother were supported by Anna's small wages. Mrs. Case was delighted to have her daughter go, and insisted she was quite well enough to get along with Willie's help. After making arrangements with a neighbor woman to watch her mother carefully, Anna was ready.

"I wouldn't leave mother so long," she said, as the carriage rolled away from the noisy city, "but I am so worn out I get dizzy spells and things fall out of my hands. I don't know what would become of ma and Willie if I lost my place. Oh, Miss Hildreth, you don't know how I thank God every day for the protection of my mother. Most of the girls board in cheap boarding houses where they have to eat things that are spoiled or half cooked. But the worst is they have to spend their evenings on the streets or in their dingy, stifling rooms, and every day they have to bear all kinds of insults. Those of us who have good mothers pretend we don't hear things we ought not to hear, but many answer back in the same way, and finally throw themselves away. Oh, Miss Hildreth, be thankful you don't have to earn your living out among men."

Clara Hildreth determined in her own heart to help working girls out of their difficulties in every way she could, but now she diverted her guest's mind from her trials by pointing out the beauties of the roads which wound through pretty villages, past parks and pretty farm houses and often along the shore of the lake. Anna will never forget that glimpse of beauty, nor the days that followed. Every morning the girls rode with Mr. Hildreth to the station a mile distant. Then followed riding, rambling through the woods, gathering berries, ferns and wild flowers or boating. Sometimes they rested for hours in a hammock or on the sofa in the shady sitting-room.

These luxuries, besides feasting on fresh fruit, cream and other country dainties, soon made Anna look like another girl. The sweet, sad face soon became round and rosy, and quite as fair as pretty Clara's. There were two especial pleasures. One day the coachman drove in and took the girls the long ride again. Anna was fairly laden with good things for her dear ones, and while Clara made a visit, her visitor was allowed to take the sick mother and little brother a ride through the park.

Clara soon called her girl friends together, and they had an informal Y meeting. Not many of them had Clara's money and influence, but all could do something. Plans were laid, letters written to friends in the country, and twenty girls were given happy vacations. Some were entertained. Others paid a small board. Several helped in house work, and found a few hours of such labor a small sacrifice for the beauty of the country and good, fresh food. Ethel Brown gave some an idea when she said "We must not forget the girls in our mother's kitchen. I'm lending Mary books and taking her to Sunday-school with me."

"And I'm going to see that Bettie has a pleasant place in which to entertain her friends, so she won't go to the park to meet young men," said another.

"Brother spends his time at the hospital, and he says half of the girls who fall might have been saved if some good woman had been a friend to them," said Susie.

"Most girls are proud as can be, so we will have to use tact, yes, and real heart sympathy, but oh girls, let us each try and protect some friendless girl," said Clara.

Detroit, Mich.

TO MOTHERS.

BY HESTER M. POOLE.

In a material age, one abounding in all forms of luxury, the tendency is more and more to the gratification of the animal instincts and appetites. Among the refined, the kind of gratification is not changed, though it be surrounded by all appliances of wealth and gentility. The essential character remains the same, and essential character is the real individual. The green of the wood is unaltered, no matter how much it be polished.

It is in the lack of discipline of these appetites that is found the beginnings of intemperance. Love of pleasure and a weak will cause that relaxation of moral fiber which yields to slight temptation. In the desire to give them "a good time," parents pamper their children until "a good time" seems the aim of existence. Duties, responsibilities, moral values, these are only taught from the pulpit. They are seldom heard in many a household, even among those who style themselves Christians. Strong social interests, pride of appearance, and desire to do as others do, habits of indulgence and craving for excitement, all have their legitimate result. The youth takes to his cigarette and his dram, and his training has contributed nothing to the power of resistance.

Mothers! do not these truths appeal to your conscience? Who have the power to break away from evil habits and associations? Are they those whose every whim has been pampered from childhood?

The strength of manhood lies in its self-control, a quality which must be instilled from childhood in order to take root and bear ripe fruit under which a noble maturity may find shelter. It is no more the growth of a month or a year than is the strength of an oak. Through all maternal love, ardent, absorbing, masterful, wonderful as it is, there ought to run, like a thread of gold, a determination that the object of affection shall conquer his lower self and make it tributary to his higher. Begun in the cradle it will grow with his growth until it becomes interwoven with every fiber of his nature.

This teaching is far from being a series of arbitrary acts or commands. Lovingly, tenderly, gently, the boy may be taught the nobility of living according to the highest moral law of which he can conceive. He may be sympathized with when failure occurs, not blamed. Wide and deep is maternal tenderness, and never can a child outgrow that. But he can be taught that the past is only a stepping-stone for the future. Let him feel that a stronger love enfolds him, and on that he can lean for aid. Help him to the joy of self-conquest, to the manliness of saying "No," to advances to which he ought not to yield. Teach him that it is better to conquer unruly desires than to possess much gold or many honors. Show him that real happiness consists not in ephemeral pleasures, but in the balance of moral, mental and physical powers, with the first at the head of all, and that such a course admits of all sorts of innocent pleasures because they are innocent.

Yet purely didactic teaching will not do. The family life must be based on eternal principles, for words alone will never suffice. When the boy sees his parents worshiping the material god of position, wealth and pleasure, will it be surprising if he finds his in the wine-cup and the brothel? Youth is full of abounding vigor, and that vitality must be directed into the proper channels. It cannot be argued down. Only through the best instruction from his earliest years can a young man, in this age of pleasure, hold himself firmly above those insinuating temptations which lead to dissipation. And that mother is not wholly guiltless who is not wise in her love toward the boy committed to her charge.

Metuchen, N. J.

THE TONE OF THE HOUSEHOLD.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

"I am so glad," said a boy to his mother one day not long ago, "that you brought me up, and that I did not happen to grow into the ways they have at Aunt Nancy's. You never seem critical of your neighbors; you don't put unkind constructions on what they say, nor wonder about what doesn't concern you. It is just a liberal education, mother dear, to live in your house." And the manly fellow, with the faint moustache outlining his upper lip, and the earnest look deepening in his fine face, bent to kiss the little woman who looked proudly up to her son.

I often wonder whether we women realize how truly we give the household its tone, setting it to truest harmony, or suffering jars and discord, false notes and a false pitch to steal upon and mar the music. The mother has the advantage above all others of beginning with the little ones in the happy, happy day of small things. There is a time when she represents the highest authority in the universe to the child's mind, when her influence is unquestioned and well-nigh absolute, and when, if she choose, she may mold the young life as she will. The misfortune of many mothers is that they fail to recognize how early in the child's life they begin to impress themselves upon the susceptible and plastic nature, "wax to receive and marble to retain," while yet the little feet have not essayed their first timid and uncertain steps, and long before the little lips have learned to add word to word in coherent sentences. A mother who appreciates her opportunities and values her privileges, will reflect from the first hour of her baby's separate existence, that this immortal soul is acted upon by hers, that she is giving it impulses which shall continue to exist themselves, and modify the character of her child to all eternity.

Nay, the Christian mother cannot escape the responsibility of the relation, from the hour that she knows of the invisible life entwined subtly with her own, and growing in mystic union with her own life-forces beneath her throbbing heart.

How shall we set the tone of our households high above shams and shallows; how shall we lift our homes up toward a lofty ideal; how render them worthy of the traditions of our American ancestry? In the first place, by living worthily and nobly. It has been repeated so often, and is so familiar in our ears, that there is a certain triteness in the expression that what we are is more important than what we say; nevertheless, in home ethics it is a truth always worth repeating that character tells. In the daily life, she who is sincere, who is large-hearted and generous, enthusiastic for the right, disdainful of the petty metive, and the mean act, she who can resist prejudice and fairly weigh both sides, she who holds herself accountable to God, can but elevate those around her; husband, kindred, children, the maids who kindle the fires and wash the linen, the occasional visitor, and every one who is brought into contact or communication with the rich, pure, sweet life of the good woman and true mother.

Next, and not less noteworthy, comes the protest against narrowness, which is made most effectually where the home is not sufficient to itself, in the sense of being satisfied with itself. The man with the one talent in the parable, burying it in the earth, and hiding his Lord's money, met with the severest reprobation, and equally should we beware of the home with one talent. A home should be receptive, genial, consecrated to all bounties and charities. Distrust the wisdom of the woman who says that she has no mission beyond her own household; no time for meetings, clubs, commissions, efforts for the help of humanity. The most womanly women of our day are those who find, make, take time, from other and thronging occupations, to send relief to the ends of the earth, or to the sufferer in the next street.

To raise the tone of the household, furnish it with good reading. Only an imbecile in these days, underrates the immense magic of printer's ink. Never mind whether the carpets are threadbare, or the chairs old-fashioned. That is of little importance, compared to having the children's minds in touch with the best thought of the world. And while you are about it, be sure that the Bible is in its proper place in the house, and that it is read by everybody there, at least once a day, at the simple family prayer, which does more than any other single thing, to impart purity and secure peace in household life.

New York City.

ORGAN OF THE WORLD'S AND NATIONAL WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

EDITORS.
MARY ALLEN WEST,
JULIA A. AMES. ELIZABETH W. ANDREW.

Published by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association.

GEO. C. HALL, Business Manager.
161 La Salle St. - - - - Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

President—MRS. MATILDA B. CARSE, 145 Ashland Boulvd., Chicago.
Treasurer—MRS. L. A. HAGANS, Elmhurst, Ill.
Secretary—MARY ALLEN WEST, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. L. H. PLUMB, Streator, Ill.
MISS ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS. CAROLINE B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
MRS CLARA HOFFMAN, Kansas City, Mo.
MISS ELISABETH S. TOBEY, Boston, Mass.
MRS. HELEN M. BARKER, Huron, S. Dakota.
MRS. A. H. CHRISTENSEN, Beaufort, S. C.
MRS. L. D. CARHART, Marion, Iowa.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

President—FRANCES E. WILLARD, Evanston, Ill.
Corresponding Sec.—MRS. C. B. BUELL, 161 La Salle St., Chicago.
Recording Sec.—MRS. MARY A. WOODBRIDGE, Ravenna, Ohio.
Assistant Rec. Sec.—MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS, Portland, Me.
Treasurer—ESTHER PUGH, 161 La Salle St. Chicago, Ill.
For presidents of states and superintendents of departments, see Annual Leaflet, which will be sent by Mrs. Buell on application, inclosing a two-cent stamp.

Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; every man's work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. . . . If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss, but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire.—I Cor. 3: 11-15.

OUR CANADIAN SISTERS.

The third convention of the Dominion Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in Montreal last week was a grand success, both in its program and in its retrospect and outlook. Mrs. Judge Foster, president, delivered the annual address, which for breadth, compass and power was a model. She said:

"I think it cannot be considered lost time if we take a look at our position, having as our home and field of work this fair and broad Dominion. When in the region of Mount Washington you can hardly believe that in a few hours time there could be presented to you such a vast panorama. As you ascend the great mountain itself and watch the mists roll away at your feet, unfolding to your wondering eyes that vast array of mountain peaks piled one upon another, while one hundred miles away the sea appears like a silver line upon the horizon, the road over which you have just passed, like stairs 'which scale the eternities below,' a picture is engraven upon your mind which can never be effaced. If so much loveliness were sent to grace our earthly home, how beautiful will the vision be, when, the last mountain of difficulty conquered, and the river crossed, we stand upon the everlasting hills around the new Jerusalem, 'the city of our God.'

"So from the vantage ground of our present outlook as a Dominion Union, I ask you to take with me a survey of this 'land of promise'—this 'Canada of ours,' which we call home.

"Not yet twenty-three years old—the youngest nation in the world, we claim a larger area. Our seven provinces and vast Northwest territory containing 3,470,257 square miles, dotted with mountains, which are the birthplace of mighty rivers and lakes, which contain one-half of all the fresh waters on the globe. The great railway systems connecting the Atlantic and Pacific, and tapping the great railway systems of this continent is seeking to annihilate time and space. Its vast area of agricultural and timbered lands, its important fisheries upon both coasts, its wealth of mineral deposits, with vast coal fields, the value and extent of which cannot be estimated, with a government in the hands of a sovereign people, the only real connection between Canada and the Mother Country other than the love which is in our hearts for her is 'the right of appeal from Canadian courts of law to the Privy Council, the appointment by the Imperial Government of our Governor-General, who nevertheless does as his Canadian ministry advises and instructs him, and the power to make treaties for us.'

"Five millions of precious souls are scattered over this broad domain, many, it is true, born under other flags than that of this Dominion, but it is our adopted country, and it is for us to develop its vast resources, to guard its interests, and to guide the ship of state away from the shoals and quicksands into the safe, peaceful harbor of prohibition."

She gave statistics showing that during the last fiscal year official figures showed the manufacture or importation into the Dominion of 23,415,935 gallons of proof spirits, malt and foreign liquors. The figures do not include the wines and cider manufactured in Canada, nor the products of the 26 illicit stills which were broken up by the Government officers—nor the quantities smuggled in on the coasts and the international line, which would amount to thousands of barrels more. Every gallon of proof spirits—as reported above—represents three or four gallons as consumed. It has been stated openly in Parliament, on two or three occasions, that Canada's drink bill amounts to sixty million dollars a year, and this is to be divided up among a population of 5,000,000, many of whom are women and children who are free from this dreadful appetite; and yet neither political party will prohibit its manufacture, but rather helps to protect the liquor interest and thus send at least 5,000 of our fellow citizens to fill drunkard's graves every year.

The various restrictive acts from time to time placed upon the statute books have been so often amended in the interest of the liquor men, that the country is awaking to the fact that a prohibitory law, and the machinery to enforce it, are the only hope. In the Northwest Territory a permit system has ruined our hopes; just now a telegram sent from the Licensing Department of the Quebec Government informs the license inspector of a little town which had sought to protect its homes by passing a prohibitory ordinance that he must grant the application of two hotel keepers for a wholesale license, as the ordinance covered only retail sales.

Speaking of the work of the Dominion W. C. T. U., she said:

"You need hardly be reminded of the growth of temperance organizations, and of our own in particular. We stand, as to white-ribbon women, at least twelve thousand strong, though not fully shown by our paid membership, or of the grand work being done by the World's Union in their mammoth prohibition petition, which is so soon to be sent to the governments of the world. Its consecrated women, as they pass from continent to continent, and from island to island, organizing unions and presenting the work, are 'belting the world with the white ribbon,' as they plant the standard 'For God and Home and Every Land.' Your own Dominion Executive has, at the request of your president, handed over to Miss Willard, the honored President of the World's Union, the reins of government and the hard work to which Canada might have fallen heir during the present month. We may expect great results during the years to come, and, I trust, join in a World's convention at Chicago at the time of the World's Fair. . . . I would suggest that the Government be memorialized for the abolition of sale of both intoxicating liquors and tobacco to minors. Also against the manufacture of cigarettes, of which there were 22,705,660 made in Canada during the last fiscal year. Also, petition for a reformatory for Protestant girls.

"I would call your attention to the fact that, during the next session of Parliament, there will again be presented a bill to revise the electoral franchise lists. I would suggest that we take immediate steps to secure the full franchise for women, upon the same terms as it is given to men, and that, failing to secure this, the Provincial unions shall take steps to secure municipal and school suffrage, and a vote upon all questions touching the home life; the appointment of women on school boards; that there may be better ventilation in school buildings, and a careful investigation and oversight of the sanitary conditions of such buildings."

She urged work along the line of social purity, for railroad men and the large number of Indians residing in Canada, the creation of a literature department and the support of a paper that should do for Canada the work the W. T. P. A. and THE UNION SIGNAL are doing America. She closed with the apt quotation:

"Each face our Captain sees,
Our van and rear and centers,
Kept in His hand we'll sing,
Ready! Ay, ready!
Ready for everything!"

"The work of our hands, 'establish Thou it,'
How often with thoughtless lips we pray,
But He who sits in the heavens shall say,
Is the work of your hands so fair and fit,
That ye dare so pray?"

Softly we answer, "Lord! make it fit,
The work of our hands, so that we may
Lift up our eyes and dare to pray;
The work of our hands, 'establish Thou it'
Forever and aye."

Miss Willard, as President of the World's W. C. T. U., was present and delivered the address of Thursday evening, and also spoke on the White Cross and the White Shield Friday evening, and gave a Parliamentary Drill Thursday afternoon. Miss Gordon addressed twelve hundred children Friday afternoon; at the close of her address they encored her so heartily that she was obliged to speak again. Superintendents of the various departments reported a great amount of work done, and suggested yet more to do the coming year. The Montreal Y's served lunch each day in the parlors of Erskine Church where the convention was held, and in many other ways assisted in making the meeting the success it was.

Very regretfully the resignation of Mrs. Foster, as president, was accepted; it was offered because the care of a sick sister in her own home demanded all her time and strength. Mrs. Fawcett, of Toronto, was elected to succeed her; Mrs. Youmans remains honorary president; Mrs. Tilley, of Toronto, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. O. Rutherford, Toronto, recording secretary; Mrs. William, of Montreal, was elected treasurer.

THE CALL FROM NEBRASKA.

Below we give a communication from C. E. Bentley, Chairman State Prohibition Committee of Nebraska. If any words of ours can make it stronger, consider them said. Never was there a more important conflict; it is not simply a state contest, though it is of vital importance to secure that grand commonwealth for temperance; it is a battle with the liquor forces of the nation, and in a measure, of the world. The unlimited resources of the liquor monopoly are at command of our enemies and are being freely used in debauching the press, buying up politicians, intimidating business men, and deceiving the masses. Let the temperance people of the nation rally to the rescue, and send in the funds to fight the common foe. Every dollar sent as directed will be sacredly used in the interest of the Prohibitory Amendment, used wisely and economically, and careful account of its use rendered.

To All Friends of Prohibition:

Nebraska has reached the moral crisis of a century. The year of opportunity has come. On the fourth day of November next her citizens' ballots will settle the question of Constitutional Prohibition or Constitutional License. This is the first time in the history of our nation when the proposition has been submitted to the voters of a commonwealth, to engraft license into the fundamental law, and perpetually chain the state to the wheels of the liquor traffic.

Thus a new American desert as broad as the boundaries of her magnificent domain, would stretch its moral wastes in the heart of the Republic—a mighty barrier to oncoming civilization—a blight to all prosperity.

Secure prohibition to Nebraska and you not only bring to that state the conditions of her highest prosperity, morally, socially and politically for all time to come, but you give to our common cause of National prohibition a thrilling impulse of courage and a guarantee of speedy triumph.

In the name, then, of all lovers of justice and purity the world over, and in behalf of the good people of our beloved state, we make this appeal to the country for prompt and liberal financial aid.

Again and again have the home-loving citizens of Nebraska responded to our urgent appeal for help. Out of their poverty they have given at a great sacrifice. Many families in Nebraska have denied themselves common comforts in the way of living, that they might give something to redeem our state from this withering curse of the legalized saloon.

With the extremely low price of produce and the general stagnation of trade, they are yet willing to give, though the farm mortgage grow heavier, and the business of the store and shop be neglected—but the work is too great, the consequences of failure too direful to depend alone on their limited resources.

Our committee needs at once, within the next thirty days, at least two thousand dollars to prosecute this work. This is a special call for immediate help. It does not in any way conflict with the appeal of our national committee for the funds of this campaign, but is in addition to this, and also to emphasize our urgent need for cash to meet our current obligations and avoid the embarrassment of debt.

Some of our best speakers will have to leave the state for lack of financial support if we cannot get this aid. The National Liquor Association appropriates, in one motion, one hundred thousand dollars to Nebraska to defend and entrench the traffic. Within the last ten days publishers of papers in our state who are supposed to favor license, have been offered cash advertising prices for columns favorable to the liquor interests, and some of the papers have been vile enough to accept the overtures. We are not unmindful of the generous help the country has already given to our cause; but there is so much at stake in our common interest, that we urge all of our friends everywhere to give us a measure of assistance. If the traffic can make this issue National for evil, surely the home-loving, God-fearing people of America can make it National for good. Let the people everywhere in the conventions, in mass-meetings, in local clubs, in religious gatherings, and in private contributions, give generous response to our pressing need. Send all contributions to H. E. George, treasurer, room 128 Burr Block, Lincoln, Neb. C. E. BENTLEY,

Ch'm Prohibition State Com.

A FEW FALLACIES.

Let us look a little more closely at some assertions of Mr. Griffin than we could do last week. In doing this we are actuated by no desire for controversy, and most assuredly by no feeling of personal hostility to Mr. Griffin whom we respect as one who honestly differs with us. We answer these points because they are those most frequently made against us; thus, this article has a much wider application than to the debates in question.

Mr. Griffin charges the Prohibition Party not only with never having done any good, but with having done an immense amount of harm. Some of the counts he makes in this indictment are the following: It has stopped the work of moral suasion; has antagonized the anti-woman suffragists, the old soldiers, the blacks and the protectionists; it has but one idea and demands that men shall give up everything for that idea, thus, virtually asking them to give up everything for nothing, for Prohibitionists have no means of carrying out the one idea they have.

Has the formation of the Prohibition Party stopped the work of moral suasion? If so, it proves one thing, that the "moral suasion work" was all done by those who are now in that party. Mr. Griffin claims that the Republican Party is forty-nine times as large as the Prohibition party and contains the great body of temperance people in this nation; why are not these temperance people outside the Prohibition Party carrying on the moral suasion work? We would not hinder them, even if we had stopped doing it ourselves. But we have not stopped this work; we believe it capable of proof that there is more of true moral suasion work—such moral suasion as leads the drunkard to Christ as the Saviour from all sin, the Mighty to save from appetite—than was ever done before. Witness the hundreds and thousands of gospel meetings carried on all over the land by W. C. T. Unions; and it is a well-known fact that most of the leaders in this soul-saving work are pronounced Prohibitionists.

If moral suasion means holding great meetings where men are wrought up to the highest pitch of excitement by well told stories, and, influenced by that excitement and the strongest outside pressure, rush up in crowds to sign the pledge, we Prohibitionists do not do as much of that kind of work as formerly, because experience has shown us a more excellent way. Even those who advocate that form of work say that ninety-five per cent of drinking men who sign the pledge under these circumstances, fall again.

While we thank God for the five that do stand firm, we cannot forget the ninety-five that fall, and cannot help feeling that if God's plan of working were understood and carried out, this terrible proportion of loss would not stare us in the face. We have waited on Him in prayer and besought Him to teach us His method. In the light thus given it has seemed very clear to us that the more excellent way lay through more personal work, through the small gospel meetings rather than the great mass-meetings, through making the pledge the stepping-stone to the Cross. This work is going on in every city and in almost every village in the land. It is quietly done as becometh the servants of Him who said: "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." As this work is not done to be seen of men, the number who sign the pledge is not blazoned abroad in the daily newspaper, but from many years' close connection with this gospel temperance work, we feel confident that the aggregate number who thus take the pledge during the year in these hundreds of small meetings is as great as the number taking it in any one year of great "moral suasion furore," while the per cent of those who keep the pledge thus signed is very much greater.

The great apostle of the moral suasion idea advocated by Mr. Griffin as the solution of the liquor problem is Francis Murphy, and he it is that has taught us the utter futility of moral suasion unbacked by law. A prominent W. C. T. U. lady and her husband brought Francis Murphy into Illinois for his first campaign; Mrs. Waite, Illinois' sainted president, and myself, brought him to Chicago and introduced him to the National Convention about twelve years ago, his first entree into temperance work here. We were enthusiastically in favor of his methods, believing, as Mr. Griffin now believes, that they were destined to accomplish the desired results. Hence we worked with him faithfully, and watched results most closely and hopefully. But before two years had passed, we were sorrowfully convinced that our hopes were not to be realized. Everywhere he preached moral suasion, pledge signing, "every man putting the prohibition plaster over his own mouth," just as Mr. Griffin does to-day; everywhere he preached pity and love for the "poor saloon keeper," and nowhere hinted at the necessity of legal suasion for him, nor pressed home to men's consciences their responsibility before God for their use of the ballot. The result was that within three weeks after his great campaign in my native city, as we stood at the polls on municipal election day, we saw scores and scores of "Murphy men," with the brightness of their blue ribbon scarcely dimmed, march up and vote for licensing the saloons there. The saloons were licensed there, and before the year closed, nine-tenths of Murphy's "reformed men" fell under their temptation. The gentleman who was largely instrumental in bringing Murphy into the state, kept careful record of the result of his campaigns, and found that in every town, without exception, in which he labored that spring, the municipal vote closely following his work went for license, even in some towns that had never had license before, and that through saloons thus opened, scores and hundreds were tempted to their fall.

Nor was that year's experience an exception; the same sad story was repeated again and again and again; this experience did more to make me an out and out Prohibitionist than anything else. It convinced hundreds that while the "prohibition plaster over every man's mouth" is a good thing, there is also needed a big prohibition plaster over the door of every dramshop. "It is not of God that the people shall labor in the very fire" of temptation, that fire which melts off the prohibition plasters from so many mouths.

"Prohibitionists have antagonized all who do not believe in woman suffrage, by their persistent advocacy of that dogma," says Griffin. Yet on the platform beside him, leading all hearts to Heaven's gate in the opening prayer of the very meeting in which this utterance was made, was Dr. Herrick Johnson, recognized all over the continent as one who does not believe in the ballot for woman, yet as stanch a Prohibitionist, and as honored as any man in the party. No grander words were ever spoken than his upon this subject when last fall he welcomed the National W. C. T. U. convention to Chicago.

"You have antagonized the brave defenders of our country," is the next charge. How, or why, we have antagonized them we are not able to imagine. The old soldier has no truer friend than that party which would take from every one, even the government itself, the power to debauch him, and to make gain by traffic with his vices. No organization is doing more for the spiritual uplift of the soldier than is the W. C. T. U., which our opponents persistently class as a part of the Prohibition Party, through its department of work for soldiers and sailors, and we feel sure that multitudes of real soldiers recognize and appreciate this fact.

The same answer can be made to the assertion that prohibition antagonized the black man whose vote must be courted. Prohibition is the only salvation for the black man from a worse slavery than that whose fetters Lincoln struck off. If men are "antagonized" by efforts made to save them from the temptations which so easily beset them, it is not so new a thing in history that Christian men should find in it a reason why a political party has no right to life.

If we should plead guilty to the charge of having antagonized the tariff protectionists we should be only doing what about one-half the Republicans would do, if they confessed the honest truth. The tariff lines are naturally drawn, not between political parties, but between industries; the manufacturer, whether a Democrat or a Republican, is naturally a protectionist, and the farmer, a free trader.

Nothing further is needed to refute the "one idea" charge than a careful reading of National and state prohibition platforms wherein is found clear-cut enunciations concerning the labor question, the tariff, education, ballot reform, Sunday rest and other vital questions now before the American people.

THE fifth Commencement of the Chicago Training School for city, home, and foreign missions was held in the Park Avenue Church, June 3. In the afternoon, a class of twenty-eight missionaries and three nurses received the diploma of the school, and in the evening was held the solemn and beautiful service of consecration of the Deaconesses. It was like an ordinary graduation in some respects—but in others totally unlike; one looked in vain for the laces and ribbons, the white gloves and masses of flowers of the traditional "sweet girl graduate." And yet these were girls—girls who love the beautiful, the dainty, no less than their sisters who pass out from Wellesley or Vassar. To one who looked below the surface, there was unutterable pathos in washed sash ribbons, and dresses not made for the occasion, but worn in the spirit of their wondrous motto, "For Jesus' sake." Seen in this light, each daughter of the King appeared not only "glorious within," but with clothing of "wrought gold." An interesting paper on "Medical Mission Work," a class history, and the school song—a pæan of service, and of joy in service—formed the part of the young ladies in the afternoon exercises; an address by Bishop Ninde was a fitting tribute to Christian womanhood, the day and the scene. In the evening, noble, inspiring words were spoken by Rev. Dr. Bristol and Bishop Merrill, and the Deaconesses were consecrated for their "labors more abundant."

The Watch-Tower.

A white-ribboner writes that her dressmaker declares the average waist of the well-to-do woman of society increased by several inches in the last ten years. It is now twenty-four to twenty-six inches. She also says that a leading fashion paper has the following evolutionary paragraph in its "Answers to Correspondents:" "Ear-rings are worn by those who like them, but are not considered fashionable."

***

Bishop Taylor, of Africa, said recently in New York, that eight of the hardest African missionary stations were managed by women, of which the most difficult was carried on by a little Canadian. He did not give her name, but stated that she was among the wildest tribes, and doing the best work of all.

***

Mrs. Leavitt, writing from Funchal, Madeira, April 14, 1890, says: "I am going to stay here three weeks till the Portuguese steamer comes to take me to Lisbon. When the great Petition goes around the world our leaders must go with it. I have read the minutes of 1889. They reached me in Sierra Leone in March. Did you ever read that beautiful little leaflet telling about a vision that a dear sister had when she seemed to be surrounded by the 'Presence' as by an ensphering cloud, while she could see beyond it, and all sorts of things, sickness, death, and the terrible ways of the world tried to reach her, but they could not unless God withdrew His protecting presence; then the other things that hurt us because of the foolishness or weakness or wickedness of people trying to reach her, but equally with the others they could not reach her unless God withdrew and allowed them. I wish I had that in print to inclose. Ever since I read it, years ago, I have felt the tremendous comfort there is in it. Nothing can touch the National W. C. T. U. unless God lets it be so. May His encircling, enveloping presence never be drawn aside, nor open the least little cranny for any envenomed shaft of Satan to reach you."

***

A lady who passed through the Johnstown flood, wrote last week: "This week brings to many of us sad memories. My own dearest young girls of our flower mission class, who last 30th of May were grouped around me making bouquets and attaching to them leaflets and cards of loving sympathy for the sick and infirm as well as for the veteran soldiers, went from that labor of love through the great flood to receive their Saviour's welcome in the land of love and beauty. Most of us who remain have been borne from our spoiled nests to other environments; but we are a year nearer to the grand Home Reunion where we shall review all the way we have trod, and see and admire, as we cannot now, our Father's care."

***

Miss Willard says: "Our local workers are derelict in no particular more generally than in their failure to furnish facilities for newspaper reporters. By this oversight they say in effect: 'We don't care whether our meetings are reported or not,' thus putting a premium upon the hushing up among one's friends of the fact that one has had a meeting at all. Dear sisters, this ought not so to be.

***

Prominent among the philanthropic women of the present generation, and in the foremost ranks of the elect ladies of the Methodist Church, is Mrs. Bishop Simpson. The crowning work of her valuable life is the founding of the Methodist Orphanage. This she planned about ten years ago, giving the first contribution herself. To show the spirit of the institution, this anecdote is related: One very small, but beautiful and precocious boy, when asked, "Whose little boy are you?" replied, "I am everybody's little boy," in striking contrast to the oft-repeated wail of neglected humanity, "Nobody's child." In her domestic relation she has been most happy. Never were husband and wife more perfectly united in heart and life. During the General Conference held in Philadelphia, prior to the Bishop's decease, as she came in with her illustrious husband and seated herself by his side on the platform, that she might more closely watch over and guard his failing health, many hearts were touched, and when the separation came, after the Bishop's last triumphant song on earth, "O would He more of heaven bestow, and let the vessel break," it is no wonder that almost with his latest breath he said of her and to her, "Precious, precious." The blow fell with crushing weight upon this faithful wife, but, rallying, she said, "I will go again to my Orphanage work, and find what relief I can in assuaging the grief and binding up the broken hearts of others."

ON DUTY.

News from the Field.

MICHIGAN.

ANNUAL STATE CONVENTION.

We have just been up to the "feast of the ingatherers," our state annual meeting at Jackson, held in the M. E. Church, which was profusely decorated with the national flag, a large shield on the front of the organ with the word "Welcome," and the banners of Flushing, Marcellus and West Branch adorning the platform, with our Michigan shield and the wonderful "tree banner" by Mrs. Howard, that has represented us at the Paris Exposition. There were several things for which this convention was notable: The numbers, 284 voting delegates being present; the spirituality of the workers, as shown by the frequent and earnest prayers; and the absence of all hurry in the deliberations. Knowing that the reports read would again appear in the minutes, time was taken for the introduction of other helpful things.

The corresponding secretary's report was very encouraging, showing the addition of eighty new unions, making our number 466. During the year, 692 temperance men have joined our ranks as honorary members. Twenty-six speakers of National and state reputation have been employed by us. The year just closed has been a most trying one to our unions. We have been called upon as never before to stand up and be counted, and right nobly have the white-ribboners of Michigan stood the test. The treasurer's report showed the kindness of outside friends and the nobleness of our own women in so fully making up the loss by bank failure. Total amount received during the past year, $5,237.39. Total amount of money expended by the unions, $12,627.73.

The resolutions rang with no uncertain sound, and were pledges of support to all the advanced movements of the day on a line with our principles. Our president's annual address reviewed the race and labor questions, spoke of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in regard to the sale of liquor in sealed packages, also the decision of the Wisconsin Supreme Court excluding the Bible from the schools. A vein of spirituality ran all through, and her closing recommendation was that we should do more evangelistic work the ensuing year than in the past.

Mrs Torrence, the aged mother of our president, ninety-three years of age was presented and attended the convention a part of two days. Mrs. Lathrap's husband was also introduced and spoke words of cheer. The reports of district presidents were interesting to all and showed that the W. C. T. U. was flourishing in all departments. The superintendents were limited to ten minutes, but when the superintendent of Y work, Mrs. Lillian Hollister, gave such a telling resumé of the year's work in four minutes, we were agreeably surprised. The reports all showed good work, especially that of Mrs. Robens, superintendent of scientific temperance instruction. She and the superintendent of social purity work have issued much literature, spending individual time and money in the work. Another year we are to have a still more delightful program, discussions following reports.

The first parliamehtary drill by Mrs. A. S. Benjamin was a success, many members of the thirteen clubs of Jackson being present. The leader using forty minutes with such acceptauce, a second one was appointed for the next day, and was fully as acceptable.

We received telegrams from the Missouri W. C. T. U., also in state convention, the State Congregatiohal Association and Dr. Henry A. Reynolds. Letters came from Hon. Henry F. Blair, Major Pickler, General Fisk and Mrs. Bowerman, president of Ingham county.

The convention proper was made delightful by the presentation of a banner to the county having the largest per cent of increase; the speech was made by Mrs. Voorhees, first district president, in a most charming manner, and was received by Dr. L. Anna Ballard, who represented the Ingham county delegation in a ringing speech of thanks. An elegant reception chair was presented by Willard union, of Detroit, to Mrs. Lathrap. Bouquets of arbutus were given to both National and state presidents by Mrs. Campbell of the twelfth district.

The evenings of the convention were indeed delightful, beginning with the first when, "just like other folks," by cards we were invited to the elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. Lathrap and we all went, the secretaries, the treasurer and district presidents assisting in receiving. The reception was held from 8 to 11, and during that time not less than five hundred people were made welcome by voice and hand to this Christian home.

Dr. Anna Shaw was the first of the trio of speakers we were privileged to have. Her subject was, "Unconscious Allies." In closing she made an earnest plea for the ballot for women, and said when this was accomplished the liquor traffic would be doomed.

Frances E. Willard spoke to an immense audience that filled every available place. In opening her remarks she paid a glowing tribute to Mary T. Lathrap and the W. C. T. U. of Michigan; her theme was temperance and purity. "The conjuring spell is Faith, the dynamite power of God is Faith. . . . 'I believe more than I know' is the motto of the reformer.' "

The third evening Col. Geo. W. Bain was the speaker. This was our benefit night, and put over one hundred dollars into the state treasury. Colonel Bain gave a vigorous address on the subject of temperance, and kept his audience in a high state of enthusiasm. His general thought was, "Take out every saloon, and put in its place a school; take out every distillery, and place there a church; take out every wholesale liquor house, and in its place put W. C. T. U. rooms, and this will be the grandest country God ever looked down upon." Three elocutionists were present from different parts of the state, and gave some very fine recitations.

The officers were all reëlected almost unanimously. Mrs. Lathrap was presented with a floral star from the recording secretary, and a poem by Mrs. Kate R. Hill was sent up with it. The outside meetings in the Presbyterian Church for the Y's and Loyal Temperance Legions were delightful: at both of these Miss Willard and Miss Gordon spoke.

The county presidents' conferences were frequent, and one meeting I would recommend to other states, called local officers' conference, at which Mrs. Benjamin presided, and told the several officers their duties under the law.

It would seem indeed an oversight if I neglected to speak of the music, of so high an order as "Angels ever bright and fair," together with many solos of great sweetness by Mrs. Hough, who was present at all the meetings." Convention adjourned to meet next year at Muskegon.

MRS. C. H. JOHNSON,
Special Correspondent.

MISSOURI.

W. C. T. U. STATE CONVENTION.

The eighth annual convention of the Missouri W. C. T. U., was held at St. Louis, May 21–23. The sessions were held at the Pickwick Theater, which had been kindly provided by the Central union of St. Louis, which also looked after our entertainment. The convention was called to order promptly at nine o'clock Wednesday morning by the state president, Mrs. Clara Hoffman. The large auditorium was almost filled with delegates and visitors. Consecration services were conducted by Mrs. A. V. Linville. All the officers and superintendents were present, except two district presidents and four out of twenty superintendents of departments.

Mrs. F. H. Ingalls gave an address of welcome, which was fully appreciated by all for its warm and heartfelt manner. It was responded to in a most happy vein by Mrs. C. C. Dobyns. Reports were read of the work in the first and second districts.

Mrs. Hoffman then read her annual address. It was listened to with the most absorbing attention, and left a deep impression upon every one present. On motion, it was resolved that every union in the state be requested to call a public meeting and have the address read.

During the morning Mr. Lucien Cover, of Cameron, editor of the Crusader, a prohibition paper, the only gentleman sent as a delegate, was presented to the convention, and spoke briefly. His paper has been adopted as the official organ of the state.

The devotional exercises in the afternoon were conducted by Mrs. H. H. Waggoner. Mrs. Ira Davis, superintentend of the evaugelistic department, read a very interesting report. Mrs. M. Ringe, superintendent of railroad work, reported encouragingly. Mrs. A. V. Linville, superintendent of social purity, gave an account of her work. She had taken charge of the department in January, and had been devoting her attention mostly to organization. Reports were also read in the department of franchise, by Mrs. R. A. Hazard, and foreign work, by Miss Lillian Wood, in the absence of the superintendent, Mrs. B. Downey. Reports of district presidents were read from the third, fourth, fifth sixth, seventh and St. Louis districts. These were all encouraging as to the general progress of the work.

The evening session was opened by a Bible reading by Miss Laura Clay, of Lexington, Ky., and was a continuation of her theme as presented the night before at the time of Miss Willard's address.

Mrs. Hoffman then introduced Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, president of the Illinois state W. C. T. U., which had fourteen thousand white ribbons enrolled, and which spent $50,000 in local work in their state every year. Mrs. Rounds was received with hearty applause and at once launched into her subject, "Public Sentiment." Her address was greeted with great applause, and showed that she was worthy to be ranked as one of the great leaders of this white ribbon host.

Mrs. Lenora Barry Lake, a representative of the Knights of Labor, spoke for a few minutes, and was heartily received, although some of her remarks were considered as an unjust reflection upon the W. C. T. U.

The convention met promptly at 9 o'clock. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Belle P. Robert. Reports of department superintendents were taken up in the following order: Work for soldiers, Mrs. S. Allen; Sabbath observance, Mrs. K. L. Shaw; press work, Mrs. M. Hughes; health and heredity, Mrs. K. F. Newton; UNION SIGNAL, Mrs. I. F. Burr; labor department, Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns; colored people, Mrs. S. Smith; juvenile work, Mrs. S. B. Shields. The report on press work showed that there were sixty-five local press workers in the state, with district press workers in all but two districts. Out of one hundred publications reported, outside of St. Louis, twenty-eight published W. C. T. U. columns, and fifteen favored prohibition, while many others published temperance matter and W. C. T. U. news. The majority of the papers in the state secretly favor the saloon, while very few dare to advocate them openly. Several of the reports were discussed and the vital points brought out.

Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns' paper on the "Relation of Temperance to Labor" brought out quite an animated discussion, in which Mrs. Ingalls took occasion to correct a statement made by Mrs. Barry, in her talk the night before, to the effect that the W. C. T. U. was composed of people away up in the social scale who held themselves aloof from the Knights of Labor. She showed that the W. C. T. U. was not a caste or class, but on the contrary had always tried to interest the laboring classes in its work, and were certainly deeply interested in their welfare. The discussson was also participated in by Mrs. Meriwether, Mrs. Rounds and others.

Reports were read from the tenth, eleventh and twelfth districts. Mrs. J. M. O'Brien and Mrs. J. S. Smith, two of the Lathrop crusaders, were introduced and greeted with applause. Mrs. Rounds conducted the prayer service, and the convention adjourned for lunch.

The afternoon session opened with devotional exercises, led by Mrs. Harriet E. Worthington, the subject being, "Following Christ." The committee on credentials reported, showing 208 delegates present, and reports from the thirteenth and fourteenth districts were read by Mrs. M. Cushing and Miss C. L. Carter. Mrs. Rounds left for Chicago at this juncture, the members rising to their feet and singing, "God be with You till We Meet Again" as she left the hall. The secretary read a paper on "Scientific Temperance Instruction," prepared by Mrs. L. O. Brock. The following reports of departmental work were then read: Legislative and petitions, Mrs. R. B. Robinson; narcotics, Mrs. F. H. Ingalls; flower mission, Miss M. Phillips; parlor meetings, Mrs. Belle Kimball; report of the state organizer, Mrs. H. B. Harford; unfermented wine, Mrs. L. C. Givens.

Mrs. Julia M. Glazier, of Savannah, state treasurer, then submitted her report, which showed the following: Total receipts, $3,145.93; disbursements, $2,603.18; balance on hand, $542.75. Miss Ellen D. Morris, corresponding secretary, read her annual report, which made a commendable showing of progress. Miss Julia Leavens was introduced and gave a talk on "Physical Culture." Her remarks impressed the necessity of building up and preserving the body, in order to health and happiness, by a course of exercise, diet and reform in dress.

The night session was devoted to the Y's, Mrs. Alice Williams, superintendent of that department, presiding. The stage was occupied by a number of young lady representatives. Such an array of sweet faces lent an additional charm to all that was said and done. Mrs. Williams, herself, attracted all by her fine voice, pleasant manners and apt words, that seemed like "apples of gold in pictures of silver." The chief feature of the evening was the Demorest medal contest, with nine contestants, young boys and girls. Their Prohibition speeches were applauded by the audience with great fervor. The medal was awarded to Florence Rockwell, her subject, "The World on Fire."

On the last day memorial services were conducted by Mrs. Ira Lewis. They were deeply impressive, and all hearts were touched. Twenty-six promoted soldiers were reported, and the memory of these departed ones gave us courage to press on with faces to the front and armor on until the Lord shall call us home. The recommendations of the executive committee were taken up, read and adopted without material change. The convention, with unanimous expression, re-elected the old officers, as follows: President, Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman, Kansas City; corresponding secretary, Miss Ellen D. Morris. Kansas City; recording secretary, Mrs. R. B. Robinson, Kansas City; treasurer, Mrs. Julia A. Glazier, Savannah.

Mrs. Merritt, one of the leaders of the Lathrop Crusade, accompanied by her husband and baby, was introduced to the convention, and received with great enthusiasm. A collection was taken up for the purpose of purchosing a music box for Miss Jennie Casseday, the National superintendent of flower mission, who has been an invalid for many years. A thank offering was taken up and resulted in raising $102.75. An appropriation of $70 was voted to erect a monument to the memory of Miss Rose Phillips, the first state secretary. Mrs. Bond conducted noontide services.

The afternoon session was opened with devotional services, conducted by Mrs. H. C. Manley. Several proposed new by-laws were read and adopted. One was that no president or superintendent should hold office unless paying dues in some union in the district. Also one recommending that members pay one half of their dues, fifty cents, during the first quarter; that the unions remit the total amount of state dues during said quarter, and that the balance of the dues be paid into the union not later than the end of the third quarter.

Delegates to tne next National convention to be held at Atlanta, Ga., were chosen as follows: Delegate at large, Mrs. C. W. Adams; alternate, Mrs. S. A. West; regular delegates, Mrs. L. C. Givens, Mrs. Bond, Mrs. S. B. Shields, Mrs. Mummert, Mrs. Dobyn and Mrs. Kelley; alternates, Mrs. M. B. Cushing, Mrs. Thomason, Mrs. Callahan, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Wallace.

Invitations were sent from St. Joseph, Excelsior Springs and Butler for the next annual state convention. The matter was left for decision with the Executive Committee.

The resolution that provoked most debate was that Christians should discard the use of alcohol in cooking, and refuse it in medicine and at the Lord's table. The cooking clause was adopted without opposition, and the other clauses were finally amended by inserting the word "advise." A resolution was adopted re-affirming loyalty to the W. C. T. U. There were none to oppose. Also one indorsing the Prohibition Party or any party that would loyally adopt prohibition as a leading plank in its platform. Also one favoring the cultivation of closer relations with the Knights of Labor, Farmers' Alliance, and kindred organizations. Thanks were extended for courtesies received.

The call for individual pledges for state work was responded to with earnestness, Mrs. Hoffman leading with a pledge of one hundred dollars. The amount pledged was $605. The unions were then called on and the sum of $935 was realized, making a total of nearly $1,600. All joined in singing "God be with till we meet again." At 6:20 o'clock Mrs. Hoffman pronounced the benediction, and thus closed one of the best attended and most enthusiastic meetings of the W. C. T. U. that has ever been held in Missouri.

NOTES.

Miss Willard's address, the night before the opening of the convention, was a fit preparation for the work in hand. Pickwick theater was filled with an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. Her subject, "Home and Humanity," was a splendid introduction to a splendid talk. Long may she live to battle for home and humanity, two corner stones in the temple of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The exercises were preceded by a Scriptural exegesis by Miss Laura Clay, of Lexington, Kentucky, in which she showed that there was neither male nor female from a biblical standpoint.

The cheap railroad fare was an unexpected blessing, and enabled many to come who could not otherwise have afforded it. The franchise department will push the school suffrage question in the next Legislature.

This was Mrs. Rounds' first appearance before a Missouri audience, but it is to be hoped that it will not be her last. She captured a warm place in the hearts of Missouri women.

MRS. MARIE HUGHES,
State Supt. Press Work.

CALIFORNIA.

TEMPERANCE ENTHUSIASM.

The W. C. T. U. of California are so busy that it is the heerest mockery to try to condense months of work in a ingle letter. Mrs. R. R. Johnson, our state president, was honored by an invitation from the State Teachers' Association to deliver an address on "Scientific Temperance Instruction" before their annual convention at Los Angeles. While there she visited the Southern California W. C. T. U., whose energies have given them a lovely emple, and an immense Band of Hope drilled by Mrs. Lucy Blanchard, as well as mahy other grand results in the temperance cause, and many good ideas were captured and brought forth for further use.

Mrs. Henrietta Skelton has thoroughly organized Lake county, bringing 186 new recruits into our ranks. Rain poured in torrents, but that seems the native element of cold water advocates. She is now working in Mendocino connty. Mrs. Emma Pow Smith is also in the field, having aroused Solano county to new zeal. Mrs. Emily Pitt Stevens is speaking with good success in Alameda county, having organized both W. C. T. Unions and Y's in several places, and three hundred people have put on the white ribbon. As superintendent of franchise of Alameda county, one entire day of annual convention will be given up to her important department. Mis S. M. Severance, state superintendent, is pushing the "war into Africa," and will send petitions for municipal and school suffrage to the next Legislature.

The tri-county convention was held in March in Hollister, and reports from various departments showed aggressive work accomplished. Mrs. R. R. Johnson gave a spirited address. Mrs. J. L. Everts, long their faithful president, was reëlected by acclamation.

Yolo county held its annual canvention at Woodland, April 15–17, with a splendid program which denoted grcat growth. A practical result was $100 raised for state work. As guests and participants at this "feast of reason and flow of soul," the Rev. Dr. Dille, Mrs. R. R. Johnson, Dr. Van Kirk, of Oakland, and Miss S. M. Severance, of Gilroy, made fine addresses. Mrs. Emily Hoppin resigned from the presidency, but was constrained to act as secretary. Mrs. R. A. Armstrong, associate national superintendent of heredity, and one of the best of workers, was elected as president.

San Francisco county held its annual meeting April 17-18, Mrs. Carver presiding. The program was excellent, with the Rev. Dr. Barrows ably representing the sterner sex, as orator of the evening, and the Rev. Wallace J. Gladwin, a returned missionary from India, who earnestly set forth "The Opium Curse." Dr. Rebecca Hallowell, formerly of Philadelphia, now of San Francisco, gave an able paper on "Non-Alcoholic Medication," of which department she is state superintendent. Miss C. M. Victor, the veteran temperance speaker and writer, made an instructive address on "Liquor and Labor." Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Mary Franke Browne of the Pharos, and Mrs. S. G. Chamberlain, of Oakland, made good speeches. Mrs. Carver, retired as president, her co-workers presenting her with a beautiful silver epergne as a testimonial of their esteem, and Mrs. L. P. Williams was elected to the office.

San Francisco county is circulatidg a petition against "ladies' and family entrances to saloons." The sailor work, under Mrs. Mary B. Eden, is most successful. The Mission Union gave their president, Mrs. French, a pleasant reception, and she told of the grand work of the National convention in Chicago, to which she was a delegate, having tarried en route homeward to visit friends. Mrs. Eyster is introducing the juvenile work into the Sunday-schools with good success. Mrs. D. J. Spencer, state corresponding secretary, reports activity all along the line. The pulse is felt in the demands for literature, she having sent out in March, 29,715 pages. She gave a fine address on her work among the "Hoopa Indians" before the Woman's Educational and Industrial Society, which was well received.

San Francisco also had the honor of the State Prohibition Convention. General John Bidwell, of Ohio, was temporary, and Judge L. W. Elliott, of Stockton, was permanent chairman. A vast amount of business was disposed of, and a vigorous campaign planned with Mr. Henry French, of San Jose, as commander-in-chief, and head of the executive committee. "Money talks," and $560 for Nebraska, proposed by Dr. Robinson, of Alameda county, and $15.75 for the state work show that enthusiasm was at white heat. Mrs. Henrietta Skelton nominated Gcneral Bidwell for governor, which was most eloquently seconded and passed by acclamation and "three cheers." Rev. A. M. Hough, of Los Angeles was nominated for Lieutenant Governor. One of the pleasant features of the convention was two quaint kindergarten temperance songs delightfully rendered by the four children of Mrs. McDonald Spencer. Dr. McDonald, the happy grandfather, looked as though he had just struck a bonanza of a million. It is appropriate that the Home Protection Party should have women and children on their platform. Mrs. R. R. Johnston made an animated speech on the Sunday Rest Bill, and Miss Sarah M. Severance and her sex were honored by her nomination for state superintendent of public instruction. Mrs. Parker, of England, told of the British W. C. T. U., and a resolution of sympathy was sent to that noble body of sister workers.

The resolution passed to the American white-ribboners was a fine tribute of praise, and the suffrage plank was indorsed with cheers. That the convention was a grand success the verdict of the Wine Review "that 700 enthusiasts were not to be sneezed at," attests. For once we can indorse the utterance of a liquor paper. Chairman Dickie of the National committeee is making grand speeches in California; the results will be seen at the ballot box in November.

Alameda county with her energetic president, Mrs. Sturtevant Peet, with one thousand four hundred members, and Oakland, its chief city, with seven live unions, is full of good works. The first evangelistic convention of the state was held in Oakland, in February, splendidly carried through by the county superintendent, Mrs. E. H. Burban, and state superintendent, Mrs. S. J. Churchill. The first state conference of the Y's immediately followed at Berkeley. The Oakland Y's are most energetic, having opened headquarters in the "Five Points" of Oakland, for the rescue of drinking men and women, special attention to be paid to the latter by a "midnight mission" under Dr. Kellogg, state superintendent of social pnrity. The girls believe earnestly that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and devote much time to work among the children, who but for their labors would grow up as "hoodlums."

Mrs. Dr. Southard, superintendent of the Y's, tendered them an elegant reception at her home on her return from Maine, where she was the guest of Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens. The young ladies honored Rev. Osborn Congleton, of Philadelphia, the grand lecturer of the Sons of Temperance, with a pleasant reception, he being an honorary Y. His tour through the state has resulted in a "boom" for that, the first organized temperance society, and ten divisions under his magnetic leadership wheeled into line.

The Oakland Central union has received its first bequest of $1,000 from Mrs. Cordelia Richardson. It is sacredly held for a nest-egg for headquarters—that is a temperance temple—for cozy and delightful headquarters were opened last month, and all white-ribboners visiting Oakland are heartily invited to 962 Clay street. A delightful drawing-room meeting was held there recently in honor of Mrs. J. J. Buch, vice-president of the Kansas union, and Mrs. Robert Marquis, of Denver, Col., state superintendent of Sabbath observance. Both ladies gave glowing accounts of the good work in their respective states.

Sabbath observance in California is being grandly pushed by that veteran in the cause, Rev. N. R. Johnston, who, in the absence of Mrs. E. S. Cameron, is state superintendent pro tem. Petitions for a Sabbath Rest bill will be presented to the legislatures, and the city council of Oakland are now being "labored with" on the same subject. More than five thousand names were upon the petitions, and the quick way the council has of listening to the prayers of W. C. T. U. women and then deliberatly legislating in favor of the voters of the saloonkeepers, makes the most conservative wish for the ballot. Mrs. Bateham, National superintendent, is doing grand work in the state. By their importunate entreaties, backed by a petition of nine-tenths of the citizens of the vicinity, the council has refused license to six saloonkeepers in one portion of the city. This little taste of local option makes us long for prohibition. The county supervisors have been petitioned by the ladies to do the same beneficent work throughout the county. The Pharos, state organ, edited by Mrs. Mary Frank Browne, is "helping to shine away the darkness," and Dr. R. H. McDonald contributed most generously $100 for oil. His motto always is, "let the lower lights be burning."

The School of Methods, June 17-24, at Pacific Grove, promises to eclipse all its predecessors in interest and instruction. Mrs. Johnston will introduce many new features in the program. Mith their accnstomed generosity the Southern Pacific Railway company grant one and one-third rates, while the Donahue railroad and stage routes do still better, and give one-half fares. As Pacific Grove is a paradise on earth, the crowd of pilgrims to our summer Mecca will prove a hegira this year. The Chautauqua Assembly with its brilliant program under the able direction of Rev. Dr. Hirst, immediately follows.

The Y's of Washington Colony, Fresno county, recently gave a delightful entertainment for the benefit of the Temperance Temple of Chicago. The San Rafael union gave an elegant reception to the teachers' institute of Marion county, and to the state superintendent of public schools, Professor Ira G. Haiht, a sturdy friend of the W. C. T. U., who told of the enforcement of the scientific temperance law. Mrs. Stratton, the president, was mistress of ceremonies. The entire state mourns the death of Mrs. Edward Coleman, of Grass Valley, a beloved white-ribboner, a devoted Christian, and noble philanthropist.

M. G. C. EDHOLM,
Special Correspondent.

ILLINOIS.

TRUTH TO THE FRONT.

When the so-called non-partisan W. C. T. U. was organized in Cleveland, it was openly recommended to give especial attention to the states of Illinois and New York. In accordance with such suggestion the "seceders" have flooded the unions of Illinois with their literature (?), while the Republican newspapers, from the great dailies of Chicago down to the smallest "locals," have industriously aided in the misrepresentation of facts concerning the condition of the unions.

Nothing however has appeared which is more utterly false than an item found under the head of "non-partisan temperance notes," in the Inter-Ocean of May 10, to the effect that the union of Cerro Gordo had "agreed to an amicable division in the matter of state auxiliaryship," which means that individual influence and dues will be given to the W. C. T. U. or to the non-partisan alliance, as the choice of the individual member may decide.

The truth concerning the Cerro Gordo union is, that a paper concerning the above theory was drawn up and presented not to the union as an organization, but to a few members, who, caught by the specious reasoning concerning peace and prosperity, were beguiled into signing their name, but such action as represented in the Inter-Ocean item has not taken place by the union.

At the county W. C. T. U. convention, held May 24 at Cerro Gordo, at which were present the local, county, district and state presidents, a question box drew out a full discussion apon this subject, and when the request was made for all white-ribboners present who stood by the state and National W. C. T. U. plans ond policy to rise, the vote was unanimous, not one woman voting in the negative.

It is easy to trace the spirit of these misrepresentations which appear from time to time in the public print, to their legitimate source—the fountain of partisan hatred and malice. It is worthy of record, however, that this wrath of man has been made to praise the Lord and to advance the interests of our beloved cause, for nothing has so cemented the hearts of the white-ribboners of Illinois as this effort on the part of the national seceders to cause dismemberment, and in no other one year have we added so large a new membership to our ranks.

Keep in mind, dear loyal women, that nothing can harm us if we be followers of that which is good; and all that we have to do is to stand firm, be true to our principles, and follow divine guidance. We do not need to enter into any compromise on the plea of peace. Our work is grandly increasing, our results commensurate, and over all God's blessing rests. Peace be unto you, beloved in the Lord.

L. S. ROUNDS.

GEORGIA.

NOTES ON MRS. BARNEY'S WORK.

Gratitude to our National superintendent of prison and jail work prompts the following inadequate sketch of her recent labors in Georgia.

Arriving in Augusta, April 14, Mrs. Barney visited the jail there and held a profitable religious service with the prisoners. In the afternoon she addressed a large audience at a public meeting, giving mueh satisfaction to all who heard her. April 15, 16 and 17 she gave to Atlanta, charging nothing for her lectures. An appreciative and deeply moved audience listened to her on the evening of the 15th at Trinity Methodist Church, where she was introduced by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Heidt. At the close of her address several young men went forward and voluntarily promised Mrs. Barney that they would never again indulge in even the mildest intoxicants. The next morning, accompanied by the local superintendents, she visited the Fulton county jail and held a solemn and affecting service; she also visited the station house, receiving most courteous treatment from the officials. That night, notwithstanding a storm, a good andience greeted her at Marietta Street Methodist Church, where she was introduced by the pastor, Rev. A. F. Ellington. On the last day of her stay, Mrs. Barney met and addressed the W. C. T. U., and on the evening of the 17th she gave a grand address at the Church of the Redeemer. All these services were blessed to the spiritual good of her hearers.

From Atlanta, Mrs. Barney went on to Savannah. A delightful reception was given her in Mrs. Webb's parlors. April 18 she addressed a children's meeting held in the theater, and at night lectured at the same place. In the afternoon of the same day she gave a Bible Reading at the Baptist Church. On Sabbath she spoke to the prisoners at a convict camp near the city, and lectured again that evening to a good audience. She has been earnestly requested to return for a series of Bible Readings and for evangelistic work. She has wisdom, strength, sweetness, and much good common sense, and her visit has been productive of good to the cause.

MISSOURI STOKES.
Special Correspondent.

WYOMING.

NEWS AND NOTES.

June finds us preparing for our annual conventions, Sunday-school and W. C. T. U. We hope to accomplish some good in these, and it is our purpose to present a resolution asking for the endorsement of the committee on International Sunday-school lessons to secure the preparation of a temperance lesson for each quarter, and to designate the first Sunday of the quarter as the day. What better plan than to open the quarter with a good strong temperance lesson that can be referred to on each succeeding Sabbath?

The movement now on foot at Cheyenne, is the founding of a home for friendless women, to be known as the "White Shield Cottage." It has been voted, and Miss Annette Northrop appointed as director. Already has the shield of home and friends been thrown around two erring ones who to-day rejoice that the way of escape was open to them, and a hope for the future established in their hearts.

Our worthy president, Charlotte Fisher, paid Cheyenne a hasty visit, but found time to call the executive committee together for a brief consultation. One of our most valued workers, Mrs. Major Whipple, is about to leave us, as they are of the army, and are changed to another location. In all benevolent and philanthropic work she has been an able helper and grand counselor. One of the drawbacks to these western fields is their fluctuating population.

Miss DeVelling is expected to be with us along the line of railroad, as the expense of sending her through the northern tier of counties can not be met by us, but we hope to be able to give her good audiences at these southern points. The W. C. T. U. women are watching anxiously for the Senate to pass the bill giving us statehood.

THERESE A. JENKINS,
Special Carrespondent.

MONTANA.

NOTES FROM WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS.

When it was proposed to us that we have Colonel Woodford for a series of lectures, we thought we dare not undertake it, we were so few and none of the workers very strong, but the Rev. M. J. Hall, chairman of the state prohibition committee came and helped us work up the matter, and we decided to engage him for six nights, and we are so glad that we did, for he did a grand work for us here. As a result of his and our own efforts, there has been an awakening of public temperance sentiment never before aroused in our pleasant mountain village. It has more closely united us in bonds of sympathy and loyalty to our cause, and inspired within our hearts a greater, broader love for our fellow men, and a renewed determination to work harder "For God and Home and Every Land."

We raised in money and pledges somewhat over one hundred and forty dollars, secured over a hundred signers to the pledge and an addition of ten new members to our W. C. T. U., five of whom are honorary members. We felt also greatly enriched and encouraged by the donation of one hundred shares of "Grayhound mining stock," presented to us by Colonel Kent, one of Meagher county's old-time, large-hearted miners who attended the lecture. Our union is doing much in the line of local work, and trying to keep in touch with the general work by effort and encouragement. We have put up five wall pockets at different places, which we keep well filled with good reading, and are now circulating the Siberian exile petition. Union services were held at the M. E. Church, on "Sabbath Observance Day," and we expect to observe peace day with appropriate services. We have made arrangements to visit our jails and almshouse on prison day, and carry to each inmate some little token of our remembrance and regard for them.

At the close of the meetings, local option work was taken up as suggested to us by M. J. Hall while here. Meetings have been held, an organization effected and committee appointed. N. E. KENYON, Rec. Sec.

PENNSYLVANIA.

CHESTER COUNTY CONVENTION.

The first annual convention since the division among W. C. T. U. workers, took place at West Chester, May 22 and 23. We had a rousing meeting, and though the amendment campaign threw us behind, so that we reported but seven months' work, there was no diminution in zeal, and but a very slight falling off in numbers. Unions afflicted with the same trouble should feel encouraged, for ours was of a malignant type. It took off our president, corresponding and recording secretaries, and treasurer. These officers were our most gifted women, and possessed the love and confidence of the entire membership. But the desire for the "facts in the case," the devotion to the cause and the organization, out-weighed the influence of brilliant leaders, and the convention just closed reports forty-seven unions in the county containing an active membership of one thousand and thirty-one, and one hundred and twenty-five honoraries. The Loyal Temperance Legion numbers one thousand three hundred and eighty-six. There were one hundred and thirty-six delegates present against one hundred and forty-seven assembled at Coatesville at the time of the separation. Although the seceding members took half the money in our treasury, the treasurer's report shows a balance on hand. Interest and enthusiasm were greatly augmented by the spirit and energy of the meeting. The young women are pushing to the front with great promise. Several excellent papers were read, and the department reports were animated and encouraging. Miss Anna M. Green, of Philadelphia, contributed a most excellent paper. Dr. Harriet French, Mrs. S. L. Oberholtzer, Mrs. Mary F. Lovell, and Miss Elizabeth Greenwood addressed the meeting. The latter spoke to a full house in the evening, and was well received and greatly enjoyed. She made a strong appeal, well supported by argument, for greater temperance work in the church and by the clergy, and illustrated most strikingly the lethargy and indifference among professing Christians. She also gave a most helpful Bible reading in the afternoon, and her presence among us, and her uplifting words strengthened us like a benediction.

The convention passed resolutions indorsing and recommending THE UNION SIGNAL and Pennsylvania W. C. T. U. Bulletin to all members and friends of temperance; recognized the co-relation of the labor and temperance questions, and decided that "the W. C. T. U. of Chester county shall hold meetings and receptions for wage-earners and their families, inviting ministers, doctors, professors and editors to give addresses upon industrial topics, to show the economic side of the labor question in relation to temperance;" urged the appointment of local superintendents of Sabbath observance; recommended that Mrs. Benjamin be invited to the county to give drill in parliamentary usages; sent an appeal to Senators Quay and Cameron, with the request that the postal laws be amended so as to prohibit the passage through the mails of the Police Gazette and other printed matter devoted to criminal news, pictures and stories of deeds of bloodshed, lust or crime. The resolutions closed with an urgent request that every union in the county "follow up the recommendation of Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender for a general rally in support of the Wilson and Struble bills, now pending in Congress, until one of these or a substitute has been crystallized into law."

LAURA E. JOHNSON, Press Supt.

MICHIGAN.

SIXTH DISTRICT CONVENTION.

The thirteenth annual convention of the sixth district was held in Flushing, April 29 to May 1. The convention was one of the largest and most successful that we have ever held. The M. E. Church was decorated for the occasion with a profusion of flowering plants and an arch of evergreens, beneath which was suspended the word "welcome," arranged in pink and living green. The meetings, both day and evening, were largely attended, numbers riding long distances to enjoy the privilege.

The district officers were in their places at an early hour, and we were honored with the presence of the state recording secretary, Mrs. C. H. Johnson, who rendered valuable assistance throughout, leading a temperance Bible reading one morning and conducting the large gold medal contest Wednesday evening, also giving, by request, her able paper on "Tobacco and Narcotics." The musical talent of Flushing united in giving us a rare treat in the evening meetings, and the coöperation of the three resident pastors and of two who had come across the country some distance, was deeply appreciated.

The address of welcome was given Tuesday evening in so graceful and cordial a manner by Mrs. A. B. Moffit, as to well elicit the beautiful response by Mrs. T. B. Knapp. The president's annual address by Mrs. D. M. Garner was given in clear and entertaining style, and was received with hearty applause.

The day meetings were occupied with reports of vice-presidents and superintendents, showing that the outlook in this district is encouraging. We would make special mention of the report sent by Mrs. M. H. Bowerman, president of Ingham county, whose work was recently spoken of in THE UNION SIGNAL. A request was sent by the convention that the little boy who has lately come to her home may be called "Willard Ingham," for our National President, and in recognition of his mother's work in that county. Doubtless the most noteworthy paper read before the convention was that on "Franchise," by Mrs. S. E. V. Emery. No one could fail to realize the force of her well-defined arguments, and being a resident of our legislative city her paper bore the stamp and authority of one who spoke of things whereof she knew.

The gold medal contest took place Wednesday evening, being the first large gold medal that has, to our knowledge, been gained by a single district in Michigan. The successful competitor was Miss Minnie Warren, of Howell, and the medal was presented by Mrs. Garner.

The most charming feature of the convention was the hour Thursday afternoon which was devoted to exercises by the Loyal Temperance Legion of Flushing. It is an inspiring sight to see two hundred children under such training as these children enjoy, under the leadership of Mrs. A. Rodman. This year the district union awarded prizes to the two Legions showing the greatest increase of membership. Flushing took the lead with an increase of ninety-nine, and Fenton took the second prize.

The church was filled with an enthusiastic audience long before the hour on Thursday evening when Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap gave her lecture, holding her audience captive at will as she led them through the history of our organization from its crusade birth, of which she said that no church organization was ever born in a whiter heat of the Holy Ghost.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. D. M. Garner; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. M. Youngs; recording secretary, Mrs. Lena Griswold; treasurer, Mrs. A. Van Kleek. MRS. LENA GRISWOLD.

NEBRASKA.

NOTES FROM CHADRON.

Our county convention was held in Crawford, May 16 and 17; it was a perfect success in every particular. As there are only the two local unions in the county, of course the attendanee was not large, but nearly all the members of our union were present. The kindly welcome to their hearts and homes will ever be remembered by our sisters with pleasure.

The Rev. Mr. Webster, of Chadron, was with us all day Friday and gave us words of encouragement. Also the Revs. Whitsitt and Pound, of Crawford, aided in our meetings. The choir furnished us with good music. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Olive M. Leades, president; Mrs. M. A. Borodish, vice-president; Mrs. M. L. Farr, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. E. Schofield, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary McGrew, treasurer.

Mrs. Woodward and Mrs. Dustin were with us. They are grand women, doing a noble work. Mrs. Dustin gave the sisters many good thoughts and suggestions that will aid us in our future work. Mrs. Woodward's help in the convention, and her addresses, both in Crawford and Chadron, were appreciated to the fullest extent, and we trust many good seeds are sown in our community which will bring forth an abundant harvest. The last evening she was with us she spoke especially to the railroad men. What she said was enjoyed very much, as was evident by the close attention which she received, as well as their liberal offerings at the close.

W. C. T. U.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

THE M. E. Church at Alpha, Ill., held a flag service June 1, and the ladies of the society presented the trustees of the church with a large beautiful flag to be kept upon her walls as a sign of our loyalty as a church to the nation. May the time soon come when the precepts of the Bible, the principles represented by our flag and the white ribbon, shall be combined to make us indeed a free nation!

FIFTY-FOUR active and twenty-four honorary members were added to the Binghamton, N. Y., W. C. T. U. during a series of five days' meetings recently held by Major Hilton.

MRS. JULIA WELCH, of Denver, Colo., superintendent of foreign work for Arapahoe county, made a pleasant call at THE UNION SIGNAL office Saturday, June 7, on her way to Ohio.

HENRIETTA G. MOORE writes: "I spoke May 14 in the new Madison Ave., M. E. church, at Seattle, Washington, for the King County W. C. T. U. convention, and found that it has a W. C. T. U. memorial window with our motto, 'For God and Home and Native Land' upon it, and also a Band of Hope memorial window. It is the first church I have found in the United States in which our organization is so recognized."

A FRIEND sends this lovely tribute to the memory of a beloved worker:

"Entered into rest on Easter Sunday, 1890, Mrs. Charlotte H. Seaman, wife of B. K. Seaman, of Dover, Minnesota, a loyal white-ribboner, at the advanced age of eighty-two years, five months. Mrs. Seaman was among the first to join the W. C. T. U. at its inception, and she stood by its principles and kept pace with its advancement until her death. She was almost invariably present at our meetings and we greatly miss the sweet presence of the dear old lady. She was an instance of the power of a quiet life, a silent example. She never put herself forward, never counted herself or her opinions of any value; but her steadfastness, her faith and courage, hope and saintliness—these shone like a beacon light during the dozen years or more that she lived among us. Her early home was in New York, but in 1855 she moved to the West. Of seven children, only two survive her. She gave two sons to the Civil War; one who inherited his mother's sweet spirit surrendered liberty and life at Andersonville prison. Hers was

A life that shows how common lives,
In common ways of living,
Can fragrant be and saintly sweet,
By grace of love and giving."

Official Communications.

SCHOOLS OF METHODS.

Mountain Lake Park School, Mrs. C. B. Buell in charge, begins July 22, and closes the 25. The opening will be preceded by a lawn fete, the evening of the 21st. The Silver Lake Quartette will be in attendance the entire time. Ex. Gov. John P. St. John will speak the 23d and 24th. Walter Thomas Mills and Albert Griffin will debate the temperance question from their respective standpoints. Mrs. Helen M. Gougar will be the speaker the last day, and Prof. B. P. Reynolds, of the State University of W. Va., will conduct a school of politics for an hour each morning. Prof. C. E. Bolton will deliver two lectures, illustrated by a stereopticon. Each morning and a part of every afternoon session will be devoted to methods of work, and various topics will be treated, as the action of intoxicants and tobacco on the system. Physical culture and voice culture will also be treated. Other interesting features will be announced later. There will be a school at Moundsville, West Virginia, in charge of Mrs. Buell. Date July 4–14. Particulars later.

Lake Bluff, Ill., in charge of Miss Esther Pugh and Miss West, date July 7–14.

Lexington, Ky., in connection with Chautauqua Assemby, July 1–10. Miss West, leader.

Asheville, N. C., July 21–Aug. 4. Mrs. M. L. Wells in charge; Miss West, instructor.

The Ocean Grove, New Jersey, school, Mrs. Downs in charge, opens Saturday, July 5, at 10 a.m., in James Memorial Tabernacle, and continues throughout Saturday and Monday, three sessions each day. Saturday evening is occupied by Mrs. Mary T. Burt and Mrs. J. K. Barney, the latter giving her celebrated lecture, "From Jerusalem to Jericho." Sunday evening Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap will preach; she will also speak Monday evening. General Fisk and other leaders are expected to be present and assist in the services. Special hotel rates are secured for the occasion.

Bay View, July 23–Aug. 4, Mrs. A. S. Benjamin, leader.

Will all leaders of Schools of Methods send me immediately their programs, especially the dates of their schools, for announcement here?

MARY ALLEN WEST, Nat. Supt.

WORK AMONG FOREIGNERS.

List of contributions for work among foreigners in Nebraska campaign: Already reported, $28; Miss Dornblaser, Pa., $1.75; Mrs. Crosby, Washington, D. C., $5; Pennsylvania state W. C. T. U., $25; California state superintendents [7] $25; Mrs. Roberts, Kirkwood, Mo., $1; Mound City, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Mrs. E. Peters, Manistee, Mich., $10; Columbia, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Luray, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; King City, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Union Star, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Pomona, Cal., W. C. T. U., $1; Hamilton, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Brayner, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Wheaton, Ill., W. C. T. U., $1; Geo. Davies, Lawrence, Kan., 50c.; Stockton, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Lamont, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Appleton, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Louisiana, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Eight Mile, Mo., W. C. T. U., $1; Total, $111.25.

S. F. GRUBB, Nat. Supt.

WOMAN'S LECTURE BUREAU.

MRS. R. A. EMMONS, SEC.

LECTURERS.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap.	Mrs. S. M. I. Henry.
Miss Henrietta G. Moore.	Miss I. C. DeVelling.
Mrs. Marion B. Baxter.	Mrs. Caroline M. Woodward.
Rev. Eugenia F. St. John.	Rev. W. H. Boole, D.D.
Mrs. Helen L. Bullock.	Ex-Gov. John P. St. John.
Rev. C. H. St. John.	Miss E. Fannie Griffin.
Mr. A. G. Wolfenberger.	Mrs. S. M. Perkins.
Prof. A. B. Huckins.	Mrs. R. J. Trego.
Major E. T. Scott.	Mother Stewart.
Mrs. E. T. Scott.	D. H. Burwell.
Mrs. M. L. Wells.	Dr. Kate C. Bushnell.

Mrs. F. McReady Harris (Hope Ledyard).

MRS. MARY T. LATHRAP

speaks at Portland, Me., June 14; Auburn, 15; Bangor, 16; Caribou, 19; Presque Isle, 20.

MRS. MARION B. BAXTER

speaks at Fargo, N. Dakota, June 12 and 13; Amenia, 14; Casselton, 15; Wahpeton, 16; Buxton, 17; Hillsboro, 18; Fargo, 19; Lisbon, 20; Oakes, 21 and 22; Valley City, 23; Dawson, 24.

MISS HENRIETTA G. MOORE

speaks at Coeur d' Alene City, Idaho, June 15, and at Miles City, Montana, for one week commencing June 22. She will start East June 30. Unions en route in Minnesota and Wisconsin desiring her services should apply for dates at once.

REV. EUGENIA F. ST. JOHN will spend the entire month of June in West Washington.

MRS. S. M. I. HENRY

will be at Whiting, Iowa, June 15, for a three days' meeting.

MRS. C. M. WOODWARD

gives all her time to Nebraska until November 1.

D. H. BURWELL

will be at Hornellsville, N. Y., until June 15, then to Corning until June 25. From there he goes to Nebraska, and unions desiring his services en route should apply at once for dates.

For dates and terms of all the above, address the

WOMAN'S LECTURE BUREAU,
161 La Salle St., Chicago.

A Few Words on Indigestion.

It is not our intention to give the history of the Canadian, Alexis St. Martin, to whom a shot through the stomach brought fame, nor to tell you how long it takes to digest Strassburg pie or sourkrout. No doubt you know by experience. It has been well said: "Some men never seem to know they have a stomach." However, we do not write for this fortunate class.

The celebrated Purdon thoroughly "digested" the Laws of Pennsylvania. But there are few Purdons. The old Romans do not seem to have suffered from indigestion. The gastronomic feats of our Teutonic forefathers are almost incredible, and we read the accounts of "Homeric Banquets" with a feeling approaching to incredulity.

Our manner of life has impaired our digestive powers. We do not spend enough time in the open air; we rise early and retire late to rest We bolt our food, and do not rest afterward. To these and other incidents of a high degrec of civilization is to be traced one of our most common maladies, Dyspepsia. We shall not attempt to portray the mental or bodily condition of its victims. We shall simply point out a way of escape and refer you to a work, giving a full account of many cures, with abundant testimonials, which you can verify by writing to the patients themselves.

Write for our Treatise on Compound Oxygen. It is a carefully written medical work, giving the mode of action, nature, results, and, in short, a full account of this great vitalizing agent. No other genuine. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., or 120 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.

Publisher's Dep't.

Here

Are the names of some of the many friends who say "Yes, we will help get the 15,000 subscribers before July 4." Join them?

Mrs. A. C. Hopkins, Oberlin, O.
Mrs. R. D. Scott, Duluth, Minn.
Sarah A. Chace, Dayton, Tenn.
Rachel Carney, Tonawanda, N. Y.
Jennie Carrion, Marion, Minn.
L. J. J. Jeffrey, Carson City, Col.
Adella Miner, Lindenville, O.
L. C. Knight, Battle Creek, Mich.
Mrs. M. A. Cone, Menomonee, Wis.
Mrs. M. E. Weston, Riverton, Va.
Mrs. M. H. Morian, Cherry Creek, N. Y.
Mary A. Murdock, Grand Tower, Ills.
Mrs. N. B. Hunt, S. Sudbury, Mass.
Mrs. D. R. Stewart, Bradford, Pa.
Ella Moore, Lakeville, Ind.
M. S. Dickson, Oskaloosa, Ia.
A. Jefferson, Mt. Vernon, O.
Mrs. J. A. Year, Allentown, Pa.
Mrs. W. F. Wilson, New Concord, O.
Lubelle B. Patrick, Groveville, Me.
Mrs. A. C. Rosenberry, Bourbon, Ind.
Mrs. E. S. Wright, Red Wing, Minn.
Mrs. S. Spaulding, Pittsfield, Mass.
Mrs. S. C. Bains, Vaiden, Miss.
Mrs. M. Lamar, Barnard, Kans.
Mrs. Rittenour, Moorestown.
Mrs. C. M. Leighton, Lincoln, Neb.
Mrs. Ella R. Shane, Davison, Mich.
Mrs. C. L. Trask, Poland, N. Y.
Mrs. L. D. Chandler, Springville, N. Y.
Mrs. E. R. Voke, Spencerport, N. Y.
Mrs. E. L. Talmage, Milton Center, O.
Jane P. Martin, Fairfield, Iowa.
A. E. McLean, W. Hartford, Conn.
Mrs. E. A. B. Hungerford, Gaylordsville, Conn.
Mrs. L. M. Wylie, Drayton, N. D.
Mrs. E. M. Lundy, Greenville, Ills.
Mrs. J. H. Battles, Stella, Neb.
Mrs. I. Deffenbaugh, N. Sandusky, O.
Cora L. Johnson, Joliet, Ills.
Mrs. L. A. Raynolds, Orient, S. D.
Lelia Willson, Potsdam, N. Y.
Mrs. Etta Van Wagner, Billings, Mont.
Mrs. Cora B. Collins, Lowville, N. Y.

Help Nebraska!

We have eighteen "Timely Talks," and eight "Signal Lights," fitted especially for Amendment campaigns. They are strictly non-partisan, written by leaders, such as Miss Willard, Neal Dow, Mrs. Lathrap and others; they expose the fallacies of high license, and plead with voters to vote for the home and against home's arch enemy. They are wonderfully cheap and wonderfully effective. Here are the Special Campaign Prices.

"Timely Talks," per 1,000, post-paid. $1.50; per 1,000, by express, $1; "Signal Lights," per 1,000, post-paid, $1; per 1,000, express, $0.75.

If you send such bullets as these into the fray effective work will be done.

Sure-lee!

If our friends only knew the worth of our Young Crusader papers they would not be so backward about coming forward to support them. Take the July Sunday-school number for instance. It has a charming story to start—a delightful description of how Sunday afternoon can be used—quaint Search Questions, breezy summer poems, and general air of wide-awakedness. Don't you see how such a paper, when introduced into schools, now indifferent as to temperance and the W. C. T. U., would wake folks up as to matters and things? The semi-monthly number is equally good, and yet the list stays faithfully about 8,500, and the hope of the next generation lies in the present education of the young? Oh, "So many other papers?" And what do they teach? games, amusement, possibly art and culture, possibly blood and thunder! Is there not a better use for literature money?

Address WOMAN'S TEMP. PUB. ASS'N,
161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

A BIG PAYING BUSINESS.

Reliable men and women seeking a fine, permanent paying business, will address The Stevens Dish Washing Machine Co., Cleveland, O., for Circulars, etc., which will tell what it is, and what people who are using it say of it.

The Gold Thimble

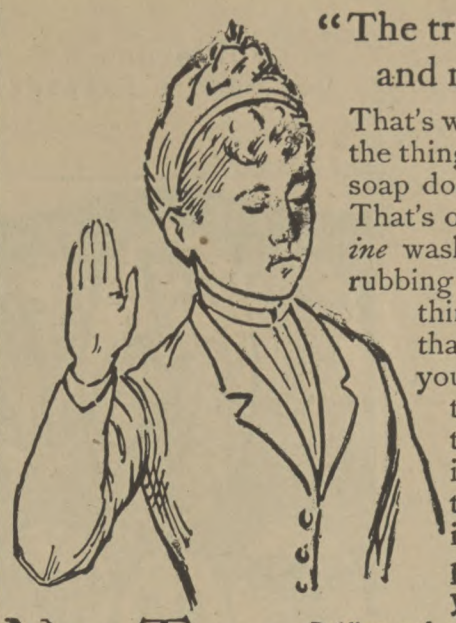
proves a most attractive premium. Get us three new subscribers, send in their names with $3, and claim the thimble. Unless you state size wanted number eight will be sent. It gives great satisfaction, so does THE UNION SIGNAL, so there's every reason why thimbles and papers should meander everywhere!

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The package of recent publications received. Thank you for the favor. "Bible Wines," by Miss Mary Allen West, I have given a careful reading. I like it very much. It is just the thing that every superintendent of the unfermented wine department needs, especially of the local unions who do not have time or opportunity to examine more extended works. It treats of all the points at issue in the wine question, and answers in a direct and concise manner all the questions and objections that may be presented.

R. A. ESMOND.

CRUSADER SERIES. No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3. Each 10 cents. No. 1 is on general temperance points; No. 2 on the Temperance Temple, and No. 3 is "The Trial of Prince Nicotine." All are bright and good.



"The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

That's what you ought to know about the thing you wash with. What good soap doesn't hurt, Pearline cannot. That's only part of the truth. Pearline washes and cleans without the rubbing and scrubbing that wear things out—without the work that makes women old. Half your labor is spared by it; twice the work is done with it; time and money are saved by it. "Nothing but the truth" is the best policy for us; "nothing but Pearline" is the best policy for you; but perhaps you use Pearline. Millions do.

Not True Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, the honest thing to do is—send it back.

173 JAMES PYLE, New York.

PAINLESS BEECHAM'S PILLS EFFECTUAL

THE GREAT ENGLISH MEDICINE WORTH A GUINEA A BOX

For Weak Stomach—Impaired Digestion—Disordered Liver.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.

Prepared only by THOS. BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lancashire, England.

B. F. ALLEN & CO., Sole Agents

FOR UNITED STATES, 365 & 367 CANAL ST., NEW YORK,

Who (if your druggist does not keep them) will mail Beecham's Pills on receipt of price—but inquire first. (Please mention this paper.)

Van Houten's Cocoa, delicious, made instantly.

Do you want to learn about Oregon? If so, read the advertisement of The Oregon Land Company, in another column. This is the most substantial concern in the Northwest, and parties thinking of locating or investing in Oregon will do well to correspond with them or call at their elegant offices in the "Hotel Portland," Portland, Oregon.

The Vestibuled Pullman Car Line.

The Monon Route is the finest equipped line on the continent and affords choice of four daily trains from Chicago to the South via Indianapolis and Cincinnati, or Louisville and Burgin. For full information call on any ticket agent of the Monon Route or address W. H. McDoel, Traffic Manager, or James Barker, Gen'l Pass. Agent, 185 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

MR. J. C. WEAVER, Macon, Ga., says: I consider Bradycrotine the only remedy that I have ever found that would give prompt and sure relief to Headache.

TOKOLOGY, a book for every woman is a complete ladies' guide in health and disease. The sale of this work has been phenomenal and the good it has accomplished incalculable. Agents introducing this work are real missionaries. No other book sells so well. Sample pages and terms to agents free. Prepaid $2.75. Address Alice B Stockham & Co., 161 La Salle St., Chicago.

THE ANGLOMANIACS,

A NOVEL OF NEW YORK SOCIETY LIFE BEGINS IN THE

JUNE CENTURY,

AND WILL RUN THROUGH FOUR NUMBERS OF THE MAGAZINE. THE AUTHOR, WHO IS EVIDENTLY FAMILIAR WITH THE LIFE AND CHARACTER DEPICTED, CHOOSES TO REMAIN UNKNOWN. THE STORY IS CLEVERLY ILLUSTRATED BY DANA GIBSON.

THE CENTURY is for sale by dealers generally—price 35 cents. June number now ready.

THE CENTURY CO.,
33 East 17th Street, New York.

AGENTS Wanted. $5 00 a day made selling our Jewel Tufting Machine, Rug Patterns, etc. Send for Catalogue and particulars. Small sample sent for 10c to pay postage. GIBBS MFG. CO., 88.90 State St., Chicago.

PANSY PLANTS 12 very choice Pansy Plants, all colors, 20c. or 24 for 30c., nicely packed, postpaid Catalogue FREE, F. B. MILLS, Thorn Hill, N. Y.

THE GLUTEN ENTIRE Wheat Flour makes the cheapest and best bread, cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Nervous Prostration. Send for circular. Mill Office, 135 Lake St.

A MOST WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

For ladies only. An intelligent lady wanted in every county of the U. S to represent the Handy Treatment Co., Des Moines, Ia. Send 2-cent stamp.

JENNINGS SEMINARY

AURORA NORMAL SCHOOL AND BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Prepares for COLLEGE, for TEACHING, for BUSINESS, and offers excellent opportunities for the study of Music, Art, Short Hand and Typewriting and Elocution. Building heated by steam. For catalogs address. Rev. C. C. LOVEJOY, A. M., Aurora, Ill.

WHY NOT LOOK INTO THIS?

50 acres of good fruit land for $25 cash and $5 monthly for 12 months; in Honduras, where it is not hot, no frosts, no drought, no failure of crops. Income $200 per acre without going on the land. Many already sold, some to ladies. For circulars address,

J. W. Troeger, 228 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

PIERRE

"THE FUTURE GREAT!"

WHY WILL SHE MAKE A LARGE CITY?

A Little Study of the geography of the Northwest, and especially the remarkable valley of the great Missouri River, will readily convince most persons that Pierre has better prospects of making a LARGE city than any other young city they can find. First you have Kansas City, then St. Joseph, Omaha, Sioux City, and next Pierre.

A Great Many are not aware that Sioux City to-day has a population of 50,000, while in 1880 she was a small place about the size of Pierre to-day, or that lots that sold in Sioux City in 1880 for $75 are now worth from $1,000 to $2,000, yet it is true. The same thing can be said of a great many other Western cities.

Pierre has all the advantages that have built up the above-named cities, viz.: A favorable location, a large scope of commercial territory tributary, a fine country surrounding, and, best of all, a force of ambitious, liberal and energetic young men at her helm, who are bound to make her the great city of South Dakota. Besides this she has something none of them have—the Capital of the State, which assures her railroads and influence.

We will quote the population of the capitals of the five States nearest to S. Dakota:

	Population 1870.	1880.	1890.
St. Paul	13,000	42,000	200,000
Des Moines	9,000	23,000	60,000
Lincoln	1,000	13,000	50,000
Topeka	4,000	16,000	50,000
Denver	5,000	35,000	140,000

Read the following: Three different railways have surveyed into Pierre in the last few weeks. Others are on the way.

THE MISSOURI RIVER is navigable more than 1,300 miles above Pierre; unlimited deposits of first-class quality COAL exist in the portion of the Sioux Reservation just opened to settlement.

THE MISSOURI VALLEY is the garden of the fertile State of South Dakota. Pierre is within six miles of the exact geographical center of the State.

PIERRE IS NOW a small young city, and real estate is remarkably low in price, but when a few years' time have allowed these resources and advantages to become developed she will be a city of large proportions, and real estate will have a proportionate value.

THE NEXT TEN YEARS of Pierre's existence can be compared to the development of a boy of nine years (Pierre is nine years old) into the strong young man of nineteen.

MOST OLD MEN now regret that they did not invest in some of the young Western giants whose growth has so far surpassed their anticipation, but any one who expects to live ten years longer has a chance to profit by their experience by investing now in Pierre.

INVESTMENTS: To persons who might wish to invest a little in this wonderful young city, I respectfully ask them to correspond with me. I give to all my patrons at present a contract of guaranty which relieves them of all risk, and, on the other hand, absolutely assures them of a good profit. ☞A Map of the City Free. ADDRESS CHAS. L. HYDE, Pierre, S. Dak.

REFERENCES.—You are at liberty to write to any of the following persons regarding myself:

REV. DR. WM. H. BLACKBURN, Pres't Presbyterian College, Pierre.
REV. DR. JAMES C. JACKSON, Dansville, N. Y.
REV. S. M. WILLIAMS, 425 Clinton Ave., Albany, N.Y.
REV. JOHN F. CLYMER, Somerville, Mass.
R. F. PETTIGREW, U. S. Senator from S. Dakota.
B. J. TEMPLETON, President National Bank of Commerce, Pierre.
S. S. CLOUGH, Pres't Citizens' National Bank, Pierre
P. F. MCCLURE, President Pierre National Bank.
C. C. BENNETT, Pres't First National Bank, Pierre.
A. W. JOHNSTON, Mayor of Pierre.

Publisher's Dep't.

What Does This Mean?

DETROIT, May 29, 1890.

MR. HALL:

Your letter in reference to the "New Crusade' was received this morning, and this afternoon was read to the regular meeting. The ladies immediately voted to accept your offer, and send So you will hear from Detroit Central W. C. T. U. further on.

Respectfully,

MRS. G. W. SCRIPPS.

Five dollars? What for? It is like this. After having offered Miss Willard's picture as an incentive for old subscribers to get new ones, the thought further occurred to the publisher that such a picture would be greatly prized in all unions. So we wrote letters to all the local unions in the country—over 8,000—and personally signed each type-written letter, making the proposition accepted so promptly by the Detroit union above, namely: If we gain the 15,000 new names, we will send a framed picture of Miss Willard to the local union that would send us $5 before the date named. Five new names can be sent with the money, or a less number, or none, as may be desired. In case the new names are not sent, we will promptly send a due bill showing that a certain number of names at $1 will be accepted by us any time before January 1st. The above is the first response, came while the writer was signing some of the 8,000 letters, and gladdened his work exceedingly. This must not interfere with the work of sending in one or more names at $1 each. Vote the money out of your treasury and send it on, the new names can follow later, but don't you see what a splendid plan it is to put unions at work, and as a result to have this picture of Miss Willard, which we guarantee will be the best that can be made.

By July 4th

But See, June 5th

Now,

July 4th, So Near!

Is it necessary to have a big lot of time to do such a work as this? We think not. If a meeting will not be held soon at once and bring the matter up. We have presumed on Miss Willard's kindness in making such an offer without even consulting her, but you all know how readily your leader falls in with any plan to push THE UNION SIGNAL. In this case she has had no opportunity to give the helping word—the success of it all rests on you. Shall it not be a tremendous success?

Call One

8,000 x 5 = 40,000!

So does the work cumulate. What will be the response? Don't wait for your president or officers to act. You act; tell them you can be counted on to help. This is Mrs. Everybodyinparticular's business!

The Time is Short

but

Not Very Much is Asked!

Act! Act! Act!

PRESS NOTICES

GLIMPSES OF FIFTY YEARS

It is a charming story, in which not only the 200,000 members of the W. C. T. U., but other women and men who know of this noble woman, will be intensely interested.—Sioux City (Iowa) Tribune.

The picture it presents of a busy, eventful life, crowded full of activities and high responsibilities, is full of interest and inspiration. The President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has done more for the cause by this record of her stirring, useful life, than could be accomplished by any set argument.—The Book Buyer.

I am glad that this able and timely volume has been written. It will do good wherever it is read, and impart needed information concerning a movement that is already flooding the world with light and glory. It furnishes an answer to the question, "What can a woman do?" It is the record of a fruitful and beautiful life.—The Central Methodist, Catlettsburg, Ky.

For sunburn use Pond's Extract.

Ball's Corsets in a variety of styles. Most comfortable corset ever made. Kabo Corsets of perfect fit, in various styles and lengths. Kabo never breaks. Ball's Waists are the best in the world for Ladies, Misses and Children. All with soft eyelets.

FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.
CHICAGO CORSET CO.,
CHICAGO AND NEW YORK.

VanHouten's Cocoa
"BEST & GOES FARTHEST."
The purest, most soluble—the original cocoa. Invented, patented and made in Holland. Delicate, stimulating, nutritious, much better for the nerves than tea and coffee. Ask for VAN HOUTEN'S, take no other. [61

LADIES! Use only Brown's French Dressing on your Boots and Shoes.

MUNICIPAL BONDS AND OTHER INVESTMENTS
A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS TRANSACTED.
S. A. KEAN & CO. BANKERS,
CHICAGO: 100 WASHINGTON ST. New York: 115 B'dway.

THE TOTAL ABSTINENCE LIFE ASS'N OF AMERICA
furnishes the best and cheapest insurance for total abstainers from alcoholic liquors as a beverage.
Women insured on same terms as men. Agents wanted. Address W. F. Singleton, Pres., Royal Insurance Bldg., CHICAGO, Ill

FAITH COTTAGE—Rooms to rent at Lake Bluff, a summer resort 30 miles from Chicago, on the Chicago & Northwestern R. R. For further particulars address Mrs. Alice R. Bishop, Lake Bluff, Ill.

A HOUSE OF REST is opened for those needing rest, with the best of nursing if required, and retirement to wait upon the Lord. For particulars address Mrs. Dr. A. M. CUNNINGHAM, Beaver Springs Farm, Woodville, Mass., Box 47.

MILLER'S HOTEL New York City. 39 West 26th St. A Prohibition Home. Patronized by W. C. T. U. workers visiting New York. Turkish, Electric, Roman Baths. Address, DR. E. P. MILLER, Proprietor.

HOTEL FREDONIA,
H. St., between 13th & 14th. Washington, D. C.
New, Elegant, Quiet, Homelike,
G. H. La Fetra, - - Prop.

ROCK BOTTOM Prices on Dry Goods, Groceries, Everything you eat, wear or use. Send for FREE Illustrated Catalogue to H. R. EAGLE & CO., 68 Wabash Av., Chicago, Ill. We do not sell liquors in any shape.

HARRIMAN The New City with PROHIBITION in Title Deeds. East Tenn. Land Co. Clinton B. Fisk, Pres., A. A. Hopkins, Sec'y, Times Building, New York City. JAMES B. HOBBS, Agt., 97 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Just What is Wanted.
A PROHIBITION EMBLEM
That can be worn by everybody men, women and children, all over the world. Endorsed by the leading prohibitionists of the United States. Gold front. Sample by mail 75c. Discount to agents.

JEWELRY MFG. CO., Box 1211, Providence, R. I

STEEL EDGE DUST PANS
~LAST A LIFE TIME
EDGE ALWAYS STRAIGHT
STEEL EDGE
SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE.
By mail, postage pre-paid, on receipt of 25 cts. to the
STEEL EDGE STAMPING & RETINNING CO.,
89 State Street, BOSTON, MASS.

NEW MUSIC FOR PROHIBITION.
"WHITE RIBBON VIBRATIONS."
The new W. C. T. U. Song Book. The latest and the best. 150 pages of splendid songs. Meets the wants of all aggressive temperance work. Words and music of superior quality. Good paper, good binding. Just the book for Choirs and other musical organizations. Nothing equal to it for the public meetings of the W. C. T. U., Medal Contests, &c. Music for all occasions.
Price 35c, prepaid; $3.60 per doz. not prepaid.
Order of FLORA H. CASSEL, HASTINGS, NEB.

50,000 Men & Women Canvassers now. $1 an hour Present worth $1. A. Bloomingdale, Gloversville, N.Y.

KISS ME MAMMA I CAN'T SLEEP!
Beautiful song and chorus. 30c.
Wm. A. May, Box 3442, New York, N. Y.

LADY Agents clear $5.00 daily. Goods indispensable. Sample free. G. L. Erwin, Chicago.

Silk Satin & Plush Remnants for Crazy Patch, a large pkg. pretty pieces, assorted col. & our ill. story paper 3 mos. 10c. The Little Giant, St. Louis

"130 ORDERS IN 3½ DAYS;" "10 Orders every 12 calls;" "47 orders in 16 hours." Terms free. JAS. H. EARLE, Pub. Boston

SAVE MONEY Our 486-page, Catalogue gives Wholesale Prices on all kinds of Merchandise in any quanity. Anti-trust and Co-operative. Write for particulars. Cash Buyers' Mer. Union, Chicago, Ill.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTOGRAPH FAMILY RECORD PICTURE Agents wanted. Terms extra liberal. Address C. P. CORY & CO., 325 State St., Chicago.

"MURRAY"
$55.95 BUGGIES and $5.95 HARNESS
are the best and cheapest. Write for catalogue and prices. Wilber H. Murray M'f'g Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM or Morphine Habit cured at home. Trial Free. No Pain. No exposure. Address, Compound Oxygen Ass., Fort Wayne, Ind. Name this paper

